[Dedication to the three volumes of 1863]

I DEDICATE THESE VOLUMES TO MY OLD FRIEND JOHN FORSTER, GLAD AND GRATEFUL THAT HE WHO, FROM THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THE VARIOUS POEMS THEY INCLUDE, HAS BEEN THEIR PROMPTTEST AND STAUCHEST HELPER, SHOULD SEEM EVEN NEARER TO ME NOW THAN ALMOST THIRTY YEARS AGO.

AUTHOR'S PREFACE TO EDITION OF 1868

THE poems that follow are printed in the order of their publication. The first piece in the series I acknowledge and retain with extreme repugnance, indeed purely of necessity; for not long ago I inspected one, and am certified of the existence of other transcripts, intended sooner or later to be published abroad: by forestalling these, I can at least correct some misprints (no syllable is charged) and introduce a boyish work by an exculpatory word. The thing was my earliest attempt at 'poetry always dramatic in principle, and so many utterances of so many imaginary persons, not mine,' which I have since written according to a scheme less extravagant and scale less impracticable than were ventured upon in this crude preliminary sketch—a sketch that, on reviewal, appears not altogether wide of some hint of the characteristic features of that particular dramatis persona it would fain have reproduced: good draughtsmanship, however, and right handling were far beyond the artist at that time.

LONDON: December 25, 1867.

AUTHOR'S PREFACE TO EDITION OF 1888

I PRESERVE, in order to supplement it, the foregoing preface. I had thought, when compelled to include in my collected works the poem to which it refers, that the honest course would be to reprint, and leave mere literary errors unaltered. Twenty years' endurance of an eyesore seems more than sufficient: my faults remain duly recorded against me, and I claim permission to somewhat diminish these, so far as style is concerned, in the present and final edition where 'Pauline' must needs, first of my performances, confront the reader. I have simply removed solecisms, mended the metre a little, and endeavoured to strengthen the phraseology—experience helping, in some degree, the helplessness of juvenile haste and heat in their untried adventure long ago.

The poems that follow are again, as before, printed in chronological order; but only so far as proves compatible with the prescribed size of each volume, which necessitates an occasional change in the distribution of its contents. Every date is subjoined as before.

A FRAGMENT OF A CONFESSION

Plus ne suis ce que j'ai été,
Et ne le s., aurois jamais être.—Marot.

NON dubito, quin titulus libri raritate sua quamplurimos alliciat ad legendum: inter quos nonnulli obliquæ opinionis, mente languidi, multi etiam maligni, et in ingenium nostrum ingrati accedent, qui temeraria sua ignorantia, vix conspecto titulo clamabunt Nos vetita docere, hæresium semina jacere: piis auribus offendiculo, præclaris ingeniiis scandalo esse: . . . adeo conscientia suæ consulentes, ut nec Apollo, nec Musæ omnes, neque Angelus de cælo me ab illorum execratione vindicare queant: quous et ego nunc consulo, ne scripta nostra legant, nec intelligant, nec meminerint: nam noxia sunt, venenosa sunt: Acherontis ostium est in hoc libro, lapides loquitur, caveant, ne cerebrum illis excutiat. Vos autem, qui æqua mente ad legendum venitis, si tantam prudentiæ discretionem adhibueritis, quantum in melle legendo apes, jam securi legite. Puto namque vos et utilitatis haud parum et voluptatis plurimum accepturos. Quod si qua repereritis, quæ vobis non placeant, mittite illa, nec utimini. NAM ET EGO VOBIS ILLA NON PROBO, SED NARRO. Cætera tamen propterea non respuite. . . . Ideo, si quid liberius dictum sit, ignoret adolescentiæ nostræ, qui minor quam adolescens hoc opus composui.—Hen. Corn. Agrippa, De Occult. Philosoph. in Prefat.

LONDON: January '833.

V.A. XX.

[This introduction would appear less absurdly pretentious did it apply, as was intended, to a completed structure of which the poem was meant for only a beginning and remains a fragment.]

PAULINE, mine own, bend o'er me—thy soft breast
Shall pant to mine—bend o'er me—thy sweet eyes,
And loosened hair and breathing lips, and arms
Drawing me to thee—these build up a screen
To shut me in with thee, and from all fear;
So that I might unlock the sleepless brood
Of fancies from my soul, their lu'king-
place,
Nor doubt that each would pass, ne'er to return
To one so watched, so loved and so secured.
But what can guard thee but thy naked
love?
Ah dearest, whoso sucks a poisoned wound Envenoms his own veins! Thou art so
good,
So calm—if thou shouldst wear a brow less
light
Fo. some wild thought which but for me, were kept
From out thy soul as from a sacred star!
Yet till I have unlocked them it were vain
To hope to sing; some wæ would light on
me;
Nature would point at one whose quivering
lip
Was bathed in her enchantments, whose brow burned
Beneath the crown to which her secrets knelt,
Who learned the spell which can call up the dead,

And then departed smiling like a fiend
Who has deceived God,—if such one should seek Again her altars and stand robed and crowned
Amid the faithful! Sad confession first, Remorse and pardon and old claims renewed,
Ere I can be—as I shall be no more.

I had been spared this shame if I had sat
By thee for ever from the first, in place
Of my wild dreams of beauty and of good,
Or with them, as an earnest of their truth:
No thought nor hope having been shut from thee,
No vague wish unexplained, no wandering
aim
Sent back to bind on fancy's wings and seek Some strange fair world where it might be a law;
But, doubting nothing, had been led by
thee,
Thro' youth, and saved, as one at length awaked
Who has slept through a peril. Ah vain,
vain!

Thou lovest me; the past is in its grave Tho' its ghost haunts us; still this much is ours,
To cast away restraint, lest a worse thing
Wait for us in the dark. Thou lovest me;
And thou art to receive not love but faith,
For which thou wilt be mine, and smile and take
All shapes and shames, and veil without a fear

PAULINE

That form which music fol'ows like a slave:

And I look to thee and I trust in thee,
As in a Northern night one looks alway Unto the East for morn and spring and joy.

Thou seest then my aimless, hopeless state,
And, resting on some few old feelings won Back by thy beauty, wouldst that I essay
The task which was to me what now thou
art:

And why should I concea' one weakness
more?

Thou wilt remember one warm morn when winter

Crept aged from the earth, and spring's first breath

Blew soft from the moist hills; the blackthorn boughs,

So dark in the bare wood, when glistening
In the sunshine were white with coming buds,

Like the bright side of a sorrow, and the banks

Had violets opening from sleep like eyes.
I walked with thee who knew'st not a deep
shame

Lurked beneath smiles and careless words which sought

To hide it till they wandered and were mute,
As we stood listening on a sunny mound
To the wind murmuring in the damp copse,
Like heavy breathings of some hidden
thing

Betrayed by sleep; until the feeling rushed
That I was low indeed, yet not so low
As to endure the calmness of thine eyes.
And so I told thee all, while the cool breast
I leaned on altered not its quiet beating:
And long ere words like a hurt bird's complaint

Bade me look up and be what I had been,
I felt despair could never live by thee:
Thou wilt remember. Thou art not more
dear

Than song was once to me; and I ne'er sung
But as one entering bright halls where all
Will rise and shout for him: sure I must own
That I am fallen, having chosen gifts Distinct from theirs—that I am sad and fain

Would give up all to be but where I was,
Not high as I had been if faithful found,
But low and weak yet full of hope, and sure
Of goodness as of life—that I would lose
All this gay mastery of mind, to sit Once more with them, trusting in truth and
love

And with an aim—not being what I am.

Oh Pauline, I am ruined who believed That though my soul had floated from its sphere

Of wild dominion into the lim orb
Of self—that it was strong and free as ever.
It has conformed itself to that dim orb, Reflecting all its shades and shapes, and
now

Must stay where it alone can be adored.
I have felt this in dreams—in dreams in which

I seemed the fate from which I fled; I felt
A strange delight in causing my decay.

I was a fiend in darkness chained for ever Within some ocean cave; and ages rolled, Till through the cleft rock, like a moon-beam, came

A white swan to remain with me; and ages
Rolled, yet I tired not of my first free joy
In gazing on the peace of its pure wings:
And then I said 'It is most fair to me,
'Yet its soft wings must sure have suffered change

'Fron. the thick darkness, sure its eyes are dim,

'Its silver pinions must be cramped and dumbed

'With sleeping ages here; it cannot leave
me,

'For it would seem, in light beside its kind,
'Withered, tho' here to me most beautiful.'
And then I was a young witch whose blue
eyes,

As she stood naked by the river springs,
Drew down a god: I watched his radiant form

Growing less radiant, and it gladdened me;
Till one morn, as he sat in the sunshine.

Upon my knees, singing to me of heaven,
He turned to look at me, ere I could lose
The grin with which I viewed his perishing:
And he shrieked and departed and sat long
By his deserted throne, but sunk at last Murmuring, as I kissed his lips and curled Around him, 'I am still a god—to thee.'

Still I can lay my soul bare in its fall, Since all the wandering and all the weakness

Will be a saddest comment on the song:
And if, that done, I can be young again,
I will give up all grieved, as willingly
As one gives up a charm which shuts him
out

From hope or part or care in human kind.
As 'life wanes, all its care and strife and toil Seem strangely valueless, while the old trees

Which grew by our youth's home, the waving mass

Of climbing plants heavy with bloom and dew,

The morning swallows with their songs like
words,

All these seem clear and only worth our thoughts:

So, aught connected with my early life,

My rude songs or my wild imaginings,
How I look on them—most distinct amid
The fever and the stir of after years!
I ne'er had ventured e'en to hope for this,
Had not the glow I felt at His award, Assured me all was not extinct within:
His whom all honour, whose renown springs up

Like sunlight which will visit all the world,
So that e'en they who sneered at him at
first,

Come out to it, as some dark spider crawls
From his foul nets which some lit torch invades,

Yet spinning still new films for his retreat.
Thou didst smile, poet, but can we forgive?

Sun-treader,¹ life and light be thine for ever!

Thou art gone from us; years go by and spring

Gladdens and the young earth is beautiful,
Yet thy songs come not, other bards arise,
But none like thee: they stand, thy majesties,

Like mighty works which tell some spirit
there

Hath sat regardless of neglect and scorn,
Till, its long task completed, it hath risen
And left us, never to return, and all Rush in to peer and praise when all in vain.

The air seems bright with thy past presence
yet,

But thou art still for me as thou hast been When I have stood with thee as on a throne

With all thy dim creations gathered round Like mountains, and I felt of mould like
them,

And with them creatures of my own were mixed,

Like things half-lived, catching and giving
life.

But thou art still for me who have adored
Thou single, panting but to hear thy name
Which I believed a spell to me alone,

Scarce deeming thou wast as a star to men!
As one should worship long a sacred
spring

Scarce worth a moth's flitting, which long grasses cross,

And one small tree embowers droopingly—

Joying to see some wandering insect won
To live in its few rushes, or some locust
To pasture on its boughs, or some wild bird

Stoop for its freshness from the trackless
air:

And then should find it but the fountain-
head,

Long lost, of some great river washing towns

And towers, and seeing old woods which will live

But by its banks untrod of human foot,
Which, when the great sun sinks, lie quivering

In light as some thing lieth half of life Before God's foot, waiting a wondrous
change;

Then girt with rocks which seek to turn or stay

Its course in vain, for it does ever spread Like a sea's arm as it goes rolling on,
Being the pulse of some great country—so Wast thou to me, and art thou to the world!

And I, perchance, half feel a strange regret
That I am not what I have been to thee:
Like a girl one has silently loved long

In her first loneliness in some retreat, When, late emerged, all gaze and glow to view

Her fresh eyes and soft hair and lips which bloom

Like a mountain berry: doubtless it is sweet
To see her thus adored, but there have been

Moments when all the world was in our
praise,

Sweeter than any pride of after hours.
Yet, sun-treader, all hail! From my heart's

heart
I bid thee hail! E'en in my wildest dreams,

I proudly feel I would have thrown to dust
The wreaths of fame which seemed o'er-hanging me,

To see thee for a moment as thou art.

And if thou livest, if thou lovest, spirit!
Remember me who set this final seal

To wandering thought—that one so pure as thou

Could never die. Remember me who flung All honour from my soul, yet paused and
said

'There is one spark of love remaining yet,
'For I have nought in common with him,

shapes
'Which followed him avoid me, and foul forms

'Seek me, which ne'er could fasten on his
mind;

'And though I feel how low I am to him,
'Yet I aim not even to catch a tone

'Of harmonies he called profusely up;
'So, one gleam still remains, although the

last,
Remember me who praise thee e'en with tears,

For never more shall I walk calm with thee;
Thy sweet imaginings are as an air,

A melody some wondrous singer sings,
Which, though it haunt men oft in the still even,

They dream not to essay; yet it no less

PAULINE

But more is honoured. I was thine in
shame,
And now when all thy proud renown is
out,

I am a watcher whose eyes have grown dim
With looking for some star which breaks on him
Altered and worn and weak and full of tears.

Autumn has come like spring returned to
us,
Won from her girlishness; like one returned

A friend that was a lover, nor forgets
The first warm love, but full of sober
thoughts

Of fading years; whose soft mouth quivers
yet

With the old smile, but yet so changed and
still!

And here am I the scoffer, who have probed
Life's vanity, won by a word again
Into my own life—by one little word
Of this sweet friend who lives in loving me, Lives strangely on my thoughts and looks and words,

As fathoms down some nameless ocean
thing

Its silent course of quietness and joy.
O dearest, if indeed I tell the past,
May'st thou forget it as a sad sick dream!
Or if it linger—my lost soul too soon Sinks to itself and whispers we shall be But closer linked, two creatures whom the
earth

Bears singly, with strange feelings unre-vealed

Save to each other; or two lonely things Created by some power whose reign is
done,

Having no part in God or his bright world.
I am to sing whilst ebbing day dies soft,
As a lean scholar dies worn o'er his book,
And in the heaven stars steal out one by
one

As hunted men steal to their mountain
watch.

I must not think, lest this new impulse die
In which I trust; I have no confidence:
So, I will sing on fast as fancies come;
Rudely, the verse being as the mood it paints.

I strip my mind bare, whose first elements
I shall unveil—not as they struggled forth
In infancy, nor as they now exist,
When I am grown above them and can rule—

But in that middle stage when they were full

Yet ere I had disposed them to my will;
And then I shall show how these elements Produced my present state, and what it is.

I am made up of an intensest life,
Of a most clear idea of consciousness
Of self, distinct from all its qualities,
From all affections, -passions, feelings,
powers;

And thus far it exists, if tracked, in all:
But linked, in me, to self-supremacy,
Existing as a centre to all things,
Most potent to create and rule and call Upon all things to minister to it;
And to a principle of restlessness
Which would be all, have, see, know, taste, feel, all—

This is myself; and I should thus have been Though gifted lower than the meanest soul.
And of my powers, one springs up to save
From utter death a soul with such desire Confined to clay—of powers the only one Which marks me—an imagination which Has been a very angel, coming not
In fitful visions but beside me ever
And never failing me; so, though my mind Forgets not, not a shred of life forgets,
Yet I can take a secret pride in calling
The dark past up to quell it regally.

A mind like this must dissipate itself,
But I have always had one lode-star; now,
As I look back, I see that I have halted
Or hastened as I looked towards that star—
A need, a trust, a yearning after God:
A feeling I have analysed but late,
But it existed, and was reconciled
With a neglect of all I deemed his laws,
Which yet, when seen in others, I abhorred.
I felt as one beloved, and so shut in From fear: and thence I date my trust in signs

And omens, for I saw God everywhere;
And I can only lay it to the fruit
Of a sad after-time that I could doubt Even his being—e'en the while I felt
His presence, never acted from myself,
Still trusted in a hand to lead me through
All danger; and this feeling ever fought Against my weakest reason and resolve.

And I can love nothing—and this dull truth
Has come the last: but sense supplies a love
Encircling me and mingling with my life.

These make myself: I have long sought in
vain

To trace how they were formed by circumstance,

Yet never found them mould my wildest
youth

Where they alone displayed themselves, converted

All objects to their use: now see their course!

They came to me in my first dawn of life
Which passed alone with wisest ancient books

All halo-girt with fancies of my own;
And I myself went with the tale—a god
Wandering after beauty, or a giant Standing vast in the sunset—an old hunter Talking with gods, or a high-crested chief Sailing with troops of friends to Tenedos.
I tell you, nought has ever been so clear
As the place, the time, the fashion of those lives:

I had not seen a work of lofty art,
Nor woman's beauty nor sweet nature's
face,

Yet, I say, never morn broke clear as those
On the dim clustered isles in the blue sea,
The deep groves and white temples and wet caves:

And nothing ever will surprise me now—
Who stood beside the naked Swift-footed, Who bound my forehead with Proserpine's hair.

And strange it is that I who could so dream Should e'er have stooped to aim at aught beneath—

Aught low or painful; but I never doubted:
So, as I grew, I rudely shaped my life
To my immediate wants; yet strong beneath

Was a vague sense of power though folded
up—

A sense that, though those shades and times were past,

Their spirit dwelt in me, with them should rule.

Then came a pause, and long restraint chained down

My soul till it was changed. I lost myself,
And were it not that I so loathe that loss,
I could recall how first I learned to turn
My mind against itself; and the effects In deeds for which remorse was vain as
for

The wanderings of delirious dream; yet thence

Came cunning, envy, falsehood, all world's
wrong

That spotted me: at length I cleansed my soul.

Yet long world's influence remained; and
nought

But the still life I led, apart once more,
Which left me free to seek soul's old delights,

Could e'er have brought me thus far back to peace.

As peace returned, I sought out some pursuit;

And song rose, no new impulse but the one
With which all others best could be combined.

My life has not been that of those whose
heaven

Was lampless save where poesy shone out;
But as a clime where glittering mountaintops

And glancing sea and forests steeped in light

Give back reflected the far-flashing sun;
For music (which is earnest of a heaven,
Seeing we know emotions strange by it,
Not else to be revealed,) is like a voice,
A low voice calling fancy, as a friend,
To the green woods in the gay summer
time:

And she fills all the way with dancing shades

Which have made painters pale, and they go on

Till stars look at them and winds call to
them

As they leave life's path for the twilight
world

Where the dead gather. This was not at
first,

For I scarce knew what I would do. I had An impulse but no yearning—only sang.

And first I sang as I in dream have seen
Music wait on a lyrist for some thought,
Yet singing to herself until it came.

I turned to those old times and scenes where
all

That's beautiful had birth for me, and
made

Rude verses on them all; and then I paused—

I had done nothing, so I sought to know What other minds achieved. No fear out-broke

As on the works of mighty bards I gazed,
In the first joy at finding my own thoughts
Recorded, my own fancies justified,
And their aspirings but my very own.

With them I first explored passion and
mind,—

All to begin afresh! I rather sought
To rival what I wondered at than form

Creations of my own; if much was light
Lent by the others, much was yet my own.

I paused again: a change was coming—
came:

I was no more a boy, the past was breaking
Before the future and like fever worked.

I thought on my new self, and all my powers

Burst out. I dreamed not of restraint, but gazed

On all things: schemes and systems went and came,

And I was proud (being vainest of the weak)

In wandering o'er thought's world to seek some one

To be my prize, as if you wandered o'er
The White Way for a star.

PAULINE

And my choice fell
 Not so much on a system as a man—
 On one, whom praise of mine shall not offend,
 Who was as calm as beauty, being such Unto mankind as thou to me, Pauline,— Believing in them and devoting all His soul's strength to their winning back
 to peace;
 Who sent forth hopes and longings for their sake,
 Clothed in all passion's melodies: such first Caught me and set me, slave of a sweet task,
 To disentangle, gather sense from song:
 Since, song-inwoven, lurked there words which seemed
 A key to a new world, the muttering
 Of angels, something yet unguessed by
 man,
 How my heart leapt as still I sought and
 found
 Much there, I felt my own soul had conceived, But there living and burning! Soon the orb
 Of his conceptions dawned on me; its
 praise
 Lives in the tongues of men, men's brows are high
 When his name means a triumph and a
 pride,
 So, my weak voice may well forbear to
 shame
 What seemed decreed my fate: I threw myself
 To meet it, I was vowed to liberty, Men were to be as gods and earth as
 heaven,
 And I—ah, what a life was mine to prove!
 My whole soul rose to meet it. Now,
 Pauline,
 I shall go mad, if I recall that time!

Oh let me look back ere I leave for ever
 The time which was an hour one fondly waits
 For a fair girl that comes a withered hag!
 And I was lonely, far from woods and fields,
 And amid dullest sights, who should be loose
 As a stag; yet I was full of bliss, who lived
 With Plato and who had the key to life;
 And I had dimly shaped my first attempt,
 And many a thought did I build up on
 thought,
 As the wild bee hangs cell to cell; in vain,
 For I must still advance, no rest for mind.

'Twas in my plan to look on real life,
 The life all new to me; my theories
 Were firm, so them I left, to look and learn

Mankind, its cares, hopes, fears, its woes and joys;
 And, as I pondered on their ways, I sought How best life's end might be attained—an
 end
 Comprising every joy. I deeply mused.

And suddenly without heart-wreck I awoke
 As from a dream: I said 'Twas beautiful,
 'Yet but a dream, and so adieu to it!'
 As some world-wanderer sees in a far meadow Strange towers and high walled gardens thick with trees,
 Where song takes shelter and delicious mirth
 From laughing fairy creatures peeping
 over,
 And on the morrow when he comes to lie
 For ever 'neath those garden-trees fruit-flushed Sung round by fairies, all his search is
 vain.
 First went my hopes of perfecting man-
 kind,
 Next—faith in them, and then in freedom's self
 And virtue's self, then my own motives, ends
 And aims and loves, and human love went
 last.
 I felt this no decay, because new powers
 Rose as old feelings left—wit, mockery,
 Light-heartedness; for I had oft been sad, Mistrusting my resolves, but now I cast
 Hope joyously away: I laughed and said 'No more of this!' I must not think: at length
 I looked again to see if all went well.

My powers were greater: as some temple seemed
 My soul, where nought is changed and in-dense rolls
 Around the altar, only God is gone
 And some dark spirit sitteth in his seat.
 So, I passed through, the temple and to me Kneelt troops of shadows, and they cried
 'Hail, king!
 'We serve thee now and thou shalt serve no more!
 'Call on us, prove us, let us worship thee!'
 And I said 'Are ye strong? Let fancy bear
 me
 'Far from the past!' And I was borne
 away,
 As Arab birds float sleeping in the wind, O'er deserts, towers and forests, I being calm.
 And I said 'I have nursed up energies,
 'They will prey on me.' And a band knelt low

And cried 'Lord, we are here and we will make
'Safe way for thee in thine appointed life!
'But look on us!' And I said 'Ye will worship
'Me; should my heart not worship too?'
They shouted
'Thyself, thou art our king!' So, I stood
there
Smiling—oh, vanity of vanities!
For buoyant and rejoicing was the spirit
With which I looked out how to end my
course;
I felt once more myself, my powers—all
mine;
I knew while youth and health so lifted me
That, spite of all life's nothingness, no grief
Came nigh me, I must ever be light-hearted;
And that this knowledge was the only veil Betwixt joy and despair: so, if age came,
I should be left— a wreck linked to a soul
Yet fluttering, or mind-broken and aware
Of my decay. So a long summer morn Found me; and ere noon came, I had resolved
No age should come on me ere youth was spent,
For I would wear myself out, like that morn
Which wasted not a sunbeam; every hour
I would make mine, and die.

And thus I sought
To chain my spirit down which erst I freed
For flights to fame: I said 'The troubled
life
'Of genius, seen so gay when working forth
'Some trusted end, grows sad when all proves vain—
'How sad when men have parted with truth's peace
'For falsest fancy's sake, which waited first
'As an obedient spirit when delight
'Came without fancy's call: but alters
soon,
'Comes darkened, seldom, hastens to de-
part,
'Leaving a heavy darkness and warm tears.
'But I shall never lose her; she will live
'Dearer for such seclusion. I but catch 'A hue, a glance of what I sing: so, pain
'Is linked with pleasure, for I ne'er may tell
'Half the bright sights which dazzle me;
but now
'Mine shall be all the radiance: let them fade
'Untold—others shall rise as fair, as fast!
'And when all's done, the few dim gleams transferred,'— (For a new thought sprang up how well it were,

Discarding shadowy hope, to weave such lays
As straight encircle men with praise and
love,
So, I should not die utterly,—should bring One branch from the gold forest, like the knight
Of old tales, witnessing I had been there)—
'And when all's done, how vain seems e'en success—
'The vaunted influence poets have o'er
men!
'Tis a fine thing that one weak as myself
'Should sit in his lone room, knowing the
words
'He utters in his solitude shall move
'Men like a swift wind—that tho' dead and gone,
'New eyes shall glisten when his beauteous
dreams
'Of love come true in happier frames than his.
'Ay, the still night brings thoughts like these, but morn
'Comes and the mockery again laughs out
'At hollow praises, smiles allied to sneers;
'And my soul's idol ever whispers me
'To dwell with him and his unhonoured song:
And I foreknew my spirit, that would press
'First in the struggle, fail again to make 'All bow enslaved, and I again should sink.
'And then know that this curse will come on us,
'To see our idols perish; we may wither,
'No marvel, we are clay, but our low fate
'Should not extend to those whom trustingly
'We sent before into time's yawning gulf
'To face what dread may lurk in darkness
there.
'To find the painter's glory pass, and feel
'Music can move us not as once, or, worst,
'To weep decaying wits ere the frail body
'Decays! Nought makes me trust some love is true,
'But the delight of the contented lowness
'With which I gaze on him I keep for ever
'Above me; I to rise and rival him?
'Feed his fame rather from my heart's best blood,
'Wither unseen that he may flourish still.'

Pauline, my soul's friend, thou dost pity
yet
How this mood swayed me when that soul found thine,
When I had set myself to live this life,
Defying all past glory. Ere thou camest
I seemed defiant, sweet, for old delights Had flocked like birds again; music, my life,

PAULINE

Nourished me more than ever; then the lore

Loved for itself and all it shows—that king Treading the purple calmly to his death,¹ While round him, like the clouds of eve, all dusk,

The giant shades of fate, silently flitting,
Pile the dim outline of the coming doom;
And him sitting alone in blood while
friends

Are hunting far in the sunshine; and the boy

With his white breast and brow and clustering curls

Streaked with his mother's blood, but striving hard

To tell his story ere his reason goes.

And when I loved thee as love seemed so oft,

Thou lovedst me indeed: I wondering searched

My heart to find some feeling like such
love,

Believing I was still much I had been.

Too soon I found all faith had gone from
me,

And the late glow of life, like change on clouds,

Proved not the morn-blush widening into
day,

But eve faint-coloured by the dying sun
While darkness hastens quickly. I will tell

My state as though 'twere none of mine—despair

Cannot come near us—this it is, my state.

Souls alter not, and mine must still advance;

Strange that I knew not, when I flung away My youth's chief aims, their loss might lead to loss

Of what few I retained, and no resource
Be left me: for behold how changed is all!

I cannot chain my soul: it will not rest
In its clay prison, this most narrow sphere:

It has strange impulse, tendency, desire,
Which nowise I account for nor explain,

But cannot stifle, being bound to trust
All feelings equally, to hear all sides:

How can my life indulge them? yet they
live,

Referring to some state of life unknown.

My selfishness is satiated not,

It wears me like a flame; my hunger for All pleasure, howsoe'er minute, grows
pain;

I envy—how I envy him whose soul
Turns its whole energies to some one end,

To elevate an aim, pursue success
However mean! So, my still baffled hope

Seeks out abstractions; I would have one
joy,

¹ Agamemnon.

But one in life, so it were wholly mine,
One rapture all my soul could fill: and this

Wild feeling places me in dream afar
In some vast country, where the eye can see

No end to the far hills and dales bestrewn
With shining towers and towns, till I grow

mad

Wellnigh, to know not one abode but holds Some pleasure, while my soul could grasp

the world,

But must remain this vile form's slave. I look

With hope to age at last, which quenching
much,

May let me concentrate what sparks it spares.

This restlessness of passion meets in me
A craving after knowledge: the sole proof

Of yet commanding will is in that power
Repressed; for I beheld it in its dawn,

The sleepless harpy with just-budding
wings,

And I considered whether to forego All happy ignorant hopes and fears, to

live,

Finding a recompense in its wild eyes.
And when I found that I should perish so,

I bade its wild eyes close from me for ever,
And I am left alone with old delights;

See! it lies in me a chained thing, still prompt

To serve me if I loose its slightest bond:
I cannot but be proud of my bright slave.

How should this earth's life prove my only
sphere?

Can I so narrow sense but that in life
Soul still exceeds it? In their elements

My love outsoars my reason; but since
love

Perforce receives its object from this earth While reason wanders chainless, the few truths

Caught from its wanderings have sufficed to quell

Love chained below; then what were love, set free,

Which, with the object it demands, would pass

Reason companioning the seraphim?
No, what I feel may pass all human love

Yet fall far short of what my love should
be.

And yet I seem more warped in this than ought,

Myself stands out more hideously: of old
I could forget myself in friendship, fame,

Liberty, nay, in love of mightier souls;
But I begin to know what thing hate is—

To sicken and to quiver and grow white—
And I myself have furnished its first prey.

Hate of the weak and ever-wavering will,
The selfishness, the still-decaying frame...

But I must never grieve whom wing can waft
Far from such thoughts—as now. Andromeda!

And she is with me; years roll, I shall
change,
But change can touch her not—so beautiful

With her fixed eyes, earnest and still, and hair

Lifted and spread by the salt-sweeping breeze,

And one red beam, all the storm leaves in
heaven,

Resting upon her eyes and hair, such hair,
As she awaits the snake on the wet beach
By the dark rock and the white wave just breaking

At her feet; quite naked and alone; a thing
I doubt not, nor fear for, secure some god
To save will come in thunder from the stars.

Let it pass! Soul requires another change.
I will be gifted with a wondrous mind,
Yet sunk by error to men's sympathy,
And in the wane of life, yet only so As to call up their fears; and there shall come

A time requiring youth's best energies;
And lo, I fling age, sorrow, sickness off,
And rise triumphant, triumph through decay.

And thus it is that I supply the chasm
'Twixt what I am and all I fain would be:
But then to know nothing, to hope for nothing,

To seize on life's dull joys from a strange
fear

Lest, losing them, all's lost and nought remains!

There's some vile juggle with my reason
here;

I feel I but explain to my own loss
These impulses: they live no less the same.
Liberty! what though I despair? my blood
Rose never at a slave's name proud as now.
Oh sympathies, obscured by sophistries!—
Where have I sought refuge in myself, But from the woes I saw and could not stay?

Love! is not this to love thee, my Pauline?
I cherish prejudice, lest I be left Utterly loveless? witness my belief.
In poets, though sad change has come there
too;

No more I leave myself to follow them—
Unconsciously I measure me by them—
Let me forget it: and I cherish most My love of England—how her name, a
word

Others in a strange tongue makes my heart beat!

Pauline, could I but break the spell! Not
now—

All's fever—but when calm shall come
again,

I am prepared: I have made life my own.
I would not be content with all the change
One frame should feel, but I have gone in
thought

Thro' all conjuncture, I have lived all life
When it is most alive, where strangest fate
New-shapes it past surmise—the throes of
men

Bit by some curse or in the grasps of doom
Half-visible and still-increasing round,
Or crowning their wide being's general
aim.

These are wild fancies, but I feel, sweet
friend,

As one breathing his weakness to the ear
Of pitying angel—dear as a winter flower,
A slight flower growing alone, and offering
Its frail cup of three leaves to the cold sun,
Yet joyous and confiding like the triumph
Of a child: and why am I not worthy thee?
I can live all the life of plants, and gaze
Drowsily on the bees that flit and play, Or bare my breast for sunbeams which will kill,

Or open in the night of sounds, to look For the dim stars; I can mount with the bird

Leaping airily his pyramid of leaves
And twisted boughs of some tall mountain
tree,

Or rise cheerfully springing to the heavens;
Or like a fish breathe deep the morning air
In the misty sun-warm water; or with flower

And tree can smile in light at the sinking sun

Just as the storm comes, as a girl would
look

On a departing lover—most serene.

Pauline, come with me, see how I could build

A home for us, out of the world, in thought!
I am uplifted: fly with me, Pauline!

Night, and one single ridge of narrow path
Between the sullen river and the woods Waving and muttering, for the moonless
night

Has shaped them into images of life,
Like the uprising of the giant-ghosts,
Looking on earth to know how their sons fare:

Thou art so close by me, the roughest swell
Of wind in the tree-tops hides not the panting

Of thy soft breasts. No, we will pass to morning—

Morning, the rocks and valleys and old woods.

PAULINE

How the sun brightens in the mist, and here,
 Half in the air, like creatures of the place,
 Trusting the element, living on high boughs
 That swing in the wind—look at the silver spray Flung from the foam-sheet of the cataract
 Amid the broken rocks! Shall we stay here
 With the wild hawks? No, ere the hot noon come, Dive we down—safe! See this our new retreat
 Walled in with a sloped mound of matted shrubs,
 Dark, tangled, old and green, still sloping down
 To a small pool whose waters lie asleep
 Amid the trailing boughs turned water-plants:
 And tall trees overarch to keep us in,
 Breaking the sunbeams into emerald shafts
 And in the dreamy water one small group
 Of two or three strange trees are got together Wondering at all around, as strange beasts herd Together far from their own land: all wildness,
 No turf nor moss, for boughs and plants pave all,
 And tongues of bank go shelving in the lymph,
 Where the pale-throated snake reclines his head,
 And old grey stones lie making eddies there,
 The wild-mice cross them dry-shod.
 Deeper in!
 Shut thy soft eyes—now look—still deeper in!
 This is the very heart of the woods all round
 Mountain-like heaped above us; yet even here
 One pond of water gleams; far off the river Sweeps like a sea, barred out from land; but one—
 One thin clear sheet has overleaped and wound
 Into this silent depth, which gained, it lies Still, as but let by sufferance; the trees bend
 O'er it as wild men watch a sleeping girl,
 And through their roots long creeping plants out-stretch
 Their twined hair, steeped and sparkling;
 farther on,
 Tall rushes and thick flag-knots have combined
 To narrow it; so, at length, a silver thread,
 It winds, all noiselessly through the deep wood
 Till thro' a cleft-way, thro' the moss and stone,
 It joins its parent-river with a shout.

Up for the glowing day, leave the old woods!
 See, they part like a ruined arch: the sky!
 Nothing but sky appears, so close the roots
 And grass of the mill-top level with the air—Blue sunny air, where a great cloud floats la len
 With light, like a dead whale that white birds pick,
 Floating away in the sun in some north sea.
 Air, air, fresh life-blood, thin and searching air,
 The clear, dear breath of God that loveth us,
 Where small birds reel and winds take their delight!
 Water is beautiful, but not like air:
 See, where the soid azure waters lie
 Made as of thickened air, and down below,
 The fern-ranks like a forest spread themselves
 As though each pore could feel the element;
 Where the quick glancing serpent winds his way,
 Float with me there, Pauline!—but not like air.

Down the hill! Stop—a clump of trees, see, set
 On a heap of rock, which look o'er the far plain:
 So, envious climbing shrubs would mount to rest
 And peer from their spread boughs; wide they wave, looking At the muleteers who whistle on their way,
 To the merry chime of morning bells, past all
 The little smoking cots, mid fields and banks
 And corpses bright in the sun. My spirit wanders:
 Hedgerows for me—those living hedgerows where The bushes close and clasp above and keep Thought in—I am concentrated—I feel;
 But my soul saddens when it looks beyond:
 I cannot be immortal, taste all joy.

O God, where do they tend—these struggling aims?¹
 What would I have? What is this 'sleep' which seems To bound all? can there be a 'waking' point
 Of crowning life? The soul would never rule;
 It would be first in all things, it would have
 Its utmost pleasure filled, but, that complete, Commanding, for commanding, sickens it.

PAULINE

The last point I can trace is—rest beneath
Some better essence than itself, in weak-
ness;

This is 'myself,' not what I think should be:
And what is that I hunger for but God?

My God, my God, let me for once look on
thee

As though nought else existed, we alone!
And as creation crumbles, my soul's spark Expands till I can say,—Even from myself
I need thee and I feel thee and I love thee.
I do not plead my rapture in thy works
For love of thee, nor that I feel as one Who cannot die: but there is that in me Which turns to thee, which loves or which should love.

Why have I girt myself with this hell-dress?
Why have I laboured to put out my life?
Is it not in my nature to adore,
And e'en for all my reason do I not Feel him, and thank him, and pray to him—
now?

Can I forego the trust that he loves me?
Do I not feel a love which only ONE . . .
O thou pale form, so dimly seen, deep-eyed!

I have denied thee calmly—do I not Pant when I read of thy consummate
power,

And burn to see thy calm pure truths out-flash

The brightest gleams of earth's philosophy?

Do I not shake to hear aught question
thee?

If I am erring save me, madden me, Take from me powers and pleasures, let me die

Ages, so I see thee! I am knit round
As with a charm by sin and lust and pride, Yet though my wandering dreams have seen all shapes

Of strange delight, oft have I stood by
thee—

Have I been keeping lonely watch with
thee

In the damp night by weeping Olivet,
Or leaning on thy bosom, proudly less,
Or dying with thee on the lonely cross,
Or witnessing thine outburst from the tomb.

A mortal, sin's familiar friend, doth here
Avow that he will give all earth's reward,
But to believe and humbly teach the faith,
In suffering and poverty and shame,
Only believing he is not unloved.

And now, my Pauline, I am thine for ever!
I feel the spirit which has buoyed me up Desert me, and old shades are gathering
fast;

Yet while the last light waits, I would say
much,

This chiefly, it is gain that I have said
Somewhat of love I ever felt for thee But seldom told; our hearts so beat together

That speech seemed mockery; but when dark hours come,
And joy departs, and thou, sweet, deem'st it strange

As sorrow moves me, thou canst not remove,
Look on this life I dedicate to thee,
Which through thee I began, which thus I
end.

Collecting the last gleams to strive to tell
How I am thine, and more than ever now
That I sink fast: yet though I deeper sink, No less song proves one word has brought me bliss,

Another still may win bliss surely back.
Thou knowest, dear, I could not think all
calm,

For fancies followed thought and bore me
off,

And left all indistinct; ere one was caught
Another glanced; so, dazzled by my wealth, I knew not which to leave nor which to choose,

For all so floated, nought was fixed and firm.

And then thou said'st a perfect bard was
one

Who chronicled the stages of all life,
And so thou bad'st me shadow this first stage.

'Tis done, and even now I recognize The shift, the change from last to past—discern

Faintly how life is truth and truth is good.
And why thou must be mine is, that e'en
now

In the dim hush of night, that I have done, Despite the sad forebodings, love looks
through—

Whispers,—E'en at the last I have her still,
With her delicious eyes as clear as heaven
When rain in a quick shower has beat down mist,

And clouds float white above like broods of swans.

How the blood lies upon her cheek, out-spread

As thinned by kisses! only in her lips
It wells and pulses like a living thing,
And her neck looks like marble misted
o'er

With love-breath,—a Pauline from heights
above,

Stooping beneath me, looking up—one
look

As I might kill her and be loved the more.

So, love me—me, Pauline, and nought but
me,

PAULINE

Never leave loving! Words are wild and weak,

Believe them not, Pauline! I stained myself
But to behold thee purer by my side,
To show thou art my breath, my life, a last Resource, an extreme want: never believe Aught better could so look on thee; nor seek

Again the world of good thoughts left for
mine!

There were bright troops of undiscovered
suns,

Each equal in their radiant course; there were

Clusters of far fair isles which ocean kept For his own joy, and his waves broke on
them

Without a choice; and there was a dim
crowd

Of visions, each a part of some grand whole:
And one star left his peers and came with
peace

Upon a storm, and all eyes pined for him;
And one isle harboured a sea-beaten ship,
And the crew wandered in its bowers and plucked

Its fruits and gave up all their hopes of home;

And one dream came to a pale poet's sleep,
And he said, 'I am singled out by God,
'No sin must touch me.' Words are wild and weak,

But what they would express is,—Leave me not,

Still sit by me with beating breast and hair
Loosened, be watching earnest by my side, Turning my books or kissing me when I Look up—like summer wind! Bestill to me
A help to music's mystery which mind fails
To fathom, its solution, no mere clue!
O reason's pedantry, life's rule prescribed!
I hopeless, I the loveless, hope and love.
Wiser and better, know me now, not when You loved me as I was. Smile not! I have Much yet to dawn on you, to gladden
you.

No more of the past! I'll look within no
more.

I have too trusted my own lawless wants,
Too trusted my vain self, vague intuition—
Draining soul's wine alone in the still night,
And seeing how, as gathering films arose,
As by an inspiration life seemed bare
And grinning in its vanity, while ends Foul to be dreamed of, smiled at me as fixed

And fair, while others changed from fair to foul

As a young witch turns an old hag at night.
No more of this! We will go hand in hand,
I with thee, even as a child—love's slave, Looking no farther than his liege commands.

And thou hast chosen where this life shall
be:

The land which gave me thee shall be our
home,

Where nature lies all wild amid her lakes
And snow-swathed mountains and vast pines begirt

With ropes of snow—where nature lies all bare,

Suffering none to view her but a race
Or stunted or deformed, like the mute dwarfs

Which wait upon a naked Indian queen.
And there (the time being when the heavens are thick

With storm) I'll sit with thee while thou dost sing

Thy native songs, gay as a desert bird
Which crieth as it flies for perfect joy,
Or telling me old stories of dead knights;
Or I will read great lays to thee—how she,
The fair pale sister, went to her chill grave!
With power to love and to be loved and
live:

Or we will go together, like twin gods
Of the infernal world, with scented lamp
Over the dead, to call and to awake,
Over the unshaped images which lie
Within my mind's cave: only leaving all, That tells of the past doubt. So, when spring comes

With sunshine back again like an old smile,
And the fresh waters and awakened birds
And budding woods await us, I shall be Prepared, and we will question life once
more,

Till its old sense shall come renewed by
change,

Like some clear thought which harsh words veiled before;

Feeling God loves us, and that all which errs

Is but a dream which death will dissipate.
And then what need of longer exile? Seek My England, and, again there, calm approach

All I once fled from, calmly look on those
The works of my past weakness, as one views

Some scene where danger met him long before.

Ah that such pleasant life should be but dreamed!

But whate'er come of it, and though it fade,
And though ere the cold morning all be
gone,

As it may be;—tho' music wait to wile,
And strange eyes and bright wine lure,
laugh like sin

Which steals back softly on a soul half saved,

And I the first deny, decry, despise,

¹ Antigone.

PAULINE

With this avowal, these intents so fair,—
Still be it all my own, this moment's pride!
No less I make an end in perfect joy.
E'en in my brightest time, a lurking fear Possessed me: I well knew my weak resolves.

I felt the witchery that makes mind sleep
Over its treasure, as one half afraid
To make his riches definite: but now
These feelings shall not utterly be lost,
I shall not know again that nameless care Lest, leaving all undone in youth, some new
And undreamed end reveal itself too late:
For this song shall remain to tell for ever
That when I lost all hope of such a change,
Suddenly beauty rose on me again.
No less I make an end in perfect joy,
For I, who thus again was visited,
Shall doubt not many another bliss awaits,
And, though this weak soul sink and darkness whelm,

Some little word shall light it, raise aloft,
To where I clearer see and better love,
As I again go o'er the tracts of thought.
Like one who has a right, and I shall live
With poets, calmer, purer still each time,

And beautiful shapes will come for me to seize,
And unknown secrets will be trusted me
Which were denied the waverer once; but
now
I shall be priest and prophet as of old.

Sun-treader, I believe in God and truth And love; and as one just escaped from
death
Would bind himself in bands of friends to feel

He lives indeed, so, I would lean on thee!
Thou must be ever with me, most in gloom
If such must come, but chiefly when I die,
For I seem, dying, as one going in the dark
To fight a giant; but live thou for ever,
And be to all what thou hast been to me!
All in whom this wakes pleasant thoughts of me

Know my last state is happy, free from
doubt Or touch of fear. Love me and wish me well.

RICHMOND:

NOTE

Je crains bien que mon pauvre ami ne soit pas toujours parfaitement compris dans ce qui reste à lire de cet étrange fragment, mais il est moins propre que tout autre à éclaircir ce qui de sa nature ne peut jamais être que songe et confusion. D'ailleurs je ne sais trop si en cherchant à mieux co-ordonner certaines parties l'on ne courrait pas le risque de nuire au seul mérite auquel une production si singulière peut prétendre, celui de donner une idée assez précise du genre qu'elle n'a fait qu'ébaucher. Ce début sans prétention, ce remuement des passions qui va d'abord en accroissant et puis s'apaise par degrés, ces élans de l'âme, ce retour soudain sur soi-même, et par-dessus tout, la tournure d'esprit tout particulière de mon ami, rendent les changemens presque impossibles. Les raisons qu'il fait valoir ailleurs, et d'autres encore plus puissantes, ont fait trouver grâce à mes yeux pour cet écrit qu'autrement je lui eusse conseillé de jeter au feu. Je n'en crois pas moins au grand principe de toute composition—à ce principe de

Shakespeare, de Raphaëlle, de Beethoven, d'où il suit que la concentration des idées est due bien plus à leur conception qu'à leur mise en exécution: j'ai tout lieu de craindre que la première de ces qualités ne soit encore étrangère à mon ami, et je doute fort qu'un redoublement de travail lui fasse acquérir la seconde. Le mieux serait de brûler ceci; mais que faire?

Je crois que dans ce qui suit il fait allusion à un certain examen qu'il fit autrefois de l'âme, ou plutôt de son âme, pour découvrir la suite des objets auxquels il lui serait possible d'atteindre, et dont chacun une fois obtenu devait former une espèce de plateau d'où l'on pouvait apercevoir d'autres buts, d'autres projets, d'autres jouissances qui, à leur tour, devaient être surmontés. Il en résultait que l'oubli et le sommeil devaient tout terminer. Cette idée, que je ne sais pas parfaitement, lui est peut-être aussi inintelligible qu'à moi.

1835

INSCRIBED TO

AMÉDÉE DE RIPERT-MONCLAR

BY HIS AFFECTIONATE FRIEND

LONDON: March 15, 1835

R. B.

PERSONS

AUREOLUS PARACELSUS, a student.

FESTUS and MICHAL, his friends.

APRILE, an Italian poet.

I.—PARACELSUS ASPIRES

SCENE.—Würzburg; a garden in the environs. 1512.

FESTUS, PARACELSUS, MICHAL

Par. Come close to me, dear friends; still closer; thus!
Close to the heart which, though long time roll by
Ere it again beat quicker, pressed to yours,
As now it beats—perchance a long, long
time—

At least henceforth your memories shall
make

Quiet and fragrant as befits their home.
Nor shall my memory want a home in
yours—

Alas, that it requires too well such free
Forgiving love as shall embalm it there!
For if you would remember me aright,
As I was born to be, you must forget
All fitful strange and moody waywardness Which e'er confused my better spirit, to dwell

Only on moments such as these, dear
friends!

—My heart no truer, but my words and
ways

More true to it: as Michal, some months
hence,

Will say, 'this autumn was a pleasant time,'
For some few sunny days; and overlook
Its bleak wind, hankering after pining leaves.

Autumn would fain be sunny; I would look Like my nature's truth: and both are frail,
And both beloved, for all our frailty.

Michal.

Aureole!

Par. Drop by drop! she is weeping like a child!

Not so! I am content—more than content;
Nay, autumn wins you best by this its mute
Appeal to sympathy for its decay:

Look up, sweet Michal, nor esteem the less Your stained and drooping vines their grapes bow down,

Nor blame those creaking trees bent with their fruit,

That apple-tree with a rare after-birth
Of peeping blooms sprinkled its wealth among!

Then for the winds—what wind that ever raved

Shall vex that ash which overlooks you
both,

So proud it wears its berries? Ah, at length,
The old smile meet for her, the lady of this Sequestered nest!—this kingdom, limited

Alone by one old populous green wall
Tenanted by the ever-busy flies,

Grey crickets and shy lizards and quick spiders,

Each family of the silver-threaded moss—
Which, look through near, this way, and it appears

A stubble-field or a cane-brake, a marsh
Of bulrush whitening in the sun: laugh
now!

Fancy the crickets, each one in his house, Looking out, wondering at the world—or
best,

Yon painted snail with his gay shell of dew,
Travelling to see the glossy balls high up
Hung by the caterpillar, like gold lamps.

Michal. In truth we have lived carelessly and well.

Par. And shall, my perfect pair!— each, trust me, born

For the other; nay, your very hair, when mixed,

Is of one hue. For where save in this nook

Shall you two walk, when I am far away,
And wish me prosperous fortune? Stay:

that plant

Shall never wave its tangles lightly and softly,

As a queen's languid and imperial arm
Which scatters crowns among her lovers,
but you

Shall be reminded to predict to me
Some great success! Ah see, the sun sinks broad

Behind Saint Saviour's: wholly gone, at
last!

Fest. How, Aureole, stay those wandering eyes awhile!

You are ours to-night, at least; and while
 Of Michal and her tears, I thought that none
 Could willing leave what he so seemed to
 love:
 But that last look destroys my dream—that
 look
 As if, where'er you gazed, there stood a star!
 How far was Würzburg with its church and spire
 And garden-walls and all things they contain,
 From that look's far alighting?

Par. I but spoke
 And looked alike from simple joy to see
 The beings I love best, shut in so well
 From all rude chances like to be my lot,
 That, when afar, my weary spirit,— disposed

To lose awhile its care in soothing thoughts
 Of them, their pleasant features, looks and
 words,—
 Needs never hesitate, nor apprehend Encroaching trouble may have reached them too,

Nor have recourse to fancy's busy aid
 And fashion even a wish in their behalf
 Beyond what they possess already here;
 But, unobstructed, may at once forget Itself in them, assured how well they fare.
 Beside, this Festus knows he holds me one Whom quiet and its charms arrest in vain,
 One scarce aware of all the joys I quit,
 Too filled with airy hopes to make account
 Of soft delights his own heart garners up:
 Whereas beholds how much our sense of
 all.

That's beauteous proves alike! When Festus learns

That every common pleasure of the world Affects me as himself; that I have just As varied appetite for joy derived From common things; a stake in life, in short,

Like his; a stake which rash pursuit of aims
 That life affords not, would as soon destroy;—

He may convince himself that, this in view,
 I shall act well advised. And last, because,
 Though heaven and earth and all things were at stake,

Sweet Michal must not weep, our parting
 eve.

Fest. True; and the eve is deepening, and we sit

As little anxious to begin our talk
 As though to-morrow I could hint of it
 As we paced arm-in-arm the cheerful town
 At sun-down; or could whisper it by fits (Trithemius busied with his class the while)
 In that dim chamber where the noon-streaks peer

Half-frightened by the awful tomes around;

Or in some grassy lane unbosom all From even-blush to midnight: but, tomorrow!

Have I full leave to tell my inmost mind?
 We have been brothers, and henceforth
 the world

Will rise between us:—all my freest mind?
 'Tis the last night, dear Aureole!

Par. Oh, say on!
 Devise some test of love, some arduous feat

To be performed for you: say on! If night Be spent the while, the better! Recall how oft

My wondrous plans and dreams and hopes and fears

Have—never wearied you, oh no!—as I Recall, and never vividly as now,
 Your true affection, born when Einsiedeln
 And its green hills were all the world to us;
 And still increasing to this night which
 ends

My further stay at Würzburg. Oh, one day You shall be very proud! Say on, dear
 friends!

Fest. In truth? 'Tis for my proper peace,
 indeed,

Rather than yours; for vain all projects
 seem

To stay your course: I said my latest hope Is fading even now. A story tells
 Of some far embassy despatched to win
 The favour of an eastern king, and how The gifts they offered proved but dazzling dust

Shed from the ore-beds native to his clime.
 Just so, the value of repose and love,
 I meant should tempt you, better far than I
 You seem to comprehend; and yet desist
 No whit from projects where repose nor love

Has part.

Par. Once more? Alas! As I foretold.
Fest. A solitary brier the bank puts forth

To save our swan's nest floating out to sea.
Par. Dear Festus, hear me. What is it you wish?

That I should lay aside my heart's pursuit,
 Abandon the sole ends for which I live, Reject God's great commission, and so die!

You bid me listen for your true love's sake:
 Yet how has grown that love? Even in a long

And patient cherishing of the self-same spirit

It now would quell; as though a mother hoped

To stay the lusty manhood of the child
 Once weak upon her knees. I was not born Informed and fearless from the first, but shrank

Clear as your yearning to be singled out
For its pursuer. Dare you answer this?

Par. [after a pause]. No, I have nought to fear! Who will may know The secret'st workings of my soul. What though

It be so?—if indeed the strong desire
Eclipse the aim in me?—if splendour break
Upon the outset of my path alone,
And duskst shade succeed? What fairer seal

Shall I require to my authentic mission Than this fierce energy?—this instinct striving

Because its nature is to strive?—enticed
By the security of no broad course,
Without success forever in its eyes!

How know I else such glorious fate my
own,

But in the restless irresistible force That works within me? Is it for human will

To institute such impulses?—still less,
To disregard their promptings! What should I

Do, kept among you all; your loves, your
cares,

Your life—all to be mine? Be sure that
God

Ne'er dooms to waste the strength he deigns impart!

Ask the geier-eagle why she stoops at once
Into the vast and unexplored abyss, What full-grown power informs her from the first,

Why she not marvels, strenuously beating
The silent boundless regions of the sky!
Be sure they sleep not whom God needs!

Nor fear
Their holding light his charge, when every hour

That finds that charge delayed, is a new
death.

This for the faith in which I trust; and
hence

I can abjure so well the idle arts
These pedants strive to learn and teach;

Black Arts,
Great Works, the Secret and Sublime,
forsooth—

Let others prize: too intimate a tie Connects me with our God! A sullen fiend
To do my bidding, fallen and hateful sprites

To help me—what are these, at best, beside

God helping, God directing everywhere,
So that the earth shall yield her secrets up,
And every object there be charged to strike,

Teach, gratify her master God appoints?
And I am young, my Festus, happy and free!

I can devote myself; I have a life

To give; I, singled out for this, the One!
Think, think! the wide East, where all Wisdom sprung;

The bright South, where she dwelt; the hopeful North,

All are passed o'er—it lights on me! 'Tis
time

New hopes should animate the world, new light

Should dawn from new revealings to a race

Weighed down so long, forgotten so long;
thus shall

The heaven reserved for us at last receive Creatures whom no unwatched splendours

blind,
But ardent to confront the unclouded blaze

Whose beams not seldom blessed their pilgrimage,

Not seldom glorified their life below.
Fest. My words have their old fate and make faint stand

Against your glowing periods. Call this,
truth—

Why not pursue it in a fast retreat,
Some one of Learning's many palaces,

After approved example?—seeking there Calm converse with the great dead, soul to

soul,
Who laid up treasure with the like intent
—So lift yourself into their airy place,

And fill out full their unfulfilled careers,
Unravelling the knots their baffled skill

Pronounced inextricable, true!—but left Far less confused. A fresh eye, a fresh

hand,
Might do much at their vigour's waning-
point;

Succeeding with new-breathed new-hearted force,

As at old games the runner snatched the torch

From runner still: this way success might
be.

But you have coupled with your enterprise,
An arbitrary self-repugnant scheme

Of seeking it in strange and untried paths.
What books are in the desert? Writes the sea

The secret of her yearning in vast caves Where yours will fall the first of human

feet?
Has wisdom sat there and recorded aught You press to read? Why turn aside from

her
To visit, where her vesture never glanced,
Now—solitudes consigned to barrenness

By God's decree, which who shall dare impugn?

Now—ruins where she paused but would not stay,

Old ravaged cities that, renouncing her,
She called an endless curse on, so it came:

Or worst of all, now—men you visit, men, Ignoblest troops who never heard her voice

Or hate it, men without one gift from Rome

Or Athens,—these shall Aureole's teachers
be!

Rejecting past example, practice, precept, Aidless mid these he thinks to stand
alone:

Thick like a glory round the Stagirite
Your rivals throng, the sages: here stand
you!

Whatever you may protest, knowledge is
not

Paramount in your love; or for her sake
You would collect all help from every source—

Rival, assistant, friend, foe, all would merge

In the broad class of those who showed her haunts,

And those who showed them not.
Par. What shall I say?

Festus, from childhood I have been possessed

By a fire—by a true fire, or faint or fierce,
As from without some master, so it
seemed,

Repressed or urged its current: this but ill
Expresses what would I convey: but rather
I will believe an angel ruled me thus,
Than that my soul's own workings, own high nature,

So became manifest. I knew not then What whispered in the evening, and spoke
out

At midnight. If some mortal, born too
soon,

Were laid away in some great trance—the ages

Coming and going all the while—till dawned

His true time's advent; and could then record

The words they spoke who kept watch by his bed,—

Then I might tell more of the breath so light
Upon my eyelids, and the fingers light

Among my hair. Youth is confused; yet never

So dull was I but, when that spirit passed,
I turned to him, scarce consciously, as turns

A water-snake when fairies cross his sleep.
And having this within me and about me While Einsiedeln, its mountains, lakes and woods

Confined me—what oppressive joy was
mine

When life grew plain, and I first viewed the thronged,

The everlasting concourse of mankind!
Believe that ere I joined them, ere I knew

The purpose of the pageant, or the place Consigned me in its ranks—while, just awake,

Wonder was freshest and delight most pure—

'Twas then that least supportable appeared
A station with the brightest of the crowd,
A portion with the proudest of them all.
And from the tumult in my breast, this only

Could I collect, that I must thenceforth die
Or elevate myself far, far above

The gorgeous spectacle. I seemed to long
At once to trample on, yet save mankind,
To make some unexampled sacrifice

In their behalf, to wring some wondrous
good

From heaven or earth for them, to perish, winning

Eternal weal in the act: as who should dare Pluck out the angry thunder from its cloud,

That, all its gathered flame discharged on
him,

No storm might threaten summer's azure
sleep:

Yet never to be mixed with men so much
As to have part even in my own work, share

In my own largess. Once the feat achieved,
I would withdraw from their officious

praise,

Would gently put aside their profuse
thanks.

Like some knight traversing a wilderness,
Who, on his way, may chance to free a tribe

Of desert-people from their dragon-foe;
When all the swarthy race press round to kiss

His feet, and choose him for their king, and yield

Their poor tents, pitched among the sand-hills, for

His realm: and he points, smiling, to his scarf

Heavy with riveled gold, his burgonet Gay set with twinkling stones—and to the East,

Where these must be displayed!

Fest. Good: let us hear
No more about your nature, 'which first shrank

'From all that marked you out apart from
men!'

Par. I touch on that; these words but analyse

The first mad impulse: 'twas as brief as fond,

For as I gazed again upon the show,
I soon distinguished here and there a
shape

Palm-wreathed and radiant, forehead and full eye.

Well pleased was I their state should thus at once

Interpret my own thoughts:—‘Behold the clue

‘To all,’ I rashly said, ‘and what I pine ‘To do, these have accomplished: we are peers.

‘They know and therefore rule: I, too, will know!’

You were beside me, Festus, as you say;
You saw me plunge in their pursuits whom fame

Is lavish to attest the lords of mind,
Not pausing to make sure the prize in
view

Would satiate my cravings when obtained, But since they strove I strove. Then came a slow

And strangling failure. We aspired alike, Yet not the meanest plodder, Trithem counts

A marvel, but was all-sufficient, strong,
Or staggered only at his own vast wits;
While I was restless, nothing satisfied, Distrustful, most perplexed. I would slur
over

That struggle; suffice it, that I loathed myself

As weak compared with them, yet felt somehow

A mighty power was brooding, taking shape

Within me; and this lasted till one night
When, as I sat revolving it and more,

A still voice from without said—‘Seest thou not,

‘Desponding child, whence spring defeat and loss?

‘Even from thy strength. Consider: hast thou gazed

‘Presumptuously on wisdom’s countenance,

‘No veil between; and can thy faltering
hands,

‘Unguided by the brain the sight absorbs, ‘Pursue their task as earnest blinkers do

‘Whom radiance ne’er distracted? Live their life

‘If thou wouldst share their fortune, choose their eyes

‘Unfed by splendour. Let each task present ‘Its petty good to thee. Waste not thy gifts

‘In profitless waiting for the gods’ descent,
‘But have some idol of thine own to dress

‘With their array. Know, not for knowing’s sake,

‘But to become a star to men for ever;
‘Know, for the gain it gets, the praise it brings,

‘The wonder it inspires, the love it breeds:
‘Look one step onward, and secure that step!’

And I smiled as one never smiles but
once,

Then first discovering my own aim’s extent,

Which sought to comprehend the works of God,

And God himself, and all God’s inter-
course

With the human mind; I understand, no
less,

My fellows’ studies, whose true worth I saw,

But smiled not, well aware who stood by
me.

And softer came the voice—‘There is a
way:

‘‘Tis hard for flesh to ‘read therein, imbued

‘With frailty—hopeless, if indulgence first ‘Have ripened inborn germs of sin to
strength:

‘Wilt thou adventure for my sake and man’s,

‘Apart from all reward.’ And last it breathed—

‘Be happy, my good soldier; I am by thee,
‘Be sure, even to the end!’—I answered
not,

Knowing him. As he spoke, I was endued
With comprehension and a steadfast will;

And when he ceased, my brow was sealed
his own.

If there took place no special change in
me,

How comes it all things wore a different hue

Thenceforward?—pregnant with vast consequence,

Teeming with grand result, loaded with fate?

So that when, quailing at the mighty range Of secret truths which yearn for birth, I haste

To contemplate undazzled some one truth,
Its bearings and effects alone—at once

What was a speck expands into a star, Asking a life to pass exploring thus,

Till I near craze. I go to prove my soul!
I see my way as birds their trackless way.

I shall arrive! what time, what circuit first,
I ask not: but unless God send his hail

Or blinding fireballs, sleet or stifling snow,
In some time, his good time, I shall arrive:

He guides me and the bird. In his good
time!

Mich. Vex him no further, Festus; it is so!

Fest. Just thus you help me ever. This would hold

Were it the trackless air, and not a path
Inviting you, distinct with footprints yet

Of many a mighty marcher gone that way.
You may have purer views than theirs, perhaps,

But they were famous in their day—the proofs

Remain. At least accept the light they lend.

Par. Their light! the sum of all is briefly this:

They laboured and grew famous, and the fruits

Are best seen in a dark and groaning earth
Given over to a blind and endless strife
With evils, what of all their lore abates?
No; I reject and spurn them utterly

And all they teach. Shall I still sit beside Their dry wells, with a white lip and filmed eye,

While in the distance heaven is blue above Mountains where sleep the unsunned tarns?

Fest. And yet

As strong delusions have prevailed ere
now.

Men have set out as gallantly to seek Their ruin. I have heard of such: yourself

Avow all hitherto have failed and fallen.

Mich. Nay, Festus, when but as the pilgrims faint

Through the drear way, do you expect to see

Their city dawn amid the clouds afar?

Par. Ay, sounds it not like some old well-known tale?

For me, I estimate their works and them
So rightly, that at times I almost dream
I too have spent a life the sages' way,
And tread once more familiar paths. Perchance

I perished in an arrogant self-reliance
Ages ago; and in that act, a prayer
For one more chance went up so earnest,
so

Instinct with better light let in by death,
That life was blotted out—not so completely

But scattered wrecks enough of it remain, Dim memories, as now, when once more seems

The goal in sight again. All which, indeed, Is foolish, and only means—the flesh I wear,

The earth I tread, are not more clear to me
Than my belief, explained to you or no.

Fest. And who am I, to challenge and dispute

That clear belief? I will divest all fear.

Mich. Then Aureole is God's commissary! he shall

Be great and grand—and all for us!

Par. No, sweet!

Not great and grand. If I can serve man-
kind

'Tis well; but there our intercourse must
end:

I never will be served by those I serve.

Fest. Look well to this; here is a plague-spot, here,

Disguise it how you may! 'Tis true, you utter

This scorn while by our side and loving us:
'Tis but a spot as yet; but it will break
Into a hideous blotch if overlooked.

How can that course be safe which from the first

Produces carelessness to human love?
It seems you have abjured the helps which
men

Who overpass their kind, as you would do,
Have humbly sought; I dare not thoroughly probe

This matter, lest I learn too much. Let be
That popular praise would little instigate
Your efforts, nor particular approval
Reward you; put reward aside; alone
You shall go forth upon your arduous task, None shall assist you, none partake your toil,

None share your triumph: still you must retain

Some one to cast your glory on, to share
Your rapture with. Were I elect like you,
I would encircle me with love, and raise
A rampart of my fellows; it should seem Impossible for me to fail, so watched By gentle friends who made my cause their
own.

They should ward off fate's envy—the great gift,

Extravagant when claimed by me alone,
Being so a gift to them as well as me.
If danger daunted me or ease seduced,
How calmly their sad eyes should gaze reproach!

Mich. O Aureole, can I sing when all
alone,

Without first calling, in my fancy, both
To listen by my side—even I! And you?
Do you not feel this? Say that you feel this!

Par. I feel, 'tis pleasant that my aims, at length

Allowed their weight, should be supposed to need

A further strengthening in these goodly helps!

My course allures for its own sake, its sole Intrinsic worth; and ne'er shall boat of
mine

Adventure forth for gold and apes at once.
Your sages say, 'if human, therefore
weak.'

If weak, more need to give myself entire
To my pursuit; and by its side, all else . . .
No matter! I deny myself but little

In waiving all assistance save its own.
Would there were some real sacrifice to
make!

Your friends the sages threw their joys
away,

While I must be content with keeping mine.

Fest. But do not cut yourself from human weal!

You cannot thrive—a man that dares affect

To spend his life in service to his kind
For no reward of theirs, unbought to them
By any tie; nor do so, Aureole! No—
There are strange punishments for such.

Give up (Although no visible good flow thence) some part

Of the glory to another; hiding thus,
Even from yourself, that all is for yourself.
Say, say almost to God—'I have done all 'For her, not for myself!'

Par. And who but lately
Was to rejoice in my success like you?
Whom should I love but both of you?

Fest. I know not:
But know this, you, that 'tis no will of
mine

You should abjure the lofty claims you
make;

And this the cause—I can no longer seek
To overlook the truth, that there would be A monstrous spectacle upon the earth,
Beneath the pleasant sun, among the trees:
—A being knowing not what love is. Hear
me!

You are endowed with faculties which bear
Annexed to them as 'twere a dispensation
To summon meaner spirits to do their will
And gather round them at their need; inspiring

Such with a love themselves can never feel,
Passionless 'mid their passionate votaries.
I know not if you joy in this or no,

Or ever dream that common men can live On objects you prize lightly, but which
make

Their heart's sole treasure: the affections
seem

Beauteous at most to you, which we must taste

Or die: and this strange quality accords,
I know not how, with you; sits well upon
That luminous brow, though in another it scowls

An eating brand, a shame. I dare not judge you.

The rules of right and wrong thus set aside,
There's no alternative—I own you one
Of higher order, under other laws
Than bind us; therefore, curb not one bold glance!

'Tis best aspire. Once mingled with us
all . . .

Mich. Stay with us, Aureole! cast those hopes away,
And stay with us! An angel warns me, too;
Man should be humble; you are very proud:

And God, dethroned, has doleful plagues for such!

—Warns me to have in dread no quick repulse,

No slow defeat, but a complete success:
You will find all you seek, and perish so!

Par. [after a pause]. Are these the barren firstfruits of my quest?

Is love like this the natural lot of all?
How many years or pain might one such
hour

O'erbalance? Dearest Michal, dearest
Festus,

What shall I say, if not that I desire
To justify your love; and will, dear friends,
In swerving nothing from my first resolves.
See, the great moon! and ere the mottled owls

Were wide awake, I was to go. It seems
You acquiesce at last in all save this—

If I am like to compass what I seek
By the untried career I choose; and then,
If that career, making but small account
Of much of life's delight, will yet retain Sufficient to sustain my soul: for thus I understand these fond fears just expressed.

And first; the lore you praise and I neglect,
The labours and the precepts of old time,
I have not lightly disesteemed. But,
friends,

Truth is within ourselves; it takes no rise
From outward things, whate'er you may believe.

There is an inmost centre in us all,
Where truth abides in fulness; and around,
Wall upon wall, the gross flesh hems it in,
This perfect, clear perception—which is
truth.

A baffling and perverting carnal mesh Binds it, and makes all error: and to know
Rather consists in opening out a way Whence the imprisoned splendour may escape,

Than in effecting entry for a light
Supposed to be without. Watch narrowly
The demonstration of a truth, its birth,
And you trace back the effluence to its spring

And source within us; where broods radiance vast,

To be elicited ray by ray, as chance Shall favour: chance—for hitherto, your sage

Even as he knows not how those beams are born,

As little knows he what unlocks their fount:
And men have oft grown old among their books

To die case-hardened in their ignorance, Whose careless youth had promised what long years

Or unremitted labour ne'er performed:
While, contrary, it has chanced some idle
day,

To autumn loiterers just as fancy-free
As the midges in the sun, gives birth at
last

To truth—produced mysteriously as cape
Of cloud grown out of the invisible air.
Hence, may not truth be lodged alike in
all,
The lowest as the highest? some slight film
The interposing bar which binds a soul
And makes the idiot, just as makes the sage
Some film removed, the happy outlet
whence Truth issues proudly? See this soul of ours!
How it strives weakly in the child, is loosed
In manhood, clogged by sickness, back compelled
By age and waste, set free at last by death:
Why is it, flesh enthralled it or enthrones?
What is this flesh we have to penetrate?
Oh, not alone when life flows still, do truth
And power emerge, but also when strange
chance
Ruffles its current; in unused conjuncture,
When sickness breaks the body—hunger, watching,
Excess or languor—oftenest death's approach,
Peril, deep joy or woe. One man shall crawl
Through life surrounded with all stirring
things,
Unmoved; and he goes mad: and from the wreck
Of what he was, by his wild talk alone,
You first collect how great a spirit he hid.
Therefore, set free the soul alike in all, Discovering the true laws by which the flesh
Accloys the spirit! We may not be doomed
To cope with scraps, but at least the rest
Shall cope with us. Make no more giants,
God,
But elevate the race at once! We ask
To put forth just our strength, our human
strength,
All starting fairly, all equipped alike,
Gifted alike, all eagle-eyed, true-hearted!—
See if we cannot beat thine angels yet!
Such is my task. I go to gather this The sacred knowledge, here and there dispersed
About the world, long lost or never found.
And why should I be sad or lorn of hope?
Why ever make man's good distinct from God's,
Or, finding they are one, why dare mis-
trust?
Who shall succeed if not one pledged like
me?
Mine is no mad attempt to build a world Apart from his, like those who set themselves
To find the nature of the spirit they bore,
And, taught betimes that all their gorgeous
dreams

Were only born to vanish in this life,
Refused to fit them to its narrow sphere,
But chose to figure forth another world
And other frames meet for their vast desires,—
And all a dream! Thus was life scorned;
but life Shall yet be crowned: twine amaranth! I am priest!
And all for yielding with a lively spirit
A poor existence, parting with a youth
Like those who squander every energy
Convertible to good, on painted toys, Breath-bubbles, gilded dust! And though
I spurn
All adventitious aims, from empty praise
To love's award, yet whoso deems such helps
Important, and concerns himself for me,
May know even these will follow with the
rest—
As in the steady rolling Mayne, asleep
Yonder, is mixed its mass of schistous ore.
My own affections laid to rest awhile,
Will waken purified, subdued alone
By all I have achieved. Till then—till
then . . .
Ah, the time-wiling loitering of a page
Through bower and over lawn, till eve shall bring
The stately lady's presence whom he loves—
The broken sleep of the fisher whose rough coat Enwraps the queenly pearl—these are faint types!
See, see, they look on me: I triumph now!
But one thing, Festus, Michal! I have told
All I shall e'er disclose to mortal: say—
Do you believe I shall accomplish this?
Fest. I do believe!
Mich. . . . I ever did believe!
Par. Those words shall never fade from out my brain!
This earnest of the end shall never fade!
Are there not, Festus, are there not, dear
Michal,
Two points in the adventure of the diver,
One—when, a beggar, he prepares to plunge,
One—when, a prince, he rises with his pearl?
Festus, I plunge!
Fest. We wait you when you rise!

II.—PARACELSUS ATTAINS

SCENE.—Constantinople; the house of a Greek Conjuror. 1521.

PARACELSUS

Over the waters in the vaporous West
The sun goes down as in a sphere of gold Behind the arm of the city, which between,

With all that length of domes and minarets, Athwart the splendour, black and crooked runs

Like a Turk verse along a scimitar.
There lie, sullen memorial, and no more Possess my aching sight! 'Tis done at last.
Strange—and the juggles of a sallow cheat
Have won me to this act!¹ 'Tis as yon cloud Should voyage unwrecked o'er many a mountain-top

And break upon a molehill. I have dared Come to a pause with knowledge; scan for once

The heights already reached, without regard

To the extent above; fairly compute All I have clearly gained; for once excluding

A brilliant future to supply and perfect
All half-gains and conjectures and crude hopes:

And all because a fortune-teller wills
His credulous seekers should inscribe thus
much

Their previous life's attainment, in his roll,
Before his promised secret, as he vaunts, Make up the sum: and here amid the scrawled

Uncouth recordings of the dupes of this Old arch-genethliac,¹ lie my life's results!

A few blurred characters suffice to note
A stranger wandered long through many lands

And reaped the fruit he coveted in a few Discoveries, as appended here and there,
The fragmentary produce of much toil,
In a dim heap, fact and surmise together Confusedly massed as when acquired; he was

Intent on gain to come too much to stay
And scrutinise the little gained: the whole Slit in the blank space 'twixt an idiot's gibber

And a mad lover's ditty—there it lies.

And yet those blottings chronicle a life—
A whole life, and my life! Nothing to do,
No problem for the fancy, but a life
Spent and decided, wasted past retrieve Or worthy beyond peer. Stay, what does this

Remembrancer set down concerning 'life'?
"Time fleets, youth fades, life is an empty
dream,"

'It is the echo of time; and he whose heart
'Beat first beneath a human heart, whose
speech

'Was copied from a human tongue, can never

'Recall when he was living yet knew not
this.

'Nevertheless long seasons pass o'er him

'Till some one hour's experience shows what nothing,

'It seemed, could clearer show; and ever after,

'An altered brow, and eye and gait and
speech

'Attest that now he knows the adage true,

"Time fleets, youth fades, life is an empty
dream."

Ay, my brave chronicler, and this same
hour

As well as any: now, let my time be!

Now! I can go no farther; well or ill,
'Tis done. I must desist and take my
chance.

I cannot keep on the stretch: 'tis no back-shrinking—

For let but some assurance beam, some close

To my toil grow visible, and I proceed
At any price, though closing it, I die.

Else, here I pause. The old Greek's prophesy

Is like to turn out true: 'I shall not quit
'His chamber till I know what I desire!'

Was it the light wind sang it o'er the sea?

An end, a rest! strange how the notion,
once

Encountered, gathers strength by moments! Rest!

Where has it kept so long? this throbbing
brow

To cease, this beating heart to cease, all cruel

And gnawing thoughts to cease! To dare let down

My strung, so high-strung brain, to dare unnerve

My harassed o'ertasked frame, to know my place,

My portion, my reward, even my failure, Assigned, made sure for ever! To lose my-
self

Among the common creatures of the
world,

To draw some gail from having been a
man,

Neither to hope nor fear, to live at length!
Even in failure, rest! But rest in truth

And power and recompense . . . I hoped that once!

What, sunk insensibly so deep? Has all Been undergone for this? This is the request

My labour qualified me to present
With no fear of refusal? Had I gone

Slightly through my task, and so judged fit

To moderate my hopes; nay, were it now
My sole concern to exculpate myself,

End things or mend them,—why, I could not choose

A humble mood to wait for the event!
No, no, there needs not this; no, after all,
At worst I have performed my share of the task:

The rest is God's concern; mine, merely this,

To know that I have obstinately held
By my own work. The mortal whose brave foot

Has trod, unscathed, the temple-court so far

That he descries at length the shrine of shrines,

Must let go sneering of the demons' eyes,
Whom he could pass unquailing, fasten now

Upon him, fairly past their power; no, no—

He must not stagger, faint, fall down at last,

Having a charm to baffle them; behold,
He bares his front: a mortal ventures thus Serene amid the echoes, beams and glooms!
If he be priest henceforth, if he wake up
The god of the place to ban and blast him there,

Both well! What's failure or success to me?

I have subdued my life to the one purpose
Whereto I ordained it; there alone I spy,
No doubt, that way I may be satisfied.

Yes, well have I subdued my life! beyond
The obligation of my strictest vow,
The contemplation of my wildest bond,
Which gave my nature freely up, in truth,
But in its actual state, consenting fully
All passionate impulses its soil was formed
To rear, should wither; but foreseeing not
The tract, doomed to perpetual barrenness,

Would seem one day, remembered as it was,

Beside the parched sand-waste which now it is,

Already strewn with faint blooms, viewless then.

I ne'er engaged to root up loves so frail
I felt them not; yet now, 'tis very plain
Some soft spots had their birth in me at first,

If not love, say, like love: there was a time
When yet this wolfish hunger after knowledge

Set not remorselessly love's claims aside.
This heart was human once, or why recall Einsiedeln, now, and Würzburg which the Mayne

Forsakes her course to fold as with an arm?

And Festus—my poor Festus, with his praise

And counsel and grave fears—where is he now

With the sweet maiden, long ago his bride?
I surely loved them—that last night, at least,

When we . . . gone! gone! the better. I am saved

The sad review of an ambitious youth
Choked by vile lusts, unnoticed in their birth,

But let grow up and wind around a will Till action was destroyed. No, I have gone Purging my path successively of aught
Wearing the distant likeness of such lusts.
I have made life consist of one idea:

Ere that was master, up till that was born,
I bear a memory of a pleasant life
Whose small events I treasure; till one morn

I ran o'er the seven little grassy fields,
Startling the flocks of nameless birds, to tell

Poor Festus, leaping all the while for joy,
To leave all trouble for my future plans,
Since I had just determined to become
The greatest and most glorious man on earth.

And since that morn all life has been forgotten:

All is one day, one only step between
The outset and the end: one tyrant all—Absorbing aim fills up the interspace,
One vast unbroken chain of thought, kept up

Through a career apparently adverse
To its existence: life, death, light and shadow,

The shows of the world, were bare receptacles

Or indices of truth to be wrung thence,
Not ministers of sorrow or delight:
A wondrous natural robe in which she went.

For some one truth would dimly beacon me

From mountains rough with pines, and slit and wink

O'er dazzling wastes of frozen snow, and tremble

Into assured light in some branching mine Where ripens, swathed in fire, the liquid gold—

And all the beauty, all the wonder fell
On either side the truth, as its mere robe;
I see the robe now—then I saw the form.
So far, then, I have voyaged with success,
So much is good, then, in this working sea
Which parts me from that happy strip of land:

But o'er that happy strip a sun shone, too!
And fainter gleams it as the waves grow rough,

And still more faint as the sea widens; last
I sicken on a dead gulf streaked with light

From its own putrefying depths alone.
Then, God was pledged to take me by the hand;

Now, any miserable juggle can bid
My pride depart. All is alike at length:
God may take pleasure in confounding
pride

By hiding secrets with the scorned and base—

I am here, in short: so little have I paused Throughout! I never glanced behind to
know

If I had kept my primal light from wane,
And thus insensibly am—what I am!

Oh, bitter; very bitter!

And more bitter,
To fear a deeper curse, an inner ruin, Plague beneath plague, the last turning the
first

To light beside its darkness. Let me weep My youth and its brave hopes, all dead and
gone,

In tears which burn! Would I were sure to win

Some startling secret in their stead, a tincture

Of force to flush old age with youth, or breed

Gold, or imprison moonbeams till they
change

To opal shafts!—only that, hurling it
Indignant back, I might convince myself My aims remained supreme and pure as ever!

Even now, why not desire, for mankind's
sake,

That if I fail, some fault may be the cause,
That, though I sink, another may succeed?
O God, the despicable heart of us!

Shut out this hideous mockery from my
heart!

'Twas politic in you, Aureole, to reject
Single rewards, and ask them in the lump;
At all events, once launched, to hold straight on:

For now 'tis all or nothing. Mighty profit Your gains will bring if they stop short of such

Full consummation! As a man, you had A certain share of strength; and that is
gone

Already in the getting these you boast.
Do not they seem to laugh, as who should
say—

'Great master, we are here indeed, dragged
forth

'To light; this hast thou done: be glad!
Now, seek

'The strength to use which thou hast spent in getting!'

And yet 'tis much, surely 'tis very much,
Thus to have emptied youth of all its gifts,

To feed a fire meant to hold out till morn
Arrived with inexhaustible light; and lo,
I have heaped up my last, and day dawns
not!

And I am left with grey hair, faded hands,
And furrowed brow. Ha, have I, after all,
Mistaken the wild nursling of my breast?
Knowledge it seemed, and power, and recompense!

Was she who glided through my room of
nights,

Who laid my head on her soft knees and smoothed

The damp locks,—whose sly soothings just began

When my sick spirit craved repose awhile—God! was I fighting sleep off for death's
sake?

God! Thou art mind! Unto the master-
mind

Mind should be precious. Spare my mind
alone!

All else I will endure; if, as I stand Here, with my gains, thy thunder smite me down,

I bow me; 'tis thy will, thy righteous will;
I o'erpass life's restrictions, and I die;

And if no trace of my career remain
Save a thin corpse at pleasure of the wind

In these bright chambers level with the air,
See thou to it! But if my spirit fail,

My once proud spirit forsake me at the
last,

Hast thou done well by me? So do not thou!

Crush not my mind, dear God, though I be crushed!

Hold me before the frequency of thy seraphs

And say—'I crushed him, lest he should disturb

'My law. Men must not know their strength: behold,

'Weak and alone, how he had raised himself!'

But if delusions trouble me, and thou,
Not seldom felt with rapture in thy help

Throughout my toils and wanderings, dost intend

To work man's welfare through my weak endeavour,

To crown my mortal forehead with a beam
From thine own blinding crown, to smile, and guide

This puny hand and let the work so wrought

Be styled my work,—hear me! I covet not An influx of new power, an angel's soul:

It were no marvel then—but I have reached
Thus far, a man; let me conclude, a man!

Give but one hour of my first energy,
Of that invincible faith, but only one!

That I may cover with an eagle-glance
The truths I have, and spy some certain
way
To mould them, and completing them, possess!

Yet God is good: I started sure of that,
And why dispute it now? I'll not believe
But some undoubted warning long ere this Had reached me: a fire-labour was not deemed Too much for the old founder of these walls.

Then, if my life has not been natural,
It has been monstrous: yet, till late, my
course

So ardently engrossed me, that delight,
A pausing and reflecting joy, 'tis plain,
Could find no place in it. True, I am worn;
But who clothes summer, who is life itself?
God, that created all things, can renew!
And then, though after-life to please me
now

Must have no likeness to the past, what hinders

Reward from springing out of toil, as changed

As bursts the flower from earth and root and stalk?

What use were punishment, unless some sin

Be first detected? let me know that first!
No man could ever offend as I have done...

[A voice from within.]

I hear a voice, perchance I heard,
Long ago, but all too low,
So that scarce a care it stirred
If the voice were real or no:
I heard it in my youth when first
The waters of my life outburst:
But, now their stream ebbs faint, I hear
That voice, still low, but fatal-clear—
As if all poets, God ever meant Should save the world, and therefore lent

Great gifts to, but who, proud, refused
To do his work, or lightly used Those gifts, or failed through weak endeavour,

So, mourn cast off by him for ever,—
As if these leaned in airy ring
To take me; this the song they sing:

'Lost, lost! yet come,
With our wan troop make thy home.
Come, come! for we Will not breathe, so much as breathe
Reproach to thee,
Knowing what thou sink'st beneath.
So sank we in those old years,
We who bid thee, come! thou last
Who, living yet, hast life o'erpast.
And altogether we, thy peers,

Will pardon crave for thee, the last
Whose trial is done, whose lot is cast
With those who watch but work no more,
Who gaze on life but live no more.
Yet we trusted thou shouldst speak
The message which our lips, too weak,
Refused to utter,—shouldst redeem
Our fault: such trust, and all a dream!
Yet we chose thee a birthplace
Where the richness ran to flowers:
Couldst not sing one song for grace?
Not make one blossom man's and ours?
Must one more recreant to his race
Die with unexerted powers,
And join us, leaving as he found
The world, he was to loosen, bound?
Anguish! ever and for ever;
Still beginning, ending never.
Yet, lost and last one, come!
How couldst understand, alas,
What our pale ghosts strove to say,
As their shades did glance and pass
Before thee night and day?
Thou wast blind as we were dumb:
Once more, therefore, come, O come!
How should we clothe, how arm the spirit
Shall next thy post of life inherit—
How guard him from thy speedy ruin?
Tell us of thy sad undoing
Here, where we sit, ever pursuing
Our weary task, ever renewing Sharp sorrow, far from God who gave Our powers, and man they could not save!

APRILE enters.

Ha, ha! our king that wouldst be, here at
last?

Art thou the poet who shall save the world?
Thy hand to mine! Stay, fix thine eyes on
mine!

Thou wouldst be king? Still fix thine eyes on mine!

Par. Ha, ha! why crouchest not? Am
I not king?

So torture is not wholly unavailing!
Have my fierce spasms compelled thee from thy lair?

Art thou the sage I only seemed to be,
Myself of after-time, my very self
With sight a little clearer, strength more
firm,

Who robes him in my robe and grasps my crown

For just a fault, a weakness, a neglect?
I scarcely trusted God with the surmise
That such might come, and thou didst hear the while!

Apr. Thine eyes are lustreless to mine;
my hair

Is soft, nay silken soft: to talk with thee
Flushes my cheek, and thou art ashy-pale.

Truly, thou hast laboured, hast withstood her lips,

The siren's! Yes, 'tis like thou hast attained!

Tell me, dear master, wherefore now thou comest?

I thought thy solemn songs would have their need

In after-time; that I should hear the earth
Exult in thee and echo with thy praise,
While I was laid forgotten in my grave.

Par. Ah fiend, I know thee, I am not thy dupe!

Thou art ordained to follow in my track,
Reaping my sowing, as I scorned to reap
The harvest sown by sages passed away.

Thou art the sober searcher, cautious striver,

As if, except through me, thou hast searched or striven!

Ay, tell the world! Degrade me after all,
To an aspirant after fame, not truth—

To all but envy of thy fate, be sure!

Apr. Nay, sing them to me; I shall envy
not:

Thou shalt be king! Sing thou, and I will sit

Beside, and call deep silence for thy songs,
And worship thee, as I had ne'er been meant

To fill thy throne: but none shall ever
know!

Sing to me; for already thy wild eyes Unlock my heart-strings, as some crystal-shaft

Reveals by some chance blaze its parent fount

After long time; so thou reveal'st my soul.
All will flash forth at last, with thee to hear!

Par. (His secret! I shall get his secret—fool!)

I am he that aspired to know: and thou?

Apr. I would LOVE infinitely, and be loved!

Par. Poor slave! I am thy king indeed.

Apr. Thou deem'st
That—born a spirit, dowered even as
thou,

Born for thy fate—because I could not curb

My yearnings to possess at once the full Enjoyment, but neglected all the means

Of realizing even the frailest joy, Gathering no fragments to appease my want,

Yet nursing up that want till thus I die—
Thou deem'st I cannot trace thy safe sure march

O'er perils that o'erwhelm me, triumphing,
Neglecting nought below for aught above,

Despising nothing and ensuring all—
Nor that I could (my time to come again)

Lead thus my spirit securely as thine own.

Listen, and thou shalt see I know thee
well.

I would love infinitely . . . Ah, lost! lost!

Oh ye who armed me at such cost,
How shall I look on all of ye

With your gifts even yet on me?

Par. (Ah, 'tis some moonstruck creature after all!

Such fond fools as are like to haunt this den:

They spread contagion, doubtless: yet he seemed

To echo one foreboding of my heart
So truly, that . . . no matter! How he stands With eve's last sunbeams staying on his hair

Which turns to it as if they were akin:
And those clear smiling eyes of saddest
blue

Nearly set free, so far they rise above
The painful fruitless striving of the brow

And enforced knowledge of the lips, firm-set

In slow despondency's eternal sigh!

Has he, too, missed life's end, and learned the cause?)

I charge thee, by thy fealty, be calm!

Tell me what thou wouldst be, and what I am.

Apr. I would love infinitely, and be loved.

First: I would carve in stone, or cast in brass,

The forms of earth. No ancient hunter lifted

Up to the gods by his renown, no nymph Supposed the sweet soul of a woodland
tree

Or sapphirine spirit of a twilight-star,
Should be too hard for me; no shepherd-
king

Regal for his white locks; no youth who stands

Silent and very calm amid the throng,
His right hand ever hid beneath his robe

Until the tyrant pass; no lawgiver,
No swan-soft woman rubbed with lucid oils

Given by a god, for love of her—too hard!

Every passion sprung from man, conceived by man,

Would I express and clothe it in its right
form,

Or blend with others struggling in one
form,

Or show repressed by an ungainly form.
Oh, if you marvelled at some mighty spirit

With a fit frame to execute its will—Even unconsciously to work its will—

You should be moved no less beside some strong

Rare spirit, fettered to a stubborn body,
Endeavouring to subdue it and inform it

With its own splendour! All this I would do:

And I would say, this done, 'His sprites created,

'God grants to each a sphere to be its world,

'Appointed with the various objects needed

'To satisfy its own peculiar want;

'So, I create a world for these my shapes
'Fit to sustain their beauty and their strength!'

And, at the word, I would contrive and paint

Woods, valleys, rocks and plains, dells, sands and wastes,

Lakes which, when morn breaks on their quivering bed,

Blaze like a wyvern flying round the sun,
And ocean isles so small, the dog-fish tracking

A dead whale, who should find them, would swim thrice

Around them, and fare onward—all to hold

The offspring of my brain. Nor these alone:

Bronze labyrinth, palace, pyramid and crypt,

Baths, galleries, courts, temples and terraces,

Marts, theatres and wharfs—all filled with men,

Men everywhere! And this performed in turn,

When those who looked on, pined to hear the hopes

And fears and hates and loves which moved the crowd,

I would throw down the pencil as the chisel,

And I would speak; no thought which ever stirred

A human breast should be untold; all passions,

All soft emotions, from the turbulent stir
Within a heart fed with desires like mine,

To the last comfort shutting the tired lids
Of him who sleeps the sultry noon away

Beneath the tent-tree by the wayside well:
And this in language as the need should be,

Now poured at once forth in a burning flow,

Now piled up in a grand array of words.

This done, to perfect and consummate all,
Even as a luminous haze links star to star,

I would supply all chasms with music breathing

Mysterious motions of the soul, no way
To be defined save in strange melodies.

Last, having thus revealed all I could love,
Having received all love bestowed on it,

I would die: preserving so throughout my course

God full on me, as I was full on men:
He would approve my prayer, 'I have gone through

'The loveliness of life; create for me
'If not for men, or take me to thyself,

'Eternal, infinite love!'

If thou hast ne'er
Conceived this mighty aim, this full desire,

Thou hast not passed my trial, and thou art

No king of mine.

Par. Ah me!
Apr. But thou art here!

Thou didst not gaze like me upon that end
Till thine own powers for compassing the bliss

Were blind with glory; nor grow mad to grasp

At once the prize long patient toil should claim,

Nor spurn all granted short of that. And I Would do as thou, a second time: nay, listen!

Knowing ourselves, our world, our task so great,

Our time so brief, 'tis clear if we refuse
The means so limited, the tools so rude

To execute our purpose, life will fleet,
And we shall fade, and leave our task undone.

We will be wise in time: what though our work

Be fashioned in despite of their ill-service,
Be crippled every way? 'Twere little praise

Did full resources wait on our goodwill
At every turn. Let all be as it is.

Some say the earth is even so contrived
That tree and flower, a vesture gay, conceal

A bare and skeleton framework. Had we means

Answering to our mind! But now I seem Wrecked on a savage isle: how rear thereon

My palace? Branching palms the props shall be,

Fruit glossy mingling; gems are for the East;

Who heeds them? I can pass them. Serpents' scales,

And painted birds' down, furs and fishes' skins

Must help me; and a little here and there
Is all I can aspire to: still my art

Shall show its birth was in a gentler clime.
'Had I green jars of malachite, this way

'I'd range them: where those sea-shells glisten above,

'Cressets should hang, by right: this way we set

'The purple carpets, as these mats are laid,
'Woven of fern and rush and blossoming flag.'

Or if, by fortune, some completer grace

Be spared to me, some fragment, some slight sample
 Of the prouder workmanship my own home boasts,
 Some trifle little heeded there, but here
 The place's one perfection—with what
 joy

Would I enshrine the relic, cheerfully
 Foregoing all the marvels out of reach!
 Could I retain one strain of all the psalm
 Of the angels, one word of the fiat of God,
 To let my followers know what such things
 are!

I would adventure nobly for their sakes:
 When nights were still, and still the moaning sea,

And far away I could descry the land
 Whence I departed, whither I return,
 I would dispart the waves, and stand once
 more

At home, and load my bark, and hasten
 back,

And fling my gains to them, worthless or
 true,

'Friends,' I would say, 'I went far, far for
 them,

'Past the high rocks the haunt of doves,
 the mounds

'Of red earth from whose sides strange trees grow out,

'Past tracks of milk-white minute blinding sand,

'Till, by a mighty moon, I tremblingly
 'Gathered these magic herbs, berry and bud,

'In haste, not pausing to reject the weeds,
 'But happy plucking them at any price.

'To me, who have seen them bloom in their own soil,

'They are scarce lovely: plait and wear them, you!

'And guess, from what they are, the springs that fed them,

'The stars that sparkled o'er them, night by night,

'The snakes that travelled far to sip their dew!'

Thus for my higher loves; and thus even weakness

Would win me honour. But not these
 alone

Should claim my care; for common life, its wants

And ways, would I set forth in beauteous hues:

The lowest hind should not possess a hope,
 A fear, but I'd be by him, saying better

Than he his own heart's language. I would
 live

For ever in the thoughts I thus explored,
 As a discoverer's memory is attached

To all he finds; they should be mine hence-
 forth,

Imbued with me, though free to all before:

For clay, once cast into thy soul's rich
 mine,

Should come up crusted o'er with gems.
 Nor this

Would need a meaner spirit, than the
 first;

Nay, 'twould be but the selfsame spirit, clothed

In humbler guise, but still the selfsame
 spirit:

As one spring wind unbinds the mountain
 snow

And comforts violets in their hermitage.

But, master, poet, who hast done all this,
 How didst thou 'scape the ruin whelming
 me?

Didst thou, when nerving thee to this attempt,

Ne'er range thy mind's extent, as some wide hall,

Dazzled by shapes that filled its length with light,

Shapes clustered there to rule thee, not obey,

That will not wait thy summons, will not rise

Singly, nor when thy practised eye and
 hand

Can well transfer their loveliness, but crowd

By thee for ever, bright to thy despair?
 Didst thou ne'er gaze on each by turns,

and ne'er

Resolve to single out one, though the rest
 Should vanish, and to give that one, entire

In beauty, to the world; forgetting, so, its peers, whose number baffles mortal

power?

And, this determined, wast thou ne'er seduced

By memories and regrets and passionate
 love,

To glance once more farewell? and did
 their eyes

Fasten thee, brighter and more bright, until

Thou couldst but stagger back unto their
 feet,

And laugh that man's applause or welfare
 ever

Could tempt thee to forsake them? Or when years

Had passed and still their love possessed thee wholly,

When from without some murmur startled
 thee

Of darkling mortals famished for one ray
 Of thy so-hoarded luxury of light,

Didst thou ne'er strive even yet to break those spells

And prove thou couldst recover and fulfil Thy early mission, long ago renounced,

And to that end, select some shape once more?

And did not mist-like influences, thick films,

Faint memories of the rest that charmed so long

Thine eyes, float fast, confuse thee, bear thee off,

As whirling snow-drifts blind a man who treads

A mountain ridge, with guiding spear, through storm?

Say, though I fell, I had excuse to fall; Say, I was tempted sorely: say but this,

Dear lord, Aprile's lord!

Par. Clasp me not thus, Aprile! That the truth should reach me thus!

We are weak dust. Nay, clasp not or I faint!

Apr. My king! and envious thoughts could outrage thee?

Lo, I forget my ruin, and rejoice In thy success, as thou! Let our Gods praise Go bravely through the world at last! What care

Through me or thee? I feel thy breath. Why, tears?

Tears in the darkness, and from thee to me?

Par. Love me henceforth, Aprile, while I learn

To love; and, merciful God, forgive us both!

We wake at length from weary dreams; but both

Have slept in fairy-land: though dark and drear

Appears the world before us, we no less Wake with our wrists and ankles jewelled still.

I too have sought to know as thou to LOVE—

Excluding love as thou refusedst knowledge.

Still thou hast beauty and I, power. We wake:

What penance canst devise for both of us? Apr. I hear thee faintly. The thick darkness! Even Thine eyes are hid. 'Tis as I knew: I speak, And now I die. But I have seen thy face!

O poet, think of me, and sing of me! But to have seen thee and to die so soon!

Par. Die not, Aprile! We must never part.

Are we not halves of one dissevered world? Whom this strange chance unites once more? Part? never!

Till thou the lover, know; and I, the knower,

Love—until both are saved. Aprile, hear!

We will accept our gains, and use them—now!

God, he will die upon my breast! Aprile! Apr. To speak but once, and die! yet by his side. Hush! hush!

Ha! go you ever girt about With phantoms, powers? I have created such, But these seem real as I.

Par. Whom can you see Through the accursed darkness?

Apr. Stay; I know, I know them: who should know them well as I?

White brows, lit up with glory; poets all! Par. Let him but live, and I have my reward! Apr. Yes; I see now. God is the perfect poet, Who in his person acts his own creations.

Had you but told me this at first! Hush! hush!

Par. Live! for my sake, because of my great sin,

To help my brain, oppressed by these wild words

And their deep import. Live! 'tis not too late.

I have a quiet home for us, and friends. Michal shall smile on you. Hear you?

Lean thus, And breathe my breath. I shall not lose one word Of all your speech, one little word, Aprile!

Apr. No, no. Crown me? I am not one of you!

'Tis he, the king, you seek. I am not one. Par. Thy spirit, at least, Aprile! Let me love!

I have attained, and now I may depart.

III.—PARACELSUS

SCENE.—Basil; a chamber in the house of PARACELSUS. 1526.

PARACELSUS, FESTUS

Par. Heap logs and let the blaze laugh out!

Fest. True, true! 'Tis very fit all, time and chance and change Have wrought since last we sat thus, face to face

And soul to soul—all cares, far-looking fears,

Vague apprehensions, all vain fancies bred By your long absence, should be cast away,

Forgotten in this glad unhop'd renewal Of our affections.

Par. Oh, omit not aught

Which witnesses your own and Michal's
own

Affection: spare not that! Only forget The honours and the glories and what
not,

It pleases you to tell profusely out.

Fest. Nay, even your honours, in a sense, I waive:

The wondrous Paracelsus, life's dispenser,
Fate's commissary, idol of the schools
And courts, shall be no more than Aureole
still,

Still Aureole and my friend as when we parted

Some twenty years ago, and I restrained
As best I could the promptings of my spirit Which secretly advanced you, from the
first,

To the pre-eminent rank which, since, your
own

Adventurous ardour, nobly triumphing,
Has won for you.

Par. Yes, yes. And Michal's face
Still wears that quiet and peculiar light
Like the dim circlet floating round a pearl?

Fest. Just so.

Par. And yet her calm sweet countenance,
Though saintly, was not sad; for she would sing

Alone. Does she still sing alone, bird-like,
Not dreaming you are near? Her carols dropt

In flakes through that old leafy bower built under

The sunny wall at Würzburg, from her lattice

Among the trees above, while I, unseen, Sat conning some rare scroll from Tritheim's shelves

Much wondering notes so simple could divert

My mind from study. Those were happy days.

Respect all such as sing when all alone!

Fest. Scarcely alone: her children, you may guess,

Are wild beside her.

Par. Ah, those children quite Unsettle the pure picture in my mind:

A girl, she was so perfect, so distinct:
No change, no change! Not but this added
grace

May blend and harmonize with its com-
peers,

And Michal may become her motherhood;
But 'tis a change, and I detest all change,
And most a change in aught I loved long since.

So, Michal—you have said she thinks of
me?

Fest. O very proud will Michal be of
you!

Imagine how we sat, long winter-nights,

Scheming and wondering, shaping your presumed

Adventure, or devising its reward;
Shutting out fear with all the strength of hope.

For it was strange how, even when most secure

In our domestic peace, a certain dim
And fitting shade could sadden all; it seemed

A restlessness of heart, a silent yearning,
A sense of something wanting, incomplete—

Not to be put in words, perhaps avoided
By mute consent—but, said or unsaid, felt
To point to one so loved and so long lost.
And then the hopes rose and shut out the fears—

How you would laugh should I recount them now!

I still predicted your return at last
With gifts beyond the greatest of them all,
All Triheim's wondrous troop; did one of which

Attain renown by any chance, I smiled,
As well aware of who would prove his peer.

Michal was sure some woman, long ere
this,

As beautiful as you were sage, had loved...
Par. Far-seeing, truly, to discern so
much.

In the fantastic projects and day-dreams
Of a raw restless boy!

Fest. Oh, no: the sunrise
Well warranted our faith in this full noon!
Can I forget the anxious voice which said
'Festus, have thoughts like these reshaped themselves

'In other brains than mine? have their possessors

'Existed in like circumstance? were they
weak

'As I, or ever constant from the first,
'Despising youth's allurements and rejecting

'As spider-films the shackles I endure?
'Is there hope for me?'—and I answered
gravely

As an acknowledged elder, calmer, wiser,
More gifted mortal. O you must remember,

For all your glorious...

Par. Glorious? ay, this hair,
These hands—nay, touch them, they are mine! Recall

With all the said recallings, times when
thus

To lay them by your own ne'er turned you pale

As now. Most glorious, are they not?
Fest. Why—why—

Something must be subtracted from success

So wide, no doubt. He would be scrupulous, truly, Who should object such drawbacks. Still,
still, Aureole,
You are changed, very changed! 'Twere losing nothing
To look well to it: you must not be stolen
From the enjoyment of your well-won meed.

Par. My friend! you seek my pleasure, past a doubt:
You will best gain your point, by talking,
not

Of me, but of yourself.

Fest. Have I not said
All touching Michal and my children?
Sure

You know, by this, full well how Aennchen looks

Gravely, while one disparts her thick brown hair;

And Aureole's glee when some stray gannet builds

Amid the birch-trees by the lake. Small
hope

Have I that he will honour (the wild imp) His namesake. Sigh not! 'tis too much to ask

That all we love should reach the same proud fate.

But you are very kind to humour me
By showing interest in my quiet life;
You, who of old could never tame yourself
To tranquil pleasures, must at heart despise . . .

Par. Festus, strange secrets are let out by death

Who blabs so oft the follies of this world:
And I am death's familiar, as you know.
I helped a man to die, some few weeks
since,

Warped even from his go-cart to one end—
The living on princes' smiles, reflected from

A mighty herd of favourites. No mean trick

He left untried, and truly well-nigh wormed
All traces of God's finger out of him:

Then died, grown old. And just an hour
before,

Having lain long with blank and soulless
eyes,

He sat up suddenly, and with natural voice
Said that in spite of thick air and closed doors

God told him it was June; and he knew
well,

Without such telling, harebells grew in June;

And all that kings could ever give or take Would not be precious as those blooms to
him.

Just so, allowing I am passing sage,
It seems to me much worthier argument

Whypansies,¹ eyes that laugh, bear beauty's prize

From violets, eyes that dream—(your Michal's choice)—

Than all fools find to wonder at in me
Or in my fortunes. And be very sure
I say this from no prurient restlessness,
No self-complacency, itching to turn,
Vary and view its pleasure from all points,
And, in this instance, willing other men
May be at pains, demonstrate to itself
The realness of the very joy it tastes.

What should delight me like the news of
friends

Whose memories were a solace to me oft,
As mountain-baths to wild fowls in their flight?

Often than you had wasted thought on me
Had you been wise, and rightly valued bliss.

But there's no taming nor repressing
hearts:

God knows I need such!—So, you heard me speak?

Fest. Speak? when?

Par. When but this morning at my class?

There was noise and crowd enough. I saw you not.

Surely you know I am engaged to fill
The chair here?—that 'tis part of my proud
fate

To lecture to as many thick-skulled youths
As please, each day, to throng the theatre,
To my great reputation, and no small Danger of Basil's benches long unused
To crack beneath such honour?

Fest. I was there;
I mingled with the throng: shall I avow
Small care was mine to listen?—too intent On gathering from the murmurs of the crowd

A full corroboration of my hopes!
What can I learn about your powers? but they

Know, care for nought beyond your actual state,

Your actual value; yet they worship you,
Those various natures whom you sway as
one!

But ere I go, be sure I shall attend . . .

Par. Stop, o' God's name: the thing's by no means yet

Past remedy! Shall I read this morning's labour

—At least in substance? Nought so worth the gaining

As an apt scholar! Thus then, with all due Precision and emphasis—you, beside, are clearly

Guiltless of understanding more, a whit,
The subject than your stool—allowed to be

familiaris.—DORN.

A notable advantage.

Fest. Surely, Aureole,
You laugh at me!

Par. I laugh? Ha, ha! thank
heaven,

I charge you, if 't be so! for I forget
Much, and what laughter should be like.

No less,
However, I forego that luxury
Since it alarms the friend who brings it
back.

True, laughter like my own must echo strangely

To thinking men; a smile were better far;
So, make me smile! If the exulting look

You wore but now be smiling, 'tis so long Since I have smiled! Alas, such smiles are

born Alone of hearts like yours, or herdsmen's souls

Of ancient time, whose eyes, calm as their flocks,

Saw in the stars mere garnishry of heaven,
And in the earth a stage for altars only.

Never change, Festus! I say, never change!
Fest. My God, if he be wretched after
all!

Par. When last we parted, Festus, you declared,

—Or Michal, yes, her soft lips whispered
words

I have preserved. She told me she believed I should succeed (meaning, that in the search

I then engaged in, I should meet success)
And yet be wretched: now, she augured

false.

Fest. Thank heaven! but you spoke strangely: could I venture

To think bare apprehension lest your
friend,

Dazzled by your resplendent course, might find

Henceforth less sweetness in his own,
could move

Such earnest mood in you? Fear not, dear
friend,

That I shall leave you, inwardly repining
Your lot was not my own!

Par. And this for ever!
For ever! gull who may, they will be gulled!

They will not look nor think; 'tis nothing
new

In them: but surely he is not of them!
My Festus, do you know, I reckoned,

you—
Though all beside were sand-blind—you,
my friend,

Would look at me, once close, with piercing eye

Untroubled by the false glare that con-founds

A weaker vision: would remain serene,

Though singular amid a gazing throng.
I feared you, or I had come, sure, long ere
this,

To Einsiedeln. Well, error has no end,
And Rhasis is a sage, and Basil boasts

A tribe of wits, and I am wise and blest
Past all dispute! 'Tis vain to fret at it.

I have vowed long ago my worshippers
Shall owe to their own deep sagacity

All further information, good or bad.
Small risk indeed my reputation runs,

Unless perchance the glance now searching me

Be fixed much longer; for it seems to spell
Dimly the characters a simpler man

Might read distinct enough. Old Eastern books

Say, the fallen prince of morning some short space

Remained unchanged in semblance; nay, his brow

Was hued with triumph: every spirit then Praising, his heart on flame the while:—

a tale!
Well, Festus, what discover you, I pray?

Fest. Some foul deed sullies then a life which else

Were raised supreme?
Par. Good: I do well, most well!

Why strive to make men hear, feel, fret
themselves

With what 's past their power to comprehend?

I should not strive now: only, having nursed

The faint surmise that one yet walked the
earth,

One, at least, not the utter fool of show,
Not absolutely formed to be the dupe

Of shallow plausibilities alone:
One who, in youth, found wise enough to

choose
The happiness his riper years approve,

Was yet so anxious for another's sake,
That, ere his friend could rush upon a

mad
And ruinous course, the converse of his
own,

His gentle spirit essayed, prejudged for
him

The perilous path, foresaw its destiny,
And warned the weak one in such tender

words,
Such accents—his whole heart in every tone—

That oft their memory comforted that
friend

When it by right should have increased
despair:

—Having believed, I say, that this one
man

Could never lose the light thus from the first

His portion—how should I refuse to grieve

At even my gain if it disturb our old Relation, if it make me out more wise?
Therefore, once more reminding him how
well

He prophesied, I note the single flaw That spoils his prophet's title. In plain
words,

You were deceived, and thus were you deceived—

I have not been successful, and yet am
Most miserable; 'tis said at last; nor you Give credit, lest you force me to concede That common sense yet lives upon the
world!

Fest. You surely do not mean to banter
me?

Par. You know, or—if you have been wise enough

To cleanse your memory of such matters
—knew,

As far as words of mine could make it clear,

That 'twas my purpose to find joy or grief
Solely in the fulfilment of my plan
Or plot or whatso'er it was; rejoicing
Alone as it proceeded prosperously, Sorrowing then only when mischance retarded

its progress. That was in those Würzburg
days!

Not to prolong a theme I thoroughly hate,
I have pursued this plan with all my
strength;

And having failed therein most signally,
Cannot object to ruin utter and drear
As all-excelling would have been the prize Had fortune favoured me. I scarce have right

To vex your frank good spirit late so glad
In my supposed prosperity, I know,
And, were I lucky in a glut of friends,
Would well agree to let your error live,
Nay, strengthen it with fables of success.
But mine is no condition to refuse
The transient solace of so rare a godsend,
My solitary luxury, my one friend:

Accordingly I venture to put off
The wearisome vest of falsehood galling
me,

Secure when he is by. I lay me bare,
Prone at his mercy—but he is my friend!
Not that he needs retain his aspect grave;
That answers not my purpose; for 'tis like,
Some sunny morning—Basil being drained

Of its wise population, every corner Of the amphitheatre crammed with learned clerks,

Here Ecolampadius, looking worlds of
wit,

Here Castellanus, as profound as he,
Munsterus here, Frobenius there, all squeezed

And staring,—that the zany of the show,

Even Paracelsus, shall put off before them
His trappings with a grace but seldom judged

Expedient in such cases:—the grim smile
That will go round! Is it not therefore
best

To venture a rehearsal like the present In a small way? Where are the signs I seek,

The first-fruits and fair sample of the scorn?

Due to all quacks? Why, this will never do!

Fest. These are foul vapours, Aureole;
nought beside!

The effect of watching, study, weariness.
Were there a spark of truth in the confusion

Of these wild words, you would not outrage thus

Your youth's companion. I shall ne'er regard

These wanderings, bred of faintness and much study.

'Tis not thus you would trust a trouble to
me,

To Michal's friend.

Par. I have said it, dearest
Festus!

For the manner, 'tis ungraciously probable;
You may have it told in broken sobs, one
day,
And scalding tears, ere long: but I thought
best

To keep that off as long as possible.

Do you wonder still?

Fest. No; it must oft fall out
That one whose labour perfects any work, Shall rise from it with eye so worn that he
Of all men least can measure the extent
Of what he has accomplished. He alone
Who, nothing tasked, is nothing weary
too,

May clearly scan the little he effects:
But we, the bystanders, untouched by toil,
Estimate each aright.

Par. This worthy Festus
Is one of them, at last! 'Tis so with all!
First, they set down all progress as a
dream;

And next, when he whose quick discom-figure

Was counted on, accomplishes some few
And doubtful steps in his career,—behold, They look for every inch of ground to vanish

Beneath his tread, so sure they spy success!

Fest. Few doubtful steps? when death retires before

Your presence—when the noblest of man-
kind,

Broken in body or subdued in soul,
May through your skill renew their vigour, raise

The shattered frame to pristine stateliness?
When men in racking pain may purchase dreams

Of what delights them most, swooning at once
Into a sea of bliss or rapt along
As in a flying sphere of turbulent light?

When we may look to you as one ordained
To free the flesh from fell disease, as frees
Our Luther's burning tongue the fettered soul?

When . . .
Par. When and where, the devil, did you get
This notable news?

Fest. Even from the common voice;
From those whose envy, daring not dispute
The wonders it decries, attributes them
To magic and such folly.

Par. Folly? Why not
To magic, pray? You find a comfort doubtless

In holding, God ne'er troubles him about Us or our doings: once we were judged worth

The devil's tempting . . . I offend: forgive me,
And rest content. Your prophecy on the whole

Was fair enough as prophesyings go;
At fault a little in detail, but quite Precise enough in the main; and hereupon
I pay due homage: you guessed long ago
(The prophet!) I should fail—and I have failed.

Fest. You mean to tell me, then, the hopes which fed
Your youth have not been realized as yet?
Some obstacle has barred them hitherto?
Or that their innate . . .

Par. As I said but now,
You have a very decent prophet's fame,
So you but shun details here. Little matter Whether those hopes were mad,—the aims they sought,

Safe and secure from all ambitious fools;
Or whether my weak wits are overcome
By what a better spirit would scorn: I fail.
And now methinks 'twere best to change a theme

I am a sad fool to have stumbled on.
I say confusedly what comes uppermost;
But there are times when patience proves at fault,

As now: this morning's strange encounter—
—you

Beside me once again! you, whom, I guessed

Alive, since hitherto (with Luther's leave)
No friend have I among the saints at peace,
To judge by any good their prayers effect.
I knew you would have helped me—why not he,

My strange competitor in enterprise,
Bound for the same end by another path,
Arrived, or ill or well, before the time,
At our disastrous journey's doubtful close?

How goes it with April? Ah, they miss
Your lone sad sunny idleness of heaven,
Our martyrs for the world's sake; heaven shuts fast:

The poor mad poet is howling by this time!
Since you are my sole friend then, here or there,

I could not quite repress the varied feelings
This meeting wakens; they have had their vent,

And now forget them. Do the rear-mice still Hang like a fretwork on the gate (or what

In my time was a gate) fronting the road
From Einsiedeln to Lachen?

Fest. Trifle not:
Answer me, for my sake alone! You smiled
Just now, when I supposed some deed,

'unworthy
Yourself, might blot the else so bright result;

Yet if your motives have continued pure,
Your will unfaltering, and in spite of this,
You have experienced a defeat, why then
I say not you would cheerfully withdraw From contest—mortal hearts are not so fashioned—

But surely you would ne'ertheless withdraw.

You sought not fame nor gain nor even love,

No end distinct from knowledge,—I repeat
Your very words: once satisfied that knowledge

Is a mere dream, you would announce as much,

Yourself the first. But how is the event?
You are defeated—and I find you here!

Par. As though 'here' did not signify defeat!

I spoke not of my little labours here,
But of the break-down of my general aims:

For you, aware of their extent and scope,
To look on these sage lecturings, approved
By beardless boys, and bearded dotards worse,

As a fit consummation of such aims,
Is worthy notice. A professorship

At Basil! Since you see so much in it,
And think my life was reasonably drained
Of life's delights to render me a match

For duties arduous as such post demands,—

Be it far from me to deny my power
To fill the petty circle allotted out
Of infinite space, or justify the host
Of honours thence accruing. So, take notice,

This jewel dangling from my neck preserves

The features of a prince, my skill restored To plague his people some few years to
come:

And all through a pure whim. He had eased the earth

For me, but that the droll despair which seized

The vermin of his household, tickled me.
I came to see. Here, drivelled the physician,

Whose most infallible nostrum was at fault;

There quaked the astrologer, whose horoscope

Had promised him interminable years;
Here a monk fumbled at the sick man's mouth

With some undoubted relic—a sudary
Of the Virgin; while another piebald knave Of the same brotherhood (he loved them
ever)

Was actively preparing 'neath his nose
Such a suffumigation as, once fired,
Had stunk the patient dead ere he could groan.

I cursed the doctor and upset the brother, Brushed past the conjurer, vowed that the first gust

Of stench from the ingredients just alight Would raise a cross-grained devil in my sword,

Not easily laid: and ere an hour the prince Slept as he never slept since prince he
was.

A day—and I was posting for my life, Placarded through the town as one whose spite

Had near availed to stop the blessed effects
Of the doctor's nostrum which, well seconded

By the sudary, and most by the costly
smoke—

Not leaving out the strenuous prayers sent
up

Hard by in the abbey—raised the prince to life:

To the great reputation of the seer
Who, confident, expected all along

The glad event—the doctor's recompense—

Much largess from his highness to the monks—

And the vast solace of his loving people,
Whose general satisfaction to increase,

The prince was pleased no longer to defer
The burning of some dozen heretics

Remanded till God's mercy should be shown

Touching his sickness: last of all were joined

Ample directions to all loyal folk
To swell the complement by seizing me

Who—doubtless some rank sorcerer—endeavoured

To thwart these pious offices, obstruct
The prince's cure, and frustrate heaven by help

Of certain devils dwelling in his sword.
By luck, the prince in his first fit of thanks
Had forced this bauble on me as an earnest Of further favours. This one case may serve

To give sufficient taste of many such,
So, let them pass. Those shelves support a pile

Of patents, licences, diplomas, titles
From Germany, France, Spain, and Italy;
They authorize some honour; ne'ertheless,
I set more store by this Erasmus sent;
He trusts me; our Frobenius is his friend,
And him 'I raised' (nay, read it) 'from the dead.'

I weary you, I see. I merely sought
To show, there's no great wonder after all
That, while I fill the class-room and attract
A crowd to Basil, I get leave to stay,
And therefore need not scruple to accept
The utmost they can offer, if I please:
For 'tis but right the world should be prepared

To treat with favour e'en fantastic wants
Of one like me, used up in serving her.

Just as the mortal, whom the gods in part Devoured, received in place of his lost limb
Some virtue or other—cured disease, I
think;

You mind the fables we have read together.
Fest. You do not think I comprehend a
word.

The time was, Aurcole, you were apt
enough

To clothe the airiest thoughts in specious
breath;

But surely you must feel how vague and strange

These speeches sound.

Par. Well, then: you know my hopes;
I am assured, at length, those hopes were
vain;

That truth is just as far from me as ever;
That I have thrown my life away; that sorrow

On that account is idle, and further effort
To mend and patch what's marred beyond repairing,

As useless: and all this was taught your
friend

By the convincing good old-fashioned method

Of force—by sheer compulsion. Is that plain?

Fest. Dear Aureole, can it be my fears were just?

God wills not . . .

Par. Now, 'tis this I most admire—

The constant talk men of you^{stamp} keep Of God's will, as they style it; one would swear
 Man had but merely to uplift his eye,
 And see the will in question charactered
 On the heaven's vault. 'Tis hardly wise to moot
 Such topics: doubts are many and faith is
 weak.
 I know as much of any will of God
 As knows some dumb and tortured brute what Man,
 His stern lord, wills from the perplexing
 blows
 That plague him every way; but there, of
 course,
 Where least he suffers, longest he remains—
 My case; and for such reasons I plod on, Subdued but not convinced. I know as little
 Why I deserve to fail, as why I hoped Better things in my youth. I simply know I am no master here, but trained and beaten into the path I tread; and here I stay, Until some further intimation reach me,
 Like an obedient drudge. Though I prefer
 To view the whole thing as a task imposed Which, whether dull or pleasant, must be
 done—
 Yet, I deny not, there is made provision Of joys which tastes less jaded might affect;
 Nay, some which please me too, for all my
 pride—
 Pleasures that once were pains: the iron ring Festering about a slave's neck grows at length
 Into the flesh it eats. I hate no longer
 A host of petty vile delights, undreamed of Or spurned before; such now supply the
 place
 Of my dead aims: as in the autumn woods Where tall trees used to flourish, from their roots
 Springs up a fungous brood sickly and
 pale,
 Chill mushrooms coloured like a corpse's
 cheek.
Fest. If I interpret well your words, I
 own
 It troubles me but little that your aims,
 Vast in their dawning and most likely grown
 Extravagantly since, have baffled you.
 Perchance I am glad; you merit greater
 praise;
 Because they are too glorious to be gained,
 You do not blindly cling to them and
 die;
 You fell, but have not sullenly refused
 To rise, because an angel worsted you

In wrestling, though the world holds not your peer,
 And though too harsh and sudden is the
 change
 To yield content as yet, still you pursue
 The ungracious path as though 'twere rosy-strewn.
 'Tis well: and your reward, or soon or late,
 Will come from him whom no man serves in vain.
Par. Ah, very fine! For my part, I conceive
 The very pausing from all futher toil,
 Which you find heinous, would become a seal
 To the sincerity of all my deeds.
 To be consistent I should die at once;
 I calculated on no after-life;
 Yet (how crept in, how fostered, I know
 not)
 Here am I with as passionate regret
 For youth and health and love so vainly lavished,
 As if their preservation had been first And foremost in my thoughts; and this strange fact Humbled me wondrously, and had due
 force
 In rendering me the less averse to follow
 A certain counsel, a mysterious warning—
 You will not understand—but 'twas a
 man
 With aims not mine and yet pursued like
 mine,
 With the same fervour and no more success,
 Perishing in my sight; who summoned me
 As I would shun the ghastly fate I saw,
 To serve my race at once; to wait no longer
 That God should interfere in my behalf,
 But to distrust myself, put pride away,
 And give my gains, imperfect as they were,
 To men. I have not leisure to explain How, since, a singular series of events
 Has raised me to the station you behold,
 Wherein I seem to turn to most account
 The mere wreck of the past,—perhaps receive
 Some feeble glimmering token that God
 views
 And may approve my penance: therefore
 here
 You find me, doing most good, or least harm.
 And if folks wonder much and profit little
 'Tis not my fault; only, I shall rejoice
 When my part in the farce is shuffled
 through,
 And the curtain falls: I must hold out till
 then.
Fest. Till when, dear Aureole?
Par. Till I'm fairly thrust From my proud eminence. Fortune is fickle

And even professors fall: should that arrive,

I see no sin in ceding to my bent.

You little fancy what rude shocks apprise us

We sin; God's intimations rather fail
In clearness than in energy: 'twere well Did they but indicate the course to take Like that to be forsaken. I would fain
Be spared a further sample. Here I stand,
And here I stay, be sure, till forced to flit.

Fest. Be you but firm on that head! long ere then

All I expect will come to pass, I trust:
The cloud that wraps you will have disappeared.

Meantime, I see small chance of such event:

They praise you here as one whose lore, already

Divulged, eclipses all the past can show,
But whose achievements, marvellous as they be,

Are faint anticipations of a glory
About to be revealed. When Basil's crowds Dismiss their teacher, I shall be content
That he depart.

Par. This favour at their hands
I look for earlier than your view of things
Would warrant. Of the crowd you saw to-day,

Remove the full half sheer amazement draws,

Mere novelty, nought else; and next, the tribe

Whose innate blockish dulness just perceives

That unless miracles (as seem my works)
Be wrought in their behalf, their chance is slight

To puzzle the devil; next, the numerous set

Who bitterly hate established schools, and help

The teacher that oppugns them, till he once

Have planted his own doctrine, when the teacher

May reckon on their favour in his turn;
Take, too, the sprinkling of sagacious knaves

Whose cunning runs not counter to the vogue

But seeks, by flattery and crafty nursing,
To force my system to a premature Short-lived development. Why swell the list?

Each has his end to serve, and his best way
Of serving it: remove all these, remains

A scantling, a poor dozen at the best,
Worthy to look for sympathy and service,

And likely to draw profit from my pains.
Fest. 'Tis no encouraging picture: still these few Redeem their fellows. Once the germ implanted,

Its growth, if slow, is sure.

Par. God grant it so!
I would make some amends: but if I fail,

The luckless rogues have this excuse to urge,

That much is in my method and my manner,

My uncouth habits, my impatient spirit,
Which hinders of reception and result

My doctrine: much to say, small skill to speak!

These old aims suffered not a looking-off Though for an instant; therefore, only when

I thus renounced them and resolved to reap

Some present fruit—to teach mankind some truth

So dearly purchased—only then I found
Such teaching was an art requiring cares

And qualities peculiar to itself:
That to possess was one thing—to display

Another. With renown first in my thoughts,

Or popular praise, I had soon discovered it:

One grows but little apt to learn these things.

Fest. If it be so, which nowise I believe,
There needs no waiting fuller dispensation

To leave a labour of so little use.
Why not throw up the irksome charge at once?

Par. A task, a task!

But wherefore hide the whole
Extent of degradation, once engaged

In the confessing vein? Despite of all My fine talk of obedience and repugnance,

Docility and what not, 'tis yet to learn
If when the task shall really be performed,

My inclination free to choose once more,
I shall do aught but slightly modify

The nature of the hated task I quit.
In plain words, I am spoiled; my life still tends

As first it tended; I am broken and trained
To my old habits: they are part of me.

I know, and none so well, my darling ends
Are proved impossible: no less, no less,

Even now what humours me, fond fool, as when

Their faint ghosts sit with me and flatter me

And send me back content to my dull round?

How can I change this soul?—this apparatus

Constructed solely for their purposes,
So well adapted to their every want,

To search out and discover, prove and perfect;

This intricate machine whose most minute

And meanest motions have their charm to me

Though to none else—an aptitude I seize,
An object I perceive, a use, a meaning,
A property, a fitness, I explain
And I alone:—how can I change my soul?
And this wronged body, worthless save when tasked

Under that soul's dominion—used to care
For its bright master's cares and quite subdue

Its proper cravings—not to ail nor pine
So he but prosper—whither drag this poor Tried patient body? God! how I essayed
To live like that mad poet, for a while,
To love alone; and how I felt too warped
And twisted and deformed! What should

I do,
Even tho' released from drudgery, but return

Faint, as you see, and halting, blind and sore,

To my old life and die as I began?
I cannot feed on beauty for the sake
Of beauty only, nor can drink in balm
From lovely objects for their loveliness;
My nature cannot lose her first imprint;
I still must hoard and heap and class all
truths

With one ulterior purpose: I must know!
Would God translate me to his throne,
believe

That I should only listen to his word
To further my own aim! For other men, Beauty is prodigally strewn around,
And I were happy could I quench as they
This mad and thriveless longing, and content me

With beauty for itself alone: alas,
I have addressed a frock of heavy mail
Yet may not join the troop of sacred knights;

And now the forest-creatures fly from me,
The grass-banks cool, the sunbeams warm
no more.

Best follow, dreaming that ere night arrive,
I shall o'ertake the company and ride Glittering as they!

Fest. I think I apprehend
What you would say: if you, in truth, design

To enter once more on the life thus left,
Seek not to hide that all this consciousness
Of failure is assumed!

Par. My friend, my friend,
I toil, you listen; I explain, perhaps You understand: there our communion
ends.

Have you learnt nothing from to-day's dis-
course?

When we would thoroughly know the sick man's state

We feel awhile the fluttering pulse, press soft

The hot brow, look upon the languid eye,
And thence divine the rest.' Must I lay bare
My heart, hideous and beating, or tear up My vitals for your gaze, ere you will deem Enough made known? You! who are you,
forsooth?

That is the crowning operation claimed By the arch-demonstrator—heaven the hall,

And earth the audience. Let Aprile and
you

Secure good places: 'twill be worth the while.

Fest. Are you mad, Aureole? What can
I have said

To call for this? I judged from your own
words.

Par. Oh, doubtless! A sick wretch describes the ape

That mocks him from the bed-foot, and all gravely

You thither turn at once: or he recounts
The perilous journey he has late performed,

And you are puzzled much how that could
be!

You find me here, half stupid and half
mad:

It makes no part of my delight to search
Into these matters, much less undergo Another's scrutiny; but so it chanced
That I am led to trust my state to you:
And the event is, you combine, contrast And ponder on my foolish words as though

They thoroughly conveyed all hidden kere—

Here, loathsome with despair and hate and rage!

Is there no fear, no shrinking and no
shame?

Will you guess nothing? will you spare me
nothing?

Must I go deeper? Ay or no?

Fest. Dear friend . . .

Par. True: I am brutal—'tis a part of it;
The plague's sign—you are not a lazar-haunter,

How should you know? Well then, you think it strange

I should profess to have failed utterly,
And yet propose an ultimate return

To courses void of hope: and this, because You know not what temptation is, nor how

'Tis like to ply men in the sickliest part.
You are to understand that we who make Sport for the gods, are hunted to the end:
There is not one sharp volley shot at us,
Which 'scaped with life, though hurt, we slacken pace

And gather by the wayside herbs and roots
To staunch our wounds, secure from further harm:

We are assailed to life's extremest verge.
It will be well indeed if I return,
A harmless busy fool, to my old ways!
I would forget hints of another fate,
Significant enough, which silent hours
Have lately scared me with.

Fest. Another! and what?

Par. After all, Festus, you say well: I am

A man yet: I need never humble me.
I would have been—something, I know not what;

But though I cannot soar, I do not crawl.
There are worse portions than this one of
mine.

You say well!

Fest. Ah!

Par. And deeper degradation!
If the mean stimulants of vulgar praise,
If vanity should become the chosen food
Of a sunk mind, should stifle even the wish
To find its early aspirations true, Should teach it to breathe falsehood like life-breath—

An atmosphere of craft and trick and lies;
Should make it proud to emulate, surpass Base natures in the practices which woke Its most indignant loathing once . . . No,
no!

Utter damnation is reserved for hell!
I had immortal feelings; such shall never
Be wholly quenched: no, no!

My friend, you wear
A melancholy face, and certain 'tis
There's little cheer in all this dismal work.
But was it my desire to set abroad
Such memories and forebodings? I foresaw

Where they would drive. 'Twere better we discuss

News from Lucerne or Zurich; ask and tell Of Egypt's flaring sky or Spain's cork-groves.

Fest. I have thought: trust me, this mood will pass away!

I know you and the lofty spirit you bear,
And easily ravel out a clue to all.

These are the trials meet for such as you,
Nor must you hope exemption: to be mortal

Is to be plied with trials manifold.
Look round! The obstacles which kept
the rest

From your ambition, have been spurned
by you;

Their fears, their doubts, the chains that bind them all,

Were flax before your resolute soul, which
nought

Avails to awe save these delusions bred
From its own strength, its selfsame strength disguised,

Mocking itself. Be brave, dear Aureole!
Since

The rabbit has his shade to frighten him,
The fawn a rustling bough, mortals their
cares,

And higher natures yet would slight and
laugh

At these entangling fantasies, as you
At trammels of a weaker intellect,— Measure your mind's height by the shade it casts!

I know you.

Par. And I know you, dearest Festus!
And how you love unworthily; and how
All admiration renders blind.

Fest. You hold
That admiration blinds?

Par. Ay and alas!

Fest. Nought blinds you less than admiration, friend!

Whether it be that all love renders wise
In its degree; from love which blends with
love—

Heart answering heart—to love which spends itself

In silent mad idolatry of some Pre-eminent mortal, some great soul of
souls,

Which ne'er will know how well it is adored.

I say, such love is never blind; but rather Alive to every the minutest spot

Which mars its object, and which hate (supposed

So vigilant and searching) dreams not of.
Love broods on such: what then? When first perceived

Is there no sweet strife to forget, to change,
To overflush those blemishes with all

The glow of general goodness they disturb?
—To make those very defects an endless
source

Of new affection grown from hopes and
fears?

And, when all fails, is there no gallant
stand

Made even for much proved weak? no shrinking-back

Lest, since all love assimilates the soul
To what it loves, it should at length become

Almost a rival of its idol? Trust me, If there be fiends who seek to work our

hurt,
To ruin and drag down earth's mightiest spirits

Even at God's foot, 'twill be from such as
love,

Their zeal will gather most to serve their
cause;

And least from those who hate, who most essay

By contumely and scorn to blot the light
Which forces entrance even to their hearts:

For thence will our defender tear the veil
And show within each heart, as in a shrine,

The giant image of perfection, grown

In hate's despite, whose calumnies were spawned

In the untroubled presence of its eyes.
True admiration blinds not; nor am I
So blind. I call your sin exceptional;
It springs from one whose life has passed the bounds

Prescribed to life. Compound that fault with God!

I speak of men; to common men like me
The weakness you reveal endears you
more,

Like the far traces of decay in suns.
I bid you have good cheer!

Par. Præclare! Optime!
Think of a quiet mountain-cloistered priest

Instructing Paracelsus! yet 'tis so.
Come, I will show you where my merit lies.

'Tis in the advance of individual minds
That the slow crowd should ground their expectation

Eventually to follow; as the sea
Waits ages in its bed till some one wave
Out of the multitudinous mass, extends The empire of the whole, some feet perhaps,

Over the strip of sand which could confine Its fellows so long time: thenceforth the
rest,

Even to the meanest, hurry in at once,
And so much is clear gained. I shall be glad

If all my labours, failing of aught else,
Suffice to make such inroad and procure
A wider range for thought: nay, they do
this;

For, whatso'er my notions of true knowledge

And a legitimate success, may be,
I am not blind to my undoubted rank
When classed with others: I precede my age:

And whoso wills is very free to mount These labours as a platform whence his
own

May have a prosperous outset. But, alas!
My followers—they are noisy as you
heard;

But, for intelligence, the best of them
So clumsily wield the weapons I supply
And they extol, that I begin to doubt Whether their own rude clubs and pebble-stones

Would not do better service than my
arms

Thus vilely swayed—if error will not fall
Sooner before the old awkward batterings Than my more subtle warfare, not half learned.

Fest. I would supply that art, then, or withhold
New arms until you teach their mystery.

Par. Content you, 'tis my wish; I have recourse

To the simplest training. Day by day I seek
To wake the mood, the spirit which alone
Can make those arms of any use to men.
Of course they are for swaggering forth at
once

Graced with Ulysses' bow, Achilles'
shield—

Flash on us, all in armour, thou Achilles!
Make our hearts dance to thy resounding
step!

A proper sight to scare the crows away!
Fest. Pity you choose not then some other method

Of coming at your point. The marvellous
art

At length established in the world bids fair

To remedy all hindrances like these:
Trust to Frobenius' press the precious lore
Obscured by uncouth manner, or unfit
For raw beginners; let his types secure
A deathless monument to after-time;
Meanwhile wait confidently and enjoy
The ultimate effect: sooner or later
You shall be all-revealed.

Par. The old dull question
In a new form; no more. Thus: I possess Two sorts of knowledge; one,—vast,
shadowy,

Hints of the unbounded aim I once pursued:

The other consists of many secrets, caught While bent on nobler prize,—perhaps a few

Prime principles which may conduct to
much:

These last I offer to my followers here.
Now, bid me chronicle the first of these,
My ancient study, and in effect you bid
Revert to the wild courses just abjured:
I must go find them scattered through the
world.

Then, for the principles, they are so simple (Being chiefly of the overturning sort),
That one time is as proper to propound
them

As any other—to-morrow at my class,
Or half a century hence embalmed in print.
For if mankind intend to learn at all,
They must begin by giving faith to them
And acting on them: and I do not see
But that my lectures serve indifferent well:
No doubt these dogmas fall not to the
earth,

For all their novelty and rugged setting.
I think my class will not forget the day
Let them know the gods of Israel,
Aëtius, Oribasius, Galen, Rhasis, Serapion, Avicenna, Averröes,
Were blocks!

Fest. And that reminds me, I heard something

About your waywardness: you burned their books,
It seems, instead of answering those sages.

Par. And who said that?

Fest. Some I met yesternight With Ecolampadius. As you know, the purpose

Of this short stay at Basil was to learn
His pleasure touching certain missives sent

For our Zuinglius and himself. 'Twas he Apprised me that the famous teacher here
Was my old friend.

Par. Ah, I forgot: you went . . .

Fest. From Zurich with advices for the ear

Of Luther, now at Wittenberg—(you
know,

I make no doubt, the differences of late
With Carolstadius)—and returning sought Basil and . . .

Par. I remember. Here's a case,
now,

Will teach you why I answer not, but burn
The books you mention. Pray, does Luther dream

His arguments convince by their own force
The crowds that own his doctrine? No,
indeed!

His plain denial of established points
Ages had sanctified and men supposed Could never be oppugned while earth was under

And heaven above them—points which chance or time

Affected not—did more than the array
Of argument which followed. Bldly deny!

There is much breath-stopping, hair-stiffening

Awhile; then, amazed glances, mute awaiting

The thunderbolt which does not come:
and next,

Reproachful wonder and inquiry: those Who else had never stirred, are able now
To find the rest out for themselves, perhaps To outstrip him who set the whole at work, —As never will my wise class its instructor.

And you saw Luther?

Fest. 'Tis a wondrous soul!

Par. True: the so-heavy chain which galled mankind

Is shattered, and the noblest of us all Must bow to the deliverer—nay, the worker

Of our own project—we who long before Had burst our trammels, but forgot the
crowd,

We should have taught, still groaned beneath their load:

• This he has done and nobly. Speed that may!

Whatever be my chance or my mischance,
What benefits mankind must glad me too;
And men seem made, though not as I believed,

For something better than the times produce.

Witness these gangs of peasants your new lights

From Suabia have possessed, whom Münzer leads,

And whor^a the duke, the landgrave and the elector

Will calm in blood! Well, well; 'tis not my world!

Fest. Hark!

Par. 'Tis the melancholy wind
astir

Within the trees; the embers too are grey:
Morn must be near.

Fest. Best ope the casement: see,
The night, late strewn with clouds and flying stars,

Is blank and motionless: how peaceful
sleep

The tree-tops altogether! Like an asp, The wind slips whispering from bough to bough.

Par. Ay; you would gaze on a wind-shaken tree

By the hour, nor count time lost.

Fest. So you shall gaze:

Those happy times will come again.

Par. Gone, gone,

Those pleasant times! Does not the moaning wind

Seem to bewail that we have gained such gains

And bartered sleep for them?

Fest. It is our trust

That there is yet another world to mend

All error and mischance.

Par. Another world!

And why this world, this common world, to be

A make-shift, a mere foil, how fair soever,
To some fine life to come? Man must be fed

With angels' food, forsooth; and some few traces

Of a diviner nature which look out Through his corporeal baseness, warrant
him

In a supreme contempt of all provision For his inferior tastes—some straggling marks

Which constitute his essence, just as truly
As here and there a gem would constitute

The rock, their barren bed, one diamond.
But were it so—were man all mind—he gains

A station little enviable. From God
Down to the lowest spirit ministrant,

Intelligence exists which casts our mind
Into immeasurable shade. No, no:

Love, hope, fear, faith—these make humanity;

These are its sign and note and character,
And these I have lost!—gone, shut from me for ever,

Like a dead friend safe from unkindness more!

See, morn at length. The heavy darkness seems

Diluted, grey and clear without the stars;
The shrubs bestir and rouse themselves as if

Some snake, that weighed them down all night, let go

His hold; and from the East, fuller and fuller,

Day, like a mighty river, flowing in;
But clouded, wintry, desolate and cold.

Yet see how that broad prickly star-shaped plant,

Half-down in the crevice, spreads its woolly leaves

All thick and glistering with diamond dew.
And you depart for Einsiedeln this day,
And we have spent all night in talk like this!

If you would have me better for your love,
Revert no more to these sad themes.

Fest. One favour,
And I have done. I leave you, deeply moved;

Unwilling to have fared so well, the while My friend has changed so sorely. If this mood

Shall pass away, if light once more arise
Where all is darkness now, if you see fit
To hope and trust again, and strive again,
You will remember—not our love alone—

But that my faith in God's desire that man Should trust on his support, (as I must think

You trusted) is obscured and dim through you:

For you are thus, and this is no reward.
Will you not call me to your side, dear Aureole?

IV.—PARACELSUS ASPIRES

SCENE.—Colmar in Alsatia: an Inn. 1528.

PARACELSUS, FESTUS

Par. [to JOHANNES OPORINUS, his Secretary]. Sic itur ad astra! Dear Von Visenburg

Is scandalized, and poor Torinus paralysed,

And every honest soul that Basil holds Aghast; and yet we live, as one may say,
Just as though Liechtenfels had never set
So true a value on his sorry carcass,
And learned Pütter had not frowned us dumb.

We live; and shall as surely start to-morrow

For Nuremberg, as we drink speedy scathe
To Basil in this mantling wine, suffused
A delicate blush, no fainter tinge is born
I' the shut heart of a bud. Pledge me, good

John—
'Basil; a hot plague ravage it, and Pütter
'Oppose the plague!' Even so? Do you too share

Their panic, the reptiles? Ha, ha; faint through these,

Desist for these! They manage matters so At Basil, 'tis like: but others may find means

To bring the stoutest braggart of the tribe Once more to crouch in silence—means to breed

A stupid wonder in each fool again,
Now big with admiration at the skill Which stript a vain pretender of his plumes:

And, that done,—means to brand each slavish brow

So deeply, surely, ineffaceably,
That henceforth flattery shall not pucker it Out of the furrow; there that stamp shall
stay

To show the next they fawn on, what they
are,

This Basil with its magnates,—fill my cup,—

Whom I curse soul and limb. And now despatch,

Despatch, my trusty John; and what remains

To do, whate'er arrangements for our trip
Are yet to be completed, see you hasten
This hight; we'll weather the storm at least:
to-morrow

For Nuremberg! Now leave us; this grave clerk

Has divers weighty matters for my ear:
[OPORINUS goes out.]

And spare my lungs. At last, my gallant
Festus,

I am rid of this arch-knave that dogs my heels

As a gaunt crow a gasping sheep; at last
May give a loose to my delight. How kind,
How very kind, my first best only friend!

Why, this looks like fidelity. Embrace me!
Not a hair silvered yet? Right! you shall
live

Till I am worth your love; you shall be proud,

And I—but let 'time show! Did you not
'wonder?

I sent to you because our compact weighed

Upon my conscience—(you recall the
night

At Basil, which the gods confound!)— because

Once more I aspire. I call you to my
side:

You come. You thought my message strange?

Fest. So strange
That I must hope, indeed, your messenger
Has mingled his own fancies with the words

Purporting to be yours.

Par. He said no more,
'Tis probable, than the precious folk I leave

Said fiftyfold more roughly. Well-a-day,
'Tis true! poor Paracelsus is exposed
At last; a most egregious quack he proves:
And those he overreached must spit their hate

On one who, utterly beneath contempt,
Could yet deceive their topping wits. You heard

Bare truth; and at my bidding you come here

To speed me on my enterprise, as once
Your lavish wishes sped me, my own friend!

Fest. What is your purpose, Aureole?

Par. Oh, for purpose,
There is no lack of precedents in a case
Like mine; at least, if not precisely mine,
The case of men cast off by those they sought

To benefit.

Fest. They really cast you off?
I only heard a vague tale of some priest,
Cured by your skill, who wrangled at your claim,
Knowing his life's worth best; and how the judge

The matter was referred to, saw no cause
To interfere, nor you to hide your full Contempt of him; nor he, again, to smother

His wrath thereat, which raised so fierce a flame

That Basil soon was made no place for you.

Par. The affair of Liechtenfels? the shallowest fable,
The last and silliest outrage—mere pretence!

I knew it, I foretold it from the first,
How soon the stupid wonder you mistook
For genuine loyalty—a cheering promise
Of better things to come—would pall and pass;

And every word comes true. Saul is among The prophets! Just so long as I was pleased To play off the mere antics of my art,
Fantastic gambols leading to no end,
I got huge praise: but one can ne'er keep down

Our foolish nature's weakness. There they flocked,

Poor devils, jostling, swearing and perspiring,

Till the walls rang again; and all for me!
I had a kindness for them, which was right;

But then I stopped not till I tacked to that A trust in them and a respect—a sort Of sympathy for them; I must needs begin To teach them, not amaze them, 'to impart
'The spirit which should instigate the search

'Of truth,' just what you bade me! I spoke out.

Forthwith a mighty squadron, in disgust,
Filed off—'the sifted chaff of the sack,' I said,

Redoubling my endeavours to secure
The rest. When lo! one man had tarried so long

Only to ascertain if I supported
This tenet of his, or that; another loved
To hear impartially before he judged,
And having heard, now judged; this bland disciple

Passed for my dupe, but all along, it seems,
Spied error where his neighbours marvelled most;

That fiery doctor who had hailed me friend,
Did it because my by-paths, once proved wrong

And beaconed properly, would commend again

The good old ways our sires jogged safely o'er,

Though not their squeamish sons; the other worthy

Discovered divers verses of St. John,
Which, read successively, refreshed the soul,

But, muttered backwards, cured the gout,
The stone,

The colic and what not. Quid multa? The end

Was a clear class-room, and a quiet leer
From grave folk, and a sour reproachful glance

From those in chief who, cap in hand, installed

The new professor scarce a year before;
And a vast flourish about patient merit
Obscured awhile by flashy tricks, but sure Sooner or later to emerge in splendour—
Of which the example was some luckless wight

Whom my arrival had discomfited,
But now, it seems, the general voice recalled

To fill my chair and so efface the stain
Basil had long incurred. I sought no better,
Only a quiet dismissal from my post,
And from my heart I wished them better suited

And better served. Good night to Basil, then!

But fast as I proposed to rid the tribe
Of my obnoxious back, I could not spare them

The pleasure of a parting kick.

Fest.

You smile:

Despise them as they merit! *

Par. If I smile,
'Tis with as very contempt as ever turned Flesh into stone. This courteous recompense,

This grateful . . . Festus, were your nature fit

To be defiled, your eyes the eyes to ache
At gangrene-blotches, eating poisonblains,

The ulcerous barks scurf of leprosy
Which finds—a man, and leaves—a hideous thing

That cannot but be mended by hell fire,
—I would lay bare to you the human heart Which God cursed long ago, and devils make since

Their pet nest and their never-tiring home.
Oh, sages have discovered we are born For various ends—to love, to know: has
ever

One stumbled, in his search, on any signs
Of a nature in us formed to hate? To hate?
If that be our true object which evokes
Our powers in fullest strength, be sure 'tis hate!

Yet men have doubted if the best and bravest

Of spirits can nourish him with hate alone.
I had not the monopoly of fools,
It seems, at Basil.

Fest. But your plans, your plans!
I have yet to learn your purpose, Aureole!

Par. Whether to sink beneath such ponderous shame,

To shrink up like a crushed snail, undergo
In silence and desist from further toil,
And so subside into a monument

Of one their censure blasted? or to bow Cheerfully as submissively, to lower
My old pretensions even as Basil dictates,
To drop into the rank her wits assign me
And live as they prescribe, and make that use

Of my poor knowledge which their rules allow,

Proud to be patted now and then, and careful

To practise the true posture for receiving
The amplest benefit from their hoofs' appliance

When they shall condescend to tutor me?
Then, one may feel resentment like a flame Within, and deck false systems in truth's garb,

And tangle and entwine mankind with error,

And give them darkness for a dower and falsehood

For a possession, ages: or one may mope
Into a shade through thinking, or else
drowse

Into a dreamless sleep and so die off.
But I,—now Festus shall divine!—but I Am merely setting out once more, embracing

My earliest aims again! What thinks he
now?

Fest. Your aims? the aims?—to know?
and where is found

The early trust . . .

Par. Nay, not so fast; I say,
The aims—not the old means. You know they made me

A laughing-stock; I was a fool; you know
The when and the how: hardly those means
again!

Not but they had their beauty; who should
know

Their passing beauty, if not I? Still, dreams
They were, so let them vanish, yet in beauty
If that may be. Stay: thus they pass in song! [He sings.

Heap cassia, sandal-buds and stripes
Of labdanum, and aloe-balls,

Smeared with dull nard an Indian wipes
From out her hair: such balsam falls

Down sea-side mountain pedestals, From tree-tops where tired winds are
fain,

Spent with the vast and howling main,
To treasure half their island-gain.

And strew faint sweetness from some old Egyptian's fine worm-eaten shroud

Which breaks to dust when once unrolled;

Or shredded perfume, like a cloud
From closet long to quiet vowed,

With moth and dropping arras hung,
Mouldering her lute and books among,
As when a queen, long dead, was young.

Mine, every word! And on such pile shall die

My lovely fancies, with fair perished things, Themselves fair and forgotten; yes, forgotten,

Or why abjure them? So, I made this rhyme
That fitting dignity might be preserved;

No little proud was I; though the list of drugs

Smacks of my old vocation, and the verse
Halts like the best of Luther's psalms.

Fest. But, Aureole, Talk not thus wildly and madly. I am
here—

Did you know all! I have travelled far,
indeed,

To learn your wishes. Be yourself again!
For in this mood I recognize you less

Than in the horrible despondency
I witnessed last. You may account this,
joy;

But rather let me gaze on that despair
Than hear these incoherent words and see

This flushed cheek and intensely-sparkling
eye.

Par. Why, man, I was light-hearted in my prime,
I am light-hearted now; what would you have?

Aprile was a poet, I make songs—
'Tis the very augury of success I want!
Why should I not be joyous now as then?

Fest. Joyous! and how? and what remains for joy?

You have declared the ends (which I am sick

Of naming) are impracticable.

Par. Ay,
Pursued as I pursued them—the arch-fool!
Listen: my plan will please you not, 'tis like,

But you are little versed in the world's ways.

This is my plan—(first drinking its good luck)—

I will accept all helps; all I despised

So rashly at the outset, equally
With early impulses, late years have quenched:

I have tried each way singly: now for both!
All helps! no one sort shall exclude the rest.

I seek to know and to enjoy at once,
Not one without the other as before.

Suppose my labour should seem God's own cause

Once more, as first I dreamed,—it shall not baulk me

Of the meanest earthliest senselest delight
That may be snatched; for every joy is gain,

And gain is gain, however small. My soul
Can die then, nor be taunted—'what was gained?'

Nor, on the other hand, should pleasure follow

As though I had not spurned her hitherto,
Shall she o'ercloud my spirit's rapt communion

With the tumultuous past, the teeming future,

Glorious with visions of a full success.

Fest. Success!

Par. And wherefore not? Why not prefer

Results obtained in my best state of being,
To those derived alone from seasons dark

As the thoughts they bred? When I was best, my youth

Unwasted, seemed success not surest too?
It is the nature of darkness to obscure.

I am a wanderer: I remember well,
One journey, how I feared the track was missed,

So long the city I desired to reach Lay hid; when suddenly its spires afar

Flashed through the circling clouds; you may conceive

My transport. Soon the vapours closed again,

But I had seen the city, and one such glance No darkness could obscure: nor shall the present—

A few dull hours, a passing shame or two,
Destroy the vivid memories of the past.

I will fight the battle out; a little spent Perhaps, but still an able combatant.

You look at my grey hair and furrowed brow?

But I can turn even weakness to account:
Of many tricks I know, 'tis not the least

To push the ruins of my frame, whereon
The fire of vigour trembles scarce alive,

Into a heap, and send the flame aloft.
What should I do with age? So, sickness lends

An aid; it being, I fear, the source of all
We boast of: mind is nothing but disease,

And natural health is ignorance.

Fest. I see
But one good symptom in this notable scheme.

I feared your sudden journey had in view
To wreak immediate vengeance on your foes.

'Tis not so: I am glad.

Par. And if I please
To spit on them, to trample them, what

then?
'Tis sorry warfare truly, but the fools

Provoke it. I would spare their self-conceit,

But if they must provoke me, cannot suffer Forbearance on my part, if I may keep

No quality in the shade, must needs put forth

Power to match power, my strength against their strength,

And teach them their own game with their own arms—

Why, be it so and let them take their
chance!

I am above them like a god, there's no
Hiding the fact, what idle scruples, then,

Were those that ever bade me soften it,
Communicate it gently to the world,

Instead of proving my supremacy,
Taking my natural station o'er their head,

Then owning all the glory was a man's!
—And in my elevation man's would be.

But live and learn, though life's short,
learning, hard!

And therefore, though the wreck of my past self,

I fear, dear Pütter, that your lecture-room
Must wait awhile for its best ornament,

The penitent empiric, who set up For somebody, but soon was taught his

place;
Now, but too happy to be let confess

His error, snuff the candles, and illustrate (Fiat experientia corpore vili)

Your medicine's soundness in his person.
Wait,

See! I have cast off this remorseless care
Which clogged a spirit born to soar so free,
And my dim chamber has become a tent,
Festus is sitting by me, and his Michal . . .
Why do you start? I say, she listening here, (For yonder—Würzburg through the orchard-bough!)

Motions as though such ardent words should find

No echo in a maiden's quiet soul,
But her pure bosom heaves, her eyes fill
fast

With tears, her sweet lips tremble all the while!

Ha, ha!

Fest. It seems, then, you expect to reap
No unreal joy from this your present
course,

But rather . . .

Par. Death! To die! I owe that much
To what, at least, I was. I should be sad
To live contented after such a fall,
To thrive and fatten after such reverse!
The whole plan is a makeshift, but will last
My time.

Fest. And you have never mused and
said,

'I had a noble purpose, and the strength
'To compass it; but I have stopped half-
way,

'And wrongly given the first-fruits of my toil

'To objects little worthy of the gift.

'Why linger round them still? why clench my fault?

'Why seek for consolation in defeat,

'In vain endeavours to derive a beauty

'From ugliness? why seek to make the most

'Of what no power can change, nor strive instead

'With mighty effort to redeem the past

'And, gathering up the treasures thus cast
down,

'To hold a steadfast course till I arrive

'At their fit destination and my own?'

You have never pondered thus?

Par. Have I, you ask?
Often at midnight, when most fancies
come,

Would some such airy project visit me:

But ever at the end . . . or will you hear

The same thing in a tale, a parable?

You and I, wandering o'er the world wide,
Chance to set foot upon a desert coast.

Just as we say, 'No human voice heftre 'Broke the inveterate silence of these rocks!'

—Their querulous echo startles us; we
turn:

What ravaged structure still looks o'er the
sea?

Some characters remain, too! While we read,

The sharp salt wind, impatient for the last Of even this record, wistfully comes and

goes,

Or sings what we recover, mocking it.

This is the record; and my voice, the wind's. [He sings.]

Over the sea our galleys went,
With cleaving prows in order brave
To a speeding wind and a bounding wave,

A gallant armament:

Each park built out of a forest-tree

Left leafy and rough as first it grew,

And nailed all over the gaping sides,

Within and without, with black bull-hides,

Seethed in fat and suppld in flame,

To bear the playful billows' game:

So, each good ship was rude to see,

Rude and bare to the outward view,

But each upbore a stately tent

Where cedar pales in scented row

Kept out the flakes of the dancing brine,

And an awning drooped the mast below,

In fold on fold of the purple fine,

That neither noontide nor starshine

Nor moonlight cold which maketh mad,

Might pierce the regal tenement.

When the sun dawned, oh, gay and glad

We set the sail and plied the oar;

But when the night-wind blew like
breath,

For joy of one day's voyage more,

We sang together on the wide sea,

Like men at peace on a peaceful shore;

Each sail was loosed to the wind so free,

Each helm made sure by the twilight
star,

And in a sleep as calm as death,

We, the voyagers from afar,

Lay stretched along, each weary crew

In a circle round its wondrous tent

Whence gleamed soft light and curled rich scent,

And with light and perfume, music
too:

So the stars wheeled round, and the darkness past,

And at morn we started beside the mast,

And still each ship was sailing fast.

Now, one morn, land appeared—a speck
Dim trembling betwixt sea and sky:

'Avoid it,' cried our pilot, 'check

'The shout, restrain the eager eye!'

But the heaving sea was black behind

For many a night and many a day,

And land, though but a rock, drew nigh;

So, we broke the cedar pales away,

Let the purple awning flap in the wind,

And a statue bright was on every deck!

We shouted, every man of us,
And steered right into the harbour thus,
With pomp and pæan glorious.

A hundred shapes of lucid stone!
All day we built its shrine for each,
A shrine of rock for every one,
Nor paused till in the westerling sun
We sat together on the beach
To sing because our task was done.
When lo! what shouts and merry songs!
What laughter all the distance stirs!
A loaded raft with happy throngs
Of gentle islanders!

'Our isles are just at hand,' they cried,
'Like cloudlets faint in even sleeping;
'Our temple-gates are opened wide,
'Our olive-groves thick shade are keeping

'For these majestic forms'—they cried.
Oh, then we awoke with sudden start
From our deep dream, and knew, too
late,

How bare the rock, how desolate,
Which had received our precious freight:
Yet we called out—'Depart!

'Our gifts, once given, must here abide.

'Our work is done; we have no heart
'To mar our work,'—we cried.

Fest. In truth?

Par. Nay, wait: all this in tracings faint
On rugged stones strewn here and there, but piled
In order once: then follows—mark what follows!

'The sad rhyme of the men who proudly clung

'To their first fault, and withered in their
pride.'

Fest. Come back then, Aureole; as you fear God, come!

This is foul sin; come back! Renounce
the past

Forswear the future; look for joy no more,
But wait death's summons amid holy sights,

And trust me for the event—peace, if not
joy.

Return with me to Einsiedeln, dear
Aureole!

Par. No way, no way! it would not turn to good.

A spotless child sleeps on the flowering moss—

'Tis well for him; but when a sinful man, Envyng such slumber, may desire to put His guilt away, shall he return at once
To rest by lying there? Our sires knew well (Spite of the grave discoveries of their sons)

The fitting course for such: dark cells, dim lamps,

A stone floor one may writhe on like a worm:

No mossy pillow blue with violets!

Fest. I see no symptom of these absolute And tyrannous passions. You are calmer
now.

This verse-making can purge you well
enough

Without the terrible penance you describe.
You love me still: the lusts you fear will never

Outrage your friend. To Einsiedeln, once
more!

Say but the word!

Par. No, no; those lusts forbid:
They crouch, I know, cowering with halfshut eye

Beside you; 'tis their nature. Thrust yourself

Between them and their prey; let some fool style me

O king or quack, it matters not—then try Your wisdom, urge them to forego their treat!

No, no; learn better and look deeper,
Festus!

If you knew how a devil sneers within me While you are talking now of this, now
that,

As though we differed scarcely save in trifles!

Fest. Do we so differ? True, change must proceed,

Whether for good or ill; keep from me,
which!

Do not confide all secrets: I was born
To hope, and you . . .

Par. To trust: you know the fruits!

Fest. Listen: I do believe, what you call
trust

Was self-delusion at the best: for, see!
So long as God would kindly pioneer

A path for you, and screen you from the
world,

Procure you full exemption from man's lot,

Man's common hopes and fears, on the mere pretext

Of your engagement in his service—yield
you

A limitless licence, make you God, in fact,
And turn your slave—you were content
to say

Most courtly praises! What's it, at last,
But selfishness without example? None

Could trace God's will so plain as you, a while yours

Remained implied in it; but now you fail,
And we, who prate about that will, are fools!

In short, God's service is established here
As he determines fit, and not your way,

And this you cannot brook. Such discontent
Is weak. Repounce all creatureship at once!

Affirm an absolute right to have and use
Your energies; as though the rivers should say—

‘We rush to the ocean; what have we to do ‘With feeding streamlets, lingering in the vales,

‘Sleeping in lazy pools?’ Set up that plea,
That will be bold at least!

Par. ‘Tis like enough.
The serviceable spirits are those, no doubt,
The East produces: lo, the master bids,—
They wake, raise terraces and garden-grounds

In one night’s space; and, this done, straight begin

Another century’s sleep, to the great praise
Of him that framed them wise and beautiful,

Till a lamp’s rubbing, or some chance akin,

Wake them again. I am of different mould.
I would have soothed my lord, and slaved
for him

And done him service past my narrow bond,

And thus I get rewarded for my pains!
Beside, ‘tis vain to talk of forwarding God’s glory otherwise; this is alone
The sphere of its increase, as far as men Increase it; why, then, look beyond this sphere?

We are his glory; and if we be glorious,
Is not the thing achieved?

Fest. Shall one like me Judge hearts like yours? Though years have changed you much,
And you have left your first love, and retain

Its empty shade to veil your crooked ways, Yet I still hold that you have honoured
God.

And who shall call your course without reward?

For, wherefore this repining at defeat
Had triumph ne’er injured you to high hopes?

I urge you to forsake the life you curse,
And what success attends me?—simply talk.

Of passion, weakness and remorse; in
short,

Anything but the naked truth—you choose
This so-despised career, and cheaply hold
My happiness; or rather other men’s.
Once more, return!

Par. And quickly. John the thief
Has pilfered half my secrets by this time:
And we depart by daybreak. I am weary,
I know not how; not even the wine-cup soothes

My brain to-night . . .
Do you not thoroughly despise me, Festus?
No flattery! One like you needs not be told We live and breathe deceiving and deceived.

Do you not scorn me from your heart of hearts,

Me and my cant, each petty subterfuge,
My rhymes and all this frothy shower of
words,

My glozing self-deceit, my outward crust
Of lies which wrap, as, tetter, morphew, furfair

Wrapt tile sound flesh?—so, see you flatter
not!

Even God flatters: but my friend, at least,
Is true. I would depart, secure hence-
forth

Against all further insult, hate and wrong
From puny foes; my one friend’s scorn shall brand me:

No fear of sinking deeper!
Fest. No, dear Aureole!

No, no; I came to counsel faithfully.
There are old rules, made long ere we were born,

By which I judge you. I, so fallible,
So infinitely low beside your mighty Majestic spirit!—even I can see You own some higher law than ours which call

Sin, what is no sin—weakness, what is
strength.

But I have only these, such as they are,
To guide me; and I blame you where they bid,

Only so long as blaming promises
To win peace for your soul: the more, that
sorrow

Has fallen on me of late, and they have helped me

So that I faint not under my distress.
But wherefore should I scruple to avow
In spite of all, as brother judging brother,
Your fate is most inexplicable to me?

And should you perish without recom-
pense

And satisfaction yet—too hastily
I have relied on love: you may have sinned, But you have loved. As a mere human matter—

As I would have God deal with fragile men In the end—I say that you will triumph
yet!

Par. Have you felt sorrow, Festus?— ‘tis because

You love me. Sorrow, and sweet Michal
yours!

Well thought on: never let her know this
last

Dull winding-up of all: these miscreants
dared

Insult me—me she loved:—so, grieve her
not!

Fest. Your ill success can little grieve her now.

Par. Michal is dead! pray Christ we do not craze!

Fest. Aureole, dear Aureole, look not on me thus!

Fool, fool! this is the heart grown sorrow-proof—

I cannot bear those eyes.

Par. Nay, really dead?

Fest. 'Tis scarce a month.

Par. Stone dead!

—then you have laid her

Among the flowers ere this. Now, do you know,

I can reveal a secret which shall comfort Even you. I have no julep, as men think, To cheat the grave; but a far better secret. Know, then, you did not ill to trust your love

To the cold earth: I have thought much of it:

For I believe we do not wholly die.

Fest. Aureole!

Par. Nay, do not laugh; there is a reason

For what I say: I think the soul can never Taste death. I am, just now, as you may see,

Very unfit to put so strange a thought

In an intelligible dress of words;

But take it as my trust, she is not dead.

Fest. But not on this account alone? you surely,

—Aureole, you have believed this all along?

Par. And Michal sleeps among the roots and dews,

While I am moved at Basil, and full of schemes

For Nuremberg, and hoping and despairing,

As though it mattered how the farce plays out,

So it be quickly played. Away, away!

Have your will, rabble! while we fight the prize,

Troop you in safety to the snug back-seats And leave a clear arena for the brave

About to perish for your sport!—Behold!

V.—PARACELSUS ATTAINS

SCENE.—Salzburg; a cell in the Hospital of St. Sebastian. 1541.

FESTUS, PARACELSUS

Fest. No change! The weary night is well-nigh spent,

The lamp burns low, and through the casement-bars

Grey morning glimmers feebly: yet no change!

Another night, and still no sigh has stirred That fallen discoloured mouth, no pang relit

Those fixed eyes, quenched by the decaying body,

Like torch-flame choked in dust. While all beside

Was breaking, to the last they held out bfight,

As a stronghold where life intrenched it-
self;

But they are dead now—very blind and
dead:

He will drowse into death without a groan.

My Aureole—my forgotten, ruined Aureole!

The days are gone, are gone! How grand thou wast!

And now not one of those who struck thee
down—

Poor glorious spirit—concerns him even to stay

And satisfy himself his little hand

Could turn God's image to a livid thing.

Another night, and yet no change! 'Tis
much

That I should sit by him, and bathe his
brow,

And chafe his hands; 'tis much: but he will sure

Know me, and look on me, and speak to me Once more—but only once! His hollow
cheek

Looked all night long as though a creeping
laugh

At his own state were just about to break From the dying man: my brain swam, my throat swelled,

And yet I could not turn away. In truth,
They told me how, when first brought here, he seemed

Resolved to live, to lose no faculty;
Thus striving to keep up his shattered
strength,

Until they bore him to this stifling cell:
When straight his features fell, an hour made white

The flushed face, and relaxed the quivering limb,

Only the eye remained intense awhile
As though it recognized the tomb-like
place,

And then he lay as here he lies.

Ay, here!

Here is earth's noblest, nobly garlanded—
Her bravest champion with his well-won
prize—

Her best achievement, her sublime amends
For countless generations fleeting fast
And followed by no trace;—the creature-
god

She instances when angels would dispute

The title of her brood to rank with them.
Angels, this is our angel! Those bright forms

We clothe with purple, crown and call to thrones,

Are human, but not hū; those are but men Whom other men press round and kneel
before;

Those palaces are dwelt in by mankind;
Higher provision is for him you seek Amid our pomps and glories: see it here!
Behold earth's paragon! Now, raise thee,
clay!

God! Thou art love! I build my faith on
that.

Even as I watch beside thy tortured child Unconscious whose hot tears fall fast by
him,

So doth thy right hand guide us through
the world

Wherein we stumble. God! what shall we
say?

How has he sinned? How else should he have done?

Surely he sought thy praise—thy praise, for all

He might be busied by the task so much
As half forget awhile its proper end.

Dost thou well, Lord? Thou canst not but prefer

That I should range myself upon his side—
How could he stop at every step to set

Thy glory forth? Hadst thou but granted
him

Success, thy honour would have crowned
success.

A halo round a star. Or, say he erred,— Save him, dear God; it will be like thee:
bathe him

In light and life! Thou art not made like us;
We should be wroth in such a case; but
thou

Forgivest—so, forgive these passionate
thoughts

Which come unsought and will not pass
away!

I know thee, who hast kept my path, and
made

Light for me in the darkness, tempering
sorrow

So that it reached me like a solemn joy;
It were too strange that I should doubt thy
love.

But what art I? Thou madest him and knowest

How he was fashioned. I could never err
That way: the quiet place beside thy feet,
Reserved for me, was ever in my thoughts:
But he—thou shouldst have favoured him
as well!

Ah! he wakens! Aureole, I am here! 'tis Festus!

I cast away all wishes save one wish—
Let him but know me, only speak to me!
He mutters; louder and louder; any other Than I, with brain less laden, could collect What he pours forth. Dear Aureole, do but look!

Is it talking or singing, this he utters fast?
Misery that he should fix me with his eye,
Quick talking to some other all the while!
If he would husband this wild vehemence
Which frustrates its intent!—I heard, I
know

I heard my name amid those rapid words.
Oh, he will know me yet! Could I divert
This current, lead it somehow gently back Into the channels of the past!—His eye
Brighter than ever! It must recognize me!

I am Erasmus: I am here to pray
That Paracelsus use his skill for me.
The schools of Paris and of Padua send These questions for your learning to resolve.

We are your students, noble master: leave
This wretched cell, what business have you
here?

Our class awaits you; come to us once
more!

(O agony! the utmost I can do Touches him not; how else arrest his ear?)

I am commissioned . . . I shall craze like
him.

Better be mute and see what God shall send.

Par. Stay, stay with me!

Fest. I will; I am come here To stay with you—Festus, you loved of
old;

Festus, you know, you must know!

Par. Festus! Where's

Aprile, then? Has he not chanted softly
The melodies I heard all night? I could not Get to him for a cold hand on my breast,

But I made out his music well enough,
O well enough! If they have filled him full
With magical music, as they freight a star
With light, and have remitted all his sin,
They will forgive me too, I too shall know!

Fest. Festus, your Festus!

Par. Ask him if Aprile

Knows as he Loves—if I shall Love and
Know?

I try; but that cold hand, like lead—so cold!

Fest. My hand, see!

Par. Ah, the curse, Aprile,

Aprile!

We get so near—so very, very near!
'Tis an old tale: Jove strikes the Titans
down,

Not when they set about their mountain-piling

But when another rock would crown the
work.

And Phaeton—doubtless his first radiant plunge

Astonished mortals, though the gods were
calm,

And Jove prepared his thunder: all old tales!

Fest. And what are these to you?

Par. Ay, friends must laugh
So cruelly, so well! most like I never Could tread a single pleasure underfoot, But they were grinning by my side, were chuckling

To see me toil and drop away by flakes!
Hell-spawn! I am glad, most glad, that thus I fail!

Your cunning has o'ershot its aim. One year,

One month, perhaps, and I had served your turn!

You should have curbed your spite awhile.

But now,

Who will believe 'twas you that held me
back?

Listen: there's shame and hissing and contempt,

And none but laughs who names me, none but spits

Measureless scorn upon me, me alone,
The quack, the cheat, the liar,—all on me!
And thus your famous plan to sink man-
kind

In silence and despair, by teaching them
One of their race had probed the inmost
truth,

Had done all man could do, yet failed no
less—

Your wise plan proves abortive. Men despair?

Ha, ha! why, they are hooting the empiric,
The ignorant and incapable fool who rushed

Madly upon a work beyond his wits;
Nor doubt they but the simplest of themselves

Could bring the matter to triumphant issue.

So, pick and choose among them all, accursed!

Try now, persuade some other to slave for
you,

To ruin body and soul to work your
ends!

No, no; I am the first and last, I think.

Fest. Dear friend, who are accursed?
who has done . . .

Par. What have I done? Fiends dare
ask that? or you,

Brave men? Oh, you can chime in boldly, backed

By the others! What had you to do, sage peers?

Here stands my rivals; Latin, Arab, Jew, Greek, join dead hands against me: all I
ask

Is, that the world enrol my name with
theirs,

And even this poor privilege, it seems,
They range themselves, prepared to disallow.

Only observe! why, fiends may learn from
them!

How they talk calmly of my throes, my fierce

Aspirings, terrible watchings, each one claiming

Its price of blood and brain; how they dissect

And sneeringly disparage the few truths Got at a life's cost; they too hanging the

while

About my neck, their lies misleading me
And their dead names browbeating me!

Grey crew,

Yet steeped in fresh malevolence from hell,
Is there a reason for your hate? My

truths

Have shaken a little the palm about each prince?

Just think, Aprile, all these leering dotards Were bent on nothing less than to be crowned

As we! That yellow blear-eyed wretch in chief

To whom the rest cringe low with feigned
respect,

Galen of Pergamos and hell—nay speak
The tale, old man! We met there face to

face:

I said the crown should fall from thee.
Once more

We met as in that ghastly vestibule:
Look to my brow! Have I redeemed my pledge?

Fest. Peace, peace; ah, see!

Par. Oh, emptiness of fame!
Oh Persic Zoroaster, lord of stars!

—Who said these old renowns, dead long ago,

Could make me overlook the living world
To gaze through gloom at where they stood, indeed,

But stand no longer? What a warm light
life

After the shade! In truth, my delicate witch,

My serpent-queen, you did but well to hide

The juggles I had else detected. Fire May well run harmless o'er a breast like

yours!

The cave was not so darkened by the smoke

But that your white limbs dazzled me: oh,
white,

And panting as they twinkled, wildly dancing!

I cared not for your passionate gestures
then,

But now I have forgotten the charm of charms,

The foolish knowledge which I came to seek,

While I remember that quaint dance; and thus

I am come back, not for those mummeries, But to love you, and to kiss your little feet Soft as an ermine's winter coat!

Fest. A light Will struggle through these thronging words at last.

As in the angry and tumultuous West A soft star trembles through the drifting clouds.

These are the strivings of a spirit which hates

So sad a vault should coop it, and calls up The past to stand between it and its fate. Were he at Einsiedeln—or Michal here!

Par. Cruel! I seek her now—I kneel—I shriek—

I clasp her vesture—but she fades, still fades;

And she is gone; sweet human love is gone! 'Tis only when they spring to heaven that angels

Reveal themselves to you; they sit all day Beside you, and lie down at night by you Who care not for their presence, muse or sleep,

And all at once they leave you, and you know them!

We are so fooled, so cheated! Why, even now

I am not too secure against foul play; The shadows deepen and the walls contract:

No doubt some treachery is going on. 'Tis very dusk. Where are we put, Aprile?

Have they left us in the lurch? This murky loathsome

Death-trap, this slaughter-house, is not the hall

In the golden city! Keep by me, Aprile! There is a hand groping amid the blackness To catch us. Have the spider-fingers got you, Poet? Hold on me for your life! If once They pull you!—Hold!

'Tis but a dream—no more!

I have you still; the sun comes out again; Let us be happy: all will yet go well!

Let us confer: is it not like, Aprile, That spite of trouble, this ordeal passed,

The value of my labours ascertained, Just as some stream foams long among the rocks

But after glideth glassy to the sea, So, full content shall henceforth be my lot?

What think you, poet? Louder! Your clear voice

Vibrates too like a harp-string. Do you ask

How could I still remain on earth, should God

Grant me the great approval which I seek? I, you, and God can comprehend each other,

But men would murmur, and with cause enough;

For when they saw me, stainless of all sin, Preserved and sanctified by inward light,

They would complain that comfort, shut from them,

I drank thus unespied; that they live on, Nor taste the quiet of a constant joy,

For ache and care and doubt and weariness,

While I am calm; help being vouchsafed to me,

And hid from them.—'Twere best consider that!

You reason well, Aprile; but at least Let me know this, and die! Is this too much?

I will learn this, if God so please, and die!

If thou shalt please, dear God, if thou shalt please!

We are so weak, we know our motives least In their confused beginning. If at first

I sought . . . but wherefore bare my heart to thee?

I know thy mercy; and already thoughts Flock fast about my soul to comfort it,

And intimate I cannot wholly fail, For love and praise would clasp me willingly

Could I resolve to seek them. Thou art good,

And I should be content. Yet—yet first show

I have done wrong in daring! Rather give The supernatural consciousness of strength

Which fed my youth! Only one hour of that

With thee to help—O what should bar me then!

Lost, lost! Thus things are ordered here! God's creatures,

And yet he takes no pride in us!—none, none!

Truly there needs another life to come! If this be all—(I must tell Festus that)

And other life await us not—for one, I say 'tis a poor cheat, a stupid bungle,

A wretched failure. I, for one, protest Against it, and I hurl it back with scorn.

Well, onward though alone! Small time remains,

And much to do: I must have fruit, must reap

Some profit from my toils. I doubt my body

Will hardly serve me through; while I have laboured

It has decayed; and now that I demand its best assistance, it will crumble fast:

A sad thought, a sad fate! How very full Of wormwood 'tis, that just at altar-

service,
The rapt hymn rising, with the rolling
smoke,

When glory dawns and all is at the best,
The sacred fire may flicker and grow faint
And die for want of a wood-pile's help!
Thus fades the flagging body, and the soul
Is pulled down in the overthrow. Well,
well—

Let men catch every word, let them lose
nought

Of what I say; something may yet be done.

They are ruins! Trust me who am one of
you!

All ruins, glorious once, but lonely now.
It makes my heart sick to behold you crouch

Beside your desolate fane: the arches dim,
The crumbling columns grand against the moon,

Could I but rear them up once more—but
that

May never be, so leave them! Trust me,
friends,

Why should you linger here when I have built

A far resplendent temple, all your own?
Trust me, they are but ruins! See, Aprile,
Men will not heed! Yet were I not prepared With better refuge for them, tongue of
mine

Should ne'er reveal how blank their dwelling is:

I would sit down in silence with the rest.

Ha, what? you spit at me; you grin and shriek

Contempt into my ear—my ear which drank

God's accents once? you curse me? Why men, men,

I am not formed for it! Those hideous eyes
Will be before me sleeping, waking, pray-
ing,

They will not let me even die. Spare, spare
me,

Sinning or no, forget that, only spare me
The horrible scorn! You thought I could support it.

But now you see what silly fragile creature Cowers thus. I am not good nor bad
enough,

Not Christ nor Cain, yet even Cain was saved

From Hate like this. Let me but totter
back!

Perhaps I shall elude those jeers which creep

Into my very brain, and shut these scorched

Eyelids and keep those mocking faces out.

Listen, Aprile! I am very calm:
Be not deceived, there is no passion here
Where the blood leaps like an imprisoned
thing:

I am calm: I will exterminate the race!
Enough of that: 'tis said and it shall be.
And now be merry: safe and sound am I Who broke through their best ranks to get at you.

And such a havoc, such a rout, Aprile!
Fest. Have you no thought, no memory
for me,

Aureole? I am so wretched—my pure
Michal

Is gone, and you alone are left me now,
And even you forget me. Take my hand—
Lean on me thus. Do you not know me,
Aureole?

Par. Festus, my own friend, you are come at last?

As you say, 'tis an awful enterprise;
But you believe I shall go through with it:
'Tis like you, and I thank you. Thank him
for me,

Dear Michal! See how bright St. Saviour's
spire

Flames in the sunset; all its figures quaint Gay in the glancing light: you might conceive them

A troop of yellow-vested white-haired Jews Bound for their own land where redemption dawns.

Fest. Not that blest time—not our youth's time, dear God!

Par. Ha—stay! true, I forget—all is done since,

And he is come to judge me. How he speaks,

How calm, how well! yes, it is true, all true;
All quackery; all deceit; myself can laugh

The first at it, if you desire: but still You know the obstacles which taught me tricks

So foreign to my nature—envy and hate,
Blind opposition, brutal prejudice,

Bald ignorance—what wonder if I sunk
To humour men the way they most approved?

My cheats were never palmed on such as
you,

Dear Festus! I will kneel if you require me,
Impart the meagre knowledge I possess,

Explain its bounded nature, and avow
My insufficiency—what'er you will:

Give the fight up: let there be an end,
A privacy, an obscure nook for me.

I want to be forgotten even by God.
But if that cannot be, dear Festus, lay me,

When I shall die, within some narrow grave,

Not by itself,—for that would be too proud—

But where such graves are thickest; let it look

Nowise distinguished from the hillocks round,

So that the peasant at his brother's bed
May tread upon my own and know it not;
And we shall all be equal at the last,
Or classed according to life's natural ranks, Fathers, sons, brothers, friends—not rich,
nor wise,

Nor gifted: lay me thus, then say, 'He lived
'Too much advanced before his brother men;

'They kept him still in front: 'twas for their good

'But yet a dangerous station. It were strange

'That he should tell God he had never ranked

'With men: so, here at least he is a man,'

Fest. That God shall take thee to his breast, dear spirit,

Unto his breast, be sure! and here on earth
Shall spendour sit upon thy name for ever.

Sun! all the heaven is glad for thee: what care

If lower mountains light their snowy phares

At thine effulgence, yet acknowledge not
The source of day? Their theft shall be their bale:

For after-ages shall retrack thy beams,
And put aside the crowd of busy ones

And worship thee alone—the master-mind,

The thinker, the explorer, the creator!
Then, who should sneer at the convulsive throes

With which thy deeds were born, would scorn as well

The sheet of winding subterraneous fire
Which, pent and writhing, sends no less at last

Huge islands up amid the simmering sea.
Behold thy might in me! thou hast infused

Thy soul in mine; and I am grand as thou,
Seeing I comprehend, thee—I so simple,

Thou so august. I recognize thee first;
I saw thee rise, I watched thee early and late,

And though no glance reveal thou dost accept

My homage—thus no less I proffer it,
And bid thee enter gloriously thy rest.

Par. Festus!

Fest. I am for noble Aureole, God!
I am upon his side, come weal or woe;

His portion shall be mine. He has done well.

I would have sinned, had I been strong enough,

As he has sinned. Reward him or I waive

Reward! If thou canst find no place for him,

He shall be king elsewhere, and I will be His slave for ever. There are two of us.

Par. Dear Festus!

Fest. Here, dear Aureole! ever by you!

Par. Nay, speak on, or I dream again. Speak on!

Some story, anything—only your voice. I shall dream else. Speak on! ay, leaning so!

Fest. Thus the Mayre glideth Where my Love abideth.

Sleep's no softer: it proceeds
On through lawns, on through meads,

On and on, whate'er befall,
Meandering and musical,

Though the niggard pasturage
Bears not on its shaven ledge

Aught but weeds and waving grasses
To view the river as it passes,

Save here and there a scanty patch
Of primroses too faint to catch

A weary bee.

Par. More, more; say on!

Fest. And scarce it pushes Its gentle way through strangling rushes

Where the glossy kingfisher

Flutters when noon-heats are near,
Glad the shelving banks to shun,

Red and steaming in the sun,
Where the shrew-mouse with pale throat

Burrows, and the speckled stoat;
Where the quick sandpipers flit

In and out the marl and grit
That seems to breed them, brown as they:

Nought disturbs its quiet way,
Save some lazy stork that springs,

Trailing & with legs and wings,
Whom the shy fox from the hill

Rouses, creep he ne'er so still.

Par. My heart! they loose my heart,
those simple words;

Its darkness passes, which nought else could touch:

Like some dark snake that force may not expel,

Which glideth out to music sweet and low.
What were you doing when your voice broke through

A chaos of ugly images? You, indeed!

Are you alone here?

Fest. All alone: you know me? This cell?

Par. An unexceptionable vault:
Good brick and stone: the bats kept out,

the rats
Kept in: a snug nook: how should I mistake it?

Fest. But wherefore am I here?

Par. Ah, well remembered!
Why, for a purpose—for a purpose, Festus!
'Tis like me: here I trifle while time fleets,
And this occasion, lost, will ne'er return.
You are here to be instructed. I will tell God's message; but I have so much to say,
I fear to leave half out. All is confused No doubt; but doubtless you will learn in
time.

He would not else have brought you here:
no doubt

I shall see clearer soon.

Fest. Tell me but this—
You are not in despair?

Par. I? and for what?
Fest. Alas, alas! he knows not, as I feared!

Par. What is it you would ask me with that earnest

Dear searching face?

Fest. How feel you, Aureole?

Par. Well:

Well. 'Tis a strange thing: I am dying,
Festus,

And now that fast the storm of life subsides,

I first perceive how great the whirl has been.

I was calm then, who am so dizzy now—

Calm in the thick of the tempest, but no less

A partner of its motion and mixed up

With its career. The hurricane is spent,

And the good boat speeds through the brightening weather;

But is it earth or sea that heaves below?

The gulf rolls like a meadow-swell, o'er-
strewn

With ravaged boughs and remnants of the shore;

And now some islet, loosened from the land,

Swims past with all its trees, sailing to ocean;

And now the air is full of upturned canes, Light strippings from the fan-trees, tamar-isks

Unrooted, with their birds still clinging to
them.

All high in the wind. Even so my varied
life

Drifts by me; I am young, old, happy, sad,
Hoping, desponding, acting, taking rest,

And all at once: that is, those past conditions

Float back at once on me. If I select Some special epoch from the crowd, 'tis but

To will, and straight the rest dissolve away,
And only that particular state is present

With all its long-forgotten circumstance
Distinct and vivid as at first—myself

A careless looker-on and nothing more,
Indifferent and amused, but nothing more.

And this is death: I understand it all.
New being waits me; new perceptions must

Be born in me before I plunge therein;
Which last is Death's affair; and while I
speak,
Minute by minute he is filling me
With power; and while my foot is on the threshold
Of boundless life—the doors unopened yet,
All preparations not complete within—
I turn, new knowledge upon old events,
And the effect is . . . but I must not tell;
It is not lawful. Your own turn will come One day. Wait, Festus! You will die like
me.

Fest. 'Tis of that past life that I burn to
hear.

Par. You wonder 'it engages me just
now?

In truth, I wonder too. What's life to me?
Where'er I look is fire, where'er I listen
Music, and where I tend bliss evermore.

Yet how can I refrain? 'Tis a refined Delight to view those chances,—one last
view.

I am so near the perils I escape,
That I must play with them and turn them
over,

To feel how fully they are past and gone.
Still, it is like, some further cause exists
For this peculiar mood—some hidden
purpose;

Did I not tell you something of it, Festus?
I had it fast, but it has somehow slip't
Away from me; it will return anon.

Fest. (Indeed his cheek seems young again, his voice

Complete with its old tones: that little
laugh

Concluding every phrase, with upturned
eye,

As though one stooped above his head to whom

He looked for confirmation and approval,
Where was it gone so long, so well preserved?

Then, the fore-finger pointing as he speaks,
Like one who traces in an open book
The matter he declares; 'tis many a year
Since I remarked it last; and this in him,
But now a ghastly wreck!)

And can it be,
Dear Aureole, you have then found out at
last

That worldly things are utter vanity?
That man is made for weakness, and should
wait

In patient ignorance, till God appoint . . .

Par. Ha, the purpose: the true purpose:
that is it!

How could I fail to apprehend! You here,
I thus! But no more trifling; I see all,
I know all: my last mission shall be done
If strength suffice. No trifling! Stay; this posture

Hardly befits one thus about to speak:

I will arise.

Fest. Nay, Aureole, are you wild?
You cannot leave your couch.

Par. No help; no help;
Not even your hand. So! there, I stand
once more!

Speak from a couch? I never lectured thus.
My gown—the scarlet lined with fur; now put

The chain about my neck; my signet-ring is still upon my hand, I think—even so;
Last, my good sword; ah, trusty Azoth, leapest

Beneath thy master's grasp for the last
time?

This couch shall be my throne: I bid these walls

Be consecrate, this wretched cell become A shrine, for here God speaks to men through me.

Now, Festus, I am ready to begin.

Fest. I am dumb with wonder.

Par. Listen, therefore, Festus!
There will be time enough, but none to spare.

I must content myself with telling only
The most important points. You doubtless feel

That I am happy, Festus; very happy.

Fest. 'Tis no delusion which uplifts him
thus!

Then you are pardoned, Aureole, all your
sin?

Par. Ay, pardoned: yet why pardoned?

Fest. 'Tis God's praise
That man is bound to seek, and you . . .

Par. Have lived!
We have to live alone to set forth well God's praise. 'Tis true, I sinned much, as I thought,

And in effect need mercy, for I strove
To do that very thing; but, do your best
Or worst, praise rises, and will rise for ever.
Pardon from him, because of praise denied—

Who calls me to himself to exalt himself?
He might laugh as I laugh!

Fest. But all comes To the same thing. 'Tis fruitless for mankind

To fret themselves with what concerns them not;

They are no use that way: they should lie
down

Content as God has made them, nor go
mad

In thrivelless cares to better what is ill.

Par. No, no; mistake me not; let me not
work

More harm than I have worked! This is my case:

If I go joyous back to God, yet bring

No offering, if I render up my soul
Without the fruits it was ordained to bear,

If I appear the better to love God

For sin, as one who has no claim on him,—
Be not deceived! It may be surely thus

With me, while higher prizes still await
The mortal persevering to the end.

Beside I am not all so valueless:

I have been something, though too soon I left

Following the instincts of that happy time.

Fest. What happy time? For God's sake, for man's sake,

What time was happy? All I hope to know That answer will decide. What happy
time?

Par. When but the time I vowed myself to man?

Fest. Great God, thy judgments are in-scrutable!

Par. Yes, it was in me; I was born for
it—

I, Paracelsus: it was mine by right.

Doubtless a searching and impetuous soul Might learn from its own motions that some task

Like this awaited it about the world;
Might seek somewhere in this blank life of
ours

For fit delights to stay its longings vast;
And, grappling Nature, so prevail on her To fill the creature full she dared thus frame

Hungry for joy; and, bravely tyrannous, Grow in demand, still craving more and
more,

And make each joy conceded prove a pledge

Of other joy to follow—bating nought
Of its desires, still seizing fresh pretence
To turn the knowledge and the rapture
wrong

As an extreme, last boon, from destiny,
Into occasion for new covetings,
New strifes, now triumphs:—doubtless a strong soul,

Alone, unaided might attain to this,
So glorious is our nature, so august
Man's inborn uninstructed impulses,
His naked spirit so majestic!

But this was born in me; I was made so;
Thus much time saved: the feverish appetites,

The tumult of unproved desire, the unaimed

Uncertain yearnings, aspirations blind,
Distrust, mistake, and all that ends in tears Were saved me; thus I entered on my
course.

You may be sure I was not all exempt From human trouble; just so much of
doubt

As bade me plant a surer foot upon
The sun-road, kept my eye unruined 'mid
The fierce and flashing splendour, set my
heart

Trembling so much as warned me I stood
there

On sufferance—not to idly gaze, but cast Light on a darkling race; save for that
doubt,

I stood at first where all aspire at last
To stand: the secret of the world was mine.
I knew, I felt, (perception unexpressed,
Uncomprehended by our narrow thought,
But somehow felt and known in every shift And change in the spirit,—nay, in every pore

Of the body, even.)—what God is, what we
are,

What life is—how God tastes an infinite
joy

In infinite ways—one everlasting bliss,
From whom all being emanates, all power
Proceeds; in whom is life for evermore,
Yet whom existence in its lowest form Includes; where dwells enjoyment there is
he:

With still a flying point of bliss remote,
A happiness in store afar, a sphere
Of distant glory in full view; thus climbs
Pleasure its heights for ever and for ever.
The centre-fire heaves underneath the
earth,

And the earth changes like a human face;
The molten ore bursts up among the rocks,
Winds into the stone's heart, outbranches bright

In hidden mines, spots barren river-beds, Crumbles into fine sand where sunbeams
bask—

God joys therein. The wroth sea's waves are edged

With foam, white as the bitten lip of hate,
When, in the solitary waste, strange groups
Of young volcanos come up, cyclops-like,
Staring together with their eyes on flame—God tastes a pleasure in their uncouth
pride.

Then all is still; earth is a wintry clod:
But spring-wind, like a dancing psaltress, passes

Over its breast to waken it, rare verdure Buds tenderly upon rough banks, between The withered tree-roots and the cracks of frost,

Like a smile striving with a wrinkled face;
The grass grows bright, the boughs are swoln with blooms

Like chrysalids impatient for the air,
The shining dorrs are busy, beetles run
Along the furrows, ants make their ado;
Above, birds fly in merry flocks, the lark
Soars up and up, shivering for very joy;
Afar the ocean sleeps; white fishing-gulls
Flit where the strand is purple with its tribe
Of nested limpets; savage creatures seek Their loves in wood and plain—and God renews

His ancient rapture. Thus he dwells in all,

From life's minute beginnings, up at last
To man—the consummation of this scheme

Of being, the completion of this sphere
Of life: whose attributes had here and
there

Been scattered o'er the visible world before, Asking to be combined, dim fragments
meant

To be united in some wondrous whole,
Imperfect qualities throughout creation,
Suggesting some one creature yet to make,
Some point where all those scattered rays should meet

Convergent in the faculties of man.
Power—neither put forth blindly, nor controlled

Calmly by perfect knowledge; to be used At risk, inspired or checked by hope and
fear:

Knowledge—not intuition, but the slow
Uncertain fruit of an enhancing toil, Strengthened by love: love—not serenely

'pure,
But strong from weakness, like a chance-sown plant

Which, cast on stubborn soil, puts forth changed buds

And softer stains, unknown in happier climes;

Love which endures and doubts and is oppressed

And cherished, suffering much and much sustained,

And blind, oft-failing, yet believing love,
A half-enlightened, often-chequered
trust:—

Hints and previsions of which faculties,
Are strewn confusedly everywhere about
The inferior natures, and all lead up higher,
All shape out dimly the superior race,
The heir of hopes too fair to turn out false,
And man appears at last. So far the seal
Is put on life; one stage of being complete,
One scheme wound up: and from the grand result

A supplementary reflux of light, Illustrates all the inferior grades, explains
Each back step in the circle. Not alone
For their possessor dawn those qualities,
But the new glory mixes with the heaven
And earth; man, once descried, imprints for ever

His presence on all lifeless things: the winds

Are henceforth voices, wailing or a shout,
A querulous mutter or a quick gay laugh,
Never a senseless gust now man is born.
The herded pines commune and have deep
thoughts,

A secret they assemble to discuss
When the sun drops behind their trunks which glare

Like grates of hell: the peerless cup afloat

Of the lake-lily is an urn, some nymph Swims bearing high above her head: no
bird

Whistles unseeh, but through the gaps
above

That let light in upon the gloomy woods,
A shape peeps from the breezy forest-top, Arch with small puckered mouth and mocking eye.

The morn has enterprise, deep quiet droops
With evening, triumph takes the sunset
hour,

Voluptuous transport ripens with the corn Beneath a warm moon like a happy face:
—And this to fill us with regard for man.
With apprehension of his passing worth,
Desire to work his proper nature out,
And ascertain his rank and final place,
For these things tend still upward, progress is

The law of life, man is not Man as yet.
Nor shall I deem his object served, his end Attained, his genuine strength put fairly
forth,

While only here and there a star dispels
The darkness, here and there a towering
mind

O'erlooks its prostrate fellows: when the host

Is out at once to the despair of night,
When all mankind alike is perfected,
Equal in full-blown powers—then, not till
then,

I say, begins man's general infancy.
For wherefore make account of feverish starts

Of restless members of a dormant whole, Impatient nerves which quiver while the body

Slumbers as in a grave? Oh long ago
The brow was twitched, the tremulous lids
astir,

The peaceful mouth disturbed; half-uttered speech

Ruffled the lip, and then the teeth were set,

The breath drawn sharp, the strong right-hand clenched stronger,

As it would pluck a lip by the jaw;
The glorious creature laughed out even in
sleep!

But when full roused, each giant-limb
awake,

Each sinew strung, the great heart pulsing
fast,

He shall start up and stand on his own
earth,

Then shall his long triumphant march
begin,

Thence shall his being date,—thus wholly roused,

What he achieves shall be set down to him.
When all the race is perfected alike
As man, that is; all tended to mankind,

And, man produced, all has its end thus far:

But in completed man begins anew
A tendency to God. Prognostics told Man's near approach; so in man's self arise
August anticipations, symbols, types
Of a dim splendour ever on before
In that eternal circle life pursues.

Formen begin to pass their nature's bound,
And find new hopes and cares which fast supplant

Their proper joys and griefs; they grow too great

For narrow creeds of right and wrong, which fade

Before the unmeasured thirst for good:
while peace

Rises within them ever more and more.
Such men are even now upon the earth,
Serene amid the half-formed creatures
round

Who should be saved by them and joined with them.

Such was my task, and I was born to it—Free, as I said but now, from much that chains

Spirits, high-dowered but limited and vexed

By a divided and delusive aim,
A shadow mocking a reality

Whose truth avails not wholly to disperse
The flitting mimic called up by itself,
And so remains perplexed and nigh put
out

By its fantastic fellow's wavering gleam.
I, from the first, was never cheated thus;

I never fashioned out a fancied good
Distinct from man's; a service to be done,
A glory to be ministered unto

With powers put forth at man's expense, withdrawn

From labouring in his behalf; a strength Denied that might avail him. I cared not

Lest his success ran counter to success
Elsewhere: for God is glorified in man,

And to man's glory vowed I soul and limb.
Yet, constituted thus, and thus endowed,

I failed: I gazed on power till I grew blind.
Power; I could not take my eyes from that:

That only, I thought, should be preserved, increased

At any risk, displayed, struck out at once—
The sign and note and character of man.

I saw no use in the past: only a scene
Of degradation, ugliness and tears,

The record of disgraces best forgotten,
A sullen page in human chronicles

Fit to erase. I saw no cause why man Should not stand all-sufficient even now,

Or why his annals should be forced to
tell

That once the tide of light, about to break Upon the world, was sealed within its
spring:

I would have had one day, one moment's
 space,
 Change man's condition, push each slumbering claim
 Of mastery o'er the elemental world
 At once to full maturity, then roll
 Oblivion o'er the work, and hide from man What night had ushered morn. Not so,
 dear child
 Of after-days, wilt thou reject the past Big with deep warnings of the proper tenure
 By which thou hast the earth: for thee the present
 Shall have distinct and trembling beauty, seen
 Beside that past's own shade when, in relief,
 Its brightness shall stand out: nor yet on
 thee
 Shall burst the future, as successive zones
 Of several wonder open on some spirit Flying secure and glad from heaven to
 heaven:
 But thou shalt painfully attain to joy, While hope and fear and love shall keep thee man!
 All this was hid from me: as one by one
 My dreams grew dim, my wide aims circumscribed,
 As actual good within my reach decreased, While obstacles sprung up this way and
 that
 To keep me from effecting half the sum,
 Small as it proved; as objects, mean within The primal aggregate, seemed, even the least,
 Itself a match for my concentrated strength—
 What wonder if I saw no way to shun Despair? The power I sought for man, seemed God's.
 In this conjuncture, as I prayed to die,
 A strange adventure made me know, one
 sin
 Had spotted my career from its uprise;
 I saw Aprile—my Aprile there!
 And as the poor melodious wretch dis-burthened
 His heart, and moaned his weakness in my
 ear,
 I learned my own deep error; love's undoing Taught me the worth of love in man's estate,
 And what proportion love should hold with power
 In his right constitution; love preceding Power, and with much power, always much more love;
 Love still too straitened in his present
 means,
 And earnest for new power to set love free.
 I learned this, and supposed the whole was
 learned:

And thus, when men received with stupid
 wonder
 My first revealings, would have worshipped me,
 And I despised and loathed their proffered
 praise—
 When, with awakened eyes, they took revenge
 For past credulity in casting shame
 On my real knowledge, and I hated them—It was not strange I saw no good in
 man,
 To overbalance all the wear and waste
 Of faculties, displayed in vain, but born To prosper in some better sphere: and
 why?
 In my own heart love had not been made wise
 To trace love's faint beginnings in man-
 kind,
 To know even hate is but a mask of love's,
 To see a good in evil, and a hope
 In ill-success; to sympathize, be proud Of their half-reasons, faint aspirings, dim Struggles for truth, their poorest fallacies,
 Their prejudice and fears and cares and doubts;
 All with a touch of nobleness, despite Their error, upward tending all though
 weak,
 Like plants in mines which never saw the
 sun,
 But dream of him, and guess where he may
 be,
 And do their best to climb and get to him.
 All this I knew not, and I failed. Let
 men
 Regard me, and the poet dead long ago
 Who loved too rashly; and shape forth a third
 And better-tempered spirit, warned by
 both:
 As from the over-radiant star too mad
 To drink the life-springs, beamless thence itself—
 And the dark orb which borders the abyss, Ingulfed in icy night,—might have its
 course
 A temperate and equidistant world.
 Meanwhile, I have done well, though not all well.
 As yet men cannot do without contempt;
 'Tis for their good, and therefore fit awhile
 That they reject the weak, and scorn the
 false,
 Rather than praise the strong and true, in
 me:
 But after, they will know me. If I stoop
 Into a dark tremendous sea of cloud,
 It is but for a time; I press God's lamp Close to my breast; its splendour, soon or
 late,

Will pierce the gloom: I shall emerge one day.

You understand me? I have said enough?

Fest. Now die, dear Aureole!

Par. Festus, let my hand—

This hand, lie in your own, my own true friend!

Aprile! Hand in hand with you, Aprile!

Fest. And this was Paracelsus!

NOTE

THE liberties I have taken with my subject are very trifling; and the reader may slip the forgoing scenes between the leaves of any memoir of Paracelsus he pleases, by way of commentary. To prove this, I subjoin a popular account, translated from the Biographie Universelle, Paris, 1822, which I select, not as the best, certainly, but as being at hand, and sufficiently concise for my purpose. I also append a few notes, in order to correct those parts which do not bear out my own view of the character of Paracelsus; and have incorporated with them a notice or two, illustrative of the poem itself.

* PARACELSUS (Philippus Aureolus Theophrastus Bombastus ab Hohenheim) was born in 1493 at Einsiedeln (1), a little town in the canton of Schwyz, some leagues distant from Zurich. His father, who exercised the profession of medicine at Villach in Carinthia, was nearly related to George Bombast de Hohenheim, who became afterward Grand Prior of the Order of Malta: consequently Paracelsus could not spring from the dregs of the people, as Thomas Erastus, his sworn enemy, pretends.* It appears that his elementary education was much neglected, and that he spent part of his youth in pursuing the life common to the travelling literati of the age; that is to say, in wandering from country to country, predicting the future by astrology and cheiromancy, evoking apparitions, and practising the different operations of magic and alchemy, in which he had been initiated whether by his father or by various ecclesiastics, among the number of whom he particularizes the Abbot Trithem (2), and many German bishops.

As Paracelsus displays everywhere an ignorance of the rudiments of the most ordinary knowledge, it is not probable that he ever studied seriously in the schools; he contented himself with visiting the Universities of Germany, France, and Italy; and in spite of his boasting himself to have been the ornament of those institutions, there is no proof of his having legally acquired the title of Doctor, which he assumes. It is only known that he applied himself long, under the direction of the wealthy Sigismond Fugger of Schwatz, to the discovery of the Magnum Opus.

Paracelsus travelled among the mountains of Bohemia, in the East, and in Sweden, in order to inspect the labours of the miners, to be initiated in the mysteries of the oriental adepts, and to observe the secrets of nature and the famous mountain of loadstone (3). He professes also to have visited Spain, Portugal, Prussia, Poland, and Transylvania; everywhere communicating freely, &c.

* I shall disguise M. Renaudin's next sentence a little. 'Hic (Erastus &c.) Paracelsum trimum a milite quodam, alii a supplexum ferunt; constat imberbem illum, mulierumque osorem fuisse.' A standing High-Dutch joke in those days at the expense of a number of learned men, as may be seen by referring to such rubbish as Melander's Jocoseria, &c. In the prints from his portrait by Tintoretto, painted a year before his death, Paracelsus is barbatus, at all events. But Erastus was never without a good reason for his faith—e.g. 'Helvetium fuisse (Paracelsum) vix credo, vix enim ea regio tale monstrum edidit.' (De Medicina Nova.) merely with the physicians, but the old women, charlatans and conjurers of these several lands. It is even believed that he extended his journeyings as far as Egypt and Tartary, and that he accompanied the son of the Khan of the Tartars to Constantinople, for the purpose of obtaining the secret of the tincture of Trismegistus from a Greek who inhabited that capital.

† The period of his return to Germany is unknown: it is only certain that, at about the age of thirty-three, many astonishing cures which he wrought on eminent personages procured him such a celebrity, that he was called in 1526, on the recommendation of Ecolampadius (4), to fill a chair of physic and surgery at the University of Basil. There Paracelsus began by burning publicly in the amphitheatre the works of Avicenna and Galen, assuring his auditors that the latches of his shoes were more instructed than those two physicians; that all Universities, all writers put together, were less gifted than the hairs of his beard and of the crown of his head; and that, in a word, he was to be regarded as the legitimate monarch of medicine. "You shall follow me," cried he, "you, Avicenna, Galen, Rhasis, Montagnana, Mesues, you, gentlemen of Paris, Montpellier, Germany, Cologne, Vienna,† and whomsoever the Rhine and Danube nourish; you who inhabit the isles of the sea; you, likewise, Dalmatians, Athenians; thou, Arab; thou, Greek; thou, Jew: all shall follow me, and the monarchy shall be mine."‡

§ But at Basil it was speedily perceived that the new Professor was no better than an egregious quack. Scarcely a year elapsed before his lectures had fairly driven away an audience incapable of comprehending their emphatic jargon. That which above all contributed to sully his reputation was the debauched life he led. According to the testimony of Oporinus, who lived two years in his intimacy, Paracelsus scarcely ever ascended the lecture-desk unless half drunk, and only dictated to his secretaries when in a state of intoxication: if summoned to attend the sick, he rarely proceeded thither without previously drenching himself with wine. He was accustomed to retire to bed without changing his clothes; sometimes he spent the night in pot-houses with peasants, and in the morning

‡ See his works passim. I must give one specimen:—'Somebody had been styling him "Luther alter." And why not? (he asks, as he well might). "Luther is abundantly learned, therefore you hate him and me; but we are at least a match for you.—Nam et contra vos et vestros universos principes Avicennam, Galenum, Aristotelem, &c. me satis superque munitum esse novi. Et vertex iste meus calvus ac depilus multo plura et sublimiora novit quam vester vel Avicenna vel universæ academæ. Proditte, et signum date, qui viri sitis, quid roboris habeatis? quid autem sitis? Doctores et magistri, pediculos pectentes et fricantes podicem.' (Frag. Med.)

knew no longer what he was about; and, nevertheless, up to the age of twenty-five his only drink had been water (5).

'At length, fearful of being punished for a serious outrage on a magistrate (6), he fled from Basil towards the end of the year 1527, and took refuge in Alsatia, whither he caused Oporinus to follow with his chemical apparatus.

'He then entered once more upon the career of ambulatory theosophist.* Accordingly we find him at Colmar in 1528; at Nuremberg in 1529; at St. Gall in 1531; at Pfeffers in 1535; and at Augsburg in 1536: he next made some stay in Moravia, where he still further compromised his reputation by the loss of many distinguished patients, which compelled him to betake himself to Vienna; from thence he passed into Hungary; and in 1538 was at Villach, where he dedicated his Chronicle to the States of Carinthia, in gratitude for the many kindnesses with which they had honoured his father. Finally, from Mindelheim, which he visited in 1540, Paracelsus proceeded to Salzburg, where he died in the Hospital of St. Stephen (Sebastian is meant), Sept. 24, 1541.—(Here follows a criticism on his writings, which I omit.)

(1) Paracelsus would seem to be a fantastic version of Von Hohenheim; Einsiedeln is the Latinized Eremus, whence Paracelsus is sometimes called, as in the correspondence of Erasmus, Eremita; Bombast, his proper name, probably acquired, from the characteristic phraseology of his lectures, that unlucky signification which it has ever since retained.

(2) Then Bishop of Spanheim, and residing at Würzburg in Franconia; a town situated in a grassy fertile country, whence its name, Herbipolis. He was much visited there by learned men, as may be seen by his Epistola Familiæ, Hag. 1536: among others, by his staunch friend Cornelius Agrippa, to whom he dates thence, in 1510, a letter in answer to the dedicatory epistle prefixed to the treatise De Occult. Philosoph., which last contains the following ominous allusion to Agrippa's sojourn: 'Quum nuper tecum, R. P. in cœnobio tuo apud Herbipolim aliquamdiu conversatus, multa de chymicis, multa de magicis, multa de cabalisticis, æterisque quæ adhuc in occulto delitescunt, arcanis scientiis atque artibus una confutissemus,' etc.

(3) 'Inexplebilis illa aviditas naturæ perscrutandi secreta et reconditiorum suppellectile scientiarum animo locupletandi, uno eodemque loco diu persistere non patiebatur, sed Mercurii instar, omnes terras, nationes et urbes perlustrandis igniculos supponebat, ut cum viris naturæ scrutatoribus, chymicis præsertim, ore tenus conferret, et quæ diuturnis laboribus nocturnisque vigiliis invenerant una vel altera communicatione obtineret.' (Bitisius in Præfat.) 'Patris auxilio primum, deinde propria industria doctissimos viros in Germania, Italia, Gallia, Hispania, aliisque Europæ regionibus, nactus est præceptores; quorum liberali doctrina, et potissimum propria inquisitione ut qui esset ingenio acutissimo ac fere divino, tantum profecit, ut multi testati sint, in universa philosophia, tam ardua, tam arcana et abdita eruisse mortalium neminem.' (Melch. Adam. in Vit. Germ. Medic.) 'Paracelsus qui in intima naturæ viscera sic penitus introierit, metallorum stirpiumque vires et facuities tam incredibili ingenii acumine exploraverit ac præviderit, ad morbos omnes vel desperatos et opinionem hominum insanabiles percurandum; ut cum Theophrasto nam primum medicina perfectæque videtur.' (Petri Rami Orat. de Basilea.) His passion for wandering is best described in his own words: 'Ecce amatorem adolescentem difficillimi itineris haud piget, ut venustam saltem puellam vel feminam aspiciat: quanto minus nobilissimarum artium amore laboris ac cujuslibet tædii pigeat.'? etc. (Defensiones Septem adversus Amulo. suos. 1573. Def. 4ta. De peregrinationibus et exilio.)

(4) The reader may remember that it was in conjunction with Ecclampadius, then Divinity Professor at Basil, that Zuinglius published in 1528 an answer to Luther's Confession of Faith; and that both proceeded in company to the subsequent conference with Luther and Melancthon at Marburg. Their letters fill a large volume.—D. D. Johannis Ecclampadii et Huldrici Zuinglii Epistolarum, lib. quatuor, Bas. 1536. It must be also observed that Zuinglius began to preach in 1516, and at Zurich in 1519, and that in 1525 the Mass was abolished in the cantons. The tenets of Ecclampadius were supposed to be more evangelical than those up to that period maintained by the glorious German, and our brave Bishop Fisher attacked them as the fouler heresy:—'About this time arose out of Luther's school one Ecclampadius, like a mighty and fierce giant; who, as his master had gone beyond the Church, went beyond his master (or else it had been impossible he could have been reputed the better scholar), who denied the real presence; him, this worthy champion (the Bishop) sets upon, and with five books (like so many smooth stones taken out of the river that doth always run with living water) slays the Philistine; which five books were written in the year of our Lord 1526, at which time he had governed the see of Rochester twenty years.' (Life of Bishop Fisher, 1655.) Now, there is no doubt of the Protestantism of Paracelsus, Erasmus, Agrippa, etc., but the nonconformity of Paracelsus was always scandalous. L. Crasso (Elogj d'Humini Letterati, Ven. 1666) informs us that his books were excommunicated by the Church. Quenstedt (de Pair. Doct.) affirms 'nec tantum novæ medicinæ, verum etiam novæ theologiæ autor est.' Delrio, in his Disquisit. Magicar., classes him among those 'partim atheos, partim hæreticos' (lib. i. cap. 3). 'Omnino tamen multa theologica in ejusdem scriptis plane atheismum olent, ac duriusculæ sonant in auribus vere Christiani.' (D. Gbrielis Claudii Schediasma de Tinct. Univ. Norimb., 1736.) I shall only add one more authority:—'Oporinus dicit se (Paracelsum) aliquando Lutherum et Papam, non minus quam nunc Galerum et Hippocratem redactum in ordinem minabatur, neque enim eorum qui hactenus in scripturam sacram scripserunt, sive veteres, sive recentiores, quenquam scripturæ nucleum recte eruisse, sed circa corticem et quasi membranam tantum hæere.' (Th. Erastus, Disputat. de Med. Nova.) These and similar notions had their due effect on Oporinus, who, says Zuingerus, in his Theatrum, 'longum vale dixit ei (Paracelsus), ne ob præceptoris, alioqui amicitissimæ, horrendas blas-

* So migratory a life could afford Paracelsus but little leisure for application to books, and accordingly he informs us that for the space of ten years he never opened a single volume, and that his whole medical library was not composed of six sheets: in effect, the inventory drawn up after his death states that the only books which he left were the Bible, the New Testament, the Commentaries of St. Jerome on the Gospels, a printed volume on Medicine, and seven manuscripts.'

phemias ipse quoque aliquando pœnas Deo Opt. Max. lucret.'

(5) His defenders allow the drunkenness. Take a sample of their excuses: 'Gentis hoc, non viri vitium est, a Taciti seculo ad nostrum usque non interrupto filo devolutum, sinceritati forte Germanæ cœvum, et nescio an aliquo consanguinitatis vinculo junctum.' (Bitiskius.) The other charges were chiefly trumped up by Oporinus: 'Domi, quod Oporinus amanuensis ejus saepe narravit, nunquam nisi potus ad explicanda sua accessit, atque in medio conclave ad columnam τετυρωμένος assistens, apprehenso manibus capulo ensis, cujus κόρυμνα hospitium præbuit, ut aiunt, spiritui familiari, imaginationes aut concepta sua protulit:—alii illud quod in capulo habuit, ab ipso Azoth appellatum, medicinam fuisse præstantissimam aut lapidem Philosophicum putant.' (Melch. Adam.) This famous sword was no laughing-matter in those days, and it is now a material feature in the popular idea of Paracelsus. I recollect a couple of allusions to it in our own literature, at the moment.

Ne had been known the Danish Gonswart,
Or Paracelsus with his long sword.

Vulpone, act ii. scene 2.

Bumbastus kept a devil's bird
Shut in the pommel of his sword,
That taught him all the cunning pranks
Of past and future mountebanks.

Hudibras, part ii. cant. 3.

This Azoth was simply 'laudanum suum.' But in his time he was commonly believed to possess the double tincture—the power of curing diseases and transmuting metals. Oporinus often witnessed, as he declares, both these effects, as did also Franciscus, the servant of Paracelsus, who describes, in a letter to Neander, a successful projection at which he was present, and the results of which, good golden ingots, were confided to his keeping. For the other quality, let the following notice vouch among many others:—'Degebe: Theophrastus Norimbergæ precitus a medicibus illius urbis, et vaniloquis deceptorque proclamatus, qui, ut laboranti famæ subveniat, viros quosdam auctoritatis summæ in Republica illa adit, et infamie amoliendæ, artique suæ asserendæ, specimen ejus pollicetur editurum, nullo stipendio vel accepto pretio, horum faciles præbentium aures jussu elephantiacos aliquot, a communione hominum cæterorum segregatos, et in valetudinarium detrusos, qui alieno arbitrio eliguntur, quos virtute singulari remedium suorum Theophrastus a fœda Græcorum lepra mundat, pristinaque sanitati restituit; conservat illustre harum curationum urbs in archivis suis testimonium.' (Bitiskius.)* It is to be remarked that Oporinus afterwards repented of his treachery: 'Sed resipuit tandem, et quem vivum convitiis insectatus fuerat defunctum veneratione prosequutus, infames famæ præceptoris morsus in remorsus conscientie conversi penitentia, hui nemis tarda, vulnera claudere exanimi quæ spiranti inflixerant.' For these 'bites' of Opori-

* The premature death of Paracelsus casts no manner of doubt on the fact of his having possessed the Lixir Vitæ: the alchemists have abundant reasons to adduce, from which I select the following, as explanatory of a property of the Tincture not calculated on by its votaries:—'Objectionem illam, quod Paracelsus non fuerit longævus, nonnulli quoque solvunt per rationes physicas: vitæ nimirum abbreviationem fortasse talibus accidere posse, ob Tincturam frequentiore ac largiore dosi sumtam, dum a summe efficacæ et penetrabilis hujus virtute calor innatus quasi suffocatur.' (Gabrielis Clauderi Schediasma.)

nus, see Disputat. Erastii, and Andræ Jocisci Oratio de Vit. ob. Oport; for the 'remorse', Mic. Toxita in pref. Testamenti, and Conringius (otherwise an enemy of Paracelsus), who says it was contained in a letter from Oporinus to Doctor Vegerus.†

Whatever the moderns may think of these marvellous attributes, the title of Paracelsus to be considered the father of modern chemistry is indisputable. Gerardus Vossius, De Philos. et Philosum sectis, thus prefaces the ninth section of cap. 9 'De Chymia'—'Nobilem hanc medicinæ partem, diu sepultam avorum ætate, quasi ab orco revocavit Th. Paracelsus.' I suppose many hints lie scattered in his neglected books, which clever appropriators have since developed with applause. Thus, it appears from his treatise De Phlebotomia, and elsewhere, that he had discovered the circulation of the blood and the sanguification of the heart; as did after him Realdo Colombo, and still more perfectly Andrea Cesalpino of Arezzo, as Bayle and Bartoli observe. Even Lavater quotes a passage from his work, De Natura Rerum, on practical Physiognomy, in which the definitions and axioms are precise enough: he adds, 'though an astrological enthusiast, a man of prodigious genius.' See Holcroft's translation, vol. iii, p. 179.—'The Eyes.' While on the subject of the writings of Paracelsus, I may explain a passage in the third part of the Poem. He was, as I have said, unwilling to publish his works, but in effect did publish a vast number. Valentius (in Præfat. in Paramyr.) declares 'quod ad librorum Paracelsi copiam attinet, audio, a Germanis prope trecentos recenseri.' 'O fœcunditas ingenii!' adds he, appositely. Many of these were, however, spurious; and Fred. Bitiskius gives his good edition (3 vols. fol. Gen. 1658) 'rejectis suppositis solo ejus nomine superbitibus quorum ingens circumfertur numerus.' The rest were 'charissimum et pretiosissimum authoris pignus, extorsum potius ab illo quam obtentum.' 'Jam minime eo volente atque jubente hæc ipsius scripta in lucem prodire videntur; quippe quæ muro inclusa ipso absente, servi cujusdam indicio, furto surrepta atque sublata sunt,' says Valentius. These have been the study of a host of commentators, amongst whose labours are most notable, Petri Severini, Idea Medicinæ Philosophiæ, Bas. 1571; Mic. Toxeti, Onomastica, Arp. 1574; Dornici, Dict. Parac., Franc. 1584; and Pl. Philox. Compendium cum scholiis auctore Leone Suavio. Paris. (This last, a good book.)

(6) A disgraceful affair. One Liechtenfels, a canon, having been rescued in extremis by the 'laudanum' of Paracelsus, refused the stipulated fee, and was supported in his meanness by the authorities, whose interference Paracelsus would not brook. His own liberality was allowed by his bitterest foes, who found a ready solution of his indifference to profit in the aforesaid sword-handle and its guest. His freedom from the besetting sin of a profession he abhorred—(as he curiously says somewhere, 'Quis quæso deinceps honorem deferat professioni tali, quæ a tam facinorosis nebulonibus obit et administratur?')—is recorded in his epitaph, which affirms—'Bona sua in pauperes distribuenda collocaudaque erogavit, honoravit, et ordinavit'—For accounts differ.

† For a good defence of Paracelsus I refer the reader to Olaus Borrichius' treatise—Hermelici. etc. Sapientia vindicata, 1674. Or, if he is no more learned than myself in such matters, I mention simply that Paracelsus introduced the use of Mercury and Laudanum.

A TRAGEDY

1837

DEDICATED, IN ALL AFFECTIONATE ADMIRATION,

TO

WILLIAM C. MACREADY

LONDON: April 23, 1837.

PERSONS

CHARLES I.
Earl of HOLLAND.
Lord SAVILE.
Sir HENRY VANE.
WENTWORTH, Viscount WENTWORTH, Earl of
STRAFFORD.
JOHN PYM.
JOHN HAMPDEN.
The younger VANE.
DENZIL HOLLIS.
BENJAMIN RUDYARD.

NATHANIEL FIENNES.
Earl of LOUDON.
MAXWELL, Usher of the Black Rod.
A Puritan.
QUEEN HENRIETTA.
LUCY PERCY, Countess of Carlisle.

*Presbyterians, Scots Commissioners, Adherents of Strafford, Secretaries, Officers of the Court, &c.
Two of Strafford's children.*

ACT I

SCENE I.—A House near Whitehall. HAMPDEN, HOLLIS, the younger VANE, RUDYARD, FIENNES and many of the Presbyterian Party; LOUDON and other Scots Commissioners.

Vane. I say, if he be here—

Rud. (And he is here!)

Hol. For England's sake let every man be still

Nor speak of him, so much as say his name, Till Pym rejoin us! Rudyard! Henry Vane!

One rash conclusion may decide our course
And with it England's fate—think—England's fate!

Hampden, for England's sake they should be still!

Vane. You say so, Hollis? Well, I must be still.

It is indeed too bitter that one man,
Any one man's mere presence, should suspend

England's combined endeavour: little need To name him!

Rud. For you are his brother, Hollis!

Hamp. Shame on you, Rudyard! time to tell him that

When he forgets the Mother of us all.

Rud. Do I forget her?

Hamp. You talk idle hate
Against her foe: is that so strange a thing?
Is hating Wentworth all the help she needs?

A Puritan. The Philistine strode, cursing as he went:

But David—five smooth pebbles from the brook

Within his scrip . . .

Rud. Be you as still as David!

Fien. Here's Rudyard not ashamed to wag a tongue

Stiff with ten years' disuse of Parliaments;

Why, when the last sat, Wentworth sat with us!

Rud. Let's hope for news of them now he returns—

He that was safe in Ireland, as we thought!
—Bu. I'll abide Pym's coming.

Vane. Now, by Heaven,

They may be cool who can, silent who will—

Some have a gift that way! Wentworth is here,

Here, and the King's safe closeted with him

Ere this. And when I think on all that's past

Since that man left us, how his single arm
Rolled the advancing good of England back

And set the woeful past up in its place, Exalting Dagon where the Ark should be,—

How that man has made firm the fickle King

(Hampden, I will speak out!)—in aught he feared

To venture on before; taught tyranny
Her dismal trade, the use of all her tools,

To ply the scourge yet screw the gag so close

That strangled agony bleeds mute to death;

How he turns Ireland to a private stage
For training infant villainies, new ways

Of wringing treasure out of tears and blood,
Unheard oppressions nourished in the dark

To try how much man's nature can endure
—If he dies under it, what harm? if not,
Why, one more trick is added to the rest
Worth a king's knowing, and what Ireland bears

England may learn to bear:—how all this while

That man has set himself to one dear task,
The bringing Charles to relish more and more

Power, power without law, power and blood too —Can I be still?

Hamp. For that you should be still.

Vane. Oh Hampden, then and now!

The year he left us,

The People in full Parliament could wrest
The Bill of Rights from the reluctant King;
And now, he'll find in an obscure small room

A stealthy gathering of great-hearted men
That take up England's cause: England is here!

Hamp. And who despairs of England?

Rud. That do I,

If Wentworth comes to rule her. I am sick
To think her wretched masters, Hamilton,
The muckworm Cottington, the maniac Laud,

May yet be longed-for back again. I say,
I do despair.

Vane. And, Rudyard, I'll say this—Which all true men say after me, not loud
But solemnly and as you'd say a prayer!
This King, who treads our England under-

foot,

Has just so much . . . it may be fear or craft,
As bids him pause at each fresh outrage;
friends,

He needs some sterner hand to grasp his own,

Some voice to ask, 'Why shrink? Am I not by?'

Now, one whom England loved for serving her,

Found in his heart to say, 'I know where best

'The iron heel shall bruise her, for she leans
'Upon me when you trample.' Witness,

you!

So Wentworth heartened Charles, so England fell.

But inasmuch as life is hard to take
From England . . .

Many Voices. Go on, Vane! 'Tis we! said, Vane!

Vane. —Who has not so forgotten
Runnymede!—

Voices. 'Tis well and bravely spoken, Vane! Go on!

Vane. — There are some little signs of late she knows

The ground no place for her. She glances round,

Wentworth has dropped the hand, is gone his way

On other service: what if she arise?

No! the King beckons, and beside him stands

The same bad man once more, with the same smile

And the game gesture. Now shall England crouch,

Or catch at us and rise?

Voices. The Renegade!

Haman! Ahithophel!

Hamp. Gentlemen of the North,

It was not thus the night your claims were urged,

And we pronounced the League and Covenant,

The cause of Scotland, England's cause as well:

Vane there, sat motionless the whole night through.

Vane. Hampden!

Fien. Stay, Vane!

Lou. Be just and patient, Vane!

Vane. Mind how you counsel patience, Loudon! you

Have still a Parliament, and this your League

To back it; you are free in Scotland still:
While we are brothers, hope's for England yet.

But know you wherefore Wentworth comes? to quench

This last of hopes? that he brings war with him?

Know you the man's self? what he dares?

Lou. We know,

All know—'tis nothing new.

Vane. And what's new, then,
In calling for his life? Why, Pym him-

self—

You must have heard—ere Wentworth dropped our cause

He would see Pym first; there were many more

Strong on the people's side and friends of his,

Eliot that's dead, Rudyard and Hampden here,

But for these Wentworth cared not; only, Pym

He would see—Pym and he were sworn, 'tis said,

To live and die together; so, they met
At Greenwich. Wentworth, you are sure, was long,

Specious enough, the devil's argument
Lost nothing on his lips; he'd have Pym own

A patriot could not play a purer part

Than follow in his track; the/ two combined

Might put down England. Well, Pym heard him out;

One glance—you know Pym's eye—one word was all:

'You leave us, Wentworth! while your head is on.

'I'll not leave you.'

Hamp. Has he left Wentworth, then?

Has England lost him? Will you let him speak,

Or put your crude surmises in his mouth? Away with this! Will you have Pym or Vane?

Voices. Wait Pym's arrival! Pym shall speak.

Hamp. Meanwhile

Let Loudon read the Parliament's report From Edinburgh: our last hope, as Vane

says,

Is in the stand it makes. Loudon!

Vane. No, no!

Silent I can be: not indifferent!

Hamp. Then each keep silence, praying God to spare

His anger, cast not England quite away In this her visitation!

A Puritan. Seven years long

The Midianite drove Israel into dens And caves. Till God sent forth a mighty man,

PYM enters.

Even Gideon!

Pym. Wentworth's come: nor sickness, care,

The ravaged body nor the ruined soul, More than the winds and waves that beat his ship,

Could keep him from the King. He has not reached

Whitehall: they've hurried up a Council there

To lose no time and find him work enough. Where's Loudon? your Scots' Parliament . . .

Lou. Holds firm:

We were about to read reports.

Pym. The King

Has just dissolved your Parliament.

Lou. and other Scots. Great God!

An oath-breaker! Stand by us, England, then!

Pym. The King's too sanguine; doubtless Wentworth's here;

But still some little form might be kept up. Hamp. Now speak, Vane! Rudyard, you had much to say!

Hol. The rumour's false, then . . .

Pym. Ay, the Court gives out

His own concerns have brought him back: I know

'Tis the King calls him. Wentworth super-sedes

The tribe of Cottingtons and Hamiltons Whose part is played; there's talk enough, by this,—

Merciful talk, the King thinks: time is now To turn the record's last and bloody leaf

Which, chronicling a nation's great distress, air,

Tells they were long rebellious, and their lord

Indulgent, till, all kind expedients tried, He drew the sword on them and reigned in

peace.

Laud's laying his religion on the Scots Was the last gentle entry: the new page

Shall run, the King thinks, 'Wentworth thrust it down

'At the sword's point.'

A Puritan. I'll do your bidding, Pym, England's and God's—one blow!

Pym. A goodly thing—

We all say, friends, it is a goodly thing To right that England. Heaven grows dark

above:

Let's snatch one moment ere the thunder fall,

To say how well the English spirit comes out

Beneath it! All have done their best, indeed,

From lion Eliot, that grand Englishman, To the least here: and who, the least one

here,

When she is saved (for her redemption dawns

Dimly, most dimly, but it dawns—it dawns)

Who'd give at any price his hope away Of being named along with the Great

Men?

We would not—no, we would not give that up!

Hamp. And one name shall be dearer than all names.

When children, yet unborn, are taught that name

After their fathers',—taught what matchless man . . .

Pym. . . . Saved England? What if

Wentworth's should be still

That name?

Pud. and others. We have just said it,

Pym! His death

Saves her! We said it—there's no way beside!

I'll do God's bidding, Pym! They struck down Joab

And purged the land.

Vane. No villanous striking-down!

Rud. No, a calm vengeance: let the whole land rise

And shout for it. No Feltons!

Pym.

Rudyard, no!

England rejects all Feltons; most of all Since Wentworth . . . Hampden, say the trust again

Of England in her servants—but I'll think
You know me, all of you. Then, I believe, Spite of the past, Wentworth rejoins you,
friends!

Vane and others. Wentworth? Apostate!
Judas! Double-dyed
A traitor! Is it Pym, indeed . . .

Pym. . . . Who says
Vane never knew that Wentworth, loved that man,

Was used to stroll with him, arm locked in arm,

Along the streets to see the people pass,
And read in every island-countenance Fresh argument for God against the
King,—

Never sat down, say, in the very house Where Eliot's brow grew broad with noble
thoughts,

(You've joined us, Hampden—Hollis, you
as well.)

And then left talking over Gracchus'
death . . .

Vane. To frame, we know it well, the choicest clause

In the Petition of Right: he framed such clause

One month before he took at the King's
hand

His Northern Presidency, which that Bill Denounced.

Pym. Too true! Never more, never
more

Walked we together! Most alone I went.
I have had friends—all here are fast my
friends—

But I shall never quite forget that friend.
And yet it could not but be real in him!

You, Vane,—you, Rudyard, have no right to trust

To Wentworth: but can no one hope with
me?

Hampden, will Wentworth dare shed
English blood

Like water?

Hamp. Ireland is Aceldama.

Pym. Will he turn Scotland to a hunting-ground

To please the King, now that he knows the King?

The People or the King? and that King,
Charles!

Hamp. Pym, all here know you: you'll not set your heart

On any baseless dream. But say one
deed

Of Wentworth's since he left us . . .

[Shouting without. There! he comes, Vane. And they shout for him! Wentworth's at Whitehall,

The King embracing him, now, as we
speak,

And he, to be his match in courtesies,
Talking the whole war's risk upon himself,
Now, while you tell us here how changed he is!

Hear you?

Pym. And yet 'tis a dream, no more.
That Wentworth chose their side, and brought the King

To love it as though Laud had loved it first,
And the Queen after;—that he led their
cause

Calm to success, and kept it spotless
through,

So that our very eyes could look upon
The travail of our souls, and close content That violence, which something mars even
right

Which sanctions it, had taken off no grace
From its serene regard. Only a dream!

Hamp. We meet here to accomplish certain good

By obvious means, and keep tradition up
Of free assemblages, else obsolete,

In this poor chamber: nor without effect
Has friend met friend to counsel and confirm,

As, listening to the beats of England's
heart,

We spoke its wants to Scotland's prompt reply

By these her delegates. Remains alone
That word grow deed, as with God's help it shall—

But with the devil's hindrance, who doubts
too?

Looked we or no that tyranny should turn
Her engines of oppression to their use?

Whereof, suppose the worst be Wentworth
here—

Shall we break off the tactics which succeed
In drawing out our formidablest foe,

Let bickering and disunion take their
place?

Or count his presence as our conquest's proof,

And keep the old arms at their steady play?
Proceed to England's work! Fiennes, read the list!

Fiennes. Ship-money is refused or fiercely paid

In every county, save the northern parts
Where Wentworth's influence . . .

[Shouting. I, in England's name, Vane. Declare her work, this way, at end! Till
now,

Up to this moment, peaceful strife was
best.

We English had free leave to think; till now,
We had a shadow of a Parliament

In Scotland. But all's changed: they change the first,

They try brute-force for law, they, first of all . . .

Voices. Good! Talk enough! The old true hearts with Vane!

Vane. Till we crush Wentworth for her, there's no act

Serves England!

Voices. Vane for England!

Pym. Pym should be something to England. I seek Wentworth, friends.

SCENE II.—Whitehall.

Lady CARLISLE and WENTWORTH.

Went. And the King?

Lady Car. Wentworth, lean on me! Sit then!

I'll tell you all; this horrible fatigue

Will kill you.

Went. No;—or, Lucy, just your arm; I'll not sit till I've cleared this up with him:

After that, rest. The King?

Lady Car. Confides in you.

Went. Why? or, why now?—They have kind throats, the knaves!

Shout for me—they!

Lady Car. You come so strangely soon:

Yet we took measures to keep off the crowd—

Did they shout for you?

Went. Wherefore should they not? Does the King take such measures for himself?

Beside, there's such a dearth of malcontents,

You say!

Lady Car. I said but few dared carp at you.

Went. At me? at us, I hope! The King and I!

He's surely not disposed to let me bear the fame away from him of these late deeds

In Ireland? I am yet his instrument

Be it for well or ill? He trusts me, too!

Lady Car. The King, dear Wentworth, purposes, I said,

To grant you, in the face of all the Court . . .

Went. All the Court! Evermore the Court about us!

Savile and Holland, Hamilton and Vane About us,—then the King will grant me—what?

That he for once put these aside and say—'Tell me your whole mind, Wentworth!'

Lady Car. You professed You would be calm.

Went. Lucy, and I am calm!

How else shall I do all I come to do, Broken, as you may see, body and mind, How shall I serve the King? Time wastes meanwhile,

You have not told me half. His footstep! No.

Quick, then, before I meet him,—I am calm—

Why does the King distrust me?

Lady Car. He does not

Distrust you.

Went. Lucy, you can help me; you Have even seemed to care for me: one word!

Is it the Queen?

Lady Car. No, not the Queen: the party

That poisons the Queen's ear, Savile and Holland.

Went. I know, I know: old Vane, too, he's one too?

Go on—and he's made Secretary. Well? Or leave them out and go straight to the charge—

The charge!

Lady Car. Oh, there's no charge, no precise charge;

Only they sneer, make light of—one may say,

Nibble at what you do.

Went. I know! but, Lucy, I reckoned on you from the first!—Go on!—Was sure could I once see this gentle friend

When I arrived, she'd throw an hour away To help her . . . what am I?

Lady Car. You thought of me, Dear Wentworth?

Went. But go on! The party here!

Lady Car. They do not think your Irish government

Of that surpassing value . . .

Went. The one thing Of value! The one service that the crown

May count on! All that keeps these very Vanes

In power, to vex me—not that they do vex,

Only it might vex some to hear that service Decried, the sole support that's left the King!

Lady Car. So the Archbishop says.

Went. Ah? well, perhaps The only hand held up in my defence

May be old Laud's! These Hollands then, these Saviles

Nibble? They nibble?—that's the very word!

Lady Car. Your profit in the Customs, Bristol says,

Exceeds the due proportion: while the tax . . .

Went. Enough! 'tis too unworthy,—I am not

So patient as I thought. What's Pym about?

Lady Car. Pym?

Went. Pym and the People.

Lady Car. Oh, the Faction!
Extinct—of no account: there'll never be Another Parliament.

Went. Tell Savile that!
You may know—(ay, you do—the creatures here

Never forget!) that in my earliest life
I was not . . . much that I am now! The

King
May take my word on points concerning
Pym

Before Lord Savile's, Lucy, or if not,
I bid them ruin their wise selves, not me, These Vanes and Hollands! I'll not be their tool

Who might be Pym's friend yet.
But there's the King!

Where is he?
Lady Car. Just apprised that you arrive.

Went. And why not here to meet me?
I was told

He sent for me, nay, longed for me.
Lady Car. Because,

He is now . . . I think a Council's sitting
now

About this Scots affair.
Went. A Council sits?

They have not taken a decided course
Without me in the matter?

Lady Car. I should say . . .
Went. The war? They cannot have agreed to that?

Not the Scots' war?—without consulting

me—
Me, that am here to show how rash it is,
How easy to dispense with?—Ah, you

too
Against me! well,—the King may take his
time.

—Forget it, Lucy! Cares make peevish:
mine

Weigh me (but 'tis a secret) to my grave.
Lady Car. For life or death I am your own, dear friend! [Goes out.] Went. Heartless! but all are heartless here. Go now,

Forsake the People!

I did not forsake
The People: they shall know it, when the

King
Will trust me!—who trusts all beside at
once,

While I have not spoke Vane and Savile
fair,

And am not trusted: have but saved the
throne,

Have not picked up the Queen's glove prettily,

And am not trusted. But he'll see me
now.

Weston is dead: the Queen's half English
now—

More English: one decisive word will brush

These insects from . . . the step I know so
well!

The King! But now, to tell him . . . no—
'to ask

What's in me he distrusts:—or, best begin
By proving that this frightful Scots affair

Is just what I foretold. So much to say,
And the flesh fails, now, and the time is

come,
And one false step no way to be repaired.

You were avenged, Pym, could you look on me.

Pym enters.

Went. I little thought of you just then.
Pym. No? I

Think always of you, Wentworth.
Went. The old voice!

I wait the King, sir.
Pym. True—you look so pale!

A Council sits within; when that breaks up He'll see you.

Went. Sir, I thank you.
Pym. O, thank Laud!

You know when Laud once gets on Church affairs

The case is desperate: he'll not be long
To-day: he only means to prove, to-day,

We English all are mad to have a hand
In butchering the Scots for serving God

After their fathers' fashion: only that!
Went. Sir, keep your jests for those who relish them!

(Does he enjoy their confidence?) 'Tis

kind
To tell me what the Council does.

Pym. You grudge
That I should know it had resolved on

war
Before you came? no need: you shall have

all
The credit, trust me!

Went. Have the Council dared—
They have not dared . . . that is—I know

you not.
Farewell, sir: times are changed.

Pym. —Since we two met
At Greenwich? Yes: poor patriots though we be,

You cut a figure, makes some slight return

For your exploits in Ireland! Changed
indeed,

Could our friend Eliot look from out his grave!

Ah, Wentworth, one thing for acquaintance' sake,

Just to decide a question; have you, now,
Felt your old self since you forsook us?

Went. Sir!
Pym. Spare me the gesture! you misapprehend.

Think not I mean the advantage is with me.

I was about to say that, for my part,
I never quite held up my head since then—

Was quite myself since then: for first, you see,

I lost all credit after that event
With those who recollect how sure I was Wentworth would outdo Eliot on our side.
Forgive me: Savile, old Vane, Holland

here,
Eschew plain-speaking: 'tis a trick I keep.
Went. How, when, where, Savile, Vane, and Holland speak,
Plainly or otherwise, would have my scorn,
All of my scorn, sir . . .

Pym. . . . Did not my poor thoughts Claim somewhat?

Went. Keep your thoughts!
believe the King
Mistrusts me for their prattle, all these Vanes

And Saviles! make your mind up, o'
God's love,

That I am discontented with the King!

Pym. Why, you may be: I should be,
that I know,

Were I like you.

Went. Like me?

Pym. I care not much
For titles: our friend Eliot died no lord, Hampden's no lord, and Savile is a
lord;

But you care, since you sold your soul for
one.

I can't think, therefore, your soul's purchaser

Did well to laugh you to such utter scorn
When you twice prayed so humbly for its price,

The thirty silver pieces . . . I should say,
The Earldom you expected, still expect,
And may. Your letters were the movingest!
Console yourself: I've borne him prayers
just now

From Scotland not to be oppressed by Laud,

Words moving in their way: he'll pay, be
sure,

As much attention as to those you sent.

Went. False, sir! Who showed them you? Suppose it so,

The King did very well . . . nay, I was glad When it was shown me: I refused, the
first!

John Pym, you were my friend—forbear me once!

Pym. Oh, Wentworth, ancient brother of my soul,

That all should come to this!

Went. Leave me!

Pym. My friend,
Why should I leave you?

Went. To tell Rudyard this,
And Hampden this!

Pym. Whose faces once were bright At my approach, now sad with doubt and
fear,

Because I hope in you—yes, Wentworth,
you

Who never mean to ruin England—you Whoshake off, with God's help, an obscene
dream

In this Ezekiel chamber, where it crept Upon you first, and wafe, yourself, your
true

And proper self, our Leader, England's
Chief,

And Hampden's friend!

This is the proudest day!
Come, Wentworth! Do not even see the
King!

The rough old room will seem itself again!
We'll both go in together: you've not seen Hampden so long: come: and there's Fiennes: you'll have

To know young Vane. This is the proudest
day!

[The KING enters. WENTWORTH lets fall
PYM's hand.

Cha. Arrived, my lord?—This gentleman, we know

Was your old friend.

The Scots shall be informed
What we determine for their happiness.

[PYM goes out.
You have made haste, my lord.

Went. Sir, I am come . . .

Cha. To see an old familiar—nay 'tis
well;

Aid us with his experience: this Scots'
League

And Covenant spreads too far, and we have proofs

That they intrigue with France: the Faction too,

Whereof your friend there is the head and front,

Abets them,—as he boasted, very like.

Went. Sir, trust me! but for this once, trust me, sir!

Cha. What can you mean?

Went. That you should trust me,
sir!

Oh—not for my sake! but 'tis sad, so sad
That for distrusting me, you suffer—you Whom I would die to serve: sir, do you
think

That I would die to serve you?

Cha. But rise, Wentworth!

Went. What shall convince you? What does Savile do

To prove him . . . Ah, one can't tear out one's heart

And show it, how sincere a thing it is!

Cha. Have I not trusted you?

Went. Say aught but that!
There is my comfort, mark you; all will be

So different when you trust me—as you shall!

It has not been your fault,—I was away,

Mistook, maigned, how was the King to know?

I am here, now—he means to trust me, now—

All will go on so well!

Cha. Be sure I do—

I've heard that I should trust you: as you came,

Your friend, the Countess, told me . . .

Went. No,—hear nothing—
Be told nothing about me!—you're not told

Your right-hand serves you, or your children love you!

Cha. You love me, Wentworth: rise!

Went. I can speak now.
I have no right to hide the truth. 'Tis I

Can save you: only I. Sir, what must be?

Cha. Since Laud's assured (the minutes are within) —Loath as I am to spill my subjects' blood . . .

Went. That is, he'll have a war: what's done is done!

Cha. They have intrigued with France; that's clear to Laud.

Went. Has Laud suggested any way to meet

The war's expense?

Cha. He'd not decide so far
Until you joined us.

Went. Most considerate!
He's certain they intrigue with France, these Scots?

The People would be with us.

Cha. Pym should know.

Went. The People for us—we're the People for us!

Sir, a great thought comes to reward your trust:

Summon a Parliament! in Ireland first, Then, here.

Cha. In truth?

Went. That saves us! that puts off
The war, gives time to right their grievances—

To talk with Pym. I know the Faction,—Laud

So styles it,—tutors Scotland: all their plans

Suppose no Parliament: in calling one You take them by surprise. Produce the proofs

Of Scotland's treason; then bid England

help:
Even Pym will not refuse.

Cha. You would begin With Ireland?

Went. Take no care for that: that's sure

To prosper.

Cha. You shall rule me. You were best

Return at once: but take this ere you go!

Now, do I trust you? You're an Earl: my Friend

Of Friends: yes, while . . . You hear me not!

Went. Say it all o'er again—but once again:

The first was for the music: once again!

Cha. Strafford, my friend, there may have been reports,

Vain rumours. Henceforth touching Strafford is

To touch the apple of my sight: why gaze So earnestly?

Went. I am grown young again,
And foolish. What was it we spoke of?

Cha. Ireland,

The Parliament,—

Went. I may go when I will?

—Now?

Cha. Are you tired so soon of us?

Went. My King!

But you will not so utterly abhor

A Parliament? I'd serve you any way.

Cha. You said just now this was the only way.

Went. Sir, I will serve you.

Cha. Strafford, spare yourself:
You are so sick, they tell me.

Went. 'Tis my soul
That's well and prospers now.

This Parliament—
We'll summon it, the English one—I'll

care
For everything. You shall not need them much.

Cha. If they prove restive . . .

Went. I shall be with you.

Cha. Ere they assemble?

Went. I will come, or else
Deposit this infirm humanity

I' the dust. My whole heart stays with you, my King! [As WENTWORTH goes out, the QUEEN enters.]

Cha. That man must love me.

Queen. Is' over then?

Why, he looks yellower than ever! Well,
At least we shall not hear eternally

Of services—services: he's paid at least.

Cha. Not done with: he engages to surpass

All yet performed in Ireland.

Queen. I had thought
Nothing beyond was ever to be done.

The war, Charles—will he raise supplies enough?

Cha. We've hit on an expedient; he . . . that is,

I have advised . . . we have decided on
The calling—in Ireland—of a Parliament.

Queen. O truly! You agree to that? Is that

The first fruit of his counsel? But I guessed
As much.

Cha. This is too idle, Henriette!

STRAFFORD

[ACT II

I should know best. He will strain every nerve,
And once a precedent established . . .

Queen. Notice
How sure he is of a long term of favour!
He'll see the next, and the next after that;
No end to Parliaments!

Cha. Well, it is done.
He talks it smoothly, doubtless. If, indeed,
The Commons here . . .

Queen. Here! you will summon them Here? Would I were in France again to see A King!

Cha. But, Henriette . . .

Queen. Oh, the Scots see clear!
Why should they bear your rule?

Cha. But listen, sweet!

Queen. Let Wentworth listen—you confide in him!

Cha. I do not, love,—I do not so confide!

The Parliament shall never trouble us . . . Nay, hear me! I have schemes, such schemes: we'll buy

The leaders off: without that, Wentworth's counsel

Had ne'er prevailed on me. Perhaps I call it

To have excuse for breaking it for ever,
And whose will then the blame be? See you no'?

Come, dearest!—look, the little fairy, now,
That cannot reach my shoulder! Dearest,
come!

ACT II

SCENE I.—(As in Act I. Scene I.)

The same Party enters.

Rud. Twelve subsidies!

Vane. Oh, Rudyard, do not laugh
At least!

Rud. True: Strafford called the Parliament—

'Tis he should laugh!

A Puritan. Out of the serpent's root Comes forth a cockatrice.

Fien. —A stinging one,
If that's the Parliament: twelve subsidies!

A stinging one! but, brother, where's your
word

For Strafford's other nest-egg, the Scots'
war?

The Puritan. His fruit shall be a fiery flying serpent.

Fien. Shall be? It chips the shell, man;
peeps abroad.

Twelve subsidies!—Why, how now, Vane?

Rud. Peace, Fiennes!

Fien. Ah?—But he was not more a dupe
than I,

Or you, or any here, the day that Pym

Returned with the good news. Look up, friend Vane!

We all believed that Strafford meant us
well

In summoning the Parliament.

HAMPDEN enters.

Vane. Now, Hampden, Clear me! I would have leave to sleep

again:

I'd look the People in the face again:
Clear me from having, from the first,

hoped, dreamed Better of Strafford!

Hamp. You may grow one day
A steadfast light to England, Henry Vane!

Rud. Meantime, by flashes I make shift to see

Strafford revived our Parliaments; before,
War was but talked of; there's an army,

now:
Still, we've a Parliament! Poor Ireland

bears Another wrench (she dies the hardest

death!)

Why, speak of it in Parliament! and lo,
'Tis spoken, so console yourselves!

Fien. The jest!
We clamoured, I suppose, thus long, to win

The privilege of laying on our backs

A sorer burden than the King dares lay!
Rud. Mark now: we meet at length, complaints pour in

From every county, all the land cries out

On loans and levies, curses ship-money, Calls vengeance on the Star Chamber; we lend

An ear. 'Ay, lend them all the ears you have!

Puts in the King; 'my subjects, as you find,
'Are fretful, and conceive great things of

you.
'Just listen to them, friends; you'll sanction me

'The measures they most wince at, make them yours,

'Instead of mine, I know: and, to begin,
'They say my levies pinch them,—raise me straight

'Twelve subsidies!'

Fien. All England cannot furnish Twelve subsidies!

Hol. But Strafford, just returned From Ireland—what has he to do with

that?
How could he speak his mind? He left

before
The Parliament assembled. Pym, who knows

Strafford . . .

Rud. Would I were sure we know
ourselves!

What is for good, what, bad—who friend, who foe!

Hol. Do you count Parliaments no gain?

Rud. A gain?

While the King's creatures overbalance
us?

—There's going on, beside, among ourselves

A quiet, slow, but most effectual course
Of buying over, sapping, leavening
The lump till all is leaven. Glanville's
gone.

I'll put a case; had not the Court declared
That no sum short of just twelve subsidies
Will be accepted by the King—our House,
I say, would have consented to that offer
To let us buy off ship-money!

Hol. Most like,
If, say, six subsidies will buy it off,
The House . . .

Rud. Will grant them! Hampden, do you hear?

Congratulate with me! the King's the king,
And gains his point at last—our own asset
To that detested tax? All's over, then!
There's no more taking refuge in this room, Protesting, 'Let the King do what he will,
'We, England, are no party to our shame:
'Our day will come!' Congratulate with
me!

PYM enters.

Vane. Pym, Strafford called this Parliament, you say,
But we'll not have our Parliaments like those

In Ireland, Pym!
Rud. Let him stand forth, your
friend!

One doubtful act hides far too many sins;
It can be stretched no more, and, to my
mind,

Begins to drop from those it covered.
Other Voices. Good!
Let him avow himself! No fitter time!
We wait thus long for you.

Rud. Perhaps, too long!
Since nothing but the madness of the Court,

In thus unmasking its designs at once,
Has saved us from betraying England.

Stay—
This Parliament is Strafford's: let us vote
Our list of grievances too black by far
To suffer talk of subsidies: or best,
That ship-money's disposed of long ago
By England: any vote that's broad enough:
And then let Strafford, for the love of it,
Support his Parliament!

Vane. And vote as well
No war to be with Scotland! Hear you,
Pym?

We'll vote, no war! No part nor lot in it
For England!

Many Voices. Vote, no war! Stop the new levies!

No Bishops' war! At once! When next
'we meet!

Pym. Much more when next we meet!
Friends, which of you

Since first the course of Strafford was in
doubt,

Has fallen the most away in soul from me?
Vane. I sat apart, even now under God's
eye,

Pondering the words that should denounce
you, Pym,

In presence of us all, as one at league
With England's enemy.

Pym. You are a good
And gallant spirit, Henry. Take my hand
And say you pardon me for all the pain
Till now! Strafford is wholly ours.

Many Voices. Sure? sure?
Pym. Most sure: for Charles dissolves
the Parliament

While I speak here.
—And I must speak, friends, now!
Strafford is ours. The King detects the
change,

Casts Strafford off for ever, and resumes
His ancient path: no Parliament for us,
No Strafford for the King!

Come, all of you,
To bid the King farewell, predict success
To his Scots' expedition, and receive Strafford, our comrade now. The next will
be

Indeed a Parliament!
Vane. Forgive me, Pym!

Voices. This looks like truth: Strafford can have, indeed,
No choice.

Pym. Friends, follow me! He's with the King.

Come, Hampden, and come, Rudyard, and come, Vane!

This is no sullen day for England, sirs!
Strafford shall tell you!

Voices. To Whitehall then! Come!

SCENE II.—Whitehall.

CHARLES and STRAFFORD.

Cha. Strafford!

Straf. Is it a dream? my papers,
here—

Thus, as I left them, all the plans you found So happy—(look! the track you pressed my hand

For pointing out)—and in this very room,
Over these very plans, you tell me, sir,
With the same face, too—tell me just one
thing

That ruins them! How's this? What may this mean?

Sir, who has done this?

Cha. Strafford, who but I?
You bade me put the rest away: indeed
You are alone.

Straf. Alone, and like to be!
No fear, when some unworthy scheme grows ripe,
Of those, who hatched it, leaving me to
 loose
The mischief on the world! Laud hatches
 war,
Falls to his prayers, and leaves the rest to
 me,
And I'm alone.

Cha. At least, you knew as much
When first you undertook the war.

Straf. My liege,
Was this the way? I said, since Laud would lap

A little blood, 'twere best to hurry over The loathsome business, not to be whole months

At slaughter—one blow, only one, then,
 peace,
Save for the dreams. I said, to please you
 both

I'd lead an Irish army to the West,
While in the South an English . . . but you
 look

As though you had not told me fifty times
'Twas a brave plan! My army is all raised,
I am prepared to join it . . .

Cha. Hear me, Strafford!
Straf. . . . When, for some little thing, my whole design

Is set aside—(where is the wretched paper?)
I am to lead—(ay, here it is)—to lead
The English army: why? Northumberland
That I appointed, chooses to be sick—Is frightened: and, meanwhile, who answers for

The Irish Parliament? or army, either?
Is this my plan?

Cha. So disrespectful, sir?

Straf. My liege, do not believe it! I am
 yours,

Yours ever: 'tis too late to think about:
To the death, yours. Elsewhere, this untoward step

Shall pass for mine; the world shall think it
 mine.

But here! But here! I am so seldom here, Seldom with you, my King! I, soon to rush

Alone upon a giant in the dark!

Cha. My Strafford!

Straf. [examines papers awhile]. 'Seize the passes of the Tyne!'

But, sir, you see—see all I say is true?
My plan was sure to prosper, so, no cause
To ask the Parliament for help; whereas
We need them rightfully.

Cha. Need the Parliament?

Straf. Now, for God's sake, sir, not one error more!

We can afford no error; we draw, now,
Upon our last resource: the Parliament
Must help us!

Cha. I've one—one you, Strafford!

Straf. Nay—Nay—why despond, sir, 'tis not come to
 that!

I have not hurt you? Sir, what have I said
To hurt you? I unsay it! Don't despond!
Sir, do you turn from me?

Cha. My friend of friends!

Straf. We'll make a shift. Leave me
 the Parliament!

Help they us ne'er so little and I'll make Sufficient out of it. We'll speak them fair.
They're sitting, that's one great thing; that half gives

Their sanction to us; that's much: don't despond!

Why, let them keep their money, at the worst!

The reputation of the People's help
Is all we want: we'll make shift yet!

Cha. Good Strafford!

Straf. But meantime, let the sum be ne'er so small

They offer, we'll accept it: any sum—

For the look of it: the least grant tells the Scots

The Parliament is ours—their staunch ally Turned ours: that told, there's half the blow to strike!

What will the grant be? What does Glanville think?

Cha. Alas!

Straf. My liege?

Cha. Strafford!

Straf. But answer me!
Have they . . . O surely not refused us half?

Half the twelve subsidies? We never looked

For all of them. How many do they give?

Cha. You have not heard . . .

Straf. (What has he done?)—

 Heard what?

But speak at once, sir, this grows terrible!
[The KING continuing silent.]

You have dissolved them!—I'll not leave this man.

Cha. 'Twas old Vane's ill-judged vehemence.

Straf. Old Vane?

Cha. He told them, just about to vote
 the half,

That nothing short of all twelve subsidies
Would serve our turn, or be accepted.

Straf. Vane!

Wane! Who, sir, promised me, that very Vane . . .

O God, to have it gone, quite gone from
 me,

The one last hope—I that despair, my
 hope—

That I should reach his heart one day, and cure

All bitterness one day, be proud again
And young again, fare for the sunshine too,

And never think of Elbow any more,—
God, and to toil for this, go far for this,
Get nearer, and still hearer, reach this heart
And find Vane there!

[Suddenly taking up a paper, and continuing with a forced calmness.

Northumberland is sick:
Well, then, I take the army: Wilmot leads
The horse, and he, with Conway, must secure

The passes of the Tyne: Ormond supplies
My place in Ireland. Here, we'll try the City:

If they refuse a loan—debase the coin
And seize the bullion! we've no other choice.

Herbert . . .

And this while I am here! with you!
And there are hosts such, hosts like Van!

I go,
And, I once gone, they'll close around you,
sir,

When the least pique, pettiest mistrust, is sure

To ruin me—and you along with me!
Do you see that? And you along with me!
—Sir, you'll not ever listen to these men,
And I away, fighting your battle? Sir,
If they—if She—charge me, no matter how—

Say you, 'At any time when he returns
'His head is mine!' Don't stop me there!

You know
My head is yours, but never stop me there!

Cha, Too shameful, Strafford! You advised the war,

And . . .

Straf. II! That was never spoken with Till it was entered on! That loathe the war!

That say it is the maddest, wickedest . . .
Do you know, sir, I think within my heart,
That you would say I did advise the war;
And if, through your own weakness, or what's worse,

These Scots, with God to help them, drive
me back,

You will not step between the raging
People

And me, to say . . .

I knew it! from the first
I knew it! Never was so cold a heart!
Remember that I said it—that I never Believed you for a moment!

—And, you loved me?
You thought your perfidy profoundly hid
Because I could not share the whisperings With Vane, with Savile? What, the face was masked?

I had the heart to see, sir! Face of flesh,
But heart of stone—of smooth cold frightful stone!

Ay, call them! Shall I call for you? The Scots

Goaded to madness? Or the English—
Pym—

Shall I call Pym, your subject? Oh, you
think

I'll leave them in the dark about it all?
They shall not know you? Hampden, Pym shall not?

PYM, HAMPDEN, VANE, etc., enter.

[Dropping on his knee.] Thus favoured with your gracious countenance

What shall a rebel League avail against Your servant, utterly and ever yours?

So, gentlemen, the King's not even left
The privilege of bidding me farewell

Who haste to save the People—that you style

Your People—from the mercies of the Scots

And France their friend?

[To CHARLES.] Pym's grave grey eyes are fixed

Upon you, sir!

Your pleasure, gentlemen?
Hamp. The King dissolved us—'tis the King we seek

And not Lord Strafford.

Straf. —Strafford, guilty too
Of counselling the measure. [To CHARLES.]

(Hush . . . you know—

You have forgotten—sir, I counselled it)
A heinous matter, truly! But the King

Will yet see cause to thank me for a
course

Which now, perchance . . . (Sir, tell them so!)—he blames.

Well, choose some fitter time to make your
charge:

I shall be with the Scots, you understand?

Then yelp at me!

Meanwhile, your Majesty Binds me, by this fresh token of your
trust . . .

[Under the pretence of an earnest farewell, STRAFFORD conducts CHARLES to the door, in such a manner as to hide his agitation from the rest: as the KING disappears, they turn as by one impulse to PYM, who has not changed his original posture of surprise.

Hamp. Leave we this arrogant strong wicked man!

Vane and others. Hence, Pym! Come out of this unworthy place

To our old room again! He's gone.

[STRAFFORD, just about to follow the KING, looks back.

Pym. Not gone:

STRAFFORD

[ACT II

[To STRAFFORD.] Keep tryst! the old appointment's made anew:

Forget not we shall meet again!

Straf. So be it!

And if an army follows me?

Vane. His friends

Will entertain your army!

Pym. I'll not say
You have misreckoned, Strafford; time shows.

Perish

Body and spirit! Fool to feign a doubt,
Pretend the scrupulous and nice reserve
Of one whose prowess shall achieve the feat!

What share have I in it? Do I affect
To see no dismal sign above your head
When God suspends his ruinous thunder there?

Strafford is doomed. Touch him no one of you! [PYM, HAMPDEN, etc., go out.]

Straf. Pym, we shall meet again!

Lady CARLISLE enters.

You here, child?

Lady Car. Hush—
I know it all: hush, Strafford!

Straf. Ah? you know?
Well. I shall make a sorry soldier, Lucy!
All knights begin their enterprise, we read,
Under the best of auspices; 'tis morn,
The Lady girds his sword upon the Youth (He's always very young)—the trumpets
sound,

Cups pledge him, and, why, the King blesses him—

You need not turn a page of the romance
To learn the Dreadful Giant's fate. Indeed, We've the fair Lady here; but she apart,—
A poor man, rarely having handled lance,
And rather old, weary, and far from sure
His Squires are not the Giant's friends.

All's one:

Let us go forth!

Lady Car. Go forth?
Straf. What matters it?
We shall die gloriously—as the book says.

Lady Car. To Scotland? Not to Scotland?

Straf. Am I sick
Like your good brother, brave Northumberland?

Beside, these walls seem falling on me.

Lady Car. Strafford,
The wind that saps these walls can undermine

Your camp in Scotland, too. Whence creeps the wind?

Have you no eyes except for Pym? Look
here!

A breed of silken creatures lurk and thrive
In your contempt. You'll vanquish Pym?
Old Vane

Can vanquish you. And Vane you think to fly?

Rush on the Scots! Do nobly! Vane's slight sneer

Shall test success, adjust the praise, suggest
The faint result: Vane's sneer shall reach you there.

—You do not listen!

Straf. Oh,—I give that up!
There's fate in it: I give all here quite up.
Care not what old Vane does or Holland does

Against me! 'Tis so idle to withstand!

In no case tell me what they do!

Lady Car. But, Strafford . . .

Straf. I want a little strife, beside; real strife;

This petty palace-warfare does me harm:
I shall feel better, fairly out of it.

Lady Car. Why do you smile?

Straf. I got to fear them, child!
I could have torn his throat at first, old Vane's,

As he leered at me on his stealthy way
To the Queen's closet. Lord, one loses
heart!

I often found it on my lips to say

'Do not traduce me to her!'

Lady Car. But the King . . .

Straf. The King stood there, 'tis not so long ago,

—There; and the whisper, Lucy, 'Be my
friend

'Of friends!'—My King! I would have . . .

Lady Car. . . . Died for him?

Straf. Sworn him true, Lucy: I can die
for him.

Lady Car. But go not, Strafford! But you must renounce

This project on the Scots! Die, wherefore
die?

Charles never loved you.

Straf. And he never will.
He's not of those who care the more for
men

That they're unfortunate.

Lady Car. Then wherefore die
For such a master?

Straf. You that told me first How good he was—when I must leave true
friends

To find a truer friend!—that drew me
here

From Ireland,—'I had but to show myself
'And Charles would spurn Vane, Savile,
'and the rest'—

You, child, to ask me this?

Lady Car. (If he have set his heart abidingly on Charles!)

Then, friend,
I shall not see you any more.

Straf. Yes, Lucy.
There's one man here I have to meet.

Lady Car. (The King!

What way to save him from the King?

My soul—
That lent from its own store the charmed disguise

Which clothes the King—he shall behold
my soul!)

Strafford,—I shall speak best if you'll not gaze

Upon me: I had never thought, indeed,
To speak, but you would perish too, so
sure!

Could you but know what 'tis to bear, my
friend,

One image stamped within you, turning blank

The else imperial brilliance of your
mind,—

A weakness, but most precious,—like a flaw

I' the diamond, which should shape forth some sweet face

Yet to create, and meanwhile treasured
there

Lest nature lose her gracious thought for ever!

Straf. When could it be? no! Yet . . .
was it the day

We waited in the anteroom, till Holland
Should leave the presence-chamber?

Lady Car. What?
Straf. —That I

Described to you my love for Charles?

Lady Car. (Ah, no—
One must not lure him from a love like
that!

Oh, let him love the King and die! 'Tis
past.

I shall not serve him worse for that one brief

And passionate hope, silent for ever now!)

And you are really bound for Scotland
then?

I wish you well: you must be very sure
Of the King's faith, for Pym and all his crew

Will not be idle—setting Vane aside!

Straf. If Pym is busy,—you may write of Pym.

Lady Car. What need, since there's your King to take your part?

He may endure Vane's counsel; but for
Pym—

Think you he'll suffer Pym to . . .

Straf. Child, your hair
Is glossier than the Queen's!

Lady Car. Is that to ask
A curl of me?

Straf. Scotland—the weary way!
Lady Car. Stay, let me fasten it.

—A rival's, Strafford?

Straf. [showing the George]. He hung it there: twine yours around it, child!

Lady Car. No—no—another time—I trifle so!

And there's a masque on foot. Farewell.

The Court
Is dull; do something to enliven us

In Scotland: we expect it at your hands.

Straf. I shall not fail in Scotland.
Lady Car. Prosper—if

You'll think of me sometimes!

Straf. How think of him
And not of you? of you, the lingering streak
(A golden one) in my good fortune's eve.

Lady Car. Strafford . . . Well, when the eve has its last streak

The night has its first star. [She goes out.
Straf. That voice of hers—

You'd think she had a heart sometimes!
His voice
Is soft too.

Only God can save him now.
Be Thou about his bed, about his path!

His path! Where's England's path? Diverging wide,

And not to join again the track my foot Must follow—whither? All that forlorn
way

Among the tombs! Far—far—till . . .

What, they do
Then join again, these paths? For, huge in the dusk,

There's—Pym to face!

Why then, I have a foe
To close with, and a fight to fight at last Worthy my soul! What, do they beard the

King,

And shall the King want Strafford at his need?

Am I not here?

Not in the market-place,
Pressed on by the rough artisans, so proud

To catch a glance from Wentworth! They lie down

Hungry yet smile 'Why, it must end some
day:

'Is he not watching for our sake?' Not
there!

But in Whitehall, the whited sepulchre,
The . . .

Curse nothing to-night! Only one name

They'll curse in all those streets to-night.
Whose fault?

Did I make kings? set up, the first, a man
To represent the multitude, receive

All love in right of them—supplant them
so,

Until you love the man and not the king—
The man with the mild voice and mournful eyes

Which send me forth.

—To breast the bloody sea
That sweeps before me: with one star for guide.

Night has its first, supreme, forsaken star.

ACT III

SCENE I.—*Opposite Westminster Hall.*SIR HENRY VANE, LORD SAVILE, LORD HOLLAND and others of the Court.Sir H. Vane. The Commons thrust you out?Sav. And what kept you from sharing their civility?Sir H. Vane. Kept me?
Fresh news from Scotland, sir! worse than the last,If that may be. All's up with Strafford there:Nothing to bar the mad Scots marching hitherNext Lord's-day morning. That detained me, sir!Well now, before they thrust you out,—go on,—Their Speaker—did the fellow Lenthall say
All we set down for him?Holland. Not a word missed.
Ere he began, we entered, Savile, IAnd Bristol and some more, with hope to breedA wholesome awe in the new Parliament.
But such a gang of graceless ruffians, Vane,
As glared at us!

Vane. So many?

Sav. Not a bench
Without its complement of burly knaves;
Your hopeful son among them: Hampden
leant

Upon his shoulder—think of that!

Vane. I'd think
On Lenthall's speech, if I could get at it.Urged he, I ask, how grateful they should proveFor this unlooked-for summons from the King?

Holland. Just as we drilled him.

Vane. That the Scots will march
On London?Holland. All, and made so much of it,
A dozen subsidies at least seemed sure

To follow, when . . .

Vane. Well?

Holland. 'Tis a strange thing, now!
I've a vague memory of a sort of sound,
A voice, a kind of vast unnatural voice—Pym, sir, was speaking! Savile, help me
out:

What was it all?

Sav. Something about 'a matter'—
No,—'work for England.'Holland. 'England's great revenge'
He talked of.Sav. How should I get used to Pym More than yourselves?Holland. However that be,
'Twas something with which we had nought to do,For we were 'strangers' and 'twas 'England's work'—(All this while looking us straight in the face)In other words, our presence might be spared.So, in the twinkling of an eye, before I settled to my mind what ugly bruteWas likest Pym just then, they yelled us out,Locked the doors after us, and here are we.
Vane. Eliot's old method . . .Sav. Prithee, Vane, a truce
To Eliot and his times; and the greatDuke,
And how to manage Parliaments! 'Twas youAdvised the Queen to summon this: why, Strafford(To do him justice) would not hear of it.
Vane. Say rather, you have done thebest of turns To Strafford: he's at York, we all know why.I would you had not set the Scots on StraffordTill Strafford put down Pym for us, my lord!Sav. Was it I altered Strafford's plans?
did I . . .

A Messenger enters.

Mes. The Queen, my lords—she sends me: follow meAt once; 'tis very urgent! she requires Your counsel: something perilous and
strange

Occasions her command.

Sav. We follow, friend!
Now, Vane;—your Parliament will plague us all!

Vane. No Strafford here beside!

Sav. If you dare hint
I had a hand in his betrayal, sir . . .Holland. Nay, find a fitter time for quarrels—PymWill overmatch the best of you; and, think,
The Queen!Vane. Come on, then: understand,
I loatheStrafford as much as any—but his use!
To keep off Pym, to screen a friend or two,

I would we had reserved him yet awhile.

SCENE II.—Whitehall.

The QUEEN and Lady CARLISLE.

Queen. It cannot be.
Lady Car. It is so.Queen. Why, the House
Have hardly met.

Lady Car. They met for that.

Queen. No, no!
Meet to impeach Lord Strafford? 'Tis a jest.

Lady Car. A bitter one.

Queen. Consider! 'Tis the House
We summoned so reluctantly, which no-
thing
But the disastrous issue of the war Persuaded us to summon. They'll wreak
all

Their spite on us, no doubt; but the old way
Is to begin by talk of grievances:
They have their grievances to busy them.

Lady Car. Pym has begun his speech.

Queen. Where's Vane?—That is, Pym will impeach Lord Strafford if he
leaves
His Presidency; he's at York, we know, Since the Scots beat him: why should he leave York?

Lady Car. Because the King sent for
him.

Queen. Ah—but if
The King did send for him, he let him know
We had been forced to call a Parliament—
A step which Strafford, now I come to think,
Was vehement against.

Lady Car. The policy
Escaped him, of first striking Parliaments
To earth, then setting them upon their feet
And giving them a sword: but this is idle.
Did the King send for Strafford? He will come.

Queen. And what am I to do?

Lady Car. What do? Fail, madam!
Be ruined for his sake! what matters how,
So it but stand on record that you made
An effort, only one?

Queen. The King away
At Theobald's!

Lady Car. Send for him at once: he must Dissolve the House.

Queen. Wait till Vane finds the truth
Of the report: then . . .

Lady Car. —It will matter little What the King does. Strafford that lends his arm
And breaks his heart for you!

Sir H. VANE enters.

Vane. The Commons, madam,
Are sitting with closed doors. A huge debate,
No lack of noise; but nothing, I should guess,
Concerning Strafford: Pym has certainly Not spoken yet.

Queen [to Lady CARLISLE]. You hear?

Lady Car. I do not hear That the King's sent for!

Vane. Savile will be able To tell you more.

HOLLAND enters.

Queen. The last news, Holland?

Holland. Pym
Is raging like a fire. The whole House
means

To follow him together to Whitehall
And force the King to give up Strafford.

Queen. Strafford?

Holland. If they content themselves with Strafford! Laud

Is talked of, Cottington and Windebank
too.

Pym has not left out one of them—I would
You heard Pym raging!

Queen. Vane, go find the King!
Tell the King, Vane, the People follow Pym
To brave us at Whitehall!

SAVILE enters.

Sav. Not to Whitehall—
'Tis to the Lords they go: they seek redress
On Strafford from his peers—the legal way,
They call it.

Queen. (Wait, Vane!)

Sav. But the adage gives Long life to threatened men. Strafford can save

Himself so readily: at York, remember,
In his own county: what has he to fear?
The Commons only mean to frighten him From leaving York. Surely, he will not
come.

Queen. Lucy, he will not come!

Lady Car. Once more, the King
Has sent for Strafford. He will come.

Vane. Oh doubtless!
And bring destruction with him: that's his
way.

What but his coming spoilt all Conway's plan?

The King must take his counsel, choose his
friends,

Be wholly ruled by him! What's the result?
The North that was to rise, Ireland to

help—
What came of it? In my poor mind, a fright

Is no prodigious punishment.

Lady Car. A fright?

Pym will fail worse than Strafford if he thinks

To frighten him. [To the QUEEN.] You will not save him then?

Sav. When something like a charge is made, the King

Will best know how to save him: and 'tis
clear,

While Strafford suffers nothing by the
matter,

The King may reap advantage: this in question,

No dinning you with ship-money complaints!

Queen [to Lady CARLISLE]. If we dissolve them, who will pay the army?
Protect us from the insolent Scots?

Lady Car. In truth,
I know not, madam. Strafford's fate concerns

Me little: you desired to learn what course
Would save him: I obey you.

Vane. Notice, too,
There can't be fairer ground for taking full Revenge—(Strafford's revengeful)—than he'll have

Against his old friend Pym.

Queen. Why, he shall claim Vengeance on Pym!

Vane. And Strafford, who is he
To 'scape unscathed amid the accidents
That harass all beside? I, for my part,
Should look for something of discomfiture
Had the King trusted me so thoroughly
And been so paid for it.

Holland. He'll keep at York:
All will blow over: he'll return no worse,
Humbled a little, thankful for a place
Under as good a man. Oh, we'll dispense With seeing Strafford for a month or two!

STRAFFORD enters.

Queen. You here!

Straf. The King sends for me,
madam.

Queen. Sir,
The King . . .

Straf. An urgent matter that imports the King!

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Why, Lucy, what's in agitation now,

That all this muttering and shrugging, see,
Begins at me? They do not speak!

Lady Car. 'Tis welcome!
For we are proud of you—happy and proud To have you with us, S^rafford! You were staunch

At Durham: you did well there! Had you
not

Been stayed, you might have . . . we said, even now,

Our hope's in you!

Vane [to Lady CARLISLE]. The Queen would speak with you.

Straf. Will one of you, his servants here, vouchsafe

To signify my presence to the King?
Sav. An urgent matter?

Straf. None that touches you,
Lord Savile! Say, it were some treacherous Sly pitiful intriguing with the Scots—
You would go free, at least! (They half divine

My purpose!) Madam, shall I see the
King?

The service I would render, much concerns
His welfare.

Queen. But his Majesty, my lord,

May not be here, may . . .

Straf. Its importance, then,
Must plead excuse for this withdrawal,
madam,

And for the grief it gives Lord Savile here.

Queen [who has been conversing with VANE AND HOLLAND.]. The King will see you, sir!

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Mark me:
Pym's worst

Is done by now: he has impeached the Earl,
Or found the Earl too strong for him, by
now.

Let us not seem instructed! We should
work

No good to Strafford, but deform ourselves
With shame in the world's eye. [To STRAF-FORD.] His Majesty

Has much to say with you.

Straf. Time fleeting, too!
[To Lady CARLISLE.] No means of getting them away? And she—

What does she whisper? Does she know my purpose?

What does she think of it? Get them
away!

Queen [to Lady CARLISLE]. He comes to baffle Pym—he thinks the danger
Far off: tell him no word of it! a time For help will come; we'll not be wanting
then.

Keep him in play, Lucy—you, self-possessed

And calm! [To STRAFFORD.] To spare your lordship some delay

I will myself acquaint the King. [To Lady CARLISLE.] Beware!

[The QUEEN, VANE, HOLLAND, and SAVILE go out.]

Straf. She knows it?
Lady Car. Tell me, Strafford!

Straf. Afterward!
This moment's the great moment of all
time.

She knows my purpose?

Lady Car. Thoroughly: just now
She bade me hide it from you.

Straf. Quick, dear child,
The whole o' the scheme?

Lady Car. (Ah, he would learn if they Connive at Pym's procedure! Could they
but

Have once apprised the King! But there's no time

For falsehood, now.) Strafford, the whole is known.

Straf. Known and approved?
Lady Car. Hardly discountenanced.

Straf. And the King—say, the King consents as well?

Lady Car. The King's not yet informed, but will not dare

To interpose.

Straf. What need to wait him, then?

He'll sanction it! I stayed, child, tell him, long!

It vexed me to the soul—this waiting here. You know him, there's no counting on the King.

Tell him I waited long!

Lady Car. (What can he mean? Rejoice at the King's hollowness?)

Straf. I knew They would be glad of it,—all over once, I knew they would be glad: but he'd contrive,

The Queen and he, to mar, by helping it, An angel's making.

Lady Car. (Is he mad?) Dear Strafford,

You were not wont to look so happy.

Straf. Sweet, I tried obedience thoroughly. I took The King's wild plan! of course, ere I could reach

My army, Conway ruined it. I drew The wrecks together, raised all heaven and earth,

And would have fought the Scots: the King at once

Made truce with them. Then, Lucy, then, dear child,

God put it in my mind to love, serve, die For Charles, but never to obey him more! While he endured their insolence at Ripon I fell on them at Durham. But you'll tell The King I waited? All the anteroom Is filled with my adherents.

Lady Car. Strafford—Strafford, What daring act is this you hint?

Straf. No, no! 'Tis here, not daring if you knew? all here!

(Drawing papers from his breast. Full proof, see, ample proof—does the Queen know

I have such damning proof? Bedford and Essex, Brooke, Warwick, Savile (did you notice Savile?

The simper that I spoilt?), Saye, Mandeville—

Sold to the Scots, body and soul, by Pym!

Lady Car. Great heaven!

Straf. From Savile and his lords, to Pym

And his losels, crushed!—Pym shall not ward the blow

Nor Savile creep aside from it! The Crew And the Cabal—I crush them!

Lady Car. And you, go—Strafford,—and now you go?—

Straf. —About no work In the background, I promise you! I go straight to the House of Lords to claim these knaves.

Mainwaring!

Lady Car. Stay—stay, Strafford!

Straf. She'll return,

The Queen—some little project of her own! No time to lose: the King takes fright perhaps.

Lady Car. Pym's strong, remember!

Straf. Very strong, as fits The Faction's head—with no offence to

Hampden,

Vane, Ruyard and my loving Hollis: one And all they lodge within the Tower tonight

In just equality, Bryan! Mainwaring!

(Many of his Adherents enter.

The Peers debate just now (a lucky chance).

On the Scots' war; my visit's opportune.

When all is over, Bryan, you proceed

To Ireland: these dispatches, mark me,

Bryan,

Are for the Deputy, and these for Ormond:

We want the army here—my army, raised

At such a cost, that should have done such good,

And was inactive all the time! no matter, We'll find a use for it. Willis . . . or, no—you! You, friend, make haste to York: bear this at once . . .

Or,—better stay for form's sake, see yourself

The news you carry. You remain with me To execute the Parliament's command, Mainwaring! Help to seize these lesser knaves,

Take care there's no escaping at back-doors;

I'll not have one escape, mind me—not one!

I seem revengeful, Lucy? Did you know What these men dare!

Lady Car. It is so much they dare!

Straf. I proved that long ago; my turn is now.

Keep sharp watch, Goring, on the citizens! Observe who harbours any of the brood

That scramble off: be sure they smart for it! Our coffers are but lean.

And you, child, too, Shall have your task; deliver this to Laud.

Laud will not be the slowest in my praise: 'Thorough' he'll cry!—Foolish, to be so glad!

This life is gay and glowing, after all: 'Tis worth while, Lucy, having foes like

mine

Just for the bliss of crushing them. To-day Is worth the living for.

Lady Car. That reddening brow!

You seem . . .

Straf. Well—do I not? I would be well—

I could not but be well on such a day!

And, this day ended, 'tis of slight import How long the ravaged frame subjects the

soul

In Strafford.

Lady Car. Noble Strafford!
Straf. No farewell!
 I'll see you anon, to-morrow—the first thing.
 —If She should come to stay me!
Lady Car. Go—'tis nothing—
 Only my heart that swells: it has been thus Ere now: go, Strafford.
Straf. To-night, then, let it be.
 I must see Him: you, the next after Him.
 I'll tell you how Pym looked. Follow me,
 friends!
 You, gentlemen, shall see a sight this hour
 To talk of all your lives. Close after me!
 'My friend of friends!'

[STRAFFORD and the rest go out.
Lady Car. The King—ever the King!
 No thought of one beside, whose little word Unveils the King to him—one word from
 me,
 Which yet I do not breathe!
 Ah, have I spared
 Strafford a pang, and shall I seek reward Beyond that memory? Surely too, some
 way
 He is the better for my love. No, no—
 He would not look so joyous—I'll believe His very eye would never sparkle thus,
 Had I not prayed for him this long, long while.

SCENE III.—The Antechamber of the House of Lords.

Many of the Presbyterian Party. The Adherents of STRAFFORD, etc.

A Group of Presbyterians.—1. I tell you he struck Maxwell: Maxwell sought To stay the Earl: he struck him and passed
 on.

2. Fear as you may, keep a good countenance
 Before these rufflers.

3. Strafford here the first,
 With the great army at his back!

4. No doubt.
 I would Pym had made haste: that's Bryan, hush—

The gallant pointing.
Strafford's Followers.—1. Mark these worthies, now!

2. A goodly gathering! 'Where the carcass is

'There shall the eagles'—what's the rest?

3. For eagles
 Say crows.

A Presbyterian. Stand back, sirs!
One of Strafford's Followers. Are we in Geneva?

A Presbyterian. No, nor in Ireland; we have leave to breathe.

One of Strafford's Followers. Truly?
 Behold how privileged we be

That serve 'King Pym'! There's Someone at Whitehall
 Who skulks obscure; but Pym struts . . .

The Presbyterian. Nearer.

A Follower of Strafford. Higher,
 We look to see him. [To his Companions.]

I'm to have St. John

In charge; was he among the knaves just
 now

That followed Pym within there?

Another. The gaunt man

Talking with Rudyard. Did the Earl expect Pym at his heels so fast? I like it not.

MAXWELL enters.

Another. Why, man, they rush into the net! Here's Maxwell—

Ha, Maxwell? How the brethren flock
 around

The fellow! Do you feel the Earl's hand yet Upon your shoulder, Maxwell?

Max. Gentlemen,
 Stand back! a great thing passes here.

A Follower of Strafford. [To another.] The Earl

Is at his work! [To M.] Say, Maxwell, what great thing!

Speak out! [To a Presbyterian.] Friend,
 I've a kindness for you! Friend,

I've seen you with St. John: O stockish-
 ness!

Wear such a ruff, and never call to mind
 St. John's head in a charger? How, the plague,

 Not laugh?

Another. Say, Maxwell, what great
 thing!

Another. Nay, wait:
 The jest will be to wait.

First. And who's to bear These demure hypocrites? You'd swear they came . . .

 Came . . . just as we come!

[A Puritan enters hastily and without observing STRAFFORD'S Followers.

The Puritan. How goes on the work?
 Has Pym . . .

A Follower of Strafford. The secret's out at last. Aha,

The carrion's scented! Welcome, crow the
 first!

Gorge merrily, you with the blinking eye!
 'King Pym has fallen!'

The Puritan. Pym?

A Strafford. Pym!

A Presbyterian. Only Pym?

Many of Strafford's Followers. No, brother, not Pym only; Vane as well,

Rudyard as well, Hampden, St. John as
 well!

A Presbyterian. My mind misgives: can it be true?

Another. Lost! Lost!

A Strafford. Say we true, Maxwell?

The Puritan. Pride before destruction,
A haughty spirit goeth before a fall.

Many of Strafford's Followers. Ah now!

The very thing! A word in season!

A golden apple in a silver picture,
To greet Pym as he passes!

[The doors at the back begin to open, noise and light issuing.]

Max. Stand back, all!

Many of the Presbyterians. I hold with Pym! And I!

Strafford's Followers. Now for the text!
He comes! Quick!

The Puritan. How hath the oppressor ceased!

The Lord hath broken the staff of the wicked!

The sceptre of the rulers, he who smote
The people in wrath with a continual stroke,

That ruled the nations in his anger—he
Is persecuted and none hindereth!

[The doors open, and STRAFFORD issues in the greatest disorder, and amid cries from within of 'Void the House!']

Straf. Impeach me! Pym! I never struck, I think,

The felon on that calm insulting mouth
When it proclaimed—Pym's mouth proclaimed me . . . God!

Was it a word, only a word that held
The outrageous blood back on my heart—which beats!

Which beats! Some one word—'Traitor,' did he say,

Bending that eye, brimful of bitter fire,
Upon me?

Max. In the Commons' name, their servant

Demands Lord Strafford's sword.

Straf. What did you say?

Max. The Commons bid me ask your lordship's sword.

Straf. Let us go forth: follow me, gentle-
men!

Draw your swords too: cut any down that bar us.

On the King's service! Maxwell, clear the way! [The Presbyterians prepare to dispute his passage.]

Straf. I stay: the King himself shall see me here.

Your tablets, fellow!

[To MAINWARING.] Give that to the
King!

Yes, Maxwell, for the next half-hour; let
be!

Nay, you shall take my sword!

[MAXWELL advances to take it.]

Or, no—not that!

Their blood, perhaps, may wipe out all thus
far,

All up to that—not that! Why, friend, you
see

When the King lays your head beneath my
foot

It will not pay for that. Go, all of you!

Max. I dare, my lord, to disobey: none

stir!

Straf. This gentle Maxwell!—Do not touch him, Bryan!

[To the Presbyterians.] Whichever cur of you will carry this

Escapes his fellow's fate. None saves his life?

None?

[Cries from within of 'STRAFFORD!' Slingsby, I've loved you at least:

make haste!

Stab me! I have not time to tell you why.
You then, my Bryan! Mainwaring, you

then!

Is it because I spoke so hastily

At Allerton? The King had vexed me.

[To the Presbyterians.] You!

—Not even you? If I live over this,

The King is sure to have your heads, you
know!

But what if I can't live this minute
through?

Pym, who is there with his pursuing smile!

[Louder cries of 'STRAFFORD!']

The King! I troubled him, stood in the
way

Of his negotiations, was the one

Great obstacle to peace, the Enemy

Of Scotland: and he sent for me, from York,

My safety guaranteed—having prepared
A Parliament—I see! And at Whitehall

The Queen was whispering with Vane—I
see

The trap! [Tearing off the George.]

I tread a gewgaw underfoot,

And cast a memory from me. One stroke,
now!

[His own Adherents disarm him. Renewed cries of 'STRAFFORD!']

England! I see thy arm in this and yield.

Pray you now—Pym awaits me—pray you
now!

[STRAFFORD reaches the doors: they open wide. HAMPDEN and a crowd discovered, and, at the bar, PYM standing apart. As STRAFFORD kneels, the scene shuts.]

ACT IV

SCENE I.—Whitehall.

The KING, the QUEEN, HOLLIS, Lady CAR-LISLE. (VANE, HOLLAND, SAVILE, in the background.)

Lady Car. Answer them, Hollis, for his sake! One word!

Cha. [To HOLLIS.] You stand, silent and cold, as though I were

STRAFFORD

[ACT IV

Deceiving you—my friend, my playfellow
Of other times. What wonder after all?
Just so, I dreamed my People loved me.

Hol. Sir,
It is yourself that you deceive, not me.
You'll quit me comforted, your mind made up

That, since you've talked thus much and grieved thus much,

All you can do for Strafford has been
done.

Queen. If you kill Strafford—(come, we grant you leave,
Suppose)—

Hol. I may withdraw, sir?
Lady Car. Hear them out!

'Tis the last chance for Strafford! Hear them out!

Hol. 'If we kill Strafford'—on the eighteenth day

Of Strafford's trial—'We!'

Cha. Pym, my good Hollis—
Pym, I should say!

Hol. Ah, true—sir, pardon me!
You witness our proceedings every day;
But the screened gallery, I might have guessed,

Admits of such a partial glimpse at us, Pym takes up all the room, shuts out the
view.

Still, on my honour, sir, the rest of the
place

Is not unoccupied. The Commons sit —That's England; Ireland sends, and Scotland too,

Their representatives; the Peers that judge
Are easily distinguished; one remarks
The People here and there: but the close curtain

Must hide so much!

Queen. Acquaint your insolent crew,
This day the curtain shall be dashed aside!
It served a purpose.

Hol. Think! This very day?
Ere Strafford rises to defend himself?

Cha. I will defend him, sir!—sanction
the past

This day: it ever was my purpose. Rage
At me, not Strafford!

Lady Car. Nobly!—will he not Do nobly?

Hol. Sir, you will do honestly;
And, for that deed, I too would be a king.

Cha. Only, to do this now!—'deaf' (in your style)

'To subjects' prayers,'—I must oppose
them now!

It seems their will the trial should proceed,—

So palpably their will!

Hol. You peril much,
But it were no bright moment save for that.
Strafford, your prime support, the sole roof-tree

Which props this quaking House of Privilege,

(Floods come, winds beat, and see—the treacherous sand!)

Doubtless, if the mere putting forth an arm
Could save him, you'd save Strafford.

Cha. And they dare Consummate calmly this great wrong! No
hope?

This ineffaceable wrong! No pity then?

Hol. No plague in store for perfidy?—
Farewell!

You called me, sir—[To Lady CARLISLE.] you, lady, bade me come

To save the Earl: I came, thank God for it,
To learn how far such perfidy can go!

You, sir, concert with me on saving him
Who have just ruined Strafford!

Cha. I?—and how?
Hol. Eighteen days long he throws, one after one,

Pym's charges back: a blind moth-eaten law!

—He'll break from it at last: and whom to thank?

The mouse that gnawed the lion's net for
him

Got a good friend,—but he, the other mouse,

That looked on while the lion freed himself—

Fared he so well, does any fable say?

Cha. What can you mean?
Hol. Pym never could have proved

Strafford's design of bringing up the troops
To force this kingdom to obedience:

Vane—
Your servant, not our friend, has proved it.

Cha. Vane?
Hol. This day. Did Vane deliver up or
no

Those notes which, furnished by his son to Pym,

Seal Strafford's fate?

Cha. Sir, as I live, I know Nothing that Vane has done! What treason next?

I wash my hands of it. Vane, speak the
truth!

Ask Vane himself!

Hol. I will not speak to Vane,
Who speak to Pym and Hampden every
day.

Queen. Speak to Vane's master then!
What gain to him

Were Strafford's death?

Hol. Ha? Strafford cannot turn
As you, sir, sit there—bid you forth, demand

If every hateful act were not set down
In his commission?—whether you contrived

Or no, that all the violence should seem

His work, the gentle ways—your own,— his part,
To counteract the King's kind impulses—While . . . but you know what he could say! And then
He might produce,—mark, sir!—a certain
charge
To set the King's express command aside, If need were, and be blameless. He might add . . .

Cha. Enough!

Hol. —Who bade him break
the Parliament,
Find some pretence for setting up sword-law!

Queen. Retire!

Cha. Once more, whatever Vane dared do,
I know not: he is rash, a fool—I know Nothing of Vane!

Hol. Well—I believe you, Sir,
Believe me, in return, that . . .
[Turning to Lady CARLISLE.] Gentle lady,
The few words I would say, the stone might hear

Sooner than these,—I rather speak to
you,
You, with the heart! The question, trust me, takes

Another shape, to-day: not, if the King Or England shall succumb,—but, who shall pay

The forfeit, Strafford or his master. Sir, You loved me once: think on my warning
now! [Goes out.]

Cha. On you and on your warning both!
—Carlisle!

That paper!

Queen. But consider!

Cha. Give it me!
There, signed—will that content you? Do not speak!

You have betrayed me, Vane! See! any
day,

According to the tenor of that paper,
He bids your brother bring the army up, Strafford shall head it and take full revenge.

Seek Strafford! Let him have the same,
before

He rises to defend himself!

Queen. In truth?
That your shrewd Hollis should have worked a change

Like this! You, late reluctant . . .

Cha. Say, Carlisle,
Your brother Percy brings the army up, Falls on the Parliament—(I'll think of you,
My Hollis!) say, we plotted long—'tis
mine,

The scheme is mine, remember! Say, I cursed

Vane's folly in your hearing! If the Earl Does rise to do us shame, the fault shall lie

With you, Carlisle!

Lady Car. Nay, fear not me! but
still
That's a bright moment, sir, you throw
away.

Tear down the veil and save him!

Queen. Go, Carlisle!

Lady Car. (I shall see Strafford—speak to him: my heart

Must never beat so, then! And if I tell
The truth? What's gained by falsehood?

There they stand Whose trade it is, whose life it is! How
vain

To gild such rottenness! Strafford shall
know,

Thoroughly know them!

Queen. Trust to me! [To CARLISLE.] Carlisle,

You seem inclined, alone of all the Court,
To serve poor Strafford: this bold plan of
yours

Merits much praise, and yet . . .

Lady Car. Time presses, madam.

Queen. Yet—may it not be something premature?

Strafford defends himself to-day—reserves
Some wondrous effort, one may well
suppose!

Lady Car. Ay, Hollis hints at much.

Cha. Why linger then?

Haste with the scheme—my scheme: I shall be there

To watch his look. Tell him I watch his
look!

Queen. Stay, we'll precede you!

Lady Car. At your pleasure.

Cha. Say—

Say, Vane is hardly ever at Whitehall!

I shall be there, remember!

Lady Car. Doubt me not.

Cha. On our return, Carlisle, we wait
you here!

Lady Car. I'll bring his answer. Sir, I follow you.

(Prove the King faithless, and I take away

All Strafford cares to live for: let it be—
'Tis the King's scheme!

My Strafford, I can save,
Nay, I have saved you, yet am scarce content,

Because my poor name will not cross your
mind.

Strafford, how much I am unworthy you!)

SCENE II.—A Passage adjoining Westminster Hall.

Many Groups of Spectators of the Trial.
Officers of the Court, etc.

1st Spec. More crowd than ever! Not know Hampden, man?

That's he, by Pym, Pym that is speaking
now.

STRAFFORD

[ACT IV

No, truly, if you look so high you'll see Little enough of either!

2nd Spec. Stay: Pym's arm
Points like a prophet's rod.

3rd Spec. Ay, ay, we've heard
Some pretty speaking: yet the Earl escapes.

4th Spec. I fear it: just a foolish word or two

About his children—and we see, forsooth, Not England's foe in Strafford, but the
man

Who, sick, half-blind . . .

2nd Spec. What's that Pym's saying now

Which makes the curtains flutter? look!
A hand

Clutches them. Ah! The King's hand!

5th Spec. I had thought Pym was not near so tall. What said he,
friend?

2nd Spec. 'Nor is this way a novel way of blood,'

And the Earl turns as if to . . . look!
look!

Many Spectators. There!
What ails him? no—he rallies, see—goes
on,

And Strafford smiles. Strange!

An Officer. Haselrig!

Many Spectators. Friend? Friend?

The Officer. Lost, utterly lost: just when we looked for Pym

To make a stand against the ill effects Of the Earl's speech! Is Haselrig without?

Pym's message is to him.

3rd Spec. Now, said I true?
Will the Earl leave them yet at fault or no?

1st Spec. Never believe it, man! These notes of Vane's

Ruin the Earl.

5th Spec. A brave end: not a whit Less firm, less Pym all over? Then, the trial Is closed. No—Strafford means to speak
again?

An Officer. Stand back, there!

5th Spec. Why, the Earl is coming hither!

Before the court breaks up! His brother,
look,—

You'd say he'd deprecated some fierce act
In Strafford's mind just now.

An Officer. Stand back, I say!

2nd Spec. Who's the veiled woman that he talks with?

Many Spectators. Hush—
The Earl! the Earl!

[Enter STRAFFORD, SLINGSBY, and other Secretaries, HOLLIS, Lady CARLISLE, MAXWELL, BALFOUR, etc. STRAFFORD converses with Lady CARLISLE.

Hol. So near the end! Be patient—
Return!

Straf. [to his Secretaries]. Here—anywhere—or, 'tis freshest here!

To spend one's April here, the blossom-month:

Set it down here!

[They arrange a table, papers, etc.

So, Pym can, quail, can cower
Because I glance at him, yet more's to do?
What's to be answered, Slingsby? Let us
end!

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Child, I refuse his offer; whatsoever

It be! Too late! Tell me no word of him!
'Tis something, Hollis, I assure you that—

To stand, sick as you art, some eighteen
days

Fighting for life and fame against a pack
Of very curs, that lie through thick and thin,

Eat flesh and bread by wholesale, and can't
say

'Strafford' if it would take my life!

Lady Car. Be moved!

Glance at the paper!

Straf. Already at my heels!

Pym's faulting bloodhounds scent the track again.

Peace, child! Now, Slingsby!

[Messengers from LANE and other of STRAFFORD'S Counsel within the Hall are coming and going during the Scene.

Straf. [setting himself to write and dictate]. I shall beat you, Hollis!

Do you know that? In spite of St. John's
tricks,

In spite of Pym—your Pym who shrank
from me!

Eliot would have contrived it otherwise.

[To a Messenger.] In truth? This slip, tell Lane, contains as much

As I can call to mind about the matter.

Eliot would have disdained . . .

[Calling after the Messenger.] And Radcliffe, say,

The only person who could answer Pym,
Is safe in prison, just for that.

Well, well!

It had not been recorded in that case,
I baffled you.

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Nay, child, why look so grieved?

All's gained without the King! You saw Pym quail?

What shall I do when they acquit me, think
you,

But tranquilly resume my task as though Nothing had intervened since I proposed

To call that traitor to account! Such tricks, Trust me, shall not be played a second
time,

Not even against Laud, with his grey hair—

Your good work, Hollis! Peace! To make amends,

You, Lucy, shall be here when I impeach Pym and his fellows.

Hol. Wherefore not protest Against our whole proceeding, long ago? Why feel indignant now? Why stand this while Enduring patient'y?

Straf. Child, I'll tell you— You, and not Pym—you, the slight graceful girl Tall for a flowering lily, and not Hollis— Why I stood patient! I was fool enough To see the will of England in Pym's will; To fear, myself had wronged her, and to wait

Her judgment: when, behold, in place of it . . .

[To a Messenger who whispers.] Tell Lane to answer no such question! Law,— I grapple with their law! I'm here to try My actions by their standard, not my own!

Their law allowed that levy: what's the rest

To Pym, or Lane, any but God and me?

Lady Car. The King's so weak! Secure this chance! 'Twas Vane, Never forget, who furnished Pym the notes . . .

Straf. Fit,—very fit, those precious notes of Vane,

To close the Trial worthily! I feared Some spice of nobleness might linger yet And spoil the character of all the past.

Vane eased me . . . and I will go back and say

As much—to Pym, to England! Follow me!

I have a word to say! There, my defence Is done!

Stay! why be proud? Why care to own

My gladness, my surprise?—Nay, not surprise!

Wherefore insist upon the little pride Of doing all myself, and sparing him

The pain? Child, say the triumph is my King's!

When Pym grew pale, and trembled, and sank down,

One image was before me: could I fail?

Child, care not for the past, so indistinct, Obscure—there's nothing to forgive in it

'Tis so forgotten! From this day begins A new life, founded on a new belief

In Charles.

Hol. In Charles? Rather believe in Pym!

And here he comes in proof! Appeal to Pym!

Say how unfair . . .

Straf. To Pym? I would say nothing!

I would not look upon Pym's face again.

Lady Car. Stay, let me have to think I pressed your hand!

[STRAFFORD and his friends go out.]

Enter HAMPDEN and VANE.

Vane. O Hampden, save the great misguided man!

Plead Strafford's cause with Pym! I have remarked

He moved no muscle when we all de- claimed

Against him: you had but to breathe—he turned

Those kind calm eyes upon you.

[Enter PYM, the Solicitor-General ST. JOHN, the Managers of the Trial, FIENNES, RUDYARD, etc.]

Rud. Horrible! Till now all hearts were with you: I with- draw

For one. Too horrible! But we mistake Your purpose, Pym: you cannot snatch away The last spar from the drowning man.

Fien. He talks With St. John of it—see, how quietly!

[To other Presbyterians.] You'll join us? Strafford may deserve the worst:

But this new course is monstrous. Vane, take heart!

This Bill of his Attainder shall not have One true man's hand to it.

Vane. Consider, Pym! Confront your Bill, your own Bill: what is it?

You cannot catch the Earl on any charge,—

No man will say the law has hold of him On any charge; and therefore you resolve

To take the general sense on his desert, As though no law existed, and we met

To found one. You refer to Parliament To speak its thought upon the abortive mass Of half-borne-out assertions, dubious hints Hereafter to be cleared, distortions—ay,

And wild inventions. Every man is saved The task of fixing any single charge

On Strafford: he has but to see in him The enemy of England.

Pym. A right scruple! I have heard some called England's enemy

With less consideration.

Vane. Pity me! Indeed you made me think I was your friend! I who have murdered Strafford, how re- move

That memory from me?

Pym. I absolve you, Vane. Take you no care for aught that you have done!

STRAFFORD

[ACT IV

Vane. John Hampden, not this Bill!
Reject this Bill!

He staggers through the ordeal: let him go,
Strew no fresh fire before him! Plead for us!

When Strafford spoke, your eyes were thick with tears!

Hamp. England speaks louder: who are we, to play

The generous pardoner at her expense,
Magnanimously waive advantages,
And, if he conquer us, applaud his skill?

Vane. He was your friend.

Pym. I have heard that before.

Fien. And England trusts you.

Hamp. Shame be his, who turns
The opportunity of serving her
She trusts him with, to his own mean account—

Who would look nobly frank at her expense!

Fien. I never thought it could have come to this.

Pym. But I have made myself familiar,
Fiennes,

With this one thought—have walked, and sat, and slept,

This thought before me. I have done such things,

Being the chosen man that should destroy
The traitor. You have taken up this thought

To play with, for a gentle stimulant,
To give a dignity to idler life
By the dim prospect of emprise to come,
But ever with the softening, sure belief,
That all would end some strange way right at last.

Fien. Had we made out some weightier charge!

Pym. You say
That these are petty charges: can we come To the real charge at all? There he is safe
In tyranny's stronghold. Apostasy

Is not a crime, treachery not a crime:
The cheek burns, the blood tingles, when you speak

The words, but where's the power to take revenge

Upon them? We must make occasion
serve,—

The oversight shall pay for the main sin
That mocks us.

Rud. But this unexampled course,
This Bill!

Pym. By this, we roll the clouds away
Of precedent and custom, and at once
Bid the great beacon-light God sets in all,
The conscience of each bosom, shine upon The guilt of Strafford: each man lay his
hand

Upon his breast, and judge!

Vane.

I only see

Strafford, nor pass his corpse for all beyond!

Rud. and others. Forgive him! He would join us, now he finds

What the King counts reward! The pardon, too,

Should be your own. Yourself should bear to Strafford

The pardon of the Commons.

Pym. Meet him? Strafford?

Have we to meet once more, then? Be it so!
And yet—the prophecy seemed half fulfilled

When, at the Trial, as he gazed, my youth,
Our friendship, divers thoughts came back at once

And left me, for a time . . . 'Tis very sad!

To-morrow we discuss the points of law
With Lane—to-morrow?

Vane. Not before to-morrow—

So, time enough! I knew you would relent!

Pym. The next day, Haselrig, you introduce
The Bill of his Attainder. Pray for me!

SCENE III.—Whitehall.

The KING.

Cha. My loyal servant! To defend himself

Thus irresistibly,—withholding aught
That seemed to implicate us!

We have done
Less gallantly by Strafford. Well, the future
Must recompense the past.

She tarries long.
I understand you, Strafford, now!

The scheme—
Carlisle's mad scheme—he'll sanction it,

I fear,
For love of me. 'Twas too precipitate:

Before the army's fairly on its march,
He'll be a large: no matter.

Well, Carlisle?

Enter Pym.

Pym. Fear me not, sir:—my mission is to save,

This time.

Cha. To break thus on me! Unannounced!

Pym. It is of Strafford I would speak.

Cha. No more Of Strafford! I have heard too much from
you.

Pym. I spoke, sir, for the People; will you hear

A word upon my own account?

Cha. Of Strafford?

(So turns the tide already? Have we tamed

The insolent brawler?—Strafford's eloquence

Is swift in its effect.) Lord Strafford, sir,
Has spoken for himself.

Pym. Sufficiently.
I would apprise you of the novel course
The People take: the Trial fails.

Cha. Yes, yes:
We are aware, sir; for your part in it Means shall be found to thank you.

Pym. Pray you, read This schedule! I would learn from your own mouth

—(It is a matter much concerning me)—
Whether, if two Estates of us concede
The death of Strafford, on the grounds set
forth

Within that parchment, you, sir, can resolve

To grant your own consent to it. This Bill
Is framed by me. If you determine, sir, That England's manifested will should guide

Your judgment, else another week such will Shall manifest itself. If not,—I cast Aside the measure.

Cha. You can hinder, then,
The introduction of this Bill?

Pym. I can.
Cha. He is my friend, sir: I have wronged him: mark you,

Had I not wronged him, this might be.
You think Because you hate the Earl . . . (turn not
away,

We know you hate him)—no one else could love

Strafford: but he has saved me, some affirm.

Think of his pride! And do you know one
strange,

One frightful thing? We all have used the
man

As though a drudge of ours, with not a source.

Of happy thoughts except in us; and yet Strafford has wife and children, household
cares,

Just as if we had never been. Ah sir,
You are moved, even you, a solitary man
Wed to your cause—to England if you
will!

Pym. Yes—think, my soul—to England! Draw not back!

Cha. Prevent that Bill, sir! All your course seems fair

Till now. Why, in the end, 'tis I should sign

The warrant for his death! You have said
much

I ponder on; I never meant, indeed!
Strafford should serve me any more. I
take

The Commons' counsel; but this Bill is
yours—

Not worthy of its leader: care not, sir,

For that, however! I will quite forget
You named it to me. You are satisfied?

Pym. Listen to me, sir! Eliot laid his
hand,

Wasted and white, upon my forehead
once;

Wentworth—he's gone now!—has talked on, whole nights,

And I beside him; Hampden loves me: sir,
How can I breathe and not wish England

well,
And her King well?

Cha. I thank you, sir, who leave
That King his servant. Thanks, sir!

Pym. Let me speak!
—Who may not speak again; whose spirit yearns

For a cool night after this weary day:
—Who would not have my soul turn sicker
yet

In a new task, more fatal, more august,
More full of England's utter weal or woe.

I thought, sir, could I find myself with
you,

After this trial, alone, as man to man—
I might say something, warn you, pray you, save—

Mark me, King Charles, save—you!
But God must do it. Yet I warn you, sir—
(With Strafford's faded eyes yet full on me)

As you would have no deeper question moved

—'How long the Many must endure the
One,'

Assure me, sir, if England give assent
To Strafford's death, you will not interfere!
Or—

Cha. God forsakes me. I am in a net
And cannot move. Let all be as you say!

Enter Lady CARLISLE.

Lady Car. He loves you—looking beautiful with joy

Because you sent me! he would spare you
all

The pain! he never dreamed you would forsake

Your servant in the evil day—nay, see Your scheme returned! That generous heart of his!

He needs it not—or, needing it, disdains
A course that might endanger you—you,
sir,

Whom Strafford from his inmost soul . . .
[Seeing Pym.] Well met!

No fear for Strafford! All that's true and brave

On your own side shall help us: we are now
Stronger than ever.

Ha—what, sir, is this?
All is not well! What parchment have you
there?

Pym. Sir, much is saved us both.
Lady Car. This Bill! Your lip

STRAFFORD

[ACT V

Whitens—you could not read one line to me
Your voice would falter so!
Pym. No recreant yet!
The great word went from England to my soul,
And I arose. The end is very near.
Lady Car. I am to save him! All have shrunk beside;
'Tis only I am left. Heaven will make strong
The hand now as the heart. Then let both die!

ACT V

SCENE I.—Whitehall.

HOLLIS, Lady CARLISLE.

Hol. Tell the King then! Come in with me!
Lady Car. Not so!
He must not hear till it succeeds.
Hol. Succeed?
No dream was half so vain—you'd rescue
Strafford
And outwit Pym! I cannot tell you... lady,
The block pursues me, and the hideous show.
To-day... is it to-day? And all the while He's sure of the King's pardon. Think, I have To tell this man he is to die. The King
May rend his hair, for me! I'll not see
Strafford!
Lady Car. Only, if I succeed, remember
—Charles
Has saved him. He would hardly value
life
Unless his gift. My staunch friends wait.
Go in—
You must go in to Charles!
Hol. And all beside Left Strafford long ago. The King has signed
The warrant for his death! the Queen was sick
Of the eternal subject. For the Court,—
The Trial was amusing in its way,
Only too much of it: the Earl withdrew
In time. But you, fragile, alone, so young Amid rude mercenaries—you devise
A plan to save him! Even though it fails,
What shall reward you?
Lady Car. I may go, you think,
To France with him? And you reward me,
friend,
Who lived with Strafford even from his youth
Before he set his heart on state-affairs And they bent down that noble brow of his.
I have learned somewhat of his latter life,
And all the future I shall know: but, Hollis,

I ought to make his youth my own as well.
Tell me,—when he is saved!

Hol. My gentle friend,
He should know all and love you, but 'tis
vain!

Lady Car. Love? no—too late now!
Let him love the King!

'Tis the King's scheme! I have your word, remember!

We'll keep the old delusion up. But, quick!
Quick! Each of us has work to do, beside!
Go to the King! I hope—Hollis—I hope!
Say nothing of my scheme! Hush, while we speak

Think where he is! Now for my gallant
friends!

Hol. Where he is? Calling wildly upon
Charles,
Guessing his fate, pacing the prison-floor.
Let the King tell him! I'll not look on Strafford.

SCENE II.—The Tower.

STRAFFORD sitting with his Children.
They sing.

*O bell' andare
Per barca in mare,
Verso la sera
Di Primavera!*

William. The boat's in the broad moonlight all this while—

Di Primavera!*

And the boat shoots from underneath the
moon
Into the shadowy distance; only still You hear the dipping oar—

Verso la sera,

And faint, and fainter, and then all's quite
gone,

Music and light and all, like a lost star.

Anne. But you should sleep, father: you were to sleep.

Straf. I do sleep, Anne; or if not—you must know

There's such a thing as...
Wil. You're too tired to sleep?

Straf. It will come by-and-by and all day long.

In that old quiet house I told you of:

We sleep safe there.

Anne. Why not in Ireland?
Straf. No!

Too many dreams!—That song's for Venice, William:

You know how Venice looks upon the map—

Isles that the mainland hardly can let go?

Wil. You've been to Venice, father?
Straf. I was young, then.

Wil. A city with no King; that's why I like

Even a song that comes from Venice.

Straf. William!

Wil. Oh, I know why! Anne, do you love the King?

But I'll see Venice for myself one day.

Straf. See many lands, boy—England last of all,—

That way you'll love her best.

Wil. Why do men say

You sought to ruin her then?

Straf. Ah,—they say that.

Wil. Why?

Straf. I suppose they must have words to say,

As you to sing.

Anne. But they make songs beside:

Last night I heard one, in the street beneath,

That called you . . . Oh, the names!

Wil. Don't mind her, father!

They soon left off when I cried out to them.

Straf. We shall so soon be out of it, my boy!

'Tis not worth while: who heeds a foolish song?

Wil. Why, not the King.

Straf. Well: it has been the fate Of better; and yet,—wherefore not feel sure

That Time, who in the twilight comes to mend

All the fantastic day's caprice, consign To the low ground once more the ignoble

Term,

And raise the Genius on his orb again,— That Time will do me right?

Anne. (Shall we sing, William?)

He does not look thus when we sing.)

Straf. For Ireland,

Something is done: too little, but enough To show what might have been.

Wil. (I have no heart

To sing now! Anne, how very sad he looks!

Oh, I so hate the King for all he says!)

Straf. Forsook them! What, the common songs will run

That I forsook the People? Nothing more?

Ay, Fame, the busy scribe, will pause, no doubt,

Turning a deaf ear to her thousand slaves Noisy to be enrolled,—will register

The curious glosses, subtle notices, Ingenious clearings-up one fain would see

Beside that plain inscription of The Name—

The Patriot Pym, or the Apostate Strafford!

[The Children resume their song timidly, but break off.

Enter HOLLIS and an Attendant.

Straf. No,—Hollis? in good time!— Who is he?

Hol. One

That must be present.

Straf. Ah—I understand.

They will not let me see poor Laud alone. How politic! They'd use me by degrees

To solitude: and, just as you came in,

I was solicitous what life to lead

When Strafford's 'not so much as Con- stable

'In the King's service.' Is there any means To keep oneself awake? What would you

do

After this bustle, Hollis, in my place?

Hol. Strafford!

Straf. Observe, not but that

Pym and you

Will find me news enough—news I shall hear

Under a quince-tree by a fish-pond side At Wentworth. Garrard must be re-engaged

My newsman. Or, a better project now— What if when all's consummated, and the

Saints

Reign, and the Senate's work goes swim- mingly,—

What if I venture up, some day, unseen, To saunter through the Town, notice how

Pym,

Your Tribune, likes Whitehall, drop quietly Into a tavern, hear a point discussed,

As, whether Strafford's name were John or James—

And be myself appealed to—I, who shall Myself have near forgotten!

Hol.

Straf. Then you shall speak,—not now.

I want, just now,

To hear the sound of my own tongue. This place

Is full of ghosts.

Hol. Nay, you must hear me,

Strafford!

Straf. Oh, readily! Only, one rare thing more,—

The minister! Who will advise the King, Turn his Sejanus, Richelieu and what not,

And yet have health—children, for aught I know—

My patient pair of traitors! Ah,—but, William—

Does not his cheek grow thin?

Wil.

'Tis you look thin,

Father!

Straf. A scamper o'er the breezy wolds Sets all to-rights.

Hol.

You cannot sure forget

A prison-roof is o'er you, Strafford? Straf. No,

STRAFFORD

[ACT V

Why, no. I would not touch on that, the first.

I left you that. Well, Hollis? Say at once, The King can find no time to set me free! A mask at Theobald's?

Hol. Hold: no such affair Detains him.

Straf. True: what needs so great a matter?

The Queen's lip may be sore. Well: when he pleases,—

Only, I want the air: it vexes flesh To be pent up so long.

Hol. The King—I bear His message, Strafford: pray you, let me speak!

Straf. Go, William! Anne, try o'er your song again!

[The Children retire. They shall be loyal, friend, at all events. I know your message: you have nothing new

To tell me: from the first I guessed as much. I know, instead of coming here himself, Leading me forth in public by the hand, The King prefers to leave the door ajar As though I were escaping—bids me trudge While the mob gapes upon some show prepared

On the other side of the river! Give at once His order of release! I've heard, as well Of certain poor manœuvres to avoid The granting pardon at his proper risk; First, he must prattle somewhat to the Lords, Must talk a trifle with the Commons first, Be grieved I should abuse his confidence, And far from blaming them, and . . .

Where's the order?

Hol. Spare me!

Straf. Why, he'd not have me steal away?

With an old doublet and a steeple hat Like Prynne's? Be smuggled into France, perhaps?

Hollis, 'tis for my children! 'Twas for them I first consented to stand day by day And give your Puritans the best of words, Be patient, speak when called upon, observe Their rules, and not return them prompt their lie!

What's in that boy of mine that he should prove

Son to a prison-breaker? I shall stay And he'll stay with me. Charles should know as much,

He too has children!

[Turning to HOLLIS's Companion.] Sir, you feel for me!

No need to hide that face! Though it have looked Upon me from the judgment-seat . . . I know

¹ A house near Cheshunt in Herts.

Strangely, that somewhere it has looked on me . . .

Your coming has my pardon, nay, my thanks:

For there is one who comes not.

Hol. Whom forgive, As one to die!

Straf. True: all die, and all need Forgiveness: I forgive him from my soul.

Hol. 'Tis a world's wonder: Strafford, you must die!

Straf. Sir, if your errand is to set me free This heartless jest mars much. Ha! Tears in truth?

We'll end this! See this paper, warm—feel—warm

With lying next my heart! Whose hand is there?

Whose promise? Read, and loud for God to hear!

'Strafford shall take no hurt'—read it, I say!

'In person, honour, nor estate'—

Hol. The King . . . Straf. I could unking him by a breath! You sit

Where Loudon sat, who came to prophesy The certain end, and offer me Pym's grace If I'd renounce the King: and I stood firm On the King's faith. The King who lives . . .

Hol. To sign The warrant for your death.

Straf. 'Put not your trust 'In princes, neither in the sons of men, 'In whom is no salvation!'

Hol. Trust in God! The scaffold is prepared: they wait for you: He has consented. Cast the earth behind!

Charles. You would not see me, Strafford, at your foot!

It was wrung from me! Only, curse me not!

Hol. [to STRAFFORD]. As you hope grace and pardon in your need,

Be merciful to this most wretched man.

[Voices from within.

Verso la sera

Di Primavera.

Straf. You'll be good to those children, sir? I know

You'll not believe her, even should the Queen

Think they take after one they rarely saw. I had intended that my son should live A stranger to these matters: but you are So utterly deprived of friends! He too Must serve you—will you not be good to him?

Or, stay, sir, do not promise—do not swear!

You, Hollis—do the best you can for me! I've not a soul to trust to: Wandesford's¹ dead,

And you've got Radcliffe safe, Laud's turn comes next:

I've found small time of late for my affairs,
But I trust any of you, Pym himself—
No one could hurt them: there's an infant,
too.

These tedious car's! Your Majesty could spare them.

Nay—pardon me, my King! I had forgotten

Your education, trials, much temptation,
Some weakness: there escaped a peevish word—

'Tis gone: I bless you at the last. You know All's between you and me: what has the world

To do with it? Farewell!

Cha. [at the door]. Balfour! Balfour!

Enter BALFOUR.

The Parliament!—go to them: I grant all Demands. Their sittings shall be permanent:

Tell them to keep their money if they will.
I'll come to them for every coat I wear
And every crust I eat: only I choose To pardon Strafford. As the Queen shall choose!

—You never heard the People howl for blood,

Beside!

Bal. Your Majesty may hear them now:
The walls can hardly keep their murmurs out:

Please you retire!

Cha. Take all the troops, Balfour!

Bal. There are some hundred thousand of the crowd.

Cha. Come with me, Strafford! You'll not fear, at least!

Straf. Balfour, say nothing to the world of this!

I charge you, as a dying man, forget
You gazed upon this agony of one . . .

Of one . . . or if . . . why you may say,
Balfour,

The King was sorry: 'tis no shame in him:
Yes, you may say he even wept, Balfour,
And that I walked the lighter to the block
Because of it. I shall walk lightly, sir!
Earth fades, heaven breaks on me: I shall stand next

Before God's throne: the moment's close at hand

When man the first, last time, has leave to lay

His whole heart bare before its Maker,
leave

To clear up the long error of a life,
And choose one happiness for evermore.
With all mortality about me, Charles,
The sudden wreck, the dregs of violent
death—

What if, despite the opening angel-song,

There penetrate one prayer for you? Be saved

Through me! Bear witness, no one could prevent

My death! Lead on! ere he awake—best,
now!

All must be ready: did you say, Balfour,
The crowd began 'o murmur? They'll be kept

Too late for sermon at St. Antholin's!
Now! But tread softly—children are at play

In the next room. Precede! I follow—

Enter Lady CARLISLE, with many Attendants.

Lady Car.

Me!

Follow me, Strafford, and be saved! The
King?

[To the KING.] Well—as you ordered, they are ranged without,

The convoy . . . [seeing the KING's state.]
[To STRAFFORD.] You know all, then!

Why, I thought

It looked best that the King should save you,—Charles

Alone; 'tis a shame that you should owe me aught.

Or no, not shame! Strafford, you'll not feel shame

At being saved by me?

Hol.

All true! Oh Strafford,
She saves you! all her deed! this lady's
deed!

And is the boat in readiness? You, friend,
Are Billingsley, no doubt. Speak to her,
Strafford!

See how she trembles, waiting for your voice!

The world's to learn its bravest story yet.

Lady Car. Talk afterward! Long nights in France enough,

To sit beneath the vines and talk of home.
Straf. You love me, child? Ah, Strafford can be loved

As well as Vane! I could escape, then?

Lady Car.

Haste!

Advance the torches, Bryan!

Straf.

I will die.

They call me proud: but England had no
right,

When she encountered me—her strength to mine—

To find the chosen foe a craven. Girl,
I fought her to the utterance, I fell,

I am hers now, and I will die. Beside,
The lookers-on! Eliot is all about

This place, with his most uncomplaining
brow.

Lady Car. Strafford!

Straf.

I think if you could know how much

I love you, you would be repaid, my friend!

Lady Car. Then, for my sake!

Straf. Even for your sweet sake,
I stay.

Hol. For their sake!

Straf. To bequeath a stain?
Leave me! Girl, humour me and let me
die!

Lady Car. Bid him escape—wake,
King! Bid him escape!

Straf. True, I will go! Die, and forsake
the King?

I'll not draw back from the last service.

Lady Car. Strafford!

Straf. And, after all, what is disgrace
to me?

Let us come, child! That it should end this
way!

Lead then! but I feel strangely: it was not
To end this way.

Lady Car. Lean—lean on me!

Straf. My King!
Oh, had he trusted me—his friend of
friends!

Lady Car. I can support him, Hollis!

Straf. Not this way!
This gate—I dreamed of it, this very gate.

Lady Car. It opens on the river: our good boat

Is moored below, our friends are there.

Straf. The same:
Only with something ominous and dark,
Fatal, inevitable.

Lady Car. Strafford! Strafford!

Straf. Not by this gate! I feel what will be there!

I dreamed of it, I tell you: touch it not!

Lady Car. To save the King,—Straf-ford, to save the King!

[As STRAFFORD opens the door, PYM is discovered with HAMPDEN, VANE, etc.
STRAFFORD falls back; PYM follows slowly and confronts him.

Pym. Have I done well? Speak, England! Whose sole sake

I still have laboured for, with disregard
To my own heart,—for whom my youth was made

Barren, my manhood waste, to offer up Her sacrifice—this friend, this Wentworth
here—

Who walked in youth with me, loved me, it may be,

And whom, for his forsaking England's
cause,

I hunted by all means (trusting that she Would sanctify all means) even to the block

Which waits for him. And saying this, I feel
No bitter pang than first I felt, the hour
I swore that Wentworth might leave us,

but I

Would never leave him: I do leave him
now.

I render up my charge (be witness, God!)
To England who imposed it. I have done

Her bidding—poorly, wrongly,—it may
be,

With ill effects—for I am weak, a man:
Still, I have done my best, my human best,
Not faltering for a moment. It is done.

And this said, if I say . . . yes, I will say
I never loved but one man—David not More Jonathan! Even thus, I love him

now:

And look for my chief portion in that
world

Where great hearts led astray are turned
again,

(Soon it may be, and, certes, will be soon:
My mission over, I shall not live long.)—

Ay, here I know I talk—I dare and must,
Of England, and her great reward, as all

I look for there; but in my inmost heart,
Believe, I think of stealing quite away

To walk once more with Wentworth—my youth's friend

Purged from all error, gloriously renewed,
And Eliot shall not blame us. Then in-
deed . . .

This is no meeting, Wentworth! Tears increase

Too hot. A thin mist—is it blood?—en-wraps

The face I loved once. Then, the meeting
be!

Straf. I have loved England too; we'll meet, then, Pym.

As well die now! Youth is the only time
To think and to decide on a great course:

Manhood with action follows; but 'tis dreary,

To have to alter our whole life in age—
The time past, the strength gone! As well die now.

When we meet, Pym, I'd be set right—not
now!

Best die. Then if there's any fault, fault too Dies, smothered up. Poor grey old little

Laud

May dream his dream out, of a perfect
Church,

In some blind corner. And there's no one left.

I trust the King now wholly to you, Pym!
And yet, I know not: I shall not be there:

Friends fail—if he have any. And he's
weak,

And loves the Queen, and . . . Oh, my fate is nothing—

Nothing! But not that awful head—not
that!

Pym. If England shall declare such will
to me . . .

Straf. Pym, you help England! I, that am to die,

What I must see! 'tis here—all here! My
God,

Let me but gasp out, in one word of fire,
How thou wilt plague him, satiating hell!

What? England, that you help, become through you
 A green and putrefying charnel, left
 Our children . . . some of us have children,
 Pym—
 Some who, without that, still must ever wear
 A darkened brow, an over-serious look,
 And never properly be young! No word?
 What if I curse you? Send a strong curse
 forth Clothed from my heart, lapped round with horror till She's fit with her white face to walk the
 world
 Scaring kind natures from your cause and
 you—
 Then to sit down with you at the board-
 head,
 The gathering for prayer! . . . O speak, but
 speak!
 . . . Creep up, and quietly follow each one
 home,

You, you, you, be a nestling care for each
 To sleep with,—hardly moaning in his
 dreams,
 She gnaws so quietly,—till, lo he starts,
 Gets off with half a heart eaten away!
 Oh, shall you 'scape with less if she's my child?
 You will not say 'a word—to me—to
 Him?
 Pym. If England shall declare such will
 to me . . .
 Straf. No, not for England now, not for Heaven now,— See, Pym, for my sake, mine who kneel to
 you!
 There, I will thank you for the death, my
 friend!
 This is the meeting: let me love you well!
 Pym. England,—I am thine own! Dost thou exact
 That service? I obey thee to the end.
 Straf. O God, I shall die first—I shall die first!

SORDELLO

1840

TO J. MILSAND, OF DIJON

DEAR FRIEND,—Let the next poem be introduced by your name, therefore remembered along with one of the deepest of my affections, and so repay all trouble it ever cost me. I wrote it twenty-five years ago for only a few, counting even in these on somewhat more care about its subject than they really had. My own faults of expression were many; but with care for a man or book such would be surmounted, and without it what avails the faultlessness of either? I blame nobody, least of all myself, who did my best then and since; for I lately gave time and pains to turn my work into what the many might,—instead of what the few must,—like: but after all, I imagined another thing at first, and therefore leave as I find it. The historical decoration was purposely of no more importance than a background requires; and my stress lay on the incidents in the development of a soul: little else is worth study. I, at least, always thought so—you, with many known and unknown to me, think so—others may one day think so; and whether my attempt remain for them or not, I trust, though away and past it, to continue ever yours,

R. B.

LONDON: June 9, 1863.

BOOK THE FIRST

WHO will, may hear Sordello's story told:
 His story? Who believes me shall behold
 The man, pursue his fortunes to the end, Like me: for as the friendless-people's
 friend
 Spied from his hill-top once, despite the din
 And dust of multitudes, Pentapoli
 Named o' the Naked Arm,¹ I single out Sordello, compassed murkily about
 With ravage of six long sad hundred years.
 Only believe me. Ye believe?

Verona . . . Never,—I should warn you
 first,—
 Of my own choice had this, if not the worst

Yet not the best expedient, served to tell A story I could body forth so well
 By making speak, myself kept out of view,
 The very man as he was wont to do,
 And leaving you to say the rest for him.
 Since, though I might be proud to see the dim
 Abysmal past divide its hateful surge,
 Letting of all men this one man emerge
 Because it pleased me, yet, that moment
 past,
 I should delight in watching first to last
 His progress as you watch it, not a whit
 More in the secret than yourselves who sit Fresh-chapleted to listen. But it seems Your setters-forth of unexampled themes,
 Makers of quite new men, producing them,
 Would best chalk broadly on each vesture's hem

The wearer's quality; or take their stand, Motley on back and pointing-pole in
hand,

Beside him. So, for once I face ye, friends, Summoned together from the world's four
ends,

Dropped down from heaven or cast up from hell,

To hear the story I propose to tell.

Concess now, poets know the dragnet's
trick,

Catching the dead, if fate denies the quick,
And shaming her; 'tis not for fate to choose Silence or song because she can refuse Real eyes to glisten more, real hearts to ache

Less oft, real brows turn smoother for our
sake:

I have experienced something of her spite;
But there's a realm wherein she has no right
And I have many lovers. Say, but few Friends fate accords me? Here they are:
now view

The host I muster! Many a lighted face Foul with no vestige of the grave's dis-
grace;

What else should tempt them back to taste
our air

Except to see how their successors fare?
My audience! and they sit, each ghostly
man

Striving to look as living as he can,
Brother by breathing brother; thou art set,
Clear-witted critic, by . . . but I'll not fret
A wondrous soul of them, nor move death's spleen

Who loves not to unlock them. Friends! I mean

The living in good earnest—ye elect Chiefly for love—suppose not I reject
Judicious praise, who contrary shall peep,
Some fit occasion, forth, for fear ye sleep,
To glean your bland approvals. Then,
appear,

Verona! stay—thou, spirit, come not near
Now—not this time desert thy cloudy place
To scare me, thus employed, with that pure
face!

I need not fear this audience, I make free
With them, but then this is no place for
thee!

The thunder-phrasé of the Athenian,¹
grown

Up out of memories of Marathon,
Would echo like his own sword's griding screech

Braying a Persian shield,—the silver
speech

Of Sidney's self, the starry paladin, Turn intense as a trumpet sounding in
The knights to tilt,—wert thou to hear!
What heart

Have I to play my puppets, bear my part

¹ Æschylus.

Before these worthies?

Lo, the past is hurled
In twain: up-thrust, out-staggering on the
world.

Subsiding into shape, a darkness rears
Its outline, kindles at the core, appears Verona. 'Tis six hundred years and more Since an event. The Second Friedrich wore

The purple, and the Third Honorius filled
The holy chair. That autumn eve was stilled:

A last remains of sunset dimly burned O'er the far forests, like a torch-flame
turned

By the wind back upon its bearer's hand
In one long flare of crimson; as a brand,
The woods beneath lay black. A single
eye

From all Verona cared for the soft sky.
But, gathering in its ancient market-place, Talked group with restless group; and not a face

But wrath made livid, for among them were

Death's staunch purveyors, such as have in care

To feast him. Fear had long since taken root

In every breast, and now these crushed its fruit,

The ripe hate, like a wine: to note the
way

It worked while each grew drunk! Men grave and grey

Stood, with shut eyelids, rocking to and fro,

Letting the silent luxury trickle slow
About the hollows where a heart should
be;

But the young gulped with a delirious glee
Some foretaste of their first debauch in
blood

At the fierce news: for, be it understood,
Envoys apprised Verona that her prince Count Richard of Saint Boniface, joined
since

A year with Azzo, Este's Lord, to thrust
Taurello Salinguerra, prime in trust
With Ecelin Romano, from his seat
Ferrara,—over zealous in the feat
And stumbling on a peril unaware,
Was captive, trammelled in his proper
snare,

They phrase it, taken by his own intrigue.
Immediate succour from the Lombard
League

Of fifteen cities that affect the Pope,
For Azzo, therefore, and his fellow-hope
Of the Guelf cause, a glory overcast!
Men's faces, late agape, are now aghast.

'Prone is the purple pavis;¹ Este makes 'Mirth for the devil when he undertakes

¹ Shield.

- 'To play the Ecelin; as if it cost
 'Merely your pushing-by to gain a post
 'Like his! The patrol tells ye, once for all,
 'There be sound reasons that preferment
 fall
 'On our beloved'
 'Duke 6' the Rood, why not?'
 Shouted an Estian, "grudge ye such a lot?"
 'The hill-cat boasts some cunning of her
 own,
 'Some stealthy trick to better beasts unknown,
 'That quick with prey enough her hunger blunts,
 'And feeds her fat while gaunt the lion hunts.'
 'Taurello,' quoth an envoy, 'as in wane
 'Dwelt at Ferrara. Like an osprey fain
 'To fly but forced the earth his couch to
 make
 'Far inland, till his friend thereapest
 wake,
 'Waits he the Kaiser's coming; and as
 yet
 'That fast friend sleeps, and he too sleeps:
 but let
 'Only the billow freshen, and he snuffs
 'The aroused hurricane ere it enroughs
 'The sea it means to cross because of him.
 'Sinketh the breeze? His hope-sick eye grows dim;
 'Creep closer on the creature! Every day
 'Strengthens the Pontiff; Ecelin, they say,
 'Dozes now at Oliero, with dry lips
 'Telling upon his perished finger-tips
 'How many ancestors are to depose,
 'Ere he be Satan's Viceroy when the doze
 'Deposits him in hell. So, Guelfs rebuilt 'Their houses; not a drop of blood was spilt
 'When Cino Bocchimpane chanced to meet
 'Buccio Virtù—God's wafer, and the street
 'Is narrow! Tutti Santi, think, a-swarm 'With Ghibellins, and yet he took no harm!
 'This could not last. Off Salinguerra
 went
 'To Padua, Podestà, "with pure intent,"
 'Said he, "my presence, judged the single bar
 "'To permanent tranquillity, may jar
 "'No longer"—so! his back is fairly turned?
 'The pair of goodly palaces are burned,
 'The gardens ravaged, and our Guelfs laugh, drunk
 'A week with joy. The next, their laughter sunk
 'In sobs of blood, for they found, some strange way,
 'Old Salinguerra back again—I say,
 'Old Salinguerra in the town once more
 'Uprooting, overturning, flame before,
 'Blood fetlock-high beneath him. Azzo fled;
 'Who 'scaped the carnage followed; then the dead
 'Were pushed aside from Salinguerra's
 throne,
 'He ruled once more Ferrara, all alone,
 'Till Azzo, stunned awhile, revived, would pounce
 'Coupled with Boniface, like lynx and ounce,
 'On the gorged bird. The burghers ground their teeth
 'To see troop after troop encamp beneath
 'I' the standing corn thick o'er the scanty patch
 'It took so many patient months to snatch
 'Out of the marsh; while just within their walls
 'Men fed on men. At length Taurello calls
 'A parley: "let the Count wind up the
 war!"
 'Richard, light-hearted as a plunging star,
 'Agrees to enter for the kindest ends
 'Ferrara, flanked with fifty chosen friends,
 'No horse-boy more, for fear your timid sort
 'Should fly Ferrara at the bare report.
 'Quietly through the town they rode, jogjog;
 "'Ten, twenty, thirty,—curse the catalogue
 "'Of burnt Guelf houses! Strange, Taurello shows
 "'Not the least sign of life"—whereat arose
 'A general growl: "How? With his victors
 by?
 "'I and my Veronese? My troops and I?
 "'Receive us, was your word?" So jogged they on,
 'Nor laughed their host too openly: once
 gone
 'Into the trap!—'
 Six hundred years ago!
 Such the time's aspect and peculiar woe (Yourselves may spell it yet in chronicles, Albeit the worm, our busy brother, drills His sprawling path through letters anciently
 Made fine and large to suit some abbot's
 eye)
 When the new Hohenstauffen dropped the mask,
 Flung John of Brienne's favour from his
 casque,
 Forswore crusading, had no mind to
 leave
 Saint Peter's proxy leisure to retrieve Losses to Otho and to Barbaross,
 Or make the Alps less easy to recross;
 And, thus confirming Pope Honorius' fear,
 Was excommunicate that very year.

'The triple-bearded Teuton come to life!
Groaned the Great League; and, arming for the strife,
Wide Lombardy, on tiptoe to begin,
Took up, as it was Guelf or Ghibellin,
Its cry: what cry?

'The Emperor to come!
His crowd of feudatories, all and some,
That leapt down with a crash of swords,
spears, shields,
One fighter on his fellow to our fields, Scattered anon, took station here and
there,

And carried it, till now, with little care—
Cannot but cry for him; how else rebut
Us longer?—cliffs, an earthquake suffered jut

In the mid-sea, each domineering crest
Which nought save such another throe can wrest

From out (conceive) a certain chokeweed
grown

Since o'er the waters, twine and tangle thrown

Too thick, too fast accumulating round,
Too sure to over-riot and confound
Ere long each brilliant islet with itself,
Unless a second shock save shoal and shelf, Whirling the sea-drift wide: alas, the bruised

And sullen wreck! Sunlight to be diffused
For that!—sunlight, 'neath which, a scum
at first,

The million fibres of our chokeweed nurst Dispread themselves, mantling the troubled main,

And, shattered by those rocks, took hold
again,

So kindly blazed it—that same blaze to brood

O'er every cluster of the multitude
Still hazarding new clasps, ties, filaments,
An emulous exchange of pulses, vents
Of nature into nature; till some growth
Unfancied yet, exuberantly clothe
A surface solid now, continuous, one:

'The Pope, for us the People, who begun
'The People, carries on the People thus,
'To keep that Kaiser off and dwell with us!'

See you?

Or say, Two Principles that live
Each fitly by its Representative.

'Hill-cat'—who called him so?—the gracefullest

Adventurer, the ambiguous stranger-guest Of Lombardy (sleek but that ruffling fur, Those talons to their sheath!) whose velvet purr

Soothes jealous neighbours when a Saxon scout

—Arpo or Yoland, is it?—one without
A country or a name, presumes to couch
Beside their noblest; until men avouch

That, of all Houses in the Trevisan, Conrad descries no fitter, rear or van,
Than Ecelo! They laughed as they enrolled

That name at Milan on the page of gold, Godego's lord,—Ramòn, Marostica,
Cartigion, Bassano, Lõria,
And every sheep-cote on the Suabian's
fit!

No laughter when his son, 'the Lombard
Chief'

Forsooth, as Barbarossa's path was bent
To Italy along the Vale of Trent, Welcomed him at Ronaglia! Sadness
now—

The hamlets nested on the Tyrol's brow,
The Asolan and Euganean hills,
The Rhetian and the Julian, sadness fills Them all, for Ecelin vouchsafes to stay
Among and care about them; day by day
Chookain this pinnacle, the other spot,
A castle building to defend a cot,
A cot built for a castle to defend,

Nothing but castles, castles, nor an end
To boasts how mountain ridge may join with ridge

By sunken gallery and soaring bridge,
He takes, in brief, a figure that besems
The griesliest nightmare of the Church's
dreams,

—A Signory firm-rooted, unestranged
From its old interests, and nowise changed
By its new neighbourhood: perchance the vaunt

Of Otho, 'my own Este shall supplant 'Your Este,' come to pass. The sire led in A son as cruel; and this Ecelin Had sons, in turn, and daughters sly and tall

And curling and compliant; but for all Romano (so they styled him) throve, that neck

Of his so pinched and white, that hungry
cheek

Proved 'twas some fiend, not him, the man's-flesh went

To feed: whereas Romano's instrument, Famous Taurello Salinguerra, sole
I' the world, a tree whose boughs were slipt
the bole

Successively, why should not he shed blood
To further a design? Men understood Living was pleasant to him as he wore His careless surcoat, glanced some missive o'er,

Propped on his truncheon in the public
way,

While his lord lifted writhen hands to pray,
Lost at Oliero's convent.

Hill-cats, face
Our Azzo, our Guelf Lion! Why dis-
grace

A worthiness conspicuous near and far (Atil at Rome while free and consular,

Este at Padua who repulsed the Hun)
By trumpeting the Church's princely son?
—Styled Patron of Rovigo's Polesine, Ancona's march, Ferrara's . . . ask, in fine,
Our chronicles, commenced when some old monk

Found it intolerable to be sunk
(Vexed to the quick by his revolting cell)
Quite out of summer while alive and well:
Ended when by his mat the Prior stood,
'Mid busy promptings of the brotherhood,

Striving to coax from his decrepit brains
The reason Father Porphyry took pains To blot those ten lines out which used to
stand

First on their charter drawn by Hildebrand.

The same night wears. Verona's rule of yore

Was vested in a certain Twenty-four;
And while within his palace these debate
Concerning Richard and Ferrara's fate, Glide we by clapping doors, with sudden glare

Of cressets vented on the dark, nor care For aught that's seen or heard until we shut

The smother in, the lights, all noises but The carroch's booming; safe at last! Why
strange

Such a recess should lurk behind a range Of banquet rooms? Your finger—thus—you push

A spring, and the wall opens, would you rush

Upon the banqueters, select your prey, Waiting (the slaughter-weapons in the way Strewing this very bench) with sharpened
ear

A preconcerted signal to appear;
Or if you simply crouch with beating heart,
Bearing in some voluptuous pageant part To startle them. Nor mutes nor masquers
now;

Nor any . . . does that one man sleep whose
brow

The dying lamp-flame sinks and rises o'er?
What woman stood beside him? not the
more

Is he unfastened from the earnest eyes
Because that arras fell between! Her wise And lulling words are yet about the room,

Her presence wholly poured upon the gloom

Down even to her vesture's creeping stir.
And so reclines he, saturate with her,
Until an outcry from the square beneath Pierces the charm: he springs up, glad to breathe,

Above the cunning element, and shakes
The stupor off as (look you) morning breaks

On the gay dress, and, near concealed by it,
The lean frame like a half-burnt taper, lit Erst at some marriage-feast, then laid
'away

Till the Armenian bridegroom's dying day,
In his wool wedding-robe.

For he—for he,

Gate-vein of this hearts' blood of Lombardy,

(If I should falter now)—for he is thine!
Sordello, thy forerunner, Florentine!

A herald-star I know thou didst absorb Relentless into the consummate orb
That scared it from its right to roll along
A sempiternal path with dance and song
Fulfilling its allotted period,

Serenest of the progeny of God—
Who yet resigns it not! His darling stoops

With no quenched lights, desponds with no blank troops

Of disenfranchised brilliances, for, blent
Utterly with thee, its shy element Like thine upburneth prosperous and clear.

Still, what if I approach the august sphere Named now with only one name, disen-twine

That under-current soft and argentine
From its fierce mate in the majestic mass Leavened as the sea whose fire was mixt with glass

In John's transcendent vision,—launch
once more

That lustre? Dante, pacer of the shore Where glutted hell disgorgeth filthiest
gloom,

Unbitten by its whirling sulphur-spume—
Or whence the grieved and obscure waters slope

Into a darkness quieted by hope;
Plucker of amaranths grown beneath God's eye

In gracious twilights where his chosen lie,—

I would do this! If I should falter now!
In Mantua territory half is slough,

Half pine-tree forest; maples, scarlet oaks Breed o'er the river-beds; even Mincio
chokes

With sand the summer through: but 'tis morass

In winter up to Mantua walls. There was,
Some thirty years before this evening's coil,
One spot reclaimed from the surrounding spoil,

Goito; just a castle built amid
A few low mountains; firs and larches hid Their main defiles, and rings of vineyard bound

The rest. Some captured creature in a pound,

Whose artless wonder quite precludes distress,

Secure beside in its own loveliness,

So peered with airy head, below, above,
The castle at its toils, the lapwings love
To glean among at grape-time. Pass within.

A maze of corridors contrived for sin, Dusk winding-stairs, dim galleries got
past,

You gain the inmost chambers, gain at last A maple-panelled room: that haze which seems

Floating about the panel, if there gleams
A sunbeam over it, will turn to gold
And in light-graven characters unfold
The Arab's wisdom everywhere; what shade

Marred them a moment, those slim pillars
made,

Cut like a company of palms to prop
The roof, each kissing top entwined with top,

Leaning together; in the carver's mind
Some knot of bacchanals, flushed cheek combined

With straining forehead, shoulders purpled, hair

Diffused between, who in a goat-skin bear A vintage; graceful sister-palms! But quick

To the main wonder, now. A vault, see;
thick

Black shade about the ceiling, though fine slits

Across the buttress suffer light by fits Upon a marvel in the midst. Nay, stoop—
A dullish grey-streaked cumbrous font, a group

Round it,—each side of it, where'er one sees,—

Upholds it; shrinking Caryatides
Of just-tinged marble like Eve's lilyd flesh
Beneath her maker's finger when the fresh First pulse of life shot brightening the snow.

The font's edge burthens every shoulder,
so

They muse upon the ground, eyelids half closed;

Some, with meek arms behind their backs disposed,

Some, crossed above their bosoms, some,
to veil

Their eyes, some, propping chin and cheek
so pale,

Some, hanging slack an utter helpless
length

Dead as a buried vestal whose whole
strength

Goes when the grate above shuts heavily.
So dwell these noiseless girls, patient to see,

Like priestesses because of sin impure
Penanced for ever, who resigned endure,

Having that once drunk sweetness to the dregs.

And every eve, Sordello's visit begs

Pardon for them: constant as eve he came
To sit beside each in her turn, the same
As one of them, a certain space: and awe
Made a great indistinctness till he saw Sunset slant cheerful through the buttresschinks,

Gold seven times glowed; surely our maiden shrinks

And a smile stirs her as if one faint grain
Her load were lightened, one shade less the stain

Obscured her forehead, yet one more bead slipt

From off the rosary whereby the crypt Keeps count of the contritions of its charge?

Then with a step more light, a heart more large,

He may depart, leave her and every one
To linger out the penance in mute stone.

Ah, but Sordello? 'Tis the tale I mean
To tell you.

In this castle may be seen,
On the hill-tops, or underneath the vines,
Or eastward by the mound of firs and pines
That shuts out Mantua, still in loneliness,
A slender boy in a loose page's dress,
Sordello: do but look on him awhile Watching ('tis autumn) with an earnest
smile

The noisy flock of thievish birds at work Among the yellowing vineyards; see him
lurk

('Tis winter with its sullenest of storms) Beside that arras length of broidered
forms,

On tiptoe, lifting in both hands a light
Which makes yon warrior's visage flutter bright

—Ecelo, dismal father of the brood,
And Ecelin, close to the girl he wooed,
Auria, and their Child, with all his wives
From Agnes to the Tuscan that survives, Lady of the castle, Adelaide. His face —Look, now he turns away! Yourselves shall trace

(The delicate nostril swerving wide and fine,

A sharp and restless lip, so well combine
With that calm brow) a soul fit to receive Delight at every sense; you can believe

Sordello foremost in the regal class Nature has broadly severed from her mass

Of men, and framed for pleasure, as she frames

Some happy lands, that have luxurious names,

For loose fertility; a footfall there
Suffices to upturn to the warm air

Half-germinating spices; mere decay
Produces richer life; and day by day

New pollen on the lily-petal grows,
And still more labyrinthine buds the rose.

You recognize at once the finer dress
Of flesh that amply lets in loveliness At eye and ear, while round the rest is furled

(As though she would not trust them with her world)

A veil that shows a sky not near so blue,
And lets but half the sun look fervid
through.

How can such love?—like souls on each full-fraught

Discovery brooding, blind at first to aught
Beyond its beauty, till exceeding love Becomes an aching weight; and, to remove

A curse that haunts such natures—to preclude

Their finding out themselves can work no
good

To what they love nor make it very blest
By their endeavour,—they are fain invest

The lifeless thing with life from their own
soul,

Availing it to purpose, to control,
To dwell distinct and have peculiar joy
And separate interests that may employ
That beauty fitly, for its proper sake.
Nor rest they here; fresh births of beauty
wake

Fresh homage, every grade of love is past,
With every mode of loveliness: then cast
Inferior idols off their borrowed crown
Before a coming glory. Up and down Runs arrowy fire, while earthly forms combine

To throb the secret forth; a touch divine—
And the scaled eyeball owns the mystic rod;

Visibly through his garden walketh God.
So fare they. Now revert. One character

Denotes them through the progress and the stir,—

A need to blend with each external charm, Bury themselves, the whole heart wide and warm,—

In something not themselves; they would belong

To what they worship—stronger and more
strong

Thus prodigally fed—which gathers shape
And feature, soon imprisons past escape
The votary framed to love and to submit Nor ask, as passionate he kneels to it, Whence grew the idol's empery. So runs A legend; light had birth ere moons and
suns,

Flowing through space a river and alone,
Till chaos burst and blank the spheres were strown

Hither and thither, foundering and blind:
When into each of them rushed light—to
find

Itself no place, foiled of its radiant
chance.

Let such forego their just inheritance!
For there's a class that eagerly looks,
too,

On beauty, but, unlike the gentler crew, Proclaims each new revelation born a twin

With a distinctest consciousness within,
Referring still the quality, now first Revealed, to their own soul—its instinct
nursed

In silence, now remembered better, shown More thoroughly, but not the less their
own;

A dream come true; the special exercise
Of any special function that implies
The being fair, or good, or wise, or strong,
Dormant within their nature all along—Whose fault? So, homage, other souls direct

Without, turns inward. 'How should this deject

'Thee, soul?' they murmur; 'wherefore strength be quelled

'Because, its trivial accidents withheld,
'Organs are missed that clog the world, inert,

'Wanting a will, to quicken and exert,
'Like thing—existence cannot satiate,
'Cannot surprise? Laugh thou at envious
fate,

'Who, from earth's simplest combination stamp

'With individuality—uncrampt
'By living its faint elemental life,

'Dost soar to heaven's completest essence,
rife

'With grandeurs, unaffronted to the last,
'Equal to being all!'

In truth? Thou hast Life, then—wilt challenge life for us: our
race

Is vindicated so, obtains its place
In thy ascent, the first of us; whom we May follow, to the meanest, finally,
With our more bounded wills?

Ah, but to find
A certain mood enervate such a mind,
Counsel it slumber in the solitude Thus reached nor, stooping, task for mankind's good

Its nature just as life and time accord
'—Too narrow an arena to reward
'Emprise—the world's occasion worthless
since

'Not absolutely fitted to evince
'Its mastery!' Or if yet worse befall,

And a desire possess it to put all That nature forth, forcing our straitened
sphere

Contain it,—to display completely here
The mastery another life should learn,
Thrusting in time eternity's concern,—

So that Sordello . . .

Fool, who spied the mark
Of leprosy upon him, violet-dark
Already as he loiters? Born just now,
With the new century, beside the glow
And efflorescence out of barbarism;
Witness a Greek or two from the abyss That stray through Florence-town with studious air,
Calming the chisel of that Pisan pair:
If Nicolo should carve a Christus yet!
While at Siena is Guidone set,
Forehead on hand; a painful birth must be Matured ere Saint Eufemia's sacristy
Or transept gather fruits of one great gaze
At the moon: look you! The same orange haze,—
The same blue stripe round that—and, in the midst,
Thy spectral whiteness, Mother-maid, who didst
Pursue the dizzy painter!

Woe, then, worth
Any officious babble letting forth
The leprosy confirmed and ruinous
To spirit lodged in a contracted house!
Go back to the beginning, rather; blend
It gently with Sordello's life; the end
Is piteous, you may see, but much between Pleasant enough. Meantime, some pyx to screen

The full-grown pest, some lid to shut upon
The goblin! So they found at Babylon, (Colleagues, mad Lucius and sage Antoinette)

Sacking the city, by Apollo's shrine,
In rummaging among the rarities,
A certain coffer; he who made the prize
Opened it greedily; and out there curled Just such another plague, for half the
world

Was stung. Crawl in then, hag, and couch asquat,

Keeping that blotchy bosom thick in spot
Until your ume is ripe! The coffer-lid
Is fastened, and the coffer safely hid
Under the Loxian's¹ choicest gifts of gold.

Who will may hear Sordello's story told,
And how he never could remember when He dwelt not at Goito. Calmly, then,
About this secret lodge of Adelaide's
Glided his youth away; beyond the glades
On the fir-forest border, and the rim
Of the low range of mountain, was for him
No other world: but this appeared his own
To wander through at pleasure and alone.
The castle too seemed empty; far and wide
Might he disport; only the northern side
Lay under a mysterious interdict—Slight, just enough remembered to restrict
His roaming to the corridors, the vault Where those font-bearers expiate their fault,

The maple-chamber, and the little nooks
And nests, and breezy parapet that looks Over the woods to Mantua: there he strolled.

Some foreign women-servants, very old,
Tended and crept about him—all his clue
To the world's business and embroiled ado

Distant a dozen hill-tops at the most.
And first a simple sense of life engrossed
Sordello in his drowsy Paradise;
The day's adventures for the day suffice—
Its constant tribute of perceptions strange,
With sleep and stir in healthy interchange,
Suffice, and leave him for the next at ease Like the great palmer-worm that strips the
trees,

Eats the life out of every luscious plant,
And, when September finds them sere or scant,

Puts forth two wondrous winglets, alters quite,

And hies him after unforeseen delight.
So fed Sordello, not a shard dissheathed;
As ever, round each new discovery,
wreathed

Luxuriantly the fancies infantine
His admiration, bent on making fine
Its novel friend at any risk, would fling
In gay profusion forth: a ficklest king, Confessed those minions!—eager to dispense

So much from his own stock of thought and sense

As might enable each to stand alone
And serve him for a fellow; with his own,
Joining the qualities that just before Had graced some older favourite. Thus they wore

A fluctuating halo, yesterday
Set flicker and to-morrow filched away,— Those upland objects each of separate
name,

Each with an aspect never twice the same,
Waxing and waning as the new-born host
Of fancies, like a single night's hoar-frost,
Gave to familiar things a face grotesque;
Only, preserving through the mad burlesque

A grave regard. Conceive! the orpine patch Blossoming earliest on the log-house thatch

The day those archers wound along the vines—

Related to the Chief that left their lines To climb with clinking step the northern stair

Up to the solitary chambers where Sordello never came. Thus thrall reached thrall:

He o'er-festooning every interval,
As the adventurous spider, making light
Of distance, shoots her threads from depth to height,

From barbican to battlement: so flung Fantasies forth and in their centre swung
 Our architect,—the breezy morning fresh Above, and merry,—all his waving mesh Laughing with lucid dew-drops rainbow-edged.

This world of ours by tacit pact is pledged

To laying such a spangled fabric low
 Whether by gradual brush or gallant blow.
 But its abundant will was baulked here:
 doubt

Rose tardily in one so fenced about From most that nurtures judgment,—care
 and pain:

Judgment, that dull expedient we are fain,
 Less favoured, to adopt betimes and force
 Stead us, diverted from our natural course Of joys—contrive some yet amid the
 dearth,

Vary and render them, it may be, worth
 Most we forego. Suppose Sordello hence Selfish enough, without a moral sense
 However feeble; what informed the boy,
 Others desired a portion in his joy?

Or say a ruthless chance broke woof and warp—

A heron's nest beat down by March winds sharp,

A fawn breathless beneath the precipice,
 A bird with unsoiled breast and unfilmed
 eyes

Warm in the brake—could these undo the trance

Lapping Sordello? Not a circumstance That makes for you, friend Naddo! Eat fern-seed

And peer beside us and report indeed
 If (your word) 'genius' dawned with throes and stings

And the whole fiery catalogue, while springs,

Summers, and winters quietly came and
 went.

Time put at length that period to content,

By right the world should have imposed:
 bereft

Of its good offices, Sordello, left
 To study his companions, managed rip

Their fringe off, learn the true relationship,

Core with its crust, their nature with his
 own;

Amid his wild-wood sights he lived alone.
 As if the poppy felt with him! Though he Partook the poppy's red effrontery Till Autumn spoiled their fleering quite with rain,

 And, turbanless, a coarse brown rattling crane

Lay bare. That's gone: yet why renounce, for that,

His disenchanting tributaries—flat

Perhaps, but scarce so utterly forlorn, Their simple presence might not well be borne

Whose parley was a transport once: recall
 The poppy's gifts, it flaunts you, after all,
 A poppy:—why distrust the evidence

Of each soon satisfied and healthy sense?
 The new-born judgment answered, 'little boots

'Beholding other creatures' attributes
 'And having none!' or, say that it sufficed,

'Yet, could one but possess, oneself,' (enticed

Judgment) 'some special office!' Nought
 beside

Serves you? 'Well then, be somehow justified

'For this ignoble wish to circumscribe
 'And concentrate, rather than swell, the
 tribe

'Of actual pleasures: what, now, from without

'Effects it?—proves, despite a lurking
 doubt,

'Mere sympathy sufficient, trouble
 spared?

'That, tasting joys by proxy thus, you fared
 'The better for them?' Thus much craved his soul.

Alas, from the beginning love is whole
 And true; if sure of nought beside, most
 sure

Of its own truth at least; nor may endure
 A crowd to see its face, that cannot know

How hot the pulses throb its heart below:
 While its own helplessness and utter want

Of means to worthily be ministrant
 To what it worships, do but fan the more

Its flame, exalt the idol far before Itself as it would have it ever be.

Souls like Sordello, on the contrary,
 Coerced and put to shame, retaining will,

Care little, take mysterious comfort still,
 But look forth tremblingly to ascertain

If others judge their claims not urged in
 vain,

And say for them their stifled thoughts aloud.

So, they must ever live before a crowd:
 —'Vanity,' Naddo tells you.

Whence contrive
 A crowd, now? From these women just alive,

That archer-troop? Forth glided—not
 alone

Each painted warrior, every girl of stone, Nor Adelaide (bent double o'er a scroll,

One maiden at her knees, that eve, his soul Shook as he stumbled through the arras'd glooms

On them, for, 'mid quaint robes and weird perfumes,

Started the meagre Tuscan up,—her eyes,
 The maiden's, also, bluer with surprise)

—But the entire out-world: whatever, scraps
 And snatches, song and story, dreams
 perhaps,
 Conceited the world's offices, and he Had hitherto transferred to flower or tree,
 Not counted a befitting heritage
 Each, of its own right, singly to engage Some man, no other,—such now dared to
 stand Alone. Strength, wisdom, grace on every
 hand
 Soon disengaged themselves, and he discerned
 A sort of human life: at least, was turned A stream of lifelike figures through his brain.
 Lord, liegeman, valvassor and suzerain,
 Ere he could choose, surrounded him; a stuff
 To work his pleasure on; there, sure
 enough:
 But as for gazing, what shall fix that gaze?
 Are they to simply testify the ways
 He who convoked them sends his soul along
 With the cloud's thunder or a dove's brood-song?
 —While they live each his life, boast each
 his own
 Peculiar dower of bliss, stand each alone
 In some one point where something dearest
 loved
 Is easiest gained—far worthier to be proved
 Than aught he envies in the forest-wights!
 No simple and self-evident delights,
 But mixed desires of unimagined range, Contrasts or combinations, new and
 strange.
 Irksome perhaps, yet plainly recognized
 By this, the sudden company—loves prized
 By those who are to prize his own amount Of loves. Once care because such make account,
 Allow that foreign recognitions stamp
 The current value, and his crowd shall vamp
 Him counterfeits enough; and so their print
 Be on the piece, 'tis gold, attests the mint,
 And 'good,' pronounce they whom his new appeal
 Is made to: if their casual print conceal—
 This arbitrary good of theirs o'ergloss What he has lived without, nor felt the loss—
 Qualities strange, ungainly, wearisome, —What matter? So must speech expand the dumb
 Part-sigh, part-smile with which Sordello,
 late Whom no poor woodland-sights could satiate,

Betakes himself to study hungrily
 Just what the puppets his crude phantasy
 Supposes notablest,—popes, kings, priests,
 knights,—
 May please to promulgate for appetites;
 Accepting all their artificial joys
 Not as he views them, but as he employs
 Each shape to estimate the other's stock
 Of attributes, whereon—a marshalled
 flock
 Of authorized enjoyments—he may spend Himself, be men, now, as he used to blend
 With tree and flower—nay more entirely,
 else
 'Twere mockery: for instance, 'How excels
 'My life that chieftain's?' (who apprised the youth
 Ecelin, here, becomes this month, in truth, Imperial Vicar?) 'Turns he in his tent Remissly? Be it so—my head is bent
 'Deliciously amid my girls to sleep.
 'What if he stalks the Tr-n-tine-pass? Yon steep
 'I climbed an hour ago with little toil:
 'We are alike there. But can I, too, foil
 'The Gueff's paid stabber, carelessly afford
 'Saint Mark's a spectacle, the sleight o' the sword
 'Baffling the treason in a moment?' Here
 No rescue! Poppy he is none, but peer
 To Ecelin, assuredly: his hand, Fashioned: no otherwise, should wield a brand
 With Ecelin's success—try, now! He soon
 Was satisfied, returned as to the moon
 From earth; left each abortive boy's-attempt
 For feats, from failure happily exempt,
 In fancy at his beck. 'One day I will 'Accomplish it! Are they not older still '—Not grown-up men and women? 'Tis
 beside
 'Only a dream; and though I must abide 'With dreams now, I may find a thorough vent
 'For all myself, acquire an instrument
 'For acting what these people act; my soul
 'Hunting a body out may gain its whole
 'Desire some day!' How else express chagrin
 And resignation, show the hope steal in
 With which he let sink from an aching wrist
 The rough-hewn ash-bow? Straight, a gold shaft nissed
 Into the Syrian air, struck Malek down.
 Superbly! 'Crosses to the br-ach! God's Town
 'Is gained him back!' Why bend rough ash-bows more?
 Thus lives he: if not careless as before,
 Comforted: for one may anticipate, Rehearse the future, be prepared when
 fate

Shall have prepared in turn real men whose names

Startle, real places of enormous fames,
Este abroad and Ecclm at home
To worship him.—Mantua, Verona, Rome
To witness it. Who grudges time so spent?
Rather test qualitics to heart's content—Summon them, thrice selected, near and
far—

Compress the starriest ino one star,
And grasp the whole at once!

The pageant thinned
Accordingly; from rank to rank, like wind
His spirit passed to winnow and divide;
Back fell the simpler phantasms; every side
The strong clave to the wise; with either classed

The beauteous; so, till two or three amassed

Mankind's beseeemingnesses, and reduced Themselves eventually,—graces loosd,
Strengths lavished,—all to heighten up
One Shape

Whose potency no creature should escape.
Can it be Friedrich of the bowmen's talk?
Surely that grape-juice, bubbling at the stalk,

Is some grey scorching Saracenic wine
The Kaiser quaffs with the Miramoline¹—Those swarthy hazel-clusters, seamed and chapped,

Or filberts russet-sheathed and velvet-capped,

Are dates plucked from the bough John Brienne sent

To keep in mind his sluggish armament
Of Canaan:—Friedrich's, all the pomp and fierce

Demeanour! But harsh sounds and sights transpierce

So rarely the serene cloud where he dwells Whose looks join, whose lightest words are spells

On the obdurate! That right arm indeed Has thunder for its slave; but where's the
need

Of thunder if the stricken multitude
Hearkens, arrested in its angriest mood,
While songs go up exulting, then disspread,
Dispart, disperse, lingering overhead
Like an escape of angels? 'Tis the tune, Nor much unlike the words his women croon

Smilingly, colourless and faint-designed Each, as a worn-out queen's face some re-
mind

Of her extreme youth's love-tales. 'Eglamor

'Made that!' Half minstrel and half emperor,

What but ill objects vexed him? Such he slew.

The kinder sort were easy to subdue

By those ambrosial glances, dulcet tones;
And these a gracious hand advanced to thrones

Beneath him. Wherefore twist and torture
this,

Striving to name afresh the antique bliss,
Instead of saying, neither less nor more,
He had discovered, as our world before,
Apollo? That shall be the name; nor bid Me rag by rag expose how patchwork hid
The youth—what thefts of every clime and day

Contributed to purfle the array
He climbed with (June at deep) some close ravine

Mid clatter of its million pebbles sheen,
Over which, singing soft, the runnel slipped Elate with rains: into whose streamlet dipped

He foot, yet trod, you thought, with unwet sock—

Though really on the stubs of living rock
Ages ago it crenelled; vines for roof,

Lindens for wall; before him, aye aloof, Flittered in the cool some azure damsel-
fly,

Born of the simmering quiet, there to die.
Emerging whence, Apollo still, he spied Mighty descents of forest; multiplied
Tuft on tuft, here, the frolic myrtle-trees,
There gendered the grave maple stocks at ease.

And, proud of its observer, straight the wood

Tried old surprises on him; black it stood A sudden barrier ('twas a cloud passed o'er)

So dead and dense, the tiniest brute no
more

Must pass; yet presently (the cloud dispatched)

Each clump, behold, was glistening detached

A shrub, oak-boles shrunk into ilex-stems!
Yet could not he denounce the stratagems
He saw thro', till, hours thence, aloft would hang

White summer-lightnings; as it sank and sprang

To measure, that whole palpitating breast
Of heaven, 'twas Apollo, nature prest
At eve to worship.

Time stole: by degrees
The Pythons perish off; his votaries

Sink to respectful distance; songs redeem
Their pains, but briefer; their dismissals
seem

Emphatic; only girls are very slow To disappear—his Delians! Some that glow

O' the instant, more with earlier loves to wrench

Away, reserves to quell, disdains to quench;

Alike in one material circumstance—
All soon or late adore Apollo! Glance
The bevy through, divine Apollo's choice,
His Daphne! 'We secure Count Richard's
voice

'In Este's counsels, good for Este's ends
'As our Taurello,' say his faded friends,
'By granting him our: Palma!'—the sole
child

They mean, of Agnes Este who beguiled Ecelin, years before this Adelaide Wedded and turned him wicked: 'but the maid

'Rejects his suit,' those sleepy women
boast.

She, scorning all beside, deserves the most Sordello: so, conspicuous in his world
Of dreams sat Palma. How the tresses curled

Into a sumptuous swell of gold and wound
About her like a glory! even the ground Was bright as with spilt sunbeams; breathe not, breathe

Not!—poised, see, one leg doubled underneath,

Its small foot buried in the dimpling snow,
Rests, but the other, listlessly below,
O'er the couch-side swings feeling for cool
air,

The vein-streaks swollen a richer violet
where

The languid blood lies heavily; yet calm
On her slight prop, each flat and outspread
palm,

As but suspended in the act to rise
By consciousness of beauty, whence her
eyes

Turn with so frank a triumph, for she meets

Apollo's gaze in the pine glooms.

Time fleets:
That's worst! Because the pre-appointed
age

Approaches. Fate is tardy with the stage And crowd she promised. Lean he grows and pale,

Though restlessly at rest. Hardly avail Fancies to soothe him. Time steals, yet
alone

He tarries here! The earnest smile is gone.
How long this might continue matters not;
—For ever, possibly; since to the spot
None come: our lingering Taurello quits

Mantua at last, and light our lady flits
Back to her place disburthened of a care.
Strange—to be constant here if he is there!

Is it distrust? Oh, never! for they both Goad Ecelin alike, Romano's growth
Is daily manifest, with Azzo dumb

And Richard wavering: let but Friedrich
come,

Find matter for the minstrelsy's report —Lured from the Isle and its young Kaiser's court

To sing us a Messina morning up,
And, double rillet of a drinking cup,
Sparkle along to ease the land of drouth, Northward to Provence that, and thus far south

The other! What a method to apprise Neighbours of births, espousals, obse-quies,

Which in their very tongue the Troubadour Records! and his performance makes a tour,

For Trouveres bear the miracle about,
Explain its cunning to the vulgar rout,
Until the Formidable House is famed Over the country—as Taurello aimed,

Who introduced, although the rest adopt,
The novelty. Such games, her absence stopped,

Begin afresh now Adelaide, recluse
No longer, in the light of day pursues
Her plans at Mantua: whence an accident Which, breaking on Sordello's mixed content

Opened, like any flash that cures the blind,
The veritable business of mankind.

BOOK THE SECOND

THE woods were long austere with snow:
at last

Pink leaflets budded on the beech, and fast Larches, scattered through pine-tree solitudes,

Brightened, 'as in the slumbrous heart o'
the woods

'Our buried year, a witch, grew young
again

'To placid incantations, and that stain
'About were from her cauldron, green smoke blent

'With those black pines'—so Eglamor gave vent

To a chance fancy. Whence a just rebuke
From his companion; brother Naddo shook

The solemnest of brows: 'Beware,' he said,
'Of setting up conceits in nature's stead!' Forth wandered our Sordello. Nought so
sure

As that to-day's adventure will secure
Palma, the visioned lady—only pass O'er yon damp mound and its exhausted
grass,

Under that brake where sundawn feeds the stalks

Of withered fern with gold, into those walks

Of pine and take her! Buoyantly he went.
Again his stooping forehead was besprent
With dew-drops from the skirting ferns.

Then wide
Opened the great morass, shot every side

With flashing water through and through;

Thick-steaming, all-alive. Whose shape
divine,

Quivered i¹ the farthest, rainbow-vapour, glanced

Athwart the flying herons? He advanced,
But warily; though Mincio leaped no
more,

Each foot-fall burst up in the marish-floor
A diamond jet: and if he stopped to pick Rose-lichen, or molest the leeches quick,
And circling blood-worms, minnow, newt or loach,

A sudden pond would silently encroach This way and that. On Palma passed. The verge

Of a new wood was gained. She will emerge

Flushed, now, and panting,—crowds to see,—will own

She loves him—Boniface to hear, to groan,
To leave his suit! One screen of pine-trees
still

Opposes: but—the startling spectacle—Mantua, this time! Under the walls—a crowd

Indeed, real men and women, gay and loud
Round a pavilion. How he stood!

In truth
No prophecy had come to pass: his youth
In its prime now—and where was homage poured

Upon Sordello?—born to be adored,
And suddenly discovered weak, scarce
made

To cope with any, cast into the shade
By this and this. Yet something seemed to prick

And tingle in his blood; a sleight—a trick—

And much would be explained. It went for nought—

The best of their endowments were ill bought

With his identity: nay, the conceit,
That this day's roving led to Palma's feet
Was not so vain—list! The word,

'Palma!' Steal
Aside, and die, Sordello; this is real,

And this—abjure!

What next? The curtains see Dividing! She is there; and presently,
He will be there—the proper You, at
length—

In your own cherished dress of grace and
strength!

Most like, the very Boniface!

It was a showy man advanced; but though A glad cry welcomed him, then every
sound

* Sank and the crowd disposed themselves
around,

—'This is not he,' Sordello felt; while,
'Place

'For the best Troubadour of Boniface!' Hollaed the Jongleurs,—'Eglamor, whose lay

'Concludes his patron's Court of Love to-
day!'

Obsequious Naddo strung the master's lute

With the new lute-string, 'Elys,' named to suit

The song: he stealthily at watch, the while,
Biting his lip to keep down a great smile
Of pride: then up he struck. Sordello's brain

Swam; for he knew a sometime deed again;
So, could supply each foolish gap and chasm

The minstrel left in his enthusiasm,
Mistaking its true version—was the tale
Not of Apollo? Only, what avail

Luring her down, that Elys an he pleased,
If the man dared no further? Has he ceased?

And, lo, the people's frank applause half
done,

Sordello was beside him, had begun (Spite of indignant twitchings from his
friend

The Trouvere) the true lay with the true
end,

Taking the other's names and time and
place

For his. On flew the song, a giddy race,
After the flying story; word made leap

Out word, rhyme—rhyme; the lay could barely keep

Pace with the action visibly rushing past:
Both ended. Back fell Naddo more aghast

Than some Egyptian from the harassed bull

That wheeled abrupt and, bellowing, fronted full

His plague, who spied a scarab 'neath the
tongue,

And found 'twas Apis' flank his hasty prong

Insulted. But the people—but the cries, The crowding round, and proffering the
prize!

—For he had gained some prize. He seemed to shrink

Into a sleepy cloud, just at whose brink
One sight withheld him. There sat Adelaide,

Silent; but at her knees the very maid
Of the North Chamber, her red lips as rich,

The same pure fleecy hair; one weft of
which,

Golden and great, quite touched his cheek as o'er

She leant, speaking some six words and no
more.

He answered something, anything; and
she

Unbound a scarf and laid it heavily Upon him, her neck's warmth and all.
Again

Moved the arrested magic; in his brain Noises grew, and a light that turned to glare,

And greater glare, until the intense flare Engulfed him, shut the whole scene from his sense.

And when he woke 'twas many a furlong
thence,

At home; the sun shining his ruddy
wont;

The customary birds' chirp; but his front
Was crowned—was crowned! Herscented scarf around

His neck! Whose gorgeous vesture heaps the ground?

A prize? He turned, and peeringly on him
Brooded the women-faces, kind and dim,
Ready to talk—"The Jongleurs in a troop

'Had brought him back, Naddo and Squarcialupe

'And Tagliafer; how strange! a childhood
spent

'In taking, well for him, so brave a bent!
'Since Eglamor,' they heard, 'was dead with spite,

'And Palma chose him for her minstrel.'

Light
Sordello rose—to think, now; hitherto
He had perceived. Sure, a discovery

grew
Out of it all! Best live from first to last The transport o'er again. A week he passed,

Sucking the sweet out of each circumstance,

From the bard's outbreak to the luscious
trance

Bounding his own achievement. Strange!
A man

Recounted an adventure, but began Imperfectly; his own task was to fill

The frame-work up, sing well what he sung
ill,

Supply the necessary points, set loose
As many incidents of little use —More imbecile the other, not to see Their relative importance clear as he!

But, for a special pleasure in the act
Of singing—had he ever turned, in fact,

From Elys, to sing Elys?—from each fit
Of rapture to contrive a song of it?

True, this snatch or the other seemed to wind

Into a treasure, helped himself to find
A beauty in himself; for, see, he soared

By means of that mere snatch, to many a hoard

Of fancies; as some falling cone bears soft
The eye along the fir-tree-spire, aloft

To a dove's nest. Then, how divine the cause

Why such performance should exact applause

From men, if they had fancies too? Did
fate

Decree they found a beauty separate
In the poor snatch itself?—"Take Elys,

there,
'—"Her head that's sharp and perfect like a pear,

"So close and smooth are laid the few fine locks

"Coloured like honey oozed from top-
most rocks

"Sun-blanced the livelong summer"—
if they heard

'Just those two rhymes, assented at my
word,

'And loved them as I love them who have run

'These fingers through those pale locks, let
the sun

Into the white cool skin—who first could clutch,

'Then praise—I needs must be a god to
such.

'Or what if some, above themselves, and
yet

'Beneath me, like their Eglamor, have set
'An impress on our gift? So, men believe

'And worship what they know not, nor receive

'Delight from. Have they fancies—slow,
perchance,

'Not at their beck, which indistinctly
glance

'Until, by song, each floating part be linked

'To each, and all grow palpable, distinct!'
He pondered this.

Meanwhile, sounds low and drear
Stole on him, and a noise of footsteps,

near
And nearer, while the underwood was pushed

Aside, the larches grazed, the dead leaves crushed

At the approach of men. The wind seemed laid;

Only, the trees shrunk slightly and a shade
Came o'er the sky although 'twas midday

yet:
You saw each half-shut downcast floweret Flutter—"a Roman bride, when they'd dispart

'Her unbound tresses with the Sabine dart,

'Holding that famous rape in memory
still,

'Felt creep into her curls the iron chill,
'And looked thus,' Eglamor would say—
indeed

'Tis Eglamor, no other, these precede

Home hither in the woods. 'Twere surely sweet.

'Far from the scene of one's forlorn defeat
'To sleep!' judged Naddo, who in person led

Jongleurs and Trouveres, chanting at their
head,

A scanty company; for, sooth to say,
Our beaten Troubadour had seen his day.
Old worshippers were something shamed, old friends

Nigh weary; still the death proposed
amends.

'Let us but get them safely through my song

'And home again!' quoth Naddo.

All along,
This man (they rest the bier upon the sand)
—This calm corpse with the loose flowers in his hand,

Eglamor, lived Sordello's opposite.
For him indeed was Naddo's notion right,
And verse a temple-worship vague and vast,

A ceremony that withdrew the last Opposing bolt, looped back the lingering veil

Which hid the holy place: should one so frail

Stand there without such effort? or repine
If much was blank, uncertain at the shrine
He knelt before, till, soothed by many a rite,

The power responded, and some sound or sight

Grew up, his own forever, to be fixed,
In rhyme, the beautiful, forever!—mixed With his own life, unloosed when he should please,

Having it safe at hand, ready to ease
All pain, remove all trouble; every time He loosed that fancy from its bonds of rhyme,

(Like Perseus when he loosed his naked
love)

Faltering; so distinct and far above
Himself, these fancies! He, no genius rare, Transfiguring in fire or wave or air
At will, but a poor gnome that, cloistered
up

In some rock-chamber with his agate cup,
His topaz rod, his seed-pearl, in these few

And their arrangement finds enough to do For his best art. Then, how he loved that art!

The calling marking him a man apart
From men—one not to care, take counsel
for

Cold hearts, comfortless faces—(Eglamor was neediest of his tribe)—since verse, the gift,

Was his, and men, the whole of them,
must shift

Without it, 'e'en content themselves with wealth

And pomp and power, snatching a life by stealth.

So, Eglamor was not without his pride!
The sorriest bat which cowers throughout noontide

While other birds are jocund, has one time When moon and stars are blinded, and the prime

Of earth is his to claim, nor find a peer;
And Eglamor was noblest poet here—
He well knew, 'mid those April woods he cast

Conceits upon in plenty as he passed,
That Naddo might suppose him not to
think

Entirely on the coming triumph: wink
At the one weakness! 'Twas a fervid child,
That song of his; no brother of the guild Had e'er conceived its like. The rest you
know,

The exaltation and the overthrow:
Our poet lost his purpose, lost his rank,
His life—to that it came. Yet envy sank Within him, as he heard Sordello out,
And, for the first time, shouted—tried to shout

Like others, not from any zeal to show
Pleasure that way: the common sort did so,
What else was Eglamor? who, bending
down

As they, placed his beneath Sordello's
crown,

Printed a kiss on his successor's hand, Left one great tear on it, then joined his band

—In time; for some were watching at the door:

Who knows what envy may effect? 'Give
o'er,

'Nor charm his lips, nor craze him!' (here
one spied

And disengaged the withered crown)—
'Beside

'His crown? How prompt and clear those verses rang

'To answer yours! nay, sing them!' And he sang

Them calmly. Home he went; friends used to wait

His coming, zealous to congratulate;
But, to a man—so quickly runs report—
Could do no less than leave him, and escort His rival. That eve, then, bred many a
thought:

What must his future life be? was he brought

So low, who stood so lofty this Spring
morn?

At length he said, 'Best sleep now with my
scorn,

'And by to-morrow I devise some plain
'Expedient! So, he slept, nor woke again.

They found as much, those friends, when they returned O'erflowing with the marvels they had learned

About Sordello's paradise, his roves Among the hills and vales and plains and groves,

Wherein, no doubt, this lay was roughly
cast,

Polished by slow degrees, completed last
To Eglamor's discomfiture and death.

Such form the chanters now, and, out of
breath,

They lay the beaten man in his abode,
Naddo reciting that same luckless ode,
Doleful to hear. Sordello could explore
By means of it, however, one step more
In joy; and, mastering the round at length, Learnt how to live in weakness as in
strength,

When from his covert forth he stood,
addressed

Eglamor, bade the tender ferns invest,
Primæval pines o'er canopy his couch,
And, most of all, his fame—(shall I avouch Eglamor heard it, dead though he might
look,

And laughed as from his brow Sordello took

The crown, and laid on the bard's breast, and said

It was a crown, now, fit for poet's head?)
—Continue. Nor the prayer quite fruitless fell.

A plant they have, yielding a three-leaved bell¹

Which whitens at the heart ere noon, and ails

Till evening; evening gives it to her gales
To clear away with such forgotten things
As are an eyesore to the morn: this brings Him to their mind, and bears his very
name.

So much for Eglamor. My own month
came;

'Twas a sunrise of blossoming and May.
Beneath a flowering laurel thicket lay Sordello; each new sprinkle of white stars
That smell fainter of wine than Massic jars
Dug up at Baix, when the south wind shed
The ripest, made him happier; filleted
And robbed the same, only a lute beside Lay on the turf. Before him far and wide
The country stretched: Goito slept behind —The castle and its covert, which confined

Him with his hopes and fears; so fain of old
To leave the story of his birth untold.
At intervals, 'spite the fantastic glow
Of his Apollo-life, a certain low
And wretched whisper, winding through the bliss,

Admonished, no such fortune could be his,

¹ St. Bruno's lily, the Anthericum Lillastrum.

All was quite false and sure to fade one
day:

The closelier drew he round him his array Of brilliance to expel the truth. But when A reason for his difference from men
Surprised him at the grave, he took no rest While aught of that old life, superbly dressed

Down to its meanest incident, remained
A mystery: alas, they soon explained
Away Apollo! and the tale amounts
To this: when at Vicenza both her counts
Banished the Vivaresi kith and kin,
Those Maltraversi hung on Ecelin,
Reviled him as he followed; he for spite Must fire their quarter, though that self-same night

Among the flames young Ecelin was born
Of Adelaide, there too, and barely torn
From the roused populace hard on the rear,
By a poor archer when his chieftain's fear
Grew high; into the thick Elcorle leapt, Saved her, and died; no creature left except

His child to thank. And when the full
escape

Was known—how men impaled from chine to nape

Unlucky Prata, all to pieces spurned
Bishop Pistore's concubines, and burned
Taurello's entire household, flesh and fell, Missing the sweeter prey—such courage
well

Might claim reward. The orphan, ever
since,

Sordello, had been nurtured by his prince
Within a blind retreat where Adelaide—(For, once this notable discovery made,
The past at every point was understood) —Might harbour easily when times were rude,

When Azzo schemed for Palma, to retrieve
That pledge of Agnes Este—loth to leave Mantua unguarded with a vigilant eye,
While there Taurello bode ambiguously—
He who could have no motive now to moil
For his own fortunes since their utter spoil—

As it were worth while yet (went the report)
To disengage himself from her. In short, Apollo vanished; a mean youth, just named

His lady's minstrel, was to be proclaimed —How shall I phrase it?—Monarch of the World!

For, on the day when that array was furled
Forever, and in place of one a slave
To longings, wild indeed, but longings save In dreams as wild, suppressed—one daring
not

Assume the mastery such dreams allot,
Until a magical equipment, strength, Grace, wisdom, decked him too,—he chose at length,

Content with unproved wits and failing
frame,

In virtue of his simple will, to claim
That mastery, no less—to do his best
With means so limited, and let the rest
Go by,—the seal was set: never again
Sordello could in his own sight remain
One of the many, one with hopes and
cares

And interests nowise distinct from theirs,
Only peculiar in a thriveless store
Of fancies, which were fancies and no
more;

Never again for him and for the crowd
A common law was challenged and allowed

If calmly reasoned of, howe'er denied
By a mad impulse nothing justified
Short of Apollo's presence. The divorce Is clear: why needs Sordello square his
course

By any known example? Men no more Compete with him than tree and flower
before.

Himself, inactive, yet is greater far
Than such as act, each stooping to his star, Acquiring thence his function; he has gained

The same result with meaner mortals trained

To strength or beauty, moulded to express
Each the idea that rules him; since no less
He comprehends that function, but can
still

Embrace the others, take of might his fill
With Richard as of grace with Palma, mix
Their qualities, or for a moment fix
On one; abiding free meantime, un-cramped

By any partial organ, never stamped Strong, and to strength turning all energies—

Wise, and restricted to becoming wise—
That is, he loves not, nor possesses One Idea that, star-like over, lures him on
To its exclusive purpose. 'Fortunate!

'This flesh of mine ne'er strove to emulate
'A soul so various—took no casual mould
'Of the first fancy and, contracted, cold,
'Clogged her forever—soul averse to
change

'As flesh: whereas flesh leaves soul free to range,

'Remains-itself a blank, cast into shade,
'Encumbers little, if it cannot aid.

'So, range, free soul!—who, by self-consciousness,

'The last drop of all beauty dost express—
'The grace of seeing grace, a quintessence

'For thee: while for the world, that can dispense

'Wonder on men who, themselves, wonder
—make

'A shift to love at second-hand, and take

'For idols those who do but idolize,
'Themselves,—the world that counts men strong or wise,

'Who, themselves, court strength, wisdom,
—it shall bow

'Surely in unexampled worship now,
'Discerning me!'

(Dear monarch, I beseech,
Notice how lamentably wide a breach
Is here: discovering this, discover too
What our poor world has possibly to do With it! As pigmy natures as you please—
So much the better for you; take your ease, Look on, and laugh; style yourself God
alone;

Strangle some day with a cross olive-stone!
All that is right enough: but why want us To know that you yourself know thus and
thus?)

'The world shall bow to me conceiving all
'Man's life, who see its blisses, great and small,

'Afar—not tasting any; no machine
'To exercise my utmost will is mine:

'Be mine mere consciousness! Let men perceive

'What I could do, a mastery believe,
'Asserted and established to the throng

'By their selected evidence of song
'Which now shall prove, whate'er they are, or seek

'To be, I am—whose words, not actions
speak,

'Who change no standards of perfection, vex

'With no strange forms created to perplex
'But just perform their bidding and no
more,

'At their own satiating-point give o'er,
'While each shall love in me the love that leads

'His soul to power's perfection.' Song, not deeds,

(For we get tired) was chosen, Fate would brook

Mankind no other organ; he would look
For not another channel to dispense
His own volition by, receive men's sense
Of its supremacy—would live content, Obstructed else, with merely verse for vent.

Nor should, for instance, strength an outlet seek

And, striving, be admired: nor grace be-
speak

Wonder, displayed in gracious attitudes:
Nor wisdom, poured forth, change unseemly moods;

But he would give and take on song's one
point.

Like some huge throbbing stone that,
poised a-joint,

Sounds, to affect on its basaltic bed,
Must sue in just one accent; tempests shed

Thunder, and raves the windstorm: only let

That key by any little noise be set—
The far benighted hunter's halloo pitch On that, the hungry curlew chance to scritch

Or serpent hiss it, rustling through the rift,
However loud, however low—all lift
The groaning monster, stricken to the
heart.

Lo ye, the world's concernment, for its
part,

And this, for his, will hardly interfere!
Its businesses in blood and blaze this year
But wile the hour away—a pastime slight
Till he shall step upon the platform: right!
And, now thus much is settled, cast in rough,

Proved feasible, he counselled! thought
enough,—

Slumber, Sordello! any day will serve:
Were it a less digested plan! how swerve To-morrow? Meanwhile eat these sun-dried grapes,

And watch the soaring hawk there! Life escapes

Merrily thus.

He thoroughly read o'er
His truchman Naddo's missive six times
more,

Praying him visit Mantua and supply
A famished world.

The evening star was high
When he reached Mantua, but his fame
arrived

Before him: friends applauded, foes con-vined,

And Naddo looked an angel, and the rest
Angels, and all these angels would be blest Supremely by a song—the thrice-renowned Goito-manufacture. Then he found (Casting about to satisfy the crowd)

That happy vehicle, so late allowed,
A sore annoyance; 'twas the song's effect
He cared for, scarce the song itself: reflect!

In the past life, what might be singing's
use?

Just to delight his Delians, whose profuse Praise, not the toilsome process which procured

That praise, enticed Apollo: dreams ab-jured,

No overleaping means for ends—take
both

For granted or take neither! I am loth
To say the rhymes at last were Eglamor's;
But Naddo, chuckling, bade competitors Go pine; 'the master certes meant to waste
'No effort, cautiously had probed the taste

'He'd please anon: true bard, in short,— disturb

'His title if they could; nor spur nor curb,

'Fancy nor reason, wanting in him;
whence

'The staple of his verses, common sense:
'He built on man's broad nature—gift of gifts,

'That power to build: The world contented shifts

'With counterfeits enough, a dreary sort
'Of warriors, statesmen, ere it can extort
'Its poet-soul—that's, after all, a freak

'(The having eyes to see and tongue to
speak)

'With our herd's stupid sterling happiness
'So plainly incompatible—that—yes—

'Yes—should a son, of his improve the breed

'And turn out poet, he were cursed indeed!'

'Well, there's Goito and its woods anon,
'If the worst happen; best go stoutly on

'Now!' thought Sordello.

Ay, and goes on yet!
You pother with your glossaries to get
A notion of the Troubadour's intent

In rondel, tenzon, virlai or sirvent—
Much as you study arras how to twirl
His angelot, plaything of page and girl

Once; but you surely reach, at last,—or,
no!

Never quite reach what struck the people
so,

As from the welter of their time he drew
Its elements successively to view,

Followed all actions backward on their
course,

And catching up, unmingled at the source,
Such a strength, such a weakness, added
then

A touch or two, and turned them into
men.

Virtue took form, nor vice refused a shape;
Here heaven opened, there was hell agape,
As Saint this simpered past in sanctity, Sinner the other flared portentous by

A greedy people. Then why stop, surprised
At his success? The scheme was realized

Too suddenly in one respect: a crowd
Praising, eyes quick to see, and lips as loud

To speak, delicious homage to receive,
The woman's breath to feel upon his sleeve,

Who said, 'But Anafest—why asks he less
'Than Lucio, in your verses? how confess,

'It seemed too much but yester eve!'—the
youth,

Who bade him earnestly, 'Avow the truth!
'You love Bianca, surely, from a your song;

'I knew I was unworthy!'—soft or strong,
In poured such tributes ere he had arranged

Ethereal ways to take them, sorted,
changed,

Digested. Courted thus at unawares,
In spite of his pretensions and his cares,

He caught himself shamefully hankering
After the obvious petty joys that spring
From true life, fain, relinquish pedestal And condescend with pleasures—one and
all

To be renounced! no doubt; for, thus to chain

Himself to single joys and so refrain From tasting their quintessence, frus-trates, sure,
His prime design; each joy must he abjure
Even for love of it.

He laughed: what sage
But perishes if from his magic page
He look because, at the first line, a proof
'Twas heard salutes him from the cavern roof?

'On! Give yourself, excluding aught be-
side,

'To the day's task; compel your slave provide

'Its utmost at the soonest; turn the leaf
'Thoroughly conned. These lays of yours, in brief—

'Cannot men bear, now, something better?
—fly

'A pitch beyond this unreal pageantry
'Of essences? the period sure has ceased

'For such: present us with ourselves, at
least,

'Not portions of ourselves, mere loves and hates

'Made flesh: wait not!'

Awile the poet waits
However. The first trial was enough:

He left imagining, to try the stuff
That held the imaged thing, and, let it writhe

Never so fiercely, scarce allowed a tithe To reach the light—his Language. How he sought

The cause, conceived a cure, and slow re-
wrought

That Language,—welding words into the crude

Mass from the new speech round him, till a rude

Armour was hammered out, in time to be Approved beyond the Roman panoply

Melted to make it,—boots not. This obtained

With some ado, no obstacle remained
To using it; accordingly he took

An action with its actors, quite forsook
Himself to live in each, returned anon

With the result—a creature, and, by one
And one, proceeded leisurely to equip

Its limbs in harness of his workmanship.
'Accomplished! Listen, Mantuans!

Fond essay!

Piece after piece that armour broke away, Because perceptions whole, like that he sought

To clothe, reject so pure a work of thought

As language: thought may take percep-tion's place

But hardly co-exist in any case,
Being its mere presentment—of the whole

By parts, the simultaneous and the sole
By the successive and the many. Lacks

The crowd perception? painfully it tacks Thought to thought, which Sordello, needing such,

Has rent perception into: it's to clutch

And reconstruct—his office to diffuse,
Destroy: as hard, then, to obtain a Muse

As to become Apollo. For the rest,
'E'en if some wondrous vehicle expressed

'The whole dream, what impertinence in
me

'So to express it, who myself can be
'The dream! nor, on the other hand, are those

'I sing to, over-likely to suppose
'A higher than the highest I present

'Now, which they praise already: be content

'Both parties, rather—they with the old
verse,

'And I with the old praise—far go, far
worse!'

A few adhering rivets loosed, upsprings
The angel, sparkles off his mail, which rings

Whirled from each delicatest limb it
warps;

So might Apollo from the sudden corpse
Of Hyacinth have cast his luckless quoits.

He set to celebrating the exploits
Of Montfort o'er the Mountaineers.

Then came
The world's revenge: their pleasure, now his aim

Merely,—what was it? 'Not to play the
fool

'So much as learn our lesson in your school!'

Replied the world. He found that, every
time

He gained applause by any ballad-rhyme,
His auditory recognized no jot

As he intended, and, mistaking not Him for his meanest hero, ne'er was dunce

Sufficient to believe him—all, at once.
His will . . . conceive it caring for his
will!

—Mantuans, the main of them, admiring
still

How a mere singer, ugly, stunted, weak,
Had Montfort at completely (so to speak)

His fingers' ends; while past the praise-tide swept

To Montfort, either's share distinctly kept:
The true meed for true merit!—his abates

Into a sort he most repudiates,
And on them angrily he turns. Who were

The Mantuans, after all, that he should
care

About their recognition, ay or no?
 In spite of the convention months ago, (Why blink the truth?) was not he forced to help
 This same ungrateful audience, every whelp
 Of Naddo's litter, make them pass for peers
 With the bright band of old Goito years,
 As erst he toiled for flower or tree? Why,
 there
 Sat Palma! Adelaide's funereal hair
 Ennobled the next corner. Ay, he strewed
 A fairy dust upon that multitude,
 Although he feigned to take them by themselves;
 His giants dignified those puny elves, Sublimed their faint applause. In short,
 he found Himself still footing a delusive round,
 Remote as ever from the self-display
 He meant to compass, hampered every
 way
 By what he hoped assistance. Wherefore
 then
 Continue, make believe to find in men
 A use he found not?
 Weeks, months, years went by,
 And lo, Sordello vanished utterly, Sundered in twain; each spectral part at
 strife
 With each; one jarred against another
 life;
 The Poet thwarting hopelessly the Man—
 Who, fooled no longer, free in fancy ran
 Here, there: let slip no opportunities
 As pitiful, forsooth, beside the prize
 To drop on him some no-time and acquit
 His constant faith (the Poet-half's to wit—
 That waiving any compromise between
 No joy and all joy kept the hunger keen Beyond most methods)—offincurring scoff
 From the Man-portion—not to be put off
 With self-reflectings by the Poet's scheme, Though ne'er so bright. Who sauntered forth in dream,
 Dressed any how, nor waited mystic
 frames,
 Immeasurable gifts, astounding claims,
 But just his sorry self?—who yet might be Sorrier for aught he in reality Achieved, so pinioned Man's the Poet-
 part,
 Fondling, in turn of fancy, verse; the Art
 Developing his soul a thousand ways—
 Potent, by its assistance, to amaze
 The multitude with majesties, convince Each sort of nature that the nature's prince Accosted it. Language, the makeshift,
 grew
 Into a bravest of expedients, too; Apollo, seemed it now, perverse had thrown
 Quiver and bow away, the lyre alone

Sufficed. While, out of dream, his day's work went
 To tune a crazy *tenzon*¹ or *sirvent*²—So hampered him the Man-part, thrust to judge
 Between the bard and the bard's audience, grudge
 A minute's toil that missed its due reward!
 But the complete Sordello, Man and Bard, John's cloud-girt angel, this foot on the
 land,
 That on the sea, with, open in his hand,
 A bitter-sweetling of a book—was gone.
 Then, if internal struggles to be one,
 Which frittered him incessantly piecemeal,
 Referred, ne'er so obliquely, to the real Intruding Mantuans! ever with some call
 To action while he pondered, once for all,
 Which looked the easier effort—to pursue
 This course, still leap o'er paltry joys, yearn
 through
 The present ill-appreciated stage
 Of self-revelation, and compel the age know him—or else, forswearing bard-craft, wake
 From out his lethargy and nobly shake Off timid habits of denial, mix
 With men, enjoy like men. Ere he could fix On aught, in rushed the Mantuans; much they cared
 For his perplexity! Thus unprepared,
 The obvious if not only shelter lay
 In deeds, the dull conventions of his day Prescribed the like of him: why not be glad
 'Tis settled Palma's minstrel, good or bad,
 Submits to this and that established rule?
 Let Vidal change, or any other fool,
 His murrey-coloured robe for filamot,
 And crop his hair; too skin-deep, is it not,
 Such vigour? Then, a sorrow to the heart,
 His talk! Whatever topics they might start
 Had to be groped for in his consciousness Straight, and as straight delivered them by guess.
 Only obliged to ask himself, 'What was,'
 A speedy answer followed; but, alas,
 One of God's large ones, tardy to condense Itself into a period; answers whence
 A tangle of conclusions must be stripped
 At any risk ere, trim to pattern clipped,
 They matched rare specimens the Man-tuan flock
 Regaled him with, each talker from his stock
 Of sorted-o'er opinions, every stage,
 Juicy in youth or desiccate with age,
 Fruits like the fig-tree's, rather-ripe, rotten-
 rich,
 Sweet-sour, all tastes to take: a practice

² Sirvent. Martial, political, and satirical songs. Both Provençal terms.

He too had not impossibly attained, Once either of those fancy-flights restrained;

(For, at conjecture how might words appear

To others, playing there what happened
here,

And occupied abroad by what he spurned
At home, 'twas slipped, the occasion he returned

To seize;) he'd strike that lyre adroitly—
speech,

Would but a twenty-cubit plectre reach;
A clever hand, consummate instrument,
Were both brought close; each excellency
went

For nothing, else. The question Naddo
asked,

Had just a lifetime moderately tasked To answer, Naddo's fashion. More disgust

And more: why move his soul, since move it must

At minute's notice or as good it failed
To move at all? The end was, he retained
Some ready-made opinion, put to use
This quip, that maxim, ventured reproduce Gestures and tones—at any folly caught Serving to finish with, nor too much sought
If false or true 'twas spoken; praise and
blame

Of what he said grew pretty nigh the same —Meantime awards to meantime acts: his
soul,

Unequal to the compassing a whole,
Saw, in a tenth part, less and less to strive About. And as for men in turn . . . contrive

Who could to take eternal interest
In them, so hate the worst, so love the best!
Though, in pursuance of his passive plan,
He hailed, decried, the proper way.

As Man
So figured he; and how as Poet? Verse Came only not to a stand-still. The worse,
That his poor piece of daily work to do
Was—not sink under any rivals; who Loudly and long enough, without these qualms,

Turned, from Bocafoli's stark-naked
psalms,

To Parla's sonnets spoilt by toying with,
'As knops that stud some almag to the pith
'Pricked for gum, wry thence, and crinkled
worse

'Than pursed eyelids of a river-horse
'Sunning himself o' the slime when whirrs
the breeze'—

Gad-fly, that is. He might compete with these!

But—but—
'Observe a pompion-twine afloat;

'Pluck me one cup from off the castlemoat!

'Along with cup you raise leaf, stalk and
root,

'The entire surface of the pool to boot.
'So could I pluck a cup, put in one song

'A single sight, did not my hand, too
strong,

'Twitch in the least the root-strings of the whole.

'How should externals satisfy my soul?'

'Why that's precise the error Squarcialupe'

(Hazard Naddo) 'finds; "the man can't stoop

"To sing us out," quoth he, "a mere romance;

"He'd fain do better than the best, enhance

"The subjects' rarity, work problems out
"Therewith." Now, you're a bard, a bard past doubt,

'And no philosopher; why introduce
'Crotchets like these? fine, surely, but no

use
'In poetry—which still must be, to strike,
'Based upon common sense; there's nothing like

'Appealing to our nature! what beside

'Was your first poetry? No tricks were tried

'In that, no hollow thrills, affected throes!

"The man," said we, "tells his own joys and woes:

"We'll trust him." Would you have your songs endure?

'Build on the human heart!—why, to be
sure

'Yours is one sort of heart—but I mean
theirs,

'Ours, every one's, the healthy heart one
cares

'To build on! Central peace, mother of
strength,

'That's father of . . . nay, go yourself that
length,

'Ask those calm-hearted doers what they
do

'When they have got their calm! And is it true,

'Fire rankles at the heart of every globe?

'Perhaps. But these are matters one may probe

'Too deeply for poetic purposes:
'Rather select a theory that . . . yes,

'Laugh! what does that prove?—stations you midway

'And saves some little o'er-refining. Nay,
'That's rank injustice done me! I restrict

'The poet? Don't I hold the poet picked 'Out of a host of warriors, statesmen . . .

did
'I tell you? Very like! As well you hid

'That sense of power, you have! True bards believe

'All able to achieve what they achieve—

'That is, just nothing—in one point abide 'Profounder simpletons than all beside.

'Oh, ay! The knowledge that you are a bard

'Must constitute your prime, nay sole, reward!

So prattled Naddo, busiest of the tribe
Of genius-haunters—how shall I describe What grubs or nips or rubs or rips—your louse

For love, your flea for hate, magnanimous,
Malignant, Pappacoda, Tagliafer,
Picking a sustenance from wear and tear
By implements it sedulous employs To undertake, lay down, mete out, o'ertoise

Sordello? Fifty creepers to elude
At once! They settled staunchly; shame ensued:

Behold the monarch of mankind succumb
To the last fool who turned him round his thumb,

As Naddo styled it! 'Twas not worth oppose

The matter of a moment, gainsay those
He aimed at getting rid of; better think Their thoughts and speak their speech, secure to slink

Back expeditiously to his safe place,
And chew the cud—what he and what his
race

Were really, each of them. Yet even
this

Conformity was partial. He would miss Some point, brought into contact with them ere

Assured in what small segment of the
sphere

Of his existence they attended him;
Whence blunders, falsehoods rectified—a grim

List—slur it over! How? If dreams were
tried,

His will swayed sickly from side to side,
Nor merely neutralized his waking act
But tended e'en in fancy to distract
The intermediate will, the choice of means.
He lost the art of dreaming: Mantuan
scenes

Supplied a baron, say, he sang before, Handsomely reckless, full to running-
o'er

Of gallantries; 'abjure the soul, content 'With body, therefore!' Scarcely had he bent

Himself in dream thus low, when matter
fast

Cried out, he found, for spirit to contrast

And task it duly; by advances slight,
The simple stuff becoming composite,
Count Lori grew Apollo: best recall His fancy! Then would some rough peasant-Paul,

Like those old Ecelin confers with, glance
His gay apparel o'er; that countenance
Gathered his shattered fancies into one,
And, body clean abolished, soul alone Sufficed the grey Paulician; by and by,
To balance the ethereal reality,
Passions were needed; foiled he sank
again.

Meanwhile the world rejoiced ('tis time explain)

Because a sudden sickness set it free
From Adelaide. Missing the mother-bee, Her mountain-hive Romano swarmed; at
once

A rustle-forth of daughters⁴ and of sons
Blackened the valley. 'I am sick too, old,
'Half-crazed I think; what good's the Kaiser's gold

'To such an one? God help me! for I catch
'My children's greedy sparkling eyes at
watch—

"He bears that double breastplate on,"
they say,

"So many minutes less than yesterday!"

'Beside, Monk Hilary is on his knees

'Now, sworn to kneel and pray till God shall please

'Exact a punishment for many things

'You know, and some you never knew;
which brings

'To memory, Azzo's sister Beatrix
'And Richard's Giglia are my Alberic's
'And Ecelin's betrothed; the Count him-
self

'Must get my Palma: Ghibellin and Guef
'Mean to embrace each other.' So began Romano's missive to his fighting man
Taurello—on the Tuscan's death, away
With Friedrich sworn to sail from Naples'
bay

Next month for Syria. Never thunder-clap

Out of Vesuvius' throat, like this mishap Startled him. 'That accursed Vicenza! I
'Absent, and she selects this time to die!
'Ho, fellows, for Vicenza!' Half a score Of horses ridden dead, he stood before Romano in his reeking spurs: too late—
'Boniface urged me, Este could not wait,'
The chieftain stammered; 'let me die in
peace—

'Forget me! Was it I who craved increase 'Of rule? Do you and Friedrich plot your
worst

'Against the Father: as you found me first
'So leave me now. Forgive me! Palma,
sure,

'Is at Goito still. Retain that lure—
'Only be pacified!'

The country rung
With such a piece of news: on every tongue,
How Ecelin's great servant, congeed off,
Had done a long day's service, so, might doff

The green and yellow, and recover breath
At Mantua, whither,—since Retrude's
death,

(The girlish slip of a Sicilian bride
From Otho's house, he carried to reside
At Mantua till the Feraese should pile
A structure worthy her imperial style,
The gardens raise, the statues there enshrine,

She never lived to see)—although his line
Was ancient in her archives and she took A pride in him, that city, nor forsook Her child when he forsook himself and
spent

A prowess on Romano surely meant
For his own growth—whither he ne'er resorts

If wholly satisfied (to trust reports)
With Ecelin. So, forward in a trice Were shows to greet him. 'Take a friend's advice,

Quoth Naddo to Sordello, 'nor be rash
'Because your rivals (nothing can abash
'Some folks) demur that we pronounce'
you best

'To sound the great man's welcome; 'tis a test,

'Remember! Strojavacca looks asquint,
'The rough fat sloven; and there's plenty hint

'Your pinions have received of late a shock—

'Outsoar them, cobsman of the silver flock!
'Sing well! A signal wonder, song's no whit facilitated.

Fast the minutes flit;

Another day, Sordello finds, will bring The soldier, and he cannot choose but
sing;

So, a last shift, quits Mantua—slow,
alone:

Out of that aching brain, a very stone, Song must be struck. What occupies that front?

Just how he was more awkward than his
wont

The night before, when Naddo, who had seen

Taurello on his progress, praised the mien
For dignity no crosses could affect—

Such was a joy, and might not he detect
A satisfaction if established joys

Were proved imposture? Poetry annoys Its utmost: wherefore fret? Verses may
come

Or keep away! And thus he wandered,
dumb

Till evening, when he paused, thoroughly
spent,

On a blind hill-top: down the gorge he
went,

Yielding himself up as to an embrace.

The moon came out; like features of a face,

A querulous fraternity of pines,
Sad blackthorn clumps, leafless and grovelling vines

Also came out, made gradually up
The picture; 'twas Goito's mountain-cup And castle. He had dropped through one defile

He never dared explore, the Chief erewhile Had vanished by. Back rushed the dream, ehwrapped

Him wholly. 'Twas Apollo now they
lapped,

Those mountains, not a pettish minstrel
meant

To wear his soul away in discontent, Brooding on fortune's malice. Heart and
brain

Swelled; he expanded to himself again,
As some thin seedling spice-tree starved and frail,

Pushing between cat's head and ibis' tail Crusted into the porphyry pavement smooth,

—Suffered remain just as it sprung, to soothe

The Soldan's pining daughter, never yet
Well in her chilly green-glazed minaret,—
When rooted up, the sunny day she died,
And flung into the common court beside Its parent tree. Come home, Sordello!

Soon
Was he low muttering, beneath the moon,

Of sorrow saved, of quiet evermore,— Since from the purpose, he maintained
before,

Only facilitated wailing and hot tears.
Ah, the slim castle! dwindled of late years,

But more mysterious; gone to ruin—trails

Of vine through every loop-hole. Nought avails

The night as, torch in hand, he must explore

The maple chamber: did I say, its floor
Was made of intersecting cedar beams?

Worn now with gaps so large, there blew cold streams

Of air quite from the dungeon; lay your ear

Close and 'tis like, one after one, you hear In the blind darkness water drop. The nests

And nooks retain their long ranged vesturechests

Empty and smelling of the iris root
The Tuscan grated o'er them to recruit

Her wasted wits. Palma was gone that
day,

Said the remaining women. Last, he lay Beside the Carian group reserved and still.

The Body, the Machine for Acting Will,
Had been at the commencement proved unfit;

That for Demonstrating, Reflecting it,

Mankind—no fitter: was the Will Itself
In fault?

His forehead pressed the moonlit shelf
Beside the youngest marble maid awhile;
Then, raising it, he thought, with a long
smile,
'I shall be king again!' as he withdrew
The envied scarf; into 'he font he threw His crown.

Next day, no poet! 'Wherefore?' asked Taurello, when the dance of Jongleurs, masked
As devils, ended; 'don't a song come next?'
The master of the pageant looked perplexed
Till Naddo's whisper came to his relief.
'His Highness knew what poets were: in brief,
'Had not the tetchy race prescriptive right
'To peevishness, caprice? or, call it spite,
'One must receive their nature in its length
'And breadth, expect the weakness with the strength!'
—So phrasing, till, his stock of phrases
spent,
The easy-natured soldier smiled assent, Settled his portly person, smoothed his chin,
And nodded that the bull-bait might begin.

BOOK THE THIRD

AND the font took them: let our laurels lie!
Braid moonfern now with mystic trifoly
Because once more Goito gets, once more, Sordello to itself! A dream is o'er,
And the suspended life begins anew;
Quiet those throbbing temples, then, subdue
That cheek's distortion! Nature's strict embrace,
Putting aside the past, shall soon efface
Its print as well—factitious humours
grown Over the true—loves, hatreds not his
own—
And turn him pure as some forgotten vest
Woven of painted byssus, silkiest Tufting the Tyrrhene wheel's pearl-sheeted
lip,
Left welter where a trireme let it slip
I' the sea, and vexed a satrap; so the stain O' the world forsakes Sordello, with its
pain,
Its pleasure: how the tinct loosening escapes,
Cloud after cloud! Mantua's familiar shapes
Die, fair and foul die, fading as they flit,
Men, women, and the pathos and the wit,

Wise speech and foolish, deeds to smile or sigh
For, good, bad, seemly or ignoble, die.
The last face glance, through the eglan-
tines,
The last voice murmurs, 'twixt the blossomed vines,
Of Men, of that machine supplied by
thought
To compass self-perception with, he sought
By forcing half himself—an insane pulse
Of a god's blood, on clay it could con-
vulse,
Never transmute—on human sights and sounds,
To watch the other half with; irksome
bounds
It ebbs from to its source, a fountain sealed Forever. Better sure be unrevealed
Than part revealed: Sordello well or ill
Is finished: then what further use of Will,
Point in the prime idea not realized,
An oversight? inordinately prized,
No less, and pampered with enough of each Delight to prove the whole above its reach.
'To need become all natures, yet retain 'The law of my own nature—to remain
'Myself, yet yearn . . . as if that chestnut,
think,
'Should yearn for this first larch-bloom crisp and pink,
'Or those pale fragrant tears where zephyrs stanch
'March wounds along the fretted pine-tree branch!
'Will and the means to show will, great and small,
'Material, spiritual,—abjure them all
'Save any so distinct, they may be left 'To amuse, not tempt become! and, thus bereft,
'Just as I first was fashioned would I be!
'Nor, moon, is it Apollo now, but me
'Thou visitest to comfort and befriend!
'Swim thou into my heart, and there an-
end,
'Since I possess thee!—nay, thus shut mine
eyes
'And know, quite know, by this heart's fall and rise,
'When thou dost bury thee in clouds, and when
'Out-standest: wherefore practise upon
men
'To make that plainer to myself?'
Slide here
Over a sweet and solitary year
Wasted; or simply notice change in him—
How eyes, once with exploring bright, grew dim
And satiate with receiving. Some distress
Was caused, too, by a sort of consciousness

Under the imbecility,—nought kept That down; he slept, but was aware he slept,

So, frustrated: as wilo brainsick made pact
Erst with the overhanging cataract
To deafen him, yet still distinguished
plain

His own blood's measured clicking at his brain.

To finish. One declining Autumn day—Few birds about the heaven chill and grey,

No wind that cared trouble the tacit
woods—

He sauntered home complacently, their moods

According, his and nature's. Every spark
Of Mantua life was trodden out; so dark
The embers, that the Troubadour, who sung

Hundreds of songs, forgot, its tick his
tongue,

Its craft his brain, how either brought to pass

Singing at all; that faculty might class
With any of Apollo's now. The year
Began to find its early promise sere

As well. Thus beauty vanishes; thus stone Outlingers flesh: nature's and his youth
gone,

They left the world to you, and wished you
joy.

When, stopping his benevolent employ,
A presage shuddered through the welkin;
harsh

The earth's remonstrance followed. 'Twas the marsh

Gone of a sudden. Mincio, in its place, Laughed, a broad water, in next morning's
face,

And, where the mists broke up immense and white

I' the steady wind, burned like a spilth of
light

Out of the crashing of a myriad stars.
And here was nature, bound by the same bars

Of fate with him!

'No! youth once gone is gone:

'Deeds, let escape, are never to be done.

'Leaf-fall and grass-spring for the year;
for us—

'Oh forfeit I unalterably thus

'My chance? nor two lives wait me, thus to spend,

'Learning save that? Nature has time, may mend.

'Mistake, she knows occasion will recur;
'Landslip or seabreach, how affects it her

'With her magnificent resources?—I

'Must perish once and perish utterly.

'Not any strollings now at even-close

'Down the field-path, Sordello! by thorn-rows

'Alive with lamp-flies, swimming spots of fire

'And dew, outlining the black cypress'
spire

'She waits you at, Elys, who heard you
first

'Woo her, the snow-month through, but ere she durst

'Answer 'twas April. Linden-flower-timeiong

'Her eyes were on the ground; 'tis July,
strong

'Now; and because white dust-clouds overwhelm

'The woodside, here or by the village elm

'That holds the moon, she meets you, somewhat pale,

'But letting you lift up her coarse flax veil
'And whisper (the damp little hand in
yours)

'Of love, heart's love, your heart's love that endures

'Till death. Tush! No mad mixing with the rout

'Of haggard ribalds wandering about

'The hot torchlit wine-scented island-
house

'Where Friedrich holds his wickedest carouse,

'Parading,—to the gay Palermitans,
'Soft Messinese, dusk Saracenic clans

'Nuocera holds,—those tall grave dazzling Norse,

'High-cheeked, lank-haired, toothed whiter than the morse,

'Queens of the caves of jet stalactites,

'He sent his barks to fetch through icy seas,

'The blind night seas without a saving star,

'And here in snowy birdskin robes they
are,

'Sordello!—here, mollitious alcoves gilt
'Superb as Byzant domes that devils built!

'—Ah, Byzant, there again! no chance to go

'Ever like august cheery Dandolo,
'Worshipping hearts about him for a wall,

'Conducted, blind eyes, hundred years and
all,

'Through vanquished Byzant where friends
note for him

'What pillar, marble massive, sardius slim,
'Twere fittest he transport to Venice'

Square—

'Flattered and promised life to touch them
there

'Soon, by those fervid sons of senators!
'No more lifes, deaths, loves, hatreds, peaces, wars!

'Ah, fragments of a whole ordained to be,
'Points in the life I waited! what are ye

'But roundels of a ladder which appeared

'Awhile the very platform it was reared

'To lift me on?—that happiness I find

'Proofs of my faith in, even in the blind

'Instinct which bade forego you all unless 'Yelled me past yourselves. Ay, happiness
'Awaited me; the way life should be used
'Was to acquire, and deeds like you conduced
'To teach it by a self-revelment, deemed 'Life's very use, so long! Whatever seemed 'Progress to that, was pleasure; aught that stayed
'My reaching it—no pleasure. I have laid
'The ladder down; I climb not; still, aloft
'The platform stretches! 'Blisses strong and soft,
'I dared not entertain, elude me; yet
'Never of what they promised could I get 'A glimpse till now! The common sort, the crowd,
'Exist, perceive; with Being are endowed,
'However slight, distinct from what they
 See,
'However bounded; Happiness must be,
'To feed the first by gleanings from the
 last,
'Attain its qualities, and slow or fast
'Become what they behold; such peace-in-strife,
'By transmutation, is the Use of Life,
'The Alien turning Native to the soul
'Or body—which instructs me; I am whole
'There and demand a Palma; had the
 world
'Been from my soul to a like distance hurled,
'Twere Happiness to make it one with
 me:
'Whereas I must, ere I begin to Be,
'Include a world, in flesh, I comprehend
'In spirit now; and this done, what's to blend
'With? Nought is Alien in the world—my Will
'Owns all already; yet can turn it—still 'Less—Native, since my Means to correspond
'With Will as so unworthy, 'twas my bond
'To tread the very joys that tantalize
'Most now, into a grave, never to rise.
'I die then! Will the rest agree to die?
'Next Age or no? Shall its Sordello try
'Clue after clue, and catch at last the clue
'I miss?—that's underneath my finger too,
'Twice, thrice a day, perhaps,—some yearning traced
'Deeper, some petty consequence embraced
'Closer! Why fled I Mantua, then?— complained
'So much my Will was fettered, yet remained
'Content within a tether half the range
'I could assign it?—able to exchange
'My ignorance (I felt) for knowledge, and
'Idle because I could thus understand—
'Could e'en have penetrated to its core
'Our mortal mystery, yet—fool—forebore,
'Preferred elaborating in the dark
'My casual stuff, by any wretched spark
'Born of my predecessors, though one stroke
'Of mine had brought the flame forth!
 Mantua's yoke,
'My minstrel's-trade, was to behold man-
 kind,—
'My own concern was just to bring my
 mind
'Behold, just extricate, for my acquit,
'Each object suffered stifle in the mist
'Which hazard, custom, blindness interpose
'Betwixt things and myself.' Whereat he rose.
The level wind carried above the firs Clouds, the irrevocable travellers, Onward.
'Pushed thus into a drowsy copse,
'Arms twine about my neck, each eyelid drops
'Under a humid finger; while there fleets,
'Outside the screen, a pageant time repeats
'Never again! To be deposed, immured
'Clandestinely—still petted, still assured
'To govern were fatiguing work—the Sight
'Fleeting meanwhile! 'Tis noontide: wreak ere night
'Somehow my will upon it, rather! Slake
'This thirst somehow, the poorest impress
 take
'That serves! A blasted bud displays you, torn,
'Faint rudiments of the full flower unborn;
'But who divines what glory coats o'er-clasp
'Of the bulb dormant in the mummy's grasp
'Taurello sent?' . . .
'Taurello? Palma sent 'Your Trouvere,' (Naddo interposing
 leant
Over the lost bard's shoulder)—'and, believe,
'You cannot more reluctantly receive
'Than I pronounce her message: we de-
 part
'Together. What avail a poet's heart
'Verona's pomps and gauds? five blades of grass
'Suifice him. News? Why, where your marish was,
'On its mud-banks smoke rises after
 smoke
'T' the valley, like a spout of hell new-broke.
'Oh, the world's tidings! small your thanks,
 I guess,
'For them. The father of our Patroness,
'Has played Taurello an astounding trick,
'Parts between Ecelin and Alberic

'His wealth and goes into a convent: both
'Wed Guelfs: the Count and Palma
plighted troth

'A week since at Verona: and they want
'You doubtless to contrive the marriagechant

'Ere Richard storms Ferrara.' Then was told

The tale from the beginning—how, made bold

By Salinguerra's absence, Guelfs had burned

And pillaged till he unawares returned
To take revenge: how Azzo and his friend
Were doing their endeavour, how the end
O' the siege was nigh, and how the Count, released

From further care, would with his marriage-feast

Inaugurate a new and better rule, Absorbing thus Romano.

'Shall I school
'My master,' added Naddo, 'and suggest
'How you may clothe in a poetic vest
'These doings, at Verona? Your response 'To Palma! Wherefore jest? "Depart at
once?"

'A good resolve! In truth, I hardly hoped
'So prompt an acquiescence. Have you groped

'Out wisdom in the wilds here?—thoughts may be

'Over-poetical for poetry.

'Pearl-white, you poets liken Palma's
neck;

'And yet what spoils an orient like some speck

'Of genuine white, turning its own white
grey?

'You take me? Curse the cicala!'

One more day,
One eve—appears Verona! Many a group, (You mind) instructed of the osprey's swoop

On lynx and ounce, was gathering—Christendom

Sure to receive, whate'er the end was, from
The evening's purpose cheer or detriment,
Since Friedrich only waited some event
Like this, of Ghibellins establishing Themselves within Ferrara, ere, as King
'Of Lombardy, he'd glad descend there, wage

Old warfare with the Pontiff, disengage
His barons from the burghers, and restore
The rule of Charlemagne, broken of yore
By Hildebrand.

I the palace, each by each,
Sordello sat and Palma: little speech.

At first in that dim closet, face with face
(Despite the tumult in the market-place) Exchanging quick low laughter: now would rush

Word upon word to meet a sudden flush,

A look left o'er, a shifting lips' surmise—
But for the most part their two histories Ran best thro' the locked fingers and linked arms.

And so the night flew on with its alarms
Till in burst one of Palma's retinue;
'Now, Lady!' gasped he. Then arose the two

And leaned into Verona's air, dead-still.
A balcony lay black beneath until Out, 'mid a gush of torchfire, grey-haired
men

Came on it and harangued the people: then Sea-like that people surging to and fro Shouted, 'Hale forth the carroch—trumpets, ho,

'A flourish! Run it in the ancient grooves!
'Back from the bell! Hammer—that whom behoves

'May hear the League is up! Peal—learn who list,

'Verona means not first of towns break tryst

'To-morrow with the League!'

Enough. Now turn—Over the eastern cypresses: discern!
Is any beacon set a-glimmer?

Rang
The air with shouts that overpowered the clang

Of the incessant carroch, even: 'Haste—
'The candle's at the gateway! ere it waste,

'Each soldier stand beside it, armed to
march

'With Tiso Sampier through the eastern arch!'

Ferrara's succoured, Palma!

Once again
They sat together; some strange thing in train

To say, so difficult was Palma's place
In taking, with a coy fastidious grace
Like the bird's flutter ere it fix and feed.
But when she felt she held her friend in-
deed

Safe, she threw back her curls, began implant

Her lessons; telling of another want Goito's quiet nourished than his own;
Palma—to serve him—to be served, alone
Importing; Agnes' milk so neutralized
The blood of Ecelin. Nor be surprised If, while Sordello fain had captive led Nature, in dream was Palma subjected To some out-soul, which dawned not though she pined

Delaying, till its advent, heart and mind Their life. 'How dared I let expand the
force

'Within me, till some out-soul, whose resource

'It grew for, should direct it? Every law
'Of life, its every fitness, every flaw,

- 'Must One determine whose corporeal shape
'Would be no other than the prime escape
'And revelation to me of a Will
'Orb-like o'ershrouded and inscrutable
'Above, save at the point which, I should know,
'Shone that myself, my powers, might overflow
'So far, so much; as now it signified
'Which earthly shape it henceforth chose my guide,
'Whose mortal lip selected to declare
'Its oracles, what fleshly garb would wear
'—The first of intimations, whom to love;
'The next, how love him. Seemed that orb, above
'The castle-covert and the mountain-close,
'Slow in appearing?—if beneath it rose
'Cravings, aversions,—did our green precinct
'Take pride in me, at unawares distinct
'With this or that endowment,—how, repressed
'At once, such jetting power shrank to the rest!
'Was I to have a chance touch spoil me, leave
'My spirit thence unfitted to receive
'The consummating spell?—that spell so near
'Moreover! "Waits he not the waking year?
'"His almond-blossoms must be honey-ripe
'"By this; to welcome him, fresh runnels stripe
'"The thawed ravines; because of him, the wind
'"Walks like a herald. I shall surely find '"Him now!"
'And chief, that earnest April morn
'Of Richard's Love-court, was it time, so worn
'And white my cheek, so idly my blood beat,
'Sitting that morn beside the Lady's feet
'And saying as she prompted; till outburst
'One face from all the faces. Not then first
'I knew it; where in maple chamber glooms,
'Crowned with what sanguine-heart pomegranate blooms,
'Advanced it ever? Men's acknowledgment
'Sanctioned my own: 'twas taken, Palma's bent,—
'Sordello,—recognized, accepted. 'Dumb
'Sat she still scheming. Ecelin would come
'Gaunt, scared, "Cesano baffles me," he'd say:
'"Better I fought it out, my father's way!
- "Strangle Ferrara in its drowning flats,
"And you and your Taurello yonder!—what's
"Romano's business there?" An hour's concern
"To cure the forward Chief!—induce return
"As heartened from those overmeaning eyes,
"Wound up to persevere,—his enterprise
"Marked out anew, its exigent of wit
"Apportioned,—she at liberty to sit "And scheme against the next emergence, I—
"To covet her Taurello-sprite, made fly
"Or fold the wing—to con your horoscope
"For leave command those steely shafts shoot ope,
"Or straight assuage their blinding eagerness
"In blank smooth snow. What semblance of success
"To any of my plans for making you "Mine and Romano's? Break the first wall through,
"Tread o'er the ruins of the Chief, supplant
"His sons beside, still, vainest were the vaunt:
"There, Salinguerra would obstruct me sheer,
"And the insuperable Tuscan, here,
"Stay me! But one wild eve that Lady died
"In her lone chamber: only I beside:
"Taurello far at Naples, and my sire
"At Padua, Ecelin away in ire
"With Alberic. She held me thus—a clutch
"To make our spirits as our bodies touch—
"And so began flinging the past up, heaps "Of uncouth treasure from their sunless sleeps
"Within her soul; deeds rose along with dreams,
"Fragments of many miserable schemes,
"Secrets, more secrets, then—no, not the last—
"Mongst others, like a casual trick o' the past,
"How . . . ay, she told me, gathering up her face,
"All left of it, into one arch-grimace
"To die with . . .
"Friend, 'tis gone! but not the fear
"Of that fell laughing, heard as now I hear,
"Nor faltered voice, nor seemed her heart grow weak
"When i' the midst abrupt she ceased to speak "—Dead, as to serve a purpose, mark!—for in "Rushed o' the very instant Ecelin
"(How summoned, who divines?)—looking as if "He understood why Adelaide lay stiff

'Already in my arms; for "Girl, how must
 "I manage Este in the matter thrust
 "'Upon me, how unravel your bad coil?—
 "'Since" (he declared) "'tis on your brow
 —a soil
 "'Like hers ther'!" then in the same breath, "he lacked
 "'No counsel after all, had signed no pact
 "'With devils, nor was treason here or
 there,
 "'Goito or Vicenza, his affair:
 "'He buried it in Adelaide's deep grave,
 "'Would begin life afresh, now,—would not slave
 "'For any Friedrich's nor Taurello's sake!
 "'What booted him to meddle or to
 make
 "'In Lombardy?" And afterward I knew
 'The meaning of his promise to undo
 'All she had done—why marriages were
 made,
 'New friendships entered on, old followers
 paid
 'With curses for their pains,—new friends'
 amaze
 'At height, when, passing out by Gate
 Saint Blaise,
 'He stopped short in Vicenza, bent his head
 'Over a friar's neck,—"had vowed," he
 said,
 "'Long since, nigh thirty years, because his wife
 "'And child were saved there, to bestow his life
 "'On God, his gettings on the Church." 'Exiled
 'Within Goito, still one dream beguiled
 'My days and nights; 'twas found, the orb
 I sought
 'To serve, those glimpses came of Fomalhaut,
 'No other: but how serve it?—authorize
 'You and Romano mingle destinies?
 'And straight Romano's angel stood be-
 side
 'Me who had else been Boniface's bride,
 'For Salinguerra 'twas, with neck low
 bent,
 'And voice lightened to music, (as he meant 'To learn, not teach me,) who withdrew the pall
 'From the dead past and straight revived
 it all,
 'Making me see how first Romano waxed,
 'Wherefore he waned now, why, if I relaxed
 'My grasp (even I!) would drop a thing effete,
 'Frayed by itself, unequal to complete
 'Its course, and counting every step astray
 'A gain so much. Romano, every way
 'Stable, a Lombard House now—why start back
 'Into the very outset of its track?
 'This patching principle which late allied
 'Our House with other Houses—what be-
 side
 'Concerned the apparition, the first Knight
 'Who followed Conrad hither in such plight
 'His utmost wealth was summed in his one steed?
 'For Eccelo, that prowler, was decreed
 'A task, in the beginning hazardous
 'To him as ever task can be to us;
 'But did the weather-beaten thief despair
 'When first our crystal circlet of warm air
 'That binds the Trevisan,—as its spice-belt
 ' (Crusaders say) the tract where Jesus dwelt,—
 'Furtive he pierced, and Este was to face—
 'Despaired Saponian strength of Lombard grace?
 'Tried he at making surer aught made sure,
 'Maturing what already was mature?
 'No; his heart prompted Eccelo, "Confront
 "'Este, inspect yourself. What's nature?
 Wont.
 "'Discard three-parts your nature, and adopt
 "'The rest as an advantage!" Old strength propped
 'The man who first grew Podestà among
 'The Vicentines, no less than, while there sprung
 'His palace up in Padua like a threat,
 'Their noblest spied a grace, unnoticed yet
 'In Conrad's crew. Thus far the object
 gained,
 'Romano was established—has remained—
 "'For are you not Italian, truly peers
 "'With Este? Azzo better soothes our ears
 "'Than Alberic? or is this lion's-crine
 "'From over-mounts" (this yellow hair of mine)
 "'So weak a graft on Agnes Este's stock?"
 ' (Thus went he on with something of a mock)
 "'Wherefore recoil, then, from the very
 fate
 "'Conceded you, refuse to imitate
 "'Your model farther? Este long since left
 "'Being mere Este: as a blade its left,
 "'Este required the Pope to further him:
 "'And you, the Kaiser — whom your father's whim
 "'Foregoes or, better, never shall forego
 "'If Palma dare pursue what Eccelo "'Commenced, but Ecelin desists from:
 just
 "'As Adelaide of Susa could intrust
 "'Her donative,—her Piedmont given the Pope,
 "'Her Alpine-pass for him to shut or ope
 "'Twixt France and Italy,—to the superb
 "'Matilda's perfecting,—so, lest aught
 curb

"Our Adelaide's great counter-project
 for
 "Giving her Trentine to the Emperor
 "With passage here from Germany,— shall you
 "Take it,—my slender plodding talent,
 too!"
 "—Urged me Taurello with his half-smile.
 'He
 'As Patron of the scattered family
 'Conveyed me to his Mantua, kept in bruit
 'Azzo's alliances and Richard's suit
 'Until, the Kaiser excommunicate, "Nothing remains," Taurello said, "but
 wait
 "Some rash procedure: Palma was the link,
 "As Agnes' child, between us, and they shrink
 "From losing Palma: judge if we advance,
 "Your father's method, your inheritance!"
 'The day I was betrothed to Boniface
 'At Padua by Taurello's self, took place
 'The outrage of the Ferrarese: again,
 'The day I sought Verona with the train
 'Agreed for,—by Taurello's policy
 'Convicting Richard of the fault, since we 'Were present to annul or to confirm,— 'Richard, whose patience had outstayed its term,
 'Quitted Verona for the siege.
 'And now
 'What glory may engird Sordello's brow
 'Through this? A month since at Oliero slunk
 'All that was Ecelin into a monk;
 'But how could Salinguerra so forget
 'His liege of thirty years as grudge even yet
 'One effort to recover him? He sent
 'Forthwith the tidings of this last event
 'To Ecelin—declared that he, despite
 'The recent folly, recognized his right
 'To order Salinguerra: "Should he wring
 'Its uttermost advantage out, or fling
 "This chance away? Or were his sons now Head
 "O' the House?" Through me Taurello's missive sped;
 'My father's answer will by me return.
 'Behold! "For him," he writes, "no more concern
 "With strife than, for his children, with fresh plots
 "Of Friedrich. Old engagements out he blots
 "For aye: Taurello shall no more sub-
 serve,
 "Nor Ecelin impose." Lest this unnerve
 'Taurello at this juncture, slack his grip
 'Of Richard, suffer the occasion slip,—
 'I, in his sons' default (who, mating with
 'Este, forsake Romano as the frith
 'Its mainsea for that firmland, sea makes
 head
 'Against) I stand, Romano,—in their stead
 'Assume the station they desert, and give
 'Still, as the Kaiser's representative,
 'Taurello licence he der ands. Midnight—
 'Morning—by noon to-morrow, making
 light
 'Of the League's issue, we, in some gay weed
 'Like yours, disguised together, may precede
 'The arbitrators to Ferrara: reach
 'Him, let Taurello's nobly accents teach
 'The rest! Then say if I have misconceived
 'Your destiny, too readily believed 'The Kaiser's cause your own!"
 And Palma's fled.
 Though no affirmative disturbs the head,
 A dying lamp-flame sinks and rises o'er,
 Like the alighted planet Pollux wore,
 Until, morn breaking, he resolves to be Gate-vein of this heart's blood of Lombardy,
 Soul of this body—to wield this aggregate
 Of souls and bodies, and so conquer fate
 Though he should live—a centre of disgust
 Even—apart, core of the outward crust
 He vivifies, assimilates. For thus
 I bring Sordello to the rapturous Exclaim at the crowd's cry, because one
 round
 Of life was quite accomplished; and he
 found
 Not only that a soul, whate'er its might,
 Is insufficient to its own delight,
 Both in corporeal organs and in skill
 By means of such to body forth its Will—
 And, after, insufficient to apprise
 Men of that Will, oblige them recognize The Hid by the Revealed—but that,—the
 last
 Nor lightest of the struggles overpast,— Will, he bade abdicate, which would not void
 The throne, might sit there, suffer be enjoyed
 Mankind, a varied and divine array Incapable of homage, the first way,
 Nor fit to render incidentally Tribute connived at, taken by the by,
 In joys. If thus with warrant to rescind
 The ignominious exile of mankind—
 Whose proper service, ascertained intact
 As yet, (to be by him themselves made act,
 Not watch Sordello acting each of them)
 Was to secure—if the true diadem Seemed imminent while our Sordello
 drank
 The wisdom of that golden Palma,—thank Verona's Lady in her citadel Founded by Gaulish Brennus, legends
 tell:

And truly when she left him, the sun reared
A head like the first clamberer's who peered

A-top the Capitol, his face on flame With triumph, triumphing till Manlius
came.

Nor slight too much my rhymes—that spring, disspread,

Dispart, disperse, lingering overhead
Like an escape of angels! Rather say,
My transcendental platan! mounting gay
(An archimage so courts a novice-queen)
With tremulous silvered trunk, whence branches shewn

Laugh out, thick-foliaged next, a-shiver
soon

With coloured buds, then glowing like the moon

One mild flame,—last a pause, a burst, and
all

Her ivory limbs are smothered by a fall, Bloom-flinders and fruit-sparkles and leaf-
dust,

Ending the weird work prosecuted just
For her amusement; he decrepit, stark,
Dozes; her uncontrolled delight may mark
Apart—

Yet not so, surely never so
Only, as good my soul were suffered go
O'er the lagune: forth fare thee, put aside—
Entrance thy synod, as a god may glide
Out of the world he fills, and leave it mute
For myriad ages as we men compute,
Returning into it without a break O' the consciousness! They sleep, and I awake

O'er the lagune, being at Venice.

Note,
In just such songs as Eglamor (say) wrote With heart and soul and strength, for he believed

Himself achieving all to be achieved
By singer—in such songs you find alone Completeness, judge the song and singer
one,

And either purpose answered, his in it
Or its in him: while from true works (to wit Sordello's dream-performances that will Never be more than dreamed) escapes there
still

Some proof, the singer's proper life was
'neath

The life his song exhibits, this a sheath
To that; a passion and a knowledge far Transcending these, majestic as they are,
Smouldered; his lay was but an episode
In the bard's life: which evidence you owed

To some slight weariness, some looking-
off

Or start-away. The childish skit or scoff In 'Charlemagne,' (his poem, dreamed
divine

In every point except one silly line

About the vestiff daughters)—what may
lurk

In that? 'My life commenced before this
work.'

(So I interpret the significance Of the bard's start aside and look askance)

'My life continues after: on I fare
'With no more stopping, possibly, no care

'To note the undercurrent, the why and
how,

'Where, when, o' the deeper life, as thus
just now.

'But, silent, shall I cease to live? Alas
'For you! who sigh, "When shall it come to pass

"We read that story? How will he com-
press

"The future gains, his life's true business,
"Into the better lay which—that one
flout,

"How'er inopportune it be, lets out—
"Engrosses him already, though professed

"To meditate with us eternal rest,
"And partnership in all his life has
found?"

'Tis but a sailor's promise, weather-bound:
'Strike sail, slip cable, here the bark be moored

'For once, the awning stretched, the poles assured!

'Noontide above; except the wave's crisp
dash,

'Or buzz of colibri, or tortoise' splash,
'The margin's silent: out with every spoil
'Made in our tracking, coil by mighty coil,
'This serpent of a river to his head

'I' the midst! Admire each treasure, as we spread

'The bank, to help us tell our history
'Aright: give ear, endeavour to descry

'The groves of giant rushes, how they grew
'Like demons' endlong tresses we sailed
through,

'What mountains yawned, forests to give us vent

'Opened, each doleful side, yet on we went
'Till . . . may that beetle (shake your cap) attest

'The springing of a land-wind from the West!

—Wherefore? Ah yes, you frolic it to-
day!

To-morrow, and, the pageant moved away
Down to the poorest tent-pole, we and you
Part company: no other may pursue Eastward your voyage, be informed what
fate

Intends, if triumph or decline await
The tempter of the everlasting steppe.

I muse this on a ruined palace-step At Venice: why should I break off, nor sit

Longer upon my step, exhaust the fit

England gave birth to? Who's adorable Enough reclaim a — no Sordello's Will Alack!—be queen to me? That Bassanese Busied among her smoking fruit-boats?

These
Perhaps from our delicious Asolo
Who twinkle, pigeons o'er the portico
Not prettier, bind June-lilies into sheaves
To deck the bridge-side chapel, dropping
leaves

Soiled by their own loose gold-meal? Ah, beneath
The cool arch stoops she, brownest cheek!
Her wreath

Endures a month—a half-month—if I
make

A queen of her, continue for her sake
Sordello's story? Nay, that Paduan girl Splashes with barer legs where a live whirl

In the dead black Giudecca proves seaweed

Drifting has sucked down three, four, all
indeed

Save one pale-red striped, pale-blue turbaned post

For gondolas.

You sad dishevelled ghost
That pluck at me and point, are you advised

I breathe? Let stay those girls (e'en her disguised

—Jewels i' the locks that love no crownet like

Their native field-buds and the green wheat-spike,

So fair!—who left this end of June's turmoil,

Shook off, as might a lily its gold soil, Pomp, save a foolish gem or two, and
free

In dream, came join the peasants o'er the
sea.)

Look they too happy, too tricked out?
Confess "

There is such niggard stock of happiness
To share, that, do one's uttermost, dear wretch,

One labours ineffectually to stretch
It o'er you so that mother and children,
both

May equitably flaunt the sumpter-cloth!
Divide the robe yet farther: be content
With seeing just a score pre-eminent Through shreds of it, acknowledged happy wights,

Engrossing what should furnish all, by rights!

For, these in evidence, you clearer claim
A like garb for the rest,—grace all, the same As these my peasants. I ask youth and
strength

And health for each of you, not more—at length

Grown wise, who asked at home that the whole race

Might add the spirit's to the body's grace,
And all be dizen'd out as chiefs and bards.

But in this magic weather one discards Much old requirement! Venice seems a type

Of Life—'twixt blue and blue extends, a stripe,

As Life, the somewhat, hangs 'twixt nought and nought:

'Tis Venice, and 'tis Life—as good you
sought

To spare me the Piazza's slippery stone
Or keep me to the unchoked canals alone,
As hinder Life the evil with the good Which make up Living, rightly understood.

Only, do finish something! Peasants,
queens,

Take them, made happy by whatever
means,

Parade them for the common credit, vouch
That a luckless residue, we sent to crouch
In corners out of sight, was just as framed For happiness, its portion might have claimed

As well, and so, obtaining joy, had stalked Fastuous as any!—such my project, balked

Already; I hardly venture to adjust
The first rags, when you find me. To mis-
trust

Me!—nor unreasonably. You, no doubt,
Have the true knack of tiring suitors out
With those thin lips on tremble, lashless
eyes

Inveterately tear-shot: there, be wise,
Mistress of mine, there, there, as if I meant You insult!—shall your friend (not slave) be shent

For speaking home? Beside, care-bit erased

Broken-up beauties ever took my taste
Supremely; and I love you more, far more Than her I looked should foot Life's temple-floor.

Years ago, leagues at distance, when and
where

A whisper came, 'Let others seek!—thy
care

'Is found, thy life's provision; if thy race
'Should be thy mistress, and into one face
'The many faces crowd?' Ah, had I, judge, Or no, your secret? Rough apparel—
grudge

All ornaments save tag or tassel worn
To hint we are not thoroughly forlorn—Slouch bonnet, unloop mantle, careless
go

Alone (that's saddest, but it must be so)
Through Venice, sing now and now glance
aside,

August desultory or undignified,—

Then, ravishingest lady, will you pass
Or not each formidable group, the mass
Before the Basilic (that feast gone by, God's great day of the Corpus Domini)
And, wistfully foregoing proper men, Come timid up to me for alms? And then
The luxury to hesitate, feign do Some unexampled grace!—when, whom
but you

Dare I bestow your own upon? And hear Further before you say, it is to sneer
I call you ravishing; for I regret Little that she, whose early foot was set Forth as she'd plant it on a pedestal,
Now, i' the silent city, seems to fall
Toward me—no wreath, only a lip's unrest
To quiet, surcharged eyelids to be pressed Dry of their tears upon my bosom. Strange Such sad chance should produce in thee such change,

My love! Warped souls and bodies! yet
God spoke

Of right-hand, foot and eye—selects our yoke,
Sordello, as your poetship may find!
So, sleep upon my shoulder, child, nor
mind

Their foolish talk; we'll manage reinstate Your old worth; ask moreover, when they prate

Of evil men past hope, 'Don't each contrive,

'Despite the evil you abuse, to live?—
'Keeping, each losel, through a maze of lies,

'His own conceit of truth? to which he lies
'By obscure windings, tortuous, if you will,
'But to himself not inaccessible;

'He sees truth, and his lies are for the crowd
'Who cannot see; some fancied right allowed

'His vilest wrong empowered the losel
clutch

'One pleasure from a multitude of such
'Denied him.' Then assert, 'All men appear 'To think all better than themselves, by
here

'Trusting a crowd they wrong; but really,'
say,

'All men think all men stupider than they,
'Since, save themselves, no other compre-hends

'The complicated scheme to make amends
'—Evil, the scheme by which, thro' Ignorance,

'Good labours to exist.' A slight advance,

Merely to find the sickness you die through,
And nought beside! but if one can't eschew One's portion in the common lot, at least
One can avoid an ignorance increased Tenfold by dealing out hint after hint

•How nought were like dispensing without stint

The water of life—so easy to dispense Beside, when one has probed the centre
whence

Commotion's born—could tell you of it
all!

'—Meantime, just meditate my madrigal
'O' the mugwort that conceals a dewdrop
safe!'

What, dullard? we and you in smothery
chafe,

Babes, baldheads, stumbled thus far into Zin

The Horrid,¹ getting neither out nor in,
A hungry sun above us, sands that bung
Our throats,—each dromedary lolls a
tongue,

Each camel churns a sick and frothy chap,
And you, 'twixt tales of Potiphar's mishap,
And sonnets on the earliest ass that spoke,
—Remark, you wonder any one needs
choke

With founts about! Potsherd him, Gibeonites!

While awkwardly enough your Moses smites

The rock, though he forego his Promised
Land

Thereby, have Satan claim his carcass, and

Mark ye the dim first ooings? Meribah!² Then, quaffing at the fount my courage
gained,

Recall—not that I prompt ye—who explained . . .

'Presumptuous!' interrupts one. You, not I

'Tis, brother, marvel at and magnify
Such office: 'office,' quotha? can we get
To the beginning of the office yet?

What do we here? simply experiment
Each on the other's power and its intent
When elsewhere tasked,—if this of mine were trucked

For yours to either's good,—we watch construct,

In short, an engine: with a finished one,
What it can do, is all,—nought, how 'tis
done.

But this of ours yet in probation, dusk
A kernel of strange wheelwork through its husk

Grows into shape by quarters and by halves;

Remark this tooth's spring, wonder what that valve's

Fall bodes, presume each faculty's device,
Make out each other more or less precise—
The scope of the whole engine's to be
proved;

We die: which means to say, the whole's removed,

² Waters of Meribah, that is, of Strife. See Exodus xvii. 7.

Dismounted wheel by wheel, this complex gin,—

To be set up anew elsewhere, begin
A task indeed, but with a clearer clime
Than the murky lodgment of our building-
time.

And then, I grant you, it behoves forget
How 'tis done—all that must amuse us yet
So long; and, while you turn upon your heel,

Pray that I be not busy slitting steel Or shredding brass, camped on some virgin shore

Under a cluster of fresh stars, before
I name a tithe o' the wheels I trust to do!

So occupied, then, are we: hitherto,
At present, and a weary while to come,
The office of ourselves,—nor blind nor
dumb,

And seeing somewhat of man's state,—has been,

For the worst of us, to say they so have
seen;

For the better, what it was they saw; the
best

Impart the gift of seeing to the rest:
'So that I glance,' says such an one,
'around,

'And there's no face but I can read pro-
found

'Disclosures in; this stands for hope, that
—fear,

'And for a speech, a deed in proof, look
here!

""Stoop, else the strings of blossom, where the nuts

""O'erarch, will blind thee! Said I not?
She shuts

""Both eyes this time, so close the hazels
meet!

""Thus, prisoned in the Piombi, I repeat ""Events one rove occasioned, o'er and
o'er,

""Putting 'twixt me and madness ever-
more

""Thy sweet shape, Zanze! Therefore stoop!"

""That's truth!"

'(Adjudge you) "the incarcerated youth
""Would say that!"

'Youth? Plara the bard? Set down
'That Plara spent his youth in a grim town

'Those cramped ill-featured streets huddled about

'The minster for protection, never out 'Of its black belfry's shade and its bells' roar.

'The brighter shone the suburb,—all the
more

'Ugly and absolute that shade's reproof
'Of any chance escape of joy,—some roof,

'Taller than they, allowed the rest detect,— 'Before the sole permitted laugh (suspect

'Who could, 'twas meant for laughter, that ploughed cheek's
'Repulsive gleam!) when the sun stopped both peaks
'Of the cleft belfry like a fiery wedge,
'Then sank, a huge flame on its socket edge,
'With leavings on the grey glass oriel-pane
'Ghastly some minutes more. No fear of rain—
'The minster minded that! in heaps the dust
'Lay everywhere. This town, the minster's
trust,
'Held Plara; who, its denizen, bade hail
'In twice twelve sonnets, Tempe's dewy vale.'

""Exact the town, the minster and the street!"

'As all mirth triumphs, sadness means defeat:
'Lust triumphs and is gay, Love's triumphed o'er
'And sad: but Lucio's sad. I said before,
'Love's sad, not Lucio; one who loves may
be
'As gay his love has leave to hope, as he
'Downcast that lusts' desire escapes the springe:
'Tis of the mood itself I speak, what tinge
'Determines it, else colourless,—or mirth,
'Or melancholy, as from heaven or earth.'

""Ay, that's the variation's gist!"

""Indeed?"

""Thus far advanced in safety then, proceed!

'And having seen too what I saw, be bold
'And next encounter what I do behold
'(That's sure) but bid you take on trust!"

Attack

The use and purpose of such sights! Alack,
Not so unwisely does the crowd dispense
On Salinguerras praise in preference
To the Sordellos: men of action, these!
Who, seeing just as little as you please,
Yet turn that little to account,—engage
With, do not gaze at,—carry on, a stage,
The work o' the world, not merely make report
The work existed ere their day! In short,
When at some future no-time a brave band Sees, using what it sees, then shake my
hand
In heaven, my brother! Meanwhile where's the hurt
Of keeping the Makers-see on the alert,
At whose defection mortals stare aghast
As though heaven's bounteous windows were slammed fast
Incontinent? Whereas all you, beneath, Should scowl at, bruise their lips and break
their teeth
Who play the pullies, for neglecting you:
And therefore have I moulded, made anew

- A Man, and give him to be turned and tried,
Be angry with or pleased at. On your side,
Have ye times, places, actors of your own?
Try them upon Sordello when full-grown,
And then—ah, then! If Hercules first parched
His foot in Egypt only to be marched
A sacrifice for Jove with pomp to suit, What chance have I? The demigod was mute
Till, at the altar, where time out of mind
Such guests became oblations, chaplets twined
His forehead long enough, and he began Slaying the slayers, nor escaped a man.
Take not affront, my gentle audience!
 whom
No Hercules shall make his hecatomb, Believe, nor from his brows your chaplet rend—
That's your kind suffrage, yours, my patron-friend,
Whose great verse blares unintermitted
 on
Like your own trumpeter at Marathon,—
You who, Plataea and Salamis being scant,
Put up with Ætna for a stimulant—
And did well, I acknowledged, as he loomed
Over the midland sea last month, presumed
Long, lay demolished in the blazing West
At eve, while towards him tilting cloudlets
 pressed
Like Persian ships at Salamis. Friend, wear
A crest proud as desert while I declare
Had I a flawless ruby fit to wring
Tears of its colour from that painted king!
Who lost it, I would, for that smile which went
To my heart, fling it in the sea, content,
Wearing your verse in place, an amulet Sovereign against all passion, wear and fret!
My English Eyebright, if you are not glad
That, as I stopped my task awhile, the sad
Dishevelled form, wherein I put mankind
To come at times and keep my pact in mind, Renewed me,—hear no crickets in the hedge,
Nor let a glowworm spot the river's edge
At home, and may the summer showers
 gush
Without a warning from the missel thrush!
So, to our business, now—the fate of such As find our common nature—overmuch
Despised because restricted and unfit
To bear the burthen they impose on it—Cling when they would discard it; craving
 strength
• To leap from the allotted world, at length ¹ Polycrates of Samos.
- They do leap,—flounder on without a
 term,
Each a god's germ, doomed to remain a germ
In unexpanded infancy, unless . . .
But that's the story—dull enough, confess!
There might be fitter subjects to allure;
Still, neither misperceive my portraiture
Nor undervalue its adornments quaint:
What serves a fiend perchance may prove a saint.
Ponder a story ancient pens transmit,
Then say if you condemn me or acquit.
John the Beloved, banished Antioch
For Patmos, bade collectively his flock
Farewell, but set apart the closing eve
To comfort those his exile most would grieve,
He knew: a touching spectacle, that house
In motion to receive him! Xanthus' spouse You missed, made panther's meat a month since; but Xanthus himself (his nephew 'twas, they shut
'Twixt boards and sawed asunder) Polycarp,
Soft Charicle, next year no wheel could warp
To swear by Cæsar's fortune, with the
 rest
Were ranged; thro' whom the grey disciple
 pressed,
Busily blessing right and left, just stopped
To pat one infant's curls, the hangman cropped
Soon after, reached the portal. On its hinge
The door turns and he enters: what quick twinge
Ruins the smiling mouth, those wide eyes fix
Whereon, why like some spectral candlestick's Branch the disciple's arms? Dead swooned he, woke Anon, heaved sigh, made swift to gasp, heart-broke,
'Get thee behind me, Satan! Have I toiled
'To no more purpose? Is the gospel foiled
'Here too, and o'er my son's, my Xanthus' hearth,
'Portrayed with sooty garb and features swarth—
'Ah, Xanthus, am I to thy roof beguiled
'To see the—the—the Devil domiciled?' Whereto sobbed Xanthus, 'Father, 'tis yourself
'Installed, a limning which our utmost self
'Went to procure against to-morrow's loss;
'And that's no twy-prong, but a pastoral cross,
'You're painted with!'
 His puckered brows unfold—
And you shall hear Sordello's story told.

BOOK THE FOURTH

MEANTIME Ferrara lay in rueful case;
The lady-city, for whose sole embrace Her pair of suitors struggled, felt their arms

A brawny mischief to the fragile charms
They tugged for—one discovering that to twist

Her tresses twice or thrice about his wrist
Secured a point of vantage—one, how best He'd parry that by planting in her breast
His elbow spike—each party too intent
For noticing, howe'er the battle went,
The conqueror would but have a corpse to
kiss.

'May Boniface be duly damned for this!'
—Howled some old Ghibellin, as up he
turned,

From the wet heap of rubbish where they burned

His house, a little skull with dazzling teeth:
'A boon, sweet Christ—let Salinguerra seethe

'In hell for ever, Christ, and let myself
'Be there to laugh at him!'—moaned some young Guelf

Stumbling upon a shrivelled hand nailed
fast

To the charred lintel of the doorway, last
His father stood within to bid him speed.
The thoroughfares were overrun with weed —Docks, quitchgrass, loathly mallows no man plants.

The stranger, none of its inhabitants
Crept out of doors to taste fresh air again,
And ask the purpose of a splendid train
Admitted on a morning; every town
Of the East League was come by envoy
down

To treat for Richard's ransom: here you saw

The Vicentine, here snowy oxen draw
The Paduan carroch, its vermilion cross
On its white field. A-tiptoe o'er the fosse Looked Legate Montelungo wistfully
After the flock of steeples he might spy
In Este's time, gone (doubts he) long ago
To mend the ramparts: sure the laggards
know

The Pope's as good as here! They paced the streets

More soberly. At least, 'Taurello greets
'The League,' announced a pursuivant,—
'will match

'Its courtesy, and labours to dispatch
'At earliest Tito, Friedrich's Pretor, sent
'On pressing matters from his postat Trent,
'With Mainard Count of Tyrol,—simply
waits

'Their going to receive the delegates.'
'Tito!' Our delegates exchanged a glance,
And, keeping the main way, admired askance

The lazy engines of outlandish birth, Couched like a king each on its bank of
earth—

Arbalist, manganel and catapult;
While stationed by, as waiting a result,
Lean silent gangs of mercenaries ceased Working to watch the strangers. 'This, at least,

'Were better spared; he scarce presumes gainsay

'The League's decision! Get our friend
away

'And profit for the future: how else teach
'Fools 'tis not safe to stray within claw's reach

'Ere Salinguerra's final gasp be blown?
'Those mere convulsive scratches find the bone.

'Who bade him bloody the spent osprey's nare?'

The carrochs halted in the public square.
Pennons of every blazon—once a-flaunt, Men prattled, freelier that the crested gaunt

White ostrich with a horse-shoe in her beak Was missing, and whoever chose might
speak

'Ecelin' boldly out: so,—'Ecelin
'Needed his wife to swallow half the sin

'And sickens by himself: the devil's whelp,
'He styles his son, dwindles away, no help
'From preserves, your fine triple-curved froth

'Of virgin's blood, your Venice viperbroth—

'Eh? Jubilant!'—'Peace! no little word
'You utter here that's not distinctly heard

'Up at Olierio: he was absent sick
'When we besieged Bassano—who, i' the thick

'O' the work, perceived the progress Azzo
made,

'Like Ecelin, through his witch Adelaide?
'She managed it so well that, night by night

'At their bed-foot stood up a soldier-sprite,
'First fresh, pale by-and-by without a
wound,

'And, when it came with eyes filmed as in sweat,

'They knew the place was taken.'—'Ominous

'That Ghibellins should get what cautelous

'Old Redbeard sought from Azzo's sire to wrench

'Vainly; Saint George contrived his town a trench

'O' the marshes, an impermeable bar.'
'—Young Ecelin is meant the tutelar

'Of Padua, rather; veins embrace upon
'His hand like Brenta and Bacchiglion.'

What now?—'The founts! God's bread, touch not a plank!

'A crawling hell of carrion—every tank

'Choke-full!—found out just now to Cino's cost—

'The same who gave Taurello up for lost,
'And, making no account of fortune's freaks,

'Refused to budg. from Padua then, but sneaks

'Back now with Concorezzi: 'faith! they drag

'Their carroch to San Vitale, plant the flag
'On his own palace, so adroitly razed

'He knew it not; a sort of Guelf folk gazed

'And laughed & part; Cino disliked their air—

'Must pluck up spirit, show he does not care—

'Seats himself on the tank's edge—will begin

'To hum, za, za, Cavalier Ecelin—

'A silence; he gets warmer, clicks to chime,
'Now both feet plough the ground, deeper each time,

'At last, za, za and up with a fierce kick
'Comes his own mother's face caught by the thick

'Grey hair about his spur!'

Which means, they lift
The covering, Salinguerra made a shift
To stretch upon the truth; as well avoid Further disclosures; leave them thus employed.

Our dropping Autumn morning clears apace,

And poor Ferrara puts a softened face
On her misfortunes. Let us scale this tall Huge foursquare line of red brick garden-wall

Bastioned within by trees of every sort
On three sides, slender, spreading, long and short;

Each grew as it contrived, the poplar ramped,

The fig-tree reared itself,—but stark and cramped,

Made fools of, like tamed lions: whence, on the edge,

Running 'twixt trunk and trunk to smooth one ledge

Of shade, were shrubs inserted, warp and woof,

Which smothered up that variance. Scale the roof

Of solid tops, and o'er the slope you slide
Down to a grassy space level and wide,

Here and there dotted with a tree, but trees
Of rarer leaf, each foreigner at ease,

Set by itself: and in the centre spreads,
Borne upon three uneasy leopards' Leads,

A laver, broad and shallow, one bright spirt

Of water bubbles in. The walls begirt
'With trees leave off on either hand; pursue

Your path along a wondrous avenue

Those walls about on, heaped of gleamy stone,

With aloes leering everywhere, grey-grown
From many a Moorish summer: how they wind

Out of the fissures! likelier to bind
The building than those rusted cramps which drop

Already in the eating sunshine. Stop,

You fleeting shapes above there! Ah, the pride

Or else despair of the whole countryside!

A range of statues, swarming o'er with wasps,

God, goddess, woman, man, the Greek rough-rasps

In crumbling Naples marble—meant to look Like those Messina marbles Constance took

Delight in, or Taurello's self conveyed To Mantua for his mistress, Adelaide,—

A certain font with caryatides
Since cloistered at Goito; only, these

Are up and doing, not abashed, a troop
Able to right themselves—who see you,

stoop
Their arms o' the instant after you! Unplucked

By this or that, you pass; for they conduct
To terrace raised on terrace, and, between,

Creatures of brighter mould and braver mien

Than any yet, the choicest of the Isle
No doubt. Here, left a sullen breathing-

while,
Up-gathered on himself the Fighter stood
For his last fight, and, wiping treacherous

blood
Out of the eyelids just held ope beneath

Those shading fingers in their iron sheath,
Steadied his strengths amid the buzz and stir

Of the dusk hideous amphitheatre
At the announcement of his over-match

To wind the day's diversion up, dispatch
The pertinacious Gaul: while, limbs one heap,

The Slave, no breath in her round mouth, watched leap

Dart after dart forth, as her hero's car Clove dizzily the solid of the war

—Let coil about his knees for pride in him.

We reach the farthest terrace, and the grim
San Pietro Palace stops us.

Such the state
Of Salinguerra's plan to emulate

Sicilian marvels, that his girlish wife
Retrude still might lead her ancient life

In her new home: whereat enlarged so much

Neighbours upon the novel princely touch

He took,—who here imprisons Boniface.
Here must the Envoys come to sue for
grace;

And here, emerging from the labyrinth
Below, Sordello paused beside the plinth
Of the door-pillar.

He had really left Verona for the cornfields (a poor theft From the morass) where Este's camp was
made;

The Envoys' march, the Legate's cavalcade—

All had been seen by him, but scarce as when,—

Eager for cause to stand aloof from men
At every point save the fantastic tie Acknowledged in his boyish sophistry,— He made account of such. A crowd,—he meant

To task the whole of it; each part's intent Concerned him therefore: and, the more he pried,

The less became Sordello satisfied
With his own figure at the moment. Sought He respite from his task? Descried he aught

Novel in the anticipated sight
Of all these livers upon all delight?

This phalanx, as of myriad points combined,

Whereby he still had imaged the mankind
His youth was passed in dreams of rivalling,

His age—in plans to prove at least such
thing

Had been so dreamed,—which now he must impress

With his own will, effect a happiness
By theirs,—supply a body to his soul Thence, and become eventually whole
With them as he had hoped to be without—Made these the mankind' he once raved about?

Because a few of them were notable,
Should all be figured worthy note? As well
Expect to find Taurello's triple line
Of trees a single and prodigious pine.

Real pines rose here and there; but, close
among,

Thrust into and mixed up with pines, a throng

Of shrubs, he saw—a nameless common
sort

O'erpast in dreams, left out of the report
And hurried into corners, or at best Admitted to be fancied like the rest.
Reckon that morning's proper chiefs—how few!

And yet the people grew, the people grew,
Grew ever, as if the many there indeed,
More left behind and most who should succeed,—

Simply in virtue of their mouths and eyes,
Petty enjoyments and huge miseries,—

Mingled with, and made veritably great Those chiefs: he overlooked not Mainard's state

Nor Concorezzi's station, but instead Of stopping there, each dwindled to be
head

Of infinite and absent Tyrolese Or Paduans; startling all the more, that
these

Seemed passive and disposed of, uncared
for,

Yet doubtless on the whole (like Eglamor)
Smiling; for if a wealthy man decays
And out of store of robes must wear, all
days,

One tattered suit, alike in sun and shade,
'Tis commonly some tarnished gay brocade

Fit for a feast-night's flourish and no more:
Nor otherwise poor Misery from her store
Of looks is fain upgather, keep unfurled
For common wear as she goes through the
world,

The faint remainder of some worn-out
smile

Meant for a feast-night's service merely.
While

Crowd upon crowd rose on Sordello
thus,—

(Crowds no way interfering to discuss,
Much less dispute, life's joys with one employed)

In enjoying them,—or, if they aught enjoyed,

Where lingered something indefinable
In every look and tone, the mirth as well
As woe, that fixed at once his estimate Of the result, their good or bad estate)—
Old memories returned with new effect:

And the new body, ere he could suspect, Cohered, mankind and he were really
fused,

The new self seemed impatient to be used
By him, but utterly another way

Than that anticipated: strange to say,
They were too much below him, more in thrall

Than he, the adjunct than the principal.
What booted scattered units?—here a
mind

And there, which might repay his own to
find,

And stamp, and use?—a few, howe'er august,

If all the rest were grovelling in the dust?
No: first a mighty equilibrium, sure,

Should he establish, privilege procure For all, the few had long possessed! He felt

An error, an exceeding error melt:
While he was occupied with Mantuan chants,

Behoved him think of men, and take their wants,

Such as he now distinguished every side,
As his own want which might be satisfied,—
And, after that, think of rare qualities
Of his own soul demanding exercise.

It followed naturally, through no claim
On their part, which made virtue of the aim At serving them, on his,—that, past retrieve,

He felt now in their toils, theirs—nor could
leave

Wonder how, in the eagerness to rule,
Impress his will on mankind, he (the fool!)
Had never even entertained the thought That this his last arrangement might be fraught

With incidental good to them as well,
And that mankind's delight would help to swell

His own. So, if he sighed, as formerly Because the merry time of life must fleet,
'Twas deeper now,—for could the crowds
repeat

Their poor experiences? His hand that shook

Was twice to be deplored. 'The Legate,
look!

'With eyes, like fresh-blown thrush-eggs on a thread,

'Faint-blue and loosely floating in his head,
'Large tongue, moist open mouth; and this long while

'That owner of the idiotic smile
'Serves them!'

He fortunately saw in time
His fault, however, and since the office
prime

Includes the secondary—best accept
Both offices; Taurello, its adept,
Could teach him the preparatory one,
And how to do what he had fancied done
Long previously, ere take the greater task.
How render first these people happy? Ask
The people's friends: for there must be one
good,

One way to it—the Cause! He understood
The meaning now of Palma; why the jar
Else, the ado, the trouble wide and far Of Guefs and Ghibellins, the Lombard
hope

And Rome's despair?—'twixt Emperor and Pope

The confused shifting sort of Eden tale—
Hardihood still recurring, still to fail—
That foreign interloping fiend, this free
And native overbrooding teity:

Yet a dire fascination o'er the palms
The Kaiser ruined, troubling even the calms

Of paradise; or, on the other hand,
The Pontiff, as the Kaisers understand,
One snake-like cursed of God to love the
ground,

*Whose heavy length breaks in the noon profound

Some saving tree—which needs the Kaiser, dressed

As the dislodging angel of that pest:
Yet flames that pest bedropped, flat head,
full fold,

With coruscating dower of dyes. 'Behold
'The secret, so to speak, and master-
spring

'O' the contest!—which of the two Powers shall bring

'Men good, perchance the most good: ay,
it may

'Be that!—the question, which best knows
the way.'

And hereupon Count Mainard strutted
past

Out of San Pietro; never seemed the last
Of archers, slingers: and our friend began To recollect strange modes of serving
man—

Arbalist, catapult, brake, mangel,
And more. 'This way of theirs may,—who can tell?—

'Need perfecting,' said he: 'let all be solved
'At once! Taurello 'tis, the task devolved
'On late: confront Taurello!'

And at last
He did confront him. Scarce an hour had
past

When forth Sordello came, older by years
Than at his entry. Unexampled fears

Oppressed him, and he staggered off, blind,
mute

And deaf, like some fresh-mutilated brute,
Into Ferrara—not the empty town That morning witnessed: he went up and
down

Streets whence the veil had been stript shred by shred,

So that, in place of huddling with their dead

Indoors, to answer Salinguerra's ends, Townfolk make shift to crawl forth, sit like friends

With any one. A woman gave him choice
Of her two daughters, the infantile voice
Or the dimpled knee, for half a chain, his throat

Was clasped with; but an archer knew the coat—

Its blue cross and eight lilies,—bade beware

One dogging him in concert with the pair
Though thrumming on the sleeve that hid his knife.

Night set in early, autumn dews were
rife,

They kindled great fires while the Leaguers'
mass

Began at every carroch: he must pass Between the kneeling people. Presently
The carroch of Verona caught his eye

With purple trappings; silently he bent
Over its fire, when voices violent

Began, 'Affirm not whom the youth was like

'That struck me from the porch: I did not strike

'Again: I too have chestnut hair; my kin
'Hate Azzo and stand up for Ecelin.

'Here, minstrel, drive bad thoughts away!
Sing! Take

'My glove for guerdon!' And for that man's sake

He turned: 'A song of Eglamor's!'— scarce named,

When, 'Our Sordello's rather!'—all exclaimed;

'Is not Sordello famous for rhyme?'
He had been happy to deny, this time,—

Profess as heretofore the aching head And failing heart,—suspect that in his
stead

Some true Apollo had the charge of them,
Was champion to reward or to condemn,
So his intolerable risk might shift

Or share itself; but Naddo's precious gift Of gifts, he owned, be certain! At the close—

'I made that,' said he to a youth who rose
As if to hear: 'twas Palma through the band Conducted him in silence by her hand.

Back now for Salinguerra. Tito of Trent Gave place to Palma and her friend, who went

In turn at Montelungo's visit: one
After the other were they come and gone,—

These spokesmen for the Kaiser and the Pope,

This incarnation of the People's hope,
Sordello,—all the say of each was said;

And Salinguerra sat,—himself instead
Of these to talk with, lingered musing yet.

'Twas a drear vast presence-chamber roughly set

In order for the morning's use; full face,
The Kaiser's ominous sign-mark had first
place,

The crowned grim twy-necked eagle, coarsely-blacked

With ochre on the naked wall; nor lacked Romano's green and yellow either side;

But the new token Tito brought had tried
The Legate's patience—nay, if Palma knew

What Salinguerra almost meant to do
Until the sight of her restored his lip

A certain half-smile, three months' chieftainship

Had banished! Afterward, the Legate
found

No change in him, nor asked what badge
he wound

And unwound carelessly. Now sat the
Chief

Silent as when our couple left, whose brief
Encounter wrought so opportune effect

In thoughts he summoned not, nor would reject,

Though time 'twas now if ever, to pause—
fix

On any sort of ending: wiles and tricks
Exhausted, judge! his charge, the crazy
town,

Just managed to be hindered crashing
down—

His last sound troops ranged—care observed to post

His best of the maimed soldiers inner-most—

So much was plain enough, but somehow struck

Him not before. And now with this strange luck

Of Tito's news, rewarding his address
So well, what thought he of?—how the
success

With Friedrich's rescript there, would either hush

Old Ecelin's scruples, bring the manly flush

To his young son's white cheek, or, last, exempt

Himself from telling what there was to tempt?

No: that this minstrel was Romano's last Servant—himself the first! Could he contrast

The whole!—that minstrel's thirty years just spent

In doing ought, their notablest event
This morning's journey hither, as I told—

Who yet was lean, outworn and really old,
A stammering awkward man that scarce dared raise

His eye before the magisterial gaze—
And Salinguerra with his fears and hopes

Of sixty years, his Emperors and Popes, Cares and contrivances, yet, you would say,

'Twas a youth nonchalantly looked away
Through the embrasure northward o'er
the sick

Expostulating trees—so agile, quick
And graceful turned the head on the broad chest

Encased in pliant steel, his constant vest,
Whence split the sun off in a spray of fire

Across the room; and, loosened of its tire
Of steel, that head let breathe the comely brown

Large massive locks discoloured as if a crown

Encircled them, so frayed the basnet where
A sharp white line divided clean the hair;

Glossy above, glossy below, it swept Curling and fine about a brow thus kept

Calm, laid coat upon coat, marble and
sound:

This was the mystic mark the Tuscan
found,

Mused of, turned over books about,
Square-faced,

No lion more; two vivid eyes, enched

In hollows filled with many a shade and streak

Settling from the bold nose and bearded
cheek.

Nor might the half-smile reach them that deformed

A lip supremely perfect else—unwarmed, Unwidened, less or more; indifferent

Whether on trees or men his thoughts were
bent,

Thoughts rarely, after all, in trim and train
As now a period was fulfilled again:

Of such, a series made his life, compressed
In each, one story serving for the rest—

How his life-streams, rolling arrived at last
At the barrier, whence, were it once over-

past,
They would emerge, a river to the end,—

Gathered themselves up, paused, bade fate befriend,

Took the leap, hung a minute at the height,
Then fell back to oblivion infinite:

Therefore he smiled. Beyond stretched garden-grounds

Where the late adversary, breaking
bounds,

Had gained him an occasion, That above,
That eagle, testified he could improve

Effectually. The Kaiser's symbol lay Beside his rescript, a new badge by way

Of baldric; while,—another thing that marred

Alike emprise, achievement and reward,— Ecelin's missive was conspicuous too.

What past life did those flying thoughts pursue?

As his, few names in Mantua half so old;
But at Ferrara, where his sires enrolled

It latterly, the Adelardi spared
No pains to rival them: with Marchesalla's child shared Ferrara, so that, counted out, 'twould

yield
A product very like the city's shield, Half black and white, or Ghibellin and

Guelf

As after Salinguerra styled himself
And Este who, till Marchesalla died,

(Last of the Adelardi)—never tried
His fortune there: with Marchesalla's child

Would pass,—could Blacks and Whites be reconciled

And young Taurello wed Linguetta, — wealth

And sway to a sole grasp. 'Each treats by stealth

Already: when the Guelfs, the Ravennese
Arrive, assault the Pietro quarter, seize Linguetta, and are gone! Men's first dis-

may

Abated somewhat, hurries down, to lay
The after indignation, Boniface,

This Richard's father. 'Learn the full dis-
grace

'Averted, ere you blame us Guelfs, who rate
'Your Salinguerra, your sole potentate

'That might have been, 'mongst Este's valvassors—

'Ay, Azzo's—who, not privy to, abhors
'Our step; but we were zealous.' Azzo then

To do with! Straight a meeting of old men:
'Old Salinguerra dead, his heir a boy,

'What, if we change our ruler and decoy
'The Lombard Eagle of the azure sphere

'With Italy to build in, fix him here,
'Settle the city's troubles in a trice?

'For private wrong, let public good suffice!'

In fine, young Salinguerra's staunchest
friends

Talked of the townsmen making him
amends,

Gave him a goshawk, and affirmed there
was

Rare sport, one morning, over the green
grass

A mile or so. He sauntered through the plain,

Was restless, fell to thinking, turned again
In time for Azzo's entry with the bride;

Count Boniface rode smirking at their side;
'She brings him half Ferrara,' whispers flew,

'And all Ancona! If the stripling knew!'

Anon the stripling was in Sicily
Where Heinrich ruled in right of Constance; he

Was gracious nor his guest incapable;

Each understood the other. So it fell,
One Spring, when Azzo, thoroughly at

ease,
Had near forgotten by what precise degrees

He crept at first to such a downy seat,
The Count trudged over in a special heat

To bid him of God's love dislodge from
each

Of Salinguerra's palaces,—a breach Might yawn else, not so readily to shut,

For who was just arrived at Mantua but The youngster, sword on thigh and tuft on

chin,
With tokens for Celano, Ecelin,

Pistore, and the like! Next news,—no whit
Do any of Ferrara's domes befit

His wife of Heinrich's very blood: a band
Of foreigners assemble, understand

Garden-constructing, level and surround,
Build up and bury in. A last news crowned

The consternation: since his infant's birth,
He only waits they end his wondrous girth

Of trees that link San Pietro with Tomà,
To visit Mantua. When the Podestà

Ecelin, at Vicenza, called his friend
Taurello thither, what could be their end

But to restore the Ghibellins' late Head,
The Kaiser helping? He with most to dread

From vengeance and reprisal, Azzo, there
With Boniface beforehand, as aware

Of plots in progress, gave alarm, expelled Both plotters: but the Gueifs in triumph yelled

Too hastily. The burning and the flight,
And how Taurello, occupied that night
With Ecelin, lost wife and son, I told:

—Not how he bore the blow, retained his hold,

Got friends safe through, left enemies the worst

O' the fray, and hardly seemed to care at
first:

But afterward men heard not constantly
Of Salinguerra's House so sure to be!

Though Azzo simply gained by the event
A shifting of his plagues—the first, content

To fall behind the second and estrange
So far his nature, suffer such a change

That in Romano sought he wife and child,
And for Romano's sake seemed reconciled

To losing individual life, which shrunk
As the other prospered—mortised in his trunk;

Like a dwarf palm which wanton Arabs foil

Of bearing its own proper wine and oil,
By grafting into it the stranger-vine,

Which sucks its heart out, sly and serpentine, Till forth one vine-palm feathers to the root,

And red drops moisten the insipid fruit.

Once Adelaide set on,—the subtle mate
Of the weak soldier, urged to emulate

The Church's valiant women deed for
deed,

And paragon her namesake, win the meed
O' the great Matilda,—soon they overbore

The rest of Lombardy,—not as before
By an instinctive truculence, but patched

The Kaiser's strategy until it matched
The Pontiff's, sought old ends by novel

means.
'Only, why is it Salinguerra screens

'Himself behind Romano?—him we bade
'Enjoy our shine i' the front, not seek the shade!'

—Asked Heinrich, somewhat of the tardiest

To comprehend. Nor Philip acquiesced
At once in the arrangement; reasoned,

plied
His friend with offers of another bride,

A statelier function—fruitlessly: 'twas
plain

Taurello through some weakness must remain

Obscure. And Otho, free to judge of both —Ecelin the unready, harsh and loth,

And this more plausible and facile wight
With every point a-sparkle—chose the

right,
Admiring how his predecessors harped

On the wrong man: 'thus,' quoth he, 'wits are warped

'By outsiders!' Carelessly, meanwhile, his
life

Suffered its many turns of peace and strife
In many lands—you hardly could surprise

The man; who famed Sordello (recognize!)

In this as much beside, that, unconcerned
What qualities were natural or earned,

With no ideal of graces, as they came
He took them, singularly well the same—

Speaking the Greek's own language, just because

Your Greek eludes you, leave the least of flaws

In contracts with him; while, since Arab lore

Holds the stars' secret—take one trouble
more

And master it! 'Tis done, and now deter Who may the Tuscan, once Jove trined for

her,
From Friedrich's path!—Friedrich, whose

pilgrimage
The same man puts aside, whom he'll engage

To leave next year John Brienne in the

lurch,
Come to Bassano, see Saint Francis' church

And judge of Guido the Bolognian's piece
Which,—lend Taurello credit,—rivals

Greece—
Angels, with aureoles like golden quoits

Pitched home, applauding Ecelin's exploits.

For elegance, he strung the angelot,
Made rhymes thereto; for prowess, clove

he not
Tiso, last siege, from crest to crupper?

Why
Detail you thus a varied mastery

But to show how Taurello, on the watch For men, to read their hearts and thereby catch

Their capabilities and purposes,

Displayed himself so far as displayed these:
While our Sordello only cared to know

About men as a means whereby he'd show
Himself, and men had much or little worth

According as they kept in or drew forth
That self; the other's choicest instruments

Surmised him shallow.
Meantime, malcontents

Dropped off, town after town grew wiser.
'How

'Change the world's face?' asked people;
'as 'tis now

'It has been, will be ever: very fine
'Subjecting things profane to things divine,

'In talk! This contumacy will fatigue
'The vigilance of Este and the League!

'The Ghibellins gain on us!'—as it happened.
Old Azzo and old Boniface, entrapped

By Ponte Alto, both in one month's space
Slept at Verona: either left a brace

Of sons—but, three years after, either's pair
 Lost Guglielm and Aldobrand its heir:
 Azzo remained and Richard—all the stay
 Of Este and Saint Boniface, at bay
 As 'twere. Then, either Ecelin grew old Or his brain altered—not o' the proper mould

For new appliances—his old palm-stock
 Endured no influx of strange strengths.

He'd rock

As in a drunkenness, or chuckle low
 As proud of the completeness of his woe, Then weep real tears;—now make some mad onslaught

On Este, heedless of the lesson taught So painfully,—now cringe for peace, sue
 peace

At price of past gain, bar of fresh increase
 To the fortunes of Romano. Up at last Rose Este, down Romano sank as fast.
 And men remarked these freaks of peace and war

Happened while Salinguerra was afar; Whence every friend besought him, all in
 vain,

To use his old adherent's wits again.
 Not he!—'who had advisers in his sons,
 'Could plot himself, nor needed any one's 'Advice.' 'Twas Adelaide's remaining staunch

Prevented his destruction root and branch Forthwith; but when she died, doom fell, for gay

He made alliances, gave lands away
 To whom it pleased accept them, and withdrew

For ever from the world. Taurello, who Was summoned to the convent, then refused

A word at the wicket, patience thus abused,
 Promptly threw off alike his imbecile Ally's yoke, and his own frank, foolish
 smile.

Soon a few movements of the happier sort Changed matters, put himself in men's report

As heretofore; he had to fight, beside,
 And that became him ever. So, in pride
 And flushing of this kind of second youth,
 He dealt a good-will blow. Este in truth Lay prone—and men remembered, somewhat late,

A laughing old outrageous stifled hate;
 He bore to Este—how it would outbreak
 At times spite of disguise, like an earthquake

In sunny weather—as that noted day When with his hundred friends he tried to slay

Azzo before the Kaiser's face: and how,
 On Azzo's calm refusal to allow

A liegeman's challenge, straight he too was calmed:

As if his hate could bear to lie embalmed,

Bricked up, the moody Pharaoh, and survive

All intermediate crumbings, to arrive
 At earth's catastrophe—'twas Este's crash
 Not Azzo's he demanded, so, no rash Procedure! Este's true antagonist
 Rose out of Ecelin; all voices whist,
 All eyes were sharpened, wits predicted.

He

'Twas, leaned in the embrasure absently,
 Amused with his own efforts, now, to trace
 With his steel-sheathed forefinger Friedrich's face

I' the dust: but as the trees waved sere, his
 smile

Deepened, and words expressed its thought erewhile.

'Ay, fairly housed at last, my old com-
 peer?

'That we should stick together, all the year
 'I kept Vicenza!—How old Boniface,

'Old Azzo caught us in its market-place,
 'He by that pillar, I at this,—caught each

'In mid swing, more than fury of his
 speech,

'Egging the rabble on to disavow
 'Allegiance to their Marquis—Bacchus,
 how

'They boasted! Ecelin must turn their drudge,

'Nor, if released, will Salinguerra grudge
 'Paying arrears of tribute due long since—

'Bacchus! My man could promise then,
 nor wince:

'The bones-and-muscles! Sound of wind and limb,

'Spoke he the set excuse I framed for him:
 'And now he sits me, slaving and mute,

'Intent on chafing each starved purple
 foot

'Benumbed past aching with the altar slab:
 'Will no vein thro' there when some monk shall blab

'Spitefully to the circle of bald scalps,
 "'Friedrich's affirmed to be our side the Alps"

'—Eh, brother Lactance, brother Anaclet?
 'Sworn to abjure the world, its fume and

fret,

'God's own now? Drop the dormitory bar,
 'Enfold the scanty grey serge scapular

'Twice o'er the cowl to muffle memories
 out!

'So! But the midnight whisper turns a
 shout,

'Eyes wink, mouths open, pulses circulate
 'In the stone walls: the past, the world you hate

'Is with you, ambush, open field—or see
 'The surging flame—we fire Vicenza—glee!

'Follow, let Pilio and Bernardo chafe!
 'Bring up the Mantuans—through San Biagio—safe!

'Ah, the mad people wakeu? Ah, they writhe
 'And reach us? If they block the gate? No tithe
 'Can pass—keep back, you Bassanese!
 The edge,
 'Use the edge—shear, thrust, hew, melt down the wedge,
 'Let out the black of those black upturned
 eyes!
 'Hell—are they sprinkling fire too? The blood fries
 'And hisses on your brass gloves as they tear
 'Those upturned faces choking with despair.
 'Brave! Slidder through the reeking gate!
 "How now?
 "'You six had charge of her?" And then the vow
 'Comes, and the foamspirts, hair's plucked, till one shriek
 '(I hear it) and you fling—you cannot
 speak—
 'Your gold-flowered basnet to a man who haled
 'The Adelaide he dared scarce view unveiled
 'This morn, naked across the fire: how
 crown
 'The archer that exhausted lays you down
 'Your infant, smiling at the flame, and dies?
 'While one, while mine . . .
 'Bacchus! I think there lies 'More than one corpse there' (and he paced the room)
 '—Another cinder somewhere: 'twas my doom
 'Beside, my doom! If Adelaide is dead,
 'I live the same, this Azzo lives instead
 'Of that to me, and we pull, any how,
 'Este into a heap: the matter's now
 'At the true juncture slipping us so oft.
 'Ay, Heinrich died and Otho, please you, doffed
 'His crown at such a juncture! Still, if holds
 'Our Friedrich's purpose, if this chain en-folds
 'The neck of . . . who but this same Ecelin
 'That must recoil when the best days begin!
 'Recoil? that's nought; if the recoiler
 leaves
 'His name for me to fight with, no one grieves:
 'But he must interfere, forsooth, unlock
 'His cloister to become my stumbling-block
 'Just as of old! Ay, ay, there 'tis again—
 'The land's inevitable Head—explain
 'The reverences that subject us! Count
 'These Ecelins now! Not to say as fount,

'Originating power of thought,—from twelve
 'That drop i' the trenches they joined hands to delve,
 'Six shall surpass him, but . . . why men must twine
 'Somehow with something! Ecelin's a fine
 'Clear name! 'Twere simpler, doubtless, twine with me
 'At once: our cloistered friend's capacity
 'Was of a sort! I had to share myself
 'In fifty portions, like an o'ertasked elf
 'That's forced illume in fifty points the vast 'Rare vapour he's enviroined by. At last
 'My strengths, though sorely frittered, e'en converge
 'And crown . . . no, Bacchus, they have yet to urge
 'The man be crowned!
 'That aloe, an he durst,
 'Would climb! Just such a bloated sprawler first
 'I noted in Messina's castle-court
 'The day I came, when Heinrich asked in sport
 'If I would pledge my faith to win him
 back
 'His right in Lombardy: "for, once bid pack
 "'Marauders," he continued, "in my stead
 "'You rule, Taurello!" and upon this head
 'Laid the silk glove of Constance—I see
 her
 'Too, mantled head to foot in miniver,
 'Retrude following!
 'I am absolved
 'From further toil: the empery devolved
 'On me, 'twas Tito's word: I have to lay
 'For once my plan, pursue my plan my
 way,
 'Prompt nobody, and render an account
 'Taurello to Taurello! Nay, I mount
 'To Friedrich: he conceives the post I kept,
 '—Who did true service, able or inept,
 'Who's worthy guerdon, Ecelin or I.
 'Me guerdoned, counsel follows: would he vie
 'With the Pope really? Azzo, Boniface
 'Compose a right-arm Hohenstauffen's
 race
 'Must break ere govern Lombardy. I
 point
 'How easy 'twere to twist, once out of joint,
 'The socket from the bone: my Azzo's stare
 'Meanwhile! for I, this idle strap to wear,
 'Shall—fret myself abundantly, what end
 'To serve? There's left me twenty years to spend
 '—How better than my old way? Had I one 'Who laboured to o'erthrow my work—a son

'Hatching with Azzo superb treachery,
 'To root my pines up and then poison me,
 'Suppose—'twere worth while frustrate that! Beside
 'Another life's ordain'd me: the world's tide
 'Rolls, and what hope of parting from the press
 'Of waves, a single wave through weariness
 'Gently lifted aside, laid upon shore?
 'My life must be lived out in foam and roar,
 'No question. Fifty years the province held
 'Taurello; troubles raised, and troubles quelled,
 'He in the midst—who leaves this quaint stone place,
 'These trees a year or two, then not a trace
 'Of him! How obtain hold, fetter men's tongues
 'Like this poor minstrel with the foolish songs—
 'To which, despite our bustle, he is linked?
 '—Flowers one may tease, that never grow extinct.
 'Ay, that patch, surely, green as ever, where
 'I set Her Moorish lentisk, by the stair,
 'To overawe the aloes; and we trod
 'Those flowers, how call you such?—into the sod;
 'A stately foreigner—a world of pain
 'To make it thrive, arrest rough winds—all vain!
 'It would decline; these would not be destroyed:
 'And now, where is it? where can you avoid 'The flowers? I frighten children twenty years
 'Longer!—which way, too, Ecelin appears 'To thwart me, for his son's besotted youth
 'Gives promise of the proper tiger-tooth:
 'They feel it at Vicenza! Fate, fate, fate,
 'My fine Taurello! Go you, promulgate
 'Friedrich's decree, and here's shall ag-grandize
 'Young Ecelin—your Prefect's badge! a prize
 'Too precious, certainly.
 'How now? Compete
 'With my old comrade? shuffle from their seat
 'His children? Paltry dealing! Don't I
 know
 'Ecelin? now, I think, and years ago!
 'What's changed—the weakness? did not I compound
 'For that, and undertake to keep him
 sound
 'Despite it? Here's Taurello hankering
 'After a boy's preferment—this laughing
 'To carry, Bacchus!' And he laughed.
 Remark
 'Why schemes wherein cold-blooded men embark

Prosper, when your enthusiastic sort Fail: while these last are ever stopping
 short—
 (So much they should—so little they can do!)
 The careless tribe see nothing to pursue
 If they desist; meantime their scheme succeeds.
 Thoughts were caprices in the course of deeds
 Methodic with Taurello; so, he turned,— Enough amused by fancies fairly earned
 Of Este's horror-struck submitted neck,
 And Richard, the cowed braggart, at his beck,—
 To his own petty but immediate doubt
 If he could pacify the League without Conceding Richard; just to this was brought
 That interval of vain discursive thought!
 As, shall I say, some Ethiop, past pursuit
 Of all enslavers, dips a shackled foot
 Burnt to the blood, into the drowsy black Enormous watercourse which guides him
 back
 To his own tribe again, where he is king;
 And laughs because he guesses, numbering
 The yellow poison-wattles on the pouch
 Of the first lizard wrested from its couch Under the slime (whose skin, the while, he strips
 To cure his nostril with, and festered lips,
 And eyeballs bloodshot through the desert-blast)
 That he has reached its boundary, at last May breathe;—thinks o'er enchantments of the South Sovereign to plague his enemies, their
 mouth,
 Eyes, nails, and hair; but, these enchantments tried
 In fancy, puts them soberly aside For truth, projects a cool return with
 friends,
 The likelihood of winning mere amends Ere long; thinks that, takes comfort silently,
 Then, from the river's brink, his wrongs and he,
 Hugging revenge close to their hearts, are
 soon
 Off-striding for the Mountains of the Moon.
 Midnight: the watcher nodded on his spear,
 Since clouds dispersing left a passage clear
 For any meagre and discoloured moon
 To venture forth; and such was peering
 soon
 Above the harassed city—her close lanes
 Closer, not half so tapering her fanes,
 As though she shrunk into herself to keep
 What little life was saved, more safely.
 Heap

By heap the watch-fires mouldered, and
beside
The blackest spoke Sordello and replied
Palma with none to listen. 'Tis your cause:
'What makes a Ghibellin? There should be laws—

'(Remember how my youth escaped! I
trust

'To you for manhood, Palma! tell me just 'As any child)—there must be laws at
work

'Explaining this. Assure me, good may
lurk

'Under the bad,—my multitude has part
'In your designs, their welfare is at heart

'With Salinguerra, to their interest
'Refer the deeds he dwelt on,—so divest
'Our conference of much that scared me.

Why

'Affect that heartless tone to Tito? I
'Esteemed myself, yes, in my inmost mind

'This morn, a recreant to my race—man-
kind

'O'erlooked till now: why boast my spirit's
force,

'—Such force denied its object? why divorce

'These, then admire my spirit's flight the
same

'As though it bore up, helped some halforbed flame

'Else quenched in the dead void, to living
space?

'That orb cast off to chaos and disgrace,
'Why vaunt so much my unencumbered

dance,
'Making a feat's facilities enhance

'Its marvel? But I front Taurello, one 'Of happier fate, and all I should have

done,
'He does; the people's good being paramount

'With him, their progress may perhaps account

'For his abiding still; whereas you heard
'The talk with Tito—the excuse preferred

'For burning those five hostages,—and broached

'By way of blind, as you and I approached,
'I do believe.

She spoke: then he, 'My thought
'Plainlier expressed! All to your profit—
nought

'Meantime of these, of conquests to achieve

'For them, of wretchedness he might relieve

'While profiting your party. Azzo, too,
'Supports a cause: what cause? Do Guelfs

pursue
'Their ends by means like yours, or better?'

When
The Guelfs were proved alike, men weighed with men,

And deed with deed, blaze, blood, with blood and blaze,

Morn broke: 'Once more, Sordello, meet its gaze

'Proudly—the people's charge against thee fails

'In every point, while either party quails!
'These are the busy ones: be silent thou!

'Two parties take the world up, and allow
'No third, yet have one principle, subsist

'By the same injustice; whoso shall enlist
'With either, ranks with man's inveterate foes.

'So there is one less quarrel to compose:
'The Gueff, the Ghibellin may be to curse—

'I have done nothing, but both sides do
worse

'Than nothing. Nay, to me, forgotten, reft
'Of insight, lapped by trees and flowers, was left

'The notion of a service—ha? What lured
'Me here, what mighty aim was I assured

'Must move Taurello? What if there remained

'A cause, intact, distinct from these, ordained

'For me, its true discoverer?'

Some one pressed
Before them here, a watcher, to suggest

The subject for a ballad: 'They must know
'The tale of the dead worthy, long ago

'Consul of Rome—that's long ago for us,
'Minstrels and bowmen, idly squabbling
thus

'In the world's corner—but too late no
doubt,

'For the brave time he sought to bring
about.

'—Not know Crescentius Nomentanus?'

Then

He cast about for terms to tell him, when Sordello disavowed it, how they used

Whenever their Superior introduced A novice to the Brotherhood—('for I 'Was just a brown-sleeve brother, merrily

'Appointed too,' quoth he, 'till Innocent

'Bade me relinquish, to my small content,
'My wife or my brown sleeves')—some brother spoke

Ere nocturns of Crescentius, to revoke
The edict issued, after his demise,

Which blotted fame alike and effigies,
All out except a floating power, a name

Including, tending to produce the same Great act. Rome, dead, forgotten, lived at least

Within that brain, though to a vulgar priest
And a vile stranger,—two not worth a slave

'Of Rome's, Pope John, King Otho,—fortune gave

The rule there: so, Crescentius, haply
dressed

In white, called Roman Consul for a jest,

Taking the people at their word, forth stepped
 As upon Brutus' heel, nor ever kept Rome waiting,—stood erect, and from his brain
 Gave Rome out on its ancient place again,
 Ay, bade proceed with Brutus' Rome, Kings styled Themselves mere citizens of, and, beguiled
 Into great thoughts thereby, would choose the gem
 Out of a lapfull, spoil their diadem
 —The Senate's cypher was so hard to scratch!
 He flashes like a phanal, all men catch
 The flame, Rome's just accomplished! when returned Otho, with John, the Consul's step had spurned,
 And Hugo Lord of Este, to redress
 The wrongs of each. Crescentius in the stress Of adverse fortune bent. 'They crucified'
 'Their Consul in the Forum; and abide
 'E'er since such slaves at Rome, that I—(for I
 'Was once a brown-sleeve brother, merrily
 'Appointed)—I had option to keep wife
 'Or keep brown sleeves, and managed in the strife
 'Lose both. A song of Rome!'
 And Rome, indeed,
 Robed at Goito in fantastic weed,
 The Mother-City of his Mantuan days,
 Looked an established point of light whence rays
 Traversed the world; for, all the clustered homes
 Beside of men, seemed bent on being Romes
 In their degree; the question was, how each Should most resemble Rome, clean out of reach.
 Nor, of the Two, did either principle Struggle to change, but to possess Rome,
 —still
 Gueff Rome or Ghibellin Rome.
 Let Rome advance!
 Rome, as she struck Sordello's ignorance—
 How could he doubt one moment? Rome's the Cause!
 Rome of the Pandects, all the world's new laws—
 Of the Capitol, of Castle Angelo;
 New structures, that inordinately glow,
 Subdued, brought back to harmony, made ripe
 By many a relic of the archetype
 Extant for wonder; every upstart church
 That hoped to leave old temples in the lurch,

Corrected by the Theatre forlorn
 That,—as a mundane shell, its world late born,— Lay and o'ershadowed it. These hints combined Rome typifies the scheme to put mankind
 Once more in full possession of their rights.
 'Let us have Rome again! On me it lights
 'To build up Rome—on me, the first and last:
 'For such a future was endured the past!'
 And thus, in the grey twilight, forth he sprung
 To give his thought consistency among
 The very People—let their facts avail
 Finish the dream grown from the archer's tale.

BOOK THE FIFTH

Is it the same Sordello in the dusk
 As at the dawn?—merely a perished husk
 Now, that arose a power fit to build Up Rome again? The proud conception chilled
 So soon? Ay, watch that latest dream of thine
 —A Rome indebted to no Palatine—
 Drop arch by arch, Sordello! Art possessed
 Of thy wish now, rewarded for thy quest
 To-day among Ferrara's squalid sons?
 Are this and this and this the shining ones
 Meet for the Shining City? Sooth to say,
 Your favoured tenantry pursue their way
 After a fashion! This companion slips
 On the smooth causey, t'other blinkard trips
 At his mooned sandal. 'Leave to lead the brawls
 'Here i' the atria?' No, friend! He that sprawls
 On aught but a stibadium... what his dues
 Who puts the lustral vase to such an use?
 Oh, huddle up the day's disasters! March,
 Ye runagates, and drop thou, arch by arch,
 Rome!
 Yet before they quite disband—a whim—
 Study mere shelter, now, for him, and him,
 Nay, even the worst,—just house them!
 Any cave
 Suffices: throw out earth! A loophole? Brave!
 They ask to feel the sun shine, see the grass Grow, hear the larks sing? Dead art thou,
 alas,
 And I am dead! But here's our son excels
 At hurdle-weaving any Scythian, fells
 Oak and devises rafters, dreams and shapes
 His dream into a door-post, just escapes
 The mystery of hinges. Lie we both Perdue another age. The godly growth

Of brick and stone! Our building-pelt was rough,
But that descendant's garb suits well enough

A portico-contriver. Speed the years—
What's time to us? At last, a city rears Itself! nay, enter—what's the grave to us?
Lo, our forlorn acquaintance carry thus
The head! Successively sewer, forum, cirque—

Last age, an aqueduct was counted work,
But now they tire the artificer upon Blank alabaster, black obsidian,
—Careful, Jove's face be duly fulgurant, And mother Venus' kiss-creased nipples pant

Back into pristine pulpiness, ere fixed Above the baths. What difference betwixt This Rome and ours—resemblance what,
between

That scurvy dumb-show and this pageant sheen—

These Romans and our rabble? Use thy wit!

The work marched: step by step,—a workman fit

Took each, nor too fit,—to one task, one
time,—

No leaping o'er the petty to the prime,
When just the substituting osier lithe
For brittle bulrush, sound wood for soft withe,

To further loam-and-roughcast-work a
stage,—

Exacts an architect, exacts an age:
No tables of the Mauritanian tree
For men whose maple log's their luxury!
That way was Rome built. 'Better' (say you) 'merge

'At once all workmen in the demiurge,
'All epochs in a lifetime, every task
'In one!' So should the sudden city bask
I' the day—while those we'd feast there, want the knack

Of keeping⁶ fresh-chalked gowns from speck and brack,

Distinguish not rare peacock from vile swan,

Nor Mareotic juice from Cæcuban.

'Enough of Rome! 'Twas happy to conceive

'Rome on a sudden, nor shall fate be-reave

'Me of that credit: for the rest, her spite
'Is an old story—serves my folly right

'By adding yet another to the dull
'List of abortions—things proved beautiful

'Could they be done, Sordello cannot do.'

He sat upon the terrace, plucked and threw

The powdery aloë-cusps away, saw shift Rome's walls, and drop arch after arch, and drift

Mist-like afar those pillars of all stripe, Mounds of all majesty. 'Thou archetype,
'Last of my dreams and loveliest, depart!

And then a low voice wound into his
heart:

'Sordello!' (low as some old Pythoness
Conceding to a Lydian King's distress
The cause of his long error—one mistake
Of her past oracle) 'Sordello, wake!

'God has conceded two sights to a man—
'One, of men's whole work, time's completed plan,

'The other, of the minute's work, man's
first

'Step to the plan's completeness: what's dispersed

'Save hope of that supreme step which,
descried

'Earliest, was meant still to remain untried
'Only to give your heart to take your own

'Step, and there stay, leaving the rest
alone?

'Where is the vanity? Why count as one
The first step, with the last step? What is
gone

'Except Rome's æry magnificence,
'That last step you'd take first?—an evidence

'You were God: be man now! Let those glances fall!

'The basis, the beginning step of all,
'Which proves you just a man—is that gone too?

'Pity to discontent one versed as you
'In fate's ill-nature! but its full extent

'Eludes Sordello, even: the veil rent,
'Read the black writing—that collective
man

'Outstrips the individual. Who began 'The acknowledged greatnesses? Ay, your own art

'Shall serve us: put the poet's mimes apart—
'Close with the poet's self, and lo, a dim

'Yet too plain form divides itself from him!
'Alcamo's song enmeshes the lulled Isle,

'Woven into the echoes left erewhile
'By Nina, one soft web of song: no more

'Turning his name, then, flower-like o'er and o'er!

'An elder poet in the younger's place;
'Nina's the strength, but Alcamo's the
grace:

'Each neutralizes each then! Search your fill;

'You get no whole and perfect Poet—still
'New Ninas, Alcamos, till time's mid-
night

'Shrouds all—or better say, the shutting
light

'Of a forgotten yesterday. Dissect
'Every ideal workman—(to reject

'In favour of your fearful ignorance
'The thousand phantasms eager to advance,

- 'And point you but to those within your reach)—
 'Were you the first who brought—in modern speech)
 'The Multitude to be materialized?
 'That loose eternal unrest—who devised
 'An apparition i' the midst? The rout
 'Was checked, a breathless ring was formed about
 'That sudden flower: get round at any risk
 'The gold-rough pointel, silver-blazing disk
 'O' the lily! Swords across it! Reign thy reign
 'And serve thy frolic service, Charlemagne!
 '—The very child of over-joyousness,
 'Unfeeling thence, strong therefore: Strength by stress
 'Of Strength comes of that forehead confident,
 'Those widened eyes expecting heart's content,
 'A calm as out of just-quieted noise; nor swerves
 'For doubt, the ample cheek in gracious curves
 'Abutting on the upthrust nether lip:
 'He wills, how should he doubt then? Ages slip:
 'Was it Sordello pried into the work
 'So far accomplished, and discovered lurk
 'A company amid the other clans,
 'Only distinct in priests for castellans
 'And popes for suzerains (their rule confessed
 'Its rule, their interest its interest,
 'Living for sake of living—there an end—
 'Wrapt in itself, no energy to spend
 'In making adversaries or allies)—
 'Dived you into its capabilities
 'And dared create, out of that sect, a soul
 'Should turn a multitude, already whole,
 'Into its body? Speak plainer! Is't so sure
 'God's church lives by a King's investiture?
 'Look to last step! A staggering—a shock—
 'What's mere sand is demolished, while the rock Endures: a column of black fiery dust Blots heaven—that help was prematurely thrust
 'Aside, perchance!—but air clears, enough's erased
 'Of the true outline. Thus much being firm based,
 'The other was a scaffold. See him stand
 'Buttressed upon his mattock, Hildebrand
 'Of the huge brain-mask welded ply o'er ply
 'As in a forge; it buries either eye
 'White and extinct, that stupid brow; teeth clenched,
 'The neck tight-corded, too, the chin deep-trenched,
 'As if a cloud enveloped him while fought
 'Under its shade, grim prizes, thought with thought
 'At dead-lock, agonizing he, until 'The victor thought leap radiant up, and Will,
 'The slave with folded arms and drooping lids
 'They fought for, lean forth flame-like as it bids.
 'Call him no flower—a mandrake of the earth,
 'Thwarted and dwarfed and blasted in its birth,
 'Rather,—a fruit of suffering's excess,
 'Thence feeling, therefore stronger: still by stress
 'Of Strength, work Knowledge! Full three hundred years 'Have men to wear away in smiles and tears
 'Between the two that nearly seemed to touch,
 'Observe you! quit one workman and you clutch
 'Another, letting both their trains go by—
 'The actors-out of either's policy,
 'Heinrich, on this hand, Otho, Barbaross,
 'Carry the three Imperial crowns across,
 'Aix' Iron, Milan's Silver, and Rome's Gold—
 'While Alexander, Innocent uphold
 'On that, each Papal key—but, link on link,
 'Why is it neither chain betrays a chink?
 'How coalesce the small and great? Alack,
 'For one thrust forward, fifty such fall back!
 'Do the popes coupled there help Gregory
 'Alone? Hark—from the hermit Peter's cry
 'At Claremont, down to the first serf that says
 'Friedrich's no liege of his while he delays
 'Getting the Pope's curse off him! The Crusade—
 'Or trick of breeding Strength by other aid
 'Than Strength, is safe. Hark—from the wild harangue
 'Of Vimmercato, to the carroch's clang
 'Yonder! The League—or trick of turning Strength
 'Against Pernicious Strength, is safe at length.
 'Yet hark—from Mantuan Albert making cease
 'The fierce ones, to Saint Francis preaching peace
 'Yonder! God's Truce—or trick to super-seede
 'The very Use of Strength, is safe. Indeed

- 'We trench upon the future. Who is found 'To take next step, next age—trail o'er the ground—
'Shall I say, gourd-like?—not the flower's display
'Nor the root's prowess, but the plenteous way
'O' the plant—produced by joy and sorrow, whence
'Unfeeling and yet feeling, strongest thence?
'Knowledge by stress of merely Knowledge? No—
'E'en were Sordello ready to forego
'His life for this, 'twere overleaping work
'Some one has first to do, howe'er it irk,
'Nor stray a foot's breadth from the beaten road.
'Who means to help must still support the load
'Hildebrand lifted—"why hast Thou," he groaned,
'"Imposed on me a burthen, Paul had moaned,
'"And Moses dropped beneath?" Much done—and yet
'Doubtless that grandest task God ever set
'One man, left much to do: at his arm's wrench,
'Charlemagne's scaffold fell; but pillars blench
'Merely, start back again—perchance have been 'Taken for buttresses: crash every screen,
'Hammer the tenons better, and engage
'A gang about your work, for the next age
'Or two, of Knowledge, part by Strength and part
'By Knowledge! Then, indeed, perchance may start
'Sordello on his race—would time divulge
'Such secrets! If one step's awry, one bulge
'Calls for correction by a step we thought
'Got over long since, why, till that is wrought,
'No progress! And the scaffold in its turn
'Becomes, its service o'er, a thing to spurn.
'Meanwhile, if your half-dozen years of life
'In store dispose you to forego the strife,
'Who takes exception? Only bear in mind
'Ferrara's reached, Goito's left behind:
'As you then were, as half yourself, desist!
'—The warrior-part of you may, an it list,
'Finding real faulchions difficult to poise,
'Fling them afar and taste the cream of joys
'By wielding such in fancy,—what is bard
'Of you may spurn the vehicle that married
'Elys so much, and in free fancy glut
'His sense, yet write no verses—you have but
'To please yourself for law, and once could please
'What once appeared yourself, by dreaming these
'Rather than doing these, in days gone by.
'But all is changed the moment you descry
'Mankind as half yourself,—then, fancy's trade
'Ends—once and always: how may half evade
'The other half? men are found half of you.
'Out of a thousand helps, just one or two
'Can be accomplished presently: but flinch
'From these (as from the faulchion, raised an inch,
'Elys, described a couplet) and make proof
'Of fancy,—then, while one half lolls aloof
'T' the vines, completing Rome to the tip-top—
'See if, for that, your other half will stop
'A tear, begin a smile! Tis rabble's woes,
'Ludicrous in their patience as they chose 'To sit about their town and quietly
'Be slaughtered,—the poor reckless soldiery,
'With their ignoble rhymes on Richard, how
'"Polt-foot," sang they, "was in a pitfall now,"
'Cheering each other from the engine-mounts,—
'That crippled spawling idiot who recounts
'How, lopped of limbs, he lay, stupid as stone,
'Till the pains crept from out him one by one,
'And wriggles round the archers on his head
'To earn a morsel of their chestnut bread,—
'And Cino, always in the self-same place
'Weeping; beside that other wretch's case,
'Eyepits to ear, one gangrene since he plied
'The engine in his coat of raw sheep's hide
'A double watch in the noon sun; and see
'Lucchino, beauty, with the favours free,
'Trim hacqueton, spruce beard and scented hair,
'Campaigning it for the first time—cut there
'In two already, boy enough to crawl
'For latter orgine round the southern wall,
'Tòma, where Richard's kept, because that whore
'Marfisa, the fool never saw before,
'Sickened for flowers this wearisomest siege:
'And Tiso's wife—men liked their pretty liege,
'Cared for her least of whims once,—Berta, wed
'A twelvemonth gone, and, now poor Tiso's dead,

'Delivering herself of his first child
'On that chance heap of wet filth, reconciled

'To fifty gazers!'—(Here a wind below
Made moody music a rural of woe
From the pine bariet)—'What if, now the scene

'Draws to a close, yourself have really been
'—You, plucking purples in Goito's moss
'Like edges of a trabeca (not to cross
'Your consul-humour) or dry aloe-shafts
'For fasces, at Ferrara—he, fate wafts,
'This very age, her whole inheritance
'Of opportunities? Yet you advance
'Upon the last! Since talking is your trade,
'There's Salinguerra left you to persuade:
'Fail! then!—

'No—no—which latest chance
secure!'

Leaped up and cried Sordello: 'this made
sure,

'The past were yet redeemable; its work
'Was—help the Guelfs, whom I, however it irk,

'Thus help!' He shook the foolish aloehaulm

Out of his doublet, paused, proceeded calm
To the appointed presence. The large head Turned on its socket; 'And your spokesman,' said

The large voice, 'is Elcorte's happy sprout?
'Few such'—(so finishing a speech no
doubt

Addressed to Palma, silent at his side)
'—My sober counsils have diversified.

'Elcorte's son! good: forward as you may,
'Our lady's minstrel with so much to say!
The hesitating sunset floated back,
Rosily traversed in the wonted track
The chamber, from the lattice o'er the girth
Of pines, to the huge eagle blacked in earth
Opposite,—outlined sudden, spur to crest,
That solid Salinguerra, and caressed Palma's contour; 'twas day looped back night's pall;

Sordello had a chance left spite of all.

And much he made of the convincing
speech

Meant to compensate for the past and reach

Through his youth's daybreak of unprofit, quite

To his noon's labour, so proceed till night
Leisurely! The great argument to bind Taurello with the Guelf Cause, body and
mind,

—Came the consummate rhetoric to that?
Yet most Sordello's argument dropped flat Through his accustomed fault of breaking
yoke,

Disjoining him who felt from him who spoke.

Was't not a touching incident—so prompt
A rendering the world its just accompt,

Once proved its debtor? Who'd suppose,
before

This proof, that he, Goito's god of yore,
At duty's instance could demean himself
So memorably, dwindle to a Guelf?

Be sure, in such delicious flattery steeped,
His inmost self at the out-portion peeped, Thus occupied; then stole a glance at those Appealed to, curious if her colour rose
Or his lip moved, while he discreetly urged
The need of Lombardy becoming purged
At soonest of her barons; the poor part Abandoned thus, missing the blood at heart

And spirit in brain, unseasonably off Elsewhere! But, though his speech was worthy scoff,

Good-humoured Salinguerra, famed for tact

And tongue, who, careless of his phrase, ne'er lacked

The right phrase, and harangued Honorius
dumb

At his accession,—looked as all fell plumb
To purpose and himself found interest

In every point his new instructor pressed —Left playing with the rescript's white wax seal

To scrutinize Sordello head and heel.

He means to yield assent sure? No, alas!
All he replied was, 'What, it comes to pass

'That poesy, sooner than politics,
'Makes fade young hair?' To think such speech could fix

Taurello!

Then a flash of bitter truth:
So fantasies could break and fritter youth

That he had long ago lost earnestness,
Lost will to work, lost power to even express

The need of working! Earth was turned a grave:

No more occasions now, though he should crave

Just one, in right of superhuman toil,
To do what was undone, repair such spoil,

Alter the past—nothing would give the
chance!

Not that he was to die; he saw askance
Protract the ignominious years beyond

To dream in—time to hope and time de-
spond,

Remember and forget, be sad, rejoice
As saved a trouble; he might, at his choice,

One way or other, idle life out, drop No few smooth verses by the way—for prop,

A thyrsus, these sad people, all the same,

Should pick up, and set store by,—far from
blame,

Plant o'er his hearse, convinced his better
part

Survived him. 'Rather tear men out the
heart

'O the truth!'—Sordello muttered, and renewed

His propositions for the Multitude.

But Salinguerra, who at this attack Had thrown great breast and ruffling corslet back

To hear the better, smilingly resumed His task; beneath, the carroch's warning boomed;

He must decide with Tito; courteously He turned then, even seeming to agree With his admonisher—'Assist the Pope, 'Extend Guelf domination, fill the scope 'O the Church, thus based on All, by All, for All—

'Change Secular to Evangelical'— Echoing his very sentence: all seemed lost, When suddenly he looked up, laughingly almost,

To Palma: 'This opinion of your friend's— 'For instance, would it answer Palma's ends?

'Best, were it not, turn Guelf, submit our Strength'—

(Here he drew out his baldric to its length) —'To the Pope's Knowledge—let our captive slip,

'Wide to the walls throw ope our gates, equip

'Azzo with . . . what I hold here! Who'll subscribe

'To a trite censure of the minstrel tribe 'Henceforward? or pronounce, as Heinrich used,

""Spear-heads for battle, burr-heads for the joust!"

'—When Constance, for his couplets, would promote

'Alcamo, from a parti-coloured coat, 'To holding her lord's stirrup in the wars.

'Not that I see where couplet-making jars 'With common sense: at Mantua I had borne

'This chanting, better than their most forlorn

'Of bull-baits,—that's indisputable!' Brave!

Whom vanity nigh slew, contempt shall save!

All's at an end: a Troubadour suppose Mankind will class him with their friends or foes?

A puny uncouth ailing vassal think The world and him bound in some special link?

Abrupt the visionary tether burst. What were rewarded here, or what amerced

If a poor drudge, solicitous to dream Deservingly, got tangled by his theme So far as to conceit the knack or gift Or whatso'er it be, of verse, might lift The globe, a lever like the hand and head Of—'Men of Action,' as the Jongleurs said, —'The Great Men,' in the people's dialect?

And not a moment did this scorn affect Sordello: scorn the poet? They, for once, Asking 'what was,' obtained a full response.

Bid Naddo think at Mantua—he had but To look into his promptuary, put Finger on a set thought in a set speech: But was Sordello fitted thus for each Conjecture? Nowise; since within his soul, Perception brooded unexpressed and whole.

A healthy spirit like a healthy frame Craves aliment in plenty—all the same, Changes, assimilates its aliment. Perceived Sordello, on a truth intent? Next day no formularies more you saw Than figs or olives in a sated maw.

'Tis Knowledge, whither such perceptions tend;

They lose themselves in that, means to an end,

The many old producing some one new, A last unlike the first. If lies are true, The Caliph's wheel-work man of brass receives

A meal, munched millet grains and lettuce leaves

Together in his stomach rattle loose; You find them perfect next day to produce: But ne'er expect the man, on strength of that,

Can roll an iron camel-collar flat Like Haroun's self! I tell you, what was stored

Bit by bit through Sordello's life, out-poured

That eve, was, for that age, a novel thing: And round those three the People formed a ring, Of visionary judges whose award

He recognized in full—faces that barred Henceforth return to the old careless life,

In whose great presence, therefore, his first strife

For their sake must not be ignobly fought; All these, for once, approved of him, he thought,

Suspended their own vengeance, chose await

The issue of this strife to reinstate Them in the right of taking it—in fact

He must be proved king ere they could exact

Vengeance for such king's defalcation.

• Last,

A reason why the phrases flowed so fast Was in his quite forgetting for a time

Himself in his amazement that the rhyme Disguised the royalty so much: he there—

And Salinguerra yet all-unaware Who was the lord, who liegeman!

'Thus I lay 'On thine my spirit and compel obey

'His lord,—my liegeman,—impotent to build
 'Another Rome, but hardly so unskilled
 'In what such builder should have been, as brook
 'One shame beyond the charge that I forsook
 'His function! Free me from that shame, I bend
 'A brow before, suppose new years to spend,—
 'Allow each chance, nor fruitlessly, recur—
 'Measure thee with the Minstrel, then, demur
 'At any crown he claims! That I must cede
 'Shamed now, my right to my especial meed—
 'Confess thee fitter help the world than I
 'Ordained its champion from eternity,
 'Is much: but to behold thee scorn the post
 'I quit in thy behalf—to hear thee boast
 'What makes my own despair!' And while he rung
 The changes on this theme, the roof up-
 sprung,
 The sad walls of the presence-chamber died
 Into the distance, or embowering vied
 With far-away Goito's vine-frontier;
 And crowds of faces—(only keeping clear
 The rose-light in the midst, his vantage-ground
 To fight their battle from)—deep clustered round
 Sordello, with good wishes no mere breath,
 Kind prayers for him no vapour, since, come death,
 Come life, he was fresh-sinewed every joint,
 Each bone new-marrowed as whom gods anoint
 Though mortal to their rescue. Now let sprawl
 The snaky volumes hither! Is Typhon all
 For Hercules to trample—good report
 From Salinqueria only to extort?
 'So was I' (closed he his inculcating A poet must be earth's essential king)
 'So was I, royal so, and if I fail,
 'Tis not the royalty, ye witness quail,
 'But one deposed who, caring not exert
 'Its proper essence, trifled malapert
 'With accidents instead—good things, assigned
 'As heralds of a better thing behind—
 'And, worthy through display of these, put forth
 'Never the inmost all-surpassing worth
 'That constitutes him king precisely since
 'As yet no other spirit may evince
 'Its like: the power he took most pride to test,
 'Whereby all forms of life had been professed
 'At pleasure, forms already on the earth,
 'Was but a means to power beyond, whose birth
 'Should, in its novelty, be kingship's proof.
 'Now, whether he came near or kept aloof
 'The several forms he longed to imitate,
 'Not there the kingship lay, he sees too late.
 'Those forms, unalterable first as last,
 'Proved him her copier, not the protoplast
 'Of nature: what would come of being free,
 'By action to exhibit tree for tree,
 'Bird, beast, for beast and bird, or prove earth bore
 'One veritable man or woman more?
 'Means to an end, such proofs are: what the end?
 'Let essence, whatso'er it be, extend—
 'Never contract. Already you include
 'The multitude; then let the multitude
 'Include yourself; and the result were new:
 'Themselves before, the multitude turn you.
 'This were to live and move and have, in them,
 'Your being, and secure a diadem
 'You should transmit (because no cycle years
 'Beyond itself, but on itself returns)
 'When, the full sphere in wane, the world o'erlaid
 'Long since with you, shall have in turn obeyed
 'Some orb still prouder, some displayer, still 'More potent than the last, of human will,
 'And some new king depose the old. Of such 'Am I—whom pride of this elates too much?
 'Safe, rather say, 'mid troops of peers again;
 'I, with my words, hailed brother of the train
 'Deeds once sufficed: for, let the world roll back,
 'Who fails, through deeds howe'er diverse, retrack
 'My purpose still, my task? A teeming crust—
 'Air, flame, earth, wave at conflict! Then, needs must 'Emerge some Calm embodied, these refer
 'The brawl to—yellow-bearded Jupiter?
 'No! Saturn; some existence like a pact
 'And protest against Chaos, some first fact
 'I' the faint of time. My deep of life, I know,
 'Is unavailing e'en to poorly show' . . .
 (For here the Chief immeasurably yawned)
 . . . 'Deeds in their due gradation till Song dawned—
 'The fullest effluence of the finest mind,
 'All in degree, no way diverse in kind

'From minds about it, minds which, more or less,
'Lofty or low, move seeking to impress
'Themselves on somewhat; but one mind has climbed
'Step after step, by just ascent sublimed.
'Thought is the soul of act, and, stage by
stage,
'Soul is from body still to disengage
'As tending to a freedom which rejects
'Such help and incorporeally affects 'The world, producing deeds but not by deeds,
'Swaying, in others, frames itself exceeds,
'Assigning them the simpler tasks it used
'To patiently perform till Song produced
'Acts, by thoughts only, for the mind:
divest
'Mind of e'en Thought, and, lo, God's un-expressed
'Will draws above us! All then is to win
'Save that. How much for me, then?
where begin
'My work? About me, faces! and they
flock,
'The earnest faces. What shall I unlock
'By song? behold me prompt, whate'er it be,
'To minister: how much can mortals see
'Of Life? No more than so? I take the task
'And marshal you Life's elemental masque,
'Show Men, on evil or on good lay stress,
'This light, this shade make prominent, suppress
'All ordinary hues that softening blend
'Such natures with the level. Apprehend
'Which sinner is, which saint, if I allot
'Hell, Purgatory, Heaven, a blaze or blot,
'To those you doubt concerning! I en-womb
'Some wretched Friedrich with his red-hot tombs;
'Some dubious spirit, Lombard Agilulph
'With the black chastening river I engulph!
'Some unapproached Matilda I enshrine
'With languors of the planet of decline—
'These, fail to recognize, to arbitrate
'Between henceforth, to rightly estimate
'Thus marshalled in the masque! Myself,
the while,
'As one of you, am witness, shrink or smile
'At my own showing! Next age—what's to do?
'The men and women stationed hitherto
'Will I unstation, good and bad, conduct
'Each nature to its farthest, or obstruct
'At soonest, in the world: light, thwarted, breaks
'A limpid purity to rainbow flakes,
'Or shadow, massed, freezes to gloom:
behold
'How such, with fit assistance to unfold,
'Or obstacles to crush them, disengage
'Their forms, love, hate, hope, fear, peace make, war wage,
'In presence of you all! Myself, implied
'Superior now, a, by the platform's
side,
'I bade them do and suffer,—would last content
'The world . . . no—that's too far! I circumvent
'A few, my masque contented, and to these
'Offer unveil the last of mysteries—
'Man's inmost life shall have yet freer
play:
'Once more I cast external things away,
'And natures composite, so decompose
'That' . . . Why, he writes Sordello!
'How I rose,
'And how have you advanced! since ever-
more
'Yourselves effect what I was fain before
'Effect, what I supplied yourselves suggest,
'What I leave bare yourselves can now invest.
'How we attain to talk as brothers talk,
'In half-words, call things by half-names,
no balk
'From discontinuing old aids. To-day
'Takes in account the work of Yesterday:
'Has not the world a Past now, its adept
'Consults ere he dispense with or accept
'New aids: a single touch more may enhance,
'A touch less turn to insignificance
'Those structures' symmetry the past has strewed
'The world with, once so bare. Leave the mere rude
'Explicit details! 'tis but brother's speech
'We need, speech where an accent's charge gives each
'The other's soul—no speech to understand
'By former audience: need was then to expand,
'Expatriate—hardly were we brothers!
true—
'Nor I lament my small remove from you,
'Nor reconstruct what stands already.
Ends
'Accomplished turn to means: my art intends
'New structure from the ancient: as they changed
'The spoils of every clime at Venice,
ranged
'The horned and snouted Libyan god, upright
'As in his desert, by some simple bright
'Clay cinerary pitcher—Thebes as Rome,
'Athens as Byzant rifled, till their Dome
'From earth's reputed consummations razed
'A seal, the all-transmuting Triad blazed

'Above. Ah, whose that fortune? Ne'ertheless—

'E'en he must stoop contented to express
'No tithe of what's to say—the vehicle
'Never sufficient; but his work is still 'For faces like the faces that select 'The single service I am bound effect,—
'That bid me cast aside such fancies, bow
'Taurello to the Guelf cause, disallow
'The Kaiser's coming—which with heart, soul, strength,

'I labour for, this eve, who feel at length
'My past career's outrageous vanity,
'And would, as it amends, die, even die
'Now I first estimate the boon of life,
'If death might win compliance—sure, this strife

'Is right for once—the People my support.'
My poor Sordello! what may we extort
By this, I wonder? Palma's lighted eyes Turned to Taurello who, long past surprise, Began, 'You love him—what you'd say at large

'Let me say briefly. First, your father's charge

'To me, his friend, peruse: I guessed indeed
'You were no stranger to the course decreed.

'He bids me leave his children to the saints:
'As for a certain project, he acquaints

'The Pope with that, and offers him the
best

'Of your possessions to permit the rest
'Go peaceably—to Ecelin, a stripe

'Of soil the cursed Vicentines will gripe,
'—To Alberic, a patch the Trevisan

'Clutches already; extricate, who can,
'Treville, Villarazzi, Puissolo,

'Loria and Cartiglione!—all must go,
'And with them go my hopes. 'Tis lost, then! Lost

'This eve, our crisis, and some pains it cost
'Procuring; thirty years—as good I'd spent

'Like our admonisher! But each his bent
'Pursues: no question, one might live absurd

'Oneself this while, by deed as he by word
'Persisting to obtrude an influence where

'Tis made account of, much as . . . nay, you fare

'With twice the fortune, youngster!—I submit,

'Happy to parallel my waste of wit
'With the renowned Sordello's: you decide

'A course for me. Romano may abide 'Romano,—Bacchus! After all, what
dearth

'Of Ecelins and Alberics on earth?
'Say there's a prize in prospect, must dis-
grace

'Betide competitors, unless they style
'Themselves Romano? Were it worth my
while

'To try my own luck! But an obscure place

'Suits me—there wants a youth to bustle,
stalk

'And attitudinize—some fight, more talk,
'Most flaunting badges—how, I might make clear

'Since Friedrich's very purposes lie here
'—Here, pity they are like to lie! For me,

'With station fixed unceremoniously
'Long since, small use contesting; I am but

'The liegeman—you are born the lieges:
shut

'That gentle mouth now! or resume your kin

'In your sweet self; were Palma Ecelin
'For me to work with! Could that neck endure

'This bauble for a cumbrous garniture,
'She should . . . or might one bear it for her? Stay—

'I have not been so flattered many a day
'As by your pale friend—Bacchus! The least help

'Would lick the hind's fawn to a lion's
whelp:

'His neck is broad enough—a ready tongue
'Beside: too writhled—but, the main thing,
young—

'I could . . . why, look ye!'
And the badge was thrown

Across Sordello's neck: 'This badge alone
'Makes you Romano's Head—becomes superb

'On your bare neck, which would, on mine, disturb

'The pauldron,' said Taurello. A mad act,
Nor dreamed about before—in fact,

Not when his sportive arm rose for the nonce—

But he had dallied overmuch, this once,
With power: the thing was done, and he,
aware

The thing was done, proceeded to declare—(So like a nature made to serve, excel In serving, only feel by service well!)

—That he would make Sordello that and
more.

'As good a scheme as any. What's to pore
'At in my face?' he asked—'ponder instead

'This piece of news; you are Romano's
Head!

'One cannot slacken pace so near the goal,

'Suffer my Azzo to escape heart-whole
'This time! For you there's Palma to espouse—

'For me, one crowning trouble ere I house
'Like my compeer.'

On which ensued a strange
And solemn visitation; there came change O'er every one of them; each looked on
each:

Up in the midst a truth grew, without
speech.

And when the giddiness sank and the haze
 Subsided, they were sitting, no amaze,
 Sordello with the baldrick on, his sire Silent, though his proportions seemed aspire
 Momently; and, interpreting the thrill,— Night at its ebb,—Palma was found there
 still Relating somewhat Adelaide confessed
 A year ago, while dying on her breast,—
 Of a contrivance, that Vicenza night
 When Ecelin had birth. 'Their convoy's
 flight,
 'Cut off a moment, coiled inside the flame
 'That wallowed like a dragon at his game
 'The toppling city through—San Biagio
 rocks!
 'And wounded lies in her delicious locks
 'Retrude, the frail mother, on her face,
 'None of her wasted, just in one embrace
 'Covering her child: when, as they lifted
 her,
 'Cleaving the tumult, mighty, mightier
 'And mightiest Taurello's cry outbroke,
 'Leapt like a tongue of fire that cleaves the
 smoke,
 'Midmost to cheer his Mantuans onward—drown
 'His colleague Ecelin's clamour, up and
 down
 'The disarray: failed Adelaide see then
 'Who was the natural chief, the man of
 men?
 'Outstripping time, her infant there burst
 swathe,
 'Stood up with eyes haggard beyond the scathe
 'From wandering after his heritage
 'Lost once and lost for aye: and why that
 rage,
 'That deprecating glance? A new shape
 leant
 'On a familiar shape—gloatingly bent
 'O'er his discomfiture; 'mid wreaths it wore,
 'Still one outflamed the rest—her child's
 before
 'Twas Salinguerra's for his child: scorn,
 hate,
 'Rage now might startle her when all too
 late!
 'Then was the moment!—rival's foot had spurned
 'Never that House to earth else! Sense returned—
 'The act conceived, adventured and complete,
 'They bore away to an obscure retreat
 'Mother and child—Retrude's self not slain'
 (Nor even here Taurello moved) 'though
 pain

'Was fled; and what assured them most
 'twas fled,
 'All pain, was, if they raised the pale hushed head
 'Twould turn this way and that, waver awhile,
 'And only settle into its old smile—
 'Graceful was, if the disquieted water-flag
 'Steadying itself, remarked they, in the quag
 'On either side their path)—when suffered
 look
 'Down on her child. They marched: no sign once shook
 'The company's close litter of crossed spears
 'Till, as they reached Goito, a few tears
 'Slipped in the sunset from her long black
 lash,
 'And she was gone. So far the action rash;
 'No crime. They laid Retrude in the font
 'Taurello's very gift, her child was wont
 'To sit beneath—constant as eve he came 'To sit by its attendant girls the same 'As one of them. For Palma, she would blend
 'With this magnific spirit to the end,
 'That ruled her first; but scarcely had she
 dared
 'To disobey the Adelaide who scared
 'Her into vowing never to disclose
 'A secret to her husband, which so froze
 'His blood at half-recital, she contrived
 'To hide from him Taurello's infant lived,
 'Lest, by revealing that, himself should mar
 'Romano's fortunes. And, a crime so
 far,
 'Palma received that action: she was told
 'Of Salinguerra's nature, of his cold
 'Calm acquiescence in his lot! But free
 'To impart the secret to Romano, she 'Engaged to repossess Sordello of 'His heritage, and hers, and that way doff
 'Their mask, but after years, long years:
 while now,
 'Was not Romano's sign-mark on that
 brow?
 Across Taurello's heart his arms were locked:
 And when he did speak 'twas as if he mocked
 The minstrel, 'who had not to move,' he
 said,
 'Nor stir—should fate defraud him of a shred
 'Of his son's infancy? much less his
 youth!
 (Laughingly all this)—'which to aid, in
 truth,
 'Himself, reserved on purpose, had not
 grown
 'Old, not too old—'twas best they kept
 alone

'Till now, and never idly met till now;
—Then, in the same breath, told Sordello
how

All intimations of this eve's event
Were lies, for Friedrich must advance to Trent,

Thence to Verona, then to Rome, there
stop,

Tumble the Church down, institute a-top
The Alps a Prefecture of Lombardy:

—'That's now!—no prophesying what may be

'Anon, with a new monarch of the clime,
'Native of Gesl, passing his youth's prime

'At Naples. Tito bids my choice decide 'On whom . . .

'Embrace him, madman!' Palma cried, Who through the laugh saw sweat-drops burst apace,

And his lips blanching: he did not embrace
Sordello, but he laid Sordello's hand
On his own eye, mouth, forehead.

Understand,
This while Sordello was becoming flush
Out of his whiteness; thoughts rushed,
fancies rushed;

He pressed his hand upon his head and signed

Both should forbear him. 'Nay, the best's behind!'

Taurello laughed—not quite with the same
laugh:

'The truth is, thus we scatter, ay, like chaff
'These Guelfs, a despicable monk recoils

'From: nor expect a fickle Kaiser spoils
'Our triumph!—Friedrich? Think you,

I intend
'Friedrich shall reap the fruits of blood I
spend

'And brain I waste? Think you, the people
clap

'Their hands at my out-hewing this wild gap

'For any Friedrich to fill up? 'Tis mine—
'That's yours: I tell you, towards some such design

'Have I worked blindly, yes, and idly, yes,
'And for another, yes—but worked no less

'With instinct at my heart; I else had swerved,

'While now—look round! My cunning has preserved

'Samminiato—that's a central place
'Secures us Florence, boy,—in Pisa's case.

'By land as she by sea; with Pisa ours,
'And Florence, and Pistoia, one devours

'The land at leisure! Gloriously' dispersed—

'Brescia, observe, Milan, Piacenza first
'That flanked us (ah, you know not!) in the March;

'On these we pile, as keystone of our arch,
'Romagna and Bologna, whose first span

'Covered the Trentine and the Valsugan;

'Sofia's Egnà by Bolgiano's sure!' . . .
So he proceeded: half of all this, pure

Delusion, doubtless, nor the rest too true,
But what was undone he felt sure to do,

As ring by ring he wrung off, flung away
The pauldron-rings to give his sword-arm
play—

Need of the sword now! That would soon adjust

Aught wrong at present; to the sword in-
trust

Sordello's whiteness, undersize: 'twas
plain

He hardly rendered right to his own brain—
Like a brave hound, men educate to pride

Himself on speed or scent nor aught beside,
As though he could not, gift by gift, match
men!

Palma had listened patiently: but when
'Twas time expostulate, attempt withdraw

Taurello from his child, she, without awe
Took off his iron arms from, one by one, Sordello's shrinking shoulders, and, that
done,

Made him avert his visage and relieve Sordello (you might see his corslet heave

The while) who, loose, rose—tried to speak,
then sank:

They left him in the chamber. All was blank.

And even reeling down the narrow stair Taurello kept up, as though unaware

Palma was by to guide him, the old device —Something of Milan—'how we muster thrice

'The Torriani's strength there; all along
'Our own Visconti cowed them'—thus the song

Continued even while she bade him stoop, Thrid somehow, by some glimpse of arrow-loop,

The turnings to the gallery below,
Where he stopped short as Palma let him
go.

When he had sat in silence long enough Splintering the stone bench, braving a rebuff

She stopped the truncheon; only to commence

One of Sordello's poems, a pretence
For speaking, some poor rhyme of 'Elys'
hair

'And head that's sharp and perfect like a pear,

'So smooth and close are laid the few fine locks

'Stained like pale honey oozed from top-
most rocks

'Sun-blached the livelong summer'— from his worst

Performance, the Goito, as his first:
And that at end, conceiving from the brow
And open mouth no silence would serve
now,

Went on to say the whole world loved that
 And, for that matter, thought his face, tho'
 Eclipsed the Count's—he sucking in each
 As if an angel spoke. The foolish praise
 Ended, he drew her on his mailed knees,
 Her face a framework with his hands, a
 A crown, an aureole: there must she remain (Her little mouth compressed with smiling
 As in his gloves she felt her tresses twitch)
 To get the best look at, in fittest niche Dispose his saint. That done, he kissed her —'Lauded her father for his treason
 He told her, 'only, how could one suspect
 'The wit in him?—whose clansman, re-
 'Was ever Salinguerra—she, the same,
 'Romano and his lady—so, might claim
 'To know all, as she should'—and thus Schemes with a vengeance, schemes on
 'Fit to be told that foolish boy,' he said,
 'But only let Sordello Palma wed,
 'Then!'
 'Twas a dim long narrow place at best:
 Midway a sole grate showed the fiery West,
 As shows its corpse the world's end some
 A gloom, a rift of fire, another gloom,
 Faced Palma—but at length Taurello set
 Her free; the grating held one ragged jet
 Of fierce gold fire: he lifted her within
 The hollow underneath—how else begin Fate's second marvellous cycle, else renew
 The ages than with Palma plain in view?
 Then paced the passage, hands clenched,
 Pursuing his discourse; a grand unchecked
 Monotony made out from his quick talk
 And the recurring noises of his walk;
 —Somewhat too much like the o'er-
 Of two resolved friends in one danger blent,
 Who hearten each the other against heart;
 Boasting there's nought to care for, when,
 The booster, all's to care for. He, beside Some shape not visible, in power and pride Approached, out of the dark, ginglyling Nearer, passed close in the broad light, his Crimson, eyeballs suffused, temples full-
 Just a snatch of the rapid speech you caught,

And on he strode into the opposite dark,
 Till presently the harsh heel's turn, a spark
 I' the stone, and whirl of some loose em-
 That crashed against the angle eye so long After the last, punctual to an amount Of mailed great paces you could not but Prepared you for the pacing back again.
 And by the snatches you might ascertain
 That, Friedrich's Prefecture surmounted,
 By this alone in Italy, they cleft
 Asunder, crushed together, at command
 Of none, were free to break up Hildebrand, Rebuild, he and Sordello, Charlemagne—
 But garnished, Strength with Knowledge,
 'Accept that compromise and stoop to give
 'Rome law, the Caesar's Representative.'
 Enough, that the illimitable flood
 Of triumphs after triumphs, understood
 In its faint reflux (you shall hear) sufficed
 Young Ecelin for appanage, enticed
 Him on till, these long quiet in their graves,
 He found 'twas looked for that a whole Should somehow be made good; so, weak and worn,
 Must stagger up at Milan, one grey morn
 Of the to-come, and fight his latest fight.
 But, Salinguerra's prophecy at height—
 He voluble with a raised arm and stiff,
 A blaring voice, a blazing eye, as if He had our very Italy to keep
 Or cast away, or gather in a heap
 To garrison the better—ay, his word
 Was, 'run the cucumber into a gourd,
 'Drive Trent upon Apulia'—at their pitch
 Who spied the continents and islands Grew mulberry leaves and sickles, in the map—(Strange that three such confessions so should hap
 To Palma, Dante spoke with in the clear Amorous silence of the Swooning-
 sphere,— Cunizza, as he called her! Never ask
 Of Palma more! She sat, knowing her task
 Was done, the labour of it,—for, success Concerned not Palma, passion's votaress.) Triumph at height, and thus Sordello
 crowned—
 Above the passage suddenly a sound
 Stops speech, stops walk: back shrinks
 Taurello, bids
 With large involuntary asking lids, Palma interpret. 'Tis his own foot-
 stamp—
 'Your hand! His summons! Nay, this idle damp
 'Befits not!' Out they two reeled dizzily.
 'Visconti's strong at Milan,' resumed he,

In the old, somewhat insignificant way—
(Was Palma wont, years afterward, to say)
As though the spirit's light, sustained thus
far,

Dropped at that very instant.

Gone they are—
Palma, Taurello; Eglamor anon, Ecelin,—only Naddo's never gone!
—Labours, this moonrise, what the Master
meant:

'Is Squarcialupo speckled?—purulent,
'I'd say, but, when was Providence put out?
'He carries somehow handily about 'His spite nor fouls himself!' Goito's
vines

Stand like a cheat detected—stark rough lines,

The moon breaks through, a grey mean scale against

The vault where, this eve's Maiden, thou remain'st

Like some fresh martyr, eyes fixed—who can tell?

As Heaven, now all's at end, did not so
well,

Spite of the faith and victory, to leave
Its virgin quite to death in the lone eve.
While the persisting hermit-bee... ha! wait
No longer: these in compass, forward fate!

BOOK THE SIXTH

The thought of Eglamor's least like a
thought,

And yet a false one, was, 'Man shrinks to
nought'

'If matched with symbols of immensity;
'Must quail, forsooth, before a quiet sky
'Or sea, too little for their quietude:'

And, truly, somewhat in Sordello's mood Confirmed its speciousness, while eve slow sank

Down the near terrace to the farther bank,
And only one spot left from out the night
Glimmered upon the river opposite—

A breadth of watery heaven like a bay,
A sky-like space of water, ray for ray,
And star for star, one richness where they
mixed

As this and that wing of an angel, fixed,
Tumultuary splendours folded in

To die. Nor turned he till Ferrara's dike (Say, the monotonous speech from a man's lip

Who lets some first and eager purpose slip
In a new fancy's birth—the speech keeps
on

Though elsewhere its informing soul be
gone)

—Aroused him, surely offered succour.
Fate

Paused with this eve; ere she precipitate

Herself,—best put off new strange thoughts
awhile,

That voice, those large hands, that portentous smile,—

What help to pierce the future as the past
Lay in the plaining city?

And at last
The main discovery and prime concern,
All that just now imported him to learn, Truth's self, like yonder slow moon to complete

Heaven, rose again, and, naked at his feet, Lighted his old life's every shift and
change,

Effort with counter-effort; nor the range
Of each looked wrong except wherein it checked,

Some other—which of these could he suspect,

Prying into them by the sudden blaze?
The real way seemed made up of all the
ways—

Mood after mood of the one mind in him;
Tokens of the existence, bright or dim,
Of a transcendent all-embracing sense

Demanding only outward influence,
A soul, in Palma's phrase, above his soul,
Power to uplift his power,—such moon's control

Over such sea-depths,—and their mass had swept

Onward from the beginning and still kept its course: but years and years the sky
above

Held none, and so, untasked of any love,
His sensitiveness idled, now amot,

Alive now, and, to sullenness or sport
Given wholly up, disposed itself anew
At every passing instigation, grew

And dwindled at caprice, in foam-showers
spilt,

Wedge-like insisting, quivered now a gilt Shield in the sunshine, now a blinding race
Of whitest ripples o'er the reef—found
place

For much display; not gathered up and,
hurled

Right from its heart, encompassing the
world.

So had Sordello been, by consequence,
Without a function: others made pretence
To strength not half his own, yet had some core

Within, submitted to some moon, before Them still, superior still whate'er their force,—

Were able therefore to fulfil a course, Nor missed life's crown, authentic attribute.

To each who lives must be a certain fruit
Of having lived in his degree,—a stage,
Earlier or later in men's pilgrimage,
To stop at; and to this the spirits tend
Who, still discovering beauty without end,

Amass the scintillations, make one star —Something unlike them, self-sustained, afar,—

And meanwhile nurse the dream of being blest

By winning it to notice and invest
Their souls with alien glory, some one day Whene'er the nucleus, gathering shape always,

Round to the perfect circle—soon or late,
According as themselves are formed to
wait,

Whether mere human beauty will suffice
—The yellow hair and the luxurious eyes,
Or human intellect seem best, or each Combine in some ideal form past reach On earth, or else some shade of these, some
aim,

Some love, hate even, take their place, the
same,

So to be served—all this they do not lose,
Waiting for death to live, nor idly choose What must be Hell—a progress thus pursued

Through all existence, still above the food That's offered them, still fain to reach beyond

The widened range, in virtue of their bond
Of sovereignty. Not that a Palma's Love,
A Salinguerra's Hate, would equal prove
To swaying all Sordello; but why doubt Some love meet for such strength, some moon without

Would match his sea?—or fear, Good
manifest,

Only the Best breaks faith?—Ah but the
Best

Somehow eludes us ever, still might be
And is not! Crave we gems? No penury
Of their material round us! Pliant earth
And plastic flame—what balks the mage his birth

—Jacinth in balls or lodestone by the block?

Flinders enrich the strand, veins swell the rock;

Nought more! Seek creatures? Life's i'
the tempest, thought

Clothes the keen hill-top, mid-day woods are fraught

With fervours: human forms are well
enough!

But we had hoped, encouraged by the stuff
Profuse at nature's pleasure, men beyond These actual men!—and thus are over-
fond

In arguing, from Good—the Best, from
force

Divided—force combined, an ocean's
course

From this our sea whose mere intestine pants

Might seem at times sufficient to our wants.

External power! If none be adequate,
And he stand forth ordained (a prouder fate)

Himself a law to his own sphere? 'Remove 'All incompleteness!' for that law, that
love?

Nay, if all other laws be feints,—truth
veiled

Helpfully to weak vision that had failed To grasp aught but its special want,—for lure,

Embodied? Stronger vision could endure
The unbodied want: no part—the whole of truth!

The People were himself; nor, by the ruth
At their condition, was he less impelled
To alter the discrepancy beheld,
Than if, from the sound whole, a sickly part Subtracted were transformed, decked out with art,

Then palmed on him as alien woe—the Gulf

To succour, proud that he forsook himself.
All is himself; all service, therefore, rates
Alike, nor serving one part, immolates
The rest: but all in time! 'That lance of
yours

'Makes havoc soon with Malek and his Moors,

'That buckler's lined with many a giant's beard

'Ere long, our champion, be the lance up-reared,

'The buckler wielded handsomely as now!
'But view your escort, bear in mind your vow,

'Count the pale tracts of sand to pass ere
that,

'And, if you hope we struggle through the flat,

'Put lance and buckler by! Next half-month lacks

'Mere sturdy exercise of mace and axe
'To cleave this dismal brake of prickly-
pear

'Which bristling holds Cydippe by the hair,
'Lames barefoot Agathon: this felled, we'll try

'The picturesque achievements by and by—

'Next life!'

Ay, rally, mock, O People, urge Your claims!—for thus he ventured, to the verge,

Push a vain mummery which perchance distrust

Of his fast-slipping resolution thrust Likewise: accordingly the Crowd—(as yet
He had unconsciously contrived forget
I' the whole, to dwell o' the points . . . one might assuage

The signal horrors easier than engage
With a dim vulgar vast unobvious grief
Not to be fancied off, nor gained relief

In brilliant fits, cured by a happy quirk,
But by dim vulgar vast unobvious work To correspond . . .) this Crowd then, forth they stood.

'And now content thy stronger vision,
brood

'On thy bare want; uncovered, turf by turf,
'Study the corpse-face thro' the taint-worms' scurf!'

Down sank the People's Then; uprose their Now.

These sad ones render service to! And how Piteously little must that service prove —Had surely proved in any case! for, move
Each other obstacle away, let youth Become aware it had surprised a truth
'Twere service to impart—can truth be seized,

Settled forthwith, and, of the captive
eased,

Its captor find fresh prey, since this alit
So happily, no posture luring it,
The earnest of a flock to follow? Vain,
Most vain! a life to spend ere this he chair,
To the poor crowd's complacence: ere the
crowd

Pronounce it captured, he describes a cloud
Its kin of twice the plume; which he, in turn,
If he shall live as many lives, may learn How to secure: not else. Then Mantua called

Back to his mind how certain hards were thrall'd

—Buds blasted, but of breath more like perfume

Than Naddo's staring nosegay's carrion
bloom;

Some insane rose that burnt heart out in sweets,

A spendthrift in the spring, no summer greet;

Some Dularete, drunk with truths and wine,

Grown bestial, dreaming how become divine.

Yet to surmount this obstacle, commence
With the commencement, merits crowning! Hence

Must truth be casual truth, elicited
In sparks so mean, at intervals dispread

So rarely, that 'tis like at no one time
Of the world's story has not truth, the prime

Of truth, the very truth which, loosed, had hurled

The world's course right, been really in the
world

—Content the while with some mean spark by dint

Of some chance-blow, the solitary hint
Of buried fire, which, rip earth's breast, would stream

*Sky-ward!

Sordello's miserable gleam

Was looked for at the moment: he would
dash

This badge, and all it brought, to earth,— abash

Taurello thus, perhaps persuade him wrest
The Kaiser from his purpose,—would attest

His own belief, in any case. Before
He dashes it however, think once more!

For, were that little, truly service? 'Ay,
'I' the end, no doubt; but meantime?

Plain you spy

'Its ultimate effect, but many flaws
'Of vision blur each intervening cause.

'Were the day's fraction clear as the life's sum

'Of service, Now as filled as teems To-come
'With evidence of good—nor too minute

'A share to vie with evil! No dispute,
'Twere fittest maintain the Guelfs in rule:

'That makes your life's work: but you have to school

'Your day's work on these natures circumstanced

'Thus variously, which yet, as each advanced

'Or might impede the Guelf rule, must be moved

'Now, for the Then's sake,—hating what you loved,

'Loving old hatreds! Nor if one man bore
'Brand upon temples while his fellow wore

'The aureole, would it task you to decide:
'But, portioned duly out, the future vied

'Never with the unparcelled present!
Smite

'Or spare so much on warrant all so slight?
'The present's complete sympathies to break,

'Aversions bear with, for a future's sake
'So feeble? Tito ruined through one
speck,

'The Legate saved by his sole lightish fleck?
'This were work, true, but work performed at cost

'Of other work; aught gained here, elsewhere lost.

'For a new segment spoil an orb half-done?
'Rise with the People one step, and sink—
one?

'Were it but one step, less than the whole
face

'Of things, your novel duty bids erase!
'Harms to abolish! What, the prophet saith,

'The minstrel singeth vainly then? Old
faith,

'Old courage, only born because of harms,
'Were not, from highest to the lowest,
charms?

'Flame may persist; but is not glare as staunch?

'Where the salt marshes stagnate, crystals
branch:

'Blood dries to crimson; Evil's beautified
 'In every shape. Thrust Beauty then aside
 'And banish Evil! Wherefore? After all,
 'Is Evil a result less natural
 'Than Good? For overlook the seasons'
 strife
 'With tree and flower,—the hideous animal life,
 '(Of which who seeks shall find a grinning taunt
 'For his solution, and endure the vaunt
 'Of nature's angel, as a child that knows
 'Himself befooled, unable to propose 'Aught better than the fooling)—and but care
 'For men, for the mere People then and
 there,—
 'In these, could you but see that Good and Ill
 'Claimed you alike! Whence rose their claim but still
 'From Ill, as fruit of Ill? What else could knit
 'You theirs but Sorrow? Any free from it
 'Were also free from you! Whose happiness
 'Could be distinguished in this morning's
 press
 'Of miseries?—the fool's who passed a gibe
 "'On thee," jeered he, "so wedded to thy
 tribe,
 "'Thou carriest green and yellow tokens in
 "'Thy very face that thou art Ghibellin!"
 'Much hold on you that fool obtained!
 Nay mount
 'Yet higher—and upon men's own account
 'Must Evil stay: for, what is joy?—to heave
 'Up one obstruction more, and common
 leave
 'What was peculiar, by such act destroy
 'Itself; a partial death is every joy;
 'The sensible escape, enfranchisement
 'Of a sphere's essence: once the vexed—
 content,
 'The cramped—at large, the growing circle
 —round,
 'All's to begin again—some novel bound
 'To break, some new enlargement to en-
 treat;
 'The sphere though larger is not more complete.
 'Now for Mankind's experience: who
 alone
 'Might style the unobstructed world his
 own?
 'Whom palled Goito with its perfect
 things?
 'Sordello's self: whereas for Mankind
 springs
 'Salvation by each hindrance interposed.
 'They climb; life's view is not at once disclosed

'To creatures caught up, on the summit
 left,
 'Heaven plain above them, yet of wings
 bereft;
 'But lower laid, as at the mountain's foot.
 'So, range on range, the girdling forests shoot
 "'Twixt your plain prospect and the throngs who scale
 'Height after height, and pierce mists, veil by veil,
 'Heartened with each discovery; in their
 soul,
 'The Whole they seek by Parts—but, found that Whole,
 'Could they revert, enjoy past gains? The
 space
 'Of time you judge so meagre to embrace
 'The Parts were more than plenty, once attained
 'The Whole, to quite exhaust it: nought were gained
 'But leave to look—not leave to do: Beneath
 'Soon sates the looker—look Above, and
 Death
 'Tempts ere a tithe of Life be tasted. Live
 'First, and die soon enough, Sordello!
 Give
 'Body and spirit the first right they claim,
 'And pasture soul on a voluptuous shame
 'That you, a pageant-city's denizen,
 'Are neither vilely lodged midst Lombard
 men—
 'Can force joy out of sorrow, seem to truck
 'Bright attributes away for sordid muck
 'Yet manage from that very muck educe
 'Gold; then subject, nor scruple, to your cruce
 'The world's discardings! Though real ingots pay
 'Your pains, the clods that yielded them are clay
 'To all beside,—would clay remain, though quenched
 'Your purging-fire; who's robbed then?
 Had you wrenched
 'An ampler treasure forth!—As 'tis, they crave
 'A share that ruins you and will not save 'Them. Why should sympathy command you quit
 'The course that makes your joy, nor will remit
 'Their woe? Would all arrive at joy?
 Reverse
 'The order (time instructs you) nor coerce
 'Each unit till, some predetermined mode,
 'The total be emancipate; men's road
 'Is one, men's times of travel many; thwart
 'No enterprising soul's precocious start
 'Before the general march! If slow or fast
 'All straggle up to the same point at
 last,

- 'Why grudge your having gained, a month ago,
'The brakes' at balm-shed, asphodels in blow,
'While they were landlocked? Speed their Then, but how
'This badge would suffer you improve your Now!
His time of action for, against, or with Our world (I labour to extract the pith
Of this his problem) grew, that even-tide, Gigantic with its power of joy, beside
The world's eternity of impotence
To profit though at his whole joy's expense.
'Make nothing of my day because so brief?
'Rather make more: instead of joy, use grief
'Before its novelty have time subside!
'Wait not for the late savour, leave untried
'Virtue, the creaming honey-wine, quick squeeze
'Vice like a biting spirit from the lees
'Of life! Together let wrath, hatred, lust,
'All tyrannies in every shape, be thrust,
'Upon this Now, which time may reason out
'As mischiefs, far from benefits, no doubt;
'But long ere then Sordello will have slept
'Away; you teach him at Goito's crypt,
'There's a blank issue to that fiery thrill.
'Stirring, the few cope with the many, still:
'So much of sand as, quiet, makes a mass
'Unable to produce three tufts of grass,
'Shall, troubled by the whirlwind, render void
'The whole calm glebe's endeavour: be employed!
'And e'en though somewhat smart the Crowd for this,
'Contribute each his pang to make your bliss,
'Tis but one pang—one blood-drop to the bowl
'Which brimful tempts the sluggish asp uncowl
'At last, stains ruddily the dull red cape,
'And, kindling orbs grey as the unripe grape
'Before, avails forthwith to disentrance
'The portent, soon to lead a mystic dance
'Among you! For, who sits alone in Rome?
'Have those great hands indeed hewn out a home,
'And set me there to live? Oh life, life-breath,
'Life-blood,—ere sleep, come travail, life ere death!
'This life stream on my soul, direct, oblique,
'But always streaming! Hindrances? They pique:
- 'Helps? such . . . but why repeat, my soul o'ertops
'Each height, then every depth profound-lier drops?
'Enough that I can live, and would live! Wait
'For some transcendent life reserved by Fate
'To follow this? Oh, never! Fate, I trust
'The same, my soul to; for, as who flings dust,
'Perchance (so facile was the deed) she chequed
'The void with these materials to affect
'My soul diversely: these consigned anew
'To nought by death, what marvel if she threw
'A second and superb spectacle
'Before me? What may serve for sun, what still 'Wander a moon above me? What else wind
'About me like the pleasures left behind,
'And how shall some new flesh that is not flesh
'Cling to me? What's new laughter? Soothes the fresh
'Sleep like sleep? Fate's exhaustless for my sake
'In brave resource: but whether bids she slake
'My thirst at this first rivulet, or count
'No draught worth lip save from some rocky fount
'Above i' the clouds, while here she's provident
'Of pure loquacious pearl, the soft tree-tent
'Guards, with its face of reate and sedge, nor fail
'The silver globules and gold-sparkling grail
'At bottom? Oh, 'twere too absurd to slight
'For the hereafter the to-day's delight!
'Quench thirst at this, then seek next well-spring: wear
'Home-lilies ere strange lotus in my hair!
'Here is the Crowd, whom I with freest heart
'Offer to serve, contented for my part
'To give life up in service,—only grant
'That I do serve; if otherwise, why want
'Aught further of me? If men cannot choose 'But set aside life, why should I refuse
'The gift? I take it—I, for one, engage
'Never to falter through my pilgrimage—
'Nor end it howling that the stock or stone
'Were enviable, truly: I, for one,
'Will praise the world, you style mere ante-room
'To palace—be it so! shall I assume

'—My foot the courtly gait, my tongue the trope,
'My mouth the smirk, before the doors fly ope
'One moment? What? with guarders row on row,
'Gay swarms of varletry that come and go,
'Pages to dice with, waiting-girls unlace
'The plackets of, pert claimants help displace,
'Heart-heavy suitors get a rank for,—laugh
'At yon sleek parasite, break his own staff
'Cross Beetle-brows the Usher's shoulder,—why
'Admitted to the presence by and by,
'Should thought of having lost these make me grieve
'Among new joys I reach, for joys I leave?
'Cool citrine-crystals, fierce pyropus-stone,
'Are floor-work there! But do I let alone
'That black-eyed peasant in the vestibule
'Once and for ever?—Floor-work? No such fool!
'Rather, were heaven to forestall earth, I'd say
'I, is it, must be blest? Then, my own way
'Bless me! Give firmer arm and fleet foot,
'I'll thank you: but to no mad wings transmute
'These limbs of mine—our greensward was so soft!
'Nor camp I on the thunder-cloud aloft:
'We feel the bliss distinctlier, having thus
'Engines subservient, not mixed up with us.
'Better move palpably through heaven: nor, freed
'Of flesh forsooth, from space to space proceed
'Mid flying synods of worlds! No: in heaven's marge
'Show Titan still, recumbent o'er his targe
'Solid with stars—the Centaur at his game,
'Made tremulously out in hoary flame!
'Life! Yet the very cup whose extreme dull
'Dregs, even, I would quaff, was dashed, at full,
'Aside so oft; the death I fly, revealed
'So oft a better life this life concealed,
'And which sage, champion, martyr, through each path
'Have hunted fearlessly—the horrid bath,
'The crippling-irons and the fiery chair.
'Twas well for them; let me become aware
'As they, and I relinquish life, too! Let 'What masters life disclose itself! Forget
'Vain ordinances, I have one appeal—
'I feel, am what I feel, know what I feel;
'So much is truth to me. What Is, then? Since
'One object, viewed diversely, may evince

'Beauty and ugliness—this way attract,
'That way repel,—why glose upon the fact?
'Why must a single of the sides be right?
'What bids choose this and leave the opposite?
'Where's abstract Right for me?—in youth ended
'With Right still present, still to be pursued,
'Thro' all the interchange of circles, rife
'Each with its proper law and mode of life,
'Each to be dwelt at ease in: where, to sway
'Absolute with the Kaiser, or obey
'Implicit with his serf of fluttering heart,
'Or, like a sudden thought of God's, to start 'Up, Brutus in the presence, then go shout
'That some should pick the unstrung jewels out—
'Each, well!'
And, as in moments when the past
Gave partially enfranchisement, he cast
Himself quite through mere secondary states
Of his soul's essence, little loves and hates,
Into the mid deep yearnings overlaid
By these; as who should pierce hill, plain,
grove, glade,
And on into the very nucleus probe
That first determined there exist a globe.
As that were easiest, half the globe dissolved,
So seemed Sordello's closing-truth evolved
By his flesh-half's break-up; the sudden swell
Of his expanding soul showed Ill and Well, Sorrow and Joy, Beauty and Ugliness,
Virtue and Vice, the Larger and the Less,
All qualities, in fine, recorded here,
Might be but modes of Time and this one sphere,
Urgent on these, but not of force to bind
Eternity, as Time—as Matter—Mind,
If Mind, Eternity, should choose assert
Their attributes within a Life: thus girt
With circumstance, next change beholds them cinct Quite otherwise—with Good and Ill distinct,
Joys, sorrows, tending to a like result—
Contrived to render easy, difficult,
This or the other course of . . . what new bond
In place of flesh may stop their flight beyond
Its new sphere, as that course does harm or good
To its arrangements. Once this understood,
As suddenly he felt himself alone,
'Quite out of Time and this world: all was known.
What made the secret of his past despair?
—Most imminent when he seemed most aware

Of his own self-sufficiency: made mad
By craving to expand the power he had,
And not new power to be expanded?—just
This made it; Soul on Matter being thrust, Joy comes when so much Soul is wreaked in
Time

On Matter: let the Soul's attempt sublime Matter beyond the scheme and so prevent
By more or less that deed's accomplishment,

And Sorrow follows: Sorrow how avoid?
Let the employer match the thing employed,

Fit to the finite his infinity,
And thus proceed for ever, in degree
Changed but in kind the same, still limited
To the appointed circumstance and dead
To all beyond. A sphere is but a sphere;
Small, Great, are merely terms we bandy
here;

Since to the spirit's absoluteness all Are like. Now, of the present sphere we call

Life, are conditions; take but this among Many; the body was to be so long Youthful, no longer: but, since no control
Tied to that body's purposes his soul,
She chose to understand the body's trade
More than the body's self—had fain conveyed

Her boundless to the body's bounded lot.
Hence, the soul permanent, the body
not,—

Scarcely its minute for enjoying here,—
The soul must needs instruct her weak compeer,

Run o'er its capabilities and wring
A joy thence, she held worth experiencing:
Which, far from half discovered even,— lo,

The minute gone, the body's power let go
Apportioned to that joy's acquirement!
Broke

Morning o'er earth, he yearned for all it woke—

From the volcano's vapour-flag, winds hoist

Black o'er the spread of sea,—down to the moist

Dale's silken barley-spikes sullied with rain,

Swayed earthwards, heavily to rise again—
The Small, a sphere as perfect as the Great

To the soul's absoluteness. Meditate Too long on such a morning's cluster-chord

And the whole music it was framed afford,—

The chord's might half discovered, what should pluck

One string, his finger, was found palsystruck.

And then no marvel if the spirit, shown
A saddest sight—the body lost alone

Through her officious proffered help, deprived

Of this and that enjoyment Fate contrived,—

Virtue, Good, Beauty, each allowed slip
hence,—

Vain-gloriously were fain, for recompense,
To stem the ruin even yet, protract

The body's term, supply the power it lacked
From her infinity, compel it learn

These qualities were only Time's concern,
And body may, with spirit helping,
barred—

Advance the same, vanquished—obtain
reward,

Reap joy where sorrow was intended grow,

Of Wrong make Right, and turn Ill Good
below.

And the result is, the poor body soon Sinks under what was meant a wondrous boon,

Leaving its bright accomplice all aghast.
So much was plain then, proper in the
past;

To be complete for, satisfy the whole
Series of spheres—Eternity, his soul Needs must exceed, prove incomplete for,
each

Single sphere—Time. But does our knowledge reach

No farther? Is the cloud of hindrance broke

But by the failing of the fleshly yoke,
Its loves and hates, as now when death lets soar

Sordello, self-sufficient as before, Though during the mere space that shall elapse

'Twixt his enthrallment in new bonds perhaps?

Must life be ever just escaped, which should

Have been enjoyed?—nay, might have been and would,

Each purpose ordered right—the soul's
no whit

Beyond the body's purpose under it.
Like yonder breadth of watery heaven, a
bay,

And that sky-space of water, ray for ray
And star for star, one richness where they mixed

As this and that wing of an angel, fixed,
Tumultuary splendours folded in

To die—would soul, proportioned thus,
begin

Exciting discontent, or surelier quell
The body if, aspiring, it rebel?

But how so order life? Still brutalize
The soul, the sad world's way, with muffled
eyes

To all that was before, all that shall be
After this sphere—all and each quality

Save some sole and immutable Great,
Good

And Beauteous whither fate has loosed its
hood

To follow? Never may some soul see All —The Great Before and After, and the Small

Now, yet be saved by this the simplest lore,
And take the single course prescribed before,

As the king-bird with ages on his plumes
Travels to die in his ancestral glooms?
But where descry the Love that shall select That course? Here is a soul whom, to affect,

Nature has plied with all her means, from
trees

And flowers e'en to the Multitude!—and
these,

Decides he save or no? One word to end!
Ah my Sordello, I this once befriend And speak for you. Of a Power above you
still

Which, utterly incomprehensible,
Is out of rivalry, which thus you can Love, tho' unloving all conceived by man—What need! And of—none the minutest
duct

To that out-nature, nought that would instruct

And so let rivalry begin to live—
But of a Power its representative
Who, being for authority the same,
Communication different, should claim
A course, the first chose but this last revealed—

This Human clear, as that Divine concealed—

What utter need!

What has Sordello found?
Or can his spirit go the mighty round,
End where poor Eglamor begun? So, says
Old fable, the two eagles went two ways
About the world: where, in the midst, they met,

Though on a shifting waste of sand, men set Jove's temple. Quick, what has Sordello
found?

For they approach—approach—that foot's rebound . . .

Palma? No, Salinguerra though in mail;
They mount, have reached the threshold, dash the veil

Aside—and you divine who sat there dead,
Under his foot the badge: still, Palma said,
A triumph lingering in the wide eyes, Wider than some spent swimmer's if he spies

Help from above in his extreme despair,
And, head far back on shoulder thrust, turns there

With short quick passionate cry: as Palma
pressed

In one great kiss, her lips upon his breast,

It beat.

By this, the hermit-bee has stopped
His day's toil at Goito: the new-cropped Dead vine-leaf answers, now 'tis eve, he bit,

Twirled so, and filed all day: the mansion's fit,

God counselled for. As easy guess the
word

That passed betwixt them, and become the third

To the soft small unfrighted bee, as tax
Him with one fault—so, no remembrance racks

Of the stone maidens and the font of stone
He, creeping through the crevice, leaves
alone.

Alas, my friend, alas Sordello, whom Anon they laid within that old font-tomb,
And, yet again, alas!

And now is't worth
Our while bring back to mind, much less set
forth

How Salinguerra extricates himself
Without Sordello? Ghibellin and Guef
May fight their fiercest out? If Richard sulked

In durance or the Marquis paid his mulct, Who cares, Sordello gone? The upshot,
sure,

Was peace; our chief made some frank overture

That prospered; compliment fell thick and
fast

On its disposer, and Taurello passed With foe and friend for an outstripping
soul,

Nine days at least. Then,—fairly reached the goal,—

He, by one effort, blotted the great hope
Out of his mind, nor further tried to cope With Este, that mad evening's style, but sent

Away the Legate and the League, content No blame at least the brothers had incurred,

—Dispatched a message to the Monk, he
heard

Patiently first to last, scarce shivered at,
Then curled his limbs up on his wolfskin mat

And ne'er spoke more,—informed the Ferrarese

He but retained their rule so long as
these

Lingered in pupillage,—and last, no mode
Apparent else of keeping safe the road
From Germany direct to Lombardy
For Friedrich,—none, that is, to guarantee The faith and promptitude of who should
next

Obtain Sofia's dowry,—sore perplexed—(Sofia being youngest of the tribe
Of daughters, Ecelin was wont to bribe

The envious magnates with—nor, since he sent

Henry of Egna this fair child, had Trent
Once failed the Kaiser's purposes—'we lost

'Egna last year, and who takes Egna's post—

'Opens the Lombard gate if Friedrich knock?')

Himself espoused the Lady of the Rock
In pure necessity, and, so destroyed

His slender last of chances, quite made void
Old prophecy, and spite of all the schemes

Overt and covert, youth's deeds, age's dreams,

Was sucked into Romano. And so hushed
He up this evening's work that, when 'twas brushed

Somehow against by a blind chronicle
Which, chronicling whatever woe befell

Ferrara, noted this the obscure woe
Of 'Salinguerra's sole son Giacomo

'Deceased, fatuous and doting, ere his sire,'
The townsfolk rubbed their eyes, could but admire

Which of Sofia's five was meant.

The chaps
Of earth's dead hope were tardy to collapse,

Obliterated not the beautiful
Distinctive features at a crash: but dull

And duller these, next year, as Guefs withdrew

Each to his stronghold. Then (securely too Ecelin at Campese slept; close by,

Who likes may see him in Solagna lie,
With cushioned head and gloved hand to denote

The cavalier he was)—then his heart smote
Young Ecelin at last; long since adult.

And, save Vicenza's business, what result
In blood and blaze? (So hard to intercept Sordello till his plain withdrawal!) Stepped Then his new lord on Lombardy. I' the nick

Of time when Ecelin and Alberic
Closed with Taurello, come precisely news

That in Verona half the souls refuse Allegiance to the Marquis and the Count—

Have cast them from a throne they bid him mount,

'Their Podestà, thro' his ancestral worth.
Ecelin flew there, and the town henceforth

Was wholly his—Taurello sinking back'
From temporary station to a track

That suited. News received of this acquit, Friedrich did come to Lombardy: who missed

Taurello then? Another year: they took Vicenza, left the Marquis scarce a nook

For refuge, and, when hundreds two or three Of Guefs conspired to call themselves

'The Free,'

Opposing Alberic,—vile Bassanese,— (Without Sordello!)—Ecelin at ease

Slaughtered them so observably, that oft
A little Salinguerra looked with soft

Blue eyes up, asked his sire the proper age
To get appointed his proud uncle's page.

More years passed, and that sire had dwindled down

To a mere showy turbulent soldier, grown
Better through age, his parts still in repute,

Subtle—how else?—but hardly so astute
As his contemporaneous friends professed;

Undoubtedly a brawler: for the rest,
Known by each neighbour, and allowed for, let

Keep his incorrigible ways, nor fret

Men who would miss their boyhood's bug-bear: 'trap

'The ostrich, suffer our bald osprey flap
'A battered pinion!'—was the word. In fine,

One flap too much and Venice's marine
Was meddled with; no overlooking that!

She captured him in his Ferrara, fat
And florid at a banquet, more by fraud

Than force, to speak the truth; there's slender laud

Ascribed you for assisting eighty years
To pull his death on such a man; fateshears

The life-cord prompt enough whose last fine thread

You fritter: so, presiding his board-head,
The old smile, your assurance all went well

With Friedrich (as if he were like to tell!) In rushed (a plan contrived before) our

friends,

Made some pretence at fighting, some
amends

For the shame done his eighty years—(apart

The principle, none found it in his heart
To be much angry with Taurello)—gained

Their galleys with the prize, and what remained

But carry him to Venice for a show?
—Set him, as 'twere, down gently—free to go

His gait, inspect our square, pretend observe

The swallows soaring their eternal curve
'Twixt Theodore and Mark, if citizens

Gathered importunately, fives and tens,
To point their children the Magnifico,

All but a monarch once in firm-land, go
His gait among them now—'it took, indeed,

'Fully this Ecelin to supersede
'That man,' remarked the seniors. Singular!

Sordello's inability to bar Rivals the stage, that evening, mainly

brought

About by his strange disbelief that aught

Was ever to be done,—this thrust the Twain

Under Taurello's tutelage,—whom, brain
And heart and hand, he forthwith in one
rod

Indissolubly bound to baffle God
Who loves the world—and thus allowed the thin

Grey wizened dwarfish devil Ecelin,
And massy-muscled big-boned Alberic (Mere man, alas!) to put his problem quick To demonstration—prove wherever's will
To do, there's plenty to be done, or ill
Or good. Anointed, then, to rend and rip—Kings of the gag and flesh-hook, screw and whip,

They plagued the world: a touch of Hildebrand
(So far from obsolete!) made Lombards
band

Together, cross their coats as for Christ's
cause,
And saving Milan win the world's applause.

Ecelin perished: and I think grass grew Never so pleasant as in Valley Rù
By San Zenon where Alberic in turn Saw his exasperated captors burn Seven children and their mother; then, regaled

So far, tied on to a wild horse, was trailed
To death through raunce and bramblebush. I take

God's part and testify that 'mid the brake
Wild o'er his castle on the pleasant knoll,
You hear its one tower left, a belfry, toll—
The earthquake spared it last year, laying flat

The modern church beneath,—no harm in
that!

Chirrup the contumacious grasshopper,
Rustles the lizard and the cushats chirre
Above the ravage: there, at deep of day
A week since, heard I the old Canon say
He saw with his own eyes a barrow burst
And Alberic's huge skeleton unheard Only five years ago. He added, 'June's
'The month for carding off our first cocoons

'The silkworms fabricate'—a double
news,

Nor he nor I could tell the worthier.
Choose!

And Naddo gone, all's gone; not Eglamor!

Believe, I knew the face I waited for,
A guest my spirit of the golden courts!
Oh strange to see how, despite ill-reports, Disuse, some wear of years, that face retained

Its joyous look of love! Suns waxed and waned,

And still my spirit held an upward flight,
Spiral on spiral, gyres of life and light

More and more gorgeous—ever that face
there

The last admitted! crossed, too, with some
care

As perfect triumph were not sure for all,
But, on a few, enduring damp must fall,
—A transient struggle, haply a painful
sense

Of the inferior nature's clinging—whence
Slight starting tears easily wiped away,
Fine jealousies soon stifled in the play
Of irrepressible admiration—not Aspiring, all considered, to their lot
Who ever, just as they prepare ascend Spiral on spiral, wish thee well, impend
Thy frank delight at their exclusive track, That upturned fervid face and hair put
back!

Is there no more to say? He of the rhymes—

Many a tale, of this retreat betimes,
Was born: Sordello died at once for men?
The Chroniclers of Mantua tired their pen
—Telling how Sordello Prince Visconti saved Mantua, and elsewhere notably behaved—
Who thus, by fortune ordering events,
Passed with posterity, to all intents,
For just the god he never could become.
As Knight, Bard, Gallant, men were never
dumb

In praise of him: while what he should have been,

Could be, and was not—the one step too
mean

For him to take,—we suffer at this day
Because of: Ecelin had pushed away
Its chance ere Dante could arrive and take That step Sordello spurned, for the world's
sake:

He did much—but Sordello's chance was
gone.

Thus, had Sordello dared that step alone,
Apollo had been compassed: 'twas a fit
He wished should go to him, not he to it —As one content to merely be supposed Singing or fighting elsewhere, while he dozed

Really at home—one who was chiefly glad To have achieved the few real deeds he had,
Because that way assured they were not
worth

Doing, so spared from doing them hence-
forth—

A tree that covets fruitage and yet tastes Never itself, itself. Had he embraced Their cause then, men had plucked Hesperian fruit

And, praising that, just thrown him in to boot

All he was anxious to appear, but scarce
Solicitous to be. A sorry farce
Such life is, after all! Cannot I say He lived for some one better thing? this
way.—

Lo, on a heathy brown and nameless hill
 By sparkling Asolo, in mist and chill,
 Morning just up, higher and higher runs
 A child barefoot and rosy. See! the sun's
 On the square castle's inner-court's low wall
 Like the chine of some extinct animal Half turned to earth and flowers; and through the haze (Save where some slender patches of grey maize
 Are to be overleaped) that boy has crossed
 The whole hill-side of dew and powder-
 frost
 Matting the balm and mountain camomile.
 Up and up goes he, singing all the while
 Some unintelligible words to beat
 The lark, God's poet, swooning at his feet,
 So worsted is he at the few fine locks
 'Stained like pale honey oozed from top-
 most rocks'

'Sun-blanced the livelong summer,'—all that's left
 Of the Goito lay! And thus bereft, Sleep and forget, Sordello! In effect
 He sleeps, the feverish poet—I suspect
 Not utterly companionless; but, friends, Wake up! The ghost's gone, and the story
 ends
 I'd fain hope, sweetly; seeing, peri or ghoul,
 That spirits are conjectured fair or foul,
 Evil or good, judicious authors think,
 According as they vanish in a stink
 Or in a perfume. Friends, be frank! yes snuff Civet, I warrant. Really? Like enough!
 Merely the savour's rareness; any nose
 May ravage with impunity a rose:
 Rifle a musk-pod and 'twill ache like yours!
 I'd tell you that some pungency ensures
 An after-gust, but that were overbold.
 Who would has heard Sordello's story told.

INTRODUCTION

NEW YEAR'S DAY AT ASOLO IN THE TREVISAN

SCENE.—A large mean airy chamber. A girl, PIPPA, from the Silk-mills, springing out of bed.

DAY!

Faster and more fast,
 O'er night's brim, day boils at last:
 Boils, pure gold, o'er the cloud-cup's brim
 Where spurting and suppressed it lay,
 For not a froth-flake touched the rim
 Of vonder gap in the solid gray
 Of the eastern cloud, an hour away;
 But forth one wavelet, then another,
 curled,
 Till the whole sunrise, not to be suppressed,
 Rose, reddened, and its seething breast Flickered in bounds, grew gold, then overflowed the world.

Oh, Day, if I squander a wavelet of thee,
 A mite of my twelve hours' treasure,
 The least of thy gazes or glances, (Be they grants thou art bound to or gifts above measure)
 One of thy choices or one of thy chances, (Be they tasks God imposed thee or freaks at thy pleasure)
 —My Day, if I squander such labour or leisure,
 Then shame fall on Asolo, mischief on
 me!
 Thy long blue solemn hours serenely flow-
 ing,
 Whence earth, we feel, gets steady help and
 good—Thy fitful sunshine-minutes, coming, go-
 ing,
 As if earth turned from work in gamesome mood—

PIPPA PASSES

All shall be mine! But thou must treat me
not

As prosperous ones are treated, those who
live

At hand here, and enjoy the higher lot,
In readiness to take what thou wilt give,
And free to let alone what thou refusest;
For, Day, my holiday, if thou ill-usest Me, who am only Pippa,—old-year's
sorrow,

Cast off last night, will come again tomorrow:

Whereas, if thou prove gentle, I shall borrow

Sufficient strength of thee for new-year's sorrow.

All other men and women that this earth
Belongs to, who all days alike possess,
Make general plenty cure particular
dearth,

Get more joy one way, if another, less:
Thou art my single day, God lends to leaven

What were all earth else, with a feel of
heaven,—

Sole light that helps me through the year, thy sun's!

Try now! Take Asolo's Four Happiest
Ones—

And let thy morning rain on that superb
Great haughty Ottima; can rain disturb Her Sebald's homage? All the while thy rain

Beats fiercest on her shrub-house window-pane,

He will but press the closer, breathe more warm

Against her cheek; how should she mind the storm?

And, morning past, if mid-day shed a
gloom

O'er Jules and Phene,—what care bride and groom

Save for their dear selves? 'Tis their marriage-day;

And while they leave church and go home
their way,

Hand clasping hand, within each breast would be

Sunbeams and pleasant weather spite of
thee.

Then, for another trial, obscure thy eve
With mist,—will Luigi and his mother
grieve—

The lady and her child, unmatched, forsooth,

She in her age, as Luigi in his youth,
For true content? The cheerful town, warm, close

And safe, the sooner that thou art morose, Receives them. And yet once again, outbreak

In storm at night on Monsignor, they
make

Such stir about,—whom they expect from
Rome

To visit Asolo, his brother's home,
And say here masses proper to release
A soul from pain,—what storm dares hurt his peace?

Calm would he pray, with his own thoughts to ward

Thy thunder off, nor want the angels'
guard.

But Pippa—just one such mischance would spoil

Her day that lightens the next twelve-month's toil

At wearisome silk-winding, coil on coil!
And here I let time slip for nought!

Aha, you foolhardy sunbeam, caught
With a single splash from my ewer!

You that would mock the best pursuer,
Was my basin over-deep?

One splash of water ruins you asleep,
And up, up, fleet your brilliant bits

Wheeling and counterwheeling,
Reeling, broken beyond healing:

Now grow together on the ceiling!
That will task your wits.

Whoever it was quenched fire first, hoped
to see

Morsel after morsel flee
As merrily, as giddily . . .

Meantime, what lights my sunbeam on,
Where settles by degrees the radiant cripple?

Oh, is it surely blown, my martagon?
New-blown and ruddy as St. Agnes' nipple,

Plump as the flesh-bunch on some Turk bird's poll!

Be sure if corals, branching 'neath the ripple

Of ocean, bud there,—fairies watch unroll
Such turban-flowers; I say, such lamps disperse

Thick red flame through that dusk green universe!

I am queen of thee, floweret!
And each fleshy blossom

Preserve I not—(safer
Than leaves that embower it,

Or shells that embosom)
—From weevil and chafer?

Laugh through my pane then; solicit the bee;

Gibe him, be sure; and, in midst of thy glee

Love thy queen, worship me!

—Worship whom else? For am I not, this
day,

Whate'er I please? What shall I please to-
day?

My morn, noon, eve and night—how spend my day?

To-morrow I must be Pippa who winds
silk,

The whole year round, to earn just bread and milk:

But, this one day, I have leave to go,
And play out my fancy's fullest games;
I may fancy all day—and it shall be so—
That I taste of the pleasures, am called by the names
Of the Happiest Four in our Asolo!

See! Up the hill-side yonder, through the
morning,
Some one shall love me, as the world calls
love:

I am no less than Ottima, take warning!
The gardens, and the great stone house
above,
And other house for shrubs, all glass in
front,
Are mine; where Sebald steals, as he is wont,

To court me, while old Luca yet reposes:
And therefore, "all the shrub-house door
uncloses,

I... what now?—give abundant cause for prate

About me—Ottima, I mean—of late,
Too bold, too confident she'll still face
down

The spitefullest of talkers in our town.
How we talk in the little town below!

But love, love, love—there's better love,
I know!

This foolish love was only day's first offer;
I choose my next love to defy the scoffer:
For do not our Bride and Bridgroom sally
Out of Possagno church at noon?

Their house looks over Orcana valley:
Why should not I be the bride as soon
As Ottima? For I saw, beside,
Arrive last night that little bride—

Saw, if you call it seeing her, one flash
Of the pale snow-pure cheek and black bright tresses,

Blacker than all except the black eyelash;
I wonder she contrives those lids no dresses!

—So strict was she, the veil
Should cover close her pale Pure cheeks—a bride to look at and scarce
touch,

Scarce touch, remember, Jules! For are not such

Used to be tended, flower-like, every feature,

As if one's breath would fray the lily of a creature?

A soft and easy life these ladies lead:
Whiteness in us were wonderful indeed.

Oh, save that brow its virgin dimness,
Keep that foot its lady primness,

Let those ankles never swerve
From their exquisite reserve,

Yet have to trip along the streets like me,
All but naked to the knee!

How will she ever grant her Jules a bliss
So startling as her real first infant kiss?
Oh, no—not envy, this!

—Not envy, sure!—for if you gave me
Leave to take or to refuse,
In earnest, do you think I'd choose
That sort of new love to enslave me?
Mine should have lapped me round from the beginning;

As little fear of losing it as winning:
Lovers grow cold, men learn to hate their wives,

And only parents' love can last our lives.
At eve the Son and Mother, gentle pair, Commune inside our turret: what prevents My being Luigi? While that mossy lair Of lizards through the winter-time is stirred

With each to each imparting sweet intents For this new-year, as brooding bird to
bird—

(For I observe of late, the evening walk
Of Luigi and his mother, always ends
Inside our ruined turret, where they talk, Calmer than lovers, yet more kind than
friends)

—Let me be cared about, kept out of harm,
And schemed for, safe in love as with a charm;

Let me be Luigi! If I only knew What was my mother's face—my father,
too!

Nay, if you come to that, best love of all
Is God's; then why not have God's love befall

Myself as, in the palace by the Dome, Monsignor?—who to-night will bless the
home

Of his dead brother; and God bless in turn That heart which beats, those eyes which mildly burn

With love for all men! I, to-night at least,
Would be that holy and beloved priest.

Now wait!—even I already seem to share In God's love: what does New-year's hymn declare?

What other meaning do these verses bear?

*All service ranks the same with God:
If now, as formerly he trod
Paradise, his presence fills
Our earth, each only as God wills
Can work—God's puppets, best and worst,
Are we; there is no last nor first.*

*Say not 'a small event!' Why 'small'?
Costs it more pain that this, ye call
A 'great event,' should come to pass,
Than that? Untwine me from the mass
Of deeds which make up life, one deed Power shall fall short in or exceed!*

And more of it, and more of it!—oh yes—
I will pass each, and see their happiness,

PIPPA PASSES

[1

And envy none—being just^{as} great, no doubt, Useful to men, and dear to God, as they!
A pretty thing to care about
So mightily, this single holiday!
But let the sun shine! Wherefore repine?
—With thee to lead me, O Day of mine,
Down the grass path grey with dew,
Under the pine-wood, blind with boughs,
Where the swallow never flew
Nor yet cicala dared carouse—
No, dared carouse! [She enters the street.]

I.—MORNING

SCENE.—Up the Hill-side, inside the Shrub-house. LUCA's wife, OTTIMA, and her paramour, the German SEBALD.

Seb. [sings].

*Let the watching lids wink!
Day's a-blaze with eyes, think!
Deep into the night, drink!*

Otti. Night? Such may be your Rhine-land nights perhaps;
But this blood-red beam through the shutter's chink

—We call such light, the morning: let us see!

Mind how you grope your way, though!
How these tall

Naked geraniums straggle! Push the lattice Behind that frame!—Nay, do I bid you?—

Sebald,
It shakes the dust down on me! Why, of course

The slide-bolt catches. Well, are you content.

Or must I find you something else to spoil?
Kiss and be friends, my Sebald! Is't full

morning?
Oh, don't speak then!

Seb. Ay, thus it used to be.
Ever your house was, I remember, shut

Till mid-day; I observed that, as I strolled
On mornings through the vale here; country girls

Were noisy, washing garments in the brook,

Hinds drove the slow white oxen up the hills:

But no, your house was mute, would open eye.

And wisely: you were plotting one thing there,

Nature, another outside. I looked up—
Rough whitewood shutters, rusty iron bars,

Silent as death, blind in a flood of light.
Oh, I remember!—and the peasants laughed

And said, 'The old man sleeps with the young wife.'

This house was his, this chair, this window

—his.

Otti. Ah, the clear morning! I can see
St. Mark's;

That black streak is the belfry. Stop:
Vicenza

Should lie . . . there's Padua, plain enough, that blue!

Look o'er my shoulder, follow my finger!
Seb. Morning?

It seems to me a night with a sun added.
Where's dew, where's freshness? That bruised plant, I bruised

In getting through the lattice yestereve, Droops as it did. See, here's my elbow's mark

I' the dust o' the sill.

Otti. Oh, shut the lattice, pray!
Seb. Let me lean out. I cannot scent blood here,

Foul as the morn may be.

There, shut the world out!
How do you feel now, Ottima? There,

curse
The world and all outside! Let us throw

'off'
This mask: how do you bear yourself?

Let's out
With all of it.

Otti. Best never speak of it.
Seb. Best speak again and yet again of it.

Till words cease to be more than words.
'His blood,'

For instance—let those two words mean
'His blood'

And nothing more. Notice, I'll say them
now,

'His blood.'
Otti. Assuredly if I repented

The deed—Seb. Repent? Who should repent, or

why?
What puts that in your head? Did I once

say
That I repented?

Otti. No, I said the deed . . .
Seb. 'The deed' and 'the event'—just now it was

'Our passion's fruit'—the devil take such cant!

Say, once and always, Luca was a wittol,
I am his cut-throat, you are . . .

Otti. Here's the wine;
I brought it when we left the house above,

And glasses too—wine of both sorts.
Black? White then?

Seb. But am not I his cut-throat? What are you?

Otti. There trudges on his business from the Duomo

Benet the Capuchin, with his brown hood
And bare feet; always in one place at

church,
Close under the stone wall by the south

entry
I used to take him for a brown cold piece

Of the wall's self, as out of it he rose
To let me pass—at first, I say, I used:
Now, so has that dumb figure fastened on
me,

I rather should account the plastered wall
A piece of him, so chilly does it strike.
This, Sebald?

Seb. No, the white wine—the white wine!

Well, Ottima, I promised no new year Should rise on us the ancient shameful
way;

Nor does it rise. Pour on! To your black
eyes!

Do you remember last damned New Year's day?

Otti. You brought those foreign prints.
We looked at them

Over the wine and fruit. I had to scheme
To get him from the fire. Nothing but saying

His own set want^d the proof-mark, roused him up

To hunt them out.

Seb. 'Faith, he is not alive
To fondle you before my face.

Otti. Do you Fondle me then! Who means to take your
life

For that, my Sebald?

Seb. Hark you, Ottima!
One thing to guard against. We'll not make much

One of the other—that is, not make more
Parade of warmth, childish officious coil,
Than yesterday: as if, sweet, I supposed

Proof upon proof were needed now, now
first,

To show I love you—yes, still love you—love you

In spite of Luca and what's come to him —Sure sign we had him ever in our
thoughts,

White sneering old reproachful face and
all!

We'll even quarrel, love, at times, as if We still could lose each other, were not tied
By this: conceive you?

Otti. Love!
Seb. Not tied so sure.

Because though I was wrought upon, have struck

His insolence back into him—am I
So surely yours?—therefore forever yours!

Otti. Love, to be wise, (one counsel pays another)

Should we have—months ago, when first we loved,

For instance that May morning we, two stole

Under the green ascent of sycamores—
If we had come upon a thing like that Suddenly . . .

Seb. 'A thing'—there again—'a thing!'

Otti. Then, 'Venus' body, had we come upon

My husband Luca Gaddi's murdered corpse

Within there, at his couch-foot, covered close—

Would you have pored upon it? Why persist

In poring now upon it? For 'tis here
As much as there in the deserted house:

You cannot rid your eyes of it. For me,
Now he is dead I hate him worse: I hate . . .

Dare you stay here? I would go back and hold

His two dead hands, and say, 'I hate you
worse,

'Luca, than . . .'
Seb. Off, off—take your hands off mine,

'Tis the hot evening—off! oh, morning is it?
Otti. There's one thing must be done;

you know what thing.

Come in and help to carry. We may sleep Anywhere in the whole wide house to-
night.

Seb. What would come, think you, if we let him lie

Just as he is? Let him lie there until The angels take him! He is turned by this

Off from his face beside, as you will see.

Otti. This dusty pane might serve for looking glass.

Three, four—four grey hairs! Is it so you
said

Aplait of hair should wave across my neck?
No—this way.

Seb. Ottima, I would give your neck,
Each splendid shoulder, both those breasts
of yours,

That this were undone! Killing! Kill the
world

So Luca lives again!—ay, lives to sputter
His fulsome dotage on you—yes, and feign

Surprise that I return at eve to sup,
When all the morning I was loitering here—

Bid me despatch my business and begone.
I would . . .

Otti. See!
Seb. No, I'll finish. Do you think

I fear to speak the bare truth once for all?
All we have talked of, is, at bottom, fine

To suffer; there's a recompense in guilt;
One must be venturesome and fortunate:

What is one young for, else? In age we'll sigh

O'er the wild reckless wicked days flown
over;

Still, we have lived: the vice was in its
place.

But to have eaten Luca's bread, have worn His clothes, have felt his money swell my purse—

Do lovers in romances sin that way?
Why, I was starving when I used to call

And teach you music, starving while you plucked me
These flowers to smell!

Otti. My poor lost friend!
Seb. He gave me

Life, nothing less: what if he did reproach
My perfidy, and threaten, and do more—
Had he no right? What was to wonder at?
He sat by us at table quietly:
Why must you lean across till our cheeks touched?

Could he do less than make pretence to
strike?

'Tis not the crime's sake—I'd commit ten crimes

Greater, to have this crime wiped out, un-
done!

And you—O how feel you? Feel you for
me?

Otti. Well then, I love you better now than ever,

And best (look at me while I speak to
you)—

Best for the crime; nor do I grieve, in
truth,

This mask, this simulated ignorance,
This affectation of simplicity,

Falls off our crime; this naked crime of
ours

May not now be looked over: look it
down!

Great? let it be great; but the joys it
brought,

Pay they or no its price? Come: they or it!
Speak not! The past, would you give up
the past

Such as it is, pleasure and crime together?
Give up that noon I owned my love for you?

The garden's silence: even the single bee
Persisting in his toil, suddenly stopped,

And where he hid you only could surmise
By some campanula chalice set a-swing.

Who stammered—'Yes, I love you'?

Seb. And I drew
Back; put far back your face with both my hands

Lest you should grow too full of me—your
face

So seemed athirst for my whole soul and body!

Otti. And when I ventured to receive
you here,

Made you steal hither in the mornings—
Seb. When

I used to look up 'neath the shrub-house
here,

Till the red fire on its glazed windows spread

To a yellow haze?

Otti. Ah—my sign was, the sun
Inflamed the sere side of yon chestnut-tree

Nipped by the first frost.
Seb. You would always laugh

At my wet boots: I had to stride thro' grass

Over my ankles.

Otti. Then our crowning night!

Seb. The July night?

Otti. The day of it too, Sebald!

When heaven's pillars seemed o'erbowed with heat,

Its black-blue canopy suffered descend Close on us both, to weigh down each to
each,

And smother up all life except our life.
So lay we till the storm came.

Seb. How it came!
Otti. Buried in woods we lay, you recollect;

Swift ran the searching tempest overhead;
And ever and anon some bright white
shaft

Burned thro' the pine-tree roof, here burned and, there,

As if God's messenger thro' the close wood screen

Plunged and replunged his weapon at a venture,

Feeling for guilty thee and me: then broke
The thunder like a whole sea overhead—

Seb. Yes!

Otti. —While I stretched myself
upon you, hands

To hands, my mouth to your hot mouth, and shook

All my locks loose, and covered you with
them—

You, Sebald, the same you!

Seb. Slower, Ottima!

Otti. And as we lay—

Seb. Less vehemently! Love me!
Forgive me! Take not words, mere words, to heart!

Your breath is worse than wine! Breathe slow, speak slow!

Do not lean on me!

Otti. Sebald, as we lay,
Rising and falling only with our pants,

Who said, 'Let death come now! 'Tis right to die!

'Right to be punished! Nought completes such bliss

'But woe!' Who said that?

Seb. How did we ever rise?
Was't that we slept? Why did it end?

Otti. I felt you
Taper into a point the ruffled ends

Of my loose locks 'twixt both your humid lips.

My hair is fallen now: knot it again!
Seb. I kiss you now, dear Ottima, now
and now!

This way? Will you forgive me—be once
more

My great queen?

Otti. Bind it thrice about my brow;
Crown me your queen, your spirit's arbi-
tress,

Magnificent in sin. Say that!

Seb. I crown you
My great white queen, my spirit's arbitress, Magnificent . . .
[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA,
singing—

*The year's at the spring
And day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;
The hill-side's dew-pearled;
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn:
God's in his heaven—
All's right with the world!*

[PIPPA passes.

Seb. God's in his heaven! Do you hear that? Who spoke?
You, you spoke!

Otti. Oh—that little ragged girl!
She must have rested on the step: we give
them
But this one holiday the whole year round.
Did you ever see our silk-mills—their in-
side?
There are ten silk-mills now belong to you.
She stoops to pick my double heartsease . . . Sh!

She does not hear: call you out louder!
Seb. Leave me!
Go, get your clothes on—dress those shoulders!

Otti. Sebald? Seb. Sebald?

Seb. Wipe off that paint! I hate you.

Otti. Miserable!

Seb. My God, and she is emptied of it
now!

Outright now!—how miraculously gone
All of the grace—had she not strange grace
once?

Why, the blank cheek hangs listless as it likes,

No purpose holds the features up together,
Only the cloven brow and puckered chin
Stay in their places: and the very hair,
That seemed to have a sort of life in it,
Drops, a dead web!

Otti. Speak to me—not of me!

Seb.—That round great full-orbed face, where not an angle
Broke the delicious indolence—all broken!

Otti. To me—not of me! Ungrateful, perjured cheat!
A coward too: but ingrate's worse than all.
Beggar—my slave—a fawning, cringing
lie!

Leave me! Betray me! I can see your drift!

A lie that walks and eats and drinks!

Seb. My God!
Those morbid olive faultless shoulder-blades—

I should have known there was no blood
beneath!

Otti. You hate me then? You hate me
then?

Seb. To think
She would succeed in her absurd attempt,
And fascinate by sinning, show herself
Superior—guilt from its excess superior
To innocence! That little peasant's voice Has righted all again. Though I be lost,
I know which is the better, never fear,
Of vice or virtue, purity or lust,
Nature or trick! I see what I have done, Entirely now! Oh I am proud to feel Such torments—let the world take credit
thence—

I, having done my deed, pay too its price!
I hate, hate—curse you! God's in his
heaven!

Otti. —Me!

Me! no, no, Sebald, not yourself—kill
me!

Mine is the whole crime. Do but kill me—
then

Yourself—then—presently—first hear me
speak!

I always meant to kill myself—wait, you!
Lean on my breast—not as a breast; don't love me

The more because you lean on me, my
own

Hear's Sebald! There, there, both deaths presently!

Seb. My brain is drowned now—quite drowned: all I feel

Is . . . is, at swift-recurring intervals,
A hurry-down within me, as of waters Loosened to smother up some ghastly pit:

There they go—whirls from a black fiery
sea!

Otti. Not me—to him, O God, be merciful!

Talk by the way, while PIPPA is passing from the hill-side to Orcana. Foreign Students of painting and sculpture, from Venice, assembled opposite the house of JULES, a young French statuary, at Possagno.

1st Stud. Attention! My own post is beneath this window, but the pomegranate clump yonder will hide three or four of you with a little squeezing, and Schramm and his pipe must lie flat in the balcony. Four, five—who's a defaulter? We want everybody, for Jules must not be suffered to hurt his bride when the jest's found out.

2nd Stud. All here! Only our poet's away—never having much meant to be present, moonstrike him! The airs of that fellow, that Giovacchino! He was in violent love with himself, and had a fair prospect of thriving in his suit, so unmolested was it,—when suddenly a woman falls in love with him, too; and out of pure jealousy

he takes himself off to Trieste, immortal poem and all: whereto is this prophetic epigraph appended already, as Bluphocks assures me,—‘Here a mammoth-poem lies, Fouled to death by butterflies.’ His own fault, the simpleton! Instead of cramp couplets, each like a knife in your entrails, he should write, says Bluphocks, both classically and intelligibly.—Esculapius, an Epic. Catalogue of the drugs: Hebe’s plaister—One strip Cools your lip. Phæbus’ emulsion—One bottle Clears your throatle. Mercury’s bolus—One box Cures . . .

3rd Stud. Subside, my fine fellow! If the marriage was over by ten o’clock, Jules will certainly be here in a minute with his bride.

2nd Stud. Good!—only, so should the poet’s muse have been universally acceptable, says Bluphocks, et canibus nostris . . . and Delia not better known to our literary dogs than the boy Giovacchino!

1st Stud. To the point, now. Where’s Gottlieb, the new-comer? Oh,—listen, Gottlieb, to what has called down this piece of friendly vengeance on Jules, of which we now assemble to witness the winding-up. We are all agreed, all in a tale, observe, when Jules shall burst out on us in a fury by and by: I am spokesman—the verses that are to undeceive Jules bear my name of Lutwyche—but each professes himself alike insulted by this strutting stone-squarer, who came alone from Paris to Munich, and thence with a crowd of us to Venice and Possagno here, but proceeds in a day or two alone again—oh, alone indubitably!—to Rome and Florence. He, forsooth, take up his portion with these dissolute, brutalized, heartless bunglers!—so he was heard to call us all: now, is Schramm brutalized, I should like to know? Am I heartless?

Gott. Why, somewhat heartless; for, suppose Jules a coxcomb as much as you choose, still, for this mere coxcombry, you will have brushed off—what do folks style it?—the bloom of his life. Is it too late to alter? These love-letters now, you call his—I can’t laugh at them.

4th Stud. Because you never read the sham letters of our inditing which drew forth these.

Gott. His discovery of the truth will be fruitful.

4th Stud. That’s the joke. But you should have joined us at the beginning: there’s no doubt he loves the girl—loves a model he might hire by the hour!

Gott. See here! ‘He has been accused,’ he writes, ‘to have Canova’s women about him, in stone, and the world’s women beside him, in flesh; these being as much below, as those above, his ‘soul’s aspiration: but now he is to have ‘the reality.’ There you laugh again! I say, you wipe off the very dew of his youth.

1st Stud. Schramm! (Take the pipe out of his mouth, somebody!) Will Jules lose the bloom of his youth?

Schramm. Nothing worth keeping is ever lost in this world: look at a blossom—it drops presently, having done its service and lasted its time; but fruits succeed, and where would be the blossom’s place could it continue? As well affirm that your eye is no longer in your body, because its earliest favourite, whatever it may have first loved to look on, is dead and done with—as that any affection is lost to the soul when its first object, whatever happened first to satisfy it, is superseded in due course. Keep but ever looking, whether with the body’s eye or the mind’s, and you will soon find something to look on! Has a man done wondering at women?—there follow men, dead and alive, to wonder at. Has he done wondering at men?—there’s God to wonder at: and the faculty of wonder may be, at the same time, old and tired enough with respect to its first object, and yet young and fresh sufficiently, so far as concerns its novel one. Thus . . .

1st Stud. Put Schramm’s pipe into his mouth again! There, you see! Well, this Jules . . . a wretched fribble—oh, I watched his disportings at Possagno, the other day! Canova’s gallery—you know: there he marches first resolutely past great works by the dozen without vouchsafing an eye: all at once he stops full at the Psiche-fanciulla—cannot pass that old acquaintance without a nod of encouragement—‘In your new place, beauty? Then behave yourself as well here as at Munich—I see you!’ Next he posts himself deliberately before the unfinished Pietà for half an hour without moving, till up he starts of a sudden, and thrusts his very nose into—I say, into—the group; by which gesture you are informed that precisely the sole point he had not fully mastered in Canova’s practice was a certain method of using the drill in the articulation of the knee-joint—and that, likewise, has he mastered at length! Good-bye, therefore, to poor Canova—whose gallery no longer needs detain his successor Jules, the predestinated novel thinker in marble!

5th Stud. Tell him about the women: go on to the women!

1st Stud. Why, on that matter he could never be supercilious enough. How should we be other (he said) than the poor devils you see, with those debasing habits we cherish? He was not to wallow in that mire, at least: he would wait, and love only at the proper time, and meanwhile put up with the Psiche-fanciulla. Now, I happened to hear of a young Greek—real Greek girl at Malantocco; a true Islander, do you see, with Alciphron's 'hair like sea-moss'—Schrämm knows!—white and quiet as an apparition, and fourteen years old at farthest,—a daughter of Natalia, so she swears—that hāg Natalia, who helps us to models at three lire an hour. We selected this girl for the heroine of our jest. So first, Jules received a scented letter—somebody had seen his Tydeus at the Academy, and my picture was nothing to it: a profound Admirer bade him persevere—would make herself known to him ere long. (Paolina, my little friend of the Fenice, transcribes divinely.) And in due time, the mysterious correspondent gave certain hints of her peculiar charms—the pale cheeks, the black hair—whatsoever, in short, had struck us in our Malamocco model: We retained her name, too—Phene, which is, by interpretation, sea-eagle. Now, think of Jules finding himself distinguished from the herd of us by such a creature! In his very first answer he proposed marrying his monitress: and fancy us over these letters, two, three times a day, to receive and despatch! I concocted the main of it: relations were in the way—secrecy must be observed—in fine, would he wed her on trust, and only speak to her when they were indissolubly united? St—st—Here they come!

6th Stud. Both of them! Heaven's love, speak softly, speak within yourselves!

5th Stud. Look at the bridegroom! Half his hair in storm and half in calm,—patted down over the left temple,—like a frothy cup one blows on to cool it: and the same old blouse that he murders the marble in.

2nd Stud. Not a rich vest like yours, Hannibal Scratchy!—rich, that your face may the better set it off.

6th Stud. And the bride! Yes, sure enough, our Phene! Should you have known her in her clothes? How magnificently pale!

Gott. She does not also take it for earnest, I hope?

1st Stud. Oh, Natalia's concern, that is! We settle with Natalia.

6th Stud. She does not speak—has evidently let out no word. The only thing is, will she equally remember the rest of her lesson, and repeat correctly all those verses which are to break the secret to Jules?

Gott. How he gazes on her! Pity—pity!

1st Stud. They go in: now, silence! You three,—not nearer the window, mind, than that pomegranate: just where the little girl, who a few minutes ago passed us singing, is seated!

II.—NOON

SCENE.—Over Orcana. The house of JULES, who crosses its threshold with PHENE: she is silent, on which JULES begins—

Do not die, Phene! I am yours now, you Are mine now; let fate reach me how she likes,

If you'll not die: so, never die! Sit here—My work-room's single seat. I over-lean This length of hair and lustrous front; they turn

Like an entire flower upward: eyes, lips, last Your chin—no, last your throat turns: 'tis their scent

Pulls down my face upon you. Nay, look ever

This one way till I change, grow you—I could Change into you, beloved!

You by me, And I by you; this is your hand in mine, And side by side we sit: all's true. Thank God!

I have spoken: speak you!

O my life to come! My Tydeus must be carved that's there in clay;

Yet how be carved, with you about the room?

Where must I place you? When I think that once

This room-full of rough block-work seemed my heaven

Without you! Shall I ever work again, Get fairly into my old ways again,

Bid each conception stand while, trait by trait,

My hand transfers its lineaments to stone? Will my mere fancies live near you, their truth—

The live truth, passing and repassing me, Sitting beside me?

Now speak!

Only first, See, all your letters! Was't not well contrived?

Their hiding-place is Psyche's robe; she keeps

Your letters next her skin: which drops out foremost?

Ah,—this that swam down like a first moonbeam

Into my world!

Again those eyes complete Their melancholy survey, sweet and slow, Of all my room holds; to return and rest On me, with pity, yet some wonder too:

As if God bade some spirit plague a world, And this were the one moment of surprise

And sorrow while she took her station, pausing

O'er what she sees, finds good, and must destroy!

What gaze you at? Those? Books, I told you of;

Let your first word to me rejoice them, too: This minion, a Coluthus, writ in red Bistre and azure by Bessarion's scribe— Read this line . . . no, shame—Homer's be the Greek

First breathed me from the lips of my Greek girl!

This Odyssey in coarse black vivid type With faded yellow blossoms 'twixt page and page,

To mark great places with due gratitude; 'He said, and on Antinous directed

'A bitter shaft' . . . a flower blots out the rest Again upon your search? My statues, then!—Ah, do not mind that—better that will look

When cast in bronze—an Almain Kaiser, that,

Swart-green and gold, with truncheon based on hip.

This, rather, turn to! What, unrecognized? I thought you would have seen that here you sit

As I imagined you,—Hippolyta, Naked upon her bright Numidian horse. Recall you this then? 'Carve in bold relief'—

So you commanded—'carve, against I come,

'A Greek, in Athens, as our fashion was, 'Feasting, bay-filleted and thunder-free, 'Who rises 'neath the lifted myrtle-branch. "'Praise those who slew Hipparchus!" cry the guests,

"While o'er thy head the singer's myrtle waves

"As erst above our champion: stand up, all!"

See, I have laboured to express your thought.

Quite round, a cluster of mere hands and arms,

(Thrust in all senses, all ways, from all sides,

Only consenting at the branch's end They strain toward) serves for frame to a sole face,

The Praiser's, in the centre: who with eyes Sightless, so bend they back to light inside His brain where visionary forms throng up, Sings, minding not that palpitating arch Of hands and arms, nor the quick drip of wine

From the drenched leaves o'erhead, nor crowns cast off,

Violet and parsley crowns to trample on— Sings, pausing as the patron-ghosts approve,

Devoutly their unconquerable hymn. But you must say a 'well' to that—say 'well!'

Because you gaze—am I fantastic, sweet?

Gaze like my very life's-stuff, marble—marbly

Even to the silence! Why, before I found The real flesh Phene, I inured myself To see, throughout: all nature, varied stuff For better nature's birth by means of art: With me, each substance tended to one form

Of beauty—to the human archetype.

On every side occurred suggestive germs Of that—the tree, the flower—or take the fruit,—

Some rosy shape, continuing the peach, Curved beewise o'er its bough; as rosy limbs,

Depending, nestled in the leaves; and just From a cleft rose-peach the whole Dryad sprang.

But of the stuffs one can be master of, How I divined their capabilities!

From the soft-rinded smoothening facile chalk

That yields your outline to the air's embrace,

Half-softened by a halo's pearly gloom; Down to the crisp imperious steel, so sure To cut its one confided thought clean out Of all the world. But marble!—'neath my tools

More pliable than jelly—as it were Some clear primordial creature dug from depths

In the earth's heart, where itself breeds itself,

And whence all baser substance may be worked;

Refine it off to air, you may,—condense it Down to the diamond;—is not metal there, When o'er the sudden speck my chisel trips?

—Not flesh, as flake off flake I scale, approach,

Lay bare those bluish veins of blood asleep? Lurks flame in no strange windings where, surprised

By the swift implement sent home at once, Flushes and glowings radiate and hover About its track?

Phene? what—why is this?

That whitening cheek, those still dilating eyes!

Ah, you will die—I knew that you would die!

'Phene begins, on his having long remained silent.

Now the end's coming; to be sure, it must Have ended sometime! Tush, why need I speak

Their foolish speech? I cannot bring to mind

One half of it, beside; and do not care For old Natalia now, nor any of them. Oh, you—what are you?—if I do not try To say the words Natalia made me learn,

To please your friends,—it is to keep myself
Where your voice lifted me, by letting that Proceed: but can it? Even you, perhaps,
Cannot take up, now you have once let fall,
The music's life, and me along with that—No, or you would! We'll stay, then, as we are:

Above the world.

You creature with the eyes!
If I could look for ever up to them,
As now you let me,—I believe, all sin,
All memory of wrong done, suffering
borne,

Would drop down, low and lower, to the
earth

Whence all that's low comes, and there touch and stay

—Never to overtake the rest of me,
All that, unspotted, reaches up to you,
Drawn by those eyes! What rises is myself,
Not the shame and suffering; but they
sink,

Are left, I rise above them. Keep me so,
Above the world!

But you sink, for your eyes
Are altering—altered! Stay—'I love you,
love' . . .

I could prevent it if I understood:
More of your words to me: was't in the tone
Or the words, your power?

Or stay—I will repeat Their speech, if that contents you! Only
change

No more, and I shall find it presently
Far back here, in the brain yourself filled up.
Natalia threatened me that harm should follow

Unless I spoke their lesson to the end,
But harm to me, I thought she meant, not
you.

Your friends,—Natalia said they were your friends

And meant you well,—because, I doubted
it,

Observing (what was very strange to see)
On every face, so different in all else,
The same smile girls like me are used to bear,

But never men, men cannot stoop so low;
Yet your friends, speaking of you, used that smile,

That hateful smirk of boundless self-conceit

Which seems to take possession of the
world

And make of God a tame confederate,
Purveyor to their appetites . . . you know!
But still Natalia said they were your friends,
And they assented though they smiled the
more,

And all came round me,—that thin Englishman

*With light lank hair seemed leader of the
rest;

He held a paper—'What we want,' said he,
Ending some explanation to his friends—
'Is something slow, involved and mystical,
'To hold Jules long in doubt, yet take his
taste

'And lure him on until, at innermost
'Where he seeks sweetness' soul, he may find—this!

'—As in the apple's core, the noisome fly:
'For insects on the rind are seen at once,
'And brushed aside as soon, but this is
found

'Only when on the lips or bathing tongue.'
And so he read what I have got by heart:
I'll speak it,—'Do not die, love! I am
yours.'

No—is not that, or like that, part of words Yourself began by speaking? Strange to lose

What cost such pains to learn! Is this more
right?

*I am a painter who cannot paint;
In my life, a devil rather than saint;
In my brain, as poor a creature too:
No end to all I cannot do!*

*Yet do one thing at least I can—
Love a man or hate a man Supremely: thus my lore began.*

*Through the Valley of Love I went,
In the loveliest spot to abide,
And just on the verge where I pitched my
tent,*

*I found Hate dwelling beside.
(Let the Bridegroom ask what the painter
meant,*

*Of his Bride, of the peerless Bride!)
And further, I traversed Hate's grove,
In the hatefullest nook to dwell;
But lo, where I flung myself prone, couch'd Love*

*Where the shadow threefold fell.
(The meaning—those black bride's-eyes
above,*

Not a painter's lip should tell!)
'And here,' said he, 'Jules probably will
ask,

“You have black eyes, Love,—you are,
sure enough,

“My peerless bride,—then do you tell
indeed

“What needs some explanation! What means this?”

—And I am to go on, without a word—
So, I grew wise in Love and Hate,
From simple that I was of late.

*Once, when I loved, I would enlase Breast, eyelids, hands, feet, form and face
Of her I loved, in one embrace—
As if by mere love I could love immensely!*

*Once, when I hated, I would plunge
My sword, and wipe with the first lunge
My foe's whole life out like a sponge—
As if by mere hate I could hate intensely!*

*But now I am wiser, know better the fashion
How passion seeks aid from its opposite passion:*

*And if I see cause to love more, hate more Than ever man loved, ever hated before—
And seek in the Valley of Love,
The nest, or the nook in Hate's Grove,
Where my soul may surely reach
The essence, nought less, of each,
The Hate of all Hates, the Love
Of all Loves, in the Valley or Grove,—
I find them the very warders
Each of the other's borders.*

*When I love most, Love is disguised
In Hate; and when Hate is surprised
In Love, then I hate most: ask How Love smiles through Hate's iron
casque,
Hate grins through Love's rose-braided
mask,—*

*And how, having hated thee,
I sought long and painfully
To reach thy heart, nor prick
The skin but pierce to the quick—Ask this, my Jules, and be answered
straight*

By thy bride—how the painter Lutwyche can hate!

JULES interposes.

Lutwyche! Who else? But all of them, no
doubt,

Hated me: they at Venice—presently
Their turn, however! You I shall not meet:
If I dreamed, saying this would wake me.

Keep

What's here, the gold—we cannot meet
again,

Consider! and the money was but meant
For two years' travel, which is over now,
All chance or hope or care or need of it.
This—and what comes from selling these,
my casts

And books and medals, except . . . let them
go

Together, so the produce keeps you safe
Out of Natalia's clutches! If by chance (For all's chance here) I should survive the gang

At Venice, root out all fifteen of them,
We might meet somewhere, since the world is wide.

[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA,
singing—

Give her but a least excuse to love me!

When—where—

How—can this arm establish her above me,

If fortune fixed her as my lady there,

There already, to eternally reprove me?

('Hist!')—said Kate the Queen;

But 'Oh!'—cried the maiden, binding her tresses,

'Tis only a page that carols unseen,

'Crumbling your hounds their messes!')

Is she wronged?—To the rescue of her honour,

My heart!

Is she poor?—What costs it to be styled a donor?

*Merely an earth to cleave, a sea to part.
But that fortune should have thrust all this upon her!*

*('Nay, list!')—bade Kate the Queen;
And still cried the maiden, binding her tresses,*

'Tis only a page that carols unseen,

'Fitting your hawks their jesses!')

[PIPPA passes.

JULES resumes.

What name was that the little girl sang
forth?

Kate? The Cornaro, doubtless, who renounced

The crown of Cyprus to be lady here
At Asolo, where still her memory stays,
And peasants sing how once a certain page
Pined for the grace of her so far above
His power of doing good to, 'Kate the Queen—

'She never could be wronged, be poor,' he sighed,

'Need him to help her!'

Yes, a bitter thing

To see our lady above all need of us;
Yet so we look ere we will love; not I,
But the world looks so. If whoever loves Must be, in some sort, god or worshipper,
The blessing or the blest one, queen or page,
Why should we always choose the page's
part?

Here is a woman with utter need of me,—
I find myself queen here, it seems!

How strange!

Look at the woman here with the new soul,
Like my own Psyche,—fresh upon her lips
Alit, the visionary butterfly,
Waiting my word to enter and make bright,
Or flutter off and leave all blank as first.
This body had no soul before, but slept
Or stirred, was beauteous or ungainly, free
From taint or foul with stain, as outward
things

Fastened their image on its passiveness:
Now, it will wake, feel, live—or die again!
Shall to produce form out of unshaped stuff
Be Art—and further, to evoke a soul From form be nothing? This new soul is
mine!

Now, to kill Lutwyche, what would that do?—save

A wretched dauber, men will hoot to death Without me, from their hooting. Oh, to hear

God's voice plain as I heard it first, before They broke in with their laughter! I heard,
them

Henceforth, not God.

To Ancona—Greece—some isle!
I wanted silence only; there is clay Everywhere. One may do whate'er one likes

In Art: the only thing is, to make sure That one does like it—which takes pains to know.

Scatter all this, 'my Phene—this mad
dream!

Who, what is Lutwyche, what Natalia's
friends,

What the whole world except our love—
my own,

Own Phene? But I told you, did I not, Ere night we travel for your land—some isle

With the sea's silence on it? Stand aside—
I do but break these paltry models up

To begin Art afresh. Meet Lutwyche, I—
And save him from my statue meeting him?

Some unsuspected isle in the far seas!
Like a god going through his world, there
stands

One mountain for a moment in the dusk,
Whole brotherhoods of cedars on its brow:

And you are ever by me while I gaze
—Are in my arms as now—as now—as now!

Some unsuspected isle in the far seas!
Some unsuspected isle in far-off seas!

Talk by the way, while PIPPA is passing from Orcana to the Turret. Two or three of the Austrian Police loitering with BLU-PHOCKS, an English vagabond, just in view of the Turret.

*Bluph.*¹ So, that is your Pippa, the little girl who passed us singing? Well, your Bishop's Intendant's money shall be honestly earned:—now, don't make me that sour face because I bring the Bishop's name into the business; we know he can have nothing to do with such horrors: we know that he is a saint and all that a bishop should be, who is a great man beside. Oh were but every worm a maggot, Every fly a grig, Every bough a Christmas faggot, Every tune a jig! In fact, I have abjured all religions; but the last I inclined to, was the Armenian: for I have travelled, do you see, and at Koenigsberg, Prussia Improper (so styled because there's a sort of bleak hungry sun there), you might remark over a venerable house-porch, a certain Chaldee inscription; and brief as it is, a mere glance at it used absolutely to change the mood of every bearded passenger. In they turned, one and all; the young and lightsome, with no irreverent pause, the aged and decrepit, with a sensible alacrity: 'twas the Grand Rabbi's abode, in short. Struck with curiosity, I lost no time in learning Syriac —(these are vowels, you dogs,—follow my

¹ 'He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.'

stick's end in the mud—Celarent, Darii, Ferio!) and one morning presented myself, spelling-book in hand, a, b, c,—I picked it out letter by letter, and what was the purport of this miraculous posy? Some cherished legend of the past, you'll say—
'How Moses hocus-pocussed Egypt's land with fly and locust,'—or, 'How to Jonah sounded harshish, Get thee up and go to Tarshish,'—or, '*How the angel meeting
Balaam, Straight his ass returned a salaam.*' In no wise! 'Shackabrack—Boach—somebody or other—Isaach, Re-cei-ver, Purchaser and Ex-chan-ger of—Stolen Goods!'
So, talk to me of the religion of a bishop!
I have renounced all bishops save Bishop Beveridge—mean to live so—and die—As some Greek dog-sage, dead and merry, Hellward bound in Charon's wherry, With food for both worlds, under and upper, Lupine-seed and Hecate's supper, And never an obolus . . . (Though thanks to you, or this Intendant through you, or this Bishop through his Intendant—I possess a burning pocketful of zwanzigers) . . . To pay the Stygian Ferry!

1st Pol. There is the girl, then; go and deserve them the moment you have pointed out to us Signor Luigi and his mother.
[To the rest.] I have been noticing a house yonder, this long while: not a shutter unclosed since morning!

2nd Pol. Old Luca Gaddi's, that owns the silk-mills here: he dozes by the hour, wakes up, sighs deeply, says he should like to be Prince Metternich, and then dozes again, after having bidden young Sebald, the foreigner, set his wife to playing draughts. Never molest such a household, they mean well.

Bluph. Only, cannot you tell me something of this little Pippa, I must have to do with? One could make something of that name. Pippa—that is, short for Fe-lipa—rhyming to Panurge consults Her-trippa—Believest thou, King Agrippa?
Something might be done with that name.

2nd Pol. Put into rhyme that your head and a ripe musk-melon would not be dear at half a zwanziger! Leave this fooling, and look out; the afternoon's over or nearly so.

3rd Pol. Where in this passport of Signor Luigi does our Principal instruct you to watch him so narrowly? There? What's there beside a simple signature? (That English fool's busy watching.)

2nd Pol. Flourish all round—'Put all possible obstacles in his way;' oblong dot at the end—'Detain him till further advices reach you;' scratch at bottom—
'Send him back on pretence of some informality in the above;' ink-spirit on right-hand side (which is the case here)—'Arrest him at once.' Why and wherefore, I don't concern myself, but my instructions amount to this: if Signor Luigi leaves home to-night for Vienna—well and good, the passport deposed with us for our visa is really for his own use, they have misinformed the Office, and he means well; but let him stay over to-night—there has been the pretence we suspect, the accounts of his corresponding and holding intelligence with the Carbonari are correct, we arrest him at once, to-morrow comes Venice, and presently Spielberg. Bluphocks makes the signal, sure enough! That is he, entering the turret with his mother, no doubt.

III.—EVENING

SCENE.—Inside the Turret on the Hill above Asolo. LUIGI and his Mother entering.

Mother. If there blew wind, you'd hear a long sigh, easing

The utmost heaviness of music's heart.

Luigi. Here in the archway?

Mother. Oh no, no—in farther, Where the echo is made, on the ridge.

Luigi. Here surely, then. How plain the tap of my heel as I leaped up! Hark—'Lucius Junius!' The very ghost of a voice

Whose body is caught and kept by... what are those?

Mere withered wallflowers, waving overhead?

They seem an elvish group with thin bleached hair

That lean out of their topmost fortress—look

And listen, mountain men, to what we say, Hand under chin of each grave earthy face. Up and show faces all of you!—'All of you!'

That's the king dwarf with the scarlet comb; old Franz,

Come down and meet your fate? Hark—'Meet your fate!'

Mother. Let him not meet it, my Luigi—do not Go to his City! Putting crime aside, Half of these ills of Italy are feigned: Your Pellicos and writers for effect, Write for effect.

Luigi. Hush! Say A. writes, and B.

Mother. These A.s and B.s write for effect, I say.

Then, evil is in its nature loud, while good Is silent; you hear each petty injury, None of his virtues; he is old beside, Quiet and kind, and densely stupid. Why Do A. and B. not kill him themselves?

Luigi. They teach

Others to kill him—me—and, if I fail, Others to succeed; now, if A. tried and failed,

I could not teach that; mine's the lesser task.

Mother. They visit night by night...

Mother. —You, Luigi?

Ah, will you let me tell you what you are?

Luigi. Why not? Oh, the one thing you fear to hint,

You may assure yourself I say and say Ever to myself! At times—nay, even as now We sit—I think my mind is touched, suspect All is not sound: but is not knowing that, What constitutes one sane or otherwise? I know I am thus—so, all is right again.

I laugh at myself as through the town I walk,

And see men merry as if no Italy Were suffering; then I ponder—'I am rich,

'Young, healthy; why should this fact trouble me,

'More than it troubles these?' But it does trouble.

No, trouble's a bad word: for as I walk There's springing and melody and giddiness,

And old quaint turns and passages of my youth,

Dreams long forgotten, little in themselves, Return to me—whatever may amuse me,

And earth seems in a truce with me, and heaven

Accords with me, all things suspend their strife,

The very cicala laughs 'There goes he, and there!

'Feast him, the time is short; he is on his way

'For the world's sake: feast him this once, our friend!'

And in return for all this, I can trip Cheerfully up the scaffold-steps. I go

This evening, mother!

Mother. But mistrust yourself—

Mistrust the judgment you pronounce on him!

Luigi. Oh, there I feel—am sure that I am right!

Mother. Mistrust your judgment then, of the mere means

To this wild enterprise. Say, you are right,—

How should one in your state e'er bring to pass

What would require a cool head, a cold heart,

And a calm hand? You never will escape.

Luigi. Escape? To even wish that, would spoil all.

The dying is best part of it. Too much Have I enjoyed these fifteen years of mine,

To leave myself excuse for longer life: Was not life pressed down, running o'er with joy,

That I might finish with it ere my fellows Who, sparerlier feasted, make a longer stay?

I was put at the board-head, helped to all
At first; I rise up happy and content.
God must be glad one loves his world so
much.

I can give news of earth to all the dead
Who ask me:—last year's sunsets, and great stars

Which had a right to come first and see ebb

The crimson wave that drifts the sun
away—

Those crescent moons with notched and burning rims

That strengthened into sharp fire, and there stood,

Impatient of the azure—and that day In March, a double rainbow stopped the storm—

May's warm slow yellow moonlit summer
nights—

Gone are they, but I have them in my soul!
Mother. (He will not go!)

Luigi. You smile at me?

'Tis true,—

Voluptuousness, grotesqueness, ghastli-
ness,

Environ my devotedness as quaintly
As round about some antique altar wreath

The rose festoons, goats' horns, and oxen's skulls.

Mother. See now: you reach the city, you must cross

His threshold—how?

Luigi. Oh, that's if we conspired!
Then would come pains in plenty, as you
guess—

But guess not how the qualities most fit
For such an office, qualities I have,

Would little stead me, otherwise employed,
Yet prove of rarest merit only here.

Every one knows for what his excellence
Will serve, but no one ever will consider

For what his worst defect might serve: and
yet

Have you not seen me range our coppice yonder

In search of a distorted ash?—I find The wry spoilt branch a natural perfect bow.

Fancy the thrice-sage, thrice-precautioned
man

Arriving at the palace on my errand!
No, no! I have a handsome dress packed
up—

White satin here, to set off my black hair;
In I shall march—for you may watch your life out

Behind thick walls, make friends there to betray you;

More than one man spoils everything.
March straight—

Only, no clumsy knife to fumble for.
Take the great gate and walk (not saunter)

on

Thro' guards and guards—I have rehearsed it all

Inside the turret here a hundred times.
Don't ask the way of whom you meet,
observe!

But where they cluster thickest is the door
Of doors; they'll let you pass—they'll never blab

Each to the other, he knows not the favourite,

Whence he is bound and what's his business now.

Walk in—straight up to him; you have no
knife:

Be prompt, how should he scream? Then,
out with you!

Italy, Italy, my Italy!

You're free, you're free! Oh mother, I could dream

They got about me—Andrea from his exile, Pier from his dungeon, Gualtier from his grave!

Mother. Well, you shall go. Yet seems this patriotism

The easiest virtue for a selfish man
To acquire: he loves himself—and next,
the world—

If he must love beyond,—but nought
between:

As a short-sighted man sees nought mid-
way

His body and the sun above. But you Are my adored Luigi, ever obedient

To my least wish, and running o'er with
love:

I could not call you cruel or unkind.
Once more, your ground for killing him!

—then go!

Luigi. Now do you try me, or make sport of me?

How first the Austrians got these provinces . . .

(If that is all, I'll satisfy you soon)

—Never by conquest but by cunning, for That treaty whereby . . .

Mother. Well?

Luigi. (Sure, he's arrived,

The tell-tale cuckoo: spring's his confidant,

And he lets out her April purposes!)

Or . . . better go at once to modern time,
He has . . . they have . . . in fact, I understand

But can't restate the matter; that's my boast:

Others could reason it out to you, and prove

Things they have made me feel.

Mother. Why go to-night?
Morn's for adventure. Jupiter is now

A morning-star. I cannot hear you, Luigi!

Luigi. I am the bright and morningstar,' saith God—

And, 'to such an one I give the morning-star.'

The gift of the morning-star! Have I God's gift

Of the morning-star?

Mother. Chiara will love to see That Jupiter an evening-star next June.

Luigi. True, mother. Well for those who live through June!

Great noontides, thunder-storms, all glaring pomps

That triumph at the heels of June the god Leading his revel through our leafy world. Yes, Chiara will be here.

Mother. In June: remember, Yourself appointed that month for her coming.

Luigi. Was that low noise the echo?

Mother. The night-wind. She must be grown—with her blue eyes upturned

As if life were one long and sweet surprise: In June she comes.

Luigi. We were to see together The Titian at Treviso. There, again!

[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA, singing—

*A king lived long ago,
In the morning of the world,
When earth was nigher heaven than now:
And the king's locks curled,
Disparting o'er a forehead full
As the milk-white space 'twixt horn and horn*

*Of some sacrificial bull—
Only calm as a babe new-born:
For he was got to a sleepy mood,
So safe from all decrepitude,
Age with its bane, so sure gone by,
(The gods so loved him while he dreamed)
That, having lived thus long, there seemed
No need the king should ever die.*

Luigi. No need that sort of king should ever die!

*Among the rocks his city was:
Before his palace, in the sun,
He sat to see his people pass,
And judge them every one
From its threshold of smooth stone.
They haled him many a valley-thief
Caught in the sheep-pens, robber-chief Swarthy and shameless, beggar-cheat,
Spy-prowler, or rough pirate found
On the sea-sand left aground;
And sometimes clung about his feet,
With bleeding lip and burning cheek,
A woman, bitterest wrong to speak
Of one with sullen thickset brows:
And sometimes from the prison-house
The angry priests a pale wretch brought,
Who through some chink had pushed and
pressed*

*On knees and elbows, belly and breast, Worm-like into the temple,—caught
He was by the very god,
Who ever in the dark-ness strode
Backward and forward, keeping watch
O'er his brazen bowls, such rogues to catch!
These, all and every one,
The king judged, sitting in the sun.*

Luigi. That king should still judge sitting in the sun!

*His councillors, on left and right,
Looked anxious up,—but no surprise
Disturbed the king's old smiling eyes
Where the very blue had turned to white.
'Tis said, a Python scared one day
The breathless city, till he came,
With forked tongue and eyes on flame,
Where the old king sat to judge away;
But when he saw the sweepy hair
Girt with a crown of berries rare
Which the god will hardly give to wear
To the maiden who singeth, dancing bare
In the altar-smoke by the pine-torch lights,
At his wondrous forest rites,— Seeing this, he did not dare
Approach that threshold in the sun,
Assault the old king smiling there.
Such grace had kings when the world began!* [PIPPA passes.

Luigi. And such grace have they, now that the world ends!

The Python at the city, on the throne, And brave men, God would crown for slaying him, Lurk in bye-corners lest they fall his prey. Are crowns yet to be won in this late time, Which weakness makes me hesitate to reach?

'Tis God's voice calls: how could I stay? Farewell!

Talk by the way, while PIPPA is passing from the Turret to the Bishop's Brother's House, close to the Duomo S. Maria. Poor Girls sitting on the steps.

1st Girl. There goes a swallow to Venice —the stout seafarer!
Seeing those birds fly, makes one wish for wings.

Let us all wish; you wish first!

2nd Girl. I? This sunset To finish.

3rd Girl. That old—somebody I know, Greyer and older than my grandfather, To give me the same treat he gave last week—

Feeding me on his knee with fig-peckers, Lampreys and red Breganze-wine, and mumbling

The while some folly about how well I fare, Let sit and eat my supper quietly: Since had he not himself been late this morning

Detained at—never mind where,—had he not . . .

'Eh, baggage, had I not!'

2nd Girl. How she can lie!

3rd Girl. Look there!—by the nails!

2nd Girl. What makes your fingers red!

3rd Girl. Dipping them into wine to write bad words with

On the bright table: how he laughed!

1st Girl. My turn.

Spring's come and summer's coming. I would wear

A long loose gown, down to the feet and hands,

With plaits here, close about the throat, all day;

And all night lie, the cool long nights, in bed;

And have new milk to drink, apples to eat, Deuzans and junetings, leather-coats . . .

ah, I should say,

This is away in the fields—miles!

3rd Girl. Say at once!

You'd be at home: she'd always be at home!

Now comes the story of the farm among

The cherry orchards, and how April snowed

White blossoms on her as she ran. Why,

fool,

They've rubbed the chalk-mark out, how tall you were,

Twisted your starling's neck, broken his cage,

Made a dung-hill of your garden!

1st Girl. They, destroy

My garden since I left them well?—perhaps!

I would have done so: so I hope they have!

A fig-tree curled out of our cottage wall;

They called it mine, I have forgotten why,

It must have been there long ere I was born:

Cric—cric—I think I hear the wasps o'er-

head

Pricking the papers strung to flutter there

And keep off birds in fruit-time—coarse long papers,

And the wasps eat them, prick them through and through.

3rd Girl. How her mouth twitches!

Where was I?—before

She broke in with her wishes and long gowns

And wasps—would I be such a fool!—Oh,

here!

This is my way: I answer every one

Who asks me why I make so much of him—

(If you say, 'you love him'—straight 'he'll not be gulled!')

'He that seduced me when I was a girl

'Thus high—had eyes like yours, or hair like yours,

'Brown, red, white,'—as the case may be:

that pleases!

See how that beetle burnishes in the path!

There sparkles he along the dust: and, there—

Your journey to that maize-tuft spoiled at least!

1st Girl. When I was young, they said if you killed one

Of those sunshiny beetles, that his friend

Up there, would shine no more that day nor next.

2nd Girl. When you were young? Nor are you young, that's true.

How your plump arms, that were, have dropped away!

Why, I can span them. Cecco beats you still?

No matter, so you keep your curious hair.

I wish they'd find a way to dye our hair

Your colour—any lighter tint, indeed,

Than black: the men say they are sick of black,

Black eyes, black hair!

4th Girl. Sick of yours, like enough.

Do you pretend you ever tasted lampreys

And ortolans? Giovita, of the palace,

Engaged (but there's no trusting him) to slice me

Polenta with a knife that had cut up An ortolan.

2nd Girl. Why, there! Is not that Pippa

We are to talk to, under the window,—quick,—

Where the lights are?

1st Girl. That she? No, or she would sing,

For the Intendant said . . .

3rd Girl. Oh, you sing first!

Then, if she listens and comes close . . .

I'll tell you,—

Sing that song the young English noble

made,

Who took you for the purest of the pure,

And meant to leave the world for you—what fun!

2nd Girl [sings].

You'll love me yet!—and I can tarry

Your love's protracted growing:

June reared that bunch of flowers you carry,

From seeds of April's sowing.

I plant a heartfelt now: some seed

At least is sure to strike,

And yield—what you'll not pluck indeed,

Not love, but, may be, like.

You'll look at least on love's remains,

A grave's one violet:

Your look?—that pays a thousand pains.

What's death? You'll love me yet!

3rd Girl [to PIPPA who approaches]. Oh, you may come closer—we shall not eat you! Why, you seem the very person that the great rich handsome Englishman has fallen so violently in love with. I'll tell you all about it.

IV.—NIGHT

SCENE.—Inside the Palace by the Duomo.
MONSIGNOR, dismissing his Attendants.

Mon. Thanks, friends, many thanks! I chiefly desire life now, that I may recompense every one of you. Most I know something of already. What, a repast prepared? Benedicto benedicatur. . . ugh, ugh! Wherewas I? Oh, as you were remarking, Ugo, the weather is mild, very unlike winter-weather: but I am a Sicilian, you know, and shiver in your Julys here. To be sure, when 'twas full summer at Messina, as we priests used to cross in procession the great square on Assumption Day, you might see our thickest yellow tapers twist suddenly in two, each like a falling star, or sink down on themselves in a gore of wax. But go, my friends, but go! [To the Intendant.] Not you, Ugo! [The others leave the apartment.] I have long wanted to converse with you, Ugo.

Inten. Uguccio—

Mon. . . . guccio Stefani, man! of Ascoli, Fermo and Fossombruno;—what I do need instructing about, are these accounts of your administration of my poor brother's affairs. Ugh! I shall never get through a third part of your accounts: take some of these dainties before we attempt it, however. Are you bashful to that degree? For me, a crust and water suffice.

Inten. Do you choose this especial night to question me?

Mon. This night, Ugo. You have managed my late brother's affairs since the death of our elder brother: fourteen years and a month, all but three days. On the Third of December, I find him . . .

Inten. If you have so intimate an acquaintance with your brother's affairs, you will be tender of turning so far back: they will hardly bear looking into, so far back.

Mon. Ay, ay, ugh, ugh,—nothing but disappointments here below! I remark a considerable payment made to yourself on this Third of December. Talk of disappointments! There was a young fellow here, Jules, a foreign sculptor I did my utmost to advance, that the Church might be a gainer by us both: he was going on hopefully enough, and of a sudden he notifies to me some marvellous change that has happened in his notions of Art. Here's his letter,—'He never had a clearly conceived Ideal within his brain till to-day. Yet since his hand could manage a chisel, he has practised expressing other men's Ideals; and, in the very perfection he has attained to, he foresees an ultimate failure: his unconscious hand will pursue its prescribed course of old years, and will reproduce with a fatal expertness the ancient types, let the novel one appear never so palpably to his spirit. There is but one method of escape: confiding the Virgin type to as chaste a hand, he will turn painter instead of sculptor, and paint, not carve, its characteristics,'—strike out, I dare say, a school like Correggio: how think you, Ugo?

Inten. Is Correggio a painter?

Mon. Foolish Jules! and yet, after all, why foolish? He may—probably will—fail egregiously; but if there should arise a new painter, will it not be in some such way, by a poet now, or a musician (spirits who have conceived and perfected an Ideal through some other channel), transferring it to this, and escaping our conventional roads by pure ignorance of them; eh, Ugo? If you have no appetite, talk at least, Ugo!

Inten. Sir, I can submit no longer to this course of yours. First, you select the group of which I formed one,—next you thin it gradually,—always retaining me with your smile,—and so do you proceed till you have fairly got me alone with you between four stone walls. And now then? Let this farce, this chatter end now: what is it you want with me?

Mon. Ugo!

Inten. From the instant you arrived, I felt your smile on me as you questioned me about this and the other article in those papers—why your brother should have given me this villa, that podere,—and your nod at the end meant,—what?

Mon. Possibly that I wished for no loud talk here. If once you set me coughing, Ugo!—

Inten. I have your brother's hand and seal to all I possess: now ask me what for! what service I did him—ask me!

Mon. I would better not: I should rip up old disgraces, let out my poor brother's weaknesses. By the way, Maffeo of Forlì (which, I forgot to observe, is your true name), was the interdict ever taken off you, for robbing that church at Cesena?

Inten. No, nor needs be: for when I murdered your brother's friend, Pasquale, for him . . .

Mon. Ah, he employed you in that business, did he? Well, I must let you keep, as you say, this villa and that podere, for fear the world should find out my relations were of so indifferent a stamp? Maffeo, my family is the oldest in Messina; and century after century have my progenitors gone on polluting themselves with every wickedness under heaven: my own father . . . rest his soul!—I have, I know, a chapel to support that it may rest: my dear two dead brothers were,—what you know tolerably well; I, the youngest, might have rivalled them in vice, if not in wealth: but from my boyhood I came out from among them, and so am not partaker of their plagues. My glory springs from another source; or if from this, by contrast only,—for I, the bishop, am the brother of your employers, Ugo. I hope to repair some of their wrong, however; so far as my brother's ill-gotten treasure reverts to me, I can stop the consequences of his crime: and not one soldo shall escape me. Maffeo, the sword we quiet men spurn away, you shrewd knaves pick up and commit murders with; what opportunities the virtuous forego, the villainous seize. Because, to pleasure myself apart from other considerations, my food would be millet-cake, my dress sackcloth, and my couch straw,—am I therefore to let you, the offscouring of the earth, seduce the poor and ignorant by appropriating a pomp these will be sure to think lessens the abominations so unaccountably and exclusively associated with it? Must, I let villas and poderi go to you, a murderer and thief, that you may beget by means of them other murderers and thieves? No—if my cough would but allow me to speak!

Inten. What am I to expect? You are going to punish me?

Mon. —Must punish you, Maffeo. I cannot afford to cast away a chance. I have whole centuries of sin to redeem, and only a month or two of life to do it in. How should I dare to say . . .

Inten. 'Forgive us our trespasses'?

Mon. My friend, it is because I avow myself a very worm, sinful beyond measure, that I reject a line of conduct you would applaud perhaps. Shall I proceed, as it were, a-pardoning?—I?—who have no symptom of reason to assume that aught less than my strenuous efforts will keep myself out of mortal sin, much less keep others out. No: I do trespass, but will not double that by allowing you to trespass.

Inten. And suppose the villas are not your brother's to give, nor yours to take? Oh, you are hasty enough just now!

Mon. 1, 2—No 3!—ay, can you read the substance of a letter, N° 3, I have received from Rome? It is precisely on the ground there mentioned, of the suspicion I have that a certain child of my late elder brother, who would have succeeded to his estates, was murdered in infancy by you, Maffeo, at the instigation of my late younger brother—that the Pontiff enjoins on me not merely the bringing that Maffeo to condign punishment, but the taking all pains, as guardian of the infant's heritage for the Church, to recover its parcel by parcel, howsoever, whensoever, and wheresoever. While you are now gnawing those fingers, the police are engaged in sealing up your papers, Maffeo, and the mere raising my voice brings my people from the next room to dispose of yourself. But I want you to confess quietly, and save me raising my voice. Why, man, do I not know the old story? The heir between the succeeding heir, and this heir's ruffianly instrument, and their complot's effect, and the life of fear and bribes and ominous smiling silence? Did you throttle or stab my brother's infant? Come now!

Inten. So old a story, and tell it no better? When did such an instrument ever produce such an effect? Either the child smiles in his face; or, most likely, he is not fool enough to put himself in the employer's power so thoroughly: the child is always ready to produce—as you say—howsoever, wheresoever, and whensoever.

Mon. Liar!

Inten. Strike me? Ah, so might a father chastise! I shall sleep soundly to-night at least, though the gallows await me tomorrow; for what a life did I lead! Carlo of Cesena reminds me of his connivance, every time I pay his annuity; which happens commonly thrice a year. If I remonstrate, he will confess all to the good bishop—you!

Mon. I see through the trick, caitiff! I would you spoke truth for once. All shall be sifted, however—seven times sifted.

Inten. And how my absurd riches encumbered me! I dared not lay claim to above half my possessions. Let me but once unbosom myself, glorify Heaven, and die!

Sir, you are no brutal dastardly idiot like your brother I frightened to death: let us understand one another. Sir, I will make away with her for you—the girl—here close at hand; not the stupid obvious kind of killing; do not speak—know nothing of her nor of me! I see her every day—saw her this morning: of course there is to be no killing; but at Rome the courtesans perish off every three years, and I can entice her thither—have indeed begun operations already. There's a certain lusty blue-eyed florid-complexioned English knave, I and the Police employ occasionally. You assent, I perceive—no, that's not it—assent I do not say—but you will let me convert my present havings and holdings into cash, and give me time to cross the Alps? 'Tis but a little black-eyed pretty singing Felippa, gay silk-winding girl. I have kept her out of harm's way up to this present; for I always intended to make your life a plague to you with her. 'Tis as well settled once and for ever. Some women I have procured will pass Bluphocks, my handsome scoundrel, off

[iv

for somebody; and once Pippa¹ entangled!
—you conceive? Through her singing?
Is it a bargain?

[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA, singing—

*Overhead the tree-tops meet,
Flowers and grass spring 'neath one's feet;
There was nought above me, nought below,
My childhood had not learned to know:
For, what are the voices of birds
—Ay, and of beasts,—but words, our
words,*

*Only so much more sweet?
The knowledge of that with my life begun.
But I had so near made out the sun,
And counted your stars, the seven and one,
Like the fingers of my hand:
Nay, I could all but understand Wherefore through heaven the white moon ranges;
And just when out of her soft fifty changes
No unfamiliar face might overlook me—
Suddenly God took me.*

[PIPPA passes.

Mon. [springing up]. My people—one and all—all—within there! Gag this villain —tie him hand and foot! He dares . . . I know not half he dares—but remove him —quick! Miserere mei, Domine! Quick,
I say!

SCENE.—PIPPA'S chamber again. She enters it.

The bee with his comb,
The mouse at her dray,
The grub in his tomb,
Wile winter away;
But the fire-fly and hedge-shrew and lob-worm, I pray,

How fare they?
Ha, ha, thanks for your counsel, my Zanze!

'Feast upon lampreys, quaff Breganze'—
The summer of life so easy to spend,
And care for to-morrow so soon put
away!

But winter hastens at summer's end,
And fire-fly, hedge-shrew, lob-worm, pray,
How fare they?

No bidding me then to . . . what did Zanze
say?

'Pare your nails pearlwise, get your small feet shoes

'More like' . . . (what said she?)—'and less like canoes!'

How pert that girl was!—would I be those pert

Impudent staring women! It had done me,
However, surely no such mighty hurt
To learn his name who passed that jest
upon me:

No foreigner, that I can recollect,
Came, as she says, a month since, to inspect

Our silk-mills—none with blue eyes and thick rings

Of raw-silk-coloured hair, at all events.
Well, if old Luca keep his good intents,
We shall do better, see! what next year
brings.

I may buy shoes, my Zanze, not appear
More destitute than you perhaps next year!
Bluph . . . something! I had caught the uncouth name

But for Monsignor's people's sudden clatter

Above us—bound to spoil such idle chatter
As ours: it were indeed a serious matter
If silly talk like ours should put to shame
The pious man, the man devoid of blame,
The . . . ah but—ah but, all the same,
No mere mortal has a right

To carry that exalted air;
Best people are not angels quite:

While—not the worst of people's doings scare

The devil; so there's that proud look to
'spare!

Which is mere counsel to myself, mind!
for

I have just been the holy Monsignor:
And I was you too, Luigi's gentle mother,
And you too, Luigi!—how that Luigi started

Out of the turret—doubtlessly departed
On some good errand or another,
For he passed just now in a traveller's trim,
And the sullen company that prowled
About his path, I noticed, scowled
As if they had lost a prey in him.

And I was Jules the sculptor's bride,
And I was Ottima beside,

And now what am I?—tired of fooling.
Day for folly, night for schooling!

New Year's day is over and spent,
Ill or well, I must be content.

Even my lily's asleep, I vow:
Wake up—here's a friend I've plucked
you:

Call this flower a heart's-ease now!
Something rare, let me instruct you,

Is this, with petals triply swollen,
Three times spotted, thrice the pollen;

While the leaves and parts that witness
Old proportions and their fitness,

Here remain unchanged, unmoved now;
Call this pampered thing improved now!

Suppose there's a king of the flowers
And a girl-show held in his bowers—

'Look ye, buds, this growth of ours,' Says he, 'Zanze from the Breuta,

'I have made her gorge polenta
'Till both cheeks are near as bouncing

'As her . . . name there's no pronouncing!
'See this heightened colour too,

'For she swilled Breganze wine
'Till her nose turned deep carmine;

'Twas but white when wild she grew.

'And only by this Zanze's eyes
'Of which we could not change the size,
'The magnitude of all achieved
'Otherwise, may be perceived.'

Oh what a drear dark close to my poor day!
How could that red sun drop in that black cloud?

Ah Pippa, morning's rule is moved away,
Dispensed with, never more to be allowed!
Day's turn is over, now arrives the night's.

Oh lark, be day's apostle
To mavis, merle and throistle,
Bid them their betters jostle
From day and its delights!

But at night, brother howlet, over the woods,

Toll the world to thy chantry;
Sing to the bats' sleek sisterhoods
Full complines with gallantry:

Then, owls and bats,
Cows and twas,
Monks and nuns, in a cloister's moods,
Adjourn to the oak-stump pantry!

[After she has begun to undress herself.

Now, one thing I should like to really know:
How near I ever might approach all these I only fancied being, this long day:

—Approach, I mean, so as to touch them,
^{so}

As to . . . in some way . . . move them—
if you please,

Do good or evil to them some slight way.

For instance, if I wind

Silk to-morrow, my silk may bind

And border Ottima's cloak's hem. [Sitting on the bedside.

Ah me, and my important part with them,

This morning's hymn half promised when

I rose!

True in some sense or other, I suppose.

[As she lies down.

God bless me! I can pray no more to-night.

No doubt, some way or other, hymns say

right.

All service ranks the same with God—

With God, whose puppets, best and worst,

Are we: there is no last nor first.

[She sleeps.

KING VICTOR AND KING CHARLES

A TRAGEDY

1842

NOTE

So far as I know, this Tragedy is the first artistic consequence of what Voltaire termed 'a terrible event without consequences;' and although it professes to be historical, I have taken more pains to arrive at the history than most readers would thank me for particularizing: since acquainted, as I will hope them to be, with the chief circumstances of Victor's remarkable European career—not quite ignorant of the sad and surprising facts I am about to reproduce (a tolerable account of which is to be found, for instance, in Abbé Roman's Récit, or even the fifth of Lord Orrery's Letters from Italy)—I cannot expect them to be versed, nor desirous of becoming so, in all the detail of the memoirs, correspondence, and relations of the time. From these only may be obtained a knowledge of the fiery and audacious temper, unscrupulous selfishness, profound dissimulation, and singular fertility in resources, of Victor—the extreme and painful sensibility, prolonged immaturity of powers, earnest good purpose and vacillating will of Charles—the noble and right woman's manliness of his wife—and the ill-considered rascality and subsequent better-advised rectitude of D'Ormea. When I say, therefore, that I cannot but believe my statement (combining as it does what appears correct in Voltaire and plausible in Condorcet) more true to person and thing than any it has hitherto been my fortune to meet with, no doubt my word will be taken, and my evidence spared as readily.

R. B.

LONDON: 1842.

PERSONS

VICTOR AMADEUS, first King of Sardinia.

CHARLES EMMANUEL, his son, Prince of Piedmont.

POLYXENA, wife of Charles.

D'ORMEA, minister.

SCENE.—The Council Chambers of Rivoli Palace, near Turin, communicating with a Hall at the back, an Apartment to the left, and another to the right of the stage.

TIME, 1730–1731.

FIRST YEAR, 1730.—KING VICTOR

CHARLES, POLYXENA.

Cha. You think so? Well, I do not.

Pol. My beloved,

All must clear up; we shall be happy yet:

This cannot last for ever—oh, may change
To-day or any day!

Cha. —May change? Ah yes—

May change!

Pol. Endure it, then.

Cha. No doubt, a life

Like this drags on, now better and now
worse.

My father may . . . may take to loving me;
And he may take D'Ormea closer yet
To counsel him;—may even cast off her —That bad Sebastian; but he also may . . . Or no, Polyxena, my only friend,
He may not force you from me?

Pol. Now, force me
From you!—me, close by you as if there gloomed

No Sebastians, no D'Ormeas on our path—

At Rivoli or Turin, still at hand, Arch-counsellor, prime confidant . . . force
me!

Cha. Because I felt as sure, as I feel sure
We clasp hands now, of being happy once.
Young was I, quite neglected, nor concerned

By the world's business that engrossed so
much

My father and my brother: if I peered
From out my privacy,—amid the crash And blaze of nations, domineered those
two.

'Twas war, peace—France our foe, now—
England, friend—

In love with Spain—at feud with Austria!
Well—

I wondered, laughed a moment's laugh for
pride

In the chivalrous couple, then let drop
My curtain—'I am out of it,' I said—

When . . .
Pol. You have told me, Charles.

Cha. Polyxena—
When suddenly,—a warm March day, just
that!

Just so much sunshine as the cottage child
Basks in delighted, while the cottager
Takes off his bonnet, as he ceases work,
To catch the more of it—and it must fall Heavily on my brother! Had you seen Philip—the lion-featured! not like me!

Pol. I know—
Cha. And Philip's mouth yet fast to mine,

His dead cheek on my cheek, his arm still
round

My neck,—they bade me rise, 'for I was heir
'To the Duke,' they said, 'the right hand of the Duke.'

Till then he was my father, not the Duke.
So . . . let me finish . . . the whole intricate World's-business their dead boy was born to, I

Must conquer,—ay, the brilliant thing he
was,

I, of a sudden must be: my faults, my follies,
—All bitter truths were told me, all at once,
To end the sooner. What I simply styled
Their overlooking me, had been contempt:
How should the Duke employ himself, for-
sooth,

With such an one, while lordly Philip rode

By him their Turin through? But he was punished,
And must put up with—me! 'Twas sad
enough

To learn my future position and submit.
And then the wear and worry, blame on
blame!

For, 'spring-sounds in my ears, spring-smells about,

How could I but grow dizzy in their pent Dim palace-rooms at first? My mother's
look

As they discussed my insignificance,
She and my father, and I sitting by,—
I bore; I knew how brave a son they missed:
Philip had gaily run state-papers through,
While Charles was spelling at them painfully!

But Victor was my father spite of that.
'Duke Victor's entire life has been,' I said,
'Innumerable efforts to one end;
'And on the point now of that end's success,

'Our Ducal turning to a Kingly crown,
'Where's time to be reminded 'tis his child
'He spurns?' And so I suffered—scarcely suffered,

Since I had you at length!

Pol. —To serve in place
Of monarch, minister, and mistress,
Charles.

Cha. But, once that crown obtained, then was't not like

Our lot would alter? 'When he rests, takes
breath,

'Glances around, sees who there's left to
love—

'Now that my mother's dead, sees I am
left—

'Is it not like he'll love me at the last?'
Well, Savoy turns Sardinia; the Duke's
King:

Could I—precisely then—could you expect His harshness to redouble? These few months

Have been . . . have been . . . Polyxena, do
you

And God conduct me, or I lose myself!
What would he have? What is't they want with me?

Him with this mistress and this minister,
—You see me and you hear him; judge us
both!

Renounce what I should do, Polyxena!
Pol. Endure, endure, beloved! Say you
not

He is your father? All's so incident To novel sway! Beside, our life must
change:

Or you'll acquire his kingcraft, or he'll
find

Harshness a sorry way of teaching it.
I bear this—not that there's so much to bear.

Cha. You bear? Do not I know that you, tho' bound
To silence for my sake, are perishing Piecemeal beside me? And how otherwise
When every creephole from the hideous
Court

Is stopped: the Minister to dog me, here—
The Mistress posted to entrap you, there!
And thus shall we grow old in such a life;
Not careless, never estranged,—but old
to alter

Our life, there is so much to alter!

Pol. Come—
Is it agreed that we forego complaint
Even at Turin, yet, complain we here
At Rivoli? 'Twere wiser you announced
Our presence to the King. What's now afoot,

I wonder? Not that any more's to dread Than every day's embarrassment: but
guess

For me, why train so fast succeeded train
On the high-road, each gayer still than each!
I noticed your Archbishop's pursuivant,
The sable cloak and silver cross; such pomp

Bodes . . . what now, Charles? Can you conceive?

Cha. Not I.

Pol. A matter of some moment.

Cha. There's our life!
Which of the group of loiterers that stare
From the lime-avenue, divines that I—
About to figure presently, he thinks,
In face of all assembled—am the one
Who knows precisely least about it?

Pol. Tush!
D'Ormea's contrivance!

Cha. Ay, how otherwise
Should the young Prince serve for the old King's foil?

—So that the simplest courtier may remark
'Twere idle raising parties for a Prince Content to linger the Court's laughingstock.

Something, 'tis like, about that weary business

[Pointing to papers he has laid down, and which POLYXENA examines.] —Not that I comprehend three words, of

course,

After all last night's study.

Pol. The faint heart!
Why, as we rode and you rehearsed just
now

Its substance . . . (that's the folded speech
I mean,

Concerning the Reduction of the Fiefs) —What would you have?—I fancied while you spoke,

Some tones were just your father's.

Cha. Flattery!

Pol. I fancied so:—and here lurks, sure
enough,

My note upon the Spanish Claims! You've mastered

The fief-speech thoroughly: this other,
mind,

Is an opinion you deliver,—stay,
Best read it slowly over once to me;

Read—there's bare time; you read it firmly
—loud

—Rather loud, looking in his face,—don't sink

Your eye once—ay, thus! 'If Spain claims
. . . ' begin

—Just as you look at me!

Cha. At you! Oh truly,
You have I seen, say, marshalling your troops,

Dismissing councils, or, through doors
ajar,

Head sunk on hand, devoured by slow chagrins

—Then radiant, for a crown had all at once Seemed possible again! I can behold

Him, whose least whisper ties my spirit
fast,

In this sweet brow, nought could divert me
from

Save objects like Sebastian's shameless lip, Or worse, the clipped grey hair and dead

white face
And dwindling eye as if it ached with guile, D'Ormea wears . . .

[As he kisses her, enter from the KING'S apartment D'ORMEA.]

I said he would divert
My kisses from your brow!

D'O. [aside]. Here! So, King
Victor

Spoke truth for once: and who's ordained,
but I

To make that memorable? Both in call,
As he declared. Were't better gnash the teeth,

Or laugh outright now?

Cha. [to POLYXENA]. What's his visit
for?

D'O. [aside]. I question if they even speak to me.

Pol. [to CHARLES]. Face the man! He'll suppose you fear him, else.

[Aloud.] The Marquis bears the King's command, no doubt?

D'O. [aside]. Precisely!—If I threatened him, perhaps?

Well, this at least is punishment enough!
Men used to promise punishment would

come.

Cha. Deliver the King's message, Marquis!

D'O. [aside]. Ah—
So anxious for his fate? [Aloud.] A word,

my Prince,
Before you see your father—just one word
Of counsel!

Cha. Oh, your counsel certainly!

Polyxena, the Marquis counsels us!
Well, sir? Be brief, however!

D'O. What? You know
As much as I?—preceded me, most like,
In knowledge! So! ('Tis in his eye, be-
side—

His voice: he knows it, and his heart's on flame

Already.) You surmise why you, myself,
Del Borgo, Spava, fifty nobles more,
Are summoned thus?

Cha. Is the Prince used to know,
At any time, the pleasure of the King,
Before his minister?—Polyxena,
Stay here till I conclude my task: I feel Your presence (smile not) through the walls, and take Fresh heart. The King's within that chamber?

D'O. [passing the table whereon a paper lies, exclaims, as he glances at it].

'Spain!'
Pol. [aside to CHARLES]. Tarry awhile:
what ails the minister?

D'O. Madam, I do not often trouble
you.

The Prince loathes, and you scorn me—let that pass!

But since it touches him and you, not me,
Bid the Prince listen!

Pol. [to CHARLES]. Surely you will listen!
—Deceit?—those fingers crumpling up his vest?

Cha. Deceitful to the very fingers' ends!

D'O. [who has approached them, overlooks the other paper CHARLES continues to hold]. My project for the Fiefs! As I supposed!

Sir, I must give you light upon those measures

—For this is mine, and that I spied of Spain, Mine too!

Cha. Release me! Do you gloze on me Who bear in the world's face (that is, the
world

You make for me at Turin) your contempt?
—Your measures?—When was not a hateful task

D'Ormea's imposition? Leave my robe!
What post can I bestow, what grant concede?

Or do you take me for the King?

D'O. Not I! Not I!
Not yet for King,—not for, as yet, thank
God,

One who in . . . shall I say a year, a month?
Ay!—shall be wretcheder than e'er was
slave

In his Sardinia.—Europe's spectacle
And the world's bye-word! What? The Prince aggrieved

That I excluded him our counsels? Here [Touching the paper in CHARLES's hand.
Accept a method of extorting gold

From Savoy's nobles, who must wring its
worth

In silver first from tillers of the soil,
Whose hinds again have to contribute brass
To make up the amount: there's counsel,
sir,

My counsel, one year old; and the fruit,
this—

Savoy's become a mass of misery
And wrath, which one man has to meet—
the King:

You're not the King! Another counsel, sir!
Spain entertains a project (here it lies)

Which, guessed, makes Austria offer that same King

Thus much to baffle Spain; he promises;
Then comes Spain, breathless lest she be forestalled,

Her offer follows; and he promises . . .

Cha. —Promises, sir, when he has just agreed

To Austria's offer?
D'O. That's a counsel, Prince!

But past our foresight, Spain and Austria (choosing

To make their quarrel up between themselves

Without the intervention of a friend)
Produce both treaties, and both promises...

Cha. How?
D'O. Prince, a counsel! And the fruit of that?

Both parties covenant afresh, to fall
Together on their friend, blot out his name,

Abolish him from Europe. So, take note, Here's Austria and here's Spain to fight against:

And what sustains the King but Savoy
here,

A miserable people mad with wrongs?
You're not the King!

Cha. Polyxena, you said
All would clear up: all does clear up to me.

D'O. Clear up! 'Tis no such thing to envy, then?

You see the King's state in its length and breadth?

You blame me now for keeping you aloof
From counsels and the fruit of counsels?

Wait
Till I explain this morning's business!

Cha. [aside]. No—
Stoop to my father, yes,—D'Ormea, no:

—The King's son, not to the King's counsellor!

I will do something, but at least retain The credit of my deed. [Aloud.] Then it is
this

You now expressly come to tell me?
D'O. This

To tell! You apprehend me?
Cha. Perfectly.

Further, D'Ormea, you have shown your-
self,

For the first time these many weeks and months,
Disposed to do my bidding?

D'O. From the heart!

Cha. Acquain^d my father, first, I wait his pleasure:

Next . . . or, I'll tell you at a fitter time.

Acquaint the King!

D'O. [aside]. If I 'scape Victor yet!

First, to prevent this stroke at me: if not,—

Then, to avenge it! [To CHARLES.] Gracious sir, I go. [Goes.]

Cha. God, I forbore! Which more offends, that man

Or that man's master? Is it come to this? Have they supposed (the sharpest insult yet)

I needed e'en his intervention? No!

No—dull am I, conceded,—but so dull, Scarcely! Their step decides me.

Pol. How decides?

Cha. You would be freed D'Ormea's eye and hers?

—Could fly the court with me and live content?

So, this it is for which the knights assemble!

The whispers and the closeting of late,

The savageness and insolence of old,

—For this!

Pol. What mean you?

Cha. How? You fail to catch Their clever plot? I missed it, but could you?

These last two months of care to inculcate How dull I am,—D'Ormea's present visit To prove that, being dull, I might be worse Were I a King—as wretched as now dull— You recognize in it no winding up Of a long plot?

Pol. Why should there be a plot?

Cha. The crown's secure now; I should shame the crown—

An old complaint; the point is, how to gain My place for one, more fit in Victor's eyes, His mistress the Sebastian's child.

Pol. In truth?

Cha. They dare not quite dethrone Sardinia's Prince:

But they may descant on my dulness till They sting me into even praying them Grant leave to hide my head, resign my state,

And end the coil. Not see now? In a word, They'd have me tender them myself my rights

As one incapable;—some cause for that, Since I delayed thus long to see their drift! I shall apprise the King he may resume My rights this moment.

Pol. Pause! I dare not think

So ill of Victor.

Cha. Think no ill of him!

Pol. —Nor think him, then, so shallow as to suffer

His purpose be divined thus easily.

And yet—you are the last of a great line; There's a great heritage at stake; new days Seemed to await this newest of the realms Of Europe:—Charles, you must withstand this!

Cha. Ah—

You dare not then renounce the splendid Court

For one whom all the world despises?

Speak!

Pol. My gentle husband, speak I will, and truth.

Were this as you believe, and I once sure Your duty lay in so renouncing rule, I could . . . could? Oh what happiness it were—

To live, my Charles, and die, alone with you!

Cha. I grieve I asked you. To the presence, then!

By this, D'Ormea acquaints the King, no doubt,

He fears I am too simple for mere hints, And that no less will serve than Victor's mouth

Demonstrating in council what I am.

I have not breathed, I think, these many years!

Pol. Why, it may be!—if he desire to wed

The woman, call legitimate her child.

Cha. You see as much? Oh, let his will have way!

You'll not repent confiding in me, love?

There's many a brighter spot in Piedmont, far,

Than Rivoli. I'll seek him: or, suppose You hear first how I mean to speak my mind?

—Loudly and firmly both, this time, be sure!

I yet may see your Rhine-land, who can tell? Once away, even then away! I breathe.

Pol. And I too breathe.

Cha. Come, my Polyxena!

KING VICTOR

PART II

Enter KING VICTOR, bearing the Regalia on a cushion, from his apartment. He calls loudly.

Vic. D'Ormea!—for patience fails me, treading thus

Among the obscure trains I have laid,— my knights .

Safe in the hall here—in that anteroom, My son,—D'Ormea, where? Of this, one touch—

[Laying down the crown.]
This fireball to these mute black cold trains—then

Outbreak enough!
[Contemplating it.] To lose all, after all!
This, glancing o'er my house for ages—
shaped,

Brave meteor, like the crown of Cyprus
now,
Jerusalem, Spain, England, every change
The braver,—and when I have clutched a prize

My ancestry died wan with watching for,
To lose it!—by a slip, a fault, a trick Learnt to advantage once and not un-
learned

When past the use,—‘just this once more’
(I thought)

‘Use it with Spain and Austria happily,
‘And then away with trick!’ An oversight
I’d have repaired thrice over, any time
These fifty years, must happen now!
There’s peace

At length; and I, to make the most of peace,
Ventured my project on our people here,
As needing not their help: which Europe
knows,
And means, cold-blooded, to dispose her-
self

(Apart from plausibilities of war)
To crush the new-made King—who ne’er till now

Feared her. As Duke, I lost each foot of
earth

And laughed at her: my name was left, my sword

Left, all was left! But she can take, she knows,

This crown, herself conceded . . . That’s to try,

Kind Europe! My career’s not closed as
yet!

This boy was ever subject to my will,
Timid and tame—the fitter! D’Ormea,
too—

What if the sovereign also rid himself
Of thee, his prime of parasites?—I delay!
D’Ormea! [As D’ORMEA enters, the KING seats himself.

My son, the Prince—attends he?

D’O. Sir,

He does attend. The crown prepared!—it seems

That you persist in your resolve.
Vic. Who’s come?

The chancellor and the chamberlain? My knights?

D’O. The whole Annunziata. If, my
liege,

Your fortune had not tottered worse than
now . . .

Vic. Del Borgo has drawn up the schedules? mine—

My son’s, too? Excellent! Only, beware
Of the least blunder, or we look but fools.
First, you read the Annulment of the Oaths;

Del Borgo follows . . . no, the Prince shall
sign;

Then let Del Borgo read the Instrument:
On which, I enter.

D’O. (Sir, this may be truth;
You, sir, may do as you affect—may break
Your engine, me, to pieces: try at least
If not a spring remain worth saving! Take My counsel as I’ve counselled many times!
What if the Spaniard and the Austrian threat?

There’s England, Holland, Venice—which ally

Select you?
Vic. Aha! Come, D’Ormea,—
‘truth’

Was on your lip a minute since. Allies?
I’ve broken faith with Venice, Holland,

England
—As who knows it not you?

D’O. But why with me Break faith—with one ally, your best, break faith?

Vic. When first I stumbled on you,
Marquis—’twas

At Mondovi—a little lawyer’s clerk . . .
D’O. Therefore your soul’s ally—who brought you through

Your quarrel with the Pope, at pains
enough—

Who simply echoed you in these affairs—
On whom you cannot therefore visit these Affairs’ ill-fortune—whom you trust to guide

You safe (yes, on my soul) through these affairs!

Vic. I was about to notice, had you not Prevented me, that since that great town
kept

With its chicane D’Ormea’s satchel stuffed

And D’Ormea’s self sufficiently recluse,
He missed a sight,—my naval armament
When I burned Toulon. How the skiff exults

Upon the galliot’s wave!—rises its height,
O’ertops it even; but the great wave bursts,
And hell-deep in the horrible profound Buries itself the galliot: shall the skiff Think to escape the sea’s black trough in turn?

Apply this: you have been my minister
—Next me, above me possibly;—sad post, Huge care, abundant lack of peace of
mind;

Who would desiderate the eminence?
Who gave your soul to get it; you’d yet
give

Your soul to keep it, as I mean you shall, D’Ormea! What if the wave ebbed with
me?

Whereas it cants you to another crest;
I toss you to my son; ride out your ride!
D’O. Ah, you so much despise me?

Vic. You, D'Ormea? Nowise: and, I'll inform you why. A king Must in his time have many ministers, And I've been rash enough to part with mine
When I thought proper. Of the tribe, not one (... Or wait, did Pianezze?—ah, just the same!)
Not one of them, ere his remonstrance reached The length of yours, but has assured me (commonly Standing much as you stand,—or nearer, say,
The door to make his exit on his speech)
—I should repent of what I did. D'Ormea,
Be candid, you approached it when I bade you Prepare the schedules! But you stopped in time,
You have not so assured me: how should I Despise you then?

Enter CHARLES.

Vic. [changing his tone]. Are you instructed? Do My order, point by point! About it, sir!
D'O. You so despise me! [Aside.] One last stay remains—
The boy's discretion there.
[To CHARLES.] For your sake, Prince, I pleaded, wholly in your interest,
To save you from this fate!
Cha. [aside]. Must I be told
The Prince was supplicated for—by him?
Vic. [to D'ORMEA]. Apprise Del Borgo, Spava, and the rest,
Our son attends them; then return.
D'O. One word!
Cha. [aside]. A moment's pause and they would drive me hence,
I do believe!
D'O. [aside]. Let but the boy be firm!
Vic. You disobey?
Cha. [to D'ORMEA]. You do not disobey
Me, at least? Did you promise that or no?
D'O. Sir, I am yours: what would you?
Yours am I!
Cha. When I have said what I shall say, 'tis like Your face will ne'er again disgust me. Go!
Through you, as through a breast of glass,
I see.
And for your conduct, from my youth till now,
Take my contempt! You might have spared me much,
Secured me somewhat, nor so harmed yourself:
That's over now. Go, ne'er to come again!
D'O. As son, the father—father as, the son!

My wits! My wits! [Goes.]
Vic. [seated]. And you, what meant you, pray, Speaking thus to D'Ormea?
Cha. Let us not waste words upon D'Ormea! Those I spent
Have half unsettled what I came to say.
His presence vexes to my very soul.
Vic. One called to manage a kingdom,
Charles, needs heart
To bear up under worse annoyances
Than seems D'Ormea—to me, at least.
Cha. [aside]. Ah, good!
He keeps me to the point. Then be it so.
[Aloud.] Last night, sir, brought me certain papers—these—
To be reported on,—your way of late.
Is it last night's result that you demand?
Vic. For God's sake, what has night brought forth? Pronounce
The... what's your word?—result!
Cha. Sir, that had proved Quite worthy of your sneer, no doubt:—a few Lame thoughts, regard for you alone could wring, Lame as they are, from brains like mine, believe!
As 'tis, sir, I am spared both toil and sneer.
These are the papers.
Vic. Well, sir? I suppose
You hardly burned them. Now for your result!
Cha. I never should have done great things of course,
But... oh my father, had you loved me more!
Vic. Loved? [Aside.] Has D'Ormea played me false, I wonder?
[Aloud.] Why, Charles, a king's love is diffused—yourself
May overlook, perchance, your part in it.
Our monarchy is absolutest now
In Europe, or my trouble's thrown away.
I love, my mode, that subjects each and all
May have the power of loving, all and each,
Their mode: I doubt not, many have their sons
To trifle with, talk soft to, all day long:
I have that crown, this chair, D'Ormea, Charles!
Cha. 'Tis well I am a subject then, not you.
Vic. [aside]. D'Ormea has told him everything.
[Aloud.] Aha!
I apprehend you: when all's said, you take Your private station to be prized beyond
My own, for instance?
Cha. —Do and ever did
So take it: 'tis the method you pursue
That grieves...

Vic. These words! Let me express, my friend, Your thoughts. You penetrate what I supposed Secret. D'Ormea plies his trade betimes! I purpose to resign my crown to you.

Cha. To me?

Vic. Now,—in that chamber.

Cha. You resign The crown to me?

Vic. And time enough, Charles, sure?

Confess with me, at four-and-sixty years A crown's a load. I covet quiet once Before I die, and summoned you for that.

Cha. 'Tis I will speak: you ever hated me.

I bore it,—have insulted me, borne too— Now you insult yourself; and I remember What I believed you, what you really are, And cannot bear it. What! My life has passed

Under your eye, tormented as you know,— Your whole sagacities, one after one, At leisure brought to play on me—to prove me

A fool, I thought and I submitted; now You'd prove... what would you prove me?

Vic. This to me?

I hardly know you!

Cha. Know me? Oh indeed You do not! Wait till I complain next time Of my simplicity!—for here's a sage Knows the world well, is not to be deceived, And his experience and his Macchiavels, D'Ormeas, teach him—what?—that I this while

Have envied him his crown! He has not smiled,

I warrant,—has not eaten, drunk, nor slept, For I was plotting with my Princess yonder!

Who knows what we might do or might not do?

Go now, be politic, astound the world! That sentry in the antechamber—nay, The varlet who disposed this precious trap [Pointing to the crown. That was to take me—ask them if they think Their own sons envy them their posts!— Know me!

Vic. But you know me, it seems: so, learn in brief,

My pleasure. This assembly is convened...

Cha. Tell me, that woman put it in your head!

You were not sole contriver of the scheme, My father!

Vic. Now observe me, sir! I jest Seldom—on these points, never. Here, I say,

The knights assemble to see me concede, And you accept, Sardinia's crown.

Cha. Farewell!

'Twere vain to hope to change this: I can end it.

Not that I cease from being yours, when sunk

Into obscurity: 'T'll die for you, But not annoy you with my presence. Sir, Farewell! Farewell!

Enter D'ORMEA.

D'O. [aside]. Ha, sure he's changed again—

Means not to fall into the cunning trap! Then Victor, I shall yet escape you, Victor!

Vic. [suddenly placing the crown upon the head of CHARLES]. D'Ormea, your King!

[To CHARLES.] My son, obey me! Charles,

Your father, clearer-sighted than yourself, Decides it must be so. 'Faith, this looks real!

My reasons after; reason upon reason After; but now, obey me! Trust in me! Be this, you save Sardinia, you save me! Why, the boy swoons! [To D'ORMEA.]

Come this side!

D'O. [as CHARLES turns from him to VICTOR]. You persist?

Vic. Yes, I conceive the gesture's meaning. 'Faith,

He almost seems to hate you: how is that? Be re-assured, my Charles! Is't over now?

Then, Marquis, tell the new King what remains

To do! A moment's work. Del Borgo reads

The Act of Abdication out, you sign it, Then I sign; after that, come back to me.

D'O. Sir, for the last time, pause!

Vic. Five minutes longer

I am your sovereign, Marquis. Hesitate— And I'll so turn those minutes to account

That . . . Ay, you recollect me! [Aside.]

Could I bring

My foolish mind to undergo the reading That Act of Abdication!

[As CHARLES motions D'ORMEA to precede him.

Thanks, dear Charles!

[CHARLES and D'ORMEA retire.

Vic. A novel feature in the boy,—indeed Just what I feared he wanted most. Quite right,

This earnest tone: your truth, now, for effect!

It answers every purpose: with that look, That voice,—I hear him: 'I began no treaty,

(He speaks to Spain), 'nor ever dreamed of this

'You show me; this I from my soul regret; 'But if my father signed it, bid not me

'Dishonour him—who gave me all, be side:'

And, 'True,' says Spain, 'twere harsh to visit that 'Upon the Prince.' Then come the nobles trooping:

'I grieve at these exacti^ons—I had cut
'This hand off ere impose them; but shall I
'Undo my father's deed?'—and they confer:

'Doubtless he was no party, after all;
'Give the Prince time!

Ay, give us time, but time!
Only, he must not, when the dark day comes,

Refer our friends to me and frustrate all.
We'll have no child's play, no desponding fits,

No Charles at each cross turn entreating Victor

To take his crown again. Guard against that!

Enter D'ORMEA.

Long live King Charles!

No—Charles's counsellor!
Well, is it over, Marquis? Did I jest?

D'O. 'King Charles!' What then may you be?

Vic. Anything!
A country gentleman that, cured of bustle,
Now beats a quick retreat toward Chambery,

Would hunt and hawk and leave you noisy folk

To drive your trade without him. I'm Count Reinont—

Count Tende—any little place's Count!

D'O. Then Victor, Captain against Catinat

At Staffarde, where the French beat you; and Duke

At Turin, where you beat the French; King late

Of Savoy, Piedmont, Montferrat, Sardinia, —Now, 'any little place's Count'—

Vic. Proceed!

D'O. Breaker of vows to God, who crowned you first;

Breaker of vows to man, who kept you since;

Most profligate to me who outraged God
And man to serve you, and am made pay crimes

I was but privy to, by passing thus
To your imbecile son—who, well you know,

Must—(when the people here, and nations there,

Clamour for you the main delinquent, slipped

From King to—'Count of any little place')
Must needs surrender me, all in his reach,—

¶, sir, forgive you: for I see the end—
See you on your return—(you will return)—

To him you trust, a moment . . .
Vic. Trust him? How?

My poor man, merely a prime-minister,
Make me know where my trust errs!

D'O. In his fear,
His love, his— but discover for yourself
What you are weakest, trusting in!

Vic. Aha,
D'Ormea, not a shrewder scheme than this
In your repertory? You know old Victor—

Vain, choleric, inconstant, rash—(I've heard Talkers who little thought the King so close)

Felicitous now, were't not, to provoke him
To clean forget, one minute afterward,

His solemn act, and call the nobles back
And pray them give again the very power

He has abjured?—for the dear sake of what?

Vengeance on you, D'Ormea! No: such am I,

Count Tende or Count anything you please,

—Only, the same that did the things you say,

And, among other things you say not, used
Your finest fibre, meanest muscle,—you

I used, and now, since you will have it so,
Leave to your fate—mere lumber in the midst,

You and your works. Why, what on earth beside

Are you made for, you sort of ministers?

D'O. Not left, though, to my fate!
Your witless son

Has more wit than to load himself with lumber:

He foils you that way, and I follow you.
Vic. Stay with my son—protect the weaker side!

D'O. Ay, to be tossed the people like a rag,

And flung by them for Spain and Austria's sport,

Abolishing the record of your part
In all this perfidy!

Vic. Prevent, beside,
My own return!

D'O. That's half prevented now!
'Twill go hard but you find a wondrous charm

In exile, to discredit me. The Alps,
Silk-mills to watch, vines asking vigilance—

Hounds open for the stag, your hawk's a-wing—

Brave days that wait the Louis of the South, Italy's Janus!

Vic. So, the lawyer's clerk
Won't tell me that I shall repent!

D'O. You give me
Full leave to ask if you repent?

Vic. Whene'er

Sufficient time's elapsed for that, you judge!

[Shouts inside 'King CHARLES!'

D'O. Do you repent?

Vic. [after a slight pause]. . . I've kept them waiting? Yes!

Come in, complete the Abdication, sir!
[They go out.

Enter POLYXENA.

Pol. A shout! The sycophants are free of Charles!

Oh is not this like Italy? No fruit
Of his or my distempered fancy, this,
But just an ordinary fact! Beside,
Here they've set forms for such proceedings; Victor

Imprisoned his own mother: he should know,

If any, how a son's to be deprived
Of a son's right. Our duty's palpable.
Ne'er was my husband for the wily king
And the unworthy subjects: be it so!

Come you safe out of them, my Charles!
Our life

Grows not the broad and dazzling life, I dreamed

Might prove your lot; for strength was shut in you

None guessed but I—strength which, untrammelled once,

Had little shamed your vaunted ancestry—
Patience and self-devotion, fortitude, Simplicity and utter truthfulness

—All which, they shout to lose!

So, now my work
Begins—to save him from regret. Save
Charles

Regret?—the noble nature! He's not made
Like these Italians: 'tis a German soul.

CHARLES enters crowned.

Oh, where's the King's heir? Gone!—the Crown Prince? Gone!—

Where's Savoy? Gone!—Sardinia? Gone!
But Charles

Is left! And when my Rhine-land bowers
arrive,

If he looked almost handsome yestertwilight

As his grey eyes seemed widening into black

Because I praised him, then how will he
look?

Farewell, you stripped and whited mulberry-trees

Bound each to each by lazy ropes of vine!
Now I'll teach you my language: I'm not forced

To speak Italian now, Charles?
[She sees the crown.] What is this?

Answer me—who has done this? Answer!
Cha. He!

I am King now.

Pol. Oh worst, worst, worst of all!
Tell me! What, Victor? He has made you King?

What's he then? What's to follow this?
You, King?"

Cha. Have I done wrong? Yes, for you were not by!

Pol. Tell me from first to last.

Cha. Hush—a new world
Brightens before me; he is moved away

—The dark form that eclipsed it, he sub-
sides

Into a shape supporting me like you,
And I, alone, tend upward, more and more

Tend upward: I am grown Sardinia's King.

Pol. Now stop: was not this Victor,
Duke of Savoy

At ten years old? Cha. He was.

Pol. And the Duke spent
Since then, just four-and-fifty years in toil

To be—what? Cha. King.

Pol. Then why unking himself?

Cha. Those years are cause enough.

Pol. The only cause?

Cha. Some new perplexities.

Pol. Which you can solve
Although he cannot?

Cha. He assures me so.

Pol. And this he means shall last—how
long?

Cha. How long?
Think you I fear the perils I confront?

He's praising me before the people's face—
My people!

Pol. Then he's changed—grown kind,
the King?

Where can the trap be?

Cha. Heart and soul I pledge!
My father, could I guard the crown you
gained,

Transmit as I received it,—all good else
Would I surrender!

Pol. Ah, it opens then
Before you, all you dreaded formerly?

You are rejoiced to be a king, my Charles?

Cha. So much to dare? The better;
—much to dread?

The better. I'll adventure though alone.
Triumph or die, there's Victor still to witness

Who dies or triumphs—either way, alone!

Pol. Once I had found my share in triumph, Charles,

Or death.
Cha. But you are I! But you I call
To take, Heaven's proxy, vows I tendered
Heaven

A moment since. I will deserve the crown!
Pol. You will. [Aside.] No doubt it were a glorious thing

For any people, if a heart like his Ruled over it. I would I saw the trap.

KING VICTOR AND KING CHARLES

Enter VICTOR.

'Tis he must show me.

Vic. So, the mask falls off
An old man's foolish love at last. Spare
thanks!

I know you, and Polyxena I know.

Here's Charles—I am his guest now—does he bid meBe seated? And my light-haired blue-eyed
child

Must not forget the old man far away

At Chambéry, who dozes while she reigns.

Pol. Most grateful shall we now be, talking least

Of gratitude—indeed of anything

That hinders what yourself must need to
say

To Charles.

Cha. Pray speak, sir!Vic. 'Faith, not much to say:
Only what shows itself, you once i' the pointOf sight. You're now the King: you'll comprehendMuch you may oft have wondered at—the shifts,

Dissimulation, wiliness I showed.

For what's our post? Here's Savoy and here's Piedmont,Here's Montferrat—a breadth here, a space there—To o'ersweep all these, what's one weapon worth?I often think of how they fought in Greece: (Or Rome, which was it? You're the scholar, Charles!)You made a front-thrust? But if your shield tooWere not adroitly planted, some shrewd knaveReached you behind; and him foiled, straight if thongAnd handle of that shield were not cast loose,And you enabled to outstrip the wind, Fresh foes assailed you, either side; 'scape these,And reach your place of refuge—e'en then, oddsIf the gate opened unless breath enough
Were left in you to make its lord a speech.

Oh, you will see!

Cha. No: straight on shall I go,
Truth helping; win with it or die with it.Vic. 'Faith, Charles, you're not made Europe's fighting-man!The barrier-guarder, if you please. You clutchHold and consolidate, with envious France
This side, with Austria that, the territoryI held—ay, and will hold . . . which you shall hold

Despite the couple! But I've surely earned

Exemption from these weary politics,
—The privilege to prattle with my son And daughter here, though Europe wait the while.Pol. Nay, sir,—at Chambéry, away for ever,As soon you will be, 'tis farewell we bid you:Turn these few fleeting moments to account!

'Tis just as though it were a death.

Vic. Indeed!Pol. [aside]. Is the trap there?Cha. Ay, call this parting—death!
The sacredder your memory becomes.

If I misrule Sardinia, how bring back

My father?

Vic. I mean . . .Pol. [who watches VICTOR narrowly this while]. Your father does not meanYou should be ruling for your father's sake:It is your people must concern you wholly Instead of him. You mean this, sir? (He drops

My hand!)

Cha. That people is now part of me.Vic. About the people! I took certain measuresSome short time since . . . Oh, I know well, you knowBut little of my measures! These affect The nobles; we've resumed some grants, imposedA tax or two: prepare yourself, in short,
For clamour on that score. Mark me: you yield

No jot of aught entrusted you!

Pol. No jot

You yield!

Cha. My father, when I took the oath, Although my eye might stray in search of yours,I heard it, understood it, promised God
What you require. Till from this eminenceHe move me, here I keep, nor shall concede
The meanest of my rights.Vic. [aside]. The boy's a fool!—Or rather, I'm a fool: for, what's wrong here?To-day the sweets of reigning: let tomorrow

Be ready with its bitters.

*Enter D'ORMEA.*There's beside Somewhat to press upon your notice first.Cha. Then why delay it for an instant, sir?That Spanish claim perchance? And, now you speak,—This morning, my opinion was mature,
Which, boy-like, I was bashful in producing

To one I ne'er am like to fear in future!
My thought is formed upon that Spanish claim.

Vic. Betimes indeed. Not now, Charles!

You require
A host of papers on it.

D'O. [coming forward]. Here they are.
[To CHARLES.] I, sir, was minister and much beside

Of the late monarch; to say little, him
I served: on you I have, to say e'en less,
No claim. This case contains those papers:
with them

I tender you my office.

Vic. [hastily]. Keep him, Charles!
There's reason for it—many reasons: you Distrust him, nor are so far wrong there,
—but

He's mixed up in this matter—he'll desire
To quit you, for occasions known to me:
Do not accept those reasons: have him
stay!

Pol. [aside]. His minister thrust on us!

Cha. [to D'ORMEA]. Sir, believe,
In justice to myself, you do not need E'en this commending: howsoever might seem

My feelings toward you, as a private man,
They quit me in the vast and untried field

Of action. Though I shall myself (as late
In your own hearing I engaged to do)
Preside o'er my Sardinia, yet your help
Is necessary. Think the past forgotten
And serve me now!

D'O. I did not offer you
My service—would that I could serve you,
sir!

As for the Spanish matter . . .

Vic. But despatch
At least the dead, in my good daughter's phrase,

Before the living! Help to house me safe Ere with D'Ormea you set the world agape!

Here is a paper—will you overlook
What I propose reserving for my needs?
I get as far from you as possible:

Here's what I reckon my expenditure.

Cha. [reading]. A miserable fifty thousand crowns—

Vic. Oh, quite enough for country gentlemen!

Beside the exchequer happens . . . but find
out

All that, yourself!

Cha. [still reading]. 'Count Tende'— what means this?

Vic. Me: you were but an infant when I burst

Through the defile of Tende upon France.
Had only my allies kept true to me!

No matter. Tende's, then, a name I take Just as . . .

D'O. —The Marchioness Sebastian takes

The name of Spigno.

Cha. How, sir?

Vic. [to D'ORMEA]. Fool! All that Was for my own detailing. [To CHARLES.]
That anon!

Cha. [to D'ORMEA]. Explain what you have said, sir!

D'O. I supposed
The marriage of the King to her I named,
Profoundly kept a secret these few weeks,
Was not to be one, now he's Count.

Pol. [aside]. With us

The minister—with him the mistress!

Cha. [to VICTOR]. No—

Tell me you have not taken her—that woman

To live with, past recall!

Vic. And where's the crime . . .

Pol. [to CHARLES]. True, sir, this is a matter past recall

And past your cognizance. A day before,
And you had been compelled to note this:
now,—

Why note it? The King saved his House from shame:

What the Count did, is no concern of
yours.

Cha. [after a pause]. The Spanish claim,
D'Ormea!

Vic. Why, my son,
I took some ill-advised . . . one's age, in
fact,

Spoils everything: though I was over-
reached,

A younger brain, we'll trust, may extricate

Sardinia readily. To-morrow, D'Ormea, Inform the King!

D'O. [without regarding VICTOR, and leisurely]. Thus stands the case with Spain:

When first the Infant Carlos claimed his proper Succession to the throne of Tuscany . . .

Vic. I tell you, that stands over! Let that rest!

There is the policy!

Cha. [to D'ORMEA]. Thus much I know,
And more—too much: the remedy?

D'O. Of course!

No glimpse of one.

Vic. No remedy at all!

It makes the remedy itself—time makes it.

D'O. [to CHARLES]. But if . . .

Vic. [still more hastily]. In fine, I shall take care of that:

And, with another project that I have . . .

D'O. [turning on him.] Oh, since Count
Tende means to take again

King Victor's crown!—

Pol. [throwing herself at VICTOR's feet].
E'en now retake it, sir!

Oh speak! We are your subjects both,
once more!
Say it—a word effects it! You meant not,
Nor do mean now, to take it: but you
must!

'Tis in you—in your nature—and the shame's
Not half the shame 'twould grow to afterwards!

Cha. Polyxena!

Pol. A word recalls the knights—Say it! What's promising and what's the
past?

Say you are still King Victor!

D'O. Better say
The Count repents, in brief! [VICTOR rises.]

Cha. With such a crime

I have not charged you, sir!

Pol. (Charles turns from me!)

SECOND YEAR, 1731.—KING CHARLES

Enter Queen POLYXENA and D'ORMEA.— A pause.

Pol. And now, sir, what have you to
say?

D'O. Count Tende...

Pol. Affirm not I betrayed you; you resolve
On uttering this strange intelligence
—Nay, post yourself to find me ere I reach
The capital, because you know, King
Charles

Tarries a day or two at Evian baths Behind me:—but take warning,—here and
thus

[Seating herself in the royal seat.
I listen, if I listen—not your friend.
Explicitly the statement, if you still Persist to urge it on me, must proceed:
I am not made for aught else.

D'O. Good! Count Tende...

Pol. I, who mistrust you, shall acquaint
King Charles
Who even more mistrusts you.

D'O. Does he so?

Pol. Why should he not?

D'O. Ay, why not?

Motives, seek
You virtuous people, motives! Say, I see God at the devil's bidding—will that do?
I'm proud: our people have been pacified, Really I know not how—

Pol. By truthfulness.

D'O. Exactly; that shows I had ought
to do

With pacifying them. Our foreign perils
Also exceed my means to stay: but here
'Tis otherwise, and my pride's piqued.
Count Tende

Completes a full year's absence: would you, madam,

Have the old monarch back, his mistress
back,

His measures back? I pray you, act upon My counsel, or they will be.

Pol. When?

D'O. Let's think.

Home-matters settled—Victor's coming
now;

Let foreign matters settle—Victor's here
Unless I stop him; as I will, this way.

Pol. [reading the papers he presents]. If this should prove a plot 'twixt you and Victor?

You seek annoyances to give the pretext
For what you say you fear.

D'O. Oh, possibly!

I go for nothing. Only show King Charles
That thus Count Tende purposes return,
And style me his inviter, if you please!

Pol. Half of your tale is true; most like,
the Count

Seeks to return: but why stay you with us?
To aid in such emergencies.

D'O. Keep safe

Those papers: or, to serve me, leave no
proof

I thus have counselled! When the Count returns,

And the King abdicates, 'twill stead me
little

To have thus counselled.

Pol. The King abdicate!

D'O. He's good, we knew long since—wise, we discover—

Firm, let us hope:—but I'd have gone to
work

With him away. Well!

[CHARLES without]. In the Council
Chamber?

D'O. All's lost!

Pol. Oh, surely not King

Charles! He's changed—
That's not this year's care-burthened voice and step:

'Tis last year's step, the Prince's voice!

D'O. I know.

[Enter CHARLES:—D'ORMEA retiring a little.]

Cha. Now wish me joy, Polyxena! Wish it me

The old way! [She embraces him.]

There was too much cause for that!
But I have found myself again. What news
At Turin? Oh, if you but felt the load

I'm free of—free! I said this year would
end

Or it, or me—but I am free, thank God!

Pol. How, Charles?

Cha. You do not guess?

The day I found
Sardinia's hideous coil, at home, abroad,

And how my father was involved in it,—
Of course, I vowed to rest and smile no
more

Until I cleared his name from obloquy.
We did the people right—'twas much to gain

That point, redress our nobles' grievance,
too—

But that took place here, was no crying
shame:

All must be done abroad,—if I abroad Appeased the justly-angered Powers, destroyed

The scandal, took down Victor's name at
last

From a bad eminence, I then might breathe And rest! No moment was to lose. Behold

The proud result—a Treaty, Austria, Spain Agree to—

D'O. [aside]. I shall merely stipulate
For an experienced headman.

Cha. Not a soul
Is compromised: the blotted past's a blank:
Even D'Ormea escapes unquestioned.
See!

It reached me from Vienna; I remained
At Evian to despatch the Count his news;
'Tis gone to Chambery a week ago—
And here am I: do I deserve to feel
Your warm white arms around me?

D'O. [coming forward]. He knows
that?

Cha. What, in Heaven's name, means
this?

D'O. He knows that matters
Are settled at Vienna? Not too late!
Plainly, unless you post this very hour
Some man you trust (say, me) to Chambery
And take precautions I acquaint you with,
Your father will return here.

Cha. Are you crazed, D'Ormea? Here? For what? As well return

To take his crown!

D'O. He will return for that.

Cha. [to POLYXENA]. You have not listened to this man?

Pol. He spoke
About your safety—and I listened.

[He disengages himself from her arms.

Cha. [to D'ORMEA]. What Apprised you of the Count's intentions?

D'O. Me?

His heart, sir; you may not be used to read
Such evidence however; therefore read

[Pointing to POLYXENA's papers.
My evidence.

Cha. [to POLYXENA]. Oh, worthy this of
you!

And of your speech I never have forgotten, Though I professed forgetfulness; which haunts me

As if I did not know how false it was;

Which made me toil unconsciously thus
long

That there might be no least occasion left
For aught of its prediction coming true!
And now, when there is left no least occasion

To instigate my father to such crime—
When I might venture to forget (I hoped)
That speech and recognize Polyxena—
Oh worthy, to revive, and tenfold worse,
That plague! D'Ormea at your ear, his slanders

Still in your hand! Silent?

Pol. As the wronged are.

Cha. And you, D'Ormea, since when have you presumed

To spy upon my father? I conceive
What that wise paper shows, and easily.
Since when?

D'O. The when and where and how belong

To me. 'Tis sad work, but I deal in such.
You oftimes serve yourself; I'd serve you
here:

Use makes me not so squeamish. In a word,
Since the first hour he went to Chambery,
Of his seven servants, five have I suborned.

Cha. You hate my father?

D'O. Oh, just as you will!

[Looking at POLYXENA.

A minute since, I loved him—hate him,
now!

What matter?—if you ponder just one
thing:

Has he that treaty?—he is setting forward
Already. Are your guards here?

Cha. Well for you

They are not! [To POLYXENA]. Him I knew of old, but you—

To hear that pickthank, further his designs! [To D'ORMEA.

Guards?—were they here, I'd bid them,
for your trouble,

Arrest you.

D'O. Guards you shall not want.

I lived

The servant of your choice, not of your
need.

You never greatly needed me till now
That you discard me. This is my arrest.

Again I tender you my charge—its duty Would bid me press you read those documents.

Here, sir! [Offering his badge of office.

Cha. [taking it]. The papers also! Do you think

I dare not read them?

Pol.

Read them, sir!

Cha.

They prove,
My father, still a month within the year
Since he so solemnly consigned it me,

Means to resume his crown? They shall prove that,

Or my best dungeon . . .

D'O. Even say, Chambery!
'Tis vacant, I surmise, by this.

Cha. You prove Your words or pay their forfeit, sir. Go
there!

Polyxena, one chance to rend the veil
Thickening and blackening 'twixt us two!

Do say,
You'll see the falsehood of the charges
proved!

Do say, at least, you wish to see them
proved,

False charges—my heart's love of other times!

Pol. Ah, Charles!

Cha. [to D'ORMEA]. Precede me, sir!

D'O. And I'm at length
A martyr for the truth! No end, they say,
Of miracles. My conscious innocence!

[As they go out, enter—by the middle door, at which he pauses—VICTOR.

Vic. Sure I heard voices? No. Well, I do best

To make at once for this, the heart o' the
place.

The old room! Nothing changed! So near my seat,

D'Ormea? [Pushing away the stool which is by the KING'S chair.

I want that meeting over first,
I know not why. Tush, he, D'Ormea,

slow
To lighten me, the supple knave? That burst

Of spite so eased him! He'll inform me ...
What?

Why come I hither? All's in rough: let all Remain rough. There's full time to draw back—nay,

There's nought to draw back from, as yet;

whereas,
If reason should be, to arrest a course
Of error—reason good, to interpose

And save, as I have saved so many times,
Our House, admonish my son's giddy

youth,
Relieve him of a weight that proves too
much—

Now is the time,—or now, or never.

'Faith,

This kind of step is pitiful, not due
To Charles, this stealing back—hither,

because
He's from his capital! Oh Victor! Victor!

But thus it is. The age of crafty men
Is loathsome; youth contrives to carry off

Dissimulation; we may intersperse
Extenuating passages of strength,

Arour, vivacity, and wit—may turn E'en guile into a voluntary grace:

But one's old age, when graces drop away
And leave guile the pure staple of our lives—

Ah, loathsome!

Not so—or why pause I? Turin
Is mine to have, were I so minded, for

The asking; all the army's mine—I've witnessed

Each private fight beneath me; all the Court's

Mine too; and, best of all, D'Ormea's still D'Ormea and mine. There's some grace clinging yet.

Had I decided on this step, ere midnight
I'd take the crown.

No. Just this step to rise
Exhausts me. Here am I arrived: the rest Must be done for me. Would I could sit

here
And let things right themselves, the masque unmasque

Of the old King, crownless, grey hair and hot blood,—

The young King, crowned, but calm before his time,

They say,—the eager mistress with her taunts,—

And the sad earnest wife who motions me Away—ay, there she knelt to me! E'en

yet
I can return and sleep at Chambery
A dream out.

Rather shake it off at Turin,
King Victor! Say: to Turin—yes, or no?

'Tis this relentless noonday-lighted
chamber,

Lighted like life but silent as the grave,
That disconcerts me. That's the change must strike.

No silence last year! Some one flung doors wide

(Those two great doors which scrutinize me now)

And out I went 'mid crowds of men—men talking,

Men watching if my lip fell or brow knit,
Men saw me safe forth, put me on my road:

That makes the misery of this return.

Oh had a battle done it! Had I dropped,
Haling some battle, three entire days old,

Hither and thither by the forehead—
dropped

In Spain, in Austria, best of all, in France—Spurned on its horns or underneath its hooves,

When the spent monster went upon its knees

To pad and pash the prostrate wretch—I,

Victor,
Sole to have stood up against France, beat

down
By inches, brayed to pieces finally

In some vast unimaginable charge,
A flying hell of horse and foot and guns

Over me, and all's lost, for ever lost, There's no more Victor when the world wakes up!

Then silence, as of a raw battle-field, Throughout the world. Then after (as whole days

After, you catch at intervals faint noise Through the stiff crust of frozen blood)— there creeps

A rumour forth, so faint, no noise at all,
That a strange old man, with face outworn for wounds,

Is stumbling on from frontier town to town,

Begging a pittance that may help him find His Turin out; what scorn and laughter
follow

The coin you fling into his cap! And last,
Some bright morn, how men crowd about
the midst

O' the market-place, where takes the old king breath

Ere with his crutch he strike the palace-gate

Wide ope!

To Turin, yes or no—or no?

Re-enter CHARLES with papers.

Cha. Just as I thought! A miserable
falsehood

Of hirelings discontented with their pay
And longing for enfranchisement! A few Testy expressions of old age that thinks
To keep alive its dignity o'er slaves
By means that suit their natures!

[Tearing them.] Thus they shake
My faith in Victor!

[Turning, he discovers VICTOR.

Vic. [after a pause]. Not at Evian,
Charles?

What's this? Why do you run to close the doors?

No welcome for your father?

Cha. [aside]. Not his voice!

What would I give for one imperious tone
Of the old sort! That's gone for ever.

Vic. Must

I ask once more . . .

Cha. No—I concede it, sir!

You are returned for . . . true, your health declines;

True, Chambery's a bleak unkindly spot;
You'd choose one fitter for your final lodge—

Veneria, or Moncagliè—ay, that's close
And I concede it.

Vic. I received advices

Of the conclusion of the Spanish matter, Dated from Evian Baths . . .

Cha. And you forbore

To visit me at Evian, satisfied
The work I had to do would fully task

The little wit I have, and that your presence
Would only disconcert me—

Vic. Charles?

Cha. —Me, set

For ever in a foreign course to yours,

And . . .

Sir, this way of wile were good to catch,
But I have not the sleight of it. The truth!
Though I sink under it! What brings you
here?

Vic. Not hope of this reception, certainly,

From one who'd scarce assume a stranger mode

Of speech, did I return to bring about
Some awfullest calamity!

Cha. —You mean,
Did you require your crown again! Oh

yes,
I should speak otherwise! But turn not
that

To jesting! Sir, the truth! Your health declines?

Is aught deficient in your equipage?
Wisely you seek myself to make complaint,
And foil the malice of the world which laughs

At petty discontents; but I shall care
That not a soul knows of this visit. Speak!

Vic. [aside]. Here is the grateful muchprofessing son

Prepared to worship me, for whose sole
sake

I think to waive my plans of public good!
[Aloud.] Nay, Charles, if I did seek to take

once more

My crown, were so disposed to plague
myself,

What would be warrant for this bitterness?
I gave it—grant I would resume it—well?

Cha. I should say simply—leaving out the why

And how—you made me swear to keep that crown:

And as you then intended . . .

Vic. Fool! What way

Could I intend or not intend? As man,
With a man's will, when I say 'I intend,'

I can intend up to a certain point,

No farther. I intended to preserve
The crown of Savoy and Sardinia whole:

And if events arise demonstrating

The way, I hoped should guard it, rather like

To lose it . . .

Cha. Keep within your sphere and mine!

It is God's province we usurp on, else.
Here, blindfold through the maze of things we walk

By a slight clue of false, true, right and
wrong;

All else is rambling and presumption. I Have sworn to keep this kingdom: there's my truth.

Vic. Truth, boy, is here, within my breast; and in

Your recognition of it, truth is, too;

And in the effect of all this tortuous dealing

With falsehood, used to carry out the truth,

—In its success, this falsehood turns, again, Truth for the world. But you are right: these themes

Are over-subtle. I should rather say In such a case, frankly,—it fails, my scheme:

I hoped to see you bring about, yourself, What I must bring about. I interpose On your behalf—with my son's good in sight—

To hold what he is nearly letting go, Confirm his title, add a grace perhaps.

There's Sicily, for instance,—granted me And taken back, some years since: till I give

That island with the rest, my work's half done.

For his sake, therefore, as of those he rules . . .

Cha. Our sakes are one; and that, you could not say,

Because my answer would present itself. Forthwith!—a year has wrought an age's change.

This people's not the people now, you once Could benefit; nor is my policy

Your policy.

Vic. [with an outburst]. I know it! You undo

All I have done—my life of toil and care! I left you this the absolute rule

In Europe; do you think I sit and smile, Bid you throw power to the populace—

See my Sardinia, that has kept apart, Join in the mad and democratic whirl

Whereto I see all Europe haste full tide? England casts off her kings; France mimics

England:

This realm I hoped was safe. Yet here I talk,

When I can save it, not by force alone, But bidding plagues, which follow sons like you,

Fasten upon my disobedient . . .

[Recollecting himself.] Surely I could say this—if minded so—my son?

Cha. You could not. Bitter curses than your curse

Have I long since denounced upon myself If I misused my power. In fear of these I entered on those measures—will abide By them: so, I should say, Count Tende . . .

Vic. No!

But no! But if, my Charles, your—more than old—

Half-foolish father urged these arguments, And then confessed them futile, but said, plainly

That he forgot his promise, found his strength

* Fail him, had thought at savage Chambery

Too much of brilliant Turin, Rivoli here,

And Susa, and Veneria, and Superga—Pined for the pleasant places he had built

When he was fortunate and young—Cha. My father!

Vic. Stay yet!—and if he said he could not die

Deprived of baubles he had put aside, He deemed, for ever—of the Crown that binds

Your brain up, whole, sound and impregnable,

Creating kingliness—the Sceptre too, Whose mere wind, should you wave it, back would beat

Invaders—and the golden Ball which throbs

As if you grasped the palpitating heart Indeed o' the realm, to mould as choose you may!

—If I must totter up and down the streets My sires built, where myself have introduced

And fostered laws and letters, sciences, The civil and the military arts!

Stay, Charles. I see you letting me pretend To live my former self once more—King

Victor,

The venturesome yet politic: they style me Again, the Father of the Prince: friends wink

Good-humouredly at the delusion you So sedulously guard from all rough truths

That else would break upon my dotage!—You—

Whom now I see preventing my old shame—

I tell not, point by cruel point, my tale—For is't not in your breast my brow is hid?

Is not your hand extended? Say you not . . .

Enter D'ORMEA, leading in POLYXENA.

Pol. [advancing and withdrawing CHARLES—to VICTOR]. In this conjuncture even, he would say

(Though with a moistened eye and quivering lip)

The suppliant is my father. I must save A great man from himself, nor see him fling

His well-earned fame away: there must not follow

Ruin so utter, a break-down of worth So absolute: no enemy shall learn,

He thrust his child 'twixt danger and himself,

And, when that child somehow stood danger out,

Stole back with serpent wiles to ruin Charles

—Body, that's much,—and soul, that's more—and realm,

That's most of all! No enemy shall say . . .

D'O. Do you repent, sir?

Vic. [resuming himself]. D'Ormea?

This is well!

Worthily done, King Charles, craftily done!

Judiciously you post these, to o'erhear
The little your importunate father thrusts Himself on you to say!—Ah, they'll correct
The amiable blind facility

You show in answering his peevish suit.
What can he need to sue for? Thanks,
D'Ormea!

You have fulfilled your office: but for you,
The old Count might have drawn some few more lives

To swell his income! Had you, lady, missed

The moment, a permission might be granted

To buttress up my ruinous old pile!
But you remember properly the list Of wise precautions I took when I gave Nearly as much away—to reap the fruits
I should have looked for!

Cha. Thanks, sir: degrade me,
So you remain yourself! Adieu!

Vic. I'll not Forget it for the future, nor presume

Next time to slight such mediators!

Nay—
Had I first moved them both to intercede,
I might secure a chamber in Moncaglièr —Who knows?

Cha. Adieu!

Vic. You bid me this adieu
With the old spirit?

Cha. Adieu!

Vic. Charles—Charles!

Cha. Adieu!

[VICTOR goes.]

Cha. You were mistaken, Marquis, as you hear.

'Twas for another purpose the Count
came.

The Count desires Moncaglièr. Give the order!

D'O. [leisurely]. Your minister has lost your confidence,

Asserting late, for his own purposes,
Count Tende would . . .

Cha. [flinging his badge back]. Be still the minister!

And give a loose to your insulting joy;
It irks me more thus stifled than expressed:
Loose it!

D'O. There's none to loose, alas! I
see

I never am to die a martyr.

Pol. Charles!

Cha. No praise, at least, Polyxena—no
praise!

KING CHARLES

PART II

D'ORMEA, seated, folding papers he has been examining.

This at the last effects it: now, King Charles Or else King Victor—that's a balance: but
now,

D'Ormea the arch-culprit, either turn O' the scale,—that's sure enough. A point to solve,

My masters, moralists, whate'er your style!
When you discover why I push myself

Into a pitfall you'd pass safely by,
Impart to me among the res! No matter.

Prompt are the righteous ever with their rede

To us the wrongful; lesson them this once!
For safe among the wicked are you set,

D'Ormea! We lament life's brevity, Yet quarter e'en the threescore years and ten,

Nor stick to call the quarter roundly 'life.'

D'Ormea was wicked, say, some twenty
years;

A tree so long was stunted; afterward,
What if it grew, continued growing, till

No fellow of the forest equalled it?
'Twas a stump then; a stump it still must
be:

While forward saplings, at the outset
checked,

In virtue of that first sprout keep their style
Amid the forest's green fraternity.

Thus I shoot up to surely get lopped down And bound up for the burning. Now for
it!

Enter CHARLES and POLYXENA with Attendants.

D'O. [rises]. Sir, in the due discharge of this my office—

This enforced summons of yourself from Turin,

And the disclosure I am bound to make
To-night,—there must already be, I feel,

So much that wounds . . . Well, sir?

Cha. —That I, perchance,
May utter also what, another time,

Would irk much,—it may prove less irksome now.

Cha. What would you utter?
D'O. That I from my soul

Grieve at to-night's event: for you I grieve, E'en grieve for . . .

Cha. Tush, another time for talk!
My kingdom is in imminent danger?

D'O. Let
The Count communicate with France—it's
King,

His grandson, will have Fleury's aid for,
this,

Though for no other war.

Cha. First for the levies:
What forces can I muster presently?

[D'ORMEA delivers papers which

CHARLES inspects.

Cha. Good—very good. Montorio... how is this?

—Equips me double the old complement
Of soldiers?

D'O. Since his land has been relieved From double imposts, this he manages:
But under the late monarch...

Cha. Peace! I know.
Count Spava has omitted mentioning
What proxy is to head these troops of his.

D'O. Count Spava means to head his troops himself.

Something to fight for now; 'Whereas,'
says he,

'Under the sovereign's father'...

Cha. It would seem
That all my people love me.

D'O. Yes.

[To POLYXENA while CHARLES continues to inspect the papers.

A temper

Like Victor's may avail to keep a state;
He terrifies men and they fall not off;
Good to restrain: best, if restraint were all.
But, with the silent circle round him, ends
Such sway: our King's begins precisely
there.

For to suggest, impel and set at work,
Is quite another function. Men may slight,
In time of peace, the King who brought them peace:

In war,—his voice, his eyes, help more than
fear.

They love you, sir!

Cha. [to Attendants]. Bring the regalia
forth!

Quit the room! And now, Marquis,
answer me!

Why should the King of France invade my realm?

D'O. Why? Did I not acquaint your Majesty

An hour ago?

Cha. I choose to hear again
What then I heard.

D'O. Because, sir, as I said,
Your father is resolved to have his crown
At any risk; and, as I judge, calls in The foreigner to aid him.

Cha. And your reason?
For saying this?

D'O. [aside]. Ay, just his father's way!
[To CHARLES.] The Count wrote yesterday to your forces' Chief,

Rhebinder—made demand of help—

Cha. To try Rhebinder—he's of alien blood: aught
else?

D'O. Receiving a refusal,—some hours
after,

The Count called on Del Borgo to deliver
The Act of Abdication: he refusing,
Or hesitating, rather—

Cha. What ensued?

D'O. At midnight, only two hours
since, at Turin,

He rode in person to the citadel
With one attendant, to Soccorso gate,
And bade the governor, San Remi, open—Admit him.

Cha. For a purpose I divine.

These three were faithful, then?

D'O. They told it me.

And I—

Cha. Most faithful—

D'O. Tell it you—with this Moreover of my own: if, an hour hence,
You have not interposed, the Count will be O' the road to France for succour.

Cha. Very good!

You do your duty now to me your monarch Fully, I warrant?—have, that is, your project

For saving both of us disgrace, no doubt?

D'O. I give my counsel,—and the only
one.

A month since, I besought you to employ Restraints which had prevented many a pang:

But now the harsher course must be pursued.

These papers, made for the emergency,
Will pain you to subscribe: this is a list
Of those suspected merely—men to watch;
This—of the few of the Count's very household

You must, however reluctantly, arrest;
While here's a method of remonstrance—
sure

Not stronger than the case demands—to take

With the Count's self.

Cha. Deliver those three papers.

Pol. [while CHARLES inspects them—to D'ORMEA]. Your measures are not over-harsh, sir: France

Will hardly be deterred from her intents
By these.

D'O. If who proposes might dispose,
I could soon satisfy you. Even these,
Hear what he'll say at my presenting!

Cha. [who has signed them]. There!
About the warrants! You've my signature.
What turns you pale? I do my duty by you
In acting boldly thus on your advice.

D'O. [reading them separately]. Arrest the people I suspected merely?

Cha. Did you suspect them?

D'O. Doubtless: but—but—sir,
This Forquiere's governor of Turin,
And Rivarol and he have influence over Half of the capital! Rabella, too?

Why, sir—
Cha. Oh, leave the fear to me!

D'O. [still reading]. You bid me
Incarcerate the people on this list?
Sir—

Cha. But you never bade arrest those
men,
So close related to my father too,
On trifling grounds?

D'O. Oh, as for that, St. George,
President of Chambery's senators,
Is hatching treason! still—

[More troubled.] Sir, Count Cumiane Is brother to your father's wife! What's
here?

Arrest the wife herself?

Cha. You seem to think
A venial crime this plot against me. Well?

D'O. [who has read the last paper].
Wherefore am I thus ruined? Why not take

My life at once? This poor formality
Is, let me say, unworthy you! Prevent it You, madam! I have served you, am prepared

For all disgraces: only, let disgrace
Be plain, be proper—proper for the world
To pass its judgment on 'twixt you and me!
Take back your warrant, I will none of it!

Cha. Here is a man to talk of fickleness!
He stakes his life upon my father's false-
hood;

I bid him . . .

D'O. Not you! Were he trebly
false,

You do not bid me . . .

Cha. Is't not written there?
I thought so: give—I'll set it right.

D'O. Is it there?
Oh yes, and plain—arrest him now—drag
here

Your father! And were all six times as plain,

Do you suppose I trust it?

Cha. Just one word!
You bring him, taken in the act of flight,
Or else your life is forfeit.

D'O. Ay, to Turin
I bring him, and to-morrow?

Cha. Here and now!
The whole thing is a lie, a hateful lie,
As I believed and as my father said.

I knew it from the first, but was compelled
To circumvent you; and the great
D'Ormea,

That baffled Alberoni and tricked Coscia,
The miserable sower of such discord

'Twixt sire and son, is in the toils at last.
Oh I see! you arrive—this plan of yours,
Weak as it is, torments sufficiently

A sick old peevish man—wings hasty
speech,

An ill-considered threat from him; that's noted;

Then out you ferret papers, his amusement
In lonely hours of lassitude—examine

The day-by-day report of your paid spies—
And back you come: all was not ripe, you
find,

And, as you hope, may keep from ripening
yet,

But you were in bare time! Only, 'twere
best

I never saw my father—these old men
Are potent in excuses: and meanwhile,
D'Ormea's the man I cannot do without!

Pol. Charles—

Cha. Ah, no question! You against me too!

You'd have me eat and drink and sleep,
live, die

With this lie coiled about me, choking me!
No, no, D'Ormea! You venture life, you
say,

Upon my father's perfidy: and I
Have, on the whole, no right to disregard

The chains of testimony you thus wind
About me; though I do—do from my soul

Discredit them: still I must authorize These measures, and I will. Perugia!

[Many Officers enter.] Count—
You and Solar, with all the force you have,

Stand at the Marquis' orders: what he bids Implicitly perform! You are to bring

A traitor here; the man that's likeliest one
At present, fronts me; you are at his beck

For a full hour! he undertakes to show
A fouler than himself,—but, failing that,

Return with him, and, as my father lives,
He dies this night! The clemency you
blame

So oft, shall be revoked—rights exercised,
Too long abjured.

[To D'ORMEA.] Now sir, about the
work!

To save your king and country! Take the warrant!

D'O. You hear the sovereign's mandate, Count Perugia?

Obey me! As your diligence, expect Reward! All follow to Moncagli!

Cha. [in great anguish]. D'Ormea!
[D'ORMEA goes.]

He goes, lit up with that appalling smile!
[To POLYXENA, after a pause.]

At least you understand all this?

Pol. These means
Of our defence—these measures of precaution?

Cha. It must be the best way; I should have else

Withered beneath his scorn.

Pol. What would you say?

Cha. Why, do you think I mean to keep the crown,

Polyxena?

Pol. You then believe the story
In spite of all—that Victor comes?

Cha. Believe it?
I know that he is coming—feel the strength

That has upheld me leave me at his coming!
'Twas mine, and now he takes his own again.

Some kinds of strength are well enough to have;

But who's to have that strength? Let my crown go!

I meant to keep it; but, I cannot—canpot! Only, he shall not taunt me—he, the first . . .

See if he would not be the first to taunt me With having left his kingdom at a word.

With letting it be conquered without stroke,

With . . . no—no—'tis no worse than when he left!

I've just to bid him take it, and, that over, We'll fly away—fly, for I loathe this Turin, This Rivoli, all titles loathe, all state.

We'd best go to your country—unless God Send I die now!

Pol. Charles, hear me!

Cha. And again Shall you be my Polyxena—you'll take me Out of this woe! Yes, do speak, and keep speaking!

I would not let you speak just now, for fear

You'd counsel me against him: but talk, now,

As we two used to talk in blessed times: Bid me endure all his caprices; take me From this mad post above him!

Pol. I believe We are undone, but from a different cause. All your resources, down to the least guard, Are at D'Ormea's beck. What if, the while, He act in concert with your father? We Indeed were lost. This lonely Rivoli— Where find a better place for them?

Cha. [pacing the room]. And why Does Victor come? To undo all that's done,

Restore the past, prevent the future! Seat His mistress in your seat, and place in mine . . . Oh, my own people, whom will you find there,

To ask of, to consult with, to care for, To hold up with your hands? Whom? One that's false—

False—from the head's crown to the foot's sole, false!

The best is, that I knew it in my heart From the beginning, and expected this, And hated you, Polyxena, because You saw thro' him, though I too saw thro' him,

Saw that he meant this while he crowned me, while

He prayed for me,—nay, while he kissed my brow,

I saw—

Pol. But if your measures take effect, D'Ormea true to you?

Cha.

Then worst of all!

I shall have loosed that callous wretch on him!

Well may the woman taunt him with his child—

I, eating here his bread, clothed in his clothes,

Seated upon his seat, let slip D'Ormea To outrage him! We talk—perchance he tears

My father from his bed; the old hands feel

For one who is not, but who should be there,

He finds D'Ormea! D'Ormea too finds him!

The crowded chamber when the lights go out—

Closed doors—the horrid scuffle in the dark—

The accursed prompting of the minute! My guards!

To horse—and after, with me—and prevent!

Pol. [seizing his hand]. King Charles! Pause here upon this strip of time Allotted you out of eternity!

Crowns are from God: you in his name hold yours.

Your life's no least thing, were it fit your life

Should be abjured along with rule; but now,

Keep both! Your duty is to live and rule—

You, who would vulgarly look fine enough In the world's eye, deserting your soul's charge,—

Ay, you would have men's praise, this Rivoli

Would be illumined! While, as 'tis, no doubt,

Something of staid will ever rest on you; No one will rightly know why you refused

To abdicate; they'll talk of deed; you could Have done, no doubt,—nor do I much expect

Future achievement will blot out the past, Envelope it in haze—nor shall we two

Live happy any more. 'Twill be, I feel, Only in moments that the duty's seen

As palpably as now: the months, the years Of painful indistinctness are to come,

While daily must we tread these palace-rooms

Pregnant with memories of the past: your eye

May turn to mine and find no comfort there,

Through fancies that beset me, as yourself, Of other courses, with far other issues,

We might have taken this great night: such bear,

As I will bear! What matters happiness?

Duty! There's man's one moment: this is yours!

[Putting the crown on his head, and the sceptre in his hand, she places him on his seat: a long pause and silence.]

Enter D'ORMEA and VICTOR, with Guards.

Vic. At last I speak; but once—that once, to you!

'Tis you I ask, not these your varletry, Who's King of us?

Cha. [from his seat]. Count Tende . . . Vic. What your spies

Assert I ponder in my soul, I say— Here to your face, amid your guards! I choose

To take again the crown whose shadow I gave—

For still its potency surrounds the weak White locks their felon hands have discomposed.

Or I'll not ask who's King, but simply, who Withholds the crown I claim? Deliver it! I have no friend in the wide world: nor France

Nor England cares for me: you see the sum Of what I can avail. Deliver it!

Cha. Take it, my father!

And now say in turn, Was it done well, my father—sure not well, To try me thus! I might have seen much cause

For keeping it—too easily seen cause! But, from that moment, e'en more woe-fully

My life had pined away, than pine it will. Already you have much to answer for. My life to pine is nothing,—her sunk eyes Were happy once! No doubt, my people think

I am their King still . . . but I cannot strive! Take it!

Vic. [one hand on the crown CHARLES offers, the other on his neck]. So few years give it quietly,

My son! It will drop from me. See you not? A crown's unlike a sword to give away— That, let a strong hand to a weak hand give! But crowns should slip from palsied brows to heads

Young as this head: yet mine is weak enough,

E'en weaker than I knew. I seek for phrases To vindicate my right. 'Tis of a piece! All is alike gone by with me—who beat Once D'Orleans in his lines—his very lines! To have been Eugene's comrade, Louis's rival,

And now . . .

Cha. [putting the crown on him, to the rest]. The King speaks, yet none kneels, I think!

Vic. I am then King! As I became a King

Despite the nations, kept myself a King, So I die King, with Kingship dying too Around me. I have lasted Europe's time. What wants my story of completion?

Where

Must needs the damning break show?

Who mistrusts

My children here—tell they of any break 'Twixt my day's sunrise and its fiery fall?

And who were by me when I died but they? D'Ormea there!

Cha. What means he?

Vic. Ever there!

Charles—how to save your story! Mine must go.

Say—say that you refused the crown to me! Charles, yours shall be my story! You immured

Me, say, at Rivoli. A single year I spend without a sight of you, then die. That will serve every purpose—tell that tale

The world!

Cha. Mistrust me? Help!

Vic. Past help, past reach!

'Tis in the heart—you cannot reach the heart:

This broke mine, that I did believe, you, Charles,

Would have denied me and disgraced me. Pol. Charles

Has never ceased to be your subject, sir! He reigned at first through setting up yourself

As pattern: if he e'er seemed harsh to you,

'Twas from a too intense appreciation Of your own character: he acted you— Ne'er for an instant did I think it real, Nor look for any other than this end.

I hold him worlds the worse on that account;

But so it was.

Cha. [to POLYXENA]. I love you now indeed.

[To VICTOR.] You never knew me.

Vic. Hardly till this moment,

When I seem learning many other things Because the time for using them is past.

If 'twere to do again! That's idly wished. Truthfulness might prove policy as good As guile. Is this my daughter's forehead?

Yes:

I've made it fitter now to be a queen's Than formerly: I've ploughed the deep lines there

Which keep too well a crown from slipping off.

No matter. Guile has made me King again. Louis—'twas in King Victor's time:—long since,

When Louis reigned and, also, Victor reigned.

How the world talks already of us D'Ormea! Nearer to your King! Now two! stand!
 God of eclipse and each discoloured [Collecting his strength as D'ORMEA ap-star, proaches.
 Why do I linger then? You lied, D'Ormea! I do not repent.
 Ha! Where lurks he? [Dies.

DRAMATIC LYRICS

CAVALIER TUNES

I

MARCHING ALONG

I

KENTISH Sir Byng stood for his King,
 Bidding the crop-headed Parliament swing:
 And, pressing a troop unable to stoop
 And see the rogues flourish and honest folk droop,
 Marched them along, fifty-score strong,
 Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song.

II

God for King Charles! Pym and such carles
 To the Devil that prompts 'em their treasonous parles!
 Cavaliers, up! Lips from the cup,
 Hands from the pasty, nor bite take nor sup Till you're—

CHORUS.—*Marching along, fifty-score
 strong,
 Great-hearted gentlemen,
 singing this song.*

III

Hampden to hell, and his obsequies' knell Serve Hazelrig, Fiennes, and young Harry
 as well!
 England, good cheer! Rupert is near!
 Kentish and loyalists, keep we not here

CHORUS.—*Marching along, fifty-score
 strong,
 Great-hearted gentlemen,
 singing this song?*

IV

Then, God for King Charles! Pym and his snarls
 To the Devil that pricks on such pestilent
 carles!
 Hold by the right, you double your might;
 So, onward to Nottingham, fresh for the fight,

CHORUS.—*March we along, fifty-score
 strong,
 Great-hearted gentlemen,
 singing this song!*

II GIVE A ROUSE

I

King Charles, and who'll do him right
 now?
 King Charles, and who's ripe for fight
 now?
 Give a rouse: here's, in hell's despite now,
 King Charles!

II

Who gave me the goods that went since?
 Who raised me the house that sank once?
 Who helped me to gold I spent since?
 Who found me in wine you drank once?

CHORUS.—*King Charles, and who'll do
 him right now?
 King Charles, and who's ripe
 for fight now?
 Give a rouse: here's, in hell's
 despite now,
 King Charles!*

III

To whom used my boy George quaff else,
 By the old fool's side that begot him?
 For whom did he cheer and laugh else,
 While Noll's damned troopers shot him?

CHORUS.—*King Charles, and who'll do
 him right now?
 King Charles, and who's ripe
 for fight now?
 Give a rouse: here's, in hell's
 despite now,
 King Charles!*

III

BOOT AND SADDLE

I

Boot, saddle, to horse, and away!
 Rescue my castle before the hot day
 Brightens to blue from its silvery grey, CHORUS.—*Boot, saddle, to horse, and
 away!*

II

Ride past the suburbs, asleep as you'd say;
 Many's the friend there, will listen and pray
 'God's luck to gallants that strike up the lay—

CHORUS.—*'Boot, saddle, to horse, and
 away!'*

CAVALIER TUNES

III

Forty miles off, like a roebuck at bay, Flouts Castle Brancepeth the Roundheads' array:

Who laughs, 'Good fellows ere this, by my fay,

CHORUS.—'Boot, saddle, to horse, and
away!'

IV

Who? My wife Gertrude; that, honest and gay,
Laughs when you talk of surrendering,
'Nay!

'I've better counsellors; what counsel they?

CHORUS.—'Boot, saddle, to horse, and
away!'

THE LOST LEADER

I

JUST for a handful of silver he left us,
Just for a riband to stick in his coat—
Found the one gift of which fortune bereft
us,

Lost all the others she lets us devote;
They, with the gold to give, doled him out silver,

So much was theirs who so little allowed:
How all our copper had gone for his service!

Rags—were they purple, his heart had been proud!

We that had loved him so, followed him,
honoured him,

Lived in his mild and magnificent eye, Learned his great language, caught his clear accents,

Made him our pattern to live and to die!
Shakespeare was of us, Milton was for us, Burns, Shelley, were with us,—they watch from their graves!

He alone breaks from the van and the free-
men,

—He alone sinks to the rear and the slaves!

II

We shall march prospering,—not thro' his presence;

Songs may inspirit us,—not from his lyre;

Deeds will be done,—while he boasts his quiescence,

Still bidding crouch whom the rest bade
aspire:

Blot out his name, then, record one lost soul more,

One task more declined, one more footpath untrod,

One more devils'-triumph and sorrow for angels,

One wrong more to man, one more insult to God!

Life's night begins: let him never come back to us!

There would be doubt, hesitation and
pain,

Forced praise on our part—the glimmer of
twilight,

Never glad confident morning again!

Best fight on well, for we taught him—
strike gallantly,

Menace our heart ere we master his own;

Then let him receive the new knowledge and wait us,

Pardoned in heaven, the first by the throne!

'HOW THEY BROUGHT THE GOOD NEWS FROM GHENT TO AIX'

[16—]

I

I SPRANG to the stirrup, and Joris, and he;
I galloped, Dirck galloped, we galloped all three;

'Good speed!' cried the watch, as the gate-bolts undrew;

'Speed!' echoed the wall to us galloping
through;

Behind shut the postern, the lights sank to
rest,

And into the midnight we galloped abreast.

II

Not a word to each other; we kept the great pace

Neck by neck, stride by stride, never changing our place;

I turned in my saddle and made its girths tight,

Then shortened each stirrup, and set the pique right,

Rebuckled the cheek-strap, chained slacker
the bit,

Nor galloped less steadily Roland a whit.

III

'Twas moonset at starting; but while we drew near

Lokeren, the cocks crew and twilight dawned clear;

At Boom, a great yellow star came out to
see;

At Duffeld, 'twas morning as plain as could be;

And from Mecheln church-steeple we heard the half-chime,

So, Joris broke silence with, 'Yet there is
time!'

IV

At Aershot, up leaped of a sudden the sun,
And against him the cattle stood black every one,

HOW THEY BROUGHT THE GOOD NEWS

To stare thro' the mist at us galloping past,
And I saw my stout galloper Roland at last,
With resolute shoulders, each butting away
The haze, as some bluff river headland its spray:

v

And his low head and crest, just one sharp ear bent back

For my voice, and the other pricked out on his track;

And one eye's black intelligence,—ever that glance

O'er its white edge at me, his own master, askance!

And the thick heavy spume-flakes which aye and anon

His fierce lips shook upwards in galloping
on.

vi

By Hasselt, Dirck groaned; and cried Joris,
'Stay spur!

'Your Roos galloped bravely, the fault's not in her,

'We'll remember at Aix'—for one heard the quick wheeze

Of her chest, saw the stretched neck and staggering knees,

And sunk tail, and horrible heave of the flank,

As down on her haunches she shuddered and sank.

vii

So, we were left galloping, Joris and I, Past Looz and past Tongres, no cloud in the sky;

The broad sun above laughed a pitiless
laugh,

'Neath our feet broke the brittle bright stubble like chaff;

Till over by Dalhem a dome-spire sprang
white,

And 'Gallop,' gasped Joris, 'for Aix is in sight!'

viii

'How they'll greet us!'—and all in a moment his roan

Rolled neck and croup over, lay dead as a stone;

And there was my Roland to bear the whole weight

Of the news which alone could save Aix from her fate,

With his nostrils like pits full of blood to the brim,

And with circles of red for his eye-sockets'
rim.

ix

Then I cast loose my buffcoat, each I let let fall,

* Shook off both my jack-boots, let go belt
and all,

Stood up in the stirrup, leaned, patted his
ear,

Called my Roland his pet-name, my horse without peer;

Clapped my hands, laughed and sang, any noise, bad or good,

Till at length into Aix Roland galloped and stood.

x

And all I remember is—friends flocking
round

As I sat with his head 'twixt my knees on the ground;

And no voice but was praising this Roland
of mine,

As I poured down his throat our last measure of wine,

Which (the burgesses voted by common consent)

Was no more than his due who brought good news from Ghent.

THROUGH THE METIDJA TO ABD-EL-KADR

i

As I ride, as I ride,
With a full heart for my guide,
So its tide rocks my side,
As I ride, as I ride,
That, as I were double-eyed,
He, in whom our Tribes confide,
Is descried, ways untried
As I ride, as I ride.

ii

As I ride, as I ride
To our Chief and his Allied,
Who dares chide my heart's pride
As I ride, as I ride?
Or are witnesses denied—
Through the desert waste and wide
Do I glide unespied
As I ride, as I ride?

iii

As I ride, as I ride,
When an inner voice has cried,
The sands slide, nor abide
(As I ride, as I ride)
O'er each visioned homicide
That came vaunting (has he lied?)
To reside—where he died,
As I ride, as I ride.

iv

As I ride, as I ride,
Ne'er has spur my swift horse plied,
Yet his hide, streaked and pied,
As I ride, as I ride,

THROUGH THE METIDJA TO ABD-EL-KADR

Shows where sweat has 'sprung and dried,
—Zebra-footed, ostrich-thighed—
How has vied stride with stride
As I ride, as I ride!

v

As I ride, as I ride,
Could I loose what Fate has tied,
Ere I pried, she should hide
(As I ride, as I ride)
All that's meant me—satisfied
When the Prophet and the Bride Stops veins I'd have subside
As I ride, as I ride!

NATIONALITY IN DRINKS

I

My heart sank with our Claret-flask,
Just now, beneath the heavy sedges
That serve this pond's black face for mask;
And still at yonder broken edges
O' the hole, where up the bubbles glisten,
After my heart I look and listen.

II

Our laughing little flask, compelled Thro' depth to depth more bleak and shady;
As when, both arms beside her held,
Feet straightened out, some gay French lady
Is caught up from life's light and motion,
And dropped into death's silent ocean!

Up jumped Tokay on our table,
Like a pygmy castle-warder, Dwarfish to see, but stout and able,
Arms and accoutrements all in order;
And fierce he looked North, then, wheeling South,
Blew with his bugle a challenge to Drouth, Cocked his flap-hat with the tosspotfeather,

Twisted his thumb in his red moustache,
Jingled his huge brass spurs together,
Tightened his waist with its Buda sash,
And then, with an impudence nought could abash,
Shrugged his hump-shoulder, to tell the beholder,

For twenty such knaves he should laugh
but the bolder:

And so, with his sword-hilt gallantly jutting,
And dexter-hand on his haunch abutting,
Went the little man, Sir Ausbruch, strutting!

Here's to Nelson's memory!
'Tis the second time that I, at sea,
Right off Cape Trafalgar here,
Have drunk it deep in British Beer.
Nelson for ever—any time

Am I his to command in prose or rhyme!
Give me of Nelson only a touch,
And I save it, be it little or much:
Here's one our Captain gives, and so
Down at the word, by George, shall it go!
He says that at Greenwich they point the beholder

To Nelson's coat, 'still with tar on the shoulder:

'For he used to lean with one shoulder digging,
'Jigging, as it were, and zig-zag-zigging
'Up against the mizen-rigging!

GARDEN FANCIES

I

THE FLOWER'S NAME

I

HERE's the garden she walked across,
Arm in my arm, such a short while since:
Hark, now I push its wicket, the moss Hinders the hinges and makes them
'wince!
She must have reached this shrub ere she turned,
As back with that murmur the wicket swung;
For she laid the poor snail, my chance foot
spurned,
To feed and forget it the leaves among.

II

Down this side of the gravel-walk
She went while her robe's edge brushed the box:
And here she paused in her gracious talk
To point me a moth on the milk-white phlox.
Roses, ranged in valiant row,
I will never think that she passed you by!
She loves you noble roses, I know;
But yonder, see, where the rock-plants lie!

III

This flower she stopped at, finger on lip, Stooped over, in doubt, as settling its claim;
Till she gave me, with pride to make no slip,
Its soft meandering Spanish name:
What a name! Was it love or praise?
Speech half-asleep or song half-awake?
I must learn Spanish, one of these days,
'Only for that slow sweet name's sake.

IV

Roses, if I live and do well,
I may bring her, one of these days,
To fix you fast with as fine a spell,
Fit for you each with his Spanish phrase;
But do not detain me now; for she lingers
There, like sunshine over the ground,
And ever I see her soft white fingers
Searching after the bud she found.

V

Flower, you Spaniard, look that you grow
not,
Stay as you are and be loved for ever!
Bud, if I kiss you 'tis that you blow not:
Mind, the shut pink mouth opens never!
For while it pouts, her fingers wrestle,
Twinkling the audacious leaves between,
Till round they turn and down they nestle—
Is not the dear mark still to be seen?

VI

Where I find her not, beauties vanish;
Whither I follow her, beauties flee;
Is there no method to tell her in Spanish June's twice June since she breathed it
with me?
Come, bud, show me the least of her traces,
Treasure my lady's lightest footfall!
—Ah, you may flout and turn up your faces—
Roses, you are not so fair after all!

II

SIBRANDUS SCHAFNABURGENSIS

I

Plague take all your pedants, say I!
He who wrote what I hold in my hand,
Centuries back was so good as to die,
Leaving this rubbish to cumber the land;
This, that was a book in its time,
Printed on paper and bound in leather,
Last month in the white of a matin-prime
Just when the birds sang all together.

II

Into the garden I brought it to read,
And under the arbut and laurustine
Read it, so help me grace in my need,
From title-page to closing line.
Chapter on chapter did I count,
As a curious traveller counts Stonehenge;
Added up the mortal amount;
And then proceeded to my revenge.

III

Yonder's a plum-tree with a crevice
An owl would build in, were he but sage;
For a lap of moss, like a fine pont-levis
In a castle of the Middle Age,
Joins to a lip of gum, pure amber;
When he'd be private, there might he
spend
Hours alone in his lady's chamber:
Into this crevice I dropped our friend.

IV

Splash, went he, as under he ducked,
—At the bottom, I knew, rain-droppings stagnate:
Next, a handful of blossoms I plucked To bury him with, my bookshelf's magnate;

Then I went in-doors, brought out a loaf,
Half a cheese, and a bottle of Chablis;
Lay on the grass and forgot the oaf
Over a jolly chapter of Rabelais.

V

Now, this morning, betwixt the moss
And gum that locked our friend in limbo,
A spider had spun his web across,
And sat in the midst with arms akimbo.
So, I took pity, for learning's sake,
And, de profundis, accentibus lætis,
Cantate! quoth I, as I got a rake;
And up I fished his delectable treatise.

VI

Here you have it, dry in the sun,
With all the binding all of a blister,
And great blue spots where the ink has run,
And reddish streaks that wink and glisten
O'er the page so beautifully yellow:
Oh, well have the droppings played their tricks!
Did he guess how toadstools grow, this fellow?
Here's one stuck in his chapter six!

VII

How did he like it when the live creatures Tickled and toused and browsed him all
over,
And worm, slug, eft, with serious features,
Came in, each one, for his right of trove?
—When the water-beetle with great blind deaf face
Made of her eggs the stately deposit,
And the newt borrowed just so much of the preface
As tiled in the top of his black wife's closet?

VIII

All that life and fun and romping,
All that frisking and twisting and coup-
ling,
While slowly our poor friend's leaves were swamping
And clasps were cracking and covers suppling!
As if you had carried sour John Knox
To the play-house at Paris, Vienna or Munich,
Fastened him into a front-row box,
And danced off the ballet with trousers and tunic.

IX

Come, old martyr! What, torment enough is it?
Back to my room shall you take your sweet self.
Good-bye, mother-beetle; husband-eft, sufficit!
See the snug niche I have made on my shelf!

GARDEN FANCIES

A.'s book shall prop you up, B.'s shall cover you,
Here's C. to be grave with, or D. to be
gay,
And with E. on each side, and F. right over
you,
Dry-rot at ease till the Judgment-day!

SOLILOQUY OF THE SPANISH CLOISTER

I

GR-R-R—there go, my heart's abhorrence!
Water your damned flower-pots, do!
If hate killed men, Brother Lawrence,
God's blood, would not mine kill you!
What? your myrtle-bush wants trimming?
Oh, that rose has prior claims—
Needs its leaden vase filled brimming?
Hell dry you up with its flames!

II

At the meal we sit together:
Salve tibi! I must hear
Wise talk of the kind of weather,
Sort of season, time of year:
Not a plenteous cork-crop: scarcely Dare we hope oak-galls, I doubt:
What's the Latin name for 'parsley'?
What's the Greek name for Swine's Snout?

III

Whew! We'll have our platter burnished,
Laid with care on our own shelf!
With a fire-new spoon we're furnished,
And a goblet for ourself,
Rinsed like something sacrificial Ere 'tis fit to touch our chaps—
Marked with L. for our initial!
(He-he! There his lily flaps!)

IV

Saint, forsooth! While brown Dolores Squats outside the Convent bank
With Sanchicha, telling stories,
Steeping tresses in the tank,
Blue-black, lustrous, thick like horsehairs,
—Can't I see his dead eye glow,
Bright as 'twere a Barbary corsair's?
(That is, if he'd let it show!)

V

When he finishes refection,
Knife and fork he never lays Cross-wise, to my recollection,
As do I, in Jesu's praise.
I the Trinity illustrate,
Drinking watered orange-pulp—
In three sips the Arjan frustrate;
While he drains his at one gulp.

VI

Oh, those melons? If he's able
We're to have a feast!! so nice!
One goes to the Abbot's table,
All of us get each a slice.
How go on your flowers? None double?
Not one fruit-sort can you spy?
Strange!—And I, too, at such trouble,
Keep them close-nipped on the sly!

VII

There's a great text in Galatians,
Once you trip on it, entails
Twenty-nine distinct damnations,
One sure, if another fails:
If I trip him just a-dying,
Sure of heaven as sure can be,
Spin him round and send him flying
Off to hell, a Manichee?

VIII

Or, my scrofulous French novel
On grey paper with blunt type!
Simply glance at it, you grovel
Hand and foot in Belial's gripe:
If I double down its pages
At the woeful sixteenth print,
When he gathers his greengages,
Ope a sieve and slip it in't?

IX

Or, there's Satan!—one might venture
Pledge one's soul to him, yet leave
Such a flaw in the indenture
As he'd miss till, past retrieve, Blasted lay that rose-acacia
We're so proud of! Hy, Zy, Hine . . .
'St, there's Vespers! Plena gratia
Ave, Virgo! Gr-r-r—you swine!

THE LABORATORY

ANCIEN RÉGIME

I

Now that I, tying thy glass mask tightly,
May gaze thro' these faint smokes curling whitely,
As thou pliest thy trade in this devil's-smithy—
Which is the poison to poison her, prithee?

II

He is with her, and they know that I know Where they are, what they do: they believe my tears flow
While they laugh, laugh at me, at me fled to the dear
Empty church, to pray God in, for them!
—I am here.

III

Grind away, moisten and mash up thy paste,
Pound at thy powder,—I am not in haste!

THE LABORATORY

Better sit thus, and observe thy strange
things,
Than go where men wait me and dance at the King's!

IV

That in the mortar—you call it a gum?
Ah, the brave tree—whence such gold ooz-ings come!
And yonder soft phial, the exquisite blue,
Sure to taste sweetly,—is that poison too?

V

Had I but all of them, thee and thy treasures,
What a wild crowd of invisible pleasures!
To carry pure death in an earring, a casket,
A signet, a fan-mount, a filigree basket!

VI

Soon, at the King's, a mere lozenge to give,
And Paulines should have just thirty minutes to live!
But to light a pastile, and Elisc, with her
head
And her breast and her arms and her hands, should drop dead!

VII

Quick—is it finished? The colour's too
grim!
Why not soft like the phial's, enticing and
dim?
Let it brighten her drink, let her turn it and
stir,
And try it and taste, ere she fix and prefer!

VIII

What a drop! She's not little, no minion like me!
That's why she ensnared him: this never will free
The soul from those masculine eyes,—say,
'no!'
To that pulse's magnificent come-and-go.

IX

For only last night, as they whispered, I
brought
My own eyes to bear on her so, that I
thought
Could I keep them one half minute fixed,
she would fall
Shrivelled; she fell not; yet this does it all!

X

Not that I bid you spare her the pain;
Let death be felt and the proof remain:
Brand, burn up, bite into its grace—
He is sure to remember her dying face!

XI

Is it done? Take my mask off! Nay, be not morose;
It kills her, and this prevents seeing it close:

The delicate droplet, my whole fortune's fee!

If it hurts her, beside, can it ever hurt me?

XII

Now, take all my jewels, gorge gold to your fill,
You may kiss me, old man, on my mouth
'if you will!
But brush this dust off me, lest horror it brings Ere I know it—next moment I dance at the King's!

THE CONFESSIONAL

[SPAIN]

I

It is a lie—their Priests, their Pope,
Their Saints, their . . . all they fear or hope
Are lies, and lies—there! through my door
And ceiling, there! and walls and floor,
There, lies, they lie—shall still be hurled
Till spite of them I reach the world!

II

You think Priests just and holy men!
Before they put me in this den
I was a human creature too,
With flesh and blood like one of you,
A girl that laughed in beauty's pride
Like lilies in your world outside.

III

I had a lover—shame avault!
This poor wretched body, grim and gaunt,
Was kissed all over till it burned,
By lips the truest, love e'er turned His heart's own tint: one night they kissed
My soul out in a burning mist.

IV

So, next day when the accustomed train
Of things grew round my sense again,
'That is a sin,' I said: and slow
With downcast eyes to church I go,
And pass to the confession-chair,
And tell the old mild father there.

V

But when I falter Beltran's name,
'Ha?' quoth the father; 'much I blame
'The sin; yet wherefore idly grieve?
'Despair not—strenuously retrieve!
'Nay, I will turn this love of thine
'To lawful love, almost divine;

VI

'For he is young, and led astray,
'This Beltran, and he schemes, men say,
'To change the laws of church and state;
'So, thine shall be an angel's fate,
'Who, ere the thunder breaks, should roll
'Its cloud away and save his soul.

VII

'For, when he lies upon thy breast,
'Thou mayst demand and be possessed
'Of all his plans, and next day steal
'To me, and all those plans reveal,
'That I and every priest, to purge
'His soul, may fast and use the scourge.'

VIII

That father's beard was long and white,
With love and truth his brow seemed
bright;
I went back, all on fire with joy,
And, that same evening, bade the boy
Tell me, as lovers should, heart-free,
Something to prove his love of me.

IX

He told me what he would not tell
For hope of heaven or fear of hell;
And I lay listening in such pride!
And, soon as he had left my side,
Tripped to the church by morning-light
To save his soul in his despite.

X

I told the father all his schemes,
Who were his comrades, what their dreams;
'And now make haste,' I said, 'to pray
'The one spot from his soul away;
'To-night he comes, but not the same
'Will look!' At night he never came.

XI

Nor next night: on the after-morn,
I went forth with a strength new-born.
The church was empty; something drew
My steps into the street; I knew
It led me to the market-place:
Where, lo, on high, the father's face!

XII

That horrible black scaffold dressed,
That stapled block . . . God sink the rest!
That head stapped back, that blinding
vest,
Those knotted hands and naked breast,
Till near one busy hangman pressed,
And, on the neck these arms caressed . . .

XIII

No part in aught they hope or fear!
No heaven with them, no hell!—and here,
No earth, not so much space as pens
My body in their worst of dens
But shall bear God and man my cry,
Lies—lies, again—and still, they lie!

CRISTINA

I

SHE should never have looked at me
If she meant I should not love her!
There are plenty . . . men, you call such,
I suppose . . . she may discover

All her soul to, if she pleases,
And yet leave much as she found them:
But I'm not so, and she knew it
When she fixed me, glancing round
them.

II

What? To fix me thus meant nothing?
But I can't tell (there's my weakness)
What her look said!—no vile cant, sure,
About 'need to strew the bleakness
'Of some lone shore with its pearl-seed.
'That the sea feels'—no 'strange yearn-
ing
'That such souls have, most to lavish
'Where there's chance of least returning.'

III

Oh, we're sunk enough here, God knows!
But not quite so sunk that moments,
Sure tho' seldom, are denied us,
When the spirit's true endowments
Stand out plainly from its false ones,
And apprise it if pursuing
Or the right way or the wrong way,
To its triumph or undoing.

IV

There are flashes struck from midnights,
There are fire-flames noondays kindle,
Whereby piled-up honours perish,
Whereby swollen ambitions dwindle,
While just this or that poor impulse,
Which for once had play unstified,
Seems the sole work of a life-time
That away the rest have trifled.

V

Doubt you if, in some such moment,
As she fixed me, she felt clearly,
Ages past the soul existed,
Here an age 'tis resting merely,
And hence fleets again for ages,
While the true end, sole and single,
It stops here for is, this love-way,
With some other soul to mingle?

VI

Else it loses what it lived for,
And eternally must lose it;
Better ends may be in prospect,
Deeper blisses (if you choose it),
But this life's end and this love-bliss
Have been lost here. Doubt you whether
This she felt as, looking at me,
Mine and her souls rushed together?

Oh, observe! Of course, next moment,
The world's honours, in derision,
Trampled out the light for ever:
Never fear but there's provision

Of the devil's to quench knowledge
 Lest we walk the earth in rapture!
 —Making those who catch God's secret
 Just so much more prize their capture!

VIII

Such am I: the secret's mine now!
 She has lost me, I have gained her;
 Her soul's mine: and thus, grown perfect,
 I shall pass my life's remainder.
 Life will just hold out the proving Both our powers, alone and blended:
 And then, come next life quickly!
 This world's use will have been ended.

THE LOST MISTRESS

I

ALL'S over, then: does truth sound bitter
 As one at first believes?
 Hark, 'tis the sparrows' good-night twitter
 About your cottage eaves!

II

And the leaf-buds on the vine are woolly,
 I noticed that, to-day;
 One day more bursts them open fully
 —You know the red turns grey.

III

To-morrow we meet the same then, dearest?
 May I take your hand in mine?
 Mere friends are we,—well, friends the merest
 Keep much that I resign:

IV

For each glance of the eye so bright and
 black,
 Though I keep with heart's endeavour,— Your voice, when you wish the snowdrops
 back,
 Though it stay in my soul for ever!—

V

Yet I will but say what mere friends say,
 Or only a thought stronger;
 I will hold your hand but as long as all
 may,
 Or so very little longer!

EARTH'S IMMORTALITIES

FAME

SEE, as the prettiest graves will do in time,
 Our poet's wants the freshness of its prime;
 Spite of the sexton's browsing horse, the sods
 Have struggled through its binding osier rods;

Headstone and half-sunk footstone lean
 awry,
 Wanting the brick-work promised by-
 and-by;
 How the minute grey lichens, plate o'er plate,
 Have softened down the crisp-cut name and date!

LOVE

So, the year's done with!
 (Love me for ever!)
 All March begun with,
 April's endeavour;
 May-wreaths that bound me
 June needs must sever;
 Now snows fall round me,
 Quenching June's fever—
 (Love me for ever!)

MEETING AT NIGHT

I

THE grey sea and the long black land;
 And the yellow half-moon large and low;
 And the startled little waves that leap
 In fiery ringlets from their sleep,
 As I gain the cove with pushing prow,
 And quench its speed i' the slushy sand.

II

Then a mile of warm sea-scented beach;
 Three fields to cross till a farm appears;
 A tap at the pane, the quick sharp scratch
 And blue spurt of a lighted match,
 And a voice less loud, thro' its joys and
 fears,
 Than the two hearts beating each to each!

PARTING AT MORNING

ROUND the cape of a sudden came the sea,
 And the sun looked over the mountain's
 rim:
 And straight was a path of gold for him,
 And the need of a world of men for me.

SONG

I

NAY but you, who do not love her,
 Is she not pure gold, my mistress?
 Holds earth aught—speak truth—above
 her?
 Aught like this tress, see, and this tress,
 And this last fairest tress of all,
 So fair, see, ere I let it fall?

II

Because, you spend your lives in praising;
 To praise, you search the wide world
 over:
 Then why not witness, calmly gazing,
 If earth holds aught—speak truth—above her?
 Above this tress, and this, I touch
 But cannot praise, I love so much!

A WOMAN'S LAST WORD

A WOMAN'S LAST WORD

I

LET's contend no more, Love,
Strive nor weep:
All be as before, Love,
—Only sleep!

II

What so wild as words are?
I and thou
In debate, as birds are,
Hawk on bough!

III

See the creature stalking
While we speak!
Hush and hide the talking,
Cheek on cheek!

IV

What so false as truth is,
False to thee?
Where the serpent's tooth is Shun the tree—

V

Where the apple reddens
Never pry—
Lest we lose our Edens,
Eve and I.

VI

Be a god and hold me
With a charm!
Be a man and fold me
With thine arm!

VII

Teach me, only teach, Love!
As I ought
I will speak thy speech, Love,
Think thy thought—

VIII

Meet, if thou require it,
Both demands,
Laying flesh and spirit
In thy hands.

IX

That shall be to-morrow
Not to-night:
I must bury sorrow
Out of sight:

X

—Must a little weep, Love, (Foolish me!)
And so fall asleep, Love,
Loved by thee.

EVELYN HOPE

I

BEAUTIFUL Evelyn Hope is dead!
Sit and watch by her side an hour.
That is her book-shelf, this her bed;
She plucked that piece of geranium-
flower,
Beginning to die too, in the glass;
Little has yet been changed, I think:
The shutters are shut, no light may pass
Save two long rays thro' the hinge's chink.

II

Sixteen years old when she died!
Perhaps she had scarcely heard my
name;
It was not her time to love; beside,
Her life had many a hope and aim,
Duties enough and little cares,
And now was quiet, now astir,
Till God's hand beckoned unawares,—
And the sweet white brow is all of her.

III

Is it too late then, Evelyn Hope?
What, your soul was pure and true,
The good stars met in your horoscope,
Made you of spirit, fire and dew—
And, just because I was thrice as old
And our paths in the world diverged so
wide,
Each was nought to each, must I be told?
We were fellow mortals, nought beside?

IV

No, indeed! for God above
Is great to grant, as mighty to make,
And creates the love to reward the love:
I claim you still, for my own love's sake!
Delayed it may be for more lives yet,
Through worlds I shall traverse, not a few:
Much is to learn, much to forget
Ere the time be come for taking you.

V

But the time will come,—at last it will,
When, Evelyn Hope, what meant (I shall say)
In the lower earth, in the years long still,
That body and soul so pure and gay?
Why your hair was amber, I shall divine,
And your mouth of your own geranium's red—
And what you would do with me, in fine,
In the new life come in the old one's stead.

VI

I have lived (I shall say) so much since then,
Given up myself so many times,
Gained me the gains of various men,
Ransacked the ages, spoiled the climes;

Yet one thing, one, in my soul's full scope,
 Either I missed or itself missed me:
 And I want and find you, Evelyn Hope!
 What is the issue? let us see!

VII

I loved you, Evelyn, all the while.
 My heart seemed full as it could hold?
 There was place and to spare for the frank young smile,
 And the red young mouth, and the hair's young gold.
 So, hush,—I will give you this leaf to keep:
 See, I shut it inside the sweet cold hand!
 There, that is our secret: go to sleep!
 You will wake, and remember, and understand.

LOVE AMONG THE RUINS

I

WHERE the quiet-coloured end of evening smiles,
 Miles and miles
 On the solitary pastures where our sheep
 Half-asleep
 Tinkle homeward thro' the twilight, stray or stop
 As they crop—
 Was the site of a city great and gay,
 (So they say)
 Of our country's very capital, its prince Ages since
 Held his court in, gathered councils, wielding far
 Peace or war.

II

Now,—the country does not even boast a tree,
 As you see,
 To distinguish slopes of verdure, certain rills
 From the hills
 Intersect and give a name to, (else they run Into one)
 Where the domed and daring palace shot its spires
 Up like fires
 O'er the hundred-gated circuit of a wall
 Bounding all,
 Made of marble, men might march on nor be pressed,
 Twelve abreast.

III

And such plenty and perfection, see, of grass
 Never was!
 Such a carpet as, this summer-time, o'er-spreads
 And embeds
 Every vestige of the city, guessed alone,
 Stock or stone—

Where a multitude of men breathed joy and woe

Long ago;
 Lust of glory pricked their hearts up, dread of shame
 Struck them tame;
 And that glory and that shame alike, the gold
 Bought and sold.

IV

Now,—the single little turret that remains
 On the plains,
 By the caper overrooted, by the gourd
 Overscored,
 While the patching houseleek's head of blossom winks
 Thro' the chinks—
 Marks the basement whence a tower in ancient time

Sprang sublime,
 And a burning ring, all round, the chariots traced
 As they raced,
 And the monarch and his minions and his dames
 Viewed the games.

And I know, while thus the quiet-coloured eve
 Smiles to leave
 To their folding, all our many-tinkling fleece
 In such peace,
 And the slopes and rills in undistinguished grey Melt away—
 That a girl with eager eyes and yellow hair
 Waits me there
 In the turret whence the charioteers caught
 soul
 For the goal,
 When the king looked, where she looks now, breathless, dumb
 Till I come.

VI

But he looked upon the city, every side,
 Far and wide,
 All the mountains topped with temples,
 all the glades'
 Colonnades,
 All the causeys, bridges, aqueducts,—and
 then,
 All the men!
 When I do come, she will speak not, she will stand,
 Either hand
 On my shoulder, give her eyes the first embrace
 Of my face,
 Ere we rush, ere we extinguish sight and
 speech
 Each on each.

LOVE AMONG THE RUINS

In one year they sent a million fighters forth South and North,
And they built their gods a brazen pillar high

As the sky,
Yet reserved a thousand chariots in full force—

Gold, of course.
Oh heart! oh blood that freezes, blood that burns!

Earth's returns
For whole centuries of folly, noise and sin!

Shut them in,
With their triumphs and their glories and
the rest!

Love is best.

A LOVERS' QUARREL

I

Oh, what a dawn of day!
How the March sun feels like May!
All is blue again
After last night's rain,
And the South dries the hawthorn-spray.
Only, my Love's away!
I'd as lief that the blue were grey.

II

Runnels, which rilletts swell,
Must be darning down the dell,
With a foaming head
On the beryl bed
Paven smooth as a hermit's cell;
Each with a tale to tell,
Could my Love but attend as well.

III

Dearest, three months ago!
When we lived blocked-up with snow,
When the wind would edge
In and in his wedge,
In, as far as the point could go—
Not to our ingle, though,
Where we loved each the other so!

IV

Laughs with so little cause!
We devised games out of straws.
We would try and trace
One another's face
In the ash, as an artist draws;
Free on each other's flaws,
How we chattered like two church daws!

V

What's in the 'Times'?—a scold
At the Emperor deep and cold;
He has taken a bride
To his gruesome side,
That's as fair as himself is bold:
There they sit ermine-stoled,
And she powders her hair with gold.

VI

Fancy the Pampas' sheen!
Miles and miles of gold and green
Where the sunflowers blow
In a solid glow,
And—to break now and then the screen—
Black neck and eyeballs keen,
Up a wild horse leaps between!

VII

Try, will our table turn?
Lay your hands there light, and yearn
Till the yearning slips.
Thro' the finger-tips
In a fire which a few discern,
And a very few feel burn,
And the rest, they may live and learn!

VIII

Then we would up and pace,
For a change, about the place,
Each with arm o'er neck:
'Tis our quarter-deck,
We are seamen in woeful case.
Help in the ocean-space!
Or, if no help, we'll embrace.

IX

See, how she looks now, dressed
In a sledging-cap and vest!
'Tis a huge fur cloak—
Like a reindeer's yoke
Falls the lappet along the breast:
Sleeves for her arms to rest,
Or to hang, as my Love likes best.

X

Teach me to flirt a fan
As the Spanish ladies can,
Or I tint your lip
With a burnt stick's tip
And you turn into such a man!
Just the two spots that span
Half the bill of the young male swan.

XI

Dearest, three months ago
When the mesmerizer Snow
With his hand's first sweep
Put the earth to sleep:
'Twas a time when the heart could show
All—how was earth to know,
'Neath the mute hand's to-and-fro?

XII

Dearest, three months ago
When we loved each other so,
'Lived and loved the same
Till an evening came
When a shaft from the devil's bow
Pierced to our ingle-glow,
And the friends were friend and foe!

A LOVERS' QUARREL

XIII

Not from the heart beneath—
'Twas a bubble ~~born~~ of breath,
Neither sneer nor vaunt,
Nor reproach nor taunt.
See a word, how it severeth!
Oh, power of life and death
In the tongue, as the Preacher saith!

XIV

Woman, and will you cast
For a word, quite off at last
Me, your own, your You,— Since, as truth is true,
I was You all the happy past—
Me do you leave aghast
With the memories We amassed?

XV

Love, if you knew the light
That your soul casts in my sight,
How I look to you
For the pure and true
And the beautiful and the right,—
Bear with a moment's spite
When a mere mote threatens the white!

XVI

What of a hasty word?
Is the fleshly heart not stirred
By a worm's pin-prick
Where its roots are quick?
See the eye, by a fly's foot blurred—
Ear, when a straw is heard
Scratch the brain's coat of curd!

XVII

Foul be the world or fair
More or less, how can I care?
'Tis the world the same
For my praise or blame,
And endurance is easy there.
Wrong in the one thing rare—
Oh, it is hard to bear!

XVIII

Here's the spring back or close,
When the almond-blossom blows:
We shall have the word
In a minor third
There is none but the cuckoo knows:
Heaps of the guelder-rose!
I must bear with it, I suppose.

XIX

Could but November come,
Were the noisy birds struck dumb
At the warning slash
Of his driver's lash—
I would laugh like the valiant Thumb
Facing the castle glum
And the giant's fee-faw-fum!

XX

Then, were the world well stripped
Of the gear wherein equipped
We can stand apart,
Heart dispense with heart
In the sun, with the flowers unripped,— Oh, the world's hangings ripped,
We were both in a bare-walled crypt!

XXI

Each in the crypt would cry
'But one freezes here! and why?
'When a heart, as chill,
'At my own would thrill
'Back to life, and its fires out-fly?
'Heart, shall we live or die?
'The rest, . . . settle by-and-by!'

XXII

So, she'd efface the score,
And forgive me as before.
It is twelve o'clock:
I shall hear her knock
In the worst of a storm's uproar,
I shall pull her through the door,
I shall have her for evermore!

UP AT A VILLA—DOWN IN THE CITY

(AS DISTINGUISHED BY AN ITALIAN PERSON OF QUALITY)

I

HAD I but plenty of money, money enough and to spare,
The house for me, no doubt, were a house in the city-square;
Ah, such a life, such a life, as one leads at the window there!

II

Something to see, by Bacchus, something to hear, at least!
There, the whole day long, one's life is a perfect feast;
While up at a villa one lives, I maintain it, no more than a beast.

III

Well now, look at our villa! stuck like the horn of a bull
Just on a mountain-edge as bare as the creature's skull,
Save a mere shag of a bush with hardly a leaf to pull!
—I scratch my own, sometimes, to see if the hair's turned wool.

IV

But the city, oh the city—the square with the houses! Why?
They are stone-faced, white as a curd, there's something to take the eye!

UP AT A VILLA—DOWN IN THE CITY

Houses in four straight lines, not a single front awry;
You watch who crosses and gossips, who saunters, who hurries by;
Green blinds, as a matter of course, to draw when the sun gets high;
And the shops with fanciful signs which are painted properly.

V

What of a villa? Though winter be over in March by rights,
'Tis May perhaps ere the snow shall have withered well off the heights:
You've the brown ploughed land before, where the oxen steam and wheeze,
And the hills over-smoked behind by the faint grey olive-trees.

VI

Is it better in May, I ask you? You've summer all at once;
In a day he leaps complete with a few strong April suns.
'Mid the sharp short emerald wheat, scarce risen three fingers well,
The wild tulip, at end of its tube, blows out its great red bell
Like a thin clear bubble of blood, for the children to pick and scell.

VII

Is it ever hot in the square? There's a fountain to spout and splash!
In the shade it sings and springs; in the shine such foam-bows flash
On the horses with curling fish-tails, that prance and paddle and pash Round the lady atop in her conch—fifty gazers do not abash, Though all that she wears is some weeds round her waist in a sort of sash.

VIII

All the year long at the villa, nothing to see though you linger, Except yon cypress that points like death's lean lifted forefinger.
Some think fireflies pretty, when they mix i' the corn and mingle,
Or thrld the stinking hemp till the stalks of it seem a-tingle.
Late August or early September, the stunning cicala is shrill,
And the bees keep their tiresome whine round the resinous firs on the hill.
Enough of the seasons,—I spare you the months of the fever and chill.

IX

Ere you open your eyes in the city, the blessed church-bells begin:
No sooner the bells leave off than the diligence rattles in:
You get the pick of the news, and it costs you never a pin.

By-and-by there's the travelling doctor gives pills, lets blood, draws teeth;
Or the Pulcinello-trumpet breaks up the market beneath.

At the post-office such a scene-picture—the new play, piping hot!

And a notice how, only this morning, three liberal thieves were shot.

Above it, behold the Archbishop's most fatherly of rebukes,

And beneath, with his crown and his lion, some little new law of the Duke's!

Or a sonnet with flower-marge, to the Reverend Don So-and-so

Who is Dante, Boccaccio, Petrarca, Saint Jerome and Cicero,

'And moreover,' (the sonnet goes rhyming,) 'the skirts of Saint Paul has reached,

'Having preached us those six Lent-lectures more unctuous than ever he preached.'

Neon strikes,—here sweeps the procession! our Lady borne smiling and smart

With a pink gauze gown all spangles, and seven swords stuck in her heart!

Bang-whang-whang goes the drum, tootle-te-tootle the life;

No keeping one's haunches still: it's the greatest pleasure in life.

X

But bless you, it's dear—it's dear! fowls, wine, at double the rate.

They have clapped a new tax upon salt, and what oil pays passing the gate

It's a horror to think of. And so, the villa for me, not the city!

Beggars can scarcely be choosers: but still —ah, the pity, the pity!

Look, two and two go the priests, then the monks with cowls and sandals,

And the penitents dressed in white shirts, a-holding the yellow candles;

One, he carries a flag up straight, and another a cross with handles,

And the Duke's guard brings up the rear, for the better prevention of scandals:

Bang-whang-whang goes the drum, tootle-te-tootle the life.

Oh, a day in the city-square, there is no such pleasure in life!

A TOCCATA OF GALUPPI'S

OH Galuppi, Baldassaro, this is very sad to find!

I can hardly misconceive you; it would prove me deaf and blind;

But although I take your meaning, 'tis with such a heavy mind!

A TOCCATA OF GALUPPI'S

Here you come with your old music, and here's all the good it brings.
What, they lived on the ~~poor~~ at Venice where the merchants were the kings, Where Saint Mark's is, where the Doges used to wed the sea with rings?

III

Ay, because the sea's the street there; and
'tis arched by . . . what you call
. . . Shylock's bridge with houses on it, where they kept the carnival:
I was never out of England—it's as if I saw it all.

IV

Did young people take their pleasure when the sea was warm in May?
Balls and masks begun at midnight, burning ever to mid-day,
When they made up fresh adventures for the morrow, do you say?

V

Was a lady such a lady, cheeks so round and lips so red,—
On her neck the small face buoyant, like a bell-flower on its bed, O'er the breast's superb abundance where a man might base his head?

VI

Well, and it was graceful of them—they'd break talk off and afford —She, to bite her mask's black velvet—
he, to finger on his sword, While you sat and played Toccatas, stately at the clavichord?

VII

What? Those lesser thirds so plaintive, sixths diminished, sigh on sigh,
Told them something? Those suspensions, those solutions—'Must we die?'
Those commiserating sevenths—'Life might last! we can but try!'

VIII

'Were you happy?'—'Yes.'—'And are you still as happy?'—'Yes. And
you?'
—'Then, more kisses!'—'Did I stop them, when a million seemed so few?'
Hark, the dominant's persistence till it must be answered to!

IX

So, an octave struck the answer. Oh, they praised you, I dare say!
'Brave Galuppi! that was music! good alike at grave and gay!
'I can always leave off talking when I hear a master play!'

Then they left you for their pleasure: till in due time, one by one,
Some with lives that came to nothing,
some with deeds as well undone, Death stepped tacitly and took them where they never see the sun.

XI

But when I sit down to reason, think to take my stand nor swerve, While I triumph o'er a secret wrung from nature's close reserve,
In you come with your cold music till I creep thro' every nerve.

XII

Yes, you, like a ghostly cricket, creaking where a house was burned:
'Dust and ashes, dead and done with,
Venice spent what Venice earned.
'The soul, doubtless, is immortal—where a soul can be discerned.

XIII

'Yours for instance: you know physics, something of geology,
'Mathematics are your pastime; souls shall rise in their degree;
'Butterflies may dread extinction,—you'll not die, it cannot be!

XIV

'As for Venice and her people, merely born to bloom and drop,
'Here on earth they bore their fruitage, mirth and folly were the crop:
'What of soul was left, I wonder, when the kissing had to stop?

XV

'Dust and ashes!' So you creak it, and I want the heart to scold.
Dear dead women, with such hair, too—what's become of all the gold Used to hang and brush their bosoms? I feel chilly and grown old.

OLD PICTURES IN FLORENCE

I

THE morn when first it thunders in March,
The eel in the pond gives a leap, they say:
As I leaned and looked over the aloed arch
Of the villa-gate this warm March day,
No flash snapped, no dumb thunder rolled In the valley beneath where, white and
wide
And washed by the morning water-gold,
Florence lay out on the mountain-side.

OLD PICTURES IN FLORENCE

II

River and bridge and street and square
Lay mine, as much at my beck and call,
Through the live translucent bath of air,
As the sights in a magic crystal ball.
And of all I saw and of all I praised,
The most to praise and the best to see
Was the startling bell-tower Giotto raised:
But why did it more than startle me?

III

Giotto, how, with that soul of yours,
Could you play me false who loved you
so?
Some slights if a certain heart endures
Yet it feels, I would have your fellows
know!
I' faith, I perceive not why I should care
To break a silence that suits them best,
But the thing grows somewhat hard to bear
When I find a Giotto join the rest.

IV

On the arch where olives overhead
Print the blue sky with twig and leaf, (That sharp-curved leaf which they never shed)
'Twixt the aloes, I used to lean in chief,
And mark through the winter afternoons,
By a gift God grants me now and then,
In the mild decline of those suns like moons,
Who walked in Florence, besides her
men.

V

They might chirp and chaffer, come and go
For pleasure or profit, her men alive—
My business was hardly with them, I trow,
But with empty cells of the human hive;
—With the chapter-room, the cloister-porch,
The church's apsis, aisle or nave,
Its crypt, one fingers along with a torch,
Its face set full for the sun to shave.

VI

Wherever a fresco peels and drops,
Wherever an outline weakens and wanes
Till the latest life in the painting stops, Stands One whom each fainter pulse-tick pains:
One, wishful each scrap should clutch the brick,
Each tinge not wholly escape the plaster,
—A lion who dies of an ass's kick,
The wronged great soul of an ancient Master.

For oh, this world and the wrong it does!
They are safe in heaven with their backs
to it,
The Michaels and Rafaels, you hum and buzz
Round the works of, you of the little wit!

Do their eyes contract to the earth's old
scope,
Now that they see God face to face,
And have all attain'd to be poets, I
hope?
'Tis their holiday now, in any case.

VIII

Much they reck of your praise and you!
But the wronged great souls—can they be quit
Of a world where their work is all to do,
Where you style them, you of little
wit,
Old Master This and Early the Other,
Not dreaming that Old and New are fellows:
A younger succeeds to an elder brother,
Da Vincis derive in good time from Dellos.

IX

And here where your praise might yield
returns,
And a handsome word or two give
help,
Here, after your kind, the mastiff girns
And the puppy pack of poodles yelp.
What, not a word for Stefano there,
Of brow once prominent and starry, Called Nature's Ape and the world's despair
For his peerless painting? (See Vasari.)

X

There stands the Master. Study, my
friends,
What a man's work comes to! So he plans it,
Performs it, perfects it, makes amends
For the toiling and moiling, and then,
sic transit!
Happier the thrifty blind-folk labour,
With upturned eye while the hand is busy,
Not sidling a glance at the coin of their neighbour!
'Tis looking downward that makes one dizzy.

XI

'If you knew their work you would deal your dole.'
May I take upon me to instruct you?
When Greek Art ran and reached the goal, Thus much had the world to boast in fructu—
The Truth of Man, as by God first spoken,
Which the actual generations garble, Was re-uttered, and Soul (which Limbs betoken)
And Limbs (Soul informs) made new in marble.

OLD PICTURES IN FLORENCE

XII

So, you saw yourself as you wished you were,
As you might have been, as you cannot be;
Earth here, rebuked by Olympus there:
And grew content in your poor degree
With your little power, by those statues' godhead,
And your little scope, by their eyes' full sway,
And your little grace, by their grace embodied,
And your little date, by their forms that stay.

XIII

You would fain be kinglier, say, than I am?
Even so, you will not sit like Theseus.
You would prove a model? The Son of Priam
Has yet the advantage in arms' and knees' use.
You're wroth—can you slay your snake like Apollo?
You're grieved—still Niobe's the grander!
You live—there's the Racers' frieze to follow:
You die—there's the dying Alexander.

XIV

So, testing your weakness by their strength,
Your meagre charms by their rounded beauty,
Measured by Art in your breadth and length,
You learned—to submit is a mortal's duty.
—When I say 'you' 'tis the common soul,
The collective, I mean: the race of Man
That receives life in parts to live in a whole,
And grow here according to God's clear plan.

XV

Growth came when, looking your last on them all,
You turned your eyes inwardly one fire day
And cried with a start—What if we so small
Be greater and grander the while than they?
Are they perfect of lineament, perfect of stature?
In both, of such lower types are we Precisely because of our wider nature;
For time, theirs—ours, for eternity.

XVI

To-day's brief passion limits their range;
It seethes with the morrow for us and more.
They are perfect—how else? they shall never change:
We are faulty—why not? we have time in store.
The Artificer's hand is not arrested
With us; we are rough-hewn, nowise polished:
They stand for our copy, and, once invested
With all they can teach, we shall see them abolished.

XVII

'Tis a life-long toil till our lump be leaven—
The better! What's come to perfection perishes.
Things learned on earth, we shall practise in heaven:
Works done least rapidly, Art most cherishes.
Thyself shalt afford the example, Giotto!
Thy one work, not to decrease or diminish,
Done at a stroke, was just (was it not?)
'O!'
Thy great Campanile is still to finish.

XVIII

Is it true that we are now, and shall be hereafter,
But what and where depend on life's minute?
Hails heavenly cheer or infernal laughter
Our first step out of the gulf or in it?
Shall Man, such deep within his endeavour,
Man's face, have no more play and action
Than joy which is crystallized for ever,
Or grief, an eternal petrification?

XIX

On which I conclude, that the early painters,
To cries of 'Greek Art and what more wish you?'— Replied, 'To become now self-acquainters,
'And paint man man, whatever the issue!
'Make new hopes shine through the flesh they fray,
'New fears aggrandize the rags and tatters:
'To bring the invisible full into play!
'Let the visible go to the dogs—what matters?'

OLD PICTURES IN FLORENCE

XX

Give these, I exhort you, their guerdon and glory
For daring so much, before they well did it.

The first of the new, in our race's story,
Beats the last of the old; 'tis no idle quiddit.

The worthies began a revolution,
Which if on earth you intend to acknowledge,

Why, honour them now! (ends my allocution)

Nor confer your degree when the folk leave college.

XXI

There's a fancy some lean to and others hate—

That, when this life is ended, begins
New work for the soul in another state,
Where it strives and gets weary, loses and wins:

Where the strong and the weak, this world's congeries,

Repeat in large what they practised in small,

Through life after life in unlimited series;
Only the scale's to be changed, that's all.

XXII

Yet I hardly know. When a soul has seen
By the means of Evil that Good is best,
And, through earth and its noise, what is heaven's serene,—

When our faith in the same has stood the test—

Why, the child grown man, you burn the rod,

The uses of labour are surely done;

There remaineth a rest for the people of God:

And I have had troubles enough, for one.

XXIII

But at any rate I have loved the season
Of Art's spring-birth so dim and dewy;

My sculptor is Nicolo the Pisan,
My painter—who but Cimabue?

Nor ever was man of them all indeed,
From these to Ghiberti and Ghirlandajo,

Could say that he missed my critic-meed.
So, now to my special grievance—heigh ho!

XXIV

Their ghosts still stand, as I said before,
Watching each fresco flaked and rasped,
Blocked up, knocked out, or whitewashed o'er:

—No getting again what the church has grasped!

The works on the wall must take their chance;

'Works never conceded to England's thick clime!'

(I hope they prefer their inheritance Of a bucketful of Italian quick-lime.)

XXV

When they go at length, with such a shaking

Of heads o'er the old delusion, sadly
Each master his way through the black streets taking,

Where many a lost work beathes though badly—

Why don't they bethink them of who has merited?

Why not reveal, while their pictures dree
Such doom, how a captive might be out-ferreted?

Why is it they never remember me?

XXVI

Not that I expect the great Bigordi,
Nor Sandro to hear me, chivalric, bellicose;

Nor the wronged Lippino; and not a word I

Say of a scrap of Frà Angelico's:
But are you too fine, Taddeo Gaddi,

To grant me a taste of your intonaco,
Some Jerome that seeks the heaven with a sad eye?

Not a churlish saint, Lorenzo Monaco?

XXVII

Could not the ghost with the close red cap,
My Pollajolo, the twice a craftsman,

Save me a sample, give me the hap
Of a muscular Christ that shows the draughtsman?

No Virgin by him the somewhat petty,
Offinical touch and tempera crumbly—

Could not Alesso Baldovinetti Contribute so much, I ask him humbly?

XXVIII

Margheritone of Arezzo,
With the grave-clothes garb and swaddling barret

(Why purse up mouth and beak in a pet so,
You bald old saturnine poll-clawed parrot?)

Not a poor glimmering Crucifixion,
Where in the foreground kneels the donor?

If such remain, as is my conviction,
The hoarding it does you but little honour.

XXIX

They pass; for them the panels may thrill,
The tempera grow alive and tinglish;

Their pictures are left to the mercies still
Of dealers and stealers, Jews and the English,

OLD PICTURES IN FLORENCE

Who, seeing mere money's worth in their
prize,
Will sell it to some body calm as Zeno
At naked High Art, and in ecstasies Before some clay-cold vile Carlino!

xxx

No matter for these! But Giotto, you, Have you allowed, as the town-tongues babble it,—
Oh, never! it shall not be counted true—
That a certain precious little tablet
Which Buonarroti eyed like a lover,—
Was buried so long in oblivion's womb
And, left for another than I to discover, Turns up at last! and to whom?—to whom?

xxxix

I, that have haunted the dim San Spirito,
(Or was it rather the Ognissanti?)
Patient on altar-step planting a weary toe!
Nay, I shall have it yet! Detur amanti!
My Koh-i-noor—or (if that's a platitude)
Jewel of Giamschid, the Persian Sofi's
eye;
So, in anticipative gratitude,
What if I take up my hope and prophesy?

xxxix

When the hour grows ripe, and a certain dotard
Is pitched, no parcel that needs invoic-
ing,
To the worse side of the Mont Saint Gothard,
We shall begin by way of rejoicing;
None of that shooting the sky (blank cartridge),
Nor a civic guard, all plumes and lacquer,
Hunting Radetzky's soul like a partridge
Over Morello with squib and cracker.

xxxix

This time we'll shoot better game and bag
'em hot—
No mere display at the stone of Dante,
But a kind of sober Witanagemot
(Ex: 'Casa Guidi,' quod videas ante) Shall ponder, once Freedom restored to Florence,
How Art may return that departed with
her.
Go, hated house, go each trace of the Lorraine's,
And bring us the days of Orgagna hither!

xxxix

How we shall prologize, how we shall perorate.
Utter fit things upon art and history, Feel truth at blood-heat and falsehood at zero rate,
Make of the want of the age no mystery;

Contrast the fructuous and sterile eras,
Show—monarchy ever its uncouth cub licks
Out of the bear's shape into Chimæra's, While Pure Art's birth is still the republic's.

xxxix

Then one shall propose in a speech (curt Tuscan,
Expurgate and sober, with scarcely an
'issimo,')
To end now our half-told tale of Cambus-
can,
And turn the bell-tower's alt to altissimo:
And fine as the beak of a young beccaccia
The Campanile, the Duomo's fit ally,
Shall soar up in gold full fifty braccia, Completing Florence, as Florence Italy.

xxxix

Shall I be alive that morning the scaffold
Is broken away, and the long-pent fire,
Like the golden hope of the world, unbaffled Springs from its sleep, and up goes the spire
While 'God and the People' plain for its motto,
Thence the new tricolour flaps at the sky?
At least to foresee that glory of Giotto
And Florence together, the first am I!

'DE GUSTIBUS—'

I

YOUR ghost will walk, you lover of trees,
(If our loves remain)
In an English lane,
By a cornfield-side a-flutter with poppies.
Hark, those two in the hazel coppice—
A boy and a girl, if the good fates please,
Making love, say,—
The happier they!
Draw yourself up from the light of the
moon,
And let them pass, as they will too soon,
With the bean-flowers' boon,
And the blackbird's tune,
And May, and June!

II

What I love best in all the world
Is a castle, precipice-encurled,
In a gash of the wind-grieved Apennine.
Or look for me, old fellow of mine,
(If I get my head from out the mouth
O' the grave, and loose my spirit's bands,
'And come again to the land of lands)—
In a sea-side house to the farther South,
Where the baked cicala dies of drouth,
And one sharp tree—'tis a cypress—
stands,

‘DE GUSTIBUS—’

By the many hundred years red-rusted,
Rough iron-spiked, ripe fruit-o’ercrusted,
My sentinel to guard the sands
To the water’s edge. For, what expands
Before the house, but the great opaque
Blue-breadth of sea without a break?
While, in the house, for ever crumbles
Some fragment of the frescoed walls,
From blisters where a scorpion sprawls.
A girl bare-footed brings, and tumbles
Down on the pavement, green-flesh melons,
And says there’s news to-day—the king
Was shot at, touched in the liver-wing, Goes with his Bourbon arm in a sling:
—She hopes they have not caught the felons.

Italy, my Italy!

Queen Mary’s saying serves for me—(When fortune’s malice Lost her—Calais)—

Open my heart and you will see
Graved inside of it, ‘Italy.’
Such lovers old are I and she:
So it always was, so shall ever be!

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM ABROAD

I

Oh, to be in England
Now that April’s there,
And whoever wakes in England
Sees, some morning, unaware,
That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf
Round the elm-tree bole are in tiny leaf, While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
In England—now!

II

And after April, when May follows,
And the whitethroat builds, and all the swallows!
Hark, where my blossomed pear-tree in the hedge
Leans to the field and scatters on the clover Blossoms and dewdrops—at the bent spray’s edge—
That’s the wise thrush; he sings each song twice over,
Lest you should think he never could recapture
The first fine careless rapture!
And though the fields look rough with hoary dew,
All will be gay when noontide wakes anew
The buttercups, the little children’s dower —Far brighter than this gaudy melon-
flower!

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM THE SEA

NOBLY, nobly Came Saint Vincent to the North-west died away;
Sunset ran, one glorious blood-red, reeking into Cadiz Bay;
Bluish ‘mid the burning water, full in face
Trafalgar lay;
In the dimmest North-east distanced dawned
Gibraltar grand and gray; ‘Here and here did England help me: how can I help England?’—say, Whoso turns as I, this evening, turn to God to praise and pray,
While Jove’s planet rises yonder, silent over Africa.

SAUL

I

SAM Abner, ‘At last thou art come! Ere
I tell, ere thou speak, ‘Kiss my cheek, wish me well!’ Then I wished it, and did kiss his cheek.
And he, ‘Since the King, O my friend, for thy countenance sent, ‘Neither drunken nor eaten have we; nor until from his tent ‘Thou return with the joyful assurance the King liveth yet, ‘Shall our lip with the honey be bright,
with the water be wet.
‘For out of the black mid-tent’s silence,
a space of three days,
‘Not a sound hath escaped to thy servants, of prayer nor of praise, ‘To betoken that Saul and the Spirit have ended their strife,
‘And that, faint in his triumph, the monarch sinks back upon life.

II

‘Yet now my heart leaps, O beloved!
God’s child with his dew
‘On thy gracious gold hair, and those lilies still living and blue ‘Just broken to twine round thy harp-strings, as if no wild heat ‘Were now raging to torture the desert!’

III

Then I, as was meet, Knelt down to the God of my fathers, and rose on my feet,
And ran o’er the sand burnt to powder.
The tent was unlooped;
I pulled up the spear that obstructed, and under I stooped;
Hands and knees on the slippery grass-patch, all withered and gone,
That extends to the second enclosure, I groped my way on

Till I felt where the foldskirts fly open.

Then once more I prayed,
And opened the foldskirts and entered,
and was not afraid.
But spoke, 'Here is David, thy servant!'
And no voice replied.
At the first I saw nought but the blackness; but soon I descried
A something more black than the blackness—the vast, the upright
Main prop which sustains the pavilion:
and slow into sight Grew a figure against it, gigantic and blackest of all.
Then a sunbeam, that burst thro' the tent-roof, showed Saul.

IV

He stood as erect as that tent-prop, both arms stretched out wide
On the great cross-support in the centre, that goes to each side;
He relaxed not a muscle, but hung there as, caught in his pangs
And waiting his change, the king-serpent all heavily hangs,
Far away from his kind, in the pine, till deliverance come
With the spring-time,—so agonized Saul, drear and stark, blind and dumb.

V

Then I tuned my harp,—took off the lilies
we twine round its chords Lest they snap 'neath the stress of the noon-tide—those sunbeams like swords!
And I first played the tune all our sheep know, as, one after one,
So docile they come to the pen-door till folding be done.
They are white and untorn by the bushes,
for lo, they have fed
Where the long grasses stifle the water within the stream's bed;
And now one after one seeks its lodging, as star follows star
Into eve and the blue far above us,—so blue and so far!

VI

—Then the tune, for which quails on the cornland will each leave his mate
To fly after the player; then, what makes the crickets elate
Till for boldness they fight one another!
and then, what has weight
To set the quick jerboa a-musing outside his sand house—
There are none such as he for a wonder,
half bird and half mouse!
God made all the creatures and gave them
our love and our fear,
To give sign, we and they are his children,
one family here.

VII

Then I played the help-tune of our reapers, their wine-song, when hand Grasps at hand, eye lights eye in good friendship, and great hearts expand And grow one in the sense of this world's life.—And then, the last song When the dead man is praised on his journey—'Bear, bear him along 'With his few faults shut up like dead flowerets! Are balm-seeds not here 'To console us? The land has none left such as he on the bier.
'Oh, would we might keep thee, my brother!'—And then, the glad chaunt
Of the marriage,—first go the young maidens, next, she whom we vaunt
As the beauty, the pride of our dwelling.—
And then, the great march Wherein man runs to man to assist him and buttress an arch
Nought can break; who shall harm them, our friends?—Then, the chorus intoned
As the Levites go up to the altar in glory enthroned.
But I stopped here: for here in the darkness Saul groaned.

VIII

And I paused, held my breath in such silence, and listened apart;
And the tent shook, for mighty Saul shuddered: and sparkles 'gan dart
From the jewels that woke in his turban, at once with a start,
All its lordly male-sapphires, and rubies courageous at heart.
So the head: but the body still moved not,
still hung there erect.
And I bent once again to my playing, pursued it unchecked,
As I sang,—

IX

'Oh, our manhood's prime vigour!
No spirit feels waste,
'Not a muscle is stopped in its playing nor sinew unbraced.
'Oh, the wild joys of living! the leaping from rock up to rock,
'The strong rending of boughs from the fir-tree, the cool silver shock
'Of the plunge in a pool's living water, the hunt of the bear,
'And the sultriness showing the lion is couched in his lair.
'And the meal, the rich dates yellowed over with gold dust divine,
'And the locust-flesh steeped in the pitcher,
the full draught of wine,
'And the sleep in the dried river-channel where bulrushes tell
'That the water was wont to go warbling
so softly and well.

SAUL

'How good is man's life, the mere living!
 how fit to employ
 'All the heart and the soul and the senses for ever in joy!
 'Hast thou loved the white locks of thy father, whose sword thou didst guard
 'When he trusted thee forth with the armies, for glorious reward?
 'Didst thou see the thin hands of thy mother, held up as men sung
 'The low song of the nearly-departed, and hear her faint tongue
 'Joining in while it could to the witness,
 "Let one more attest,
 "'I have lived, seen God's hand thro' a lifetime, and all was for best"?
 'Then they sung thro' their tears in strong triumph, not much, but the rest.
 'And thy brothers, the help and the contest, the working whence grew
 'Such result as, from seething grape-bundles, the spirit strained true:
 'And the friends of thy boyhood—that boyhood of wonder and hope,
 'Present promise and wealth of the future beyond the eye's scope,—
 'Till lo, thou art grown to a monarch; a people is thine;
 'And all gifts, which the world offers singly, on one head combine!
 'On one head, all the beauty and strength, love and rage (like the throe
 'That, a-work in the rock, helps its labour and lets the gold go)
 'High ambition and deeds which surpass it, fame crowning them,—all
 'Brought to blaze on the head of one creature—King Saul!'

And lo, with that leap of my spirit,— heart, hand, harp and voice,
 Each lifting Saul's name out of sorrow,
 each bidding rejoice Saul's fame in the light it was made for—as when, dare I say,
 The Lord's army, in rapture of service,
 strains through its array,
 And upsoareth the cherubim-chariot—
 'Saul!' cried I, and stopped,
 And waited the thing that should follow.
 Then Saul, who hung propped
 By the tent's cross-support in the centre, was struck by his name.
 Have ye seen when Spring's arrowy summers goes right to the aim,
 And some mountain, the last to withstand her, that held (he alone, While the vale laughed in freedom and flowers) on a broad bust of stone
 A year's snow bound about for a breast-plate,—leaves grasp of the sheet?
 Fold on fold all at once it crowds thunderously down to his feet,

And there fronts you, stark, black, but alive yet, your mountain of old,
 With his rents, the successive bequeathings of ages untold—Yea, each harm got in fighting your battles, each furrow and scar
 Of his head thrust 'twixt you and the tempest—all hail, there they are!
 —Now again to be softened with verdure, again hold the nest
 Of the dove, tempt the goat and its young to the green on his crest.
 For their food in the ardours of summer.
 One long shudder thrilled
 All the tent till the very air tingled, then sank and was stilled
 At the King's self left standing before me, released and aware.
 What was gone, what remained? All to traverse, 'twixt hope and despair; Death was past, life not come: so he waited. Awhile his right hand Held the brow, helped the eyes left too vacant forthwith to remand To their place what new objects should enter: 'twas Saul as before.
 I looked up and dared gaze at those eyes, nor was hurt any more Than by slow pallid sunsets in autumn, ye watch from the shore,
 At their sad level gaze o'er the ocean—a sun's slow decline
 Over hills which, resolved in stern silence, o'erlap and entwine Base with base to knit strength more intensely: so, arm folded arm O'er the chest whose slow heavings subsided.

XI

What spell or what charm,
 (For, awhile there was trouble within me) what next should I urge To sustain him where song had restored him?—Song filled to the verge His cup with the wine of this life, pressing all that it yields
 Of mere fruitage, the strength and the beauty: beyond, on what fields, Glean a vintage more potent and perfect to brighten the eye
 And bring blood to the lip, and commend them the cup they put by?
 He saith, 'It is good;' still he drinks not:
 he lets me praise life,
 Gives assent, yet would die for his own
 part.

XII

Then fancies grew rife
 Which had come long ago on the pasture, when round me the sheep Fed in silence—above, the one eagle wheeled slow as in sleep;

And I lay in my hollow and mused on the world that might lie
 'Neath his ken, though I saw but the strip
 'twixt the hill and the sky:
 And I laughed—'Since my days are ordained to be passed with my flocks,
 'Let me people at least, with my fancies,
 the plains and the rocks,
 'Dream the life I am never to mix with,
 and image the show
 'Of mankind as they live in those fashions
 I hardly shall know!
 'Schemes of life, its best rules and right uses, the courage that gains,
 'And the prudence that keeps what men strive for.' And now these old trains Of vague thought came again; I grew surer; so, once more the string Of my harp made response to my spirit, as thus—

•
 'Yea, my King.'

I began—'thou dost well in rejecting mere comforts that spring
 'From the mere mortal life held in common by man and by brute:
 'In our flesh grows the branch of this life,
 in our soul it bears fruit.
 'Thou hast marked the slow rise of the tree,—how its stem trembled first 'Till it passed the kid's lip, the stag's antler; then safely outburst
 'The fan-branches all round; and thou mindest when these too, in turn 'Broke a-bloom and the palm-tree seemed perfect: yet more was to learn,
 'E'en the good that comes in with the palm-fruit. Our dates shall we slight,
 'When their juice brings a cure for all sorrow? or care for the plight
 'Of the palm's self whose slow growth produced them? Not so! stem and branch
 'Shall decay, nor be known in their place, while the palm-wine shall staunch 'Every wound of man's spirit in winter. I pour thee such wine.
 'Leave the flesh to the fate it was fit for!
 the spirit be thine!
 'By the spirit, when age shall o'ercome thee, thou still shalt enjoy
 'More indeed, than at first when incon-scious, the life of a boy.
 'Crush that life, and behold its wine running! Each deed thou hast done
 'Dies, revives, goes to work in the world;
 until e'en as the sun
 'Looking down on the earth, though clouds spoil him, though tempests
 efface,
 'Can find nothing his own deed produced not, must everywhere trace

'The results of his past summer-prime,— so, each ray of thy will,
 'Every flash of thy passion and prowess, long over, shall thrill
 'Thy whole people, the countless, with ardour, till they too give forth
 'A like cheer to their sons, who in turn, fill the South and the North
 'With the radiance thy deed was the germ of. Carouse in the past!
 'But the license of age has its limit; thou diest at last:
 'As the lion when age dims his eyeball,
 the rose at her height,
 'So with man—so his power and his beauty for ever take flight.
 'No! Again a long draught of my soul-wine! Look forth o'er the years!
 'Thou hast done now with eyes for the actual; begin with the seer's!
 'Is Saul dead? In the depth of the vale make his tomb—bid arise
 'A grey mountain of marble heaped foursquare, till, built to the skies,
 'Let it mark where the great First King slumbers: whose fame would ye
 know?
 'Up above see the rock's naked face, where the record shall go
 'In great characters cut by the scribe,—
 Such was Saul, so he did;
 'With the sages directing the work, by the populace chid,—
 'For not half, they'll affirm, is comprised there! Which fault to amend,
 'In the grove with his kind grows the cedar,
 whereon they shall spend
 ' (See, in tablets 'tis level before them) their praise, and record
 'With the gold of the graver, Saul's story,
 —the statesman's great word
 'Side by side with the poet's sweet comment. The river's a-wave
 'With smooth paper-reeds gazing each other when prophet-winds rave:
 'So the pen gives unborn generations their due and their part
 'In thy being! Then, first of the mighty, thank God that thou art!

XIV

And behold while I sang . . . but O Thou who didst grant me that day,
 And before it not seldom hast granted thy help to essay,
 Carry on and complete an adventure,— my shield and my sword
 'In that act where my soul was thy servant,
 thy word was my word,— Still be with me, who then at the summit of human endeavour
 And scaling the highest, man's thought could, gazed hopeless as ever

SAUL

On the new stretch of heaven above me—till, mighty to save,
Just one lift of thy hand cleared that distance—
God's throne from man's grave!
Let me tell out my tale to its ending—my voice to my heart
Which can scarce dare believe in what marvels last night I took part;
As this morning I gather the fragments,
alone with my sheep,
And still fear lest the terrible glory vanish like sleep!
For I wake in the grey dewy covert, while Hebron upheaves
The dawn struggling with night on his shoulder, and Kidron retrieves
Slow the damage of yesterday's sunshine.

XV

I say then,—my song
While I sang thus, assuring the monarch, and ever more strong
Made a proffer of good to console him—he slowly resumed
His old motions and habitudes kingly. The right-hand replumed
His black locks to their wonted composure, adjusted the swathes
Of his turban, and see—the huge sweat that his countenance bathes,
He wipes off with the robe; and he girds
now his loins as of yore,
And feels slow for the armlets of price,
with the clasp set before.
He is Saul, ye remember in glory,—ere error had bent
The broad brow from the daily communion; and still, though much spent
Be the life and the bearing that front you,
the same, God did choose,
To receive what a man may waste, desecrate, never quite lose.
So sank he along by the tent-prop till,
stayed by the pile
Of his armour and war-cloak and garments, he leaned there awhile,
And sat out my singing,—one arm round the tent-prop, to raise His bent head, and the other hung slack—till I touched on the praise
I foresaw from all men in all time, to the man patient there;
And thus ended, the harp falling forward.
Then first I was 'ware
That he sat, as I say, with my head just above his vast knees
Which were thrust out on each side around me, like oak-roots which please To encircle a lamb when it slumbers. I looked up to know
If the best I could do had brought solace:
he spoke not, but slow

Lifted up the hand slack at his side, till he laid it with care
Soft and grave, but in mild settled will, on my brow: thence my hair
The large fingers were pushed, and he bent back my head, with kind
power—
All my face back, intent to peruse it, as men do a flower.
Thus held he me there with his great eyes that scrutinized mine—
And oh, all my heart how it loved him!
but where was the sign?
I yearned—'Could I help thee, my father, inventing a bliss,
'I would add, to that life of the past, both the future and this;
'I would give thee new life altogether, as good, ages hence,
'As this moment,—had love but the warrant, love's heart to dispense!'

XVI

Then the truth came upon me. No harp more—no song more! outbreak—

XVII

'I have gone the whole round of creation:
I saw and I spoke:
'I, a work of God's hand for that purpose, received in my brain
'And pronounced on the rest of his handwork—returned him again
'His creation's approval or censure: I spoke as I saw:
'I report, as a man may of God's work—
all's love, yet all's law.
'Now I lay down the judgship he lent me. Each faculty tasked
'To perceive him, has gained an abyss, where a dewdrop was asked.
'Have I knowledge? confounded it shrivels at Wisdom laid bare.
'Have I forethought? how purblind, how blank, to the Infinite Care!
'Do I task any faculty highest, to image
success?
'I but open my eyes,—and perfection, no more and no less,
'In the kind I imagined, full-fronts me,
and God is seen God
'In the star, in the stone, in the flesh, in the soul and the clod.
'And thus looking within and around me,
I ever renew
'(With that stoop of the soul which in bending upraises it too)
'The submission of man's nothing-perfect to God's all-complete,
'As by each new obeisance in spirit, I climb to his feet.

XVIII

'Yet with all this abounding experience, this deity known,
 'I shall dare to discover some province,
 some gift of my own.
 'There's a faculty pleasant to exercise,
 hard to hoodwink,
 'I am fain to keep still in abeyance, (I laugh as I think)
 'Lest, insisting to claim and parade in it, wot ye, I worst
 'E'en the Giver in one gift.—Behold, I could love if I durst!
 'But I sink the pretension as fearing a man may o'ertake
 'God's own speed in the one way of love:
 I abstain for love's sake.
 '—What, my soul? see thus far and no farther? when doors great and small,
 'Nine-and-ninety flew ope at our touch, should the hundredth appal?
 'In the least things have faith, yet distrust in the greatest of all?
 'Do I find love so full in my nature, God's ultimate gift,
 'That I doubt his own love can compete with it? Here, the parts shift?
 'Here, the creature surpass the Creator,— the end, what Began?
 'Would I fain in my impotent yearning do all for this man,
 'And dare doubt he alone shall not help him, who yet alone can?
 'Would it ever have entered my mind, the bare will, much less power,
 'To bestow on this Saul what I sang of,
 the marvellous dower
 'Of the life he was gifted and filled with?
 to make such a soul,
 'Such a body, and then such an earth for insphering the whole?
 'And doth it not enter my mind (as my warm tears attest)
 'These good things being given, to go on,
 and give one more, the best?
 'Ay, to save and redeem and restore him, maintain at the height
 'This perfection,—succeed with life's day-spring, death's minute of night?
 'Interpose at the difficult minute, snatch Saul the mistake,
 'Saul the failure, the ruin he seems now,
 —and bid him awake
 'From the dream, the probation, the prelude, to find himself set
 'Clear and safe in new light and new life,
 —a new harmony yet
 'To be run, and continued, and ended—who knows?—or endure!
 'The man taught enough, by life's dream,
 of the rest to make sure;
 'By the pain-throb, triumphantly winning intensified bliss,
 'And the next world's reward and repose, by the struggles in this.

'I believe it! 'Tis thou, God, that givest,
 'tis I who receive:
 'In the first is the last, in thy will is my power to believe.
 'All's one gift: thou canst grant it moreover, as prompt to my prayer
 'As I breathe out this breath, as I open these arms to the air.
 'From thy will, stream the worlds, life and nature, thy dread Sabaoth:
 'I will?—the mere atoms despise me! Why am I not loth
 'To look that, even that in the face too?
 Why is it I dare
 'Think but lightly of such impuissance?
 What stops my despair?
 'This;—'tis not what man Does which exalts him, but what man Would do!
 'See the King—I would help him but cannot, the wishes fall through.
 'Could I wrestle to raise him from sorrow, grow poor to enrich,
 'To fill up his life, starve my own out, I would—knowing which,
 'I know that my service is perfect. Oh, speak through me now!
 'Would I suffer for him that I love? So wouldst thou—so wilt thou!
 'So shall crown thee the topmost, ineffa-blest, uttermost crown—
 'And thy love fill infinitude wholly, nor leave up nor down
 'One spot for the creature to stand in! It is by no breath,
 'Turn of eye, wave of hand, that salvation joins issue with death!
 'As thy Love is discovered almighty, almighty be proved
 'Thy power, that exists with and for it, of being Beloved!
 'He who did most, shall bear most; the strongest shall stand the most weak.
 'Tis the weakness in strength, that I cry for! my flesh, that I seek
 'In the Godhead! I seek and I find it. O
 Saul, it shall be
 'A Face like my face that receives thee; a Man like to me,
 'Thou shalt love and be loved by, for ever: a Hand like this hand
 'Shall throw open the gates of new life to thee! See the Christ stand!'

XIX

I know not too well how I found my way home in the night.
 There were witnesses, cohorts about me,
 to left and to right, Angels, powers, the unuttered, unseen, the alive, the aware:
 I repressed, I got through them as hardly,
 as strugglingly there,

SAUL

As a runner beset by the populace famished for news—
Life or death. The whole earth was awakened, hell loosed with her crews;
And the stars of night beat with emotion,
and tingled and shot
Out in fire the strong pain of pent knowledge: but I fainted not,
For the Hand still impelled me at once and supported, suppressed
All the tumult, and quenched it with quiet, and holy behest,
Till the rapture was shut in itself, and the earth sank to rest.
Anon at the dawn, all that trouble had withered from earth—
Not so much, but I saw it die out in the day's tender birth;
In the gathered intensity brought to the grey of the hills;
In the shuddering forests' held breath; in the sudden wind-thrills;
In the startled wild beasts that bore off, each with eye sidling still Though averted with wonder and dread;
in the birds stiff and chill
That rose heavily, as I approached them, made stupid with awe:
E'en the serpent that slid away silent,—
he felt the new law.
The same stared in the white humid faces upturned by the flowers;
The same worked in the heart of the cedar and moved the vine-bowers:
And the little brooks witnessing murmured, persistent and low,
With their obstinate, all but hushed voices —'E'en so, it is so!'

MY STAR

ALL that I know
Of a certain star
Is, it can throw
(Like the angled spar)
Now a dart of red,
Now a dart of blue;
Till my friends have said
They would fain see, too,
My star that dartles the red and the blue!
Then it stops like a bird; like a flower,
hangs furl'd:
They must solace themselves with the Saturn above it.
What matter to me if their star is a
world?
Mine has opened its soul to me; therefore I love it.

BY THE FIRE-SIDE

How well I know what I mean to do
When the long dark autumn-evenings
come:
And where, my soul, is thy pleasant hue?
With the music of all thy voices, dumb
In life's November too!

II

I shall be found by the fire. suppose,
O'er a great wise book as beseemeth
age,
While the shutters flap as the cross-wind
blows
And I turn the page, and I turn the page,
Not verse now, only prose!

III

Till the young ones whisper, finger on lip,
'There he is at it, deep in Greek:
'Now then, or never, out we slip
'To cut from the hazels by the creek
'A mainmast for our ship!'

IV

I shall be at it indeed, my friends:
Greek puts already on either side
Such a branch-work forth as soon extends
To a vista opening far and wide,
And I pass out where it ends.

The outside-frame, like your hazel-trees:
But the inside-archway widens fast,
And a rarer sort succeeds to these,
And we slope to Italy at last
And youth, by green degrees.

VI

I follow wherever I am led,
Knowing so well the leader's hand:
Oh woman-country, wooed not wed,
Loved all the more by earth's male-
lands,
Laid to their hearts instead!

VII

Look at the ruined chapel again
Half-way up in the Alpine gorge!
Is that a tower, I point you plain,
Or is it a mill, or an iron-forge
Breaks solitude in vain?

VIII

A turn, and we stand in the heart of things;
The woods are round us, heaped and
dim;
From slab to slab how it slips and springs,
The thread of water single and slim,
Through the ravage some torrent brings!

BY THE FIRE-SIDE

IX

Does it feed the little lake below?
That speck of white just on its marge
Is Pella; see, in the evening-glow,
How sharp the silver spear-heads charge
When Alp meets heaven in snow!

X

On our other side is the straight-up rock;
And a path is kept 'twixt the gorge and it
By boulder-stones where lichens mock
The marks on a moth, and small ferns
fit
Their teeth to the polished block.

XI

Oh the sense of the yellow mountain-flowers,
And thorny balls, each three in one,
The chestnuts throw on our path in showers!
For the drop of the woodland fruit's begun,
These early November hours,

XII

That crimson the creeper's leaf across
Like a splash of blood, intense, abrupt,
O'er a shield else gold from rim to boss,
And lay it for show on the fairy-cupped
Elf-needed mat of moss,

XIII

By the rose-flesh mushrooms, undivulged
Last evening—nay, in to-day's first, dew
Yon sudden coral nipple bulged,
Where a freaked fawn-coloured flaky
crew
Of toadstools peep indulged.

XIV

And yonder, at foot of the fronting ridge
That takes the turn to a range beyond,
Is the chapel reached by the one-arched bridge
Where the water is stopped in a stagnant pond
Danced over by the midge.

XV

The chapel and bridge are of stone alike,
Blackish-grey and mostly wet;
Cut hemp-stalks steep in the narrow dyke
See here again, how the lichens fret
And the roots of the ivy strike!

XVI

Poor little place, where its one priest comes,
On a festa-day, if he comes at all,
To the dozen folk from their scattered homes,
Gathered within that precinct small
By the dozen ways one roams—

XVII

To drop from the charcoal-burners' huts,
Or climb from the hemp-dressers' low
shed,
Leave the grange where the woodman stores his nuts,
Or the wattled cote where the fowlers
spread
Their gear on the rock's bare juts.

XVIII

It has some pretension too, this front,
With its bit of fresco half-moon-wise
Set over the porch, Art's early wont:
'Tis John in the Desert, I surmise,
But has borne the weather's brunt—

XIX

Not from the fault of the builder, though,
For a pent-house properly projects
Where three carved beams make a certain show,
Dating—good thought of our architect's—
'Five, six, nine, he lets you know.

XX

And all day long a bird sings there,
And a stray sheep drinks at the pond at times;
The place is silent and aware;
It has had its scenes, its joys and crimes,
But that is its own affair.

XXI

My perfect wife, my Leonor,
Oh heart, my own, oh eyes, mine too,
Whom else could I dare look backward
for,
With whom beside should I dare pursue
The path grey heads abhor?

XXII

For it leads to a crag's sheer edge with
them;
Youth, flowery all the way, there stops—
Not they; age threatens and they contemn, Till they reach the gulf wherein youth
drops,
One inch from life's safe hem!

XXIII

With me, youth led . . . I will speak now,
No longer watch you as you sit
Reading by fire-light, that great brow
And the spirit-small hand propping it,
Mutely, my heart knows how—

XXIV

When, if I think but deep enough,
You are wont to answer, prompt as
rhyme;
And you, too, find without rebuff
Response your soul seeks many a time
Piercing its fine flesh-stuff.

XXV

My own, confirm me! If I tread
This path back, is it not in pride
To think how little I dreamed it led To an age so blest that, by its side,
Youth seems the waste instead?

XXVI

My own, see where the years conduct!
At first, 'twas something our two souls
Should mix as mists do; each is sucked
In each now: on, the new stream rolls, Whatever rocks obstruct.

XXVII

Think, when our one soul understands
The great Word which makes all things
new,
When earth breaks up and heaven expands,
How will the change strike me and you
In the house not made with hands?

XXVIII

Oh I must feel your brain prompt mine,
Your heart anticipate my heart,
You must be just before, in fine,
See and make me see, for your part,
New depths of the divine!

XXIX

But who could have expected this
When we two drew together first
Just for the obvious human bliss,
To satisfy life's daily thirst
With a thing men seldom miss?

XXX

Come back with me to the first of all,
Let us lean and love it over again,
Let us now forget and now recall,
Break the rosary in a pearly rain,
And gather what we let fall!

XXXI

What did I say?—that a small bird sings
All day long, save when a brown pair
Of hawks from the wood float with wide
wings
Strained to a bell: 'gainst noon-day
glare
You count the streaks and rings.

XXXII

But at afternoon or almost eve
'Tis better; there the silence grows
To that degree, you half believe
It must get rid of what it knows,
Its bosom does so heave.

XXXIII

Hither we walked then, side by side,
Arm in arm and cheek to cheek,
And still I questioned or replied, While my heart, convulsed to really
speak,
Lay choking in its pride.

XXXIV

Silent the crumbling bridge we cross,
And pity and praise the chapel sweet,
And care about the fresco's loss,
And wish for our souls a like retreat,
And wonder at the moss.

XXXV

Stoop and kneel on the settle under,
Look through the window's grated
square:
Nothing to see! For fear of plunder,
The cross is down and the altar bare,
As if thieves don't fear thunder.

XXXVI

We stoop and look in through the grate,
See the little porch and rustic door,
Read duly the dead builder's date;
Then cross the bridge that we crossed
before,
Take the path again—but wait!

XXXVII

Oh moment, one and infinite!
The water slips o'er stock and stone;
The West is tender, hardly bright:
How grey at once is the evening grown—
One star, its chrysolite!

XXXVIII

We two stood there with never a third,
But each by each, as each knew well:
The sights we saw and the sounds we
heard,
The lights and the shades made up a spell
Till the trouble grew and stirred.

XXXIX

Oh, the little more, and how much it is!
And the little less, and what worlds
away!
How a sound shall quicken content to
bliss,
Or a breath suspend the blood's best
play,
And life be a proof of this!

BY THE FIRE-SIDE

XL

Had she willed it, still had stood the screen
So slight, so sure, 'twixt my love and
her:
I could fix her face with a guard between,
And find her soul as when friends confer,
Friends—lovers that might have been.

XLI

For my heart had a touch of the woodland-
time,
Wanting to sleep now over its best.
Shake the whole tree in the summer-prime,
But bring to the last leaf no such test!
'Hold the last fast!' runs the rhyme.

For a chance to make your little much,
To gain a lover and lose a friend,
Venture the tree and a myriad can,
When nothing you mar but the year can
mend:
But a last leaf—fear to touch!

XLIII

Yet should it unfasten itself and fall
Eddying down till it find your face
At some slight wind—best chance of all!
Be your heart henceforth its dwelling-
place
You trembled to forestall!

XLIV

Worth how well, those dark grey eyes,
That hair so dark and dear, how worth
That a man should strive and agonize,
And taste a veriest hell on earth
For the hope of such a prize!

XLV

You might have turned and tried a man,
Set him a space to weary and wear,
And prove which suited more your plan,
His best of hope or his worst despair,
Yet end as he began.

XLVI

But you spared me this, like the heart you
are,
And filled my empty heart at a word.
If two lives join, there is oft a scar,
They are one and one, with a shadow,
third;
One near one is too far.

XLVII

A moment after, and hands unseen
Were hanging the night around us fast;
But we knew that a bar was broken between
Life and life: we were mixed at last
In spite of the mortal screen.

XLVIII

The forests had done it; there they stood;
We caught for a moment the powers at
play:
They had mingled us so, for once and
good,
Their work was done—we might go or
stay,
They relapsed to their ancient mood.

XLIX

How the world is made for each of us!
How all we perceive and know in it Tends to some moment's product thus,
When a soul declares itself—to wit,
By its fruit, the thing it does!

L

Be hate that fruit or love that fruit,
It forwards the general deed of man,
And each of the Many helps to recruit
The life of the race by a general plan;
Each living his own, to boot.

LI

I am named and known by that moment's
feat;
There took my station and degree;
So grew my own small life complete,
As nature obtained her best of me—
One born to love you, sweet!

LII

And to watch you sink by the fire-side
now
Back again, as you mutely sit Musing by fire-light, that great brow
And the spirit-small hand propping it,
Yonder, my heart knows how!

LIII

So, earth has gained by one man the more,
And the gain of earth must be heaven's gain too;
And the whole is well worth thinking o'er When autumn comes: which I mean to
do
One day, as I said before.

ANY WIFE TO ANY HUSBAND

I

My love, this is the bitterest, that thou
Who art all truth, and who dost love me
now
As thine eyes say, as thy voice breaks to
say—Shouldst love so truly, and couldst love me still
A whole long life through, had but love its
will,
Would death that leads me from thee brook delay.

ANY WIFE TO ANY HUSBAND

II

I have but to be by thee, and thy hand
Will never let mine go, nor heart withstand The beating of my heart to reach its
place.
When shall I look for thee and feel thee
gone?
When cry for the old comfort and find
none?
Never, I know! Thy soul is in thy face.

III

Oh, I should fade—'tis willed so! Might
I save,
Gladly I would, whatever beauty gave Joy to thy sense, for that was precious
too.
It is not to be granted. But the soul Whence the love comes, all ravage leaves
that whole;
Vainly the flesh fades; soul makes all things new.

IV

It would not be because my eye grew dim Thou couldst not find the love there, thanks to Him
Who never is dishonoured in the spark
He gave us from his fire of fires, and bade
Remember whence it sprang, nor be afraid While that burns on, though all the rest grow dark.

V

So, how thou wouldst be perfect, white and clean
Outside as inside, soul and soul's demesne Alike, this body given to show it by!
Oh, three-parts through the worst of life's abyss,
What plaudits from the next world after
this,
Couldst thou repeat a stroke and gain
the sky!

VI

And is it not the bitterer to think That, disengage our hands and thou wilt sink
Although thy love was love in very
deed?
I know that nature! Pass a festive day,
Thou dost not throw its relic-flower away
Nor bid its music's loitering echo speed.

VII

Thou let'st the stranger's glove lie where it fell;
If old things remain old things all is well,
For thou art grateful as becomes man
best:
And hadst thou only heard me play one
tune,
Or viewed me from a window, not so soon With thee would such things fade as with the rest.

VIII

I seem to see! We meet and part; 'tis brief;
The book I open keeps a folded leaf,
The very chair I sat on, breaks the rank;
That is a portrait of me on the wall—
Three lines, my face comes at so slight a
call:
And for all this, one little hour to thank!

IX

But now, because the hour through years was fixed,
Because our inmost beings met and mixed,
Because thou once hast loved me—wilt thou dare
Say to thy soul and Who may list beside,
'Therefore she is immortally my bride;
'Chance cannot change my love, nor time impair.

'So, what if in the dusk of life that's left,
'I, a tired traveller of my sun bereft,
'Look from my path when, mimicking
the same,
'The fire-fly glimpses past me, come and
gone?
'—Where was it till the sunset? where
anon
'It will be at the sunrise! What's to blame?'

XI

Is it so helpful to thee? Canst thou take The mimic up, nor, for the true thing's
sake,
Put gently by such efforts at a beam?
Is the remainder of the way so long,
Thou need'st the little solace, thou the
strong?
Watch out thy watch, let weak ones doze and dream!

XII

—Ah, but the fresher faces! 'Is it true,' Thou'lt ask, 'some eyes are beautiful and
new?
'Some hair,—how can one choose but grasp such wealth?
'And if a man would press his lips to lips
'Fresh as the wilding hedge-rose-cup there slips
'The dew-drop out of, must it be by stealth?'

XIII

'It cannot change the love still kept for
Her,
'More than if such a picture I prefer
'Passing a day with, to a room's bare
side:
'The painted form takes nothing she possessed,
Yet, while the Titian's Venus lies at rest,
A man looks. Once more, what is there to chide?'

ANY WIFE TO ANY HUSBAND

XIV

So must I see, from where I sit and watch,
My own self sell myself, my hand attach
Its warrant to the very thefts from me—
Thy singleness of soul that made me
proud,
Thy purity of heart I loved aloud,
Thy man's-truth I was bold to bid God
see!

XV

Love so, then, if thou wilt! Give all thou canst .
Away to the new faces—disentranced,
(Say it and think it) obdurate no more:
Re-issue looks and words from the old mint,
Pass them afresh, no matter whose the print
Image and superscription once they bore!

XVI

Re-coin thyself and give it them, to spend,—
It all comes to the same thing at the end, Since mine thou wast, mine art and mine shalt be,
Faithful or faithless, sealing up the sum
Or lavish of my treasure, thou must come Back to the heart's place here I keep for thee!

XVII

Only, why should it be with stain at all?
Why must I, 'twixt the leaves of coronal,
Put any kiss of pardon on thy brow?
Why need the other women know so
much,
And talk together, 'Such the look and
such
'The smile he used to love with, then as now!'

XVIII

Might I die last and show thee! Should I
find
Such hardship in the few years left behind,
If free to take and light my lamp, and
go
Into thy tomb, and shut the door and sit,
Seeing thy face on those four sides of it
The better that they are so blank, I
know!

XIX

Why, time was what I wanted, to turn o'er Within my mind each look, get more and
more
By heart each word, too much to learn
at first;
And join thee all the fitter for the pause
'Neath the low doorway's lintel. That were cause
For lingering, though thou calledst, if I durst!

XX

And yet thou art the nobler of us two:
What dare I dream of, that thou canst not do, Outstripping my ten small steps with one stride?
I'll say then, here's a trial and a task—
Is it to bear?—if easy, I'll not ask: Though love fail, I can trust on in thy pride.

XXI

Pride?—when those eyes forestall the life
behind
The death I have to go through!—when I find,
Now that I want thy help most, all of
thee!
What did I fear? Thy love shall hold me
fast
Until the little minute's sleep is past
And I wake saved.—And yet it will not
be!

TWO IN THE CAMPAGNA

I

I WONDER do you feel to-day
As I have felt since, hand in hand,
We sat down on the grass, to stray
In spirit better through the land,
This morn of Rome and May?

II

For me, I touched a thought, I know,
Has tantalized me many times,
(Like turns of thread the spiders throw Mocking across our path) for rhymes
To catch at and let go.

III

Help me to hold it! First it left
The yellowing fennel, run to seed
There, branching from the brickwork's
cleft,
Some old tomb's ruin: yonder weed
Took up the floating weft,

IV

Where one small orange cup amassed Five beetles,—blind and green they grope
Among the honey-meal: and last,
Everywhere on the grassy slope
I traced it. Hold it fast!

V

The champaign with its endless fleece
Of feathery grasses everywhere!
Silence and passion, joy and peace,
An everlasting wash of air—
Rome's ghost since her decease.

TWO IN THE CAMPAGNA

VI

Such life here, through such lengths of hours,
Such miracles performed in play,
Such primal naked forms of flowers,
Such letting nature have her way
While heaven looks from its towers!

VII

How say you? Let us, O my dove,
Let us be unashamed of soul,
As earth lies bare to heaven above!
How is it under our control
To love or not to love?

VIII

I would that you were all to me,
You that are just so much, no more.
Nor yours nor mine, nor slave nor free!
Where does the fault lie? What the core O' the wound, since wound must be?

IX

I would I could adopt your will,
See with your eyes, and set my heart Beating by yours, and drink my fill
At your soul's springs,—your part my part
In life, for good and ill.

X

No. I yearn upward, touch you close,
Then stand away. I kiss your cheek,
Catch your soul's warmth,—I pluck the rose
And love it more than tongue can speak—
Then the good minute goes.

XI

Already how am I so far
Out of that minute? Must I go
Still like the thistle-ball, no bar,
Onward, whenever light winds blow,
Fixed by no friendly star?

XII

Just when I seemed about to learn!
Where is the thread now? Off again!
The old trick! Only I discern—
Infinite passion, and the pain
Of finite hearts that yearn.

MISCONCEPTIONS

I

This is a spray the Bird clung to,
Making it blossom with pleasure,
Ere the high tree-top she sprung to,
Fit for her nest and her treasure.
Oh, what a hope beyond measure
Was the poor spray's, which the flying feet hung to,—
So to be singled out, built in, and sung to!

II

This is a heart the Queen leant on,
Thrilled in minute erratic,
Ere the true bosom she bent on,
Meet for love's regal dalmatic.
Oh, what a fancy ecstatic
Was the poor heart's, ere the wanderer went on—
Love to be saved for it, proffered to, spent
on!

A SERENADE AT THE VILLA

I

THAT was I, you heard last night,
When there rose no moon at all,
Nor, to pierce the strained and tight
Tent of heaven, a planet small:
Life was dead and so was light.

II

Not a twinkle from the fly,
Not a glimmer from the worm;
When the crickets stopped their cry,
When the owls forbore a term,
You heard music; that was I.

III

Earth turned in her sleep with pain,
Sultrily suspired for proof:
In at heaven and out again,
Lightning!—where it broke the roof,
Bloodlike, some few drops of rain.

IV

What they could my words expressed,
O my love, my all, my one!
Singing helped the verses best,
And when singing's best was done,
To my lute I left the rest.

V

So wore the night; the East was gray, White the broad-faced hemlock-
flowers:
There would be another day;
Ere its first of heavy hours
Found me, I had passed away.

VI

What became of all the hopes,
Words and song and lute as well?
Say, this struck you—'When life gropes Feebly for the path where fell
'Light last on the evening slopes,

'One friend in that path shall be,
'To secure my step from wrong;
'One to count night day for me,
'Patient through the watches long,
'Serving most with none to see.'

A SERENADE AT THE VILLA ANOTHER WAY OF LOVE

VIII

Never say—as something bodes—
‘So, the worst has yet a worse!
‘When life halts ‘neath double loads,
‘Better the taskmaster’s curse
‘Than such music on the roads!

IX

‘When no moon succeeds the sun,
‘Nor can pierce the midnight’s tent
‘Any star, the smallest one, ‘While some drops, where lightning rent,
‘Show the final storm begun—

X

‘When the fire-fly hides its spot,
‘When the garden-voices fail
‘In the darkness thick and hot,— ‘Shall another voice avail,
‘That shape be where these are not?

XI

‘Has some plague a longer lease, ‘Proffering its help uncouth?
‘Can’t one even die in peace?
‘As one shuts one’s eyes on youth,
‘Is that face the last one sees?’

XII

Oh how dark your villa was,
 Windows fast and obdurate!
How the garden grudged me grass
 Where I stood—the iron gate
Ground its teeth to let me pass!

ONE WAY OF LOVE

I

ALL June I bound the rose in sheaves.
Now, rose by rose, I strip the leaves
And strew them where Pauline may pass.
She will not turn aside? Alas!
Let them lie. Suppose they die?
The chance was they might take her eye.

II

How many a month I strove to suit
These stubborn fingers to the lute!
To-day I venture all I know.
She will not hear my music? So!
Break the string; fold music’s wing:
Suppose Pauline had bade me sing!

III

My whole life long I learned to love.
This hour my utmost art I prove
And speak my passion—heaven or hell?
She will not give me heaven? ‘Tis well!
Lose who may—I still can say,
Those who win heaven, blest are they!

I

JUNE was not over
 Though past the full,
And the best of her roses
 Had yet to blow,
 When a man I know
‘(But shall not discover,
 Since ears are dull,
 And time discloses)
Turned him and said with a man’s true
 air,
Half sighing a smile in a yawn, as ‘twere,— ‘If I tire of your June, will she greatly care?’

II

Well, dear, in-doors with you!
 True! serene deadness
Tries a man’s temper.
 What’s in the blossom
 June wears on her bosom?
Can it clear scores with you?
 Sweetness and redness.
 Eadem semper!
Go, let me care for it greatly or slightly!
If June mend her bower now, your hand left unsightly
By plucking the roses,—my June will do rightly.

III

And after, for pastime,
 If June be refulgent
With flowers in completeness,
 All petals, no prickles,
 Delicious as trickles
Of wine poured at mass-time,—
 And choose One indulgent
To redness and sweetness:
Or if, with experience of man and of spider,
June use my June-lightning, the strong insect-ridder,
And stop the fresh film-work,—why, June will consider.

A PRETTY WOMAN

I

THAT fawn-skin-dappled hair of hers,
 And the blue eye
 Dear and dewy,
And that infantine fresh air of hers!

II

To think men cannot take you, Sweet,
 And enfold you,
 Ay, and hold you,
And so keep you what they make you,
 Sweet!

A PRETTY WOMAN

You like us for a glance, you know—
For a word's sake
Or a sword's sake,
All's the same, whate'er the chance, you
know.

IV

And in turn we make you ours, we say—
You and youth too,
Eyes and mouth too,
All the face composed of flowers, we say.

V

All's our own, to make the most of,
Sweet—
Sing and say for,
Watch and pray for,
Keep a secret or go boast of, Sweet!

VI

But for loving, why, you would not, Sweet,
Though we prayed you,
Paid you, brayed you
In a mortar—for you could not, Sweet!

VII

So, we leave the sweet face fondly there:
Be its beauty
Its sole duty!
Let all hope of grace beyond, lie there!

VIII

And while the face lies quiet there,
Who shall wonder
That I ponder
A conclusion? I will try it there.

IX

As,—why must one, for the love foregone,
Scout mere liking?
Thunder-striking Earth,—the heaven, we looked above for,
gone!

X

Why, with beauty, needs there money be,
Love with liking?
Crush the fly-king
In his gauze, because no honey-bee?

XI

May not liking be so simple-sweet,
If love grew there
'Twould undo there
All that breaks the cheek to dimples sweet?

XII

Is the creature too imperfect, say?
Would you mend it
And so end it?
Since not all addition perfects aye!

XIII

Or is it of its kind, perhaps,
Just perfection—
Whence, rejection
Of a grace not to its mind, perhaps?

XIV

Shall we burn up, tread that face at once Into tinder,
And so hinder
Sparks from kindling all the place at once?

XV

Or else kiss away one's soul on her?
Your love-fancies!
—A sick man sees
Truer, when his hot eyes roll on her!

XVI

Thus the craftsman thinks to grace the rose,— Plucks a mould-flower
For his gold flower,
Uses fine things that efface the rose:

XVII

Rosy rubies make its cup more rose,
Precious metals
Ape the petals,—
Last, some old king locks it up, morose!

XVIII

Then how grace a rose? I know a way!
• Leave it, rather.
Must you gather?
Smell, kiss, wear it—at last, throw away!

RESPECTABILITY

I

DEAR, had the world in its caprice Deigned to proclaim 'I know you both,
'Have recognized your plighted troth,
'Am sponsor for you: live in peace!'
How many precious months and years
Of youth had passed, that speed so fast,
Before we found it out at last,
The world, and what it fears?

II

How much of priceless life were spent
With men that every virtue decks,
And women models of their sex,
Society's true ornament,—
'Ere we dared wander, nights like this,
Thro' wind and rain, and watch the Seine,
And feel the Boulevart break again
To warmth and light and bliss?

RESPECTABILITY

I know! the world proscribes not love;
 Allows my finger to caress
 Your lips' contour and downiness,
 Provided it supply a glove.
 The world's good word!—the Institute!
 Guizot receives Montalembert!
 Eh? Down the court three lampions
 flare:
 Put forward your best foot!

While, look but once from your farthest
 bound
 At me so deep in the dust and dark,
 No sooner the old hope goes to ground
 Than a new one, straight to the self-same mark,
 I shape me—
 Ever Removed!

LOVE IN A LIFE

ROOM after room,
 I hunt the house through
 We inhabit together.
 Heart, fear nothing, for, heart, thou shalt find her—Next time, herself!—not the trouble behind her
 Left in the curtain, the couch's perfume!
 As she brushed it, the cornice-wreath blossomed-glass:
 Yon looking-glass gleamed at the wave of her feather.

Yet the day wears,
 And door succeeds door;
 I try the fresh fortune—Range the wide house from the wing to the centre.
 Still the same chance! she goes out as I enter.
 Spend my whole day in the quest,—who
 cares?
 But 'tis twilight, you see,—with such suites to explore,
 Such closets to search, such alcoves to im-portune!

LIFE IN A LOVE

ESCAPE me?
 Never—
 Beloved!
 While I am I, and you are you,
 So long as the world contains us both,
 Me the loving and you the loth,
 While the one eludes, must the other pursue.
 My life is a fault at last, I fear:
 It seems too much like a fate, indeed!
 Though I do my best I shall scarce succeed.
 But what if I fail of my purpose here?
 It is but to keep the nerves at strain,
 To dry one's eyes and laugh at a fall,
 And, baffled, get up and begin again,— So the chace takes up one's life, that's
 all.

IN THREE DAYS

So, I shall see her in three days
 And just one night, but nights are short,
 Then two long hours, and that is morn.
 See how I come, unchanged, unworn!
 Feel, where my life broke off from thine,
 How fresh the splinters keep and fine,—
 Only a touch and we combine!

Too long, this time of year, the days!
 But nights, at least the nights are short.
 As night shows where her one moon is,
 A hand's-breadth of pure light and bliss,
 So life's night gives my lady birth
 And my eyes hold her! What is worth
 The rest of heaven, the rest of earth?

O loaded curls, release your store
 Of warmth and scent, as once before
 The tingling hair did, lights and darks
 Outbreaking into fairy sparks,
 When under curl and curl I pried
 After the warmth and scent inside,
 Thro' lights and darks how manifold—
 The dark inspire, the light controlled!
 As early Art embrowns the gold.

What great fear, should one say, 'Three days
 'That change the world might change as
 well
 'Your fortune; and if joy delays,
 'Be happy that no worse befell!
 'What small fear, if another says,
 'Three days and one short night beside
 'May throw no shadow on your ways:
 'But years must teem with change un-
 tried,
 'With chance not easily defied,
 'With an end somewhere undescried.'
 No fear!—or if a fear be born
 This minute, it dies out in scorn.
 Fear? I shall see her in three days
 And one night, now the nights are short,
 Then just two hours, and that is morn.

IN A YEAR

IN A YEAR

I

NEVER any more,
While I live,
Need I hope to see his face
As before.
Once his love grown chill,
Mine may strive:
Bitterly we re-embrace,
Single still.

II

Was it something said,
Something done,
Vexed him? was it touch of hand,
Turn of head?
Strange! that very way
Love begun:
I as little understand
Love's decay.

III

When I sewed or drew,
I recall
How he looked as if I sung,
—Sweetly too.
If I spoke a word,
First of all
Up his cheek the colour sprung,
Then he heard.

IV

Sitting by my side,
At my feet,
So he breathed but air I breathed,
Satisfied!
I, too, at love's brim
Touched the sweet:
I would die if death bequeathed
Sweet to him.

'Speak, I love thee best!'
He exclaimed:
'Let thy love my own foretell!'
I confessed:
'Clasp my heart on thine
'Now unblamed,
'Since upon thy soul as well
'Hangeth mine!'

VI

Was it wrong to own,
Being truth?
Why should all the giving prove
His alone?
I had wealth and ease,
Beauty, youth:
Since my lover gave me love,
I gave these.

VII

That was all I meant,
—To be just,
And the passion I had raised,
To content.
Since he chose to change
Gold for dust,
If I gave him what he praised
Was it strange?

VIII

Would he loved me yet,
On and on,
While I found some way undreamed
—Paid my debt!
Gave more life and more,
Till, all gone,
He should smile 'She never seemed
'Mine before.

IX

'What, she felt the while,
'Must I think?
'Love's so different with us men!'
He should smile:
'Dying for my sake—
'White and pink!
'Can't we touch these bubbles then 'But they break?'

X

Dear, the pang is brief,
Do thy part,
Have thy pleasure! How perplexed Grows belief!
Well, this cold clay clod
Was man's heart:
Crumble it, and what comes next?
Is it God?

WOMEN AND ROSES

I

I DREAM of a red-rose tree.
And which of its roses three
Is the dearest rose to me?

II

Round and round, like a dance of snow
In a dazzling drift, as its guardians, go Floating the women faded for ages,
Sculptured in stone, on the poet's pages.
Then follow women fresh and gay,
Living and loving and loved to-day.
Last, in the rear, flee the multitude of 'maidens,
Beauties yet unborn. And all, to one cadence,
They circle their rose on my rose tree.

III

Dear rose, thy term is reached,
Thy leaf hangs loose and bleached:
Bees pass it unimpeached.

WOMEN AND ROSES

IV

Stay then, stoop, since I cannot climb,
 You, great shapes of the antique time!
 How shall I fix you, fire you, freeze you,
 Break my heart at your feet to please you?
 Oh, to possess and be possessed!
 Hearts that beat 'neath each pallid breast!
 Once but of love, the poesy, the passion, Drink but once and die!—In vain, the same fashion,
 They circle their rose on my rose tree.

V

Dear rose, thy joy's undimmed,
 Thy cup is ruby-rimmed,
 Thy cup's heart nectar-brimmed.

VI

Deep, as drops from a statue's plinth
 The bee sucked in by the hyacinth,
 So will I bury me while burning,
 Quench like him at a plunge my yearning,
 Eyes in your eyes, lips on your lips!
 Fold me fast where the cincture slips,
 Prison all my soul in eternities of pleasure, Girdle me for once! But no—the old measure,
 They circle their rose on my rose tree.

VII

Dear rose without a thorn,
 Thy bud's the babe unborn:
 First streak of a new morn.

VIII

Wings, lend wings for the cold, the clear!
 What is far conquers what is near.
 Roses will bloom nor want beholders, Sprung from the dust where our flesh moulders.
 What shall arrive with the cycle's change?
 A novel grace and a beauty strange.
 I will make an Eve, be the artist that began her,
 Shaped her to his mind!—Alas! in like manner
 They circle their rose on my rose tree.

BEFORE

I

LET them fight it out, friend! things have gone too far.
 God must judge the couple: leave them as they are
 —Whichever one's the guiltless, to his glory,
 *And whichever one the guilt's with, to my story!

II

Why, you would not bid men, sunk in such a slough,
 Strike no arm out further, stick and stink
 as now,
 Leaving right and wrong to settle the embroilment,
 Heaven with snaky hell, in torture and entoilment?

III

Who's the culprit of them? How must he conceive
 God—the queen he caps to, laughing in his sleeve,
 *Tis but decent to profess oneself beneath
 her:
 'Still, one must not be too much in earnest, either!'

IV

Better sin the whole sin, sure that God observes;
 Then go live his life out! Life will try his nerves,
 When the sky, which noticed all, makes no disclosure,
 And the earth keeps up her terrible composure.

V

Let him pace at pleasure, past the walls of rose,
 Pluck their fruits when grape-trees graze him as he goes!
 For he 'gins to guess the purpose of the garden,
 With the sly mute thing, beside there, for a warden.

What's the leopard-dog-thing, constant at his side,
 A leer and lie in every eye of its obsequious
 hide?
 When will come an end to all the mock obeisance,
 And the price appear that pays for the misfeasance?

VII

So much for the culprit. Who's the martyred man?
 Let him bear one stroke more, for be sure he can!
 He that strove thus evil's lump with good to leaven,
 Let him give his blood at last and get his heaven!

VIII

All or nothing, stake it! Trusts he God or no?
 Thus far and no farther? farther? be it so!

BEFORE

Now, enough of your chicanes of prudent pauses,
Sage provisos, sub-intents and saving-clauses!

IX

Ah, 'forgive' you bid him? While God's champion lives,
Wrong shall be resisted: dead, why, he forgives.
But you must not end my friend ere you begin him;
Evil stands not crowned on earth, while breath is in him.

X

Once more—Will the wronger, at this last
of all,
Dare to say, 'I did wrong,' rising in his
fall?
No?—Let go, then! Both the fighters to their places!
While I count three, step you back as many paces!

AFTER

TAKE the cloak from his face, and at first Let the corpse do its worst!

How he lies in his rights of a man!
Death has done all death can.
And, absorbed in the new life he leads,
He recks not, he heeds
Nor his wrong nor my vengeance; both
strike
On his senses alike,
And are lost in the solemn and strange
Surprise of the change.
Ha, what avails death to erase
His offence, my disgrace?
I would we were boys as of old
In the field, by the fold:
His outrage, God's patience, man's scorn
Were so easily borne!

I stand here now, he lies in his place:
Cover the face!

THE GUARDIAN-ANGEL

A PICTURE AT FANO

I

DEAR and great Angel, wouldst thou only
leave
That child, when thou hast done with him, for me!
Let me sit all the day here, that when eve Shall find performed thy special ministry,
And time come for departure, thou, suspending Thy flight, mayst see another child for tending,
Another still, to quiet and retrieve.

II

Then I shall feel thee step one step, no
more,
From where thou standest now, to where I gaze,
—And suddenly my head is covered o'er With those wings, white above the child who prays
Now on that tomb—and I shall feel thee guarding
Me, out of all the world; for me, discarding
Yon heaven thy home, that waits and opes its door.

III

I would not look up thither past thy head
Because the door opes, like that child,
I know,
For I should have thy gracious face instead,
Thou bird of God! And wilt thou bend me low
Like him, and lay, like his, my hands together,
And lift them up to pray, and gently tether
Me, as thy lamb there, with thy garment's spread?

IV

If this was ever granted, I would rest
My head beneath thine, while thy healing hands
Close-covered both my eyes beside thy
breast,
Pressing the brain, which too much thought expands,
Back to its proper size again, and smooth-
ing
Distortion down till every nerve had soothing,
And all lay quiet, happy and suppressed.

V

How soon all worldly wrong would be repaired!
I think how I should view the earth and skies
And sea, when once again my brow was bared
After thy healing, with such different
eyes.
O world, as God has made it! All is beauty:
And knowing this, is love, and love is duty.
What further may be sought for or declared?

VI

Guercino drew this angel I saw teach (Alfred, dear friend!)—that little child to pray,
Holding the little hands up, each to each,
Pressed gently,—with his own head turned away

THE GUARDIAN ANGEL

Over the earth there so much lay before
him
Of work to do, though heaven was opening o'er him,
And he was left at Fano by the beach.

VII

We were at Fano, and three times we went
To sit and see him in his chapel there,
And drink his beauty to our soul's content
—My angel with me too: and since I
care

For dear Guercino's fame (to which in
power
And glory comes this picture for a dower, Fraught with a pathos so magnificent)—

VIII

And since he did not work thus earnestly
At all times, and has else endured some
wrong—

I took one thought his picture struck from
me,
And spread it out, translating it to song.
My love is here. Where are you, dear old
friend?

How rolls the Wairoa at your world's far
end?

This is Ancona, yonder is the sea.

MEMORABILIA

I

Ah, did you once see Shelley plain,
And did he stop and speak to you,
And did you speak to him again?
How strange it seems and new!

II

But you were living before that,
And also you are living after;
And the memory I started at—
My starting moves your laughter.

III

I crossed a moor, with a name of its own
And a certain use in the world no doubt,
Yet a hand's-breadth of it shines alone
'Mid the blank miles round about:

IV

For there I picked up on the heather
And there I put inside my breast
A moulted feather, an eagle-feather!
Well, I forget the rest.

POPULARITY

I

STAND still, true poet that you are!
I know you; let me try and draw you.
Some night you'll fail us: when afar
You rise, remember one man saw you,
Knew you, and named a star!

II

My star, God's glow-worm! Why extend
That loving hand of his which leads you
Yet locks you safe from end to end
Of this dark world, unless he needs you,
Just saves your light to spend?

III

His clenched hand shall uncloze at last,
I know, and let out all the beauty:
My poet holds the future fast,
Accepts the coming ages' duty,
Their present for this past.

IV

That day, the earth's feast-master's brow Shall clear, to God the chalice raising;
'Others give best at first, but thou
'Forever set'st our table praising,
'Keep'st the good wine till now!'

V

Meantime, I'll draw you as you stand,
With few or none to watch and wonder:
I'll say—a fisher, on the sand
By Tyre the old, with ocean-plunder,
A netful, brought to land.

VI

Who has not heard how Tyrian shells
Enclosed the blue, that dye of dyes
Whereof one drop worked miracles,
And coloured like Astarte's eyes
Raw silk the merchant sells?

And each bystander of them all
Could criticize, and quote tradition
How depths of blue sublimed some pall —To get which, pricked a king's ambition;
Worth sceptre, crown and ball.

VIII

Yet there's the dye, in that rough mesh,
The sea has only just o'erwhispered!
Live whelks, each lip's beard dripping fresh,
As if they still the water's lisp heard
Through foam the rock-weeds thresh.

IX

Enough to furnish Solomon
Such hangings for his cedar-house,
That, when gold-robed he took the throne
In that abyss of blue, the Spouse Might swear his presence shone

Most like the centre-spike of gold Which burns deep in the blue-bell's
womb,
What time, with ardours manifold,
The bee goes singing to her groom,
Drunken and overbold.

POPULARITY

XI

Mere conchs! not fit for warp or woof!
Till cunning come to pound and squeeze
And clarify,—refine to proof
The liquor filtered by degrees,
While the world stands aloof.

XII

And there's the extract, flasked and fine,
And priced and saleable at last!
And Hobbs, Nobbs, Stokes and Nokes
combine
To paint the future from the past,
Put blue into their line.

XIII

Hobbs hints blue,—straight he turtle eats: Nobbs prints blue,—claret crowns his
cup:
Nokes outdares Stokes in azure feats,— Both gorge. Who fished the murex up?
What porridge had John Keats?

MASTER HUGUES OF SAXE- GOTHA

I

Hist, but a word, fair and soft!
Forth and be judged, Master Hugues!
Answer the question I've put you so oft:
What do you mean by your mountainous fugues?
See, we're alone in the loft,—

II

I, the poor organist here,
Hugues, the composer of note, Dead though, and done with, this many
a year:
Let's have a colloquy, something to quote,
Make the world prick up its ear!

III

See, the church empties apace:
Fast they extinguish the lights.
Hallo there, sacristan! Five minutes'
grace!
Here's a crank pedal wants setting to
rights,
Baulks one of holding the base.

IV

See, our huge house of the sounds,
Hushing its hundreds at once,
Bids the last loiterer back to his bounds!
—O you may challenge them, not a response
Get the church-saints on their rounds!

(Saints go their rounds, who shall doubt?
—March, with the moon to admire,
Up nave, down chancel, turn transept
about,
Supervise all betwixt pavement and
spire,
Put rats and mice to the rout—

VI

Aloys and Jurien and Just—
Order things back to their place,
Have a sharp eye lest the candlesticks rust,
Rub the church-plate, darn the sacrament-lace,
Clear the desk-velvet of dust.)

Here's your book, younger folks shelve!
Played I not off-hand and runningly,
Just now, your masterpiece, hard number twelve?
Here's what should strike, could one handle it cunningly:
Help the axe, give it a helve!

Page after page as I played,
Every bar's rest, where one wipes Sweat from one's brow, I looked up and surveyed,
O'er my three claviers, yon forest of pipes
Whence you still peeped in the shade.

IX

Sure you were wishful to speak?
You, with brow ruled like a score,
Yes, and eyes buried in pits on each cheek,
Like two great breves, as they wrote them of yore,
Each side that bar, your straight beak!

X

Sure you said—'Good, the mere notes!
'Still, couldst thou take my intent,
'Know what procured me our Company's votes—
'A master were lauded and sciolists
shent,
'Parted the sheep from the goats!'

XI

Well then, speak up, never flinch!
Quick, ere my candle's a snuff —Burnt, do you see? to its uttermost inch—
I believe in you, but that's not enough:
Give my conviction a clinch!

MASTER HUGUES OF SAXE-GOTHA

XII

First you deliver your phrase
—Nothing propounded, that I see, Fit in itself for much blame or much
praise—
Answered no less, where no answer needs be:
Off start the Two on their ways.

XIII

Straight must a Third interpose,
Volunteer needlessly help;
In strikes a Fourth, a Fifth thrusts in his nose,
So the cry's open, the kennel's a-yelp,
Argument's hot to the close.

XIV

One dissertates, he is candid;
Two must discept,—has distinguished;
Three helps the couple, if ever yet man
did;
Four protests; Five makes a dart at the thing wished:
Back to One, goes the case bandied.

XV

One says his say with a difference;
More of expounding, explaining!
All now is wrangle, abuse, and vocifer-ance;
Now there's a truce, all's subdued, self-restraining:
Five, though, stands out all the stiffer
hence.

XVI

One is incisive, corrosive;
Two retorts, nettled, curt, crepitant;
Three makes rejoinder, expansive, explosive;
Four overbears them all, strident and strepitant:
Five . . . O Danaides, O Sieve!

XVII

Now, they ply axes and crowbars;
Now, they prick pins at a tissue
Fine as a skein of the casuist Escobar's Worked on the bone of a lie. To what issue?
Where is our gain at the Two-bars?

XVIII

Est fuga, volvitur rota.
On we drift: where looms the dim port?
One, Two, Three, Four, Five, contribute their quota;
Something is gained, if one caught but the import—
Show it us, Hugues of Saxe-Gotha!

XIX

What with affirming, denying,
Holding, riposting, subjoining,
All's like . . . it's like . . . for an instance I'm trying . . .
There! See our roof, its gilt moulding and groining
Under those spider-webs lying!

XX

So your fugue broadens and thickens,
Greatens and deepens and lengthens, Till we exclaim—'But where's music, the dickens?
'Blot ye the gold, while your spider-web strengthens
'—Blacked to the stoutest of tickens?'

XXI

I for man's effort am zealous:
Prove me such censure unfounded!
Seems it surprising a lover grows jealous—Hopes 'twas for something, his organ-pipes sounded,
Tiring three boys at the bellows?

XXII

Is it your moral of Life?
Such a web, simple and subtle,
Weave we on earth here in impotent strife, Backward and forward each throwing his shuttle,
Death ending all with a knife?

XXIII

Over our heads truth and nature—
Still our life's zigzags and dodges,
Ins and outs, weaving a new legislature—God's gold just shining its last where that lodges,
Palled beneath man's usurpature.

XXIV

So we o'ershroud stars and roses,
Cherub and trophy and garland;
Nothings grow something which quietly closes
Heaven's earnest eye: not a glimpse of the far land
Gets through our comments and glozes.

XXV

Ah but traditions, inventions,
(Say we and make up a visage)
So many men with such various intentions, Down the past ages, must know more than this age!
Leave we the web its dimensions!

XXVI

Who thinks Hugues wrote for the deaf,
Proved a mere mountain in labour?
Better submit; try again; what's the cleft?
'Faith, 'tis no trifle for pipe and for tabor—
Four flats, the minor in F.

MASTER HUGUES OF SAXE-GOTHA

XXVII

Friend, your fugue taxes the finger:
Learning it once, who would lose it?
Yet all the while a misgiving will linger, Truth's golden o'er us although we refuse it—
Nature, thro' cobwebs we string her.

XXVIII

Hugues! I advise með pænð
(Counterpoint glares like a Gorgon) Bid One, Two, Three, Four, Five, clear the arena!
Say the word, straight I unstop the full-organ,
Blare out the mode Palestrina.

XXIX

While in the roof, if I'm right there,
... Lo you, the pick in the socket!
Hallo, you sacristan, show us a light
there!
Down it dips, gone like a rocket.
What, you want, do you, to come unawares,
Sweeping the church up for first morning-prayers,
And find a poor devil has ended his
cares
At the foot of your rotten-runged ratriddled stairs?
Do I carry the moon in my pocket?

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

1843

PERSONS

The Grand-Master's Prefect.
The Patriarch's Nuncio.
The Republic's Admiral.
LOYS DE DREUX, Knight-Novice

Initiated Druses—DJABAL, KHALIL, ANAEL, MAANI, KARSHOOK, RAGHIB, AYOUB, and others.
Uninitiated Druses.
Prefect's Guard. Nuncio's Attendants. Admiral's Force.

TIME, 14—

PLACE.—An Islet of the Southern Sporades, colonized by Druses of Lebanon, and garrisoned by the Knights-Hospitalers of Rhodes.

SCENE.—A Hall in the Prefect's Palace.

ACT I

Enter stealthily KARSHOOK, RAGHIB, AYOUB and other initiated Druses, each as he enters casting off a robe that conceals his distinctive black vest and white turban; then, as giving a loose to exultation,—

Kar. The moon is carried off in purple fire:

Day breaks at last! Break glory, with the day,

On Djabal's dread incarnate mystery
Now ready to resume its pristine shape
Of Hakeem, as the Khalif vanished erst
In what seemed death to uninstructed

eyes,
On red Mokattam's verge—our Founder's
flesh,

As he resumes our Founder's function!
Ragh. —Death

Sweep to the Christian Prefect that enslaved

So long us sad Druse exiles o'er the sea!
Ay. Most joy be thine, O Mother-mount! Thy brood

Returns to thee, no outcasts as we left,

But thus—but thus! Behind, our Prefect's corse;

Before, a presence like the morning—
thine,

Absolute Djabal late,—God Hakeem now
That day breaks!

Kar. Off then, with disguise
at last!

As from our forms this hateful garb we strip,

Lose every tongue its glozing accent too,
Discard each limb the ignoble gesture!

Cry,
'Tis the Druse Nation, warders on our Mount

Of the world's secret, since the birth of
time,

—No kindred slips, no offsets from thy
stock,

No spawn of Christians are we, Prefect,
we

Who rise . . .
Ay. Who shout . . .

Ragh. Who seize, a first-fruits, ha—
Spoil of the spoiler! Brave!

[They begin to tear down, and to dispute for, the decorations of the hall.]

ACT I]

Kar.

Hold!

Ay. —Mine, I say;
And mine shall it continue!

Kar. Just this fringe!
Take anything beside! Lo, spire on spire,
Curl serpentwise wreathed columns to the top
O' the roof, and hide themselves mysteriously
Among the twinkling lights and darks that haunt Yon cornices! Where the huge veil, they suspend—
Before the Prefect's chamber of delight,
Floats wide, then falls again as if its slave,
The scented air, took heart now, and anon
Lost hearts to buoy its breadths of gorgeousness Above the gloom they droop in—all the porch
Is jewelled o'er with frostwork character; y;
And, see, yon eight-point cross of white flame, winking
Hoar-silvery like some fresh-broke marble stone:
Raze out the Rhodian cross there, so thou leav'st me
This single fringe!

Ay. Ha, wouldst thou, dog-fox? Help!
—Three hand-breadths of gold fringe, my son was set
To twist, the night he died!

Kar. Nay, hear the knave!
And I could witness my one daughter borne,
A week since, to the Prefect's couch, yet fold
These arms, be mute, lest word of mine should mar
Our Master's work, delay the Prefect here
A day, prevent his sailing hence for Rhodes—
How know I else?—Hear me denied my right
By such a knave!

Ragh. [interposing]. Each ravage for himself!
Booty enough! On, Druses! Be there found Blood and a heap behind us; with us, Djabal Turned Hakeem; and before us, Lebanon!
Yields the porch? Spare not! There his minions dragged Thy daughter, Karshook, to the Prefect's couch!
Ayoob! Thy son, to soothe the Prefect's pride,
Bent o'er that task, the death-sweat on his brow,
Carving the spice-tree's heart in scroll-work there!
Onward in Djabal's name!

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

As the tumult is at height, enter KHALIL.
A pause and silence.

Kha. Was it for this,
Djabal hath summoned you? Deserve you thus
A portion in to-day's event? What, here—
When most behoves your feet fall soft, your eyes
Sink low, your tongues lie still,—at Djabal's side,
Close in his very hearing, who, perchance,
Assumes e'en now God Hakeem's dreaded shape,— Dispute you for these gauds?

Ay. How say'st thou, Khalil?
Doubtless our Master prompts thee! Take the fringe, Old Karshook! I supposed it was a day ...
Kha. For pillage?

Kar. Hearken, Khalil!
Never spoke
A boy so like a song-bird; we avouch thee
Prettiest of all our Master's instruments
Except thy bright twin-sister; thou and Anael Challenge his prime regard: but we may crave
(Such nothings as we be) a portion too
Of Djabal's favour; in him we believed,
His bound ourselves, him moon by moon obeyed,
Kept silence till this daybreak—so, may claim
Reward: who grudges me my claim?

Ay. To-day
Is not as yesterday!
Ragh. Stand off!
Kha. Rebel you?
Must I, the delegate of Djabal, draw
His wrath on you, the day of our Return?
Other Druses. Wrench from their grasp the fringe! Hounds! must the earth Vomit her plagues on us thro' thee?—and thee?

Plague me not, Khalil, for their fault!
Kha. Oh, shame!
Thus breakst to-day on you, the mystic tribe
Who, flying the approach of Osman, bore
Our faith, a merest spark, from Syria's ridge
Its birthplace, hither! 'Let the sea divide
'These hunters from their prey,' you said;
'and safe
'In this dim islet's virgin solitude
'Tend we our faith, the spark, till happier time
'Fan it to fire; till Hakeem rise again,
'According to his word that, in the flesh
'Which faded on Mokattam ages since,
'He, at our extreme need, would interpose,
'And, reinstating all in power and bliss,
'Lead us himself to Lebanon once more,
Was't not thus you departed years ago,

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT I

Ere I was born?

Druses. 'Twas even thus, years ago.

Kha. And did you call—(according to old laws

Which bid us, lest the sacred grow profane,

Assimilate ourselves in outward rites

With strangers fortune makes our lords, and live

As Christian with the Christian, Jew with Jew,

Druse only with the Druses)—did you call Or no, to stand 'twixt you and Osman's

rage

(Mad to pursue e'en hither thro' the sea

The remnant of our tribe), a race self-vowed

To endless warfare with his hordes and him,

The White-cross Knights of the adjacent Isle?

Kar. And why else rend we down, wrench up, raise out?

These Knights of Rhodes we thus solicited For help, bestowed on us a fiercer pest

Than aught we fled—their Prefect; who began

His promised mere paternal governance By a prompt massacre of all our Sheikhs

Able to thwart the Order in its scheme Of crushing, with our nation's memory,

Each chance of our return, and taming us Bondslaves to Rhodes for ever—all, he thinks

To end by this day's treason.

Kha. Say I not?

You, fitted to the Order's purposes, Your Sheikhs cut off, your rites, your garb proscribed,

Must yet receive one degradation more; The Knights at last throw off the mask—transfer,

As tributary now and appanage, This islet they are but protectors of,

To their own ever-craving liege, the Church,

Who licenses all crimes that pay her thus. You, from their Prefect, were to be con-

signed

(Pursuant of I know not what vile pact) To the Knights' Patriarch, ardent to out-

vie

His predecessor in all wickedness. When suddenly rose Djabal in the midst,

Djabal, the man in semblance, but our God

Confessed by signs and portents. Ye saw fire

Bicker round Djabal, heard strange music flit

Bird-like about his brow?

Druses. We saw—we heard!

Djabal is Hakeem, the incarnate Dread, The phantasm Khalif, King of Prodigies!

Kha. And as he said, 'as not our Khalif done,

And so disposed events (from land to land Passing invisibly) that when, this morn,

The pact of villany complete, there comes This Patriarch's Nuncio with this Master's

Prefect

Their treason to consummate,—each will face

For a crouching handful, an uplifted nation:

For simulated Christians, confessed Druses:

And, for slaves past hope of the Mother-mount,

Freedmen returning there 'neath Venice' flag;

That Venice which, the Hospitallers' foe, Grants us from Candia escort home at

price

Of our relinquished isle, Rhodes counts her own—

Venice, whose promised argosies should stand

Toward harbour: is it now that you, and you,

And you, selected from the rest to bear The burthen of the Khalif's secret, further

To-day's event, entitled by your wrongs, And witness in the Prefect's hall his fate—

That you dare clutch these gauds? Ay, drop them!

Kar.

True,

Most true, all this; and yet, may one dare hint,

Thou art the youngest of us?—though employed

Abundantly as Djabal's confidant, Transmitter of his mandates, even now.

Much less, whence'er beside him Anael graces

The cedar throne, his queen-bride, art thou like

To occupy its lowest step that day! Now, Khalif, wert thou checked as thou aspirest,

Forbidden such or such an honour,—say, Would silence serve so amply?

Kha.

Karshook thinks

I covet honours? Well, nor idly thinks. Honours? I have demanded of them all

The greatest.

Kar.

I supposed so.

Kha.

Judge, yourselves!

Turn, thus: 'tis in the alcove at the back Of yonder columned porch, whose entrance now

The veil hides, that our Prefect holds his state,

Receives the Nuncio, when the one, from Rhodes,

The other lands from Syria; there they meet.

Now. I have sued with earnest prayers . . .

Kar. For what Shall the Bride's brother vainly sue?

Kha. That mine—
Avenging in one blow a myriad wrongs —Might be the hand to slay the Prefect
there!

Djabal reserves that office for himself.

[A silence.
Thus far, as youngest of you all, I speak —Scarce more enlightened than yourselves; since, near

As I approach him, nearer as I trust
Soon to approach our Master, he reveals
Only the God's power, not the glory yet.
Therefore I reasoned with you: now, as servant

To Djabal, bearing his authority, Hear me appoint your several posts! Till noon

None see him save myself and Anael: once
The deed achieved, our Khalif, casting off
The embodied Awe's tremendous mystery,

The weakness of the flesh disguise, resumes

His proper glory, ne'er to fade again.

Enter a Druse.

The Druse. Our Prefect lands from Rhodes!—without a sign
That he suspects aught since he left our Isle;

Nor in his train a single guard beyond
The few he sailed with hence: so have we learned

From Loys.

Kar. Loys? Is not Loys gone
For ever?

Ay. Loys, the Frank Knight, returned?
The Druse. Loys, the boy, stood on the leading prow

Conspicuous in his gay attire, and leapt
Into the surf the foremost. Since day-dawn

I kept watch to the Northward; take but
note

Of my poor vigilance to Djabal!

Kha. Peace!
Thou, Karshook, with thy company, receive

The Prefect as appointed: see, all keep
The wonted show of servitude: announce
His entry here by the accustomed peal
Of trumpets, then await the further pleasure

Of Djabal! (Loys back, whom Djabal sent To Rhodes that we might spare the single Knight

Worth sparing!)

Enter a second Druse.

The Druse. I espied it first! Say, I First spied the Nuncio's galley from the South!

Said'st thou a Crossed-keys' flag would flap the mast?

It nears apace! One galley and no more.
If Djabal chance to ask who spied the flag, Forget not, I it was!

Kha. Thou, Ayoob, bring
The Nuncio and his followers hither!

Break
One rule prescribed, ye wither in your blood,

Die at your fault!

Enter a third Druse.

The Druse. I shall see home, see
home!

—Shall banquet in the sombre groves
again!

Hail to thee, Khalil! Venice looms afar;
The argosies of Venice, like a cloud,
Bear up from Candia in the distance!

Kha. Joy!
Summon our people, Raghib! Bid all
forth!

Tell them the long-kept secret, old and young!

Set free the captive, let the trampled raise Their faces from the dust, because at length

The cycle is complete, God Hakeem's reign

Begins anew! Say, Venice for our guard, Ere night we steer for Syria! Hear you, Druses?

Hear you this crowning witness to the claims

Of Djabal? Oh, I spoke of hope and fear, Reward and punishment, because he bade
Who has the right; for me, what should I
say

But, mar not those imperial lineaments,
No majesty of all that rapt regard Vex by the least omission! Let him rise
Without a check from you!

Druses. Let Djabal rise!

Enter LOYS.—The Druses are silent.

Loys. Who speaks of Djabal?—for I seek him, friends!

[Aside.] Tu Dieu! 'Tis as our Isle broke out in song

For joy, its Prefect-incubus drops off
To-day, and I succeed him in his rule!
But no—they cannot dream of their good fortune!

[Aloud.] Peace to you, Druses! I have tidings for you,

But first for Djabal: where's your tall bewitcher,

With that small Arab thin-lipped silver-
mouth?

Kha. [aside to KARSHOOK.] Loys, in truth! Yet Djabal cannot err!

Kar. [to KHALIL.] And who takes charge of Loys? That's forgotten, Despite thy wariness! Will Loys stand

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT I

And see his comrades slaughtered?

Loys [aside]. How they shrink
And whisper, with those rapid faces!
What?

The sight of me in their oppressors' garb Strikes terror to the simple tribe? God's
shame

On those that bring our Order ill repute!

But all's at end now; better days begin
For these mild mountaineers from over-
sea:

The timidest shall have in me no Prefect
To cower at thus! [Aloud.] I asked for Djabal—

Kar. [aside]. Better
One lured him, ere he can suspect, inside
The corridor; 'twere easy to despatch
A youngster. [To Loys.] Djabal passed some minutes since

Thro' yonder porch, and . . .
Kha. [aside]. Hold! What, him despatch?

The only Christian of them all we charge
No tyranny upon? Who,—noblest Knight Of all that learned from time to time their trade

Of lust and cruelty among us,—heir
To Europe's pomp, a truest child of
pride,—

Yet stood between the Prefect and ourselves

From the beginning? Loys, Djabal makes Account of, and precisely sent to Rhodes
For safety? I take charge of him!

[To Loys.] Sir Loys,— Loys. There, cousins! Does Sir Loys strike you dead?

Kha. [advancing]. Djabal has intercourse with few or none

Till noontide: but, your pleasure?
Loys. 'Intercourse

'With few or none?'—(Ah, Khalil, when
you spoke

I saw not your smooth face! All health!— and health

To Anael! How fares Anael?)—'Inter-
course

'With few or none?' Forget you, I've been friendly

With Djabal long ere you or any Druse?
—Enough of him at Rennes, I think, be-
neath

The Duke my father's roof! He'd tell by the hour,

With fixed white eyes beneath his swarthy
brow,

Plausiblest stories . . .
Kha. Stories, say you?—Ah,

The quaint attire!
Loys. My dress for the last time!

How sad I cannot make you understand,
This ermine, o'er a shield, betokens me
Of Bretagne, ancientest of provinces

And noblest; and, what's best and oldest
there,

See, Dreux', our House's blazon, which the Nuncio

Tacks to an Hospitaller's vest to-day!
Kha. The Nuncio we await? What brings you back

From Rhodes, Sir Loys?

Loys. How you island-tribe Forget the world's awake while here you drowse!

What brings me back? What should not bring me, rather!

Our Patriarch's Nuncio visits you to-
day—

Is not my year's probation out? I come
To take the knightly vows.

Kha. What's that you wear?
Loys. This Rhodian cross? The cross your Prefect wore.

You should have seen, as I saw, the full
Chapter

Rise, to a man, while they transferred this cross

From that unworthy Prefect's neck to . . .
(fool—

My secret will escape me!) In a word,
My year's probation passed, a Knight ere

Am I; bound like the rest, to yield my wealth

To the common stock, to live in chastity, (We Knights espouse alone our Order's fame)

—Change this gay weed for the black white-crossed gown,

And fight to death against the Infidel —Not, therefore, against you, you Christians with

Such partial difference only as befits
The peace fullest of tribes. But Khalil, prithe, prithe,

Is not the Isle brighter than wont to-day?
Kha. Ah, the new sword!

Loys. See now! You handle sword
As 'twere a camel-staff. Pull! That's my

motto,
Annealed 'Pro fide,' on the blade in blue.

Kha. No curve in it? Surely a blade should curve.

Loys. Straight from the wrist! Loose—it should poise itself!

Kha. [waving with irrepressible exultation the sword]. We are a nation,
Loys, of old fame

Among the mountains! Rights have we to keep

With the sword too!
[Remembering himself.] But I forget—you bid me Seek Djabal?

Loys. What! A sword's sight scares
you not?

(The People I will make of him and them!

Oh let my Prefect's way begin at once!
Bring Djabal—say, indeed, that come he
must!

Kha. At noon seek Djabal in the Prefect's Chamber,
And find . . . [Aside.] Nay, 'tis thy cursed race's token,
Frank pride, no special insolence of wine!
[Aloud.] Tarry, and I will do your bidding, Loys!

[To the rest aside.] Now, forth you! I proceed to Djabal straight.

Leave this poor boy, who knows not what he says!

Oh will it not add joy to even thy joy, Djabal, that I report all friends were true?

[KHALIL goes, followed by the Druses.

Loys. Tu Dieu! How happy I shall make these Druses!

Was't not surpassingly contrived of me
To get the long list of their wrongs by heart,

Then take the first pretence for stealing off

From these poor islanders, present myself
Sudden at Rhodes before the noble Chapter,

And (as best proof of ardour in its cause
Which ere to-night will have become, too,
mine)

Acquaint it with this plague-sore in its body,

This Prefect and his villanous career?
The princely Synod! All I dared request
Was his dismissal; and they graciously Consigned his very office to myself—
Myself may cure the Isle diseased!

And well
For them, they did so! Since I never felt
How lone a lot, tho' brilliant, I embrace,
Till now that, past retrieval, it is mine.
To live thus, and thus die! Yet, as I leapt
On shore, so home a feeling greeted me
That I could half believe in Djabal's story,
He used to tempt my father with, at Rennes—

And me, too, since the story brought me
here—

Of some Count Dreux and ancestor of
ours

Who, sick of wandering from Bouillon's
war,

Left his old name in Lebanon.

Long days
At least to spend in the Isle! and, my new
known

An hour hence, what if Anael turn on me
The great black eyes I must forget?

Why, fool,
Recall them, then? My business is, with Djabal,

Not Anael! Djabal tarries: if I seek
him?—

The Isle is brighter than its wont to-day.

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

ACT II

Enter DJABAL.

Dja. That a strong man should think himself a God!

I—Hakeem? To have wandered through
the world,

Sown falsehood, and thence reaped now scorn, now faith,

For my one chapt with many a change, my tale

Of outrage, and my prayer for vengeance
—this

Required, forsooth, no mere man's faculty,

Nought less than Hakeem's? The persuading Loys

To pass probation here; the getting access
By Loys to the Prefect; worst of all,

The gaining my tribe's confidence by fraud
That would disgrace the very Frank,—a few

Of Europe's secrets which subdue the
flame,

The wave,—to ply a simple tribe with
these,

Took Hakeem?
And I feel this first to-day!

Does the day break, is the hour imminent
When one deed, when my whole life's deed, my deed

Must be accomplished? Hakeem? Why the God?

Shout, rather, 'Djabal, Youssof's child, thought slain

'With his whole race, the Druses' Sheikhs, this Prefect

'Endeavoured to extirpate—saved, a
child,

'Returns from traversing the world, a
man,

'Able to take revenge, lead back the march
'To Lebanon'—so shout, and who gain-
says?

But now, because delusion mixed itself
Insensibly with this career, all's changed!

Have I brought Venice to afford us convoy?

'True—but my jugglings wrought that!'
Put I heart

Into our people where no heart lurked?—
'Ah,

'What cannot an impostor do!'
Not this!

Not bid avant Falsehood! Thou shalt not keep thy hold on me!

—Nor even get a hold on me! 'Tis now—This day—hour—minute—'tis as here I
stand

On the accursed threshold of the Prefect,
That I am found deceiving and deceived!

And now what do I?—hasten to the few

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT II

Deceived, ere they deceive the many—
shout,

'As I professed, I did believe myself!
'Say, Druses, had you seen a butchery—
'If Ayoob, Karshook saw—Maani there
'Must tell you how I saw my father sink;
'My mother's arms twine still about my
neck;

'Hear my brothershriek, here's yet the scar
'Of what was meant for my own death-blow—say,

'If you had woke like me, grown year by year

'Out of the tumult in a far-off clime,
'Would it be wondrous such delusion
grew?

'I walked the world, asked help at every
hand;

'Came help or no? Not this and this?
Which helps

'When I returned with, found the Prefect
here,

'The Druses here, all here but Hakeem's
self,

'The Khalif of the thousand prophecies,
'Reserved for such a juncture,—could I
call

'My mission aught but Hakeem's? Promised Hakeem

'More than performs the Djabal—your absolve?

'—Me, you will never shame before the
crowd

'Yet happily ignorant?—Me, both throngs surround,

'The few deceived, the many unabused,
'—Who, thus surrounded, slay for you and them

'The Prefect, lead to Lebanon? No
Khalif,

'But Sheikh once more! Mere Djabal—
not' . . .

Enter KHALIL hastily.
Kha. —God Hakeem!

'Tis told! The whole Druse nation knows thee, Hakeem,

As we! and mothers lift on high their babes

Who seem aware, so glisten their great
eyes,

Thou hast not failed us; ancient brows are proud;

Our elders could not earlier die, it seems,
Than at thy coming! The Druse heart is thine!

Take it! my lord and theirs, be thou adored!

Dja. [aside]. Adored!—but I renounce it utterly!

Kha. Already are they instituting choirs
And Dances to the Khalif, as of old

'Tis chronicled thou bad'st them.
Dja. [aside]. I abjure it!

'Tis not mine—not for me!

Kha. Why pour they wine Flavoured like honey and bruised mountain-herbs,

Or wear those strings of sun-dried cedar-fruit?

Oh, let me tell thee—Esaad, we supposed Doting, is carried forth, eager to see

The last sun rise on the Isle: he can see
now!

The shamed Druse women never wept
before:

They can look up when we reach home,
they say.

Smell!—sweet cane, saved in Lilith's breast thus long—

Sweet!—it grows wild in Lebanon. And I Alone do nothing for thee! 'Tis my office

Just to announce what well thou know'st
—but thus

Thou bidst me. At this self-same moment tend

The Prefect, Nuncio and the Admiral
Hither by their three sea-paths: nor forget

Who were the trusty watchers!—thou forget?

Like me, who do forget that Anael bade . . .
Dja. [aside]. Ay, Anael, Anael—is that said at last?

Louder than all, that would be said, I
knew!

What does abjuring mean, confessing
mean,

To the people? Till that woman crossed my path,

On went I, solely for my people's sake:
I saw her, and I then first saw myself,

And slackened pace: 'if I should prove
indeed

'Hakeem—with Anael by!'
Kha. [aside]. Ah, he is rapt!

Dare I at such a moment break on him
Even to do my sister's bidding? Yes:

The eyes are Djabal's and not Hakeem's
yet,

Though but till I have spoken this, per-
chance.

Dja. [aside]. To yearn to tell her, and yet have no one

Great heart's word that will tell her! I could gasp

Doubtless one such word out, and die.
[Aloud.] You said

That Anael . . .
Kha. . . . Fain would see thee,

Before you change, discard this Djabal's
shape

She knows, for Hakeem's shape she is to
know.

Something to say that will not from her
mind!

I know not what—'Let him but come!'
she said.

Dja. [half-apart]. My nation—all my Druses—how fare they?

Those I must save, and suffer thus to save, Hold their their posts! Wait they their Khalif too?

Kha. All at the signal pant to flock around

That banner of a brow!

Dja. [aside]. And when they flock, Confess them this: and after, for reward, Be chased with howlings to her feet perchance!

—Have the poor outraged Druses, deaf and blind,

Precede me there, forestall my story there, Tell it in mocks and jeers!

I lose myself.

Who needs a Hakeem to direct him now? I need the veriest child—why not this child?

[Turning abruptly to KHALIL. You are a Druse too, Khalil; you were nourished

Like Anael with our mysteries: if she Could vow, so nourished, to love only one Who should avenge the Druses, whence proceeds

Your silence? Wherefore made you no essay,

Who thus implicitly can execute My bidding? What have I done, you could not?

Who, knowing more than Anael the prostration

Of our once lofty tribe, the daily life Of this detested . . .

Does he come, you say, This Prefect? All's in readiness?

Kha. The sword, The sacred robe, the Khalif's mystic tiar, Laid up so long, are all disposed beside The Prefect's chamber.

Dja. —Why did you despair?

Kha. I know our nation's state? Too surely know,

As thou who speak'st to prove me! Wrongs like ours

Should wake revenge: but when I sought the wronged

And spoke,—'The Prefect stabbed your son—arise!

'Your daughter, while you starve, eats shameless bread

'In his pavilion—then arise!'—my speech Fell idly: 'twas, 'Be silent, or worse fare!

Endure till time's slow cycle prove complete!

'Who mayst thou be that takest on thee to thrust

'Into this peril—art thou Hakeem?' No! Only a mission like thy mission renders

All these obedient at a breath, subdues Their private passions, brings their wills to one.

Dja. You think so?

Kha. Even now—when they have witnessed

Thy miracles—had I not threatened all With Hakeem's vengeance, they would mar the work, And couch ere this, each with his special prize, Safe in this dwelling, leaving our main hope

To perish. No! When these have kissed thy feet

At Lebanon, the past purged off, the present

Clear,—for the future, even Hakeem's mission

May end, and I perchance, or any youth, Shall rule them thus renewed.—I tutor thee!

Dja. And wisely. (He is Anael's brother, pure

As Anael's self.) Go say, I come to her. Haste! I will follow you. [KHALIL goes.

Oh, not confess

To these, the blinded multitude—confess, Before at least the fortune of my deed

Half-authorize its means! Only to her Let me confess my fault, who in my path

Curled up like incense from a Mage-king's tomb

When he would have the wayfarer descend Through the earth's rift and bear hid treasure forth! How should child's-carelessness prove manhood's crime Till now that I, whose lone youth hurried past, Letting each joy 'scape for the Druses' sake, At length recover in one Druse all joy?

Were her brow brighter, her eyes richer, still

Would I confess, On the gulf's verge I pause.

How could I slay the Prefect, thus and thus?

Anael, be mine to guard me, not destroy! [Goes.

Enter ANAEL, and MAANI who is assisting to array her in the ancient dress of the Druses.

An. Those saffron vestures of the tabret-girls!

Comes Djabal, think you?

Maa. Doubtless Djabal comes.

An. Dost thou snow-swathe thee king-lie, Lebanon,

Than in my dreams?—Nay all the tresses off

*My forehead! Look I lovely so? He says That I am lovely.

Maa. Lovely! nay, that hangs

Awry.

An. You tell me how a khandjar hangs?

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT II

The sharp side, thus, along the heart, see,
marks
The maiden of our class. Are you content
For Djabal as for me?

Maa. Content, my child.
An. Oh mother, tell me more of him!

He comes Even now—tell more, fill up my soul with
him!

Maa. And did I not . . . yes, surely . . .
tell you all?

An. What will be changed in Djabal when the Change
Arrives? Which feature? Not his eyes!

Maa. 'Tis writ
Our Hakeem's eyes rolled fire and clove the dark Superbly.

An. Not his eyes! His voice perhaps?
Yet that's no change; for a grave current lived

—Grandly beneath the surface ever lived,
That, scattering, broke as in live silver spray

While . . . ah, the bliss . . . he would discourse to me

In that enforced still fashion, word on
word!

'Tis the old current which must swell thro'
that,

For what least tone, Maani, could I lose?
'Tis surely not his voice will change!

—If Hakeem
Only stood by! If Djabal, somehow,
passed

Out of the radiance as from out a robe;
Possessed, but was not it!

He lived with you?
Well—and that morning Djabal saw me
first

And heard me vow never to wed but one Who saved my People—on that day . . .
proceed!

Maa. Once more, then: from the time of his return

In secret, changed so since he left the Isle That I, who screened our Emir's last of
sons,

This Djabal, from the Prefect's massacre —Who bade him ne'er forget the child he
was,

—Who dreamed so long the youth he might become—

I knew not in the man that child; the man Who spoke alone of hope to save our
tribe,

How he had gone from land to land to save

Our tribe—allies were sure, nor foes to dread.

And much he mused, days, nights, alone
he mused:

But never till that day when, pale and worn

As by a persevering we, he cried
'Is there not one Drus, left me?'—and I showed

The way to Khail's and your hiding-
place

From the abhorred eye of the Prefect
here,

So that he saw you, heard you speak—till
then,

Never did he announce—(how the moon
seemed

To ope and shut, the while, above us
both!)

—His mission was the mission promised
us;

The cycle had revolved; all things renew-
ing,

He was lost Hakeem clothed in flesh to lead

His children home anon, now veiled to
work

Great purposes: the Druses now would
change!

An. And they have changed! And obstacles did sink,

And furtherances rose! And round his
form

Played fire, and music beat her angel
wings!

My people, let me more rejoice, oh more
For you than for myself! Did I but watch

Afar the pageant, feel our Khalif pass,
One of the throng, how proud were I—tho' ne'er

Singled by Djabal's glance! But to be chosen

His own from all, the most his own of all,
To be exalted with him, side by side,

Lead the exulting Druses, meet . . . ah,
how

Worthily meet the maidens who await Ever beneath the cedars—how deserve

This honour, in their eyes? So bright are
they

Who saffron-vested sound the tabret there,
The girls who throng there in my dream!

One hour
And all is over: how shall I do aught

That may deserve next hour's exalting?—
How?—

[Suddenly to MAANI.
Mother, I am not worthy him! I read it Still in his eyes! He stands as if to tell me

I am not, yet forbears. Why else revert To one theme ever?—how mere human

gifts
Suffice him in myself—whose worship

fades,
Whose awe goes ever off at his approach,

As now, who when he comes . . .
[DJABAL enters.] Oh why is it

I cannot kneel to you?
Dja. Rather, 'tis I

Should kneel to you, my Anael!
An. Even so!

For never seem you—shall I speak the truth?

Never a God to me! 'Tis the Man's hand, Eye, voice! Oh do you veil these to our people,

Or but to me? To them, I think, to them! And brightness is their veil, shadow—my truth!

You mean that I should never kneel to you

—So, thus I kneel!

Dja. [preventing her]. No—no!

[Feeling the khandjar as he raises her.

Ha, have you chosen . . .

An. The khandjar with our ancient garb. But, Djabal, Change not, be not exalted yet! Give time

That I may plan more, perfect more! My blood

Beats, beats!

[Aside.] Oh must I then—since

Loys leaves us

Never to come again, renew in me . . . These doubts so near effaced already—must

I needs confess them now to Djabal?—own

That when I saw that stranger, heard his voice,

My faith fell, and the woeful thought flashed first

That each effect of Djabal's presence, taken

For proof of more than human attributes In him, by me whose heart at his approach

Beat fast, whose brain while he was by swam round,

Whose soul at his departure died away,

—That every such effect might have been wrought

In other frames, tho' not in mine, by Loys Or any merely mortal presence? Doubt

Is fading fast; shall I reveal it now? How shall I meet the rapture presently,

With doubt unexpiated, undisclosed? Dja. [aside]. Avow the truth? I cannot! In what words

Avow that all she loved in me was false? —Which yet has served that flower-like love of hers To climb by, like the clinging gourd, and clasp

With its divinest wealth of leaf and bloom! Could I take down the prop-work, in itself

So vile, yet interlaced and overlaid With painted cups and fruitage—might these still Bask in the sun, unconscious their own strength

Of matted stalk and tendril had replaced The old support thus silently withdrawn!

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

But no; the beauteous fabric crushes too. 'Tis not for my sake but for Anael's sake

I leave her soul this Hakeem where it leans.

Oh could I vanish from her, quit the Isle! And yet—a thought comes: here my work is done

At every point; the Druses must return—Have convoy to their birth-place back, whoe'er

The leader be, myself or any Druse—

Venice is pledged to that: 'tis for myself, For my own vengeance in the Prefect's death,

I stay now, not for them: to slay or spare The Prefect, whom imports it save myself?

He cannot bar their passage from the Isle;

What would his death be but my own reward?

Then, mine I will forego. It is foregone! Let him escape with all my House's blood!

Ere he can reach land, Djabal disappears, And Hakeem, Anael loved, shall, fresh as first,

Live in her memory, keeping her sublime Above the world. She cannot touch that world

By ever knowing what I truly am, Since Loys,—of mankind the only one

Able to link my present with my past, My life in Europe with my Island life,

Thence, able to unmask me,—I've disposed Safely at last at Rhodes, and Enter KHALIL.

Kha. Loys greets thee! Dja. Loys? To drag me back? It cannot be!

An. [aside]. Loys! Ah, doubt may not be stifled so!

Kha. Can I have erred that thou so gazest? Yes,

I told thee not in the glad press of tidings Of higher import, Loys is returned

Before the Prefect, with, if possible, Twice the light-heartedness of old. As though

On some inauguration he expects, To-day, the world's fate hung!

Dja. —And asks for me?

Kha. Thou knowest all things. Thee in chief he greets,

But every Druse of us is to be happy At his arrival, he declares: were Loys

Thou, Master, he could have no wider soul

To take us in with. How I love that Loys! Dja. [aside]. Shame winds me with her tether round and round.

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT III]

An. [aside]. Loys? I take the trial! it is meet,
The little I can do, be done; that faith,
All I can offer, want no perfecting Which my own act may compass. Ay, this way
All may go well, nor that ignoble doubt
Be chased by other aid than mine. Advance Close to my fear, weigh Loys with my
Lord,
The mortal with the more than mortal
gifts!

Dja. [aside]. Before, there were so few deceived! and now
There's doubtless not one least Druse in the Isle
But, having learned my superhuman
claims,
And calling me his Khalif-God, will clash
The whole truth out from Loys at first
word!

While Loys, for his part, will hold me up,
With a Frank's unimaginable scorn
Of such imposture, to my people's eyes!
Could I but keep him longer yet awhile
From them, amuse him here until I plan
How he and I at once may leave the Isle!
Khalil I cannot part with from my side—
My only help in this emergency:
There's Anael!

An. Please you?

Dja. Anael—none but she!
[To ANAEL.] I pass some minutes in the chamber there,
Ere I see Loys: you shall speak with him Until I join you. Khalil follows me.

An. [aside]. As I divined: he bids me save myself,
Offers me a probation—I accept.
Let me see Loys!

Loys [without]. Djabal!

An. [aside]. 'Tis his voice.
The smooth Frank trifier with our people's wrongs,

The self-complacent boy-inquirer, loud
On this and that inflicted tyranny,
—Aught serving to parade an ignorance
Of how wrong feels, inflicted! Let me
close

With what I viewed at distance: let myself
Probe this delusion to the core!

Dja. He comes.
Khalil, along with me! while Anael waits Till I return once more—and but once
more.

ACT III

ANAEL and LOYS.

An. Here leave me! Here I wait another. 'Twas
For no mad protestation of a love
Like this you say possesses you, I came.

Loys. Love? how protest a love I dare not feel?

Mad words may doubtless have escaped me: you

Are here—I only feel you here!

An. No more!

Loys. But once again, whom could you love? I dare,

Alas, say nothing of myself, who am A Knight now, for when Knighthood we embrace,

Love we abjure: so, speak on safely:
speak,

Lest I speak, and betray my faith! And
yet

To say your breathing passes through me, changes

My blood to spirit, and my spirit to you,
As Heaven the sacrificer's wine to it—

This is not to protest my love! You said
You could love one . . .

An. One only! We are bent
To earth—who raises up my tribe, I love;

The Prefect bows us—who removes him;
we

Have ancient rights—who gives them
back to us,

I love. Forbear me! Let my hand go!

Loys. Him

You could love only? Where is Djabal?
Stay!

[Aside.] Yet wherefore stay? Who does this but myself?

Had I appraised her that I come to do Just this, what more could she acknowledge? No,

She sees into my heart's core! What is it

Feeds either cheek with red, as June some rose?

Why turns she from me? Ah fool, over-fond

To dream I could call up . . .

. . . What never dream
Yet feigned! 'Tis love! Oh Anael, speak to me!

Djabal—
An. Seek Djabal by the Prefect's
chamber

At noon! [She paces the room.]

Loys [aside]. And am I not the Prefect
now?

Is it my fate to be the only one
Able to win her love, the only one

Unable to accept her love? The past Breaks up beneath my footing: came I
here

This morn as to a slave, to set her free
And take her thanks, and then spend day

by day
Content beside her in the Isle? What works

This knowledge in me now? Her eye has broken

The faint disguise away: for Anael's sake

ACT III]

I left the Isle, forher espoused the cause Of the Druses, and for her I thought, till
now,
To live without!

—As I must live! To-day Ordains me Knight, forbids me . . . never shall

Forbid me to profess myself, heart, arm,
Thy soldier!

An. Djabal you demanded, comes.

Loys [aside]. What wouldst thou, Loys?

See him? Nought beside

Is wanting: I have felt his voice a spell
From first to last. He brought me here, made known

The Druses to me, drove me hence to seek Redress for them; and shall I meet him
now,

When nought is wanting but a word of
his,

To—what?—induce me to spurn hope,
faith, pride,

Honour away,—to cast my lot among His tribe, become a proverb in men's mouths,

Breaking my high pact of companionship With those who graciously bestowed on
me

The very opportunities I turn Against them! Let me not see Djabal
now!

An. The Prefect also comes.

Loys [aside]. Him let me see,
Not Djabal! Him, degraded at a word,
To soothe me,—to attest belief in me—
And after, Djabal! Yes, ere I return To her, the Nuncio's vow shall have destroyed

This heart's rebellion, and coerced this will
For ever.

Anael, not before the vows
Irrecoverably fix me . . .

Let me fly!
The Prefect, or I lose myself for ever!

[Goes.]

An. Yes, I am calm now; just one way remains—

One, to attest my faith in him: for, see,
I were quite lost else: Loys, Djabal, stand
On either side—two men! I balance looks And words, give Djabal a man's preference,

No more. In Djabal, Hakeem is absorbed!

And for a love like this, the God who saves

My race, selects me for his bride? One
way!

Enter DJABAL.

Dja. [to himself]. No moment is to waste then; 'tis resolved.
If Khalil may be trusted to lead back

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

My Druses, and if Loys can be lured
Out of the Isle—if I procure his silence,
Or promise never to return at least,— All's over. Even now my bark awaits:
I reach the next wild islet and the next,
And lose myself beneath the sun for ever.
And now, to Anael!

An. Djabal, I am thine!

Dja. Mine? Djabal's?—As if Hakeem had not been?

An. Not Djabal's? Say first, do you read my thought?

Why need I speak, if you can read my
thought?

Dja. I do not, I have said a thousand times.

An. (My secret's safe, I shall surprise him yet!)

Djabal, I knew your secret from the first:
Djabal, when first I saw you . . . (by our porch

You leant, and pressed the tinkling veil
away,

And one fringe fell behind your neck—I
see!)

. . . I knew you were not human, for I said
'This dim secluded house where the sea beats

'Is heaven to me—my people's huts are hell

'To them; this august form will follow me,
'Mix with the waves his voice will,—I have him;

'And they, the Prefect! Oh, my happiness
'Rounds to the full whether I choose or
no!

'His eyes met mine, he was about to speak,
'His hand grew damp—surely he meant
to say

'He let me love him: in that moment's gliss

'I shall forget my people pine for home—
'They pass and they repass with pallid
eyes!

I vowed at once a certain vow; this vow—

Not to embrace you till my tribe was saved.

Embrace me!
Dja. [apart]. And she loved me! Nought remained

But that! Nay, Anael, is the Prefect dead?

An. Ah, you reproach me! True, his death crowns all,

I know—or should know: and I would do
much,

Believe! but, death! Oh, you, who have known death,

Would never doom the Prefect, were death fearful

As we report!

Death!—a fire curls within us
From the foot's palm, and fills up to the brain,

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT III]

Up, out, then shatters the whole bubble-shell
Of flesh, perchance!

Death!—witness, I would die,
Whate'er death be, would venture now to die

For Khalil, for Maani—what for thee?
Nay but embrace me, Djabal, in assurance My vow will not be broken, for I must Do something to attest my faith in you,
Be worthy you!

Dja. [avoiding her]. I come for that—to say

Such an occasion is at hand: 'tis like I leave you—that we part, my Anael,—
part

For ever!

An. We part? Just so! I have succumbed,—

I am, he thinks, unworthy—and nought less

Will serve than such approval of my faith.
Then, we part not! Remains there no way short

Of that? Oh not that!

Death!—yet a hurt bird
Died in my hands; its eyes filmed—'Nay, it sleeps.'

I said, 'will wake to-morrow well:' 'twas dead.

Dja. I stand here and time fleets. Anael
—I come

To bid a last farewell to you: perhaps We never meet again. But, ere the Prefect Arrive . . .

Enter KHALIL, breathlessly.

Kha. He's here! The Prefect! Twenty guards,

No more: no sign he dreams of danger.
All

Awaits thee only. Ayoob, Karshook, keep

Their posts—wait but the deed's accomplishment

To join us with thy Druses to a man.

Still holds his course the Nuncio—near and near

The fleet from Candia steering.
Dja. [aside]. All is lost!

—Or won?

Kha. And I have laid the sacred robe,
The sword, the head-tiar, at the porch—
the place

Commanded. Thou wilt hear the Prefect's trumpet.

Dja. Then I keep Anael,—him then, past recall,

I slay—'tis forced on me. As I began
I must conclude—so be it!

Kha. For the rest,
Save Loys, our foe's solitary sword,
All is so safe that . . . I will ne'er entreat

Thy post again of thee: who' danger none,
There must be glory only meet for thee
In slaying the Prefect.

An. [aside]. Anael 'tis now that Djabal
Would leave me!—in the glory meet for him!

Dja. As glory, I would yield the deed to you

Or any Druse; what peril there may be,
I keep. [Aside.] All things conspire to hound me on.

Not now, my soul, draw back, at least!
Not now!

The course is plain, howe'er obscure all else.

Once offer this tremendous sacrifice,
Prevent what else will be irreparable,

Secure these transcendental helps, regain
The Cedars—then let all dark clear itself!

I slay him!

Kha. Anael, and no part for us!
[To DJABAL.] Hast thou possessed her with . . .

Dja. [to ANAEL]. Whom speak you to?
What is it you behold there? Nay, this smile

Turns stranger. Shudder you? The man must die,

As thousands of our race have died thro' him.

One blow, and I discharge his weary soul
From the flesh that pollutes it! Let him fill

Straight some new expiatory form, of earth

Or sea, the reptile or some æry thing:
What is there in his death?

An. My brother said,
Is there no part in it for us?

Dja. For Khalil,—
The trumpet will announce the Nuncio's entry;

Here, I shall find the Prefect hastening
In the Pavilion to receive him—here

I slay the Prefect; meanwhile Ayoob leads The Nuncio with his guards within: once these

Secured in the outer hall, bid Ayoob bar
Entry or egress till I give the sign

Which waits the landing of the argosies
You will announce to me: this double sign

That justice is performed and help arrived,
When Ayoob shall receive, but not before,

Let him throw ope the palace doors, admit

The Druses to behold their tyrant, ere
We leave for ever this detested spot.

Go, Khalil, hurry all! No pause, no pause!

Whirl on the dream, secure to wake anon!

Kha. What sign? and who the bearer?
Dja. Who shall show

ACT III]

My ring, admit^t to Ayoob. How she stands!
Have I not . . . I must have some task for her.

Anael, not that way! 'Tis the Prefect's chamber!

Anael, keep you the ring—give you the sign!

(It holds her safe amid the stir.) You will be faithful?

An. [taking the ring]. I would fain be worth^{less}. Hark! [Trumpet without.]

Khal. He comes.

Dja.

And I too come.

An.

One word, but one!

Say, shall you be exalted at the deed?

Then? On the instant?

Dja.

I exalted? What?

He, there—we, thus—our wrongs revenged, our tribe

Set free? Oh, then shall I, assure yourself, Shall you, shall each of us, be in his death Exalted!

Kha. He is here.

Dja.

Away—away! [They go.]

Enter the PREFECT with Guards, and LOYS.

The Prefect [to Guards]. Back, I say, to the galley every guard!

That's my sole care now; see each bench retains

Its complement of rowers; I embark O' the instant, since this Knight will have it so.

Alas me! Could you have the heart, my Loys!

[To a Guard who whispers.] Oh, bring the holy Nuncio here forthwith!

[The Guards go.]

Loys, a rueful sight, confess, to see The grey discarded Prefect leave his post, With tears i' the eye! So, you are Prefect now?

You depose me—you succeed me? Ha, ha!

Loys. And dare you laugh, whom laughter less becomes

Than yesterday's forced meekness we beheld . . .

Pref. —When you so eloquently pleaded, Loys,

For my dismissal from the post? Ah, meek

With cause enough, consult the Nuncio else!

And wish him the like meekness: for so staunch

A servant of the Church can scarce have bought

His share in the Isle, and paid for it, hard pieces!

You've my successor to condole with, Nuncio!

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

I shall be safe by then i' the galley, Loys!

Loys. You make as you would tell me you rejoice

To leave your scene of . . .

Pref. Trade in the dear Druses?

Blood and sweat traffic? Spare what yesterday

We heard enough of! Drove I in the Isle A profitable game? Learn wit, my son,

Which you'll need shortly! Did it never breed

Suspicion in you, all was not pure profit, When I, the insatiate . . . and so forth—

was bent

On having a partaker in my rule?

Why did I yield this Nuncio half the gain, If not that I might also shift—what on him?

Half of the peril, Loys!

Loys.

Peril?

Pref.

Hark you!

I'd love you if you'd let me—this for reason,

You save my life at price of . . . well, say risk

At least, of yours. I came a long time since

To the Isle; our Hospitallers bade me tame

These savage wizards, and reward myself—

Loys. The Knights who so repudiate your crime?

Pref. Loys, the Knights! we doubtless understood

Each other; as for trusting to reward From any friend beside myself . . . no, no!

I clutched mine on the spot, when it was sweet,

And I had taste for it. I felt these wizards Alive—was sure they were not on me, only

When I was on them: but with age comes caution:

And stinging pleasures please less and sting more.

Year by year, fear by fear! The girls were brighter

Than ever (faith, there's yet one Anael left,

I set my heart upon—Oh, prithee, let That brave new sword lie still!)—These joys looked brighter, But siltener the town, too, as I passed.

With this alcove's delicious memories Began to mingle visions of gaunt fathers,

Quick-eyed sons, fugitives from the mine, the oar,

Stealing to catch me. Brief, when I began To quake with fear—(I think I hear the Solicited to let me leave, now all Worth staying for was gained and gone!)

Chapter

—I say,

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT III]

Just when, for the remainder of my life,
All methods of escape seemed lost—that
then

Up should a young hot-headed Loys
spring,

Talk very long and loud,—in fine, compel
The Knights to break their whole arrangement, have me

Home for pure shame—from this safe-hold of mine

Where but ten thousand Druses seek my
life,

To my wild place of banishment, San Gines

By Murcia, where my three fat manors lying,

Purchased by gains here and the Nuncio's
gold,

Are all I have to guard me,—that such fortune

Should fall to me, I hardly could expect.
Therefore I say, I'd love you.

Loys. Can it be?
I play into your hands then? Oh no,
no!

The Venerable Chapter, the Great Order Sunk o' the sudden into fiends of the pit?

But I will back—will yet unveil you!

Pref. Me?
To whom?—perhaps Sir Galeas, who in Chapter

Shook his white head thrice—and some dozen times

My hand next morning shook, for value
paid!

To that Italian saint, Sir Cosimo?—
Indignant at my wringing year by year

A thousand bezants from the coral-divers,
As you recounted; felt the saint aggrieved?

Well might he—I allowed for his half-
share

Merely one hundred. To Sir . . .
Loys. See! you dare

Inculcate the whole Order; yet should I,
A youth, a sole voice, have the power to
change

Their evil way, had they been firm in
it?

Answer me!

Pref. Oh, the son of Bretagne's Duke,
And that son's wealth, the father's influence, too,

And the young arm, we'll even say, my Loys,

—The fear of losing or diverting these Into another channel, by gainsaying

A novice too abruptly, could not influence
The Order! You might join, for aught
they cared,

Their red-cross rivals of the Temple! Well,
I thank you for my part, at all events.

Stay here till they withdraw you! You'll inhabit

My palace—sleep, perchance, in the alcove

Whither I go to meet our holy friend.
Good! and now disbelieve me if you
can,—

This is the first time for long years I enter Thus [lifts the arras] without feeling just as if I lifted

The lid up of my tomb.

Loys. They share his crime!
God's punishment will overtake you yet.

Pref. Thank you it does po! Pardon
this last flash:

I bear a sober visage presently
With the disinherited Nuncio here—

His purchase-money safe at Murcia, too!
Let me repeat—for the first time, no draught

Coming as from a sepulchre salutes me.
When we next meet, this folly may have
passed,

We'll hope. Ha, ha!

[Goes through the arras.]
Loys. Assure me but . . . he's gone!

He could not lie. Then what have I escaped,

I, who had so nigh given up happiness
For ever, to be linked with him and them!

Oh, opportunist of discoveries! I Their Knight? I utterly renounce them
all!

Hark! What, he meets by this the Nuncio?

Yes,
The same hyæna groan-like laughter!

Quick—
To Djabal! I am one of them at last,
These simple-hearted Druses—Anael's
tribe!

Djabal! She's mine at last. Djabal, I say!
[Goes.]

ACT IV

Enter DJABAL.

Dja. Let me but slay the Prefect. The end now!

To-morrow will be time enough to pry
Into the means I took: suffice, they served,
Ignoble as they were, to hurl revenge
True to its object.

[Seeing the robe, etc. disposed.] Mine should never so
Have hurried to accomplishment! Thee,
Djabal,

Far other mood befitted! Calm the Robe
Should clothe this doom's awarder!

[Taking the robe.] Shall I dare Assume my nation's Robe? I am at least A Druse again, chill Europe's policy Drops from me: I dare take the Robe.

Why not
The Tiar? I rule the Druses, and what
more

Betokens it than rule?—yet—yet—

[Lays down the tiar.
[Footsteps in the alcove.] He comes!

[Taking the sword.
If the Sword serve, let the Tiar lie! So,
feet

Clogged with the blood of twenty years can fall

Thus lightly! Round me, all ye ghosts!
He'll lift . . .

Which arm to push the arras wide?—or
both?

Stab from the neck down to the heart—
there stay!

Near he comes—nearer—the next footstep! Now!

[As he dashes aside the arras, ANAEL is discovered.

Ha! Anael! Nay, my Anael, can it be?
Heard you the trumpet? I must slay him

here,
And here you ruin all. Why speak you
not?

Anael, the Prefect comes! [ANAEEL screams.] So slow to feel

'Tis not a sight for you to look upon?
A moment's work—but such work! Till you go,

I must be idle—idle, I risk all!

[Pointing to her hair.
Those locks are well, and you are beau-teous thus,

But with the dagger 'tis, I have to do!

An. With mine!
Dja. Blood—Anael?

An. Djabal, 'tis thy deed!
It must be! I had hoped to claim it mine—

Be worthy thee—but I must needs confess 'Twas not I, but thyself . . . not I have . . .

Djabal!
Speak to me!

Dja. Oh, my punishment!
An. Speak to me

While I can speak! touch me, despite the blood!

When the command passed from thy soul
to mine,

I went, fire leading me, muttering of thee,
And the approaching exaltation,—'make

'One sacrifice!' I said,—and he sat there, Bade me approach; and, as I did approach,

Thy fire with music burst into my brain.

'Twas but a moment's work, thou said'st,
—perchance

It may have been so! Well, it is thy deed.
Dja. It is my deed.

An. His blood all this!
—this! and . . .

And more! Sustain me, Djabal! Wait
not—now

Let flash thy glory! Change thyself and
me!

It must be! Ere the Druses flock to us!

At least confirm me! Djabal, blood gushed
forth—

He was our tyrant—but I looked he'd fall Prone as asleep—why else is death called

sleep?
Sleep? He bent o'er his breast! 'Tis sin,

I know,—
Punish me, Djabal, but wilt thou let him?

Be it thou that punishest, not he—who creeps

On his red breast—is here! 'Tis the small groan

Of a child—no worse! Bestow the new life, then!

Too swift it cannot be, too strange, surpassing!

[Following him as he retreats.
Now! Change us both! Change me and change thou!

Dja. [sinks on his knees]. Thus!

Behold my change! You have done nobly.
I!—

An. Can Hakeem kneel?
Dja. No Hakeem, and scarce Djabal!

I have dealt falsely, and this woe is come.

No—hear me ere scorn blast me! Once and ever,

The deed is mine. Oh think upon the past!
An. [to herself]. Did I strike once, or twice, or many times?

Dja. I came to lead my tribe where,

bathed in glooms,
Doth Bahumid the Renovator sleep:

Anael, I saw my tribe: I said, 'Without 'A miracle this cannot be'—I said

'Be there a miracle!'—for I saw you.
An. His head lies south the portal.

Dja. —Weighed with this
The general good, how could I choose my

own?
What matter was my purity of soul?

Little by little I engaged myself—Heaven would accept me for its instrument,

I hoped: I said Heaven had accepted me.

An. Is it this blood breeds dreams in me? Who said

You were not Hakeem? And your miracles—

The fire that plays innocuous round your
form?

[Again changing her whole manner.
Ah, thou wouldst try me—thou art Hakeem still!

Dja. Woe—woe! As if the Druses of the Mount (Scarce Arabs, even there, but here, in the

Isle,
Beneath their former selves) should comprehend

The subtle lore of Europe! A few secrets

That would not easily affect the meanest

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT IV

Of the crowd there, could wholly subjugate
The best of our poor tribe. Again that eye?

An. [after a pause springs to his neck].
Djabal, in this there can be no deceit!

Why, Djabal, were you human only,—think,

Maani is but human, Khalil human,
Loys is human even—did their words Haunt me, their looks pursue me? Shame on you

So to have tried me! Rather, shame on me
So to need trying! Could I, with the Prefect

And the blood, there—could I see only you?
—Hang by your neck over this gulf of blood?

Speak, I am saved! Speak, Djabal! Am I saved?

[As DJABAL slowly unclasps her arms, and puts her silently from him.]

Hakeem would save me. Thou art Djabal. Crouch!

Bow to the dust, thou basest of our kind!
The pile of thee, I reared up to the cloud—
Full, midway, of our fathers' trophied tombs,

Based on the living rock, devoured not by The unstable desert's jaws of sand,—falls prone.

Fire, music, quenched: and now thou liest there

A ruin, obscene creatures will moan through.

—Let us come, Djabal!
Dja. Whither come?

An. At once—
Lest so it grow intolerable. Come!
Will I not share it with thee? Best at once!
So, feel less pain! Let them deride,—thy tribe

Now trusting in thee,—Loys shall deride!
Come to them, hand in hand, with me!

Dja. Where come?

An. Where?—to the Druses thou hast wronged! Confess,

Now that the end is gained—(I love thee now—)

That thou hast so deceived them—(perchance love thee

Better than ever.) Come, receive their doom

Of infamy! O, best of all I love thee!
Shame with the man, no triumph with the God,

Be mine! Come!

Dja. Never! More shame yet? and why?

Why? You have called this deed mine—it is mine!

And with it I accept its circumstance.

How can I longer strive with fate? The past

Is past: my false life shall henceforth show true.

Hear me! The argosies touch land by this;

They bear us to fresh scenes and happier skies.

What if we reign together?—if we keep Our secret for the Druses' good?—by means

Of even their superstition, plant in them
New life? I learn from Europe: all who seek Man's good must awe man, by such means as these.

We two will be divine to them—we are!
All great works in this world spring from the ruins

Of greater projects—ever, on our earth,
Babels men block out, Babylons they build.

I wrest the weapon from your hand! I claim

The deed! Retire! You have my ring—you bar

All access to the Nuncio till the forces
From Venice land.

An. Thou wilt feign Hakeem then?
Dja. [putting the Tiara of Hakeem on his head]. And from this moment that I dare ope wide Eyes that till now refused to see, begins

My true dominion: for I know myself,
And what am I to personate. No word?

[ANAEL goes.]

'Tis come on me at last! His blood on her—

What memories will follow that! Her eye,
Her fierce distorted lip and ploughed black

brow!
Ah, fool! Has Europe then so poorly

tamed
The Syrian blood from out thee? Thou, presume

To work in this foul earth by means not foul?

Scheme, as for heaven,—but, on the earth be glad

If a least ray like heaven's be left thee! Thus

I shall be calm—in readiness—no way Surprised.

[A noise without.] This should be Khalil and my Druses.

Venice is come then! Thus I grasp thee, sword!

Druses, 'tis Hakeem saves you! In! Behold

Your Prefect!

Enter LOYS. DJABAL hides the khandjar in his robe.

Loys. Oh, well found, Djabal!—but no time for words.

ACT IV]

You know who waits there?

[Pointing to the alcove.

Well:—and that 'tis there

He meets the Nuncio? Well? Now, a surprise—

He there—

Dja. I know—

Loys. —is now no mortal's lord,
Is absolutely powerless—call him, dead—
He is no longer Prefect—you are Prefect!
Oh, shrink not! I do nothing in the dark,
Nothing unworthy Breton blood, believe!
I understand at once your urgency
That I should leave this isle for Rhodes;
I felt

What you were loath to speak—your need of help.

I have fulfilled the task, that earnestness Imposed on me: have, face to face, confronted

The Prefect in full Chapter, charged on
him

The enormities of his long rule; he stood
Mute, offered no defence, no crime denied.
On which, I spoke of you, and of your
tribe,

Your faith so like our own, and all you urged

Of old to me: I spoke, too, of your good-
ness,

Your patience—brief, I hold henceforth
the Isle

In charge, am nominally lord,—but you,
You are associated in my rule—

Are the true Prefect! Ay, such faith had
they

In my assurance of your loyalty
(For who insults an imbecile old man?)
That we assume the Prefecture this hour.
You gaze at me? Hear greater wonders
yet—

I cast down all the fabric I have built.
These Knights, I was prepared to worship
... but

Of that another time; what's now to say,
Is—I shall never be a Knight! Oh, Djabal, Here first I throw all prejudice aside,
And call you brother! I am Druselike you:
My wealth, my friends, my power, are wholly yours,

Your people's, which is now my people:
for

There is a maiden of your tribe, I love—
She loves me—Khalif's sister—

Dja. Anael?

Loys. Start you?

Seems what I say, unknighly? Thus it chanced:

When first I came, a novice, to the isle...

Enter one of the NUNCIO's Guards from the alcove.

Guard. Oh horrible! Sir Loys! Here is Loys!

And here— [Others enter from the alcove.
[Pointing to DJABAL.] Secure him, bind him—this is he!

[They surround DJABAL.

Loys. Madmen—what is't you do?

Stand from my friend,

And tell me!

Guard. Thou canst have no part in
this—

Surely no part! But slay him not! The Nuncio

Commanded, slay him not!

Loys.

Speak, or...

Guard.

The Prefect
Lies murdered there by him thou dost embrace.

Loys. By Djabal? Miserable fools!

How Djabal?

[A Guard lifts DJABAL's robe; DJABAL flings down the khandjar.

Loys [after a pause]. Thou hast received some insult worse than all,

Some outrage not to be endured—

[To the Guards.] Stand back!

He is my friend—more than my friend.

Thou hast

Slain him upon that provocation.

Guard.

No!

No provocation! 'Tis a long devised
Conspiracy: the whole tribe is involved.
He is their Khalif—'tis on that pretence—
Their mighty Khalif who died long ago,
And now comes back to life and light
again!

All is just now revealed, I know not how,
By one of his confederates—who, straggling
With horror at this murder, first apprised
The Nuncio. As 'twas said, we find this
Djabal

Here where we take him.

Dja. [aside]. Who broke faith with me?

Loys [to DJABAL]. Hear'st thou? Speak!

Till thou speak, I keep off these,

Or dic with thee. Deny this story! Thou
A Khalif, an impostor? Thou, my friend,
Whose tale was of an inoffensive tribe,
With... but thou know'st—on that tale's truth I pledged

My faith before the Chapter: what art
thou?

Dja. Loys, I am as thou hast heard.

All's true.

No more concealment! As these tell thee,
all

Was long since planned. Our Druses are
enough

To crush this handful: the Venetians
land

Even now in our behalf. Loys, we part.

Thou, serving much, wouldst fain have served me more;

It might not be. I thank thee. As thou hearest,

We are a separated tribe: farewell!

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT IV

Loys. Oh where will truth be found now? Canst thou so Belie the Druses? Do they share thy crime?

Those thou professest of our Breton stock, Are partners with thee? Why, I saw but
now

Khalil, my friend: he spoke with me—no
word

Of this! and Anael—whom I love, and who

Loves me—she spoke no word of this.

Dja. Poor boy!
Anael, who loves thee? Khalil, fast thy
friend?

We, offsets from a wandering Count of Dreux?

No: older than the oldest, princelier
Than Europe's princeliest race, our tribe:
enough

For thee, that on our simple faith we
found

A monarchy to shame your monarchies
At their own trick and secret of success.
The child of this our tribe shall laugh upon
The palace-step of him whose life ere
night

Is forfeit, as that child shall know, and
yet

Shall laugh there! What, we Druses wait
forsooth

The kind interposition of a boy
—Can only save ourselves if thou concede:

—Khalil admire thee? He is my right-
hand,

My delegate!—Anael accept thy love?

She is my bride!

Loys. Thy bride? She one of them?

Dja. My bride!

Loys. And she retains her glorious eyes!

She, with those eyes, has shared this mis-creant's guilt!

Ah—who but she directed me to find Djabal within the Prefect's chamber?

Khalil
Bade me seek Djabal there, too. All is
truth.

What spoke the Prefect worse of them than this?

Did the Church ill to institute long since Perpetual warfare with such serpentry?

And I—have I desired to shift my part,
Evade my share in her design? 'Tis well.

Dja. Loys, I wronged thee—but unwittingly:

I never thought there was in thee a virtue
That could attach itself to what thou deemest

A race below thine own. I wronged thee,
Loys,

But that is over: all is over now,
Save the protection I ensure against

My people's anger. By their Khalif's side, Thou art secure and mayst depart: so,
come!

Loys. Thy side? I take protection at thy hand?

Enter other Guards.

Guards. Fly with him! Fly, Sir Loys!
'Tis too true:

And only by his side thou mayst escape.
The whole tribe is in full revolt: they flock
About the palace—will be here—on
thee—

And there are twenty of us, we the Guards O' the Nuncio, to withstand them! Even
we

Had stayed to meet our death in ignorance,

But that one Druse, a single faithful Druse,
Made known the horror to the Nuncio.

Fly!
The Nuncio stands aghast. At least let us Escape thy wrath, O Hakeem! We are nought

In thy tribe's persecution! [To Loys.]
Keep by him!

They hail him Hakeem, their dead Prince
returned:

He is their God, they shout, and at his beck

Are life and death!

Loys [springing at the khandjar DJABAL had thrown down, seizes him by the throat].

Thus I resume my knighthood and its warfare,

Thus end thee, miscreant, in thy pride of
place!

Thus art thou caught. Without, thy dupes may cluster:

Friends aid thee, foes avoid thee,—thou art Hakeem,

How say they?—God art thou! but also
here

Is the least, youngest, meanest the Church calls

Her servant, and his single arm avails
To aid her as she lists. I rise, and thou Art crushed. Hordes of thy Druses flock
without:

Here thou hast me, who represent the Cross,

Honour and Faith, 'gainst Hell, Mahound
and thee.

Die! [DJABAL remains calm.] Implore my mercy, Hakeem, that my scorn

May help me! Nay, I cannot ply thy trade;

I am no Druse, no stabber: and thine eye, Thy form, are too much as they were—my
friend

Had such. Speak! Beg for mercy at my foot!

[DJABAL still silent.]

ACT IV]

Heaven could not ask so much of me—not, sure,
So much. I cannot kill him so.

[After a pause.] Thou art Strong in thy cause, then—dost outbrave us, then.

Heardst thou that one of thine accomplices,

Thy very people, has accused thee? Meet His charge! Thou hast not even slain the Prefect

As thy own vile creed warrants. Meet that Druse!

Come with me and disprove him—be thou
tried

By him, nor seek appeal! Promise me this,
Or I will do God's office. What, shalt thou Boast of assassins at thy beck, yet truth Want even an executioner? Consent, Or I will strike—look in my face—I will!

Dja. Give me again my khandjar, if thou darest! [Loys gives it.]

Let but one Druse accuse me, and I plange, This home. A Druse betray me? Let us
go!

[Aside.] Who has betrayed me?

[Shouts without.]

Hearst thou? I hear
No plainer than long years ago I heard That shout—but in no dream now. They return!

Wilt thou be leader with me, Loys? Well.

ACT V

The Uninitiated Druses, filling the hall tumultuously, and speaking together.

Here flock we, obeying the summons.
Lo, Hakeem hath appeared, and the Prefect is dead, and we return to Lebanon!
My manufacture of goats' fleece must, I doubt, soon fall away there. Come, old Nasif—link thine arm in mine—we fight, if needs be. Come, what is a great fightword?—'Lebanon?' (My daughter—my daughter!)—But is Khalil to have the office of Hamza?—Nay, rather, if he be wise, the monopoly of henna and cloves. Where is Hakeem?—The only prophet I ever saw, prophesied at Cairo once, in my youth: a little black Copht, dressed all in black too, with a great stripe of yellow cloth flapping down behind him like the back-fin of a water-serpent. Is this he? Biamrallah!
Biamreh! HAKEEM!

Enter the NUNCIO, with Guards.

Nuncio [to his Attendants]. Hold both, the sorcerer and this accomplice
Ye talk of, that accuseth him! And tell Sir Loys he is mine, the Church's hope: Bid him approve himself our Knight indeed!

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

Lo, this black disemboгуing of the Isle!
[To the Druses.] Ah children, what a sight for these old eyes

That kept themselves alive this voyage
through

To smile their very last on you! I came To gather one and all you wandering sheep

Into my fold, as though a father came . . .
As though, in coming, a father should . . .

[To his Guards.] (Ten, twelve, —Twelve guards of you, and not an outlet? None?

The wizards stop each avenue? Keep close!)

[To the Druses.] As if one came to a son's house, I say,

So did I come—no guard with me—to
find . . .

Alas—alas!
A Druse. Who is the old man?

Another. Oh, ye are to shout!
Children, he styles you.

Druses. Ay, the Prefect's slain!
Glory to the Khalif, our Father!

Nuncio. Even so
I find, (ye prompt aright) your father slain.

While most he plotted for your good, that father

(Alas, how kind, ye never knew)—lies slain.

[Aside.] (And hell's worm gnaw the gloz-ing knave—with me,

For being duped by his cajoleries!
Are these the Christians? These the docile
crew

My bezants went to make me Bishop o'er?)

[To his Attendants, who whisper.] What say ye does this wizard style himself?

Hakeem? Biamrallah? The third Fatem-
ite?

What is this jargon? He—the insane
Khalif,

Dead near three hundred years ago, come
back

In flesh and blood again?

Druses. He mutters! Hear ye?
He is blaspheming Hakeem. The old man
Is our dead Prefect's friend. Tear him!

Nuncio. Ye dare not.
I stand here with my five-and-seventy
years,

The Patriarch's power behind me, God's
above.

Those years have witnessed sin enough;
ere now

Misguided men arose against their lords,
And found excuse; but ye, to be enslaved
By sorceries, cheats—alas! the same tricks,
tried

On my poor children in this nook o' the
earth,

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT V

Could triumph, that have been successively Exploded, laughed to scorn, all nations
through:

'Romaioi, Ioudaioite kai proselutoi,
'Cretes and Arabians'—you are duped the last.

Said I, refrain from tearing me? I pray ye Tear me! Shall I return to tell the Patriarch

That so much love was wasted—every gift Rejected, from his benison I brought,
Down to the galley-full of bezants, sunk
An hour since at the harbour's mouth, by
that . . .

That . . . never will I speak his hated name!
[To his Servants.] What was the name his fellow slip-fetter

Called their arch-wizard by? [They whisper.] Oh, Djabal was't?

Druses. But how a sorcerer? false wherein?

Nuncio. (Ay, Djabal!)

How false? Ye know not, Djabal has confessed . . .

Nay, that by tokens found on him we learn . . .

What I sailed hither solely to divulge—
How by his spells the demons were allured
To seize you: not that these be aught save lies

And mere illusions. Is this clear? I say,
By measures such as these, he would have led you

Into a monstrous ruin: follow ye?

Say, shall ye perish for his sake, my sons?
Druses. Hark ye!

Nuncio—Be of one privilege amerced?
No! Infinite the Patriarch's mercies are!
No! With the Patriarch's licence, still I bid

Tear him to pieces who misled you! Haste!

Druses. The old man's beard shakes, and his eyes are white fire! After all, I know nothing of Djabal beyond what Karshook says; he knows but what Khalil says, who knows just what Djabal says himself. Now, the little Copht Prophet, I saw at Cairo in my youth, began by promising each bystander three full measures of wheat . . .

Enter KHALIL and the initiated DRUSES.

Kha. Venice and her deliverance are at
hand:

Their fleet stands through the harbour.
Hath he slain

The Prefect yet? Is Djabal's change come,
yet?

Nuncio [to Attendants]. What's this of Venice? Who's this boy?

[Attendants whisper.] One Khalil?
Djabal's accomplice, Loys called, but now,

The only Druse, save 'Djabal's self, to fear?

[To the Druses.] I cannot hear ye with these aged ears:

Is it so? Ye would have my troops assist?
Doth he abet him in his sorceries?

Down with the cheat, guards, as my children
bid!

[They spring at KHALIL; as he beats them back,

Stay! No more bloodshed! Spare deluded
youth!

Whom seek'st thou? (I will teach him)— whom, my child?

Thou know'st not what these know, what these declare.

I am an old man as thou seest—have don With life; and what should move me but the truth?

Art thou the only fond one of thy tribe?
'Tis I interpret for thy tribe.

Kha. Oh, this

Is the expected Nuncio! Druses, hear—Endure ye this? Unworthy to partake

The glory Hakeem gains you! While I
speak,

The ships touch land: who makes for Lebanon?

They plant the winged lion in these halls!
Nuncio [aside]. If it be true! Venice?

Oh, never true!

Yet Venice would so gladly thwart our Knights,

So fain get footing here, stand close by Rhodes!

Oh, to be duped this way!

Kha. Ere he appear

And lead you gloriously, repent, I say!
Nuncio [aside]. Nor any way to stretch

the arch-wizard stark
Ere the Venetians come? Cut off the head,

The trunk were easily stilled. [To the Druses.] He? Bring him forth!

Since so you needs will have it, I assent.
You'd judge him, say you, on the spot—
confound

The sorcerer in his very circle? Where's Our short black-bearded fallow friend who swore

He'd earn the Patriarch's guerdon by one stab?

Bring Djabal forth at once!

Druses. Ay, bring him forth!

The Patriarch drives a trade in oil and
silk,

And we're the Patriarch's children—true men, we!

Where is the glory? Show us all the glory!
Kha. You dare not so insult him!

What, not see . . .

(I tell thee, Nuncio, these are uninstructed, Untrusting: they know nothing of our

Khalil!)

—Not see that if he lets a doubt arise

ACT V]

'Tis but to give yourselves the chance of seeming
To have some influence in your own Return!
That all may say ye would have trusted him
Without the all-convincing glory—ay,
And did! Embrace the occasion, friends!
For, think—
What wonder when his change takes place? But now
For your sakes, he should not reveal himself.
No: could I ask and have, I would not ask
The change yet!

Enter DJABAL and LOYS.

Spite of all, reveal thyself!
I had said, pardon them for me—for Anael—
For our sakes pardon these besotted men—
Ay, for thine own—they hurt not thee!
Yet now
One thought swells in me and keeps down all else.
This Nuncio couples shame with thee, has called Imposture thy whole course, all bitter
things
Has said: he is but an old fretful man!
Hakeem—nay, I must call thee Hakeem
now—
Reveal thyself! See! Where is Anael?
See!

Loys [to DJABAL]. Here are thy people.
Keep thy word to me!

Dja. Who of my people hath accused
me?

Nuncio. So!

So this is Djabal, Hakeem, and what not?
A fit deed, Loys, for thy first Knight's day!
May it be augury of thy after-life!
Ever prove truncheon of the Church as
now

That, Nuncio of the Patriarch, having
charge

Of the Isle here, I claim thee [turning to DJABAL] as these bid me,

Forfeit for murder done thy lawful prince,
Thou conjurer that peep'st and mutterest!
Why should I hold thee from their hands?

(Spells, children?)

But hear how I dispose of all his spells!
Thou art a prophet?—wouldst entice thy
tribe

From me?—thou workest miracles? (Attend!

Let him but move me with his spells!) I,
Nuncio . . .

Dja. . . . Which how thou camest to be,
I say not now,
Though I have also been at Stamboul, Lukel!

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

Ply thee with spells, forsooth! What need of spells?

If Venice, in her Admiral's person, stoop
To ratify thy compact with her foe,
The Hospitallers, for this Isle—withdraw
Her warrant of the deed which reinstates
My people in their freedom, tricked away
By him I slew,—refuse to convoy us
To Lebanon and keep the Isle we leave—
Then will be time to try what spells can do!
Dost thou dispute the Republic's power?

Nuncio. Lo ye!

He tempts me too, the wily exorcist!
No! The renowned Republic was and is The Patriarch's friend: 'tis not for courting Venice

That I—that these implore thy blood of
me.

Lo ye, the subtle miscreant! Ha, so subtle?

Ye, Druses, hear him. Will ye be deceived?
How he evades me! Where's the miracle
He works? I bid him to the proof—fish up Your galley-full of bezants that he sank!
That were a miracle! One miracle!
Enough of trifling, for it chafes my years.
I am the Nuncio, Druses! I stand forth
To save you from the good Republic's
rage

When she shall find her fleet was summoned here

To aid the mummeries of a knave like this.
[As the Druses hesitate, his Attendants whisper.

Ah, well suggested! Why, we hold the while

One who, his close confederate till now,
Confesses Djabal at the last a cheat,
And every miracle a cheat. Who throws
me

His head? I make three offers, once I offer,—

And twice . . .

Dja. Let who moves perish at my foot!

Kha. Thanks, Hakeem, thanks! Oh,
Anael, Maani,

Why tarry they?

Druses [to each other]. He can! He can!
Live fire—

[To the NUNCIO.] I say he can, old man!
Thou know'st him not.

Live fire like that thou seest now in his
eyes,

Plays fawning round him. See! The change begins.

All the brow lightens as he lifts his arm.
Look not at me! It was not I!

Dja. What Druse
Accused me, as he saith? I bid each bone

Crumble within that Druse! None, Loys,
none

Of my own people, as thou said'st, have raised

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT V

A voice against me.

Nuncio [aside]. Venice to come! Death!
Dja. [continuing]. Confess and go unscathed, however false!

Seest thou my Druses, Luke? I would submit

To thy pure malice did one Druse confess!
How said I, Loys?

Nuncio [to his Attendants who whisper].
Ah, ye counsel so?

[Aloud.] Bring in the witness, then, who,
first of all,

Disclosed the treason! Now I have thee wizard!

Ye hear that? If one speaks, he bids you tear him

Joint after joint: well then, one does speak! One,

Befooled by Djabal, even as yourselves,
But who hath voluntarily proposed

To expiate, by confessing thus, the fault
Of having trusted him.

[They bring in a veiled Druse.

Loys. Now, Djabal, now!

Nuncio. Friend, Djabal fronts thee!

Make a ring, sons. Speak!

Expose this Djabal—what he was, and
how:

The wiles he used, the aims he cherished:
all,

Explicitly as late 'twas spoken to these
My servants: I absolve and pardon thee.

Loys. Thou hast the dagger ready,
Djabal?

Dja. Speak,

Recreant!
Druses. Stand back, fool! farther!

Suddenly

You shall see some huge serpent glide from under

The empty vest, or down will thunder crash!

Back, Khalil!

Kha. I go back? Thus go I back!

[To ANAEL.] Unveil! Nay, thou shalt face
the Khalif! Thus!

[He tears away ANAEL'S veil; DJABAL folds his arms and bows his head; the Druses fall back; LOYS springs from the side of DJABAL and the NUNCIO.

Loys. Then she was true—she only of them all!

True to her eyes—may keep those glorious
eyes,

And now be mine, once again mine! Oh,
Anael!

Dared I think thee a partner in his crime—
That blood could soil that hand? nay, 'tis mine—Anael,

—Not mine?—who offer thee before all
these

My heart, my sword, my name—so thou wilt say

That Djabal, who affirms thou art his bride,

Lies—say but that he lics!

Dja. Thou, Anael?

Loys. Nay, Djabal, nay, one chance for me—the last!

Thou hast had every other; thou hast spoken

Days, nights, what falsehood listed thee
—let me

Speak first now; I will speak now!

Nuncio. Loys, pause!
Thou art the Duke's son, Bretagne's

choicest stock,
Loys of Dreux, God's sepulchre's first

sword:
This wilt thou spit on, this degrade, this trample

To earth?

Loys [to ANAEL]. Who had foreseen that one day Loys

Would stake these gifts against some other
good

In the whole world? I give thee! I
—would

My strong will might bestow real shape on them,

That I might see, with my own eyes, thy
foot

Tread on their very neck! 'Tis not by gifts
I put aside this Djabal: we will stand—

We do stand, see, two men! Djabal, stand
forth!

Who's worth her, I or thou? I—who for Anael

Uprightly, purely kept my way, the long True way—left thee each by-path, boldly

lived Without the lies and blood,—or thou, or

thou?
Me! love me, Anael! Leave the blood and

him!
[To DJABAL.] Now speak—now, quick on this that I have said,— Thou with the blood, speak if thou art a

man!
Dja. [to ANAEL]. And was it thou be-trayedst me? 'Tis well!

I have deserved this of thee, and submit.
Nor 'tis much evil thou in'ictest: life

Ends here. The cedars shall not wave for us:

For there was crime, and must be punishment.

See fate! By thee I was seduced, by thee
I perish: yet do I—can I repent?

I with my Arab instinct, thwarted ever
By my Frank policy,—and with, in turn,

My Frank brain, thwarted by my Arab
heart—

While these remained in equipoise, I lived

—Nothing; had either been predominant,
As a Frank schemer or an Arab mystic,

I had been something;—now, each has destroyed

The other—and behold, from out their
crash,
A third and better nature rises up—
My mere man's-nature! And I yield to it:
I love thee, I who did not love before!
An. Djabal!

Dja. It seemed love, but it was not love:
How could I love while thou adorest me?
Now thou despisest, art above me so immeasurably! Thou, no other, doomest
My death now; this my steel shall execute Thy judgment; I shall feel thy hand in it.
Oh luxury to worship, to submit,
Transcended, doomed to death by thee!

An. My Djabal!
Dja. Dost hesitate? I force thee then.
Approach,
Druses! for I am out of reach of fate;
No further evil waits me. Speak the doom!

Hear, Druses, and hear, Nuncio, and hear,
Loys!

An. HAKEEM! [She falls dead.
[The Druses scream, grovelling before

him.
Druses. Ah Hakeem!—not on me thy wrath!
Biamrallah, pardon! never doubted I!
Ha, dog, how sayest thou?

[They surround and seize the NUNCIO and his Guards. LOYS flings himself upon the body of ANAEL, on which DJABAL continues to gaze as stupefied.

Nuncio. Caitiffs! Have ye eyes?
Whips, racks should teach you! What,
his fools? his dupes?

Leave me! Unhand me!
Kha. [approaching DJABAL timidly].

Save her for my sake!
She was already thine; she would have shared

To-day thine exaltation: think, this day
Her hair was plaited thus because of thee!
Yes, feel the soft bright hair—feel!

Nuncio [struggling with those who have seized him]. What, because His leman dies for him? You think it hard To die? Oh, would you were at Rhodes, and choice

Of deaths should suit you!
Kha. [bending over ANAEL'S body].

Just restore her life!
So little does it! there—the eyelids tremble!

'Twas not my breath that made them: and the lips

Move of themselves. I could restore her
life!

Hakeem, we have forgotten—have presumed

On our free converse: we are better taught.
See, I kiss—how I kiss thy garment's hem
For her! She kisses it—Oh, take her deed

In mine! Thou dost believe now,
Anaël?—See,

She smiles! Were her lips open o'er the teeth

Thus, when I spoke first? She believes in
thee!

Go not without her to the cedars, lord!
Or leave us both—I cannot go alone!
I have obeyed thee, if I dare so speak:
Hath Hakeem thus forgot all Djabal
knew?

Thou feelest then my tears fall hot and fast
Upon thy hand, and yet thou speakest not?
Ere the Venetian trumpet sound—ere thou Exalt thyself, O Hakeem! save thou her!

Nuncio. And the accursed Republic will arrive

And find me in their toils—dead, very like.
Under their feet!

What way—not one way yet
To foil them? None?

[Observing DJABAL'S face.
What ails the Khalif? Ah,
That ghastly face! A way to foil them
yet!

[To the Druses.] Look to your Khalif, Druses! Is that face

God Hakeem's? Where is triumph,— where is . . . what

Said he of exaltation—hath he promised
So much to-day? Why then, exalt thyself!
Cast off that husk, thy form, set free thy
soul

In splendour! Now, bear witness! here I
stand—

I challenge him exalt himself, and I Become, for that, a Druse like all of you!
The Druses. Exalt thyself! Exalt thyself, O Hakeem!

Dja. [advances]. I can confess now all from first to last.

There is no longer shame for me. I am . . .
[Here the Venetian trumpet sounds: the

Druses shout, DJABAL'S eye catches the expression of those about him, and, as the old dream comes back, he is again confident and inspired.

—Am I not Hakeem? And ye would have crawled

But yesterday within these impure courts Where now ye stand erect! Not grand
enough?

—What more could be conceded to such beasts

As all of you, so sunk and base as you,
Than a mere man? A man among such beasts

Was miracle enough: yet him you doubt.
Him you forsake, him fain would you destroy—

With the Venetians at your gate, the Nuncio

Thus—(see the baffled hypocrite!) and,
best,

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

[ACT V

The Prefect there!

Druses. No, Hakeem, ever thine!
Nuncio. He lies—and twice he lies—and thrice he lies!

Exalt thyself, Mahound! Exalt thyself!

Dja. Druses! we shall henceforth be far
away—

Out of mere mortal ken—above the cedars—

But we shall see ye go, hear ye return, Repeopling the old solitudes,—through
thee,

My Khalil! Thou art full of me: I fill Thee full—my hands thus fill thee! Yester-
eve,

—Nay, but this morn, I deemed thee ignorant

Of all to do, requiring word of mine
To teach it: now, thou hast all gifts in one,
With truth and purity go other gifts,
All gifts come clustering to that. Go, lead
My people home whate'er betide!

[Turning to the Druses.] Ye take
This Khalil for my delegate? To him Bow as to me? He leads to Lebanon—Ye follow?

Druses. We follow! Now exalt thy-
self!

Dja. [raises LOYS]. Then to thee, Loys!
How I wronged thee, Loys!

Yet, wronged, no less thou shalt have full
revenge,

Fit for thy noble self, revenge—and thus.
Thou, loaded with such wrongs, the princely soul,

The first sword of Christ's sepulchre—thou shalt

Guard Khalil and my Druses home again!
Justice no less, God's justice and no more,

For those I leave! To seeking this, devote Some few days out of thy Knight's brilliant
life:

And, this obtained them, leave their Lebanon,

My Druses' blessing in thine ears—(they shall

Bless thee with blessing sure to have its
way)

—One cedar-blossom in thy ducal cap,
One thought of Anael in thy heart,—per-
chance,

One thought of him who thus, to bid thee
speed,

His last word to the living speaks! This
done,

Resume thy course, and, first amidst the
first

In Europe, take my heart along with thee!
Go boldly, go serenely, go augustly—

What shall withstand thee then?
[He bends over ANAEL.] And last to thee!

Ah, did I dream I was to have, this day,
Exalted thee? A vain dream; hast thou not Won greater exaltation? What remains

But press to thee, exalt myself to thee?

Thus I exalt myself, set free my soul!
[He stabs himself. As he falls, supported by KHALIL and LOYS, the Venetians enter; the ADMIRAL advances.

Admiral. God and St. Mark for Venice!
Plant the Lion!

[At the clash of the planted standard, the Druses shout and move tumultuously forward, LOYS drawing his sword.

Dja. [leading them a few steps between KHALIL and LOYS]. On to the Mountain! At the Mountain, Druses!

[Dies.

PERSONS

MILDRED TRESHAM.
GUENDOLEN TRESHAM.
THOROLD, Earl Tresham.

AUSTIN TRESHAM.
HENRY, Earl Mortoun.
GERARD, and other retainers of Lord Tresham.

TIME, 17—

ACT I

SCENE I.—The interior of a lodge in LORD
TRESHAM'S park. Many Retainers crowded at the window, supposed to command a view of the entrance to his mansion. GERARD, the warrener, his back to a table on which are flags, on, etc.

1st Ret. Ay, do! push, friends, and then you'll push down me!

—What for? Does any hear a runner's
foot

Or, a steed's trample or a coach-wheel's
cry?

Is the Earl come or his least pursuivant?
But there's no breeding in a man of you

Save Gerard yonder: here's a half-place
yet,

Old Gerard!

Ger. Save your courtesies, my friend.
Here is my place.

2nd Ret. Now, Gerard, out with it!
What makes you sullen, this of all the
days
I' the year? To-day, that young rich bouniful
Handsome Earl Mertoun, whom alone they match
With our Lord Tresham through the country-side,
Is coming here in utmost bravery
To ask our master's sister's hand?

Ger. What then? What then?

2nd Ret. What then? Why, you, she speaks to, if she meets
Your worship, smiles on as you hold apart
The boughs to let her through her forest
walks,
You, always favourite for your no-deserts,
You've heard, these three days, how Earl Mertoun sues
To lay his heart and house and broad lands
too
At Lady Mildred's feet: and while we squeeze
Ourselves into a mousehole lest we miss
One congee of the least page in his train,
You sit o' one side—'there's the Earl,'
say I—
'What then?' say you!

3rd Ret. I'll wager he has let Both swans he tamed for Lady Mildred swim

Over the falls and gain the river!

Ger. Ralph,
Is not to-morrow my inspecting-day
For you and for your hawks?

4th Ret. Let Gerard be!
He's coarse-grained, like his carved black cross-bow stock.

Ha, look now, while we squabble with him, look!

Well done, now—is not this beginning,
now,
To purpose?

1st Ret. Our retainers look as fine—That's comfort. Lord, how Richard holds himself

With his white staff! Will not a knave
behind

Prick him upright?

4th Ret. He's only bowing, fool!
The Earl's man bent us lower by this
much.

1st Ret. That's comfort. Here's a very cavalcade!

3rd Ret. I don't see wherefore Richard, and his troop

Of silk and silver varlets there, should find
Their perfumed selves so indispensable On high days, holidays! Would it so dis-
grace

Our family, if I, for instance, stood—
In my right hand a cast of Swedish hawks,
A leash of greyhounds in my left?—

Ger. —With Hugh

The logman for supporter, in his right
The bill-hook, in his left the brushwoodshears!

3rd Ret. Out on you, crab! What next, what next? The Earl!

1st Ret. Oh Walter, groom, our horses, do they match

The Earl's? Alas, that first pair of the six—

They paw the ground—Ah Walter! and that brute

Just on his haunches by the wheel!

6th Ret. Ay—ay!

You, Philip, are a special hand, I hear,
At soups and sauces: what's a horse to
you?

D'ye mark that beast they've slid into the midst

So cunningly?—then, Philip, mark this further;

No leg has he to stand on!

1st Ret. No? That's comfort.

2nd Ret. Peace, Cook! The Earl descends. Well, Gerard, see

The Earl at least! Come, there's a proper
man,

I hope! Why, Ralph, no falcon, Pole or Swede,

Has got a starrier eye.

3rd Ret. His eyes are blue:

But leave my hawks alone!

4th Ret. So young, and yet

So tall and shapely!

5th Ret. Here's Lord Tresham's
self!

There now—there's what a nobleman should be!

He's older, graver, loftier, he's more like A House's head.

2nd Ret. But you'd not have a boy —And what's the Earl beside?—possess too soon

That stateliness?

1st Ret. Our master takes his hand—Richard and his white staff are on the move—

Back fall our people—(tsh!—there's Timothy

Sure to get tangled in his ribbon-ties,
And Peter's cursed rosette's a-corning off!)

—At last I see our lord's back and his
friend's;

And the whole beautiful bright company
Close round them—in they go! [Jumping down from the window-bench, and making for the table and its jugs.]

Good health, long life, Great joy to our Lord Tresham and his House!

6th Ret. My father drove his father first to court,

After his marriage-day—ay, did he!

2nd Ret. God bless

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

[ACT I

Lord Tresham, Lady Mildred, and the Earl!

Here, Gerard, reach your beaker!

Ger. Drink, my boys! Don't mind me—all's not right about me—drink!

2nd Ret. [aside]. He's vexed, now, that he let the show escape! [To GERARD.] Remember that the Earl returns this way.

Ger. That way?

2nd Ret. Just so.

Ger. Then my way's here.

2nd Ret. Old Gerard Will die soon—mind, I said it! He was used

To care about the pitifullest thing That touched the House's honour, not an eye

But his could see wherein: and on a cause Of scarce a quarter this importance, Gerard

Fairly had fretted flesh and bone away In cares that this was right, nor that was wrong,

Such point decorous, and such square by rule—

He knew such niceties, no herald more: And now—you see his humour: die he will!

2nd Ret. God help him! Who's for the great servants'-hall To hear what's going on inside? They'd follow

Lord Tresham into the saloon.

3rd Ret. I!—

4th Ret. I!— Leave Frank alone for catching, at the door,

Some hint of how the parley goes inside! Prosperity to the great House once more! Here's the last drop!

1st Ret. Have at you! Boys, hurrah!

SCENE II.—A Saloon in the Mansion.

Enter LORD TRESHAM, LORD MERTOUN, AUSTIN, and GUENDOLEN.

Tresh. I welcome you, Lord Mertoun, yet once more,

To this ancestral roof of mine. Your name—Noble among the noblest in itself, Yet taking in your person, fame avers, New price and lustre,—(as that gem you wear,

Transmitted from a hundred knightly breasts,

Fresh chased and set and fixed by its last lord,

Seems to re-kindle at the core)—your name

Would win you welcome!—

Mer.

Thanks!

Tresh.

—But add to that, The worthiness and grace and dignity Of your proposal for uniting both Our Houses even closer than respect Unites them now—add these, and you must grant

One favour more, nor that the least,—to think

The welcome I should give;—'tis given! My lord,

My only brother, Austin: he's the king's. Our cousin, Lady Guendolen—betrothed To Austin: all are yours.

Mer.

I thank you—less For the expressed commendings which your seal,

And only that, authenticates—forbids My putting from me . . . to my heart I take

Your praise . . . but praise less claims my gratitude,

Than the indulgent insight it implies. Of what must needs be uppermost with one

Who comes, like me, with the bare leave to ask,

In weighed and measured unimpassioned words,

A gift, which, if as calmly 'tis denied, He must withdraw, content upon his cheek,

Despair within his soul. That I dare ask Firmly, near boldly, near with confidence That gift, I have to thank you. Yes, Lord

Tresham,

I love your sister—as you'd have one love That lady . . . oh more, more I love her!

Wealth,

Rank, all the world thinks me, they're yours, you know,

To hold or part with, at your choice—but grant

My true self, me without a rood of land, A piece of gold, a name of yesterday, Grant me that lady, and you . . . Death or life?

Guen. [apart to AUSTIN]. Why, this is loving, Austin!

Aus.

He's so young!

Guen. Young? Old enough, I think, to half surmise

He never had obtained an entrance here Were all this fear and trembling needed.

Aus.

Hush!

He reddens.

Guen.

Mark him, Austin; that's true love!

Ours must begin again.

Tresh.

We'll sit, my lord. Ever with best desert goes diffidence.

I may speak plainly nor be misconceived. That I am wholly satisfied with you

On this occasion, when a falcon's eye

sc. ii]

Were dull compared with mine to search out faults,
Is somewhat. Mildred's hand is hers to give
Or to refuse.

Mer. But you, you grant my suit?
I have your word if hers?

Tresh. My best of words
If hers encourage you. I trust it will.
Have you seen Lady Mildred, by the way?

Mer. I . . . I . . . our two demesnes, remembrance, touch;

I have been used to wander carelessly
After my stricken game: the heron roused Deep in my woods, has trailed its broken wing

Thro' thickets and glades a mile in yours,— or else

Some eyass ill-reclaimed has taken flight
And lured me after her from tree to tree,
I marked not whither. I have come upon
The lady's wondrous beauty unaware,
And—and then . . . I have seen her.

Guen. [aside to AUSTIN]. Note that,
mode

Of faltering out that, when a lady passed,
He, having eyes, did see her! You had
said—

'On such a day I scanned her, head to foot;
'Observed a red, where red should not have been,

'Outside her elbow; but was pleased
enough

'Upon the whole.' Let such irreverent talk
Be lessoned for the future!

Tresh. What's to say
May be said briefly. She has never known
A mother's care; I stand for father too.
Her beauty is not strange to you, it seems—
You cannot know the good and tender
heart,

Its girl's trust and its woman's constancy,
How pure yet passionate, how calm yet
kind,

How grave yet joyous, how reserved yet
free

As light where friends are—how imbued with lore

The world most prizes, yet the simplest,
yet

The . . . one might know I talked of Mildred—thus

We brothers talk!

Mer. I thank you.
Tresh. In a word,

Control's not for this lady; but her wish
To please me outstrips in its subtlety

My power of being pleased: herself creates
The want she means to satisfy. My heart

Prefers your suit to her as 'twere its own.
Can I say more?

Mer. No more—thanks, thanks
—no more!

Tresh. This matter then discussed . . .

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

Mer. —We'll waste no breath
On aught less precious. I'm beneath the roof

Which holds her: while I thought of that,
my speech

To you would wander—as it must not do,
Since as you favour me I stand or fall.

I pray you suffer that I take my leave!

Tresh. With less regret 'tis suffered, that
again

We meet, I hope, so shortly.

Mer. We? again?—
Ah yes, forgive me—when shall . . . you will crown

Your goodness by forthwith apprising me
When . . . if . . . the lady will appoint a day

For me to wait on you—and her.

Tresh. So soon
As I am made acquainted with her thoughts
On your proposal—howsoever they lean—
A messenger shall bring you the result.

Mer. You cannot bind me more to you, my lord.

Farewell till we renew . . . I trust, renew
A converse ne'er to disunite again.

Tresh. So may it prove!

Mer. You, lady, you, sir, take

My humble salutation!

Guen. and Aus. Thanks!
Tresh. Within there!

[Servants enter. TRESHAM conducts MERTOUN to the door. Meantime AUSTIN remarks,

Well,
Here I have an advantage of the Earl, Confess now! I'd not think that all was safe

Because my lady's brother stood my
friend!

Why, he makes sure of her—'do you say,
yes—

'She'll not say, 'no,'—what comes it to
beside?

I should have prayed the brother, 'speak
this speech,

'For Heaven's sake urge this on her—put in this—

'Forget not, as you'd save me, t'other
thing,—

'Then set down what she says, and how she looks,

'And if she smiles, and' (in an under breath)

'Only let her accept me, and do you
'And all the world refuse me, if you dare!'

Guen. That way you'd take, friend
Austin? What a shame

I was your cousin, tamely from the first
Your bride, and all this fervour's run to waste!

Do you know you speak sensibly to-day?
The Earl's a fool.

Aus. Here's Thorold. Tell him so!

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

[ACT I

Tresh. [returning]. Now, voices, voices!
'St! the lady's first!
How seems he?—seems he not . . . come,
faith give fraud
The mercy-stroke whenever they engage!
Down with fraud, up with faith! How seems the Earl?
A name! a blazon! if you knew their worth,
As you will never! come—the Earl?

Guen. He's young.

Tresh. What's she? an infant save in heart and brain.

Young! Mildred is fourteen, remark!
And you . . .

Austin, how old is she?

Guen. There's tact for you!
I meant that being young was good excuse
If one should tax him . . .

Tresh. Well?

Guen. —With lacking wit.

Tresh. He lacked wit? Where might he lack wit, so please you?

Guen. In standing straighter than the steward's rod

And making you the tiresomest harangue,
Instead of slipping over to my side
And softly whispering in my ear, 'Sweet
lady,

'Your cousin there will do me detriment

'He little dreams of: he's absorbed, I see,

'In my old name and fame—be sure he'll
leave

'My Mildred, when his best account of
me

'Is ended, in full confidence I wear

'My grandsire's periwig down either
cheek.

'I'm lost unless your gentleness vouch-safes' . . .

Tresh. . . . 'To give a best of best accounts, yourself,

'Of me and my demerits.' You are right!

He should have said what now I say for
him.

Yon golden creature, will you help us all?

Here's Austin means to vouch for much,
but you

—You are . . . what Austin only knows!

Come up,

All three of us: she's in the library

No doubt, for the day's wearing fast.

Precede!

Guen. Austin, how we must—!

Tresh. Must what? Must speak truth, Malignant tongue! Detect one fault in
him!

I challenge you!

Guen. Witchcraft's a fault in him,

For you're bewitched.

Tresh. What's urgent we obtain

Is, that she soon receive him—say, tomorrow—

Next day at furthest.

Guen. Ne'er instruct me!

Tresh. Come!
—He's out of your good graces, since for-
sooth,
He stood not as he'd carry us by storm
With his perfections! You're for the composed
Manly assured becoming confidence!
—Get her to say, 'to-morrow,' and I'll give you . . .
I'll give you black Urganda, to be spoiled
With petting and snail-paces. Will you?
Come!

SCENE III.—MILDRED'S chamber. A painted window overlooks the park.
MILDRED and GUENDOLEN.

Guen. Now, Mildred, spare those pains.
I have not left

Our talkers in the library, and climbed
The wearisome ascent to this your bower

In company with you,—I have not
dared . . .

Nay, worked such prodigies as sparing
you

Lord Mertoun's pedigree before the flood,
Which Thorold seemed in very act to tell —Or bringing Austin to pluck up that

most

Firm-rooted heresy—your suitor's eyes,
He would maintain, were grey instead of

blue—
I think I brought him to contrition!—

Well,
I have not done such things, (all to deserve
A minute's quiet cousin's talk with you,)

To be dismissed so coolly.

Mil. Guendolen!
What have I done? what could suggest . . .

Guen. There, there!
Do I not comprehend you'd be alone

To throw those testimonies in a heap,
Thorold's enlargings, Austin's brevities,

With that poor silly heartless Guendolen's Ill-timed misplaced attempted smartnesses—

And sift their sense out? now, I come to spare you

Nearly a whole night's labour. Ask and have!

Demand, be answered! Lack I ears and
eyes?

Am I perplexed which side of the rock-table

The Conqueror dined on when he landed
first,

Lord Mertoun's ancestor was bidden
take—

The bow-hand or the arrow-hand's great
meed?

Mildred, the Earl has soft blue eyes!

Mil. My brother—
Did he . . . you said that he received him
well?

Guen. If I said only 'well' I said not much.

Oh, stay—which brother?

Mil. Thorold! who—who else?

Guen. Thorold (a secret) is too proud by half,—

Nay, hear me out—with us he's, even gentler

Than we are with our birds. Of this great House

The least retainer that e'er caught his glance

Would die for him, real dying—no mere talk:

And in the world, the court, if men would cite

The perfect spirit of honour, Thorold's name

Rises of its clear nature to their lips. But he should take men's homage, trust in it, And care no more about what drew it down.

He has desert, and that, acknowledgment; Is he content?

Mil. You wrong him, Guendolen.

Guen. He's proud, confess; so proud with brooding o'er

The light of his interminable line, An ancestry with men all paladins,

And women all . . .

Mil. Dear Guendolen, 'tis late!

When yonder purple pane the climbing moon

Pierces, I know 'tis midnight.

Guen. Well, that Thorold Should rise up from such musings and receive

One come audaciously to graft himself Into this peerless stock, yet find no flaw, No slightest spot in such an one . . .

Mil. Who finds A spot in Mertoun?

Guen. Not your brother; therefore, Not the whole world.

Mil. I am weary, Guendolen.

Bear with me! I am foolish.

Mil. Oh no, kind! But I would rest.

Guen. Good night and rest to you! I said how gracefully his mantle lay

Beneath the rings of his light hair?

Mil. Brown hair? Brown hair.

Guen. Brown? why, it is brown: how could you know that?

Mil. How? did not you—Oh, Austin 'twas, declared

His hair was light, not brown—my head!—and look,

The moon-beam purpling the dark chamber! Sweet, Good night!

A BLOOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

Guen. Forgive me—sleep the soundlier for me!

[Going, she turns suddenly.

Mildred! Perdition! all's discovered! Thorold finds —That the Earl's greatest of all grandmothers

Was garter daughter still—to that fair dame

Whose garter slipped down at the famous dance!

[Goes. Mil. Is she—can she be really gone at last?

My heart! I shall not reach the window. Needs

Must I have sinned much, so to suffer.

[She lifts the small lamp which is suspended before the Virgin's image in the window, and places it by the purple pane.

There!

[She returns to the seat in front. Mildred and Mertoun! Mildred, with consent

Of all the world and Thorold, Mertoun's bride!

Too late! 'Tis sweet to think of, sweeter still

To hope for, that this blessed end soothes up The curse of the beginning; but I know

It comes too late: 'twill sweetest be of all To dream my soul away and die upon.

[A noise without.

The voice! Oh why, why glided sin the snake

Into the paradise Heaven meant us both? [The window opens softly. A low voice sings.

There's a woman like a dew-drop, she's so purer than the purest;

And her noble heart's 'he noblest, yes, and her sure faith's the surest:

And her eyes are dark and humid, like the depth on depth of lustre

Hid i' the harebell, while her tresses, sunnier than the wild-grape cluster,

Gush in golden-tinted plenty down her neck's rose-misted marble:

Then her voice's music . . . call it the well's bubbling, the bird's warble!

And this woman says, 'My days were sunless and my nights were moonless,

'Parched the pleasant April herbage, and the lark's heart's outbreak tuneless,

'If you loved me not!' And! who—(ah, for words of flame!)

Who am mad to lay my spirit prostrate palpably before her—

[He enters, approaches her seat, and bends over her.

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

[ACT I

*I may enter at her portal soon, as now her lattice takes me,
And by noontide as by midnight make her mine, as hers she makes me!*

[The Earl throws off his slouched hat and long cloak.

My very heart sings, so I sing, Beloved!
Mil. Sit, Henry—do not take my hand!
Mer. 'Tis mine. The meeting that appalled us both so much

Is ended.
Mil. What begins now?

Mer. Happiness
Such as the world contains not.

Mil. That is it.
Our happiness would, as you say, exceed The whole world's best of blisses: we—do we Deserve that? Utter to your soul, what

mine

Long since, Beloved, has grown used to
hear,

Like a death-knell, so much regarded once,
once,

And so familiar now; this will not be!
Mer. Oh, Mildred, have I met your brother's face?

Compelled myself—if not to speak un-
truth,

Yet to disguise, to shun, to put aside
The truth, as—what had e'er prevailed on
me

Save you, to venture? Have I gained at
last

Your brother, the one scarer of your
dreams,

And waking thoughts' sole apprehension
too?

Does a new life, like a young sunrise, break
On the strange unrest of our night, confused

With rain and stormy flaw—and will you
see

No dripping blossoms, no fire-tinted
drops

On each live spray, no vapour steaming up,
And no expressless glory in the East?

When I am by you, to be ever by you,
When I have won you and may worship
you,

Oh, Mildred, can you say 'this will not
be'?

Mil. Sin has surprised us, so will punishment.

Mer. No—me alone, who sinned
alone!

Mil. The night
You likened our past life to—was it storm
Throughout to you then, Henry?

Mer. Of your life
I spoke—what am I, what my life, to waste

A thought about when you are by me?—
you

It was, I said my folly called the storm
And pulled the night upon. 'Twas day
with me—

Perpetual dawn with me.
Mil. Come what, come will,
You have been happy: take my hand!

Mer. [after a pause]. How good
Your brother is! I figured him a cold—
Shall I say, haughty man?

Mil. They told me all.
I know all.

Mer. It will soon be over.
Mil. Over?

Oh, what is over? what must I live through
And say, 'tis over'? Is our meeting over?

Have I received in presence of them all
The partner of my guilty love—with brow Trying to seem a maiden's brow—with lips

Which make believe that when they strive to form

'Replies to you and tremble as they strive,
It is the nearest ever they approached
A stranger's . . . Henry, yours that stranger's . . . lip—

With cheek that looks a virgin's, and that is . . .

Ah God, some prodigy of thine will stop
This planned piece of deliberate wicked-
ness

In its birth even! some fierce leprous spot
Will mar the brow's dissimulating! I Shall murmur no smooth speeches got by
heart,

But, frenzied, pour forth all our woeful
story,

The love, the shame, and the despair—
with them

Round me aghast as round some cursed fount

That should spirt water, and spouts blood.
I'll not

. . . Henry, you do not wish that I should draw

This vengeance down? I'll not affect a
grace

That's gone from me—gone once, and gone for ever!

Mer. Mildred, my honour is your own.
I'll share

Disgrace I cannot suffer by myself.
A word informs your brother I retract
This morning's offer; time will yet bring
forth

Some better way of saving both of us.
Mil. I'll meet their faces, Henry!

Mer. When? to-morrow!
Get done with it!

Mil. Oh, Henry, not to-morrow!
Next day! I never shall prepare my words And looks and gestures sooner.—How you must

Despise me!

Mer. Mildred, break it if you choose,
A heart the love of you uplifted—still Uplifts, thro' this protracted agony,
To heaven! but Mildred, answer me,— first pace

The chamber with me—once again—now,
say

Calmly the part, the . . . what it is of me
You see contempt (for you did say contempt)

—Contempt: for you in! I would pluck it
off

And cast it from me!—but no—no, you'll
not

Repeat that?—will you, Mildred, repeat
that?

Mil. Dear Henry!

Mer. I was scarce a boy—e'en now
What am I more? And you were infantine

When first I met you; why, your hair fell
loose

On either side! My fool's-check reddens
now

Only in the recalling how it burned
That morn to see the shape of many a
dream

—You know we boys are prodigal of charms

To her we dream of—I had heard of one,
Had dreamed of her, and I was close to
her,

Might speak to her, might live and die
her own,

Who knew? I spoke. Oh, Mildred, feel you not

That now, while I remember every glance
Of yours, each word of yours, with power to test

And weigh them in the diamond scales of
pride,

Resolved the treasure of a first and last Heart's love shall have been bartered at its
worth,

—That now I think upon your purity
And utter ignorance of guilt—your own
Or other's guilt—the girlish undisguised

Delight at a strange novel prize—(I talk
A silly language, but interpret, you!)

If I, with fancy at its full, and reason Scarce in its germ, enjoined you secrecy,

If you had pity on my passion, pity
On my protested sickness of the soul

To sit beside you, hear you breathe, and
watch

Your eyelids and the eyes beneath—if you Accorded gifts and knew not they were
gifts—

If I grew mad at last with enterprise
And must behold my beauty in her bower

Or perish—(I was ignorant of even My own desires—what then were you?)

if sorrow—

Sin—if the end came—must I now renounce

My reason, blind myself to light, say truth
Is false and lie to God and my own soul?
Contempt were all of this!

Mil. Do you believe . . .
Or, Henry, I'll not wrong you—you believe

That I was ignorant. I scarce grieve o'er
The past. We'll love on; you will love me
still.

Mer. Oh, to love less what one has injured! Dove,

Whose pinion I have rashly hurt, my
breast—

Shall my heart's warmth not nurse thee into strength?

Flower I have crushed, shall I not care for
thee?

Bloom o'er my crest, my fight-mark and device!

Mildred, I love you and you love me.

Mil. Go!
'Be that your last word. I shall sleep to-
night.

Mer. This is not our last meeting?

Mil. One night more.

Mer. And then—think, then!

Mil. Then, no
sweet courtship-days,

No dawning consciousness of love for
us,

No strange and palpitating births of
sense

From words and looks, no innocent fears and hopes,

Reserves and confidences: morning's over!

Mer. How else should love's perfected noontide follow?

All the dawn promised shall the day perform.

Mil. So may it be! but—

You are cautious, Love?
Are sure that unobserved you scaled the walls?

Mer. Oh, trust me! Then our final meeting's fixed

To-morrow night?

Mil. Farewell! Stay, Henry
. . . wherefore?

His foot is on the yew-tree bough; the turf

Receives him: now the moonlight as he runs

Embraces him—but he must go—is gone.
Ah, once again he turns—thanks, thanks,
my Love!

He's gone. Oh, I'll believe him every
word!

I was so young, I loved him so, I had No mother, God forgot me, and I fell.

There may be pardon yet: all's doubt beyond.

Surely the bitterness of death is past.

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

[ACT II

ACT II

SCENE.—The Library.

Enter LORD TRESHAM, hastily.

Tresh. This way! In, Gerard, quick!

[As GERARD enters, TRESHAM secures the door.

Now speak! or, wait—
I'll bid you speak directly.

[Seats himself.

Now repeat

Firmly and circumstantially the tale
You just now told me; it eludes me; either
I did not listen, or the half is gone Away from me. How long have you lived
here?

Here in my house, your father kept our woods

Before you?

Ger. —As his father did, my lord.
I have been eating, sixty years almost,
Your bread.

Tres. Yes, yes. You ever were of all
The servants in my father's house, I know,
The trusted one. You'll speak the truth.

Ger. I'll speak
God's truth. Night after night . . .

Tresh. Since when?

Ger. At least

A month—each midnight has some man access

To Lady Mildred's chamber.

Tresh. Tush, 'access'—
No wide words like 'access' to me!

Ger. He runs
Along the woodside, crosses to the South,
Takes the left tree that ends the avenue . . .

Tresh. The last great yew-tree?

Ger. You might stand upon The main boughs like a platform. Then

he . . .

Tresh. Quick!

Ger. Climbs up, and, where they lessen at the top,

—I cannot see distinctly, but he throws,
I think—for this I do not vouch—a line
That reaches to the lady's casement—

Tresh. —Which
He enters not! Gerard, some wretched
fool

Dares pry into my sister's privacy!

When such are young, it seems a precious
thing

To have approached,—to merely have approached,

Got sight of, the abode of her they set Their frantic thoughts upon. He does not enter?

Gerard?

Ger. There is a lamp that's full i' the midst,

Under a red square in the painted glass
Of Lady Mildred's . . .

Tresh. Leave that 'name out! Well?
That lamp?

Ger. —Is moved at midnight higher up To one pane—a small dark-blue pane; he waits

For that among the boughs: at sight of
that,

I see him, plain as I see you, my lord,
Open the lady's casement, enter there . . .

Tresh. —And stay?

Ger. An hour, two hours.

Tresh. And this you saw

Once?—twice?—quick!

Ger. Twenty times.

Tresh. And what brings you

Under the yew-trees?

Ger. The first night I left
My range so far, to track the stranger stag
That broke the pale, I saw the man.

Tresh. Yet sent
No cross-bow shaft through the marauder?

Ger. But
He came, my lord, the first time he was seen,

In a great moonlight, light as any day,
From Lady Mildred's chamber.

Tresh. [after a pause]. You have no cause

—Who could have cause to do my sister
wrong?

Ger. Oh, my lord, only once—let me this once

Speak what is on my mind! Since first I noted

All this, I've groaned as if a fiery net Plucked me this way and that—fire if I turned

To her, fire if I turned to you, and fire
If down I flung myself and strove to die.

The lady could not have been seven years
old

When I was trusted to conduct her safe Through the deer-herd to stroke the snow-white fawn

I brought to eat bread from her tiny hand
Within a month. She ever had a smile

To greet me with—she . . . if it could undo What's done, to lop each limb from off this trunk . . .

All that is foolish talk, not fit for you—
I mean, I could not speak and bring her

hurt

For Heaven's compelling. But when I was fixed

To hold my peace, each morsel of your food

Eaten beneath your roof, my birth-place
too,

'Choked me. I wish I had grown mad in doubts

What it behoved me do. This morn it seemed

Either I must confess to you, or die:

Now it is done, I seem the vilest worm
That crawls, to have betrayed my lady.

Tresh.

No, Gerard!

Ger. Let me go!

Tresh. A man you say:

What man? Young? Not a vulgar hind?
What dress?

Ger. A slouched hat and a large dark foreign cloak

Wraps his whole form; even his face is hid;

But I should judge him young: no hind,
be sure!

Tresh. Why?

Ger. He is ever armed: his sword projects

Beneath the cloak.

Tresh. Gerard,—I will not say
No word, no breath of this!

Ger. Thanks, thanks, my lord!

[Goes.

Tresh. [paces the room. After a pause].
Oh, thought's absurd!—as with some monstrous fact

Which, when ill thoughts beset us, seems to give

Merciful God that made the sun and stars,
The waters and the green delights of earth,
The lie! I apprehend the monstrous fact—
Yet know the maker of all worlds is good,
And yield my reason up, inadequate
To reconcile what yet I do behold—Blasting my sense! There's cheerful day outside:

This is my library, and this the chair
My father used to sit in carelessly
After his soldier-fashion, while I stood Between his knees to question him: and
here

Gerard our grey retainer,—as he says, Fed with our food, from sire to son, an
age,—

Has told a story—I am to believe!
That Mildred . . . oh, no, no! both tales are true,

Her pure cheek's story and the forester's!
Would she, or could she, err—much less,
confound

All guilts of treachery, of craft, of . . .
Heaven

Keep me within its hand!—I will sit here
Until thought settle and I see my course.
Avert, oh God, only this woe from me!

[As he sinks his head between his arms on the table, GUENDOLEN'S voice is heard at the door.

Lord Tresham! [She knocks.] Is Lord
Tresham there?

[TRESHAM, hastily turning, pulls down the first book above him and opens it.

Tresh. Come in! [She enters.

Ha, Guendolen!—good morning.

Guen.

Nothing more?

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

Tresh. What should I say more?

Guen. Pleasant question! more?

This more. Did I besiege poor Mildred's
brain

Last night till close on morning with 'the Earl,'

'The Earl'—whose worth did I asseverate
Till I am very fain to hope that . . . Thorold, What is all this? You are not well!

Tresh.

Who, I?

You laugh at me.

Guen. Has what I'm fain to hope,

Arrived then? Does that huge tome show some blot

In the Earl's 'scutcheon come no longer
back

Than Arthur's time?

Tresh. When left you Mildred's chamber?

Guen. Oh, late enough, I told you! The main thing

To ask is, how I left her chamber,—sure, Content yourself, she'll grant this paragon

Of Earls no such ungracious . . .

Tresh.

Send her here!

Guen. Thorold?

Tresh.

I mean—acquaint her, Guendolen,

—But mildly!

Guen.

Mildly?

Tresh.

Ah, you guessed aright!

I am not well: there is no hiding it.

But tell her I would see her at her leisure—

That is, at once! here in the library!

The passage in that old Italian book

We hunted for so long is found, say,
found—

And if I let it slip again . . . you see,

That she must come—and instantly!

Guen.

I'll die

Piecemeal, record that, if there have not gloomed

Some blot in the 'scutcheon!

Tresh.

Go! or, Guendolen,

Be you at call,—with Austin, if you choose,—

In the adjoining gallery! There, go!

[GUENDOLEN goes.

Another lesson to me! You might bid
A child disguise his heart's sore, and conduct

Some sly investigation point by point
With a smooth brow, as well as bid me
catch

The inquisitorial cleverness some praise.
If you had told me yesterday, 'There's
one

'You needs must circumvent and practise with,

'Entrap by policies, if you would worm
'The truth out: and that one is—Mildred!'

Tresh.

There,

There—reasoning is thrown away on it!

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

[ACT II

Prove she's unchaste . . . why, you may after prove
That she's a poisoner, traitress, what you
will!
Where I can comprehend nought, nought's
to say.
Or do, or think. Force on me but the first Abomination,—then outpour all plagues,
And I shall ne'er make count of them.

Enter MILDRED.

Mil. What book
Is it I wanted, Thorold? Guendolen
Thought you were pale; you are not pale.
That book?

That's Latin surely.
Tresh. Mildred, here's a line,
(Don't lean on me: I'll English it for you)
'Love conquers all things.' What love conquers them?

What love should you esteem—best love?
Mil. True love.

Tresh. I mean, and should have said, whose love is best

Of all that love or that profess to love?

Mil. The list's so long: there's father's, mother's, husband's . . .

Tresh. Mildred, I do believe a brother's
love

For a sole sister must exceed them all.
For see now, only see! there's no alloy
Of earth that creeps into the perfect'st
gold

Of other loves—no gratitude to claim;
You never gave her life, not even aught
That keeps life—never tended her, instructed,

Enriched her—so, your love can claim no
right

O'er her save pure love's claim: that's what I call

Freedom from earthliness. You'll never hope

To be such friends, for instance, she and
you,

As when you hunted cowslips in the woods
Or played together in the meadow hay.

Oh yes—with age, respect comes, and your
worth

Is felt, there's growing sympathy of tastes, There's ripened friendship, there's confirmed esteem:

—Much head these make against the newcomer!

The startling apparition, the strange
youth—

Whom one half-hour's conversing with,
or, say,

Mere gazing at, shall change (beyond all
change

This Ovid ever sang about) your soul

. . . Her soul, that is,—the sister's soul!
With her

'Twas winter yesterday; now, all is warmth,

The green leaf's springing and the turtle's
voice,

'Arise and come away!' Come whither?
—far

Enough from the esteem, respect, and all
The brother's somewhat insignificant

Array of rights! All which he knows before,

Has calculated on so long ago!
I think such love, (apart from yours and
mine,)

Contented with its little term of life,
Intending to retire betimes, aware

How soon the background must be place for it,

—I think, am sure, a brother's love exceeds

All the world's love in its unworldliness.
Mil. What is this for?

Tresh. This, Mildred, is it for!
Or, no, I cannot go to it so soon!

*That's one of many points my haste left
out—

Each day, each hour throws forth its silk-slight film

Between the being tied to you by birth,
And you, until those slender threads compose

A web that shrouds her daily life of hopes And fears and fancies, all her life, from
yours:

So close you live and yet so far apart!
And must I rend this web, tear up, break
down

The sweet and palpitating mystery
That makes her sacred? You—for you I
mean,

Shall I speak, shall I not speak?
Mil. Speak!

Tresh. I will.

Is there a story men could—any man Could tell of you, you would conceal from
me?

I'll never think there's falsehood on that
lip.

Say 'There is no such story men could
tell,'

And I'll believe you, though I disbelieve
The world—the world of better men
than I,

And women such as I suppose you. Speak!
[After a pause.] Not speak? Explain then!

Clear it up then! Move

Some of the miserable weight away
That presses lower than the grave! Not
speak?

Some of the dead weight, Mildred! Ah, if I

Could bring myself to plainly make their
charge

Against you! Must I, Mildred? Silent
still?

[After a pause.] Is there a gallant that has night by night admittance to your chamber?

[After a pause.] Then, his name! Till now, I only had a thought for you: But now,—his name!

Mil. Thorold, do you devise fit expiation for my guilt, if fit There be! 'Tis nought to say that I'll endure

And bless you,—that my spirit yearns to purge Her stains off in the fierce renewing fire:

But do not plunge me into other guilt! Oh, guilt enough! I cannot tell his name.

Fresh. Then judge yourself! How should I act? Pronounce!

Mil. Oh, Thorold, you must never tempt me thus!

To die here in this chamber by that sword

Would seem like punishment: so should I glide,

Like an arch-cheat, into extremest bliss! 'Twere easily arranged for me; but you—What would become of you?

Fresh. And what will now become of me? I'll hide your shame and mine

From every eye; the dead must heave their hearts

Under the marble of our chapel-floor; They cannot rise and blast you. You may wed

Your paramour above our mother's tomb;

Our mother cannot move from 'neath your foot.

We too will somehow wear this one day out:

But with to-morrow hastens here—the Earl!

The youth without suspicion face can come

From Heaven, and heart from . . . whence proceed such hearts?

I have despatched last night at your command

A missive bidding him present himself To-morrow—here—thus much is said; the rest

Is understood as if 'twere written down—'His suit finds favour in your eyes.' Now dictate

This morning's letter that shall countermand

Last night's—do dictate that!

Mil. But, Thorold—if I will receive him as I said?

Fresh. The Earl?

Mil. I will receive him.

Fresh. [starting up]. Ho there! Guendolen!

GUENDOLEN and AUSTIN enter.

And, Austin, you are welcome, too! Look there!

The woman there!

Aus. and Guen. How? Mildred?

Fresh. Mildred once! Now the receiver night by night, when sleep

Blesses the inmates of her father's house,—I say, the soft sly wanton that receives

Her guilt's accomplice 'neath this roof which holds

You, Guendolen, you, Austin, and has held

A thousand Treshams—never one like her!

No lighter of the signal-lamp her quick Foul breath near quenches in hot eagerness

To mix with breath as foul! no loosener O' the lattice, practised in the stealthy tread,

The low voice and the noiseless come-and-go!

Not one composer of the bacchant's mien Into—what you thought Mildred's, in a word!

Know her!

Guen. Oh, Mildred, look to me, at least!

Thorold—she's dead, I'd say, but that she stands

Rigid as stone and whiter!

Fresh. You have heard . . .

Guen. Too much! You must proceed no further.

Mil. Yes—Proceed! All's truth. Go from me!

Fresh. All is truth, She tells you! Well, you know, or ought to know,

All this I would forgive in her. I'd con- Each precept the harsh world enjoins, I'd take

Our ancestors' stern verdicts one by one, I'd bind myself before them to exact

The prescribed vengeance—and one word of hers,

The sight of her, the bare least memory Of Mildred, my one sister, my heart's pride

Above all prides, my all in all so long, Would scatter every trace of my resolve.

What were it silently to waste away And see her waste away from this day forth,

Two scathed things with leisure to repent, And grow acquainted with the grave, and die

Tired out if not at peace, and be forgotten? It were not so impossible to bear.

But this—that, fresh from last night's pledge renewed

Of love with the successful gallant there,

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

[ACT II

She calmly bids me help her to entice,
Inveigle an unconscious trusting youth Who thinks her all that's chaste and good and pure,

—Invites me to betray him . . . who so fit
As honour's self to cover shame's arch-
deed?

—That she'll receive Lord Mertoun—(her own phrase)—

This, who could bear? Why, you have heard of thieves,

Stabbers, the earth's disgrace, who yet have laughed,

'Talk not to me of torture—I'll betray
'No comrade I've pledged faith to!'—you have heard

Of wretched women—all but Mildreds—tied

By wild illicit ties to losels vile You'd tempt them to forsake; and they'll reply

'Gold, friends, repute, I left for him, I find
'In him, why should I leave him then for
gold,

'Repute or friends?'—and you have felt your heart

Respond to such poor outcasts of the
world

As to so many friends; bad as you please, You've felt they were God's men and women still,

So, not to be disowned by you. But she That stands there, calmly gives her lover
up

As means to wed the Earl that she may hide

Her intercourse the surelier: and, for
this,

I curse her to her face before you all.
Shame hunt her from the earth! Then Heaven do right

To both! It hears me pow—shall judge her then!

[As MILDRED faints and falls, TRESHAM rushes out.

Aus. Stay, Tresham, we'll accompany
you!

Guen. We?

What, and leave Mildred? We? Why, where's my place

But by her side, and where yours but by
mine?

Mildred—one word! Only look at me,
then!

Aus. No, Guendolen! I echo Thorold's
voice.

She is unworthy to behold . . . Us two?

Guen. If you spoke on reflection, and if I Approved your speech—if you (to put the
thing

At lowest) you the soldier, bound to make The king's cause yours and fight for it, and throw

Regard to others of its' right or wrong,
—If with a death-white woman you can
help,

Let alone sister, let alone a Mildred,
You left her—or if I, her cousin, friend

This morning, playfellow but yesterday,
Who said, or thought at least a thousand
times,

'I'd serve you if I could,' should now face
round

And say, 'Ah, that's to only signify
'I'd serve you while you're fit to serve
yourself:

'So long as fifty eyes await the turn
'Of yours to forestall its yet half-formed wish,

'I'll proffer my assistance you'll not need—

'When every tongue is praising you, I'll join

'The praisers' chorus—when you're hemmed about

'With lives between you and detraction—
lives

'To be laid down if a rude voice, rash eye,
'Rough hand should violate the sacred
ring

'Their worship throws about you,—then
indeed,

'Who'll stand up for you stout as I?' If so We said, and so we did,—not Mildred
there

Would be unworthy to behold us both,
But we should be unworthy, both of us,
To be beheld by—by—your meanest dog,
Which, if that sword were broken in your
face

Before a crowd, that badge torn off your
breast,

And you cast out with hooting and contempt,

—Would push his way thro' all the hooters, gain

Your side, go off with you and all your
shame

To the next ditch you choose to die in!
Austin,

Do you love me? Here's Austin, Mildred, —here's

Your brother says he does not believe half—

No, nor half that—of all he heard! He
says,

Look up and take his hand!
'Aus. Look up and take

My hand, dear Mildred!
Mil. I—I was so young!

Beside, I loved him, Thorold—and I had No mother; God forgot me: so, I fell.

Guen. Mildred!

Mil. Require no further!

Did I dream
That I could palliate what is done? All's
true.

Now, punish me! A woman takes my hand?
 Let go my hand! You do not know, I see.
 I thought that Thorold told you.

Guen. What is this?
 Where start you to?

Mil. Oh, Austin, loosen me!
 You heard the whole of it—your eyes were worse.

In their surprise, than Thorold's! Oh, unless

You stay to execute his sentence, loose My hand! Has Thorold gone, and are you here?

Guen. Here, Mildred, we two friends of yours will wait

Your bidding; be you silent, sleep or muse!

Only, when you shall want your bidding done,

How can we do it if we are not by?

Here's Austin waiting patiently your will!

One spirit to command, and one to love

And to believe in it and do its best,

Poor as that is, to help it—why, the world

Has been won many a time, its length and breadth,

By just such a beginning!

Mil. I believe

If once I threw my arms about your neck

And sunk my head upon your breast, that I

Should weep again.

Guen. Let go her hand now,

Austin!

Wait for me. Pace the gallery and think

On the world's seemings and realities,

Until I call you. [AUSTIN goes.]

Mil. No—I cannot weep.

No more tears from this brain—no sleep

—no tears!

O Guendolen, I love you!

Guen. Yes: and 'love'

is a short word that says so very much!

It says that you confide in me.

Mil. Confide!

Guen. Your lover's name, then! I've so much to learn,

Ere I can work in your behalf!

Mil. My friend,

You know I cannot tell his name.

Guen. At least

He is your lover? and you love him too?

Mil. Ah, do you ask me that?—but I am fallen

So low!

Guen. You love him still, then?

Mil. My sole prop

Against the guilt that crushes me! I say,

Each night ere I lie down, 'I was so

young—

'I had no mother, and I loved him so!'

And then God seems indulgent, and I dare

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

Trust him my soul in sleep.

Guen. How could you let us

E'en talk to you about Lord Mertoun

then?

Mil. There is a cloud around me.

Guen. But you said

You would receive his suit in spite of this?

Mil. I say there is a cloud . . .

Guen. No cloud to me!

Lord Mertoun and your lover are the

same!

Mil. What maddest fancy . . .

Guen. [calling aloud]. Austin!

(spare your pains—

When I have got a truth, that truth I

keep)—

Mil. By all you love, sweet Guendolen, forbear!

Have I confided in you . . .

Guen. Just for this!

Austin!—Oh, not to guess it at the first!

But I did guess it—that is, I divined,

Felt by an instinct how it was: why else

Should I pronounce you free from all that

heap

Of sins which had been irredeemable?

I felt they were not yours—what other

way

Than this, not yours? The secret's wholly

mine!

Mil. If you would see me die before his

face . . .

Guen. I'd hold my peace! And if the Earl returns

To-night?

Mil. Ah Heaven, he's lost!

Guen. I thought so. Austin!

Enter AUSTIN.

Oh, where have you been hiding?

Aus. Thorold's gone,

I know not how, across the meadow-land.

I watched him till I lost him in the skirts

O' the beech-wood.

Guen. Gone? All 'hwarts us.

Mil. Thorold too?

Guen. I have thought. First lead this

Mildred to her room.

Go on the other side; and then we'll seek

Your brother: and I'll tell you, by the way,

The greatest comfort in the world. You

said

There was a clue to all. Remember, Sweet,

He said there was a clue! I hold it. Come!

ACT III

SCENE I.—The end of the Yew-tree Avenue under MILDRED'S window. A light seen through a central red pane.

Enter TRESHAM through the trees.

Again here! But I cannot lose myself.

The heath—the orchard—I have traversed glades

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

[ACT III

And dells and bosky paths which used to lead

Into green wild-wood depths, bewildering My boy's adventurous step. And now they tend

Hither or soon or late; the blackest shade Breaks up, the thronged trunks of the trees ope wide,

And the dim turret I have fled from, fronts Again my step; the very river put Its arm about me and conducted me
To this detested spot. Why then, I'll shun Their will no longer: do your will with
me!

Oh, bitter! To have reared a towering scheme

Of happiness, and to behold it razed.

Were nothing: all men hope, and see their hopes

Frustrate, and grieve awhile, and hope anew.

But I . . . to hope that from a line like ours
No horrid prodigy like this would spring, Were just as though I hoped that from these old

Confederates against the sovereign day,
Children of older and yet older sires, Whose living coral berries dropped, as
now

On me, on many a baron's surcoat once,
On many a beauty's wimple—would proceed

No poison-tree, to thrust, from hell its
root,

Hither and thither its strange snaky arms.
Why came I here? What must I do? [A bell strikes.] A bell?

Midnight! and 'tis at midnight . . . Ah, I catch

—Woods, river, plains, I catch your meaning now,

And I obey you! Hist! This tree will serve.

[*He retires behind one of the trees. After a pause, enter MERTOUN cloaked as
before.*]

Mer. Not time! Beat out thy last voluptuous beat

Of hope and fear, my heart! I thought the clock

I' the chapel struck as I was pushing
through

The ferns. And so I shall no more see
rise

My love-star! Oh, no matter for the past!
So much the more delicious task to watch Mildred revive: to pluck out, thorn by thorn,

All traces of the rough forbidden path
My rash love lured her to! Each day must
see

Some fear of hers effaced, some hope renewed:

Then there will be surprises, unforeseen

Delights in store. I'll not regret the past.
[*The light is placed above, in the purple
pane.*]

And see, my signal rises, Mildred's star!
I never saw it lovelier than now

It rises for the last time. If it sets,
'Tis that the re-assuring sun may dawn.

[As he prepares to ascend the last tree of the avenue, TRESHAM arrests his arm.]

Unhand me—peasant, by your grasp!
Here's gold.

'Twas a mad freak of mine, I said I'd pluck

A branch from the white-blossomed shrub
beneath

The casement there. Take this, and hold your peace.

Tresh. Into the moonlight yonder, come with me!

Out of the shadow!
Mer. I am armed, fool!

Tresh. Yes,
Or no? You'll come into the light, or no?

My hand is on your throat—refuse!—
Mer. That voice!

Where have I heard . . . no—that was mild and slow.

I'll come with you. [They advance.]
Tresh. You're armed: that's well.

Declare
Your name: who are you?

Mer. [Tresham!—she is lost!] Tresh. Oh, silent? Do you know, you bear yourself

Exactly as, in curious dreams I've had How felons, this wild earth is full of, look

When they're detected, still your kind has looked!

The bravo holds an assured countenance,
The thief is voluble and plausible,

But silently the slave of lust has crouched
When I have fancied it before a man.

Your name!
Mer. I do conjure Lord Tresham—ay,

Kissing his foot, if so I might prevail—
That he for his own sake forbear to ask

My name! As heaven's above, his future weal

Or woe depends upon my silence! Vain!
I read your white inexorable face.

Know me, Lord Tresham!
[He throws off his disguises.]

Tresh. Mertoun!
[After a pause.] Draw now!

Mer. Hear me
But speak first!

Tresh. Not one least word on your
life!

Be sure that I will strangle in your throat

The least word that informs me how you
live

And yet seem what you seem! No doubt
'twas you

Taught Mildred still to keep that face and
sin.

We should join hands in frantic sympathy
If you once taught me the unteachable,
Explained how you can live so, and so lie.
With God's help I retain, despite my
sense,

The old belief—a life like yours is still Impossible. Now draw!

Mer. Not for my sake,
Do I entreat a hearing—for your sake,
And most for her sake!

Tresh. Ha ha, what should I Know of your ways? A miscreant like
yourself,

How must one rouse his ire? A blow?—
that's pride

No doubt, to him! One spurns him, does one not?

Or sets the foot upon his mouth, or spits Into his face! Come! Which, or all of these?

Mer. 'Twixt him and me and Mildred,
Heaven be judge!

Can I avoid this? Have your will, my
lord!

[He draws and, after a few passes, falls.]

Tresh. You are not hurt?

Mer. You'll hear me now!

Tresh. But rise!

Mer. Ah, Tresham, say I not 'you'll hear me now!'

And what procures a man the right to
speak

In his defence before his fellow man,

But—I suppose—the thought that presently

He may have leave to speak before his
God

His whole defence?

Tresh. Not hurt? It cannot be!
You made no effort to resist me. Where Did my sword reach you? Why not have returned

My thrusts? Hurt where?

Mer. My lord—

Tresh. How young he is!

Mer. Lord Tresham, I am very young,
and yet

I have entangled other lives with mine.

Do let me speak, and do believe my
speech!

That when I die before you presently,— Tresh. Can you stay here till I return with help?

Mer. Oh, stay by me! When I was less than boy

I did you grievous wrong and knew it
not—

Upon my honour, knew it not! Once,
known,

I could not find what seemed a better way
To right you than I took; my life—you feel

How less than nothing were the giving
you

The life you've taken! But I thought my
way

The better—only for your sake and hers:
And as you have decided otherwise,

Would I had an infinity of lives To offer you! Now say—instruct me—
think!

Can you, from the brief minutes I have
left,

Eke out my reparation? Oh think—
think!

For I must wring a partial—dare I say,
Forgiveness from you, ere I die?

Tresh. I do
Forgive you.

Mer. Wait and ponder that great word!
Because, if you forgive me, I shall hope

To speak to you of—Mildred!

Tresh. Mertoun, haste
And anger have undone us. 'Tis not
you

Should tell me for a novelty you're young,
Thoughtless, unable to recall the past.

Be but your pardon ample as my own!

Mer. Ah, Tresham, that a sword-stroke and a drop

Of blood or two, should bring all this
about!

Why, 'twas my very fear of you, my love Of you—(what passion like a boy's for
one

Like you?)—that ruined me! I dreamed of you—

You, all accomplished, courted every-
where,

The scholar and the gentleman. I burned
To knit myself to you: but I was young,

And your surpassing reputation kept me
So far aloof! Oh, wherefore all that love?

With less of love, my glorious yesterday
Of praise and gentlest words and kindest
looks,

Had taken place perchance six months
ago.

Even now, how happy we had been! And
yet

I know the thought of this escaped you,
Tresham!

Let me look up into your face; I feel
'Tis changed above me: yet my eyes are glazed.

Where? where?

[As he endeavours to raise himself, his eye catches the lamp.]

Ah, Mildred! What will Mildred do?

Tresham, her life is bound up in the life That's bleeding fast away! I'll live—must
live,

There, if you'll only turn me I shall live
And save her! Tresham—oh, had you but heard!

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

[ACT III]

Had you but heard! What right was yours to set

The thoughtless foot upon her life and
mine,

And then say, as we perish, 'Had I
thought,

'All had gone otherwise'? We've sinned and die:

Never you sin, Lord Tresham! for you'll
die,

And God will judge you.

Tresh. Yes, be satisfied!
That process is begun.

Mer. And she sits there Waiting for me! Now, say you this to
her—

You, not another—say, I saw him die
As he breathed this, 'I love her'—you don't know

What those three small words mean! Say, loving her

Lowers me down the bloody slope to death
With memories . . . I speak to her, not
you,

Who had no pity, will have no remorse, Perchance intend her . . . Die along with
me,

Dear Mildred! 'tis so easy, and you'll
'scape

So much unkindness! Can I lie at rest,
With rude speech spoken to you, ruder
deeds

Done to you?—heartless men shall have
my heart,

And I tied down with grave-clothes and the worm,

Aware, perhaps, of every blow—oh
God!—

Upon those lips—yet of no power to tear
The felon stripe by stripe! Die, Mildred!

Leave
Their honourable world to them! For
God

We're good enough, though the world casts us out. [A whistle is heard.

Tresh. Ho, Gerard!

Enter GERARD, AUSTIN and GUENDOLEN, with lights.

No one speak!

You see what's done.
I cannot bear another voice.

Mer. There's light—
Light all about me, and I move to it.

Tresham, did I not tell you—did you not Just promise to deliver words of mine
To Mildred?

Tresh. I will bear those words to her.

Mer. Now?

Tresh. Now. Lift you the body, and leave me

The head.
[As they have half raised MERTOUN, he turns suddenly.

Mer. I knew they turned me: turn me not from her!

There! stay you! there! [Dies.

Guen. [after a pause]. Austin, remain
you here

With Thorold until Gerard comes with
help:

Then lead him to his chamber. I must go
To Mildred.

Tresh. Guendolen, I hear each
word

You utter. Did you hear him bid me give His message? Did you hear my promise?

I,
And only I, see Mildred.

Guen. She will die.

Tresh. Oh no, she will not die! I dare not hope

She'll die. What ground have you to think she'll die?

Why, Austin's with you!

Aus. Had we but arrived
Before you fought!

Tresh. There was no fight at all.
He let me slaughter him—the boy! I'll
trust

The body there to you and Gerard—thus!
Now bear him on before me.

Aus. Whither bear him?

Tresh. Oh, to my chamber! When we meet there next,
We shall be friends.

[They bear out the body of MERTOUN.
Will she die, Guendolen?

Guen. Where are you taking me?

Tresh. He fell just here.
Now answer me. Shall you in your whole
life

—You who have nought to do with Mer-toun's fate,

Now you have seen his breast upon the turf,

Shall you e'er walk this way if you can help?

When you and Austin wander arm-in-arm Through our ancestral grounds, will not a shade

Be ever on the meadow and the waste—Another kind of shade than when the
night

Shuts the woodside with all its whispers
up?

But will you ever so forget his breast
As carelessly to cross this bloody turf

Under the black yew avenue? That's
well!

You turn your head: and I then?—

Guen. What is done
Is done. My care is for the living. Thorold,

Bear up against this burden: more remains
To set the neck to!

Tresh. Dear and ancient trees
My fathers planted, and I loved so
well!

What have I donè that, like some fabled
crime
Of yore, lets loose a Fury leading thus
Her miserable dance amidst you all?
Oh, never more for me shall winds intone
With all your tops a vast antiphony, Demanding and responding in God's
praise!
Hers ye are now, not mine! Farewell—
farewell!

SCENE II.—MILDRED'S chamber.

MILDRED alone.

He comes not! I have heard of those who seemed Resourceless in prosperity,—you thought Sorrow might slay them when she listed;
yet
Did they so gather up their diffused
strength
At her first menace, that they bade her
strike,
And stood and laughed her subtlest skill to scorn.
Oh, 'tis not so with me! The first woe fell,
And the rest fall upon it, not on me:
Else should I bear that Henry comes not?
—fails
Just this first night out of so many nights?
Loving is done with. Were he sitting
now,
As so few hours since, on that seat, we'd
love
No more—contrive no thousand happy
ways
To hide love from the loveless, any more.
I think I might have urged some little
point
In my defence, to Thorold; he was breath-
less
For the least hint of a defence: but no,
The first shame over, all that would might
fall.
No Henry! Yet I merely sit and think The morn's deed o'er and o'er. I must have crept
Out of myself. A Mildred that has lost
Her lover—oh, I dare not look upon Such woe! I crouch away from it! 'Tis
she,
Mildred, will break her heart, not I! The
world
Forsakes me: only Henry's left me—left?
When I have lost him, for he does not,
come,
And I sit stupidly . . . Oh Heaven, break up
This worse than anguish, this mad apathy,
By any means or any messenger!
Tresh. [without]. Mildred!
Mil. Heaven hears me!
[Enter TRESHAM.] You? alone?
Oh, no more cursing!

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

Tresh. Mildred, I must sit.
There—you sit!
Mil. Say it, Thorold—do not
look
The curse! deliver all you come to say!
What must become of me? Oh, speak that thought
Which makes your brow and cheeks so pale!
Tresh. My thought?
Mil. All of it!
Tresh. How we waded—years ago—
After those water-lilies, till the flash,
I know not how, surprised us; and you
dared Neither advance nor turn back: so, we stood
Laughing and crying until Gerard came—
Once safe upon the turf, the loudest too,
For once more reaching the relinquished
prize!
How idle thoughts are, some men's, dying men's!
Mildred,—
Mil. You call me kindlier by my name
Than even yesterday: what is in that?
Tresh. It weighs so much upon my mind that I
This morning took an office not my own!
I might . . . of course, I must be glad or grieved,
Content or not, at every little thing
That touches you. I may with a wrung
heart
Even reprove you, Mildred; I did more:
Will you forgive me?
Mil. Thorold? do you mock!
Or no . . . and yet you bid me . . . say that
word!
Tresh. Forgive me, Mildred!—are you silent, Sweet?
Mil. [starting up]. Why does not Henry Mertoun come to-night?
Are you, too, silent?
[Dashing his mantle aside, and pointing to his scabbard, which is empty.
Ah, this speaks for you!
You've murdered Henry Mertoun! Now proceed!
What is it I must pardon? This and all?
Well, I do pardon you—I think I do.
Thorold, how very wretched you must be!
Tresh. He bade me tell you . . .
Mil. What I do forbid
Your utterance of! So much that you may tell
And will not—how you murdered him . . .
but, no!
You'll tell me that he loved me, never
more Than bleeding out his life there: must I
say
'Indeed,' to that? Enough! I pardon
you.

Tresh. You cannot, Mildred! for the harsh words, yes:

Of this last deed Another's judge: whose doom

I wait in doubt, despondency and fear.

Mil. Oh, true! There's nought for me to pardon! True!

You loose my soul of all its cares at once. Death makes me sure of him for ever!

You

Tell me his last words? He shall tell me them,

And take my answer—not in words, but reading

Himself the heart I had to read him late, Which death . . .

Tresh. Death? You are dying too? Well said

Of Guendolen! I dared not hope you'd die:

But she was sure of it.

Mil. Tell Guendolen

I loved her, and tell Austin . . .

Tresh. Him you loved:

And me?

Mil. Ah, Thorold! Was't not rashly done

To quench that blood, on fire with youth and hope

And love of me—whom you loved too, and yet

Suffered to sit here waiting his approach While you were slaying him? Oh, doubt-

lessly

You let him speak his poor confused boy's-speech

—Do this poor utmost to disarm your wrath

And respite me!—you let him try to give The story of our love and ignorance,

And the brief madness and the long despair—

You let him plead all this, because your code

Of honour bids you hear before you strike: But at the end, as he looked up for life Into your eyes—you struck him down!

Tresh. No! No!

Had I but heard him—had I let him speak Half the truth—less—had I looked long

on him

I had desisted! Why, as he lay there, The moon on his flushed cheek, I gathered

all

The story ere he told it: I saw through The troubled surface of his crime and

yours

A depth of purity immovable, Had I but glanced, where all seemed turbide

Had gleamed some inlet to the calm be-neath;

I would not glance: my punishment's at hand.

There, Mildred, is the truth! and you—say on—

You curse me?

Mil. As I dare approach that Heaven Which has not bade a living thing despair,

Which needs no code to keep its grace from stain,

But bids the vilest worm that turns on it Desist and be forgiven,—I—forgive not,

But bless you, Thorold, from my soul of souls! [Falls on his neck.

There! Do not think too much upon the past!

The cloud that's broke was all the same a cloud

While it stood up between my friend and you;

You hurt him 'neath its shadow: but is that

So past retrieve? I have his heart, you know;

I may dispose of it: I give it you!

It loves you as mine loves! Confirm me, Henry! [Dies.

Tresh. I wish thee joy, Beloved! I am glad

In thy full gladness!

Guen. [without]. Mildred! Tresham!

[Entering with AUSTIN.] Thorold,

I could desist no longer. Ah, she swoons! That's well.

Tresh. Oh, better far than that!

Guen. She's dead!

Let me unlock her arms!

Tresh. She threw them thus

About my neck, and blessed me, and then died:

You'll let them stay now, Guendolen!

Aus. Leave her

And look to him! What ails you, Thorold?

Guen. White

As she, and whiter! Austin! quick—this side!

Aus. A froth is oozing through his clenched teeth;

Both lips, where they're not bitten through, are black:

Speak, dearest Thorold!

Tresh. Something does weigh down

My neck beside her weight: thanks: I should fall

But for you, Austin, I believe!—there, there,

'Twill pass away soon!—ah,—I had forgotten:

I am dying.

Guen. Thorold—Thorold—why was this?

Tresh. I said, just as I drank the poison off,

The earth would be no longer earth to me, The life out of all life was gone from me.

There are blind ways provided, the fore-done

sc. ii]

Heart-weary player in this pageant-world Drops out by, letting the main masque
defile

By the conspicuous portal: I am through—Just through!

Guen. Don't leave him, Austin!

Death is close.

Tresh. Already Mildred's face is peacefuller.

I see you, Austin—feel you: here's my
hand,

Put yours in it—you, Guendolen, yours
too!

You're lord and lady now—you're Treshams; name

And fame are yours: you hold our
'scutcheon up.

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON

Austin, no blot on it! You see how
blood

Must wash one blot away: the first blot
came

And the first blood came. To the vain world's eye

All's gules again: no care to the vain
world,

From whence the red was drawn!

Aus. No blot shall come!

Tresh. I said that: yet it did come.

Should it come,

Vengeance is God's, not man's. Remember me!

Guen. [letting fall the pulseless arm].

Ah, Thorold, we can but—remember
you!

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

A PLAY

1844

NO ONE LOVES AND HONOURS BARRY CORNWALL MORE THAN

DOES ROBERT BROWNING;

WHO, HAVING NOTHING BETTER THAN THIS PLAY

TO GIVE HIM IN PROOF OF IT, MUST SAY SO.

LONDON: 1844.

Ivy and violet, what do ye here

With blossom and shoot in the warm spring-weather,

Hiding the arms of Monchenci and Vere?—Hammer.

PERSONS

COLOMBE OF RAVESTEIN, Duchess of Juliers and

Cleves.

SABYNE, A'DOLF, her attendants.

GUIBERT, GAUCELME, MAUFROY, CLUGNET, courtiers.

VALENCE, advocate of Cleves.

PRINCE BERTHOLD, claimant of the Duchy.

MELCHIOR, his confidant.

PLACE.—The Palace at Juliers.

TIME, 16—.

ACT I

MORNING

SCENE.—A corridor leading to the Audience-chamber.

GAUCELME, CLUGNET, MAUFROY and other Courtiers, round GUIBERT, who is silently reading a paper: as he drops it at the end—

Gui. That this should be her birthday; and the day

We all invested her, twelve months ago,
As the late Duke's true heiress and our
liege;

And that this also must become the day ...
Oh, miserable lady!

1st Court. Ay, indeed?

2nd Court. Well, Guibert?

3rd Court. But your news, my friend, your news!

The sooner, friend, one learns Prince Berthold's pleasure,

The better for us all: how writes the Prince?

Give me! I'll read it for the common
good.

Gui. In time, sir,—but till time comes,
pardon me!

Our old Duke just disclosed his child's retreat,

Declared her true succession to his rule,
And died: this birthday was the day, last

year,
We convoyed her from Castle Ravestein—

That sleeps out trustfully its extreme age
On the Meuse's quiet bank, where she lived

queen
•Over the water-buds,—to Juliers' court

With joy and bustle. Here again we stand; Sir Gaucelme's buckle's constant to his cap:

To-day's much such another sunny day!

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

[ACT I

Gau. Come, Guibert, this outgrows a jest, I think!
You're hardly such a novice as to need The lesson, you pretend.

Gui. What lesson, sir? That everybody, if he'd thrive at court, Should, first and last of all, look to himself?

Why, no: and therefore with your good example, (—Ho, Master Adolf!)—to myself I'll look.

Enter ADOLF.

Gui. The Prince's letter; why, of all men else,
Comes it to me?

Adolf. By virtue of your place, Sir Guibert! 'Twas the Prince's express charge,

His envoy told us, that the missive there Should only reach our lady by the hand Of whosoever held your place.

Gui. Enough!

[ADOLF ret.res.]

Then, gentles, who'll accept a certain poor Indifferently honourable place,
My friends, I make no doubt, have gnashed their teeth

At leisure minutes these half-dozen years, To find me never in the mood to quit? Who asks may have it, with my blessing, and—

This to present our lady. Who'll accept? You,—you,—you? There it lies, and may, for me!

Mau. [a youth, picking up the paper, reads aloud]. 'Prince Berthold, proved by titles following

'Undoubted Lord of Juliers, comes this day

'To claim his own, with licence from the Pope,

'The Emperor, the Kings of Spain and France' . . .

Gau. Sufficient 'titles following,' I judge!

Don't read another! Well,—'to claim his own?'

Mau. —And take possession of the Duchy held

'Since twelve months, to the true heir's prejudice,

'By' . . . Colombe, Juliers' mistress, so she thinks,

And Ravestein's mere lady, as we find. Who wants the place and paper? Guibert's right.

I hope to climb a little in the world,— I'd push my fortunes,—but, no more than

he,
Could tell her on this happy day of days,

That, save the nosegay in her hand, perhaps,

There's nothing left to call her own. Sir Clugnet,

You famish for promotion; what say you? Clug. [an old man]. To give this letter were a sort, I take it, Of service; services ask recompense:

What kind of corner may be Ravestein? Gui. The castle? Oh, you'd share her fortunes? Good! Three walls stand upright, full as good as four,

With no such bad remainder of a roof.

Clug. Oh,—but the town? Gui. Five houses, fifteen huts;

A church whereto was once a spire, 'tis judged;

And half a dyke, except in time of thaw. Clug. Still, there's some revenue?

Gui. Else Heaven forfend! You hang a beacon out, should fogs increase;

So, when the Autumn floats of pine-wood steer

Safe 'mid the white confusion, thanks to you,

Their grateful raftsmen flings a guilder in; —That's if he mean to pass your way next time. Clug. If not?

Gui. Hang guilders, then! He blesses you.

Clug. What man do you suppose me? Keep your paper!

And, let me say, it shows no handsome spirit

To dally with misfortune: keep your place!

Gau. Some one must tell her. Gui. Some one may; you may!

Gau. Sir Guibert, 'tis no trifle turns me sick

Of court-hypocrisy at years like mine, But this goes near it. Where's there news at all? Who'll have the face, for instance, to affirm

He never heard, e'en while we crowned the girl,

That Juliers' tenure was by Salic law; That one, confessed her father's cousin's child, And, she away, indisputable heir, Against our choice protesting and the Duke's, Claimed Juliers?—nor, as he preferred his claim,

That first this, then another potentate, Inclined to its allowance?—I or you,

Or any one except the lady's self? Oh, it had been the direst cruelty

To break the business to her! Things might change:

At all events, we'd see next masque at end, Next mummery over first: and so the edge

Was taken off sharp tidings as they came,
Till here's the Prince upon us, and there's
she

—Wreathing her hair, a song between her
lips,

With just the faintest notion possible
That some such claimant earns a livelihood

About the world, by feigning grievances—
Few pay the story of, but grudge its price,
And fewer listen to, a second time.

Your method proves a failure; now try
mine!

And, since this must be carried . . .

Gui. [snatching the paper from him]. By your leave!

Your zeal transports you! 'Twill not serve the Prince

So much as you expect, this course you'd take.

If she leaves quietly her palace,—well;
But if she died upon its threshold,—no:

He'd have the trouble of removing her.
Come, gentles, we're all—what the devil

knows!

You, Gaucelme, won't lose character, be-
side:

You broke your father's heart superiorly
To gather his succession—never blush!

You're from my province, and, be comforted,

They tell of it with wonder to this day.
You can afford to let your talent sleep.

We'll take the very worst supposed, as
true:

There, the old Duke knew, when he hid his
child

Among the river-flowers at Ravestein, With whom the right lay! Call the Prince our Duke!

There, she's no Duchess, she's no anything

More than a young maid with the bluest
eyes:

And now, sirs, we'll not break this young maid's heart

Coolly as Gaucelme could and would!
No haste!

His talent's full-blown, ours but in the bud:
We'll not advance to his perfection yet—

Will we, Sir Maufroy? See, I've ruined Maufroy

For ever as a courtier!

Gau. Here's a coil!
And, count us, will you? Count its residue.

'This boasted convoy, this day last year's
crowd!

A birthday, too, a gratulation day!
I'm dumb: bid that keep silence!

Mau. and others. Eh, Sir Guibert?
He's right: that does say something: that's bare truth.

Ten—twelve, I make: a perilous dropping
off!

Gui. Pooh—is it audience hour? The vestibule

Swarms too, I wager, with the common
sort

That want our privilege of entry here.
Gau. Adolf! [Re-enter ADOLF.] Who's

outside?

Gui. Oh, your looks suffice!
Nobody waiting?

Mau. [looking through the door-folds].
Scarce our number!

Gui. 'Sdeath!
Nothing to beg for, to complain about?

It can't be! Ill news spreads, but not so fast
As thus to frighten all the world!

Gau. The world
Lives out of doors, sir—not with you and

me
By presence-chamber porches, state-room stairs,

Wherever warmth's perpetual: outside's

free
To every wind from every compass-point,

And who may get nipped needs be weather-
wise.

The Prince comes and the lady's People
go;

The snow-goose settles down, the swallows flee—

Why should they wait for winter-time?
'Tis instinct.

Don't you feel somewhat chilly?

Gui. That's their craft?
And last year's crowders-round and criers-

forth
That strewed the garlands, overarched the roads,

Lighted the bonfires, sang the loyal songs!

Well 'tis my comfort, you could never call
me

The People's Friend! The People keep their word—

I keep my place: don't doubt I'll entertain
The People when the Prince comes, and the People

Are talked of! Then, their speeches—no one tongue

Found respite, not a pen had holiday

—For they wrote, too, as well as spoke,
these knaves!

Now see: we tax and tithe them, pill and poll,

They wince and fret enough, but pay they
must

—We manage that,—so, pay with a good
grace

They might as well, it costs so little more.
But when we've done with taxes, meet folk

next Outside the toll-booth and the rating-

place,
In public—there they have us if they will,

We're at their mercy after that, you see!
For one tax not ten devils could extort—

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

[ACT I

Over and above necessity, a grace;
This prompt disbosoming of love, to wit—

Their vine-leaf wrappage of our tribute penny,
And crowding attestation, all works well.

Yet this precisely do they thrust on us!
These cappings quick, these crook-and-

cringings low,
Hand to the heart, and forehead to the knee,

With grin that shuts the eyes and opes the

mouth—
So tender they their love; and, tender

made,
Go home to curse us, the first doit we

ask.
As if their souls were any longer theirs!

As if they had not given ample warrant
To who should clap a collar on their neck,

Rings in their nose, a goad to either flank,
And take them for the brute they boast

themselves!
Stay—there's a bustle at the outer door—

And somebody entreating . . . that's my
name!

Adolf.—I heard my name!
Adolf. 'Twas probably

The suitor.
Gui. Oh, there is one?

Adolf. With a suit
He'd fain enforce in person.

Gui. The good heart —And the great fool! Just ope the middoor's fold!

Is that a lappet of his cloak, I see?

Adolf. If it bear plenteous sign of travel
. . . ay,

The very cloak my comrades tore!
Gui. Why tore?

Adolf. He seeks the Duchess' presence in that trim;

Since daybreak, was he posted whereabouts
Lest he should miss the moment.

Gui. Where's he now?
Adolf. Gone for a minute possibly, not

more:
They have ado enough to thrust him back.

Gui. Ay—but my name, I caught?
Adolf. Oh, sir—he said

—What was it?—You had known him formerly,

And, he believed, would help him did you
guess

He waited now; you promised him as
much:

The old plea! 'Faith, he's back,—renews
the charge!

[Speaking at the door.] So long as the man, parleys, peace outside—

Nor be too ready with your halberts,
there!

Gau. My horse bespattered, as he blocked the path

A thin sour man, not unlike somebody.
Adolf. He holds a paper in his breast,

whereon
He glances when his cheeks flush and his

brow
At each repulse—
Gau. I noticed he'd a brow.

Adolf. So glancing, he grows calmer, leans awhile

Over the balustrade, adjusts his dress,
And presently turns round, quiet again,

With some new pretext for admittance.—
Back!

[To GUIBERT.]—Sir, he has seen you!
Now cross halberts! Ha—

Pascal is prostrate—there lies Fabian too!
No passage! Whither would the madman

press?
Close the doors quick on me!

Gui. Too late! He's here.

Enter, hastily and with discomposed dress, VALENCE.

Val. Sir Guibert, will you help me?— me, that come

Charged by your townsmen, all who starve at Cleves,

To represent their heights and depths of woe

Before our Duchess and obtain relief!
Such errands barricade such doors, it

seems:
But not a common hindrance drives me

back
On all the sad yet hopeful faces, lit

With hope for the first time, which sent me forth.

Cleves, speak for me! Cleves' men and women, speak!

Who followed me—your strongest—many a mile

That I might go the fresher from their ranks,

—Who sit—your weakest—by the city
gates,

To take me fuller of what news I bring
As I return—for I must needs return!

—Can I? 'Twere hard, no listener for their wrongs,

To turn them back upon the old despair—
Harder, Sir Guibert, than imploring

thus—
So, I do—any way you please—implore!

If you . . . but how should you remember
Cleves?

Yet they of Cleves remember you so well!
Ay, comment on each trait of you they

keep,
Your words and deeds caught up at second

hand,—
Proud, I believe, at bottom of their hearts,

O' the very levity and recklessness Which only prove that you forget their wrongs.

Clèves, the grand town, whose men and women starve,
Is Clèves forgotten? Then, remember me!
You promised me that you would help me once,

For other purpose: will you keep your word?

Gui. And who may you be, friend?

Val. Valence of Clèves.

Gui. Valence of . . . not the advocate of Clèves,

I owed my whole estate to, three years back?

Ay, well may you keep silence! Why, my lords,

You've heard, I'm sure, how, Pentecost three years,

I was so nearly ousted of my land

By some knave's-pretext—(eh? when you refused me

Your ugly daughter, Clugnet!)—and you've heard

How I recovered it by miracle

—(When I refused her!) Here's the very friend,

—Valence of Clèves, all parties have to thank!

Nay, Valence, this procedure's vile in you! I'm no more grateful than a courtier should,

But politic am I—I bear a brain,

Can cast about a little, might require

Your services a second time. I tried

To tempt you with advancement here to court

—'No!'—well, for curiosity at least

To view our life here—'No!'—our Duchess, then,—

A pretty woman's worth some pains to see, Nor is she spoiled, I take it, if a crown

Complete the forehead pale and tresses pure . . .

Val. Our city trusted me its miseries, And I am come.

Gui. So much for taste! But 'come,'—

So may you be, for anything I know, To beg the Pope's cross, or Sir Clugnet's daughter, And with an equal chance you get all three.

If it was ever worth your while to come, Was not the proper way worth finding

too?

Val. Straight to the palace-portal, sir, I came—

Gui. —And said?—

Val. —That I had brought the miseries

Of a whole city to relieve.

Gui. —Which saying Won your admittance? You saw me, indeed,

And here, no doubt, you stand: as certainly,

My intervention, I shall not dispute, Procures you audience; which, if I procure,—

That paper's closely written—by Saint Paul,

Here flock the Wrongs, follow the Remedies,

Chapter and verse, One, Two, A, B and C!

Perhaps you'd enter, make a reverence, And launch these 'miseries' from first to

last?

Val. How should they let me pause or turn aside?

Gau. [to VALENCE]. My worthy sir, one question! You've come straight

From Clèves, you tell us: heard you any talk

At Clèves about our lady?

Val. Much.

Gau. And what?

Val. Her wish was to redress all wrongs she knew.

Gau. That, you believed?

Val. You see me, sir!

Gau. —Nor stopped Upon the road from Clèves to Juliers

here,

For any—rumours you might find afloat?

Val. I had my townsmen's wrongs to busy me.

Gau. This is the lady's birthday, do you know?

—Her day of pleasure?

Val. —That the great, I know, For pleasure born, should still be on the

watch

To exclude pleasure when a duty offers: Even as, for duty born, the lowly too

May ever snatch a pleasure if in reach: Both will have plenty of their birthright,

sir!

Gau. [aside to GUIBERT]. Sir Guibert, here's your man! No scruples now—

You'll never find his like! Time presses hard.

I've seen your drift and Adolf's too, this while,

But you can't keep the hour of audience back

Much longer, and at noon the Prince arrives.

[Pointing to VALENCE.] Entrust him with it—fool no chance away!

Gui. Him?

Gau. —With the missive! What's the man to her?

Gui. No bad thought! Yet, 'tis yours, who ever played

The tempting serpent: else 'twere no bad thought!

I should—and do—mistrust it for your sake,

Or else . . .

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

[ACT I

Enter an Official who communicates with ADOLF.

Adolf. The Duchess will receive the court.

Gui. Give us a moment, Adolf! Valence, friend,
I'll help you. We of the service, yqu're to mark,
Have special entry, while the herd . . . the folk Outside, get access through our help alone;

—Well, it is so, was so, and I suppose
So ever will be: your natural lot is, therefore,

To wait your turn and opportunity,
And probably miss both. Now, I engage
To set you, here and in a minute's space,
Before the lady, with full leave to plead Chapter and verse, and A, and B, and C,
To heart's content.

Val. I grieve that I must ask,—
This being, yourself admit, the custom here,—

To what the price of such a favour mounts?

Gui. Just so! You're not without a courtier's tact.

Little at court, as your quick instinct prompts,

Do such as we without a recompense.

Val. Yours is?—

Gui. A trifle: here's a document
'Tis some one's duty to present her Grace—

I say, not mine—these say, not theirs—such points

Have weight at court. Will you relieve us all

And take it? Just say, 'I am bidden lay 'This paper at the Duchess' feet!'

Val. No more?
I thank you, sir!

Adolf. Her Grace receives the court.

Gui. [aside]. Now, sursum corda, quoth the mass-priest! Do—

Whoever's my kind saint, do let alone
These pushings to and fro, and pullings back;

Peaceably let me hang o' the devil's arm
The downward path, if you can't pluck me off

Completely! Let me live quite his, or yours!

[The Courtiers begin to range themselves, and move toward the door.

After me, Valence! So, our famous Cleves Lacks bread? Yet don't we gallants buy their lace?

And dear enough—it beggars me, I know,
To keep my very gloves fringed properly.
This, Valence, is our Great State Hall you cross;

Yon grey urn's veritable marcasite,

The Pope's gift; and those salvers testify
The Emperor. Presently ydu'll set your foot

. . . But you don't speak, friend Valence!
Val. I shall speak.

Gau. [aside to GUIBERT]. Guibert—it were no such ungraceful thing

If you and I, at first, seemed horror-struck
With the bad news. Look here, what you shall do.

Suppose you, first, clap hand to sword and cry

'Yield strangers our allegiance? First I'll perish

'Beside your Grace!';—and so give me the cue

To . . .

Gui. —Clap your hand to note-book and jot down

That to regale the Prince with? I conceive.

[To VALENCE.] Do, Valence, speak, or I shall half suspect

You're plotting to supplant us, me the first,

I' the lady's favour! Is't the grand harangue

You mean to make, that thus engrosses you?

—Which of her virtues you'll apostrophize?

Or is't the fashion you aspire to start,
Of that close-curl'd, not unbecoming hair?

Or what else ponder you?

Val. My townsmen's wrongs.

ACT II

NOON

SCENE.—The Presence-chamber.

The DUCHESS and SABYNE.

The D. Announce that I am ready for the court!

Sab. 'Tis scarcely audience-hour, I think; your Grace

May best consult your own relief, no doubt,

And shun the crowd: but few can have arrived.

The D. Let those not yet arrived, then, keep away!

'Twas me, this day last year at Ravestein,
You hurried. It has been full time, beside,
This half-hour. Do you hesitate?

Sab. Forgive me!

The D. Stay, Sabyne; let me hasten to make sure

Of one true thanker: here with you begins
My audience, claim you first its privilege!

It is my birth's event they celebrate:
You need not wish me more such happy days.

But—ask some favour! Have you none to ask?

Has Adolf none, then? this was far from least

Of much I waited for impatiently, Assure yourself! It seemed so natural Your gift, beside this bunch of river-bells, Should be the power and leave of doing good

To you, and greater pleasure to myself. You ask my leave to-day to marry Adolf? The rest is my concern.

Sab. Your Grace is ever Our lady of dear Ravestein,—but, for Adolf...

The D. 'But'? You have not, sure, changed in your regard And purpose towards him?

Sab. We change?

The D. Well then? Well? Sab. How could we two be happy, and, most like,

Leave Juliers, when—when . . . but 'tis audience-time!

The D. 'When, if you left me, I were left indeed!'

Would you subjoin that?—Bid the court approach!

—Why should we play thus with each other, Sabyne?

Do I not know, if courtiers prove remiss, If friends detain me, and get blame for it,

There is a cause? Of last year's fervid throng

Scarce one half comes now.

Sab. [aside]. One half? No, alas!

The D. So can the mere suspicion of a cloud

Over my fortunes, strike each loyal heart. They've heard of this Prince Berthold; and, forsooth,

Some foolish arrogant pretence he makes, May grow more foolish and more arrogant,

They please to apprehend! I thank their love.

Admit them!

Sab. [aside]. How much has she really learned?

The D. Surely, whoever's absent, Tristan waits?

—Or at least Romuald, whom my father raised

From nothing—come, he's faithful to me, come!

(Sabyne, I should but be the prouder—yes, The fitter to comport myself aright)

Not Romuald? Xavier—what said he to that?

For Xavier hates a parasite, I know!

[SABYNE goes out.]
The D. Well, sunshine's everywhere, and summer too.

Next year 'tis the old place again, perhaps—

The water-breeze again, the birds again. —It cannot be! It is too late to be!

What part had I, or choice in all of it? Hither they brought me; I had not to think

Nor care, concern myself with doing good Or ill, my task was just—to live,—to live,

And, answering ends there was no need explain,

To render Juliers happy—so they said. All could not have been falsehood; some was love, And wonder and obedience. I did all

They looked for: why then cease to do it now?

Yet this is to be calmly set aside, And—ere next birthday's dawn, for aught

I know, Things change, a claimant may arrive, and I . . .

It cannot nor it shall not be! His right? Well then, he has the right, and I have not, —But who bade all of you surround my life And close its growth up with your ducal crown Which, plucked off rudely, leaves me perishing? I could have been like one of you,—loved, hoped, Feared, lived and died like one of you—but you Would take that life away and give me this,

And I will keep this! I will face you! Come!

Enter the COURTIER and VALENCE.

The Courtiers. Many such happy mornings to your Grace!

The D. [aside, as they pay their devoir]. The same words, the same faces,— the same love! I have been overfearful. These are few;

But these, at least, stand firmly: these are mine.

As many come as may; and if no more, 'Tis that these few suffice—they do suffice!

What succour may not next year bring me? Plainly,

I feared too soon. [To the Courtiers.] I thank you, sirs: all thanks!

Val. [aside, as the DUCHESS passes from one group to another, conversing]. 'Tis she—the vision this day last year brought,

When, for a golden moment at our Cleves, She tarried in her progress hither. Cleves

Chose me to speak its welcome, and I spoke

—Not that she could have noted the recluse

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

[ACT II

—Ungainly, old before his time—who gazed.

Well, Heaven's gifts are not wasted, and that gaze

Kept, and shall keep me to the end, her own!

She was above it—but so would not sink My gaze to earth! The People caught it, hers—

Thenceforward, mine; but thus entirely mine,

Who shall affirm, had she not raised my soul

Ere she retired and left me—them? She turns—

There's all her wondrous face at once! The ground

Reels and . . . [suddenly occupying himself with his paper]

These wrongs of theirs I have to plead!

The D. [to the Courtiers]. Nay, compliment enough! and kindness' self Should pause before it wish me more such years.

'Twas fortunate that thus, ere youth escaped,

I tasted life's pure pleasure—one such, pure,

Is worth a thousand, mixed—and youth's for pleasure:

Mine is received; let my age pay for it.

Gau. So, pay, and pleasure paid for, thinks your Grace,

Should never go together?

Gui. How, Sir Gaucelme? Hurry one's feast down unenjoyingly

At the snatched breathing-intervals of work?

As good you saved it till the dull day's-end

When, stiff and sleepy, appetite is gone.

Eat first, then work upon the strength of food!

The D. True: you enable me to risk my future,

By giving me a past beyond recall.

I lived, a girl, one happy leisure year: Let me endeavour to be the Duchess now!

And so,—what news, Sir Guibert, spoke you of?

[As they advance a little, and GUIBERT speaks—]

—That gentleman?

Val. [aside]. I feel her eyes on me.

Gui. [to VALENCE]. The Duchess, sir, inclines to hear your suit.

Advance! He is from Cleves.

Val. [coming forward. Aside]. Their wrongs—their wrongs!

The D. And you, sir, are from Cleves? How fresh in mind,

The hour or two I passed at queenly Cleves!

She entertained me bravely, but the best

Of her good pageant seemed its standers-by

With insuppressible joy on every face!

What says my ancient famous happy Cleves?

Val. Take the truth, lady—you are made for truth!

So think my friends: nor do they less deserve

The having you to take it, you shall think, When you know all—nay, when you only know

How, on that day you recollect at Cleves, When the poor acquiescing multitude

Who thrust themselves with all their woes apart

Into unnoticed corners, that the few, Their means sufficed to muster trappings for,

Might fill the foreground, occupy your sight

With joyous faces fit to bear away And boast of as a sample of all Cleves

—How, when to daylight these crept out once more,

Clutching, unconscious, each his empty rags

Whence the scant coin, which had not half bought bread,

That morn he shook forth, counted piece by piece,

And, well-advisedly, on perfumes spent them

To burn, or flowers to strew, before your path

—How, when the golden flood of music and bliss

Ebbd, as their moon retreated, and again Left the sharp black-point rocks of misery bare

—Then I, their friend, had only to suggest 'Saw she the horror as she saw the pomp!'

And as one man they cried 'He speaks the truth:

'Show her the horror! Take from our own mouths

'Our wrongs and show them, she will see them too!'

This they cried, lady! I have brought the wrongs.

The D. Wrongs? Cleves has wrongs—apparent now and thus?

I thank you! In that paper? Give it me!

Val. (There, Cleves!) In this! (What did I promise, Cleves?)

Our weavers, clothiers, spinners are reduced

Since . . . Oh, I crave your pardon! I forget I buy the privilege of this approach,

And promptly would discharge my debt. I lay

This paper humbly at the Duchess' feet.

[Presenting GUIBERT's paper.]

Gui. Stay! for the present . . .

The D. Stay, sir? I take aught
That teaches me their wrongs with greater
pride
Than this your ducal circlet. Thank you,
sir!

[The DUCHESS reads hastily; then, turning to the Courtiers—

What have I done to you? Your deed or mine

Was it, this crowning me? I gave myself
No more a title to your homage, no,
Than church-flowers, born this season,
wrote the words

In the saint's-book that sanctified them
first.

For such a flower, you plucked me; well, you erred—

Well, 'twas a weed; remove the eye-sore
quick!

But should you not remember it has lain Steeped in the candles' glory, palely shrined,

Nearer God's Mother than most earthly
things?

—That if 't be faded 'tis with prayer's sole
breath—

That the one day it boasted was God's
day?

Still, I do thank you! Had you used respect,

Here might I dwindle to my last white leaf, Here lose life's latest freshness, which even
yet

May yield some wandering insect rest and
food:

So, fling me forth, and—all is best for all!
[After a pause.] Prince Berthold, who art

Juliers' Duke it seems—
The King's choice, and the Emperor's, and the Pope's—

Be mine, too! Take this People! Tell not
me

Of rescripts, precedents, authorities, —But take them, from a heart that yearns
to give!

Find out their love,—I could not; find their fear,—

I would not; find their like,—I never shall,
Among the flowers!

[Taking off her coronet.
Colombe of Ravestein

Thanks God she is no longer Duchess
here!

Val. [advancing to GUIBERT]. Sir Guibert, knight, they call you—this of
mine

Is the first step I ever set at court.
You dared make me your instrument, I
find;

For that, so sure as you and I are men,
We reckon to the utmost presently:

But as you are a courtier and I none,
Your knowledge may instruct me. I, already,

Have too far outraged, by my ignorance
Of courtier-ways, this lady, to proceed
A second step and risk addressing her:
—I am degraded—you let me address!
Out of her presence, all is plain enough
What I shall do—but in her presence, too, Surely there's something proper to be
done.

[To the others.] You, gentlemen, tell me if I guess aright—

May I not strike this man to earth?

The Courtiers [as GUIBERT springs forward, withholding him]. Let go!

—The clothiers' spokesman, Guibert?
Grace a churl?

The D. [to VALENCE]. Oh, be acquainted with your party, sir!

He's of the oldest lineage Juliers boasts;
A lion crests him for a cognizance;

'Scorning to waver'—that's his 'scutch-con's word;

His office with the new Duke—probably
The same in honour as with me; or more,

By so much as this gallant turn deserves.
He's now, I dare say, of a thousand times

The rank and influence that remain with
her

Whose part you take! So, lest for taking
it

You suffer . . .

Val. I may strike him then to earth?

Gui. [falling on his knee]. Great and dear lady, pardon me! Hear once!

Believe me and be merciful—be just!
I could not bring myself to give that paper

Without a keener pang than I dared meet —And so felt Clugnet here, and Maufroy
here

—No one dared meet it. Protestation's cheap,—

But, if to die for you did any good,
[To GAUCELME.] Would not I die, sir? Say your worst of me!

But it does no good, that's the mournful
truth.

And since the hint of a resistance, even,
Would just precipitate, on you the first,

A speedier ruin—I shall not deny,
Saving myself indubitable pain,

I thought to give you pleasure (who might say?)

By showing that your only subject found
To carry the sad notice, was the man

Precisely ignorant of its contents;
A nameless, mere provincial advocate;

One whom 'twas like you never saw before,

Never would see again. All has gone
wrong;

But I meant right, God knows, and you,
I trust!

The D. A nameless advocate, this gentleman?

—(I pardon you, Sir Guibert!)

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

[ACT II

Gui. [rising, to VALENCE]. Sir, and you?
Val.—Rejoice that you are lightened of a load.

Now, you have only me to reckon with.
The D. One I have never seen, much less obliged?

Val. Dare I speak, lady?

The D. Dare you!

Heard you not

I rule no longer?

Val. Lady, if your rule Were based alone on such a ground as these [Pointing to the Courtiers].
Could furnish you,—abjure it! They have hidden

A source of true dominion from your sight.

The D. You hear them—no such source is left . . .

Val. Hear Cleves!
Whose haggard craftsmen rose to starve
this day,

Starve now, and will lie down at night to starve,

Sure of a like to-morrow—but as sure
Of a most unlike morrow—after that,
Since end things must, end howsoe'er things may.

What curbs the brute-force instinct in its
hour?

What makes—instead of rising, all as one,
And teaching fingers, so expert to wield
Their tool, the broadsword's play or car-bine's trick,

—What makes that there's an easier help,
they think,

For you, whose name so few of them can spell,

Whose face scarce one in every hundred
saw,—

You simply have to understand their
wrongs,

And wrongs will vanish—so, still trades are plied,

And swords lie rusting, and myself stand
here?

There is a vision in the heart of each
Of justice, mercy, wisdom, tenderness To wrong and pain, and knowledge of its cure:

And these embodied in a woman's form
That best transmits them, pure as first received,

From God above her, to mankind below.
Will you derive your rule from such a
ground,

Or rather hold it by the suffrage, say,
Of this man—this—and this?

The D. [after a pause]. You come from Cleves:

How many are at Cleves of such a mind?

Val. [from his paper]. 'We, all the manufacturers of Cleves—'

The D. Or stay, sir,—lest I seem too covetous—

Are you my subject? such as you describe,
Am I to you, though to no other man?

Val. [from his paper]. —'Valence, ordained your Advocate at Cleves,—'

The D. [replacing the coronet]. Then I remain Cleves' Duchess! Take you
note,

While Cleves but yields one subject of this stamp,

I stand her lady till she waves me off!

For her sake, all the Prince claims I with-
hold;

Laugh at each menace; and, his power
defying,

Return his missive with its due contempt!
[Casting it away].

Gui. [picking it up]. —Which to the Prince I will deliver, lady,

(Note it down, Gaucelme)—with your message too!

The D. I think the office is a subject's,
sir!

—Either . . . how style you him?—my special guarder

The Marshal's—for who knows but violence

May follow the delivery?—Or, perhaps,
My Chancellor's—for law may be to urge

On its receipt!—Or, even my Chamberlain's—

For I may violate established form!
[To VALENCE]. Sir,—for the half-hour till this service ends,

Will you become all these to me?

Val. [falling on his knee]. My liege!
The D. Give me!

[The Courtiers present their badges of office].

[Putting them by]. Whatever was their virtue once,

They need new consecration. [*Raising
VALENCE*]. Are you mine?

I will be Duchess yet! [She retires.
The Courtiers. Our Duchess yet!

A glorious lady! Worthy love and dread!
I'll stand by her,—And I, whatever betide!

Gui. [to VALENCE]. Well done, well done, sir! I care not who knows,

You have done nobly and I envy you—
Tho' I am but unfairly used, I think:

For when one gets a place like this I hold,
One gets too the remark that its mere wages,

The pay and the preferment, make our
prize.

Talk about zeal and faith apart from these,
We're laughed at—much would zeal and faith subsist

Without these also! Yet, let these be stopped,

Our wages discontinue,—then, indeed,
Our zeal and faith, (we hear on every side,)

Are not released—having been pledged away

ACT II

I wonder, for what zeal and faith in turn?
Hard money purchased me my place! No,
no—

I'm right, sir—but your wrong is better
still,

If I had time and skill to argue it.
Therefore, I say, I'll serve you, how you
please—

If you like,—fight you, as you seem to wish—

(The kinder of me that, in sober truth,
I never dreamed I did you any harm) . . .

Gau. —Or, kinder still, you'll introduce, no doubt,

His merits to the Prince who's just at
hand,

And let no hint drop he's made Chancellor
And Chamberlain and Heaven knows what beside!

Clug. [to VALENCE]. You stare, young sir, and threaten! Let me say,

That at your age, when first I came to court,

I was not much above a gentleman;
While now . . .

Val. —You are Head-Lackey?
With your office

I have not yet been graced, sir!
Other Courtiers [to CLUGNET]. Let him talk!

Fidelity, disinterestedness, Excuse so much! Men claim my worship
ever

Who staunchly and steadfastly . . .

Enter ADOLF.

Adolf. The Prince arrives.
Courtiers. Ha? How?

Adolf. He leaves his guard a stage behind

At Aix, and enters almost by himself.
1st Court. The Prince! This foolish business puts all out.

2nd Court. Let Gaucelme speak first!
3rd Court. Better I began

About the state of Juliers: should one say All's prosperous and inviting him?

4th Court. —Or rather,
All's prostrate and imploring him?

5th Court. That's best!
Where's the Cleves' paper, by the way?

4th Court. [to VALENCE]. Sir—sir—
If you'll but lend that paper—trust it me,
I'll warrant . . .

5th Court. Softly, sir—the Marshal's duty!

Clug. Has not the Chamberlain a hearing first

By virtue of his patent?
Gau. Patents?—Duties?

All that, my masters, must begin again!
One word composes the whole controversy;

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

We're simply now—the Prince's!
The Others. Ay—the Prince's!

Enter SABYNE.

Sab. Adolf! Bid . . . Oh, no time for ceremony!

Where's whom our lady calls her only subject?

She needs him. Who is here the Duchess's?
Val. [starting from his reverie]. Most gratefully I follow to her feet.

ACT III

AFTERNOON

SCENE.—The Vestibule.

Enter PRINCE BERTHOLD and MELCHIOR.

Berth. A thriving little burgh this Juliers looks.

[Half-apart.] Keep Juliers, and as good you kept Cologne:

•Better try Aix, though!—
Mel. Please't your Highness speak?

Berth. [as before]. Aix, Cologne, Frankfort,—Milan;—Rome!—

Mel. The Grave.
More weary seems your Highness, I remark,

Than sundry conquerors whose path I've watched

Through fire and blood to any prize they gain.

I could well wish you, for your proper
sake,

Had met some shade of opposition here
—'round a blunt seneschal refuse unlock,

Or a scared usher lead your steps astray.
You must not look for next achievement's
palm

So easily: this will hurt your conquering.
Berth. My next? Ay, as you say, my next and next!

Well, I am tired, that's truth, and moody
too,

This quiet entrance-morning: listen why!
Our little burgh, now, Juliers—'tis indeed

One link, however insignificant,
Of the great chain by which I reach my
hope,

—A link I must secure; but otherwise,
You'd wonder I esteem it worth my grasp.

Just see what life is, with its shifts and turns!

It happens now—this very nook—to be A place that once . . . not a long while since, neither—

When I lived an ambiguous hanger-on •Of foreign courts, and bore my claims
about,

Discarded by one kinsman, and the other
A poor priest merely,—then, I say, this
place

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

[ACT III]

Shone my ambition's object; to be Duke—Seemed then, what to be Emperor seems
now.

My rights were far from judged as plain and sure

In those days as of late, I promise you:
And 'twas my day-dream, Lady Colombe
here

Might e'en compound the matter, pity me,
Be struck, say, with my chivalry and grace
(I was a boy!)—bestow her hand at length,
And make me Duke, in her right if not
mine.

Here am I, Duke confessed, at Juliers now.
Hearken: if ever I be Emperor,
Remind me what I felt and said to-day!

Mel. All this consoles a bookish man
like me.

—And so will weariness cling to you.
Wrong,

Wrong! Had you sought the lady's court
yourself,—

Faced the redoubtables composing it, Flattered this, threatened that man, bribed,
the other,—

Pleaded by writ and word and deed, your
cause,—

Conquered a footing inch by painful inch,—

And, after long years' struggle, pounced
at last

On her for prize,—the right life had been
lived,

And justice done to divers faculties
Shut in that brow. Yourself were visible

As you stood victor, then; whom now—(your pardon!)

I am forced narrowly to search and see,
So are you hid by helps—this Pope, your uncle—

Your cousin, the other King! You are a
mind,—

They, body: too much 'of mere legs-and-
arms

Obstructs the mind so! Match these with their like:

Match mind with mind!

Berth. And where's your mind to match?

They show me legs-and-arms to cope withal!

I'd subjugate this city—where's its mind?
[The Courtiers enter slowly.]

Mel. Got out of sight when you came troops and all!

And in its stead, here greets you flesh-and-
blood:

A smug economy of both, this first!
[As CLUGNET bows obsequiously.]

Well done, gout, all considered!—I may go?

Berth. Help me receive them!

Mel. Oh, they just will say
What yesterday at Aix their fellows said—

At Treves, the day befofe! Sir Prince, my
friend,

Why do you let your life slip thus?—
Meantime,

I have my little Juliers to achieve—
The understanding this tough Platonist,

Your holy uncle disinterred, Amelius:
Lend me a company of horse and foot,

To help me through his tractate—gain my Duchy!

Berth. And Empire, after that is gained,
will be—?

Mel. To help me through your uncle's comment, Prince! [Goes.]

Berth. Ah? Well: he o'er-refines—the scholar's fault!

How do I let my life slip? Say, this life,
I lead now, differs from the common life

Of other men in mere degree, not kind,
Of joys and griefs,—still there is such degree

Mere largeness in a life is something,
sure,—

Enough to care about and struggle for,
In this world: for this world, the size of
things;

The sort of things, for that to come, no
doubt.

A great is better than a little aim:
And when I wooed Priscilla's rosy mouth

And failed so, under that grey convent-
wall,

Was I more happy than I should be now [By this time, the Courtiers are ranged before him.]

If failing of my Empire? Not a whit.
—Here comes the mind, it once had tasked me sore

To baffle, but for my advantages!
All's best as 'tis: these scholars talk and talk. [Seats himself.]

The Courtiers. Welcome our Prince to Juliers!—to his heritage!

Our dutifullest service proffer we!
Clug. I, please your Highness, having exercised

The function of Grand Chamberlain at court,

With much acceptance, as men testify . . .
Berth. I cannot greatly thank you,
gentlemen!

The Pope declares my claim to the Duchy founded

On strictest justice—you concede it, therefore,

I do not wonder: and the kings my friends Protest they mean to see such claim enforced,—

You easily may offer to assist.
But there's a slight discretionary power

To serve me in the matter, you've had
long,

Though late you use it. This is well to
say—

But could you not have said it months ago?

I'm not denied my own Duke's truncheon, true—

'Tis flung me—I stoop down, and from the ground

Pick it, with all you placid standers-by: And now I have it, gems and mire at once, Grace go with it to my soiled hands, you say!

Gui. (By Paul, the advocate our doughty friend)

Cuts the best figure!)

Gau. If our ignorance

May have offended, sure our loyalty . . .

Berth. Loyalty? Yours? Oh—of yourselves you speak!

I mean the Duchess all this time, I hope! And since I have been forced repeat my claims

As if they never had been urged before, As I began, so must I end, it seems.

The formal answer to the grave demand! What says the lady?

Courtiers [one to another]. 1st Court.

Marshal! 2nd Court. Orator!

Gui. A variation of our mistress' way! Wipe off his boots' dust, Clugnet!—that, he waits!

1st Court. Your place!

2nd Court. Just now it was your own!

Gui. The devil's!

Berth. [to GUIBERT]. Come forward, friend—you with the paper, there!

Is Juliers the first city I've obtained? By this time, I may boast proficiency

In each decorum of the circumstance. Give it me as she gave it—the petition, Demand, you style it! What's required, in brief?

What title's reservation, appanage's Allowance? I heard all at Treves, last week.

Gau. [to GUIBERT]. 'Give it him as she gave it!'

Gui. And why not?

[To BERTHOLD.] The lady crushed your summons thus together,

And bade me, with the very greatest scorn So fair a frame could hold, inform you . . .

Courtiers. Stop—Idiot!

Gui. —Inform you she denied your claim,

Defied yourself! (I tread upon his heel, The blustering advocate!)

Berth. By heaven and earth!

Dare you jest, sir?

Gui. Did they at Treves, last week?

Berth. [starting up]. Why then, I look much bolder than I knew,

And you prove better actors than I thought:

Since, as I live, I took you as you entered For just so many dearest friends of mine, Fled from the sinking to the rising power —The sneaking'st crew, in short, I e'er despised!

Whereas, I am alone here for the moment, With every soldier left behind at Aix!

Silence? That means the worst? I thought as much!

What follows next then?

Courtiers. Gracious Prince, he raves!

Gui. He asked the truth and why not get the truth?

Berth. Am I a prisoner? Speak, will somebody?

—But why stand paltering with imbeciles? Let me see her, or . . .

Gui. Her, without her leave, Shall no one see: she's Duchess yet!

Courtiers [footsteps without, as they are disputing]. Good chance!

She's here—the Lady Colombe's self!

Berth. 'Tis well!

[Aside.] Array a handful thus against my world?

Not ill done, truly! Were not this a mind To match one's mind with? Colombe!

Let us wait!

I failed so, under that grey convent wall! She comes.

Gui. The Duchess! Strangers, range yourselves!

[As the DUCHESS enters in conversation with VALENCE, BERTHOLD and the Courtiers fall back a little.

The D. Presagefully it beats, presagefully,

My heart: the right is Berthold's and not mine.

Val. Grant that he has the right, dare I mistrust

Your power to acquiesce so patiently As you believe, in such a dream-like change Of fortune—change abrupt, profound,

complete?

The D. Ah, the first bitterness is over now!

Bitter I may have felt it to confront The truth, and ascertain those natures'

value I had so counted on; that was a pang:

But I did bear it, and the worst is over. Let the Prince take them!

Val. And take Juliers too?

—Your people without crosses, wands and chains—

Only with hearts?

The D. There I feel guilty, sir!

I cannot give up what I never had: For I ruled these, not them—these stood between. Shall I confess, sir? I have heard by

stealth

Of Berthold from the first; more news and more;

Closer and closer swam the thundercloud,
But I was safely housed with these, I knew.
At times when to the casement I would turn,

At a bird's passage or a flower-trail's play,
I caught the storm's red glimpses on its edge—

Yet I was sure some one of all these friends
Would interpose: I followed the bird's flight

Or plucked the flower: some one would interpose!

Val. Not one thought on the People—and Cleves there!

The D. Now, sadly conscious my real sway was missed,

Its shadow goes without so much regret:
Else could I not again thus calmly bid you, Answer Prince Berthold!

Val. Then you acquiesce?

The D. Remember over whom it was I ruled!

Gul. [stepping forward]. Prince Berthold, yonder, craves an audience, lady!

The D. [to VALENCE]. I only have to turn, and I shall face Prince Berthold! Oh, my very heart is sick!

It is the daughter of a line of Dukes
This scornful insolent adventurer Will bid depart from my dead father's halls!

I shall not answer him—dispute with
him—

But, as he bids, depart! Prevent it, sir!
Sir—but a mere day's respite! Urge for
me

—What I shall call to mind I should have urged

When time's gone by: 'twill all be mine, you urge!

A day—an hour—that I myself may lay My rule down! 'Tis too sudden—must not be!

The world's to hear of it! Once done—
for ever!

How will it read, sir? How be sung about?
Prevent it!

Berth. [approaching]. Your frank indignation, lady,

Cannot escape me. Overbold I seem;
But somewhat should be pardoned my surprise

At this reception,—this defiance, rather.
And if, for their and your sake, I rejoice
Your virtues could inspire a trusty few
To make such gallant stand in your behalf,
I cannot but be sorry, for my own,
Your friends should force me to retrace
my steps:

Since I no longer am permitted speak

After the pleasant peaceful course prescribed

No less by courtesy than relationship—
Which I remember, if you once forgot.
But never must attack pass unrepelled.
Suffer that, through you, I demand of
these,

Who 'controverts my claim to Juliers?

The D. —Me

You say, you do not speak to—
Berth. Of your subjects

I ask, then: whom do you accredit? Where Stand those should answer?

Val. [advancing]. The lady is alone.

Berth. Alone, and thus? So weak and yet so bold?

Val. I said she was alone—

Berth. And weak, I
said.

Val. When is man strong until he feels
alone?

It was some lonely strength at first, be
sure,

Created organs, such as those you seek,
By which to give its varied purpose shape:
And, naming the selected ministrants, Took sword, and shield, and sceptre,— each, a man!

That strength performed its work and passed its way:

You see our lady: there, the old shapes
stand!

—A Marshal, Chamberlain, and Chancellor—

'Be helped their way, into their death put
life

'And find advantage!'—so you counsel us.
But let strength feel alone, seek help it-
self,—

And, as the inland-hatched sea-creature
hunts

The sea's breast out,—as, littered 'mid the waves

The desert-brute makes for the desert's
joy,

So turns our lady to her true resource,
Passing o'er hollow fictions, worn-out types,

—And I am first her instinct fastens on.
And prompt I say, as clear as heart can
speak,

The People will not have you; nor shall have!

It is not merely I shall go bring Cleves
And fight you to the last,—though that does much,

And men and children,—ay, and women
too,

Fighting for home, are rather to be feared
Than mercenaries fighting for their pay—

But, say you beat us, since such things
have been,

And, where this Juliers laughed, you set your foot

Upon a steaming bloody plash—what then?

Stand you the more our lord that there you stand?

Lord it o'er troops whose force you concentrate,

A pillared flame whereto all ardours tend—

Lord it 'mid priests whose schemes you amplify,

A cloud of smoke 'neath which all shadows brood—

But never, in this gentle spot of earth, Can you become our Colombe, our play-queen,

For whom, to furnish lilies for her hair, We'd pour our veins forth to enrich the soil.

—Our conqueror? Yes!—Our despot? Yes!—Our Duke?

Know yourself, know us!

Berth. [who has been in thought]. Know your lady, also!

[Very deferentially.]—To whom I need must exculpate myself

For having made a rash demand, at least. Wherefore to you, sir, who appear to be

Her chief adviser, I submit my claims, [Giving papers.

But, this step taken, take no further step, Until the Duchess shall pronounce their worth.

Here be our meeting-place; at night, its time:

Till when I humbly take the lady's leave!

[He withdraws. As the DUCHESS turns to VALENCE, the Courtiers interchange glances and come forward a little.

1st Court. So, this was their device!

2nd Court. No bad device!

3rd Court. You'd say they love each other, Guibert's friend

From Cleves, and she, the Duchess!

4th Court. —And moreover, That all Prince Berthold comes for, is to help Their loves!

5th Court. Pray, Guibert, what is next to do?

Gui. [advancing]. I laid my office at the Duchess' foot—

Others. And I—and I—and I!

The D. I took them, sirs.

Gui. [apart to VALENCE]. And now, sir, I am simple knight again—

Guibert, of the great ancient house, as yet That never bore affront; whate'er your birth,—

As things stand now, I recognize yourself (If you'll accept experience of some date)*

As like to be the leading man o' the time, Therefore as much above me now, as I

Seemed above you this morning. Then, I offered

To fight you: will you be as generous And now fight me?

Val. Ask when my life is mine!

Gui. ('Tis hers now!)

Clug. [apart to VALENCE, as GUIBERT turns from him]. You, sir, have insulted me

Grossly,—will grant me, too, the selfsame favour

You've granted him, just now, I make no question?

Val. I promise you, as him, sir.

Clug. Do you so? Handsomely said! I hold you to it, sir.

You'll get me reinstated in my office As you will Guibert!

The D. I would be alone!

[They begin to retire slowly; as VALENCE is about to follow—

Alone, sir—only with my heart: you stay!

Gau. You hear that? Ah, light breaks upon me! Cleves—

It was at Cleves some man harangued us all—

With great effect,—so those who listened said,

My thoughts being busy elsewhere: was this he?

Guibert,—your strange, disinterested man!

Your uncorrupted, if uncourtly friend! The modest worth you mean to patronize!

He cares about no Duchesses, not he— His sole concern is with the wrongs of Cleves!

What, Guibert? What, it breaks on you at last?

Gui. Would this hall's floor were a mine's roof! I'd back

And in her very face . . .

Gau. Apply the match That fired the train,—and where would you be, pray?

Gui. With him!

Gau. Stand, rather, safe outside with me!

The mine's charged: shall I furnish you the match

And place you properly? To the antechamber!

Gui. Can you?

Gau. Try me! Your friend's in fortune!

Gui. Quick—To the antechamber! He is pale with bliss!

Gau. No wonder! Mark her eyes!

Gui. To the antechamber! [The Courtiers retire.

The D. Sir, could you know all you have done for me

You were content! You spoke, and I am saved.

Val. Be not too sanguine, lady! Ere you dream,

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY,

[ACT III]

That transient flush of generosity Fades off, perchance. The man, beside, is gone,—
Him we might bend; but see, the papers
here—
Inalterably his requirement stays,
And cold hard words have we to deal with
now.
In that large eye there seemed a 'latent
pride,
To self-denial not incompetent,
But very like to hold itself dispensed
From such a grace: however, let us hope!
He is a noble spirit in noble form.
I wish he less had bent that brow to smile
As with the fancy how he could subject Himself upon occasion to—himself!
From rudeness, violence, you rest secure;
But do not think your Duchy rescued yet!

The D. You,—who have opened a new world to me,
Will never take the faded language up
Of that I leave? My Duchy—keeping it,
Or losing it—is that my sole world now?
Val. Ill have I spoken if you thence despise

Juliers; although the lowest, on true grounds,
Be worth more than the highest rule, on
false:

Aspire to rule, on the true grounds!
The D. Nay, hear—
False, I will never—rash, I would not be!
This is indeed my birthday—soul and
body,
Its hours have done on me the work of
years.

You hold the requisition: ponder it!
If I have right, my duty's plain: if he—
Say so, nor ever change a tone of voice!
At night you meet the Prince; meet me at
eve!
Till when, farewell! This discomposes
you?

Believe in your own nature, and its force
Of renovating mine! I take my stand
Only as under me the earth is firm: So, prove the first step stable, all will prove.

That first, I choose: [Laying her hand on his.—the next to take, choose you!
[She withdraws.

Val. [after a pause.] What drew down this on me?—on me, dead once,
She thus bids live,—since all I hitherto Thought dead in me, youth's ardours and emprise,
Burst into life before her, as she bids
Who needs them. Whither will this reach, where end?

Her hand's print burns on mine . . . Yet she's above—
So very far above me! All's too plain:
I served her when the others sank away,

And she rewards me as such souls reward—
The changed voice, the suffusion of the
cheek,
The eye's acceptance, the expressive hand,
—Reward, that's little, in her generous
thought,
Though all to me . . .

I cannot so disclaim
Heaven's gift, nor call it other than it is!
She loves me!

[Looking at the Prince's papers.]—Which love, these, perchance, forbid.
Can I decide against myself—pronounce
She is the Duchess and no mate for me?
—Cleves, help me! Teach me,—every haggard face,—

To sorrow and endure! I will do right Whatever be the issue. Help me, Cleves!

ACT IV

EVENING

SCENE.—An Antechamber.

Enter the Courtiers.

Mau. Now, then, that we may speak
—how spring this mine?

Gau. Is Guibert ready for its match?
He cools!

Not so friend Valence with the Duchess
there!

'Stay, Valence! Are not you my better
self?'

And her cheek mantled—

Gui. Well, she loves him, sir:
And more,—since you will have it I grow cool,—

She's right: he's worth it.

Gau. For his deeds to-day?
Say so!

Gui. What should I say beside?

Gau. Not this—
For friendship's sake leave this for me to
say—

That we're the dupes of an egregious cheat!

This plain unpractised suitor, who found
way

To the Duchess through the merest die's turn-up

A year ago, had seen her and been seen,
Loved and been loved.

Gui. Impossible!

Gau. —Nor say,
How sly and exquisite a trick, moreover,
Was this which—taking not their stand on facts

Boldly, for that had been endurable,
But worming on their way by craft, they choose

Resort to, rather,—and which you and
we,

Sheep-like, assist them in the playing-off!

The Duchess thus parades him as preferred,

Not on the honest ground of preference,
Seeing first, liking more, and there an end—

But as we all had started equally,
And at the close of a fair race he proved
The only valiant, sage and loyal man.
Herself, too, with the pretty fits and starts,—

The careless, winning, candid ignorance
Of what the Prince might challenge or forego—

She had a hero in reserve! What risk Ran she? This deferential easy Prince Who brings his claims for her to ratify
—He's just her puppet for the nonce!

You'll see,—

Valence pronounces, as is equitable,
Against him: off goes the confederate:
As equitable, Valence takes her hand!

The Chancellor. You run too fast: her hand, no subject takes.

Do not our archives hold her father's will?
That will provides against such accident,
And gives next heir, Prince Berthold, the reversion

Of Juliers, which she forfeits, wedding so.
Gau. I know that, well as you,—but does the Prince?

Knows Berthold, think you, that this plan, he helps,

For Valence's ennoblement,—would end,
If crowned with the success which seems its due,

In making him the very thing he plays,
The actual Duke of Juliers? All agree
That Colombe's title waived or set aside,
He is next heir.

The Chan. Incontrovertibly.

Gau. Guibert, your match, now, to the train!

Gui. Enough!

I'm with you: selfishness is best again.
I thought of turning honest—what a dream!

Let's wake now!

Gau. Selfish, friend, you never were:
'Twas but a series of revenges taken
On your unselfishness for prospering ill.
But now that you're grown wiser, what's our course?

Gui. —Wait, I suppose, till Valence weds our lady,
And then, if we must needs revenge ourselves,

Apprise the Prince.

Gau. —The Prince, ere then dismissed

With thanks for playing his mock part so well?

Tell the Prince now, sir! Ay, this very night,

Ere he accepts his dole and goes his way,

Explain how such a marriage makes him Duke,

Then trust his gratitude for the surprise!

Gui. —Our lady wedding Valence all the same

As if the penalty were undisclosed?

Good! If she loves, she'll not disown her love,

Throw Valence up. I wonder you see that.

Gau. The shame of it!—the suddenness and shame!

Within her, the inclining heart—without,
A terrible array of witnesses—

And Valence by, to keep her to her word,
With Berthold's indignation or disgust!

We'll try it!—Not that we can venture much.

Her confidence we've lost for ever: Berthold's

Is all to gain.

Gui. To-night, then, venture we!

Yet—if lost confidence might be renewed?

Gau. Never in noble natures! With the base ones,—

Twist off the crab's claw, wait a smarting-while,

And something grows and grows and gets to be

A mimic of the lost joint, just so like

As keeps in mind it never, never will Replace its predecessor! Crabs do that:

But lop the lion's foot—and . . .

Gui. To the Prince!

Gau. [aside]. And come what will to the lion's foot, I pay you,

My cat's-paw, as I long have yearned to pay.

[Aloud.] Footsteps! Himself! 'Tis Valence breaks on us,

Exulting that their scheme succeeds. We'll hence—

And perfect ours! Consult the archives, first—

Then, fortified with knowledge, seek the Hall!

Clug. [to GAUCELME as they retire]. You have not smiled so since your father died!

As they retire, enter VALENCE with papers.

Val. So must it be! I have examined these

With scarce a palpitating heart—so calm,
Keeping her image almost wholly off,

Setting upon myself determined watch,
Repealing to the uttermost his claims:

And the result is—all men would pronounce

And not I, only, the result to be—

Berthold is heir; she has no shade of right
To the distinction which divided us,

But, suffered to rule first, I know not why,
Her rule connived at by those Kings and

Popes,

To serve some devil's-purpose,—now 'tis gained,

Whate'er it was, the rule expires as well.
—Valence, this rapture . . . selfish can it be?

Eject it from your heart, her home!—It stays!

Ah, the brave world that opens on us both!

—Do my poor townsmen so esteem it? Cleves,—

I need not your pale faces! This, reward
For service done to you? Too horrible!
I never served you: 'twas myself I served—
Nay, served not—rather saved from punishment

Which, had I failed you then, would plague me now.

My life continues yours, and your life, mine.

But if, to take God's gift, I swerve no step—

Cleves! If I breathe no prayer for it—if she, [Footsteps without.

Colombe, that comes now, freely gives herself—

Will Cleves require, that, turning thus to her,

I . . .

Enter Prince BERTHOLD.

Pardon, sir! I did not look for you Till night, i' the Hall; nor have as yet declared

My judgment to the lady.

Berth. So I hoped.

Val. And yet I scarcely know why that should check

The frank disclosure of it first to you—
What her right seems, and what, in consequence,

She will decide on.

Berth. That I need not ask.

Val. You need not: I have proved the lady's mind:

And, justice being to do, dare act for her.

Berth. Doubtless she has a very noble mind.

Val. Oh, never fear but she'll in each conjuncture

Bear herself bravely! She no whit depends On circumstance; as she adorns a throne,
She had adorned . . .

Berth. A cottage—in what book
Have I read that, of every queen that lived?

A throne! You have not been instructed, sure,

To forestall my request?

Val. 'Tis granted, sir!

My heart instructs me. I have scrutinized
Your claims . . .

Berth. Ah—claims, you mean,
at first preferred?

I come, before the hour appointed me,
To pray you let those claims at present rest,

In favour of a new and stronger one.

Val. You shall not need a stronger: on the part

O' the lady, all you offer I accept,
Since one clear right suffices: yours is clear.

Propose!

Berth. I offer her my hand.

Val. Your hand?

Berth. A Duke's, yourself say; and, at no far time,
Something here whispers me—an Emperor's.

The lady's mind is noble: which induced
This seizure of occasion ere my claims
Were—settled, let us amicably say!

Val. Your hand!

Berth. (He will fall down and kiss it next!)

Sir, this astonishment's too flattering,
Nor must you hold your mistress' worth so cheap.

Enhance it, rather,—urge that blood is blood—

The daughter of the Burgraves, Landgraves, Markgraves, Remains their daughter! I shall scarce gainsay.

Elsewhere or here, the lady needs must rule;

Like the imperial crown's great chrysopraxe,

They talk of—somewhat out of keeping there,

And yet no jewel for a meaner cap.

Val. You wed the Duchess?

Berth. Cry you mercy, friend!

Will the match also influence fortunes here?

A natural solicitude enough.

Be certain, no bad chance it proves for you!

However high you take your present stand,

There's prospect of a higher still remove—

For Juliers will not be my resting-place,
And, when I have to choose a substitute

To rule the little burgh, I'll think of you Who need not give your mates a character.

And yet I doubt your fitness to supplant
The grey smooth Chamberlain: he'd hesitate

A doubt his lady could demean herself

So low as to accept me. Courage, sir!

I like your method better: feeling's play

'Is franker much, and flatters me beside.

Val. I am to say, you love her?

Berth. Say that too!

Love has no great concernment, thinks the world,

With a Duke's marriage. How go precedents

In Juliers' story—how use Juliers' Dukes? I see you have them here in goodly row; Yon must be Luitpold—ay, a stalwart sire!

Say, I have been arrested suddenly, In my ambition's course, its rocky course, By this sweet flower: I fain would gather it

And then proceed: so say and speedily —(Nor stand there like Duke Luitpold's brazen self!)

Enough, sir: you possess my mind, I think. This is my claim, the others being withdrawn,

And to this be it that, i' the Hall to-night, Your lady's answer comes; till when, farewell! [He retires.

Val. [after a pause]. The heavens and earth stay as they were; my heart Beats at its beat: the truth remains the truth.

What falls away, then, if not faith in her? Was it my faith, that she could estimate Love's value, and, such faith still guiding me,

Dare I now test her? Or grew faith so strong Solely because no power of test was mine?

Enter the DUCHESS.

The D. My fate, sir! Ah, you turn away. All's over.

But you are sorry for me? Be not so! What I might have become, and never was,

Regret with me! What I have merely been,

Rejoice I am no longer! What I seem Beginning now, in my new state, to be, Hope that I am!—for, once my rights proved void,

This heavy roof seems easy to exchange For the blue sky outside—my lot henceforth.

Val. And what a lot is Berthold's!

The D. How of him?

Val. He gathers earth's whole good into his arms;

Standing, as man now, stately, strong and wise,

Marching to fortune, not surprised by her. One great aim, like a guiding-star, above—

Which tasks strength, wisdom, stateliness, to lift

His manhood to the height that takes the prize;

A prize not near—lest overlooking earth He rashly spring to seize it; nor remote, So that he rest upon his path content:

But day by day, while shimmering grows shine,

And the faint circlet prophesies the orb, He sees so much as, just evolving these, The stateliness, the wisdom and the strength,

To due completion, will suffice this life, And lead him at his grandest to the grave. After this star, out of a night he springs; A beggar's cradle for the throne of thrones He quits; so, mounting, feels each step he mounts,

Nor, as from each to each exultingly He passes, overleaps one grade of joy. This, for his own good:—with the world, each gift

Of God and man,—reality, tradition, Fancy and fact—so well environ him, That as a mystic panoply they serve— Of force, untenanted, to awe mankind, And work his purpose out with half the world,

While he, their master, dexterously slipt From such encumbrance, is meantime employed

With his own prowess on the other half. Thus shall he prosper, every day's success Adding, to what is he, a solid strength— An æry might to what encircles him, Till at the last, so life's routine lends help, That as the Emperor only breathes and moves,

His shadow shall be watched, his step or stalk

Become a comfort or a portent, how He trails his ermine take significance,— Till even his power shall cease to be most power,

And men shall dread his weakness more, nor dare

Peril their earth its bravest, first and best, Its typified invincibility.

Thus shall he go on, greatening, till he ends—

The man of men, the spirit of all flesh, The fiery centre of an earthly world!

The D. Some such a fortune I had dreamed should rise

Out of my own—that is, above my power Seemed other, greater potencies to stretch—

Val. For you?

The D. It was not I moved there, I think:

But one I could,—though constantly beside,

And aye approaching,—still keep distant from,

And so adore. 'Twas a man moved there. Val. Who?

The D. I felt the spirit, never saw the face.

Val. See it! 'Tis Berthold's! He enables you

To realize your vision.

The D. Berthold?

Val. Duke—
Emperor to be: he proffers you his hand.
The D. Generous and princely!
Val. He is all of this.
The D. Thanks, Berthold, for my father's sake! No hand Degrades me.
Val. You accept the proffered hand?
The D. That he should love me!
Val. 'Loved' I did not say.
Had that been—love might so incline the
Prince
To the world's good, the world that's at his foot,—
I do not know, this moment, I should dare Desire that you refused the world—and Cleves—
The sacrifice he asks.
The D. Not love me, sir?
Val. He scarce affirmed it.
The D. May not deeds affirm?
Val. What does he? . . . Yes, yes, very much he does!
All the shame saved, he thinks, and sorrow saved—
Immitigable sorrow, so he thinks,— Sorrow that's deeper than we dream, per-
chance.
The D. Is not this love?
Val. So very much he does!
For look, you can descend now gracefully:
All doubts are banished, that the world might have,
Or worst, the doubts yourself, in after-
time,
May call up of your heart's sincereness
now.
To such, reply, 'I could have kept my
rule—
'Increased it to the utmost of my dreams—
'Yet I abjured it.' This, he does for you:
It is munificently much.
The D. Still 'much!'
But why is it not love, sir? Answer me!
Val. Because not one of Berthold's words and looks
Had gone with love's presentment of a flower
To the beloved: because bold confidence,
Open superiority, free pride—
Love owns not, yet were all that Berthold owned:
Because where reason, even, finds no flaw,
Unerringly a lover's instinct may.
The D. You reason, then, and doubt?
Val. I love, and know.
The D. You love? How strange! I never cast a thought
On that. Just see our selfishness! You
seemed
So much my own . . . I had no ground—
and yet,
I never dreamed another might divide

My power with you, much less exceed it.
Val. Lady,
I am yours wholly.
The D. Oh, no, no, not mine!
'Tis not the same now, never more can be.
—Your first love, doubtless. Well, what's gone from me?
What have I lost in you?
Val. My heart replies—
No loss there! So, to Berthold back
again:
This offer of his hand, he bids me make—
Its obvious magnitude is well to weigh.
The D. She's . . . yes, she must be very fair for you!
Val. I am a simple advocate of Cleves.
The D. You! With the heart and brain that so helped me,
I fancied them exclusively my own,
Yet find are subject to a stronger sway!
She must be . . . tell me, is she very fair?
Val. Most fair, beyond conception or belief.
The D. Black eyes?—no matter! Colombe, the world leads Its life without you, whom your friends professed
The only woman: see how true they spoke!
One lived this while, who never saw your
face,
Nor heard your voice—unless . . . Is she from Cleves?
Val. Cleves knows her well.
The D. Ah—just a fancy, now!
When you poured forth the wrongs of Cleves,—I said,
—Thought, that is, afterward . . .
Val. You thought of me?
The D. Of whom else? Only such great cause, I thought,
For such effect: see what true love can do!
Cleves is his love. I almost fear to ask
. . . And will not. This is idling: to our
work!
Admit before the Prince, without reserve,
My claims misgrounded; then may follow better
. . . When you poured out Cleves' wrongs impetuously,
Was she in your mind?
Val. All done was done for her —To humble me!
The D. She will be proud at least.
'Val. She?
The D. When you tell her.
Val. That will never be.
The D. How—are there sweeter things you hope to tell?
No, sir! You counselled me,—I counsel
you
In the one point I—any woman—can.
Your worth, the first thing; let her own come next—

Say what you did through her, and she through you—

The praises of her beauty afterward!

Will you?

Val. I dare not.

The D. Dare not?

Val. She I love
Suspects not such a love in me.

The D. You jest.

Val. The lady is above me and away.
Not only the brave form, and the bright mind;

And the great heart, combine to press me low—

But all the world calls rank divides us.

The D. Rank!

Now grant me patience! Here's a man declares

Oracularly in another's case—

Sees the true value and the false, for them—

Nay, bids them see it, and they straight do see.

You called my court's love worthless—so it turned:

I threw away as dross my heap of wealth,
And here you stickle for a piece or two!

First—has she seen you?

Val. Yes.

The D. She loves you, then.

Val. One flash of hope burst; then succeeded night:

And all's at darkest now. Impossible!

The D. We'll try: you are—so to speak—
—my subject yet?

Val. As ever—to the death.

The D. Obey me, then!

Val. I must.

The D. Approach her, and . . .
no! first of all

Get more assurance. 'My instructress,' say,

'Was great, descended from a line of kings,

'And even fair'—(wait why I say this folly)—

'She said, of all men, none for eloquence,

'Courage, and (what cast even these to shade)

'The heart they sprung from,—none deserved like him

'Who saved her at her need: if she said this,
'What should not one I love, say?'

Val. Heaven—this hope—

Oh, lady, you are filling me with fire!

The D. Say this!—nor think I bid you cast aside

One touch of all the awe and reverence;
Nay, make her proud for once to heart's content

That all this wealth of heart and soul's her own!

Think you are all of this,—and, thinking it,

. . . (Obey!)

Val. I cannot choose.

The Duchess. Then, kneel to her [Valence sinks on his knee.]

I dream!

Val. Have mercy! Yours, unto the death,—

I have, obeyed. Despise, and let me die!

The D. Alas, sir, is it to be ever thus?

Even with you as with the world? I know
This morning's service was no vulgar deed

Whose motive, once it dares avow itself,
Explains all done and infinitely more,

So, takes the shelter of a nobler cause.

Your service named its true source,— loyalty!

The rest's unsaid again. The Duchess bids you,

Rise, sir! The Prince's words were in debate.

Val. [rising]. Rise? Truth, as ever, lady, comes from you!

I should rise—I who spoke for Cleves, can speak

For Man—yet tremble now, who stood firm then.

I laughed—for 'twas past tears—that Cleves should starve

With all hearts beating loud the infamy,
And no tongue daring trust as much to air:

Yet here, where all hearts speak, shall I be mute?

Oh, lady, for your own sake look on me!

On all I am, and have, and do—heart,
brain,

Body and soul,—this Valence and his gifts!

I was proud once: I saw you, and they sank,

So that each, magnified a thousand times,
Were nothing to you—but such nothingness,

Would a crown gild it, or a sceptre prop,
A treasure speed, a laurel-wreath enhance?

What is my own desert? But should your love

Have . . . there's no language helps here
. . . singled me,—

Then—oh, that wild word 'then!'—be just to love,

In generosity its attribute!

Love, since you pleased to love! All's cleared—a stage

For trial of the question kept so long:
Judge you—Is love or vanity the best?

You, solve it for the world's sake—you, speak first

What all will shout one day—you, vindicate

Our earth and be its angel! All is said.
Lady, I offer nothing—I am yours:

But, for the cause' sake, look on me and him,

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

[ACT V

And speak!

The D. I have received the Prince's message:

Say, I prepare my answer!

Val.

Take me, Cleves!

[He withdraws.]

The D. Mournful—that nothing's what it calls itself!

Devotion, zeal, faith, loyalty—mere love!

And, love in question, what may Berthold's be?

I did ill to mistrust the world so soon:

Already was this Berthold at my side.

The valley-level has its hawks no doubt:

May not the rock-top have its eagles, too?

Yet Valence . . . let me see his rival then!

ACT V

NIGHT

SCENE.—The Hall.

Enter BERTHOLD and MELCHIOR.

Mel. And here you wait the matter's issue?

Berth. Here.

Mel. I don't regret I shut Amelius, then.

But tell me, on this grand disclosure,—how

Behaved our spokesman with the forehead?

Berth. Oh,

Turned out no better than the foreheadless—

Was dazzled not so very soon, that's all!

For my part, this is scarce the hasty showy

Chivalrous measure you give me credit of.

Perhaps I had a fancy,—but 'tis gone.

—Let her commence the unfriended innocent

And carry wrongs about from court to court?

No, truly! The least shake of fortune's sand,

—My uncle-Pope chokes in a coughing fit,

King-cousin takes a fancy to blue eyes,—

And wondrously her claims would brighten up;

Forth comes a new gloss on the ancient law,

O'er-looked provisos, o'er-past premises,

Follow in plenty. No: 'tis the safe step.

The hour beneath the convent-wall is lost:

Juliers and she, once mine, are ever mine.

Mel. Which is to say, you, losing heart already,

Elope the adventure.

Berth. Not so—or, if so—

Why not confess at once that I advise

None of our kingly craft and guild just now

To lay, one moment, down their privilege
With the notion they can any time at pleasure

Retake it: that may turn out hazardous.

We seem, in Europe, pretty well at end O' the night, with our great masque: those favoured few

Who keep the chamber's top, and honour's chance

Of the early evening, may retain their place

And figure as they list till out of breath.

But it is growing late: and I observe

A dim grim kind of tipstaves at the doorway

Not only bar new-comers entering now,
But caution those who leit, for any cause,

And would return, that morning draws too near;

The ball must die off, shut itself up. We—
I think, may dance lights out and sunshine in,

And sleep off headache on our frippery:

*But friend the other, who cunningly stole out,

And, after breathing the fresh air outside,
Means to re-enter with a new costume,

Will be advised go back to bed, I fear.

I stick to privilege, on second thoughts.

Mel. Yes—you evade the adventure:
and, beside,

Give yourself out for colder than you are.
King Philip, only, notes the lady's eyes?

Don't they come in for somewhat of the motive

With you too?

Berth. Yes—no: I am past that now.
Gone 'tis: I cannot shut my soul to fact.

Of course, I might by forethought and contrivance

Reason myself into a rapture. Come:
And something better come instead, no doubt.

Mel. So be it! Yet, all the same, proceed my way,

Though to your ends; so shall you prosper best!

The lady,—to be won for selfish ends,—
Will be won easier my unselfish . . . call it,

Romantic way.

Berth. Won easier?

Mel. Will not she?

Berth. There I profess humility without bound:

I cannot speed—not I—the Emperor.

Mel. And I should think the Emperor best waived,

From your description of her mood and way.

*You could look, if it pleased you, into hearts;

But are too indolent and fond of watching
Your own—you know that, for you study it.

Berth. Had you but seen the orator her friend,

So bold and vobuble an hour before,
Abashed to earth at aspect of the change!
Make her an Empress? Ah, that changed the case!

Oh, I read hearts! 'Tis for my own behoof,
I court her with my true worth: wait the event!

I learned my final lesson on that head
When years ago,—my first and last essay—

Before the priest my uncle could by help
Of his superior, raise me from the dirt—
Priscilla left me for a Brabant lord
Whose cheek was like the topaz on his thumb.

I am past illusion on that score.

Mel. Here comes
The lady—

Berth. —And there you go. But do not! Give me

Another chance to please you! Hear me plead!

Mel. You'll keep, then, to the lover, to the man?

Enter the DUCHESS—followed by ADOLF and SARYNE and, after an interval, by the Courtiers.

Berth. Good auspice to our meeting!

The D. May it prove!

—And you, sir, will be Emperor one day?

Berth. (Ay, that's the point!) I may be Emperor.

The D. 'Tis not for my sake only, I am proud

Of this you offer: I am prouder far
That from the highest state should duly spring

The highest, since most generous, of deeds.

Berth. (Generous—still that!) You underrate yourself.

You are, what I, to be complete, must gain—

Find now, and may not find, another time.

While I career on all the world for stage,
There needs at home my representative.

The D. —Such, rather, would some warrior-woman be—

One dowered with lands and gold, or rich in friends—

One like yourself.

Berth. Lady, I am myself, and have all these: I want what's not myself,

Nor has all these. Why give one hand two swords?

Here's one already: be a friend's next gift

A silk glove, if you will—I have a sword.

The D. You love me, then?

Berth. Your lineage I revere,
Honour your virtue, in your truth believe,
Do homage to your intellect, and bow
Before your peerless beauty.

The D. But, for love—
Berth. A further love I do not understand.

Our best course is to say these hideous truths,

And see them, once said, grow enduring:
Like waters shuddering from their central bed,

Black with the midnight bowels of the earth,

That, once up-spouted by an earthquake's throes,

A portent and a terror—soon subside,
Freshen apace, take gold and rainbow hues

In sunshine, sleep in shadow, and at last Grow common to the earth as hills or trees—

Accepted by all things they came to scare.

The D. You cannot love, then?

Berth. —Charlemagne, perhaps!
Are you not over-curious in love-lore?

The D. I have become so, very recently.
It seems, then, I shall best deserve esteem,
Respect, and all your candour promises,
By putting on a calculating mood—

Asking the terms of my becoming yours?

Berth. Let me not do myself injustice,
neither.

Because I will not condescend to fictions
That promise what my soul can ne'er acquit,

It does not follow that my guarded phrase
May not include far more of what you seek,

Than wide profession of less scrupulous men.

You will be Empress, once for all: with me
The Pope disputes supremacy—you stand,
And none gainsays, the earth's first woman.

The D. That—
Or simple Lady of Ravestein again?

Berth. The matter's not in my arbitration:

Now I have made my claims—which I regret—

Cede one, cede all.

The D. This claim then, you enforce?

Berth. The world looks on.

The D. And when must I decide?

Berth. When, lady? Have I said thus much so promptly

For nothing?—Poured out, with such pains, at once

What I might else have suffered to ooze forth Droplet by droplet in a lifetime long—
For aught less than as prompt an answer,
too?

All's fairly told now: who can teach you more?

The D. I do not see him.

Berth. I shall ne'er deceive.

This offer should be made befittingly
Did time allow the better setting forth
The good of it, with what is not so good,
Advantage, and disparagement as well:
But as it is, the sum of both must serve.
I am already weary of this place;
My thoughts are next stage on to Rome.
Decide!

The Empire—or,—not even Juliers now!
Hail to the Empress—farewell to the Duchess!

[The Courtiers, who have been drawing nearer and nearer, interpose.]

Gau. —'Farewell,' Prince? when we break in at our risk—

Clug. Almost upon court-licence trespassing—

Gau. —To point out how your claims are valid yet!

You know not, by the Duke her father's
will,

The lady, if she weds beneath her rank, Forfeits her Duchy in the next heir's favour—

So 'tis expressly stipulate. And if
It can be shown 'tis her intent to wed
A subject, then yourself, next heir, by
right

Succeed to Juliers.

Berth. What insanity?—

Gui. Sir, there's one Valence, the pale fiery man

You saw and heard this morning—
thought, no doubt,

Was of considerable standing here:
I put it to your penetration, Prince,
If aught save love, the truest love for her
Could make him serve the lady as he did!
He's simply a poor advocate of Cleves

—Creeps here with difficulty, finds a place
With danger, gets in by a miracle,
And for the first time meets the lady's
face—

So runs the story: is that credible?
For, first—no sooner in, than he's apprised

Fortunes have changed; you are all-powerful here,

The lady as powerless: he stands fast by her!
The D. [aside]. And do such deeds spring up from love alone?

Gui. But here occurs the question, does
the lady

Love him again? I say, how else can she?
Can she forget how he stood singly forth
In her defence, dared outrage all of us, Insult yourself—for what, save love's reward?

The D. [aside]. And is love then the sole reward of love?

Gui. But, love him as she may and must—you ask,

Means she to wed him? 'Yes,' both natures answer!

Both, in their pride, point out the sole result;

Nought less would he accept nor she propose.

For each conjuncture was she great enough
—Will be, for this,

Clug. Though, now that this is known,

Policy, doubtless, urges she deny . . .
The D. —What, sir, and wherefore?— since I am not sure

That all is any other than you say!
You take this Valence, hold him close to
me,

Him with his actions: can I choose but
look?

I am not sure, love trulier shows itself
Than in this man, you hate and would degrade,

Yet, with your worst abatement, show me
thus.

Nor am I—(thus made look within myself, Ere I had dared)—now that the look is
dared—

Sure that I do not love him!

Gui. Hear you, Prince?

Berth. And what, sirs, please you, may this prattle mean

Unless to prove with what alacrity
You give your lady's secrets to the world?

How much indebted, for discovering
That quality, you make me, will be found

When there's a keeper for my own to seek.
Courtiers. 'Our lady?'

Berth. —She assuredly remains.

The D. Ah, Prince—and you too can be generous?

You could renounce your power, if this were so,

And let me, as these phrase it, wed my
love

Yet keep my Duchy? You perhaps exceed Him, even, in disinterestedness!

Berth. How, lady, should all this affect my purpose?

Your will and choice are still as ever, free.
Say, you have known a worthier than myself

In mind and heart, of happier form and
face—

Others must have their birthright: I have
gifts,

To balance theirs, not blot them out of sight.

Against a hundred alien qualities,
I lay the prize I offer. I am nothing:

Wed you the Empire?

The D. And my heart away?

Berth. When have I made pretension to your heart?

I give none, I shall keep your honour safe;
With mine I trust you, as the sculptor trusts

Yon marble woman with the marble rose,
Loose on her hand, she never will let fall,
In graceful, slight, silent security,
You will be proud of my world-wide career,

And I content in you the fair and good.
What were the use of planting a few seeds
The thankless climate never would mature—

Affections all repelled by circumstance?
Enough: to these no credit I attach,—
To what you own, find nothing to object.
Write simply on my requisition's face
What shall content my friends—that you admit,

As Colombe of Ravestein, the claims therein,

Or never need admit them, as my wife—
And either way, all's ended!

The D. Let all end!

Berth. The requisition!

Gul. —Valence holds, of course!

Berth. Desire his presence!

[ADOLF goes out.]

Courtiers [to each other]. Out it all comes yet;

He'll have his word against the bargain yet;

He's not the man to tamely acquiesce.
One passionate appeal—upbraiding even,
May turn the tide again. Despair not yet!

[They retire a little.]

Berth. [to MELCHIOR]. The Empire has its old success, my friend!

Mel. You've had your way: before the spokesman speaks,

Let me, but this once, work a problem out,

And ever more be dumb! The Empire wins?

To better purpose have I read my books!

Enter VALENCE.

Mel. [to the Courtiers]. Apart, my masters!

[To VALENCE.] Sir, one word with you!
I am a poor dependant of the Prince's—Pitched on to speak, as of slight consequence.

You are no higher, I find! in other words,
We two, as probably the wisest here,
Need not hold diplomatic talk like fools.
Suppose I speak, divesting the plain fact
Of all their tortuous phrases, fit for them?
Do you reply so, and what trouble saved!
The Prince, then—an embroiled strange heap of news

This moment reaches him—if true or false,

All dignity forbids he should inquire
In person, or by worthier deputy;
Yet somehow must inquire, lest slander come:

And so, 'tis I am pitched on. You have heard

His offer to your lady?

Val. Yes.

Mel.

—Conceive

Her joy thereat?

Val.

I cannot.

Mel.

No one can.

All draws to a conclusion, therefore.

Val. [aside].

So!

No after-judgment—no first thought revised—

Her first and last decision!—me, she leaves,

Takes him; a simple heart is flung aside,
The ermine o'er a heartless breast embraced.

Oh Heaven, this mockery has been played too oft!

Once, to surprise the angels—twice, that fiends

Recording, might be proud they chose not so—

Thrice, many thousand times, to teach the world

All men should pause, misdoubt their strength, since men

Can have such chance yet fail so signally,
—But ever, ever this farewell to Heaven,

Welcome to earth—this taking death for life—

This spurning love and kneeling to the world—

Oh Heaven, it is too often and too old!

Mel. Well, on this point, what but an absurd rumour

Arises—these, its source—its subject, you!
Your faith and loyalty misconstruing,

They say, your service claims the lady's hand!

Of course, nor Prince nor lady can respond:

Yet something must be said: for, were it true

You made such claim, the Prince would...

Val.

Well, sir,—would?

Mel. —Not only probably withdraw his suit,

But, very like, the lady might be forced Accept your own. Oh, there are reasons why!

But you'll excuse at present all save one,—
I think so. What we want is, your own witness,

For, or against—her good, or yours: decide!

Val. [aside].

Be it her good if she accounts it so!

[After a contest.] For what am I but hers, to choose as she?

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

[ACT V

Who knows how far, beside, the light from her
May reach, and dwell with, what she looks upon?

Mel. [to the Prince]. Now to him, you!

Berth. [to VALENCE]. My friend acquaints you, sir,

The noise runs . . .

Val. —Prince, how fortunate you are,

Wedding her as you will, in spite of noise,
To show belief in love! Let her but love you,

All else you disregard! What else can be?
You know how love is incompatible
With falsehood—purifies, assimilates
All other passions to itself.

Mel. Ay, sir:

But softly! Where, in the object we select,
Such love is, perchance, wanting?

Val. Then indeed,

What is it you can take?

Mel. Nay, ask the world!

Youth, beauty, virtue, an illustrious name,
An influence o'er mankind.

Val. When man perceives . . .

—Ah, I can only speak as for myself!

The D. Speak for yourself!

Val. May I?—no, I have spoken,

And time's gone by. Had I seen such an one,

As I loved her—weighing thoroughly that word—

So should my task be to evolve her love:
If for myself!—if for another—well.

Berth. Heroic truly! And your sole reward,—

The secret pride in yielding up love's right?

Val. Who thought upon reward? And yet how much

Comes after—oh, what amplest recompense!

Is the knowledge of her, nought? the memory, nought?

—Lady, should such an one have looked on you,

Ne'er wrong yourself so far as quote the world

And say, love can go unrequited here!
You will have blessed him to his whole life's end—

Low passions hindered, baser cares kept back,

All goodness cherished where you dwell—and dwell.

What would he have? He holds you—you, both form

And mind, in his,—where self-love makes such room

For love of you, he would not serve you now

The vulgar way,—repulse your enemies,
Win you new realms, or best, to save the old

Die blissfully—that's past so long ago!
He wishes you no need, thought, care of him—

Your good, by any means, himself unseen,
Away, forgotten!—He gives that life's task up,

As it were . . . but this charge which I return—

[Offers the requisition, which she takes. Wishing your good.

The D. [having subscribed it]. And opportunely, sir—

Since at a birthday's close, like this of mine,

Good wishes gentle deeds reciprocate.
Most on a wedding-day, as mine is too,

Should gifts be thought of: yours comes first by right.

Ask of me!

Berth. He shall have whate'er he asks,
For your sake and his own.

Val. [aside]. If I should ask—

The withered bunch of flowers she wears—perhaps,

One last touch of her hand, I never more

Shall see! [After a pause, presenting his paper to the Prince.

Cleves' Prince, redress the wrongs of Cleves!

Berth. I will, sir!

The D. [as VALENCE prepares to retire]. —Nay, do out your duty, first!

You bore this paper; I have registered My answer to it: read it and have done!

[VALENCE reads it. I take him—give up Juliers and the world.
This is my Birthday.

Mel. Berthold, my one hero
Of the world she gives up, one friend

worth my books,
Sole man I think it pays the pains to watch,—

Speak, for I know you through your Popes and Kings!

Berth. [after a pause]. Lady, well rewarded! Sir, as well deserved!

I could not imitate—I hardly envy—
I do admire you. All is for the best.

Too costly a flower were this, I see it now,
To pluck and set upon my barren helm

To wither—any garish plume will do.
I'll not insult you and refuse your

Duchy—
You can so well afford to yield it me,

And I were left, without it, sadly lorn.
As it is—for me—if that will flatter you,

A somewhat wearier life seems to remain
Than I thought possible where . . . 'faith,

their life
Begins already! They're too occupied

To listen: and few words content me best.
[Abruptly to the Courtiers.] I am your Duke, though! Who obey me here?

The D. Adolf and Sabyne follow us—
Gai. [starting from the Courtiers].

—And I?

Do I not follow them, if I mayn't you?
 Shall not I get some little duties up
 At Ravestein and emulate the rest?
 God save you, Gaucelme! 'Tis my Birthday, too!

Berth. You happy handful that remain
 with me

... That is, with Dietrich the black Barna-bite

I shall leave over you—will earn your wages
 Or Dietrich has forgot to ply his trade!
 Meantime,—go copy me the precedents
 Of every installation, proper styles
 And pedigrees of all your Juliers' Dukes—
 While I prepare to plod on my old way,
 And somewhat wearily, I must confess!

The D. [with a light joyous laugh as she turns from them]. Come, Valence, to our friends, God's earth . . .
Val. [as she falls into his arms].

—And thee!

DRAMATIC ROMANCES

184- 185-

INCIDENT OF THE FRENCH CAMP 'You're wounded!' 'Nay,' the soldier's pride

I

You know, we French stormed Ratisbon:
 A mile or so away,
 On a little mound, Napoleon
 Stood on our storming-day;
 With neck out-thrust, you fancy how,
 Legs wide, arms locked behind,
 As if to balance the prone brow
 Oppressive with its mind.

II

Just as perhaps he mused 'My plans
 'That soar, to earth may fall,
 'Let once my army-leader Lannes
 'Waver at yonder wall,'—
 Out 'twixt the battery-smokes there flew
 A rider, bound on bound Full-galloping; nor bridle drew
 Until he reached the mound.

III

Then off there flung in smiling joy,
 And held himself erect
 By just his horse's mane, a boy:
 You hardly could suspect—
 (So tight he kept his lips compressed, Scarce any blood came through)
 You looked twice ere you saw his breast
 Was all but shot in two.

IV

'Well,' cried he, 'Emperor, by God's grace
 'We've got you Ratisbon!
 'The Marshal's in the market-place,
 'And you'll be there anon'
 'To see your flag-bird flap his vans
 'Where I, to heart's desire,
 'Perched him!' The chief's eye flashed;
 his plans
 Soared up again like fire.

The chief's eye flashed; but presently Softened itself, as sheathes
 A film the mother-eagle's eye
 When her bruised eaglet breathes;

Touched to the quick, he said:
 'I'm killed, Sire!' And his chief beside Smiling the boy fell dead.

THE PATRIOT

AN OLD STORY

I

It was roses, roses, all the way,
 With myrtle mixed in my path like mad:
 The house-roofs seemed to heave and sway,
 The church-spires flamed, such flags they had,
 A year ago on this very day.

II

The air broke into a mist with bells,
 The old walls rocked with the crowd and cries.
 Had I said, 'Good folk, mere noise repels—
 'But give me your sun from yonder
 skies!'
 They had answered, 'And afterward, what else?'

III

Alack, it was I who leaped at the sun
 To give it my loving friends to keep!
 Nought man could do, have I left un-
 done:
 And you see my harvest, what I reap
 This very day, now a year is run.

IV

'There's nobody on the house-tops now—
 Just a palsied few at the windows set;
 For the best of the sight is, all allow,
 At the Shambles' Gate—or, better yet,
 By the very scaffold's foot, I trow.

THE PATRIOT

V

I go in the rain, and, more than needs,
A rope cuts both my wrists behind;
And I think, by the feel, my forehead bleeds,
For they fling, whoever has a mind,
Stones at me for my year's misdeeds.

VI

Thus I entered, and thus I go!
In triumphs, people have dropped down
dead.
'Paid by the world, what dost thou owe 'Me?'—God might question; now instead,
'Tis God shall repay: I am safer so.

MY LAST DUCHESS

FERRARA

THAT's my last Duchess painted on the
wall,
Looking as if she were alive. I call That piece a wonder, now: Frà Pandolf's
hands
Worked busily a day, and there she stands.
Will't please you sit and look at her? I
said
'Frà Pandolf' by design, for never read Strangers like you that pictured countenance,
The depth and passion of its earnest
glance,
But to myself they turned (since none puts by
The curtain I have drawn for you, but I)
And seemed as they would ask me, if they durst,
How such a glance came there; so, not the
first
Are you to turn and ask thus. Sir, 'twas
not
Her husband's presence only, called that spot
Of joy into the Duchess' cheek: perhaps Frà Pandolf chanced to say 'Her mantle laps
'Over my lady's wrist too much,' or
'Paint
'Must never hope to reproduce the faint
'Half-flush that dies along her throat:'
such stuff
Was courtesy, she thought, and cause
enough
For calling up that spot of joy. She had A heart—how shall I say?—too soon made glad,
Too easily impressed; she liked whate'er
She looked on, and her looks went every-
where.
Sir, 'twas all one! My favour at her breast,
The dropping of the daylight in the West,

The bough of cherries some officious fool Broke in the orchard for her, the white mule
She rode with round the terrace—all and
each
Would draw from her alike the approving
speech,
Or blush, at least. She thanked men,— good! but thanked Somehow—I know not how—as if she ranked
My gift of a nine-hundred-years-old name With anybody's gift. Who'd stoop to
blame
This sort of trifling? Even had you skill In speech—(which I have not)—to make your will Quite clear to such an one, and say, 'Just
this
'Or that in you disgusts me; here you miss,
'Or there exceed the mark'—and if she let Herself be lessoned so, nor plainly set Her wits to yours, forsooth, and made excuse,
—E'en then would be some stooping; and
I choose
Never to stoop. Oh sir, she smiled, no
doubt,
Whene'er I passed her; but who passed
without Much the same smile? This grew; I gave commands;
Then all smiles stopped together. There she stands
As if alive. Will't please you rise? We'll
meet
The company below, then. I repeat,
The Count your master's known munificence
Is ample warrant that no just pretence
Of mine for dowry will be disallowed;
Though his fair daughter's self, as I avowed
At starting, is my object. Nay, we'll go Together down, sir. Notice Neptune,
though,
Taming a sea-horse, thought a rarity,
Which Claus of Innsbruck cast in bronze
for me!

COUNT GISMOND

AIX IN PROVENCE

I

CHRIST God who savest man, save most
Of men Count Gismond who saved me!
Count Gauthier, when he chose his post,
Chose time and place and company
To suit it; when he struck at length
My honour, 'twas with all his strength.

II

And doubtlessly ere he could draw
All points to one, he must have schemed!
That miserable morning saw Few half so happy as I seemed,
While being dressed in queen's array
To give our tourney prize away.

III

I thought they loved me, did me grace
To please themselves; 'twas all their
deed;
God makes, or fair or foul, our face;
If showing mine so caused to bleed
My cousins' hearts, they should have dropped
A word, and straight the play had stopped.

IV

They, too, so beauteous! Each a queen
By virtue of her brow and breast;
Not needing to be crowned, I mean,
As I do. E'en when I was dressed,
Had either of them spoke, instead
Of glancing sideways with still head!

V

But no; they let me laugh, and sing
My birthday song quite through, adjust
The last rose in my garland, fling
A last look on the mirror, trust
My arms to each an arm of theirs,
And so descend the castle-stairs—

VI

And come out on the morning-troop
Of merry friends who kissed my cheek,
And called me queen, and made me stoop
Under the canopy—(a streak
That pierced it, of the outside sun, Powdered with gold its gloom's soft dun)—

VII

And they could let me take my state
And foolish throne amid applause
Of all come there to celebrate
My queen's-day—Oh I think the cause
Of much was, they forgot no crowd
Makes up for parents in their shroud!

VIII

However that be, all eyes were bent
Upon me, when my cousins cast Theirs down; 'twas time I should present.
The victor's crown, but . . . there, 'twill
last
No long time . . . the old mist again
Blinds me as then it did. How vain!

IX

See! Gismond's at the gate, in talk
With his two boys: I can proceed.
Well, at that moment, who should stalk
Forth boldly—to my face, indeed—
But Gauthier, and he thundered 'Stay!'
And all stayed. 'Bring no crowns, I say!'

X

'Bring torches! Wind the penance-sheet
'About her! Let her shun the chaste,
'Or lay herself before their feet!
'Shall she whose body I embraced
'A night long, queen it in the day?
'For honour's sake no crowns, I say!'

XI

I? What I answered? As I live,
I never fancied such a thing
As answer possible to give.
What says the body when they spring
Some monstrous torture-engine's whole Strength on it? No more says the soul.

XII

Till out strode Gismond; then I knew That I was saved. I never met
His face before, but, at first view,
I felt quite sure that God had set Himself to Satan; who would spend
A minute's mistrust on the end?

XIII

He strode to Gauthier, in his throat
Gave him the lie, then struck his mouth
With one back-handed blow that wrote
In blood men's verdict there. North,
South,
East, West, I looked. The lie was dead,
And damned, and truth stood up instead

XIV

This glads me most, that I enjoyed
The heart of the joy, with my content
In watching Gismond unalloyed
By any doubt of the event:
God took that on him—I was bid
Watch Gismond for my part: I did.

XV

Did I not watch him while he let
His armourer just brace his greaves,
Rivet his hauberk, on the fret
The while! His foot . . . my memory
leaves
No least stamp out, nor how anon
He pulled his ringing gauntlets on.

XVI

And e'en before the trumpet's sound
Was finished, prone lay the false knight,
Prone as his lie, upon the ground:
Gismond flew at him, used no sleight
O' the sword, but open-breasted drove,
Cleaving till out the truth he clove.

COUNT GISMOND

XVII

Which done, he dragged him to my feet
And said 'Here die, but end thy breath
'In full confession, lest thou fleet
'From my first, to God's second death!
'Say, hast thou lied?' And, 'I have lied
'To God and her,' he said, and died.

XVIII

Then Gismond, kneeling to me, asked —What safe my heart holds, though no
word
Could I repeat now, if I tasked
My powers for ever, to a third
Dear even as you are. Pass the rest Until I sank upon his breast.

XIX

Over my head his arm he flung Against the world; and scarce I felt
His sword (that dripped by me and swung)
A little shifted in its belt:
For he began to say the while
How South our home lay many a mile.

XX

So 'mid the shouting multitude
We two walked forth to never more Return. My cousins have pursued
Their life, untroubled as before
I vexed them. Gauthier's dwelling-place
God lighten! May his soul find grace!

XXI

Our elder boy has got the clear Great brow; tho' when his brother's
black
Full eye shows scorn, it . . . Gismond here?
And have you brought my tercel back?
I just was telling Adela
How many birds it struck since May.

THE BOY AND THE ANGEL

MORNING, evening, noon and night,
'Praise God!' sang Theocrite.

Then to his poor trade he turned,
Whereby the daily meal was earned.

Hard he laboured, long and well;
O'er his work the boy's curls fell.

But ever, at each period,
He stopped and sang, 'Praise God!'

Then back again his curls he threw,
And cheerful turned to work anew.

Said Blaise, the listening monk, 'Well
done;
'I doubt not thou art heard, my son:

'As well as if thy voice to-day
'Were praising God, the Pope's great way.

'This Easter Day, the Pope at Rome
'Praises God from Peter's dome.'

Said Theocrite, 'Would God that I 'Might praise him, that great way, and
die!'

Night passed, day shone,
And Theocrite was gone.

With God a day endures alway,
A thousand years are but a day.

God said in heaven, 'Nor day nor night
'Now brings the voice of my delight.'

Then Gabriel, like a rainbow's birth,
Spread his wings and sank to earth;

Entered, in flesh, the empty cell, Lived there, and played the craftsman
well;

And morning, evening, noon and night,
Praised God in place of Theocrite.

And from a boy, to youth he grew:
The man put off the stripling's huc:

The man matured and fell away
Into the season of decay:

And ever o'er the trade he bent,
And ever lived on earth content.

(He did God's will; to him, all one If on the earth or in the sun.)

God said, 'A praise is in mine ear;
'There is no doubt in it, no fear:

'So sing old worlds, and so
'New worlds that from my footstool go.

'Clearer loves sound other ways:
'I miss my little human praise.'

Then forth sprang Gabriel's wings, off fell
The flesh disguise, remained the cell.

'Twas Easter Day: he flew to Rome,
And paused above Saint Peter's dome.

In the tiring-room close by
The great outer gallery,

With his holy vestments dight,
Stood the new Pope, Theocrite:

And all his past career
Came back upon him clear,

Since when, a boy, he plied his trade,
Till on his life the sickness weighed;

And in his cell, when death drew near,
An angel in a dream brought cheer:

THE BOY AND THE ANGEL

And rising from the sickness drear
He grew a priest, and now stood here.

To the East with praise he turned,
And on his sight the angel burned.

'I bore thee from thy craftsman's cell
'And set thee here; I did not well.'

'Vainly I left my angel-sphere,
'Vain was thy dream of many a year.

'Thy voice's praise seemed weak; it dropped—

'Creation's chorus stopped!

'Go back and praise again
'The early way, while I remain.

'With that weak voice of our disdain,
'Take up creation's pausing strain.

'Back to the cell and poor employ:
'Resume the craftsman and the boy!'

Theocrite grew old at home;
A new Pope dwelt in Peter's dome.

One vanished as the other died:
They sought God side by side.

INSTANS TYRANNUS

I

Of the million or two, more or less,
I rule and possess,
One man, for some cause undefined,
Was least to my mind.

II

I struck him, he grovelled of course—
For, what was his force?
I pinned him to earth with my weight
And persistence of hate:
And he lay, would not moan, would not
curse,
As his lot might be worse.

III

'Were the object less mean, would he
stand
'At the swing of my hand!
'For obscurity helps him and blots
'The hole where he squats.'
So, I set my five wits on the stretch
To inveigle the wretch.
All in vain! Gold and jewels I threw,
Still he couched there perdue;
I tempted his blood and his flesh,
Hid in roses my mesh,
Choicest cates and the flagon's best spilth:
Still he kept to his filth.

IV

Had he kith now or kin, were access
To his heart, did I press:
Just a son or a mother to seize!
No such booty as these.

Were it simply a friend to pursue
'Mid my million or two,
Who could pay me in person or pelf
What he owes me himself!
No: I could not but smile through my
chafe:

For the fellow lay safe
As his mates do, the midge and the nit,
—Through minuteness, to wit.

Then a humour more great took its place
At the thought of his face,
The droop, the low cares of the mouth,
The trouble uncouth
'Twixt the brows, all that air one is fain
To put out of its pain.
And, 'no!' I admonished myself,
'Is one mocked by an elf,
'Is one baffled by toad or by rat?
'The gravamen's in that!
'How the lion, who crouches to suit
'His back to my foot,
'Would admire that I stand in debate!
'But the small turns the great
'If it vexes you,—that is the thing!
'Toad or rat vex the king?
'Though I waste half my realm to unearth
'Toad or rat, 'tis well worth!'

VI

So, I soberly laid my last plan
To extinguish the man.
Round his creep-hole, with never a break
Ran my fires for his sake;
Over-head, did my thunder combine
With my underground mine:
Till I looked from my labour content
To enjoy the event.

VII

When sudden . . . how think ye, the end?
Did I say 'without friend'?
Say rather, from marge to blue marge
The whole sky grew his target
With the sun's self for visible boss,
While an Arm ran across
Which the earth heaved beneath like a
breast
Where the wretch was safe prest!
Do you see? Just my vengeance complete,
The man sprang to his feet, Stood erect, caught at God's skirts, and prayed!
—So, I was afraid!

MESMERISM

I

ALL I believed is true!
I am able yet
All I want, to get
By a method as strange as new:
Dare I trust the same to you?

MESMERISM

II

If at night, when doors are shut,
And the wood-worm picks,
And the death-watch ticks,
And the bar has a flag of smut,
And a cat's in the water-butt—

III

And the socket floats and flares,
And the house-beams groan,
And a foot unknown
Is surmised on the garret-stairs,
And the locks slip unawares—

IV

And the spider, to serve his ends,
By a sudden thread,
Arms and legs outspread,
On the table's midst descends, Comes to find, God knows what
friends!—

V

If since eve drew in, I say,
I have sat and brought (So to speak) my thought
To bear on the woman away,
Till I felt my hair turn grey—

VI

Till I seemed to have and hold,
In the vacancy
'Twixt the wall and me,
From the hair-plait's chestnut gold
To the foot in its muslin fold—

VII

Have and hold, then and there,
Her, from head to foot,
Breathing and mute,
Passive and yet aware,
In the grasp of my steady stare—

VIII

Hold and have, there and then,
All her body and soul
That completes my whole,
All that women add to men,
In the clutch of my steady ken—

IX

Having and holding, till
I imprint her fast
On the void at last
As the sun does whom he will
By the calotypist's skill—

X

Then,—if my heart's strength serve,
And through all and each
Of the veils I reach
To her soul and never swerve,
Knitting an iron nerve—

XI

Command her soul to advance
And inform the shape
Which has made escape
And before my countenance
Answers me glance for glance—

XII

I, still with a gesture fit
Of my hands that best
Do my soul's behest,
Pointing the power from it,
While myself do steadfast sit—

XIII

Steadfast and still the same
On my object bent,
While the hands give vent
To my ardour and my aim
And break into very flame—

XIV

Then I reach, I must believe,
Not her soul in vain,
For to me again
It reaches, and past retrieve
Is wound in the toils I weave;

XV

And must follow as I require,
As befits a thrall,
Bringing flesh and all,
Essence and earth-attire,
To the source of the tractile fire:

XVI

Till the house called hers, not mine,
With a growing weight
Seems to suffocate
If she break not its leaden line
And escape from its close confine.

XVII

Out of doors into the night!
On to the maze
Of the wild wood-ways,
Not turning to left nor right
From the pathway, blind with sight—

XVIII

Making thro' rain and wind
O'er the broken shrubs,
'Twixt the stems and stubs,
With a still, composed, strong mind,
Nor a care for the world behind—

XIX

Swifter and still more swift,
As the crowding peace
Doth to joy increase
In the wide blind eyes uplift
Thro' the darkness and the drift!

XX

While I—to the shape, I too
 Feel my soul dilate
 Nor a whit abate,
 And relax not a gesture due,
 As I see my belief come true.

XXI

For, there! have I drawn or no
 Life to that lip?
 Do my fingers dip
 In a flame which again they throw
 On the cheek that breaks a-glow?

XXII

Ha! was the hair so first?
 What, unfileted,
 Made alive, and spread
 Through the void with a rich outburst,
 Chestnut gold-interspersed?

XXIII

Like the doors of a casket-shrine,
 See, on either side,
 Her two arms divide
 Till the heart betwixt makes sign,
 Take me, for I am thine!

XXIV

'Now—now'—the door is heard!
 Hark, the stairs! and near—Nearer—and here—
 'Now!' and at call the third
 She enters without a word.

XXV

On doth she march and on
 To the fancied shape;
 It is, past escape,
 Herself, now: the dream is done
 And the shadow and she are one.

XXVI

First I will pray. Do Thou
 That ownest the soul,
 Yet wilt grant control
 To another, nor disallow
 For a time, restrain me now!

XXVII

I admonish me while I may,
 Not to squander guilt,
 Since require Thou wilt
 At my hand its price one day!
 What the price is, who can say?

THE GLOVE

(PETER RONSAUD loquitur.)

'HEIGHO! 'yawned one day King Francis,
 'Distance all value enhances!
 'When a man's busy, why, leisure
 'Strikes him as wonderful pleasure:

'Faith, and at leisure once is he?
 'Straightway he wants to be busy.
 'Here we've got peace; and aghast I'm 'Caught thinking war the true pastime.
 'Is there a reason in metre?
 'Give us your speech, master Peter!
 I who, if mortal dare say so,
 Ne'er am at loss with my Naso,
 'Sire,' I replied, 'joys prove cloudlets:
 'Men are the merest Ixions'— Here the King whistled aloud, 'Let's
 '—Heigho—go look at our lions!
 Such are the sorrowful chances
 If you talk fine to King Francis.

And so, to the courtyard proceeding,
 Our company, Francis was leading,
 Increased by new followers tenfold
 Before he arrived at the penfold;
 Lords, ladies, like clouds which bedizen
 At sunset the western horizon.
 And Sir De Lorge pressed 'mid the fore-
 most

With the dame he professed to adore most.
 Oh, what a face! One by fits eyed
 Her, and the horrible pitside;
 For the penfold surrounded a hollow
 Which led where the eye scarce dared
 follow,

And shelved to the chamber secluded
 Where Bluebeard, the great lion, brooded.
 The King hailed his keeper, an Arab
 As glossy and black as a scarab,
 And bade him make sport and at once stir
 Up and out of his den the old monster.
 They opened a hole in the wire-work
 Across it, and dropped there a firework,
 And fled: one's heart's beating redoubled;
 A pause, while the pit's mouth was troubled,

The blackness and silence so utter,
 By the firework's slow sparkling and
 sputter;

Then earth in a sudden contortion
 Gave out to our gaze her abortion.
 Such a brute! Were I friend Clement Marot (Whose experience of nature's but narrow,
 And whose faculties move in no small mist
 When he versifies David the Psalmist)
 I should study that brute to describe you Illum Juda Leonem de Tribu.
 One's whole blood grew curdling and creepy

To see the black mane, vast and heapy,
 The tail in the air stiff and straining,
 The wide eyes, nor waxing nor waning,
 As over the barrier which bounded
 His platform, and us who surrounded
 The barrier, they reached and they rested
 On space that might stand him in best
 stead:

For who knew, he thought, what the amazement,
 The eruption of clatter and blaze meant,

THE GLOVE

And if, in this minute of wonder,
No outlet, 'mid lightning and thunder,
Lay broad, and, his shackles all shivered,
The lion at last was delivered?

Ay, that was the open sky o'erhead!
And you saw by the flash on his forehead,
By the hope in those eyes wide and steady,
He was leagues in the desert already,
Driving the flocks up the mountain,
Or catlike couched hard by the fountain
To waylay the date-gathering negress:
So guarded he entrance or egress.

'How he stands!' quoth the King: 'we may well swear,
(No novice, we've won our spurs elsewhere

'And so can afford the confession,)
'We exercise wholesome discretion
'In keeping aloof from his threshold;
'Once hold you, those jaws want no fresh
hold,
'Their first would too pleasantly purloin
'The visitor's brisket or surloin:
'But who's he would prove so fool-hardy?
'Not the best man of Marignan, pardie!'

The sentence no sooner was uttered,
Than over the rails a glove fluttered,
Fell close to the lion, and rested:
The dame 'twas, who flung it and jested
With life so, De Lorge had been wooing
For months past; he sat there pursuing His suit, weighing out with nonchalance
Fine speeches like gold from a balance.

Sound the trumpet, no true knight's a tarrier!

De Lorge made one leap at the barrier, Walked straight to the glove,—while the lion

Ne'er moved, kept his far-reaching eye on The palm-tree-edged desert-spring's sapphire,

And the musky oiled skin of the Kaffir,— Picked it up, and as calmly retreated,
Leaped back where the lady was seated,
And full in the face of its owner Flung the glove.

'Your heart's queen, you dethrone her?

'So should I!—cried the King—'twas mere vanity,

'Not love, set that task to humanity!
Lords and ladies alike turned with loath-
ing

From such a proved wolf in sheep's clothing.

Not so, I; for I caught an expression
In her brow's undisturbed self-possession:
Amid the Court's scoffing and merri-
ment,—

As if from no pleasing experiment
She rose, yet of pain not much heedful

So long as the process was needful,—
As if she had tried in a crucible,
To what 'speeches like gold' were reducible,

And, finding the finest prove copper,
Felt the smoke in her face was but proper;
To know what she had not to trust to,
Was worth all the ashes and dust too.
She went out 'mid hooting and laughter;
Clement Marot stayed; I followed after,
And asked, as a grace, what it all meant?
If she wished not the rash deod's recal-
ment?

'For I'—so I spoke—'am a poet:
'Human nature,—behoves that I know it!

She told me, 'Too long had I heard 'Of the deed proved alone by the word:
'For my love—what De Lorge would not dare!

'With my scorn—what De Lorge could compare!

'And the endless descriptions of death
'He would brave when my lip formed a
breath,

'I must reckon as braved, or, of course,
'Doubt his word—and moreover, per-
force,

'For such gifts as no lady could spurn,
'Must offer my love in return.

'When I looked on your lion, it brought
'All the dangers at once to my thought,

'Encountered by all sorts of men,
'Before he was lodged in his den,—

'From the poor slave whose club or bare
hands

'Dug the trap, set the snare on the sands,
'With no King and no Court to applaud,

'By no shame, should he shrink, overawed,

'Yet to capture the creature made shift,
'That his rude boys might laugh at the gift,

'—To the page who last leaped o'er the fence

'Of the pit, on no greater pretence
'Than to get back the bonnet he dropped,

'Lest his pay for a week should be stopped.
'So, wiser I judged it to make

'One trial what "death for my sake"
'Really meant, while the power was yet
mine,

'Than to wait until time should define
'Such a phrase not so simply as I,

'Who took it to mean just "to die."
'The blow a glove gives is but weak:

'Does the mark yet discolour my cheek?
'But when the heart suffers a blow,

'Will the pain pass so soon, do you know?'

I looked, as away she was sweeping,
And saw a youth eagerly keeping
As close as he dared to the doorway.
No doubt that a noble should more weigh

THE GLOVE

His life than befits a plebeian;
And yet, had our brute been Nemean—
(I judge by a certain calm fervour
The youth stepped with, forward to serve
her)

—He'd have scarce thought you did him
the worst turn

If you whispered 'Friend, what you'd get, first earn!'

And when, shortly after, she carried Her shame from the Court, and they married,

To that marriage some happiness, maugre
The voice of the Court, I dared augur.

For De Lorge, he made women with men
vie,

Those in wonder and praise, these in envy;
And in short stood so plain a head taller
That he wooed and won . . . how do you call her?

The beauty, that rose in the sequel
To the King's love, who loved her a week
well.

And 'twas noticed he never would honour
De Lorge (who looked daggers upon her)
With the easy commission of stretching
His legs in the service, and fetching
His wife from her chamber, those straying
Sad gloves she was always mislaying, While the King took the closet to chat
in,—

But of course this adventure came pat in.
And never the King told the story,
How bringing a glove brought such glory,
But the wife smiled—'His nerves are grown firmer:

'Mine he brings now and utters no murmur.'

Venienti occurrere morbo!

With which moral I drop my theorbo.

TIME'S REVENGES

I've a Friend, over the sea;
I like him, but he loves me.
It all grew out of the books I write;
They find such favour in his sight
That he slaughters you with savage looks
Because you don't admire my books.
He does himself though,—and if some vein

Were to snap to-night in this heavy brain,
To-morrow month, if I lived to try,
Round should I just turn quietly,
Or out of the bedclothes stretch my hand Till I found him, come from his foreign
land

To be my nurse in this poor place,
And make my broth and wash my face
And light my fire and, all the while,
Bear with his old good-humoured smile

That I told him 'Better have kept away
'Than come and kill me, night and day,
'With, worse than fever throbs and shoots,
'The creaking of his clumsy boots.'

I am as sure that this he would do,
As that Saint Paul's is striking two.
And I think I rather . . . woe is me!

—Yes, rather would see him than not see,
If lifting a hand could seat him there Before me in the empty chair
To-night, when my head aches indeed,
And I can neither think nor read
Nor make these purple fingers hold
The pen; this garret's freezing cold!

And I've a Lady—there he wakes,
The laughing fiend and prince of snakes
Within me, at her name, to pray
Fate send some creature in the way
Of my love for her, to be down-torn,
Uphrust and outward-borne,
So I might prove myself that sea
Of passion which I needs must be!
Call my thoughts false and my fancies quaint

And my style infirm and its figures faint,
All the critics say, and more blame yet,
And not one angry word you get.
But, please you, wonder I would put My cheek beneath that lady's foot
Rather than trample under mine
The laurels of the Florentine,
And you shall see how the devil spends
A fire God gave for other ends!
I tell you, I stride up and down
This garret, crowned with love's best
crown,

And feasted with love's perfect feast,
To think I kill for her, at least,
Body and soul and peace and fame,
Alike youth's end and manhood's aim,
—So is my spirit, as flesh with sin,
Filled full, eaten out and in
With the face of her, the eyes of her,
The lips, the little chin, the stir
Of shadow round her mouth; and she —I'll tell you,—calmly would decree
That I should roast at a slow fire,
If that would compass her desire
And make her one whom they invite
To the famous ball to-morrow night.

There may be heaven; there must be hell;
Meantime, there is our earth here—well!

THE ITALIAN IN ENGLAND

THAT second time they hunted me
From hill to plain, from shore to sea,
And Austria, hounding far and wide
Her blood-hounds thro' the country-side,
Breathed hot and instant on my trace,—
I made six days a hiding-place

THE ITALIAN IN ENGLAND

Of that dry green old aqueduct Where I and Charles, when boys, have plucked

The fire-flies from the roof above,
Bright creeping thro' the moss they love:
—How long it seems since Charles was lost!

Six days the soldiers crossed and crossed
The country in my very sight;
And when that peril ceased at night,
The sky broke out in red dismay
With signal fires; well, there I lay
Close covered o'er in my recess,
Up to the neck in ferns and cress,
Thinking on Metternich our friend,
And Charles's miserable end,
And much beside, two days; the third,
Hunger o'ercame me when I heard
The peasants from the village go
To work among the maize; you know,
With us in Lombardy, they bring Provisions packed on mules, a string
With little bells that cheer their task,
And casks, and boughs on every cask
To keep the sun's heat from the wine;
These I let pass in jingling line,
And, close on them, dear noisy crew,
The peasants from the village, too;
For at the very rear would troop
Their wives and sisters in a group
To help, I knew. When these had passed,
I threw my glove to strike the last,
Taking the chance: she did not start,
Much less cry out, but stooped apart,
One instant rapidly glanced round,
And saw me beckon from the ground.
A wild bush grows and hides my crypt;
She picked my glove up while she stripped
A branch off, then rejoined the rest
With that; my glove lay in her breast.
Then I drew breath; they disappeared.
It was for Italy I feared.

An hour, and she returned alone
Exactly where my glove was thrown.
Meanwhile came many thoughts: on me
Rested the hopes of Italy,
I had devised a certain tale
Which, when 'twas told her, could not fail

Persuade a peasant of its truth;
I meant to call a freak of youth
This hiding, and give hopes of pay,
And no temptation to betray.
But when I saw that woman's face,
Its calm simplicity of grace,
Our Italy's own attitude
In which she walked thus far, and stood,
Planting each naked foot so firm,
To crush the snake and spare the worm—
At first sight of her eyes, I said,
'I am that man upon whose head
'They fix the price, because I hate
'The Austrians over us: the State

'Will give you gold—oh, gold so much!—
'If you betray me to their clutch,
'And be your death, for aught I know,
'If once they find you saved their foe,
'Now, you must bring me food and drink,
'And also paper, pen and ink,
'And carry safe what I shall write
'To Padua, which you'll reach at night
'Before the duomo shuts; go in,
'And wait till Tenebræ begin;
'Walk to the third confessional,
'Between the pillar and the wail,
'And kneeling whisper, *Whence comes
peace?*
'Say it a second time, then cease;
'And if the voice inside returns,
'From Christ and Freedom; what concerns
'The cause of Peace?—for answer, slip
'My letter where you placed your lip;
'Then come back happy we have done
'Our mother service—I, the son,
'As you the daughter of our land!'

Three mornings more, she took her
stand

In the same place, with the same eyes:
I was no surer of sun-rise
Than of her coming. We conferred
Of her own prospects, and I heard
She had a lover—stout and tall,
She said—then let her eyelids fall,
'He could do much'—as if some doubt Entered her heart,—then, passing out,
'She could not speak for others, who
'Had other thoughts; herself she knew.'
And so she brought me drink and food.
After four days, the scouts pursued
Another path; at last arrived
The help my Paduan friends contrived
To furnish me: she brought the news.
For the first time I could not choose
But kiss her hand, and lay my own Upon her head—'This faith was shown 'To Italy, our mother; she 'Uses my hand and blesses thee.'
She followed down to the sea-shore;
I left and never saw her more.

How very long since I have thought Concerning—much less wished for—aught
Beside the good of Italy,
For which I live and mean to die!
I never was in love; and since Charles proved false, what shall now convince.
My inmost heart I have a friend?
However, if I pleased to spend Real wishes on myself—say, three—
I know at least what one should be.
I would grasp Metternich until
I felt his red wet throat distil
In blood thro' these two hands. And next, —Nor much for that am I perplexed—

THE ITALIAN IN ENGLAND

Charles, perjured traitor, for his part,
Should die slow of a broken heart Under his new employers. Last —Ah, there, what should I wish? For
fast
Do I grow old and out of strength.
If I resolved to seek at length
My father's house again, how scared
They all would look, and unprepared!
My brothers live in Austria's pay —Disowned me long ago, men say;
And all my early mates who used
To praise me so—perhaps induced
More than one early step of mine—
Are turning wise: while some opine
'Freedom grows license,' some suspect
'Haste breeds delay,' and recollect
They always said, such premature Beginnings never could endure!
So, with a sullen 'All's for best,'
The land seems settling to its rest,
I think then, I should wish to stand
This evening in that dear, lost land,
Over the sea the thousand miles,
And know if yet that woman smiles
With the calm smile; some little farm
She lives in there, no doubt: what harm
If I sat on the door-side bench,
And, while her spindle made a trench
Fantastically in the dust,
Inquired of all her fortunes—just
Her children's ages and their names,
And what may be the husband's aims
For each of them. I'd talk this out,
And sit there, for an hour about,
Then kiss her hand once more, and lay
Mine on her head, and go my way.

So much for idle wishing—how It steals the time! To business now.

THE ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY

PIANO DI SORRENTO

FORTÙ, Fortù, my beloved one,
Sit here by my side,
On my knees put up both little feet!
I was sure, if I tried,
I could make you laugh spite of Scirocco.
Now, open your eyes,
Let me keep you amused till he vanish
In black from the skies,
With telling my memories over
As you tell your beads;
All the Plain saw me gather, I garland
—The flowers or the weeds.
Time for rain! for your long hot dry Autumn
Had net-worked with brown
The white skin of each grape on the bunches,
Marked like a quail's crown,

Those creatures you make such account of,
Whose heads,—speckled white
Over brown like a great spider's back,
As I told you last night,—
Your mother bites off for her supper.
Red-ripe as could be,
Pomegranates were chapping and splitting
In halves on the tree:
And betwixt the loose walls of great flint-
stone,
Or in the thick dust
On the path, or straight out of the rock-side,
Wherever could thrust
Some burnt sprig of bold hardy rock-flower
Its yellow face up,
For the prize were great butterflies fighting,
Some five for one cup.
So, I guessed, ere I got up this morning,
What change was in store,
By the quick rustle-down of the quail-nets
Which woke me before
I could open my shutter, made fast
With a bough and a stone,
And look thro' the twisted dead vinetwigs,
Sole lattice that's known.
Quick and sharp rang the rings down the net-poles,
While, busy beneath,
Your priest and his brother tugged at
them,
The rain in their teeth.
And out upon all the flat house-roofs
Where split figs lay drying,
The girls took the frails under cover:
Nor use seemed in trying To get out the boats and go fishing,
For, under the cliff, Fierce the black water frothed o'er the blind-rock.
No seeing our skiff
Arrive about noon from Amalfi,
—Our fisher arrive,
And pitch down his basket before us,
All trembling alive
With pink and grey jellies, your sea-fruit;
You touch the strange lumps,
And mouths gape there, eyes open, all manner
Of horns and of humps,
Which only the fisher looks grave at,
While round him like imps
Cling screaming the children as naked
And brown as his shrimps;
Himself too as bare to the middle
—You see round his neck
The string and its brass coin suspended,
That saves him from wreck.
But to-day not a boat reached Salerno,
So back, to a man,
Came our friends, with whose help in the vineyards
Grape-harvest began.

THE ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY

In the vat, halfway up in our house-
side,

Like blood the juice spins,
While your brother all bare-legged is dancing

Till breathless he grins
Dead-beaten in effort on effort

To keep the grapes under,
Since still when he seems all but master,
In pours the fresh plunder

From girls who keep coming and going
With basket on shoulder,

And eyes shut against the rain's driving;
Your girls that are older,—

For under the hedges of aloe,
And where, on its bed

Of the orchard's black mould, the love-apple

Lies pulpy and red,
All the young ones are kneeling and filling

Their laps with the snails Tempted off by this first rainy weather,—

Your best of regales,
As to-night will be proved to my sorrow,

When, supping in state,
We shall feast our grape-gleaners (two dozen,

Three over one plate)

With lasagne so tempting to swallow
In slippery ropes,

And gourds fried in great purple slices,
That colour of popes.

Meantime, see the grape bunch they've brought you:

The rain-water slips
O'er the heavy blue bloom on each globe

Which the wasp to your lips
Still follows with fretful persistence:

Nay, taste, while awake,
This half of a curd-white smooth cheese-ball

That peels, flake by flake,
Like an onion, each smoother and whiter;

Next, sip this weak wine
From the thin green glass flask, with its stopper,

A leaf of the vine;

And end with the prickly-pear's red flesh
That leaves thro' its juice

The stony black seeds on your pearl-teeth.

Scirocco is loose!
Hark, the quick, whistling pelt of the olives

Which, thick in one's track,

Tempt the stranger to pick up and bite
them,

Tho' not yet half black!
How the old twisted olive trunks shudder,

The medlars let fall
Their hard fruit, and the brittle great fig-
trees

Snap off, figs and all,
For here comes the whole of the tempest!

No refuge, but creep
Back again to my side and my shoulder,
And listen or sleep.

O how will your country show next week,
When all the vine-boughs

Have been stripped of their foliage to pasture

The mules and the cows?
Last eve, I rode over the mountains;

Your brother, my guide,
Soon left me, to feast on the myrtles

That offered, each side,
Their fruit-balls, black, glossy and luscious,—

Or strip from the sorbs

A treasure, or, rosy and wondrous,
Those hairy gold orbs!

But my mule picked his sober path out,
Just stopping to neigh

When he recognized down in the valley
His mates on their way

With the faggots and barrels of water;
And soon we emerged

From the plain, where the woods could scarce follow;

And still as we urged
Our way, the woods wondered, and left us,

As up still we trudged
Though the wild path grew wilder each instant,

And place was e'en grudged

'Mid the rock-chasms and piles of loose
stones

Like the loose broken teeth
Of some monster which climbed there to

die
From the ocean beneath—

Place was grudged to the silver-grey fumeweed

That clung to the path,
And dark rosemary ever a-dying

That, 'spite the wind's wrath,
So loves the salt rock's face to seaward,

And lentisks as staunch
To the stone where they root and bear berries,

And . . . what shows a branch

Coral-coloured, transparent, with circlets
Of pale seagreen leaves;

Over all trod my mule with the caution
Of gleaners o'er sheaves,

Still, foot after foot like a lady,
Till, round after round,

He climbed to the top of Calvano,
And God's own profound

'Was above me, and round me the mountains,

And under, the sea,
And within me my heart to bear witness

What was and shall be.
Oh, heaven and the terrible crystal!

No rampart excludes
Your eye from the life to be lived

In the blue solitudes.

Oh, those mountains, their infinite movement!
 Still moving with you;
 For, ever some new head and breast of them
 Thrusts into view
 To observe the intruder; you see it
 If quickly you turn
 And, before they escape you surprise them.
 They grudge you should learn
 How the soft plains they look on, lean over
 And love (they pretend)
 —Cower beneath them, the flat sea-pine crouches,
 The wild fruit-trees bend,
 E'en the myrtle-leaves curl, shrink and shut:
 All is silent and grave:
 'Tis a sensual and timorous beauty,
 How fair! but a slave.
 So, I turned to the sea; and there slumbered
 As greenly as ever
 Those isles of the siren, your Galli;
 No ages can sever
 The Three, nor enable their sister
 To join them,—halfway
 On the voyage, she looked at Ulysses—
 No farther to-day,
 Tho' the small one, just launched in the wave,
 Watches breast-high and steady
 From under the rock, her bold sister
 Swum halfway already.
 Fortù, shall we sail there together
 And see from the sides
 Quite new rocks show their faces, new haunts
 Where the siren abides?
 Shall we sail round and round them, close over
 The rocks, tho' unseen,
 That ruffle the grey glassy water
 To glorious green?
 Then scramble from splinter to splinter,
 Reach land and explore,
 On the largest, the strange square black turret
 With never a door,
 Just a loop to admit the quick lizards;
 Then, stand there and hear
 The birds' quiet singing, that tells us
 What life is, so clear?
 —The secret they sang to Ulysses
 When, ages ago,
 He heard and he knew this life's secret
 I hear and I know.
 Ah, see! The sun breaks o'er Calvano;
 He strikes the great gloom
 And flutters it o'er the mount's summit
 In airy gold fume.

All is over. Look out, see the gipsy,
 Our tinker and smith,
 Has arrived, set up bellows and forge,
 And down-squatted forthwith
 To his hammering, under the wall there;
 One eye keeps aloof
 The urchins that itch to be putting His jews'-harps to proof,
 While the other, thro' locks of curled wire,
 Is watching how sleek Shines the hog, come to share in the wind-fall
 —Chew, abbot's own cheek!
 All is over. Wake up and come out now,
 And down let us go,
 And see the fine things got in order
 At church for the show
 Of the Sacrament, set forth this evening.
 To-morrow's the Feast
 Of the Rosary's Virgin, by no means Of Virgins the least,
 As you'll hear in the off-hand discourse
 Which (all nature, no art)
 The Dominican brother, these three weeks,
 Was getting by heart,
 Not a pillar nor post but is dizen'd
 With red and blue papers;
 All the roof waves with ribbons, each altar
 A-blaze with long tapers;
 But the great masterpiece is the scaffold Rigged glorious to hold
 All the fiddlers and fifers and drummers
 And trumpeters bold,
 Not afraid of Bellini nor Auber,
 Who, when the priest's hoarse,
 Will strike us up something that's brisk
 For the feast's second course.
 And then will the flaxen-wigged Image
 Be carried in pomp
 Thro' the plain, while in gallant procession
 The priests mean to stomp.
 All round the glad church lie old bottles
 With gunpowder stopped,
 Which will be, when the Image re-enters,
 Religiously popped;
 And at night from the crest of Calvano
 Great bonfires will hang,
 On the plain will the trumpets join chorus,
 And more poppers bang.
 At all events, come—to the garden
 As far as the wall;
 See me tap with a hoe on the plaster
 Till out there shall fall
 A scorpion with wide angry nippers!
 —'Such trifles!' you say?
 Fortù, in my England at home,
 Men meet gravely to-day
 And debate, if abolishing Corn-laws
 Be righteous and wise
 —If 'twere proper, Scirocco should vanish
 In black from the skies!

IN A GONDOLA

IN A GONDOLA

He sings.

I SEND my heart up to thee, all my heart
In this my singing.
For the stars help me, and the sea bears
part;
The very night is clinging Closer to Venice' streets to leave one space
Above me, whence thy face May light my joyous heart to thee its dwelling-place.

She speaks.

Say after me, and try to say
My very words, as if each word
Came from you of your own accord,
In your own voice, in your own way:
'This woman's heart and soul and brain
'Are mine as much as this gold chain
'She bids me wear; which' (say again)
'I choose to make by cherishing
'A precious thing, or choose to fling
'Over the boat-side, ring by ring.'
And yet once more say . . . no word more Since words are only words. Give o'er!

Unless you call me, all the same,
Familiarly by my pet name,
Which if the Three should hear you call,
And me reply to, would proclaim
At once our secret to them all.
Ask of me, too, command me, blame—
Do, break down the partition-wall
'Twixt us, the daylight world beholds
Curtained in dusk and splendid folds!
What's left but—all of me to take?
I am the Three's: prevent them, slake
Your thirst! 'Tis said, the Arab sage,
In practising with gems, can loose
Their subtle spirit in his cruce
And leave but ashes: so, sweet mage,
Leave the n my ashes when thy use
Sucks out my soul, thy heritage!

He sings.

I

Past we glide, and past, and past!
What's that poor Agnese doing
Where they make the shutters fast?
Grey Zanobi's just a-wooing
To his couch the purchased bride:
Past we glide!

II

Past we glide, and past, and past!
Why's the Pucci Palace flaring
Like a beacon to the blast?
Guests by hundreds, not one caring
If the dear host's neck were wried:
Past we glide!

She sings.

I

The moth's kiss, first!
Kiss me as if you made believe
You were not sure, this eve,
How, my face, your flower, had pursed
Its petals up; so, here and there
You brush it, till I grow aware
Who wants me, and wide ope I burst.

II

The bee's kiss, now!
Kiss me as if you entered gay
My heart at some noonday,
A bud that dares not disallow
The claim, so all is rendered up,
And passively its shattered cup
Over your head to sleep I bow.

He sings.

I

What are we two?
I am a Jew,
And carry thee, farther than friends can pursue,
To a feast of our tribe;
Where they need thee to bribe
The devil that blasts them unless he imbibe Thy . . . Scatter the vision for ever! And
now,
As of old, I am I, thou art thou!

II

Say again, what we are?
The sprite of a star,
I lure thee above where the destinies bar
My plumes their full play
Till a ruddier ray
Than my pale one announce there is withering away
Some . . . Scatter the vision for ever! And
now,
As of old, I am I, thou art thou!

He muses.

Oh, which were best, to roam or rest?
The land's lap or the water's breast?
To sleep on yellow millet-sheaves,
Or swim in lucid shallows just Eluding water-lily leaves,
An inch from Death's black fingers, thrust
To lock you, whom release he must;
Which life were best on Summer eves?

He speaks, musing.

Lie back; could thought of mine improve
you?
From this shoulder let there spring
A wing; from this, another wing;
Wings, not legs and feet, shall move you!
Snow-white must they spring, to blend
With your flesh, but I intend
They shall deepen to the end,

Broader, into burning gold,
Till both wings crescent-wise enfold
Your perfect self, from 'neath your feet
To o'er your head, where, lo, they meet
As if a million sword-blades hurled Defiance from you to the world!

Rescue me thou, the only real!
And scare away this mad ideal
That came, nor motions to depart!
Thanks! Now, stay ever as thou art!

Still he muses.

I

What if the Three should catch at last Thy serenader? While there's cast
Paul's cloak about my head, and fast
Gian pinions me, Himself has past
His stylet thro' my back; I reel;
And . . . is it thou I feel?

II

They trail me, these three godless knaves,
Past every church that saints and saves,
Nor stop till, where the cold sea raves
By Lido's wet accursed graves,
They scoop mine, roll me to its brink,
And . . . on thy breast I sink!

She replies, musing.

Dip your arm o'er the boat-side, elbow-deep,
As I do: thus: were death so unlike sleep, Caught this way? Death's to fear from flame or steel,
Or poison doubtless; but from water—
feel!
Go find the bottom! Would you stay me?
There!
Now pluck a great blade of that ribbon-
grass
To plait in where the foolish jewel was,
I flung away: since you have praised my hair,
'Tis proper to be choice in what I wear.

He speaks.

Row home? must we row home? Too surely
Know I where its front's demurely
Over the Giudecca piled;
Window just with window mating,
Door on door exactly waiting,
All's the set face of a child:
But behind it, where's a trace
Of the staidness and reserve,
And formal lines without a curve,
In the same child's playing-face?
No two windows look one way
O'er the small sea-water thread
Below them. Ah, the autumn day
I, passing, saw you overhead!

First, out a cloud of curtain blew,
Then a sweet cry, and last came you—
To catch your lory that must needs
Escape just then, of all times then,
To peck a tall plant's fleecy seeds,
And make me happiest of men.
I scarce could breathe to see you reach
So far back o'er the balcony
To catch him ere he climbed too high Above you in the Smyrna peach
That quick the round smooth cord of gold,
This coiled hair on your head, unrolled,
Fell down you like a gorgeous snake
The Roman girls were wont, of old,
When Rome there was, for coolness' sake
To let lie curling o'er their bosoms.
Dear lory, may his beak retain Ever its delicate rose stain
As if the wounded lotus-blossoms
Had marked their thief to know again!

Stay longer yet, for other's sake Than mine! What should your chamber
do?

—With all its rarities that ache
In silence while day lasts, but wake
At night-time and their life renew,
Suspended just to pleasure you
Who brought against their will together
These objects, and, while day lasts, weave Around them such a magic tatter That dumb they look; your harp, believe,

With all the sensitive tight strings
Which dare not speak, now to itself
Breathes slumberously, as if some elf
Went in and out the chords, his wings
Make murmur wheresoe'er they graze,
As an angel may, between the maze
Of midnight palace-pillars, on
And on, to sow God's plagues, have gone Through guilty glorious Babylon.
And while such murmurs flow, the nymph
Bends o'er the harp-top from her shell
As the dry limpet for the lymph
Come with a tune he knows so well.
And how your statues' hearts must swell!
And how your pictures must descend
To see each other, friend with friend!
Oh, could you take them by surprise,
You'd find Schidone's eager Duke
Doing the quaintest courtesies
To that prim saint by Haste-thee-Luke
And, deeper into her rock den,
Bold Castelfranco's Magdalen
You'd find retreated from the ken
Of that robed counsel-keeping Ser—
As if the Tizian thinks of her,
And is not, rather, gravely bent
On seeing for himself what toys
Are these, his progeny invent,
What litter now the board employs Whereon he signed a document
That got him murdered! Each enjoys

IN A GONDOLA

Its night so well, you cannot break
The sport up, so, indeed must make More stay with me, for others' sake.

She speaks.

I

To-morrow, if a harp-string, say,
Is used to tie the jasmine back
That overfloods my room with sweets, Contrive your Zorzi somehow meets
My Zanze! If the ribbon's black,
The Three are watching: keep away!

II

Your gondola—let Zorzi wreath
A mesh of water-weeds about
Its prow, as if he unaware Had struck some quay or bridge-foot stair!

That I may throw a paper out
As you and he go underneath.

There's Zanze's vigilant taper; safe are we.
Only one minute more to-night with me?
Resume your past self of a month ago!
Be you the bashful gallant, I will be
The lady with the colder breast than snow.
Now bow you, as becomes, nor touch my
hand

More than I touch yours when I step to land, 'All thanks, Siora!'

And say, 'Heart to heart And lips to lips! Yet once more, ere we
part,
Clasp me and make me thine, as mine thou
art!

He is surprised, and stabbed.

It was ordained to be so, sweet!—and
best

Comes now, beneath thine eyes, upon thy
breast.

Still kiss me! Care not for the cowards!
Care

Only to put aside thy beauteous hair
My blood will hurt! The Three, I do not scorn

To death, because they never lived: but I Have lived indeed, and so—(yet one more kiss)—can die!

WARING

I

I

WHAT'S become of Waring
Since he gave us all the slip,
Chose land-travel or seafaring,
Boots and chest or staff and scrip,
Rather than pace up and down
Any longer London town?

II

Who'd have guessed it from his lip
Or his brow's accustomed bearing,
On the night he thus took ship
Or started landward?—little caring
For us, it seems, who supped together (Friends of his too, I remember)
And walked home thro' the merry weather,
The snowiest in all December.
I left his arm that night myself
For what's-his-name's, the new prose-poet

Who wrote the book there, on the shelf—
How, forsooth, was I to know it
If Waring meant to glide away
Like a ghost at break of day?
Never looked he half so gay!

III

He was prouder than the devil:
How he must have cursed our revel!
'Ay and many other meetings,
Indoor visits, outdoor greetings,
As up and down he paced this London,
With no work done, but great works un-
done,

Where scarce twenty knew his name.
Why not, then, have earlier spoken,
Written, bustled? Who's to blame
If your silence kept unbroken?
'True, but there were sundry jottings,
'Stray-leaves, fragments, blurs and blottings,

'Certain first steps were achieved
'Already which'—(is that your meaning?)
'Had well borne out who'er believed 'In more to come!' But who goes glean-
ing
Hedge-side chance-blades, while fullsheaved

Stand cornfields by him? Pride, o'erween-
ing

Pride alone, puts forth such claims
O'er the day's distinguished names.

IV

Meantime, how much I loved him,
I find out now I've lost him.
I who cared not if I moved him,
Who could so carelessly accost him,
Henceforth never shall get free
Of his ghostly company,
His eyes that just a little wink
As deep I go into the merit
Of this and that distinguished spirit—
His cheeks' raised colour, soon to sink,
As long I dwell on some stupendous
And tremendous (Heaven defend us!)
'Monstr'-inform'-ingens-horrend-ous
Demoniac-seraphic
Penman's latest piece of graphic.
Nay, my very wrist grows warm
With his dragging weight of arm.

E'en so, swimmingly appears,
Through one's after-supper musings,
Some lost lady of old years
With her beauteous vain endeavour
And goodness unrepaid as ever;
The face, accustomed to refusings,
We, puppies that we were . . . Oh never Surely, nice of conscience, scrupled Being aught like false, forsooth, to?
Telling aught but honest truth to?
What a sin, had we centupled
Its possessor's grace and sweetness!
No! she heard in its completeness
Truth, for truth's a weighty matter,
And truth, at issue, we can't flatter!
Well, 'tis done witf; she's exempt
From damning us thro' such a sally;
And so she glides, as down a valley,
Taking up with her contempt,
Past our reach; and in, the flowers Shut her unregarded hours.

v

Oh, could I have him back once more,
This Waring, but one half-day more!
Back, with the quiet face of yore,
So hungry for acknowledgment
Like mine! I'd fool him to his bent.
Feed, should not he, to heart's content?
I'd say, 'to only have conceived,
'Planned your great works, apart from progress,
'Surpasses little works achieved!'
I'd lie so, I should be believed.
I'd make such havoc of the claims
Of the day's distinguished names
To feast him with, as feasts an ogress
Her feverish sharp-toothed gold-crowned
child!

Or as one feasts a creature rarely Captured here, unreconciled
To capture; and completely gives
Its pettish humours license, barely Requiring that it lives.

vi

Ichabod, Ichabod,
The glory is departed!
Travels Waring East away?
Who, of knowledge, by hearsay,
Reports a man upstart
Somewhere as a god,
Hordes grown European-hearted,
Millions of the wild made tame
On a sudden at his fame?
In Vishnu-land what Avatar?
Or who in Moscow, toward the Czar,
With the demurest of footfalls
Over the Kremlin's pavement bright
With serpentine and syenite,
Steps, with five other Generals
That simultaneously take snuff,
For each to have pretext enough
And kerchiefwise unfold his sash
Which, softness' self, is yet the stuff

To hold fast where a steel chain snaps,
And leave the grand white neck no gash?
Waring in Moscow, to those rough Cold northern natures borne perhaps,
Like the lambwhite maiden dear
From the circle of mute kings
Unable to repress the tear,
Each as his sceptre down he flings,
To Dian's fane at Taurica, Where now a captive priestess, she alway
Mingles her tender grave Hellenic speech
With theirs, tuned to the hailstone-beaten beach:
As pours some pigeon, from the myrrhy
lands
Rapt by the whirlblast to fierce Scythian strands
Where breed the swallows, her melodious
cry

Amid their barbarous twitter!
In Russia? Never! Spain were fitter!
Ay, most likely 'tis in Spain
That we and Waring meet again
Now, while he turns down that cool narrow lane
Into the blackness, out of grave Madrid
All fire and shine, abrupt as when there's slid
Its stiff gold blazing pall
From some black coffin-lid.
Or, best of all,
I love to think
The leaving us was just a feint;
Back here to London did he sink,
And now works on without a wink
Of sleep, and we are on the brink
Of something great in fresco-paint:
Some garret's ceiling, walls and floor,
Up and down and o'er and o'er
He splashes, as none splashed before Since great Caldara Polidore.
Or Music means this land of ours
Some favour yet, to pity won
By Purcell from his Rosy Bowlers,—
'Give me my so-long promised son,
'Let Waring end what I begun!'
Then down he creeps and out he steals
Only when the night conceals
His face; in Kent 'tis cherry-time,
Or hops are picking: or at prime
Of March he wanders as, too happy,
Years ago when he was young,
Some mild eve when woods grew sappy
And the early moths had sprung
To life from many a trembling sheath
Woven the warm boughs beneath;
While small birds said to themselves
What should soon be actual song,
And young gnats, by tens and twelves
Made as if they were the throng
That crowd around and carry aloft
The sound they have nursed, so sweet and pure,

WARING

Out of a myriad noises soft,
 Into a tone that can endure
 Amid the noise of a July noon
 When all God's creatures crave their boon,
 All at once and all in tune,
 And get it, happy as Waring then,
 Having first within his ken
 What a man might do with men:
 And far too glad, in the even-glow,
 To mix with the world he meant to take Into his hand, he told you, so—
 And out of it his world to make,
 To contract and to expand
 As he shut or oped his hand.
 Oh Waring, what's to really be?
 A clear stage and a crowd to see!
 Some Garrick, say, out shall not he
 The heart of Hamlet's mystery pluck?
 Or, where most unclean beasts are rife,
 Some Junius—am I right?—shall tuck
 His sleeve, and forth with flaying-knife!
 Some Chatterton shall have the luck
 Of calling Rowley into life!
 Some one shall somehow run a muck
 With this old world, for want of strife
 Sound asleep. Contrive, contrive
 To rouse us, Waring! Who's alive?
 Our men scarce seem in earnest now.
 Distinguished names!—but 'tis, some-
 how,
 As if they played at being names
 Still more distinguished, like the games
 Of children. Turn our sport to earnest
 With a visage of the sternest!
 Bring the real times back, confessed
 Still better than our very best!

II

I

'WHEN I last saw Waring . . .' (How all turned to him, who spoke!
 You saw Waring? Truth or joke?
 In land-travel or sea-faring?)

II

'We were sailing by Triest
 'Where a day or two we harboured:
 'A sunset was in the West,
 'When, looking over the vessel's side,
 'One of our company espied
 'A sudden speck to larboard.
 'And as a sea-duck flies and swims
 'At once, so came the light craft up,
 'With its sole lateen sail that trims
 'And turns (the water round its rims 'Dancing, as round a sinking cup)
 'And by us like a fish it curled,
 'And drew itself up close beside,
 'Its great sail on the instant furled,
 'And o'er its thwarts a shrill voice cried,
 '(A neck as bronzed as a Lascar's)
 '"Buy wine of us, you English Brig?
 '"Or fruit, tobacco and cigars?

"A pilot for you to Triest?
 "Without one, look you ne'er so big,
 "They'll never let you up the bay!
 "We natives should know best."
 'I turned, and "just those fellows' way,"
 'Our captain said, "The 'long-shore thieves
 "Are laughing at us in their sleeves."

III

'In truth, the boy leaned laughing back;
 'And one, half-hidden by his side
 'Under the furled sail, soon I spied,
 'With great grass hat and kerchief black,
 'Who looked up with his kingly throat,
 'Said somewhat, while the other shook
 'His hair back from his eyes to look
 'Their longest at us; then the boat,
 'I know not how, turned sharply round,
 'Laying her whole side on the sea
 'As a leaping fish does; from the lee
 'Into the weather, cut somehow 'Her sparkling path beneath our bow
 'And so went off, as with a bound,
 'Into the rosy and golden half
 'O' the sky, to overtake the sun
 'And reach the shore, like the sea-calf
 'Its singing cave; yet I caught one
 'Glance ere away the boat quite passed,
 'And neither time nor toil could mar
 'Those features: so I saw the last
 'Of Waring!—You? Oh, never star
 Was lost here but it rose afar!
 Look East, where whole new thousands
 are!
 In Vishnu-land what Avatar?

THE TWINS

'Give' and 'It-shall-be-given-unto-you.'

I

GRAND rough old Martin Luther Bloomed fables—flowers on furze,
 The better the uncouth:
 Do roses stick like burrs?

II

A beggar asked an alms
 One day at an abbey-door,
 Said Luther; but, seized with qualms,
 The abbot replied, 'We're poor!

III

'Poor, who had plenty once,
 'When gifts fell thick as rain:
 'But they give us nought, for the nonce,
 'And how should we give again?'

IV

Then the beggar, 'See your sins!
 'Of old, unless I err,
 'Ye had brothers for inmates, twins,
 'Date and Dabitur.

V

'While Date was in good case
'Dabitur flourished too:
'For Dabitur's lenter face
'No wonder if Date rue.

VI

'Would ye retrieve the one?
'Try and make plump the other!
'When Date's penance is done,
'Dabitur helps his brother.

VII

'Only, beware relapse!
The Abbot hung his head.
This beggar might be perhaps
An angel, Luther said.

A LIGHT WOMAN

I

So far as our story approaches the end,
Which do you pity the most of us,
three?—
My friend, or the mistress of my friend
With her wanton eyes, or me?

II

My friend was already too good to lose,
And seemed in the way of improvement
yet,
When she crossed his path with her hunting-noose
And over him drew her net.

III

When I saw him tangled in her toils,
A shame, said I, if she adds just him
To her nine-and-ninety other spoils,
The hundredth for a whim!

IV

And before my friend be wholly hers,
How easy to prove to him, I said,
An eagle's the game her pride prefers,
Though she snaps at a wren instead!

V

So, I gave her eyes my own eyes to take,
My hand sought hers as in earnest need,
And round she turned for my noble sake,
And gave me herself indeed.

VI

The eagle am I, with my fame in the world,
The wren is he, with his maiden face.
—You look away and your lip is curled?
Patience, a moment's space!

For see, my friend goes shaking and white;
He eyes me as the basilisk:
I have turned, it appears, his day to night,
Eclipsing his sun's disk.

VIII

And I did it, he thinks, as a very thief:
'Though I love her—that, he compre-
hends—
'One should master one's passions, (love, in chief)
'And be loyal to one's friends!'

IX

And she,—she lies in my hand as tame
As a pear late basking over a wall;
Just a touch to try and off it came;
'Tis mine,—can I let it fall?

X

With no mind to eat it, that's the worst!
Were it thrown in the road, would the case assist?
'Twas quenching a dozen blue-flies' thirst
When I gave its stalk a twist.

XI

And I,—what I seem to my friend, you see:
What I soon shall seem to his love, you
guess:
What I seem to myself, do you ask of me?
No hero, I confess.

XII

'Tis an awkward thing to play with souls,
And matter enough to save one's own:
Yet think of my friend, and the burning coals
He played with for bits of stone!

XIII

One likes to show the truth for the truth;
That the woman was light is very true:
But suppose she says,—Never mind that
youth!
What wrong have I done to you?

XIV

Well, any how, here the story stays,
So far at least as I understand;
And, Robert Browning, you a writer of plays,
Here's a subject made to your hand!

THE LAST RIDE TOGETHER

I

I SAID—Then, dearest, since 'tis so,
Since now at length my fate I know,
Since nothing all my love avails,
Since all, my life seemed meant for, fails, Since this was written and needs must
be—
My whole heart rises up to bless
Your name in pride and thankfulness!
'Take back the hope you gave,—I claim
Only a memory of the same,
—And this beside, if you will not blame,
Your leave for one more last ride with
me.

THE LAST RIDE TOGETHER

II

My mistress bent that brow of hers;
Those deep dark eyes where pride demurs
When pity would be softening through,
Fixed me a breathing-while or two

With life or death in the balance: right!
The blood replenished me again;
My last thought was at least not vain:
I and my mistress, side by side
Shall be together, breathe and ride,
So, one day more am I deified.

Who knows but the world may end tonight?

III

Hush! if you saw some western cloud
All billowy-bosomed, over-bowed
By many benedictions—sun's
And moon's and evening-star's at once—

And so, you, looking and loving best,
Conscious grew, your passion drew Cloud, sunset, moonrise, star-shine too,
Down on you, near and yet more near,
Till flesh must fade for heaven was here!—
Thus leant she and lingered—joy and fear!

Thus lay she a moment on my breast.

IV

Then we began to ride. My soul
Smoothed itself out, a long-cramped scroll Freshening and fluttering in the wind.
Past hopes already lay behind.

What need to strive with a life awry?
Had I said that, had I done this,
So might I gain, so might I miss.
Might she have loved me? just as well
She might have hated, who can tell!
Where had I been now if the worst befell?

And here we are riding, she and I.

V

Fail I alone, in words and deeds?
Why, all men strive and who succeeds?
We rode; it seemed my spirit flew,
Saw other regions, cities new,
As the world rushed by on either side.

I thought,—All labour, yet no less Bear up beneath their unsuccess.
Look at the end of work, contrast
The petty done, the undone vast,
This present of theirs with the hopeful
past!

I hoped she would love me; here we ride.

VI

What hand and brain went ever paired?
What heart alike conceived and dared?
What act proved all its thought had been?
What will but felt the fleshly screen?

We ride and I see her bosom heave.

There's many a crown for who can reach.
Ten lines, a statesman's life in each!
The flag stuck on a heap of bones,
A soldier's doing! what atones?
They scratch his name on the Abbey-
stones.

My riding is better, by their leave.

VII

What does it all mean, poet? Well,
Your brains beat into rhythm, you tell
What we felt only; you expressed
You hold things beautiful the best,
And pace them in rhyme so, side by side.
'Tis something, nay 'tis much: but then,
Have you yourself what's best for men?
Are you—poor, sick, old ere your time—
Nearer one whit your own sublime
Than we who never have turned a rhyme?
Sing, riding's a joy! For me, I ride.

VIII

And you, great sculptor—so, you gave
A score of years to Art, her slave,
And that's your Venus, whence we turn
To yonder girl that fords the burn!
You acquiesce, and shall I repine?
What, man of music, you grown grey
With notes and nothing else to say,
Is this your sole praise from a friend,
'Greatly his opera's strains intend,
'But in music we know how fashions end!'
I gave my youth; but we ride, in fine.

IX

Who knows what's fit for us? Had fate
Proposed bliss here should sublimiate
My being—had I signed the bond—
Still one must lead some life beyond,
Have a bliss to die with, dim-descried.
This foot once planted on the goal,
This glory-garland round my soul,
Could I descry such? Try and test!
I sink back shuddering from the quest.
Earth being so good, would heaven seem
best?
Now, heaven and she are beyond this ride.

And yet—she has not spoke so long!
What if heaven be that, fair and strong
At life's best, with our eyes upturned
Whither life's flower is first discerned,
We, fixed so, ever should so abide?
What if we still ride on, we two
With life for ever old yet new,
Changed not in kind but in degree,
The instant made eternity,—
And heaven just prove that I and she Ride, ride together, for ever ride?

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN;

A CHILD'S STORY

(Written for, and inscribed to, W. M. the Younger.)

I

HAMELIN Town's in Brunswick,
By famous Hanover city;
The river Weser, deep and wide,
Washes its wall on the southern side;
A pleasant spot you never spied;
But, when begins my ditty,
Almost five hundred years ago,
To see the townfolk suffer so
From vermin, was a pity.

II

Rats!
They fought the dogs and killed the cats,
And bit the babies in the cradles,
And ate the cheeses out of the vats,
And licked the soup from the cooks'
own ladles,
Split open the kegs of salted sprats,
Made nests inside men's Sunday hats,
And even spoiled the women's chats
By drowning their speaking
With shrieking and squeaking
In fifty different sharps and flats.

III

At last the people in a body
To the Town Hall came flocking:
'Tis clear,' cried they, 'our Mayor's a noddy;
'And as for our Corporation—shock-
ing
'To think we buy gowns lined with ermine
'For dolts that can't or won't determine
'What's best to rid us of our vermin!
'You hope, because you're old and obese,
'To find in the furry civic robe ease?
'Rouse up, sirs! Give your brains a rack-
ing
'To find the remedy we're lacking,
'Or, sure as fate, we'll send you packing!'
At this the Mayor and Corporation
Quaked with a mighty consternation.

IV

An hour they sat in council,
At length the Mayor broke silence:
'For a guildier I'd my ermine gown sell,
'I wish I were a mile hence!
'It's easy to bid one rack one's brain—
'I'm sure my poor head aches again,
'I've scratched it so, and all in vain.
'Oh for a trap, a trap, a trap!
Just as he said this, what should hap
At the chamber door but a gentle tap?
'Bless us,' cried the Mayor, 'what's that?'
(With the Corporation as he sat,
Looking little though wondrous fat;

Nor brighter was his eye, nor moister
Than a too-long-opened oyster, Save when at noon his paunch grew mutinous
For a plate of turtle green and glutinous)
'Only a scraping of shoes on the mat?
'Anything like the sound of a rat
'Makçs my heart go pit-a-pat!'

V

'Come in!'—the Mayor cried, looking bigger:
And in did come the strangest figure!
His queer long coat from heel to head
Was half of yellow and half of red,
And he himself was tall and thin,
With sharp blue eyes, each like a pin,
And light loose hair, yet swarthy skin,
No tuft on cheek nor beard on chin,
But lips where smiles went out and in;
There was no guessing his kith and kin:
And nobody could enough admire
The tall man and his quaint attire.
'Quoth one: 'It's as my great-grandsire,
'Starting up at the Trump of Doom's tone,
'Had walked this way from his painted tombstone!'

VI

He advanced to the council-table:
And, 'Please your honours,' said he, 'I'm able,
'By means of a secret charm, to draw
'All creatures living beneath the sun,
'That creep or swim or fly or run,
'After me so as you never saw!
'And I chiefly use my charm
'On creatures that do people harm,
'The mole and toad and newt and viper;
'And people call me the Pied Piper.'
(And here they noticed round his neck
A scarf of red and yellow stripe,
To match with his coat of the self-same cheque;
And at the scarf's end hung a pipe;
And his fingers, they noticed, were ever straying
As if impatient to be playing
Upon this pipe, as low it dangled Over his vesture so old-fangled.)
'Yet,' said he, 'poor piper as I am,
'In Tartary I freed the Cham,
'Last June, from his huge swarms of gnats;
'I eased in Asia the Nizam
'Of a monstrous brood of vampyre-bats:
'And as for what your brain bewilders,
'If I can rid your town of rats
'Will you give me a thousand guilders?'
'One? fifty thousand!'—was the exclamation
Of the astonished Mayor and Corporation.

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN

VII

Into the street the Piper stept,
Smiling first a little smile,
As if he knew what magic slept
In his quiet pipe the while;
Then, like a musical adept,
To blow the pipe his lips he wrinkled,
And green and blue his sharp eyes twinkled,
Like a candle-flame where salt is sprinkled;
And ere three shrill notes the pipe uttered,
You heard as if an army muttered;
And the muttering grew to a grumbling;
And the grumbling grew to a mighty rumbling;
And out of the houses the rats came tumbling.
Great rats, small rats, lean rats, brawny
rats,
Brown rats, black rats, grey rats, tawny
rats,
Grave old plodders, gay young friskers,
Fathers, mothers, uncles, cousins,
Cocking tails and pricking whiskers,
Families by tens and dozens,
Brothers, sisters, husbands, wives—
Followed the Piper for their lives,
From street to street he piped advancing,
And step for step they followed dancing,
Until they came to the river Weser,
Wherein all plunged and perished!
Save one who, stout as Julius Cæsar,
Swam across and lived to carry
(As he, the manuscript he cherished)
To Rat-land home his commentary:
Which was, 'At the first shrill notes of the pipe,
'I heard a sound as of scraping tripe,
'And putting apples, wondrous ripe,
'Into a cider-press's gripe:
'And a moving away of pickle-tub-boards,
'And a leaving ajar of conserve-cupboards,
'And a drawing the corks of train-oilflasks,
'And a breaking the hoops of butter-casks:
'And it seemed as if a voice
'(Sweeter far than by harp or by psaltery
'Is breathed) called out, "Oh rats, rejoice!"
'"The world is grown to one vast dry-saltery!"
'"So munch on, crunch on, take your nuncheon,
'"Breakfast, supper, dinner, luncheon!"
'And just as a bulky sugar-puncheon,
'All ready staved, like a great sun shone
'Glorious scarce an inch before me,
'Just as methought it said, "Come, bore
me!"
'—I found the Weser rolling o'er me.'

VIII

You should have heard the Hamelin
people
Ringing the bells till they rocked the steeples.

'Go,' cried the Mayor, 'and get long poles,
'Poke out the nests and block up the holes!
'Consult with carpenters and builders,
'And leave in our town not even a trace
'Of the rats!'—when suddenly, up the
face
Of the Piper perked in the market-place,
With a, 'First, if you please, my thousand guilders!'

IX

A thousand guilders! The Mayor looked
blue;
So did the Corporation too.
For council dinners made rare havoc
With Claret, Moselle, Vin-de-Grave, Hock;
And half the money would replenish
Their cellar's biggest butt with Rhenish.
To pay this sum to a wandering fellow
With a gipsy coat of red and yellow!
'Beside,' quoth the Mayor with a knowing wink,
'Our business was done at the river's brink;
'We saw with our eyes the vermin sink,
'And what's dead can't come to life, I
think.
'So, friend, we're not the folks to shrink
'From the duty of giving you something for drink,
'And a matter of money to put in your poke;
'But as for the guilders, what we spoke
'Of them, as you very well know, was in joke.
'Beside, our losses have made us thrifty.
'A thousand guilders! Come, take fifty!'

X

The Piper's face fell, and he cried
'No trifling! I can't wait, beside!
'I've promised to visit by dinnertime
'Bagdat, and accept the prime 'Of the Head-Cook's pottage, all he's rich in,
'For having left, in the Caliph's kitchen,
'Of a nest of scorpions no survivor:
'With him I proved no bargain-driver,
'With you, don't think I'll bate a trace!
'And folks who put me in a passion
'May find me pipe after another fashion.'

XI

'How?' cried the Mayor, 'd'ye think I brook
'Being worse treated than a Cook?
'Insulted by a lazy ribald
'With idle pipe and vesture piebald?
'You threaten us, fellow? Do your worst,
'Blow your pipe there till you burst!'

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN

XII

Once more he stept into the street
 And to his lips again
 Laid his long pipe of smooth straight cane;
 And ere he blew three notes (such sweet Soft notes as yet musician's cunning Never gave the enraptured air)
 There was a rustling that seemed like a bustling
 Of merry crowds justling at pitching and hustling,
 Small feet were pattering, wooden shoes
 clattering,
 Little hands clapping and little tongues chattering,
 And, like fowls in a farm-yard when barley is scattering,
 Out came the children running.
 All the little boys and girls,
 With rosy cheeks and flaxen curls,
 And sparkling eyes and teeth like pearls, Tripping and skipping, ran merrily after The wonderful music with shouting and laughter.

XIII

The Mayor was dumb, and the Council
 stood
 As if they were changed into blocks of wood,
 Unable to move a step, or cry
 To the children merrily skipping by,
 —Could only follow with the eye
 That joyous crowd at the Piper's back.
 But how the Mayor was on the rack,
 And the wretched Council's bosoms beat,
 As the Piper turned from the High
 Street
 To where the Weser rolled its waters Right in the way of their sons and daughters!
 However he turned from South to West,
 And to Koppelberg Hill his steps addressed,
 And after him the children pressed;
 Great was the joy in every breast.
 'He never can cross that mighty top!
 'He's forced to let the piping drop,
 'And we shall see our children stop!'— When, lo, as they reached the mountain-
 side,
 A wondrous portal opened wide,
 As if a cavern was suddenly hollowed;
 And the Piper advanced and the childreil followed,
 And when all were in to the very last,
 The door in the mountain-side shut fast.
 Did I say, all? No! One was lame, And could not dance the whole of the
 way;
 And in after years, if you would blame
 His sadness, he was used to say,—

'It's dull in our town since my playmates
 left!
 'I can't forget that I'm bereft
 'Of all the pleasant sights they see,
 'Which the Piper also promised me.
 'For he led us, he said, to a joyous land,
 'Joining the town and just at hand,
 'Where waters gushed and fruit-trees grew
 'And flowers put forth a fairer hue,
 'And everything was strange and new;
 'The sparrows were brighter than peacocks here,
 'And their dogs outran our fallow deer,
 'And honey-bees had lost their stings,
 'And horses were born with eagles' wings:
 'And just as I became assured
 'My lame foot would be speedily cured,
 'The music stopped and I stood still,
 'And found myself outside the hill,
 'Left alone against my will,
 'To go now limping as before,
 'And never hear of that country more!'

XIV

Alas, alas for Hamelin!
 There came into many a burgher's pate
 A text which says that heaven's gate
 Opes to the rich at as easy rate
 As the needle's eye takes a camel in!
 The mayor sent East, West, North and South,
 To offer the Piper, by word of mouth,
 Wherever it was men's lot to find him,
 Silver and gold to his heart's content,
 If he'd only return the way he went,
 And bring the children behind him.
 But when they saw 'twas a lost endeavour,
 And Piper and dancers were gone for ever,
 They made a decree that lawyers never Should think their records dated duly
 If, after the day of the month and year,
 These words did not as well appear,
 'And so long after what happened here
 'On the Twenty-second of July,
 'Thirteen hundred and seventy-six:'
 And the better in memory to fix
 The place of the children's last retreat,
 They called it, the Pied Piper's Street—Where any one playing on pipe or tabor
 Was sure for the future to lose his labour.
 Nor suffered they hostelry or tavern
 To shock with mirth a street so solemn;
 But opposite the place of the cavern
 They wrote the story on a column,
 And on the great church-window painted
 The same, to make the world acquainted
 How their children were stolen away,
 And there it stands to this very day.
 And I must not omit to say
 That in Transylvania there's a tribe
 Of alien people who ascribe
 The outlandish ways and dress
 On which their neighbours lay such stress,

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN

To their fathers and mothers having risen
Out of some subterraneous prison
Into which they were trepanned
Long time ago in a mighty band
Out of Hamelin town in Brunswick land,
But how or why, they don't understand.

xv

So, Willy, let me and you be wipers
Of scores out with all men—especially pipers!
And, whether they pipe us free from rats or from mice,
If we've promised them aught, let us keep our promise!

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

I

You'RE my friend:
I was the man the Duke spoke to;
I helped the Duchess to cast off his yoke,
too;
So here's the tale from beginning to end,
My friend!

II

Ours is a great wild country:
If you climb to our castle's top,
I don't see where your eye can stop;
For when you've passed the cornfield country,
Where vineyards leave off, flocks are packed,
And sheep-range leads to cattle-tract,
And cattle-tract to open-chase,
And open-chase to the very base
Of the mountain where, at a funeral pace,
Round about, solemn and slow,
One by one, row after row,
Up and up the pine-trees go,
So, like black priests up, and so
Down the other side again
To another greater, wilder country,
That's one vast red drear burnt-up plain, Branched through and through with many a vein
Whence iron's dug, and copper's dealt;
Look right, look left, look straight
before,— Beneath they mine, above they smelt,
Copper-ore and iron-ore,
And forge and furnace mould and melt,
And so on, more and ever more,
Till at the last, for a bounding belt,
Comes the salt sand hoar of the great sea-shore,
—And the whole is our Duke's country.

III

I was born the day this present Duke was—
(And O, says the song, ere I was old!)
In the castle where the other Duke was—(When I was happy and young, not old!)

I in the kennel, he in the bower:
We are of like age to an hour.
My father was huntsman in that day;
Who has not heard my father say
That, when a boar was brought to bay,
Three times, four times out of five,
With his huntspear he'd contrive
To get the killing-place transfixed,
And pin him true, both eyes betwixt?
And that's why the old Duke would rather
He lost a salt-pit than my father,
And loved to have him ever in call;
That's why my father stood in the hall
When the old Duke brought his infant out To show the people, and while they passed

The wondrous bantling round about,
Was first to start at the outside blast
As the Kaiser's courier blew his horn
Just a month after the babe was born.
'And,' quoth the Kaiser's courier, 'since
'The Duke has got an heir, our Prince
'Needs the Duke's self at his side.' The Duke looked down and seemed to
wince,
But he thought of wars o'er the world
wide,

Castles a-fire, men on their march,
The toppling tower, the crashing arch;
And up he looked, and awhile he eyed
The row of crests and shields and banners
Of all achievements after all manners,
And 'ay,' said the Duke with a surly
pride.

The more was his comfort when he died
At next year's end, in a velvet suit,
With a gilt glove on his hand, his foot
In a silken shoe for a leather boot,
Petticoated like a herald,
In a chamber next to an ante-room,
Where he breathed the breath of page
and groom,

What he called stink, and they, perfume:
—They should have set him on red Berold
Mad with pride, like fire to manage!
They should have got his cheek fresh tannage

Such a day as to-day in the merry sunshine!

Had they stuck on his fist a rough-foot merlin!

(Hark, the wind's on the heath at its game!
Oh for a noble falcon-lanner
To flap each broad wing like a banner,
And turn in the wind, and dance like
flame!)

Had they broached a white-beer cask from Berlin

—Or if you incline to prescribe mere wine
'Put to his lips, when they saw him pine,
A cup of our own Moldavia fine,
Cotnar for instance, green as May sorrel
And rosy with sweet,—we shall not quarrel.

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

IV

So, at home, the sick tall yellow Duchess
Was left with the infant in her clutches,
She being the daughter of God knows who:
And now was the time to revisit her
tribe.

Abroad and afar they went, the two,
And let our people rail and gibe
At the empty hall and extinguished fire,
As loud as we liked, but ever in vain,
Till after long years we had our desire,
And back came the Duke and his mother
again.

And he came back the pertest little ape
That ever affronted human shape;
Full of his travel, struck at himself.

You'd say, he despised our bluff old
ways?

—Not he! For in Paris they told the elf
Our rough North land was the Land of Lays,

The one good thing left in evil days;
Since the Mid-Age was the Heroic Time,
And only in wild nooks like ours
Could you taste of it yet as in its prime,
And see true castles, with proper towers,
Young-hearted women, old-minded men,
And manners now as manners were then.
So, all that the old Dukes had been, without knowing it,

This Duke would fain know he was,
without being it;

'Twas not for the joy's self, but the joy of his showing it,

Nor for the pride's self, but the pride of our seeing it,

He revived all usages thoroughly worn-
out,

The souls of them fumed-forth, the hearts of them torn-out:

And chief in the chase his neck he perilled
On a lathy horse, all legs and length,
With blood for bone, all speed, no
strength;

—They should have set him on red Berold
With the red eye slow consuming in fire,
And the thin stiff ear like an abbey-spire!

VI

Well, such as he was, he must marry, we
heard:

And out of a convent, at the word,
Came the lady, in time of spring.

—Oh, old thoughts they cling, they cling!
That day, I know, with a dozen oaths

I clad myself in thick hunting-clothes
Fit for the chase of urochs or buffle

In winter-time when you need to muffle.
But the Duke had a mind we should cut a figure,

And so we saw the lady arrive:

My friend, I have seen a white crane
bigger!

She was the smallest lady alive,
Made in a piece of nature's madness,
Too small, almost, for the life and gladness

That over-filled her, as some hive
Out of the bears' reach on the high trees
Is crowded with its safe merry bees:

In truth, she was not hard to please!
Up she looked, down she looked, round at the mead,

Straight at the castle, that's best indeed
To look at from outside the walls:

As for us, styled the 'serfs and thralls,' She as much thanked me as if she had said it,

(With her eyes, do you understand?)
Because I patted her horse while I led it;

And Max, who rode on her other hand,
Said, no bird flew past but she inquired What its true name was, nor ever seemed tired—

If that was an eagle she saw hover,
And the green and grey bird on the field was the plover.

When suddenly appeared the Duke:
And as down she sprung, the small foot pointed

On to my hand,—as with a rebuke,
And as if his backbone were not jointed,

The Duke stepped rather aside than forward,

And welcomed her with his grandest
smile;

And, mind you, his mother all the while Chilled in the rear, like a wind to Nor-
ward;

And up, like a weary yawn, with its pullies
Went, in a shriek, the rusty portcullis;

And, like a glad sky the north-wind sullies,
The lady's face stopped its play,

As if her first hair had grown grey;
For such things must begin some one day.

VII

In a day or two she was well again;
As who should say, 'You labour in vain!

'This is all a jest against God, who meant
'I should ever be, as I am, content

'And glad in his sight; therefore, glad I will be.'

So, smiling as at first went she.

VIII

She was active, stirring, all fire—
Could not rest, could not tire—

To a stone she might have given life!
(I myself loved once, in my day)

—For a shepherd's, miner's, huntsman's wife,

(I had a wife, I know what I say)
Never in all the world such an one!

And here was plenty to be done,
And she that could do it, great or small,

She was to do nothing at all.

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

There was already this man in his post,
This in his station, and that in his office,
And the Duke's plan admitted a wife, at
most,

To meet his eye, with the other trophies,
Now outside the hall, now in it,

To sit thus, stand thus, see and be seen,
At the proper place in the proper minute,
And die away the life between.

And it was amusing enough, each infraction

Of rule—(but for after-sadness that came)

To hear the consummate self-satisfaction

With which the young Duke and the old dame

Would let her advise, and criticise,
And, being a fool, instruct the wise,

And, child-like, parcel out praise or
blame:

They bore it all in complacent guise,
As though an artificer, after contriving
A wheel-work image as if it were living,
Should find with delight it could motion to strike him!

So found the Duke, and his mother like
him:

The lady hardly got a rebuff—
That had not been contemptuous enough,
With his cursed smirk, as he nodded
applause,

And kept off the old mother-cat's claws.

IX

So, the little lady grew silent and thin,
Paling and ever paling,

As the way is with a hid chagrin;
And the Duke perceived that she was ailing,

And said in his heart, 'Tis done to spite
me,

'But I shall find in my power to right me!' Don't swear, friend! The old one, many

a year,
Is in hell, and the Duke's self . . . you shall hear.

X

Well, early in autumn, at first winter-warning,

When the stag had to break with his foot,
of a morning,

A drinking-hole out of the fresh tender ice
That covered the pond till the sun, in a trice,

Loosening it, let out a ripple of gold,
And another and another, and faster and faster,

Till, dimpling to blindness, the wide water
rolled:

Then it so chanced that the Duke our master

Asked himself what were the pleasures in season,

And found, since the calendar bade him be hearty,

He should do the Middle Age no treason
In resolving on a hunting-party.

Always provided, old books showed the way of it!

What meant old poets by their strictures?

And when old poets had said their say of it,
How taught old painters in their pictures?

We must revert to the proper channels,
Workings in tapestry, paintings on panels,

And gather up woodcraft's authentic traditions:

Here was food for our various ambitions,
As on each case, exactly stated—

To encourage your dog, now, the pro-perest chirrup,

Or best prayer to Saint Hubert on mounting your stirrup—

We of the household took thought and debated.

Blessed was he whose back ached with the jerkin

His sire was wont to do forest-work in;
Blesseder he who nobly sunk 'ohs'

And 'ahs' while he tugged on his grand-sire's trunk-hose;

What signified hats if they had no rims on,
Each slouching before and behind like the scallop,

And able to serve at sea for a shallop,

Loaded with lacquer and looped with crimson?

So that the deer now, to make a short rhyme on't,

What with our Venerers, Prickers and Verderers,

Might hope for real hunters at length and not murderers,

And oh the Duke's tailor, he had a hot time on't!

XI

Now you must know that when the first dizziness

Of flap-hats and buff-coats and jack-boots subsided,

The Duke put this question, 'The Duke's part provided,

'Had not the Duchess some share in the business?'

For out of the mouth of two or three witnesses

Did he establish all fit-or-unfitnesses:
And, after much laying of heads together,

Somebody's cap got a notable feather
By the announcement with proper unction

That he had discovered the lady's function;

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

Since ancient authors gave this tenet,
 'When horns wind a mort and the deer is at siege,
 'Let the dame of the castle prick forth on her jennet,
 'And, with water to wash the hands of her liege
 'In a clean ewer with a fair toweling,
 'Let her preside at the disemboweling.'
 Now, my friend, if you had so little religion
 As to catch a hawk, some falcon-lanner,
 And thrust her broad wings like a banner
 Into a coop for a vulgar pigeon;
 And if day by day and week by week
 You cut her claws, and sealed her
 eyes,
 And clipped her wings, and tied her beak,
 Would it cause you any great surprise
 If, when you decided to give her an airing,
 You found she needed a little preparing?
 —I say, should you be such a curmudgeon,
 If she clung to the perch, as to take it in dudgeon?
 Yet when the Duke to his lady signified,
 Just a day before, as he judged most dignified,
 In what a pleasure she was to participate,—
 And, instead of leaping wide in flashes,
 Her eyes just lifted their long lashes,
 As if pressed by fatigue even he could not dissipate,
 And duly acknowledged the Duke's fore-
 thought,
 But spoke of her health, if her health were worth aught,
 Of the weight by day and the watch by
 night,
 And much wrong now that used to be
 right,
 So, thanking him, declined the hunting,—
 Was conduct ever more affronting?
 With all the ceremony settled—
 With the towel ready, and the sewer Polishing up his oldest ewer,
 And the jennet pitched upon, a piebald, Black-barred, cream-coated and pink eye-balled,—
 No wonder if the Duke was nettled!
 And when she persisted nevertheless,—
 Well, I suppose here's the time to confess That there ran half round our lady's chamber
 A balcony none of the hardest to clamber;
 And that Jacynth the tire-woman, ready in waiting,
 Stayed in call outside, what need of relating?
 And since Jacynth was like a June rose,
 why, a fervent Adorer of Jacynth of course was your servant;

And if she had the habit to peep through the casement,
 How could I keep at any vast distance?
 And so, as I say, on the lady's persistence,
 The Duke, dumb-stricken with amazement,
 Stood for a while in a sultry smother,
 And then, with a smile that partook of the awful,
 Turned her over to his yellow mother
 To learn what was held decorous and lawful;
 And the mother smelt blood with a cat-like instinct,
 As her cheek quick whitened thro' all its quince-tinct.
 Oh, but the lady heard the whole truth at
 once!
 What meant she?—Who was she?—
 Her duty and station,
 The wisdom of age and the folly of youth,
 at once,
 Its decent regard and its fitting relation—
 In brief, my friend, set all the devils in hell
 free
 And turn them out to carouse in a belfry
 And treat the priests to a fifty-part canon,
 And then you may guess how that tongue of hers ran on!
 Well, somehow or other it ended at last
 And, licking her whiskers, out she passed;
 And after her,—making (he hoped) a face
 Like Emperor Nero or Sultan Saladin, Stalked the Duke's self with the austere
 grace
 Of ancient hero or modern paladin,
 From door to staircase—oh such a solemn Unbending of the vertebral column!

xii

However, at sunrise our company mustered;
 And here was the huntsman bidding
 unkennel,
 And there 'neath his bonnet the pricker
 blustered,
 With feather dank as a bough of wet fennel;
 For the court-yard walls were filled with fog
 You might have cut as an axe chops a log—
 Like so much wool for colour and bulki-
 ness;
 And out rode the Duke in a perfect sulki-
 ness,
 Since, before breakfast, a man feels but queasily,
 And a sinking at the lower abdomen
 Begins the day with indifferent omen.
 And lo, as he looked around uneasily,
 The sun ploughed the fog up and drove it asunder
 This way and that from the valley under;

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

And, looking through the court-yard
arch,
Down in the valley, what should meet him
But a troop of Gipsies on their march?
No doubt with the annual gifts to greet
him.

xiii

Now, in your land, Gipsies reach you, only After reaching all lands beside;
North they go, South they go, trooping or lonely,
And still, as they travel far and wide,
Catch they and keep now a trace here, a trace there,
That puts you in mind of a place here, a place there.
But with us, I believe they rise out of the
ground,
And nowhere else, I take it, are found
With the earth-tint yet so freshly embrowned;
Born, no doubt, like insects which breed
on
The very fruit they are meant to feed on.
For the earth—not a use to which they don't turn it,
The ore that grows in the mountain's
womb,
Or the sand in the pits like a honeycomb,
They sift and soften it, bake it and burn
it—
Whether they weld you, for instance, a snaffle
With side-bars never a brute can baffle;
Or a lock that's a puzzle of wards within wards;
Or, if your colt's fore-foot inclines to curve inwards,
Horseshoes they hammer which turn on a swivel
And won't allow the hoof to shrivel.
Then they cast bells like the shell of the winkle
That keep a stout heart in the ram with their tinkle;
But the sand—they pinch and pound it like otters;
Commend me to Gipsy glass-makers and potters!
Glasses they'll blow you, crystal-clear, Where just a faint cloud of rose shall appear,
As if in pure water you dropped and let die
A bruised black-blooded mulberry;
And that other sort, their crowning pride,
With long white threads distinct inside,
Like the lake-flower's fibrous roots which dangle
Loose such a length and never tangle,
Where the bold sword-lily cuts the clear waters,
And the cup-lily couches with all the white daughters:

Such are the works they put their hand
to,
The uses they turn and twist iron and sand to.
And these made the troop, which our Duke saw sally
Toward his castle from out of the valley,
Men and women, like new-hatched
spiders,
Come out with the morning to greet our riders.
And up they wound till they reached the ditch,
Whereat all stopped save one, a witch
That I knew, as she hobbled from the group,
By her gait directly and her stoop,
I, whom Jacynth was used to importune
To let that same witch tell us our fortune.
The oldest Gipsy then above ground;
And, sure as the autumn season came
round,
She paid us a visit for profit or pastime,
And every time, as she swore, for the last
time.
And presently she was seen to sidle
Up to the Duke till she touched his bridle,
So that the horse of a sudden reared up
As under its nose the old witch peered up With her worn-out eyes, or rather eye-
holes
Of no use now but to gather brine,
And began a kind of level whine
Such as they used to sing to their viol
When their ditties they go grinding
Up and down with nobody minding:
And then, as of old, at the end of the humming
Her usual presents were forthcoming —A dog-whistle blowing the fiercest of trebles,
(Just a sea-shore stone holding a dozen fine pebbles,)
Or a porcelain mouth-piece to screw on a pipe-end,—
And so she awaited her annual stipend.
But this time, the Duke would scarcely vouchsafe
A word in reply; and in vain she felt
With twitching fingers at her belt
For the purse of sleek pine-martin pelt, Ready to put what he gave in her pouch
safe,—
Till, either to quicken his apprehension,
Or possibly with an after-intention,
She was come, she said, to pay her duty
To the new Duchess, the youthful beauty.
No sooner had she named his lady,
Than a shine lit up the face so shady,
And its smirk returned with a novel mean-
ing—
For it struck him, the babe just wanted weaning;

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

If one gave her a taste of what life was and
sorrow,
She, foolish to-day, would be wiser tomorrow;

And who so fit a teacher of trouble
As this sordid crone bent well-nigh double?

So, glancing at her wolf-skin vesture,
(If such it was, for they grow so hirsute
That their own fleece serves for natural fur-suit)

He was contrasting, 'twas plain from his gesture,

The life of the lady so flower-like and delicate

With the loathsome squalor of this helcat.
I, in brief, was the man the Duke beckoned From out of the throng, and while I drew near

He told the crone—as I since have reckoned

By the way he bent and spoke into her
ear

With circumspection and mystery—

The main of the lady's history,

Her frowardness and ingratitude:

And for all the crone's submissive attitude
I could see round her mouth the loose plaits tightening,

And her brow with assenting intelligence
brightening,

As though she engaged with hearty goodwill

Whatever he now might enjoin to fulfil,
And promised the lady a thorough frightening.

And so, just giving her a glimpse
Of a purse, with the air of a man who impes
The wing of the hawk that shall fetch the hernshaw,

He bade me take the Gipsy mother
And set her telling some story or other
Of hill or dale, oak-wood or fernshaw,

To wile away a weary hour
For the lady left alone in her bower,

Whose mind and body craved exertion
And yet shrank from all better diversion.

xiv

Then clapping heel to his horse, the mere curveter,

Out rode the Duke, and after his hollo Horses and hounds swept, huntsman and servitor,

And back I turned and bade the crone
follow.

And what makes me confident what's to be told you

Had all along been of this crone's devising,

Is, that, on looking round sharply, behold
you,

There was a novelty quick as surprising:

For first, she had shot up a full head in stature,

And her step kept pace with mine nor faltered,

As if age had foregone its usurpature,
And the ignoble mien was wholly altered,

And the face looked quite of another nature,

And the change reached too, whatever the change meant,

Her shaggy wolf-skin cloak's arrangement:

For where its tatters hung loose like sedges,

Gold coins were glittering on the edges,
Like the band-roll strung with tomons

Which proves the veil a Persian woman's:
And under her brow, like a snail's horns newly

Come out as after the rain he paces,

Two unmistakable eye-points duly Live and aware looked out of their places.

So, we went and found Jacynth at the entry
Of the lady's chamber standing sentry;

I told the command and produced my companion,

And Jacynth rejoiced to admit any one,
For since last night, by the same token,

Not a single word had the lady spoken:
They went in both to the presence together,

While I in the balcony watched the weather.

xv

And now, what took place at the very first
of all,

I cannot tell, as I never could learn it:
Jacynth constantly wished a curse to fall
On that little head of hers and burn it

If she knew how she came to drop so soundly

Asleep of a sudden and there continue
The whole time sleeping as profoundly

As one of the boars my father would pin you

'Twixt the eyes where life holds garrison,
—Jacynth forgive me the comparison!

But where I begin my own narration
Is a little after I took my station

To breathe the fresh air from the balcony,
And, having in those days a falcon eye,

To follow the hunt thro' the open country,
From where the bushes thinlier crested

The hillocks, to a plain where's not one
tree.

When, in a moment, my ear was arrested
By—was it singing, or was it saying,

Or a strange musical instrument playing
In the chamber?—and to be certain

I pushed the lattice, pulled the curtain,
And there lay Jacynth asleep,

Yet as if a watch she tried to keep,

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

In a rosy sleep along the floor
With her head against the door;
While in the midst, on the seat of state,
Was a queen—the Gipsy woman late,
With head and face downbent
On the lady's head and face intent:
For, coiled at her feet like a child at ease,
The lady sat between her knees
And o'er them the lady's clasped hands
met,

And on those hands her chin was set,
And her upturned face met the face of the crone

Wherein the eyes had grown and grown
As if she could double and quadruple
At pleasure the play of either pupil

—Very like, by her hands' slow fanning,
As up and down like a gor-crow's flappers
They moved to measure, or bell-clappers.

I said 'Is it blessing, is it banning,
'Do they applaud you or burlesque you—
'Those hands and fingers with no flesh
on?'

But, just as I thought to spring in to the rescue,

At once I was stopped by the lady's expression:

For it was life her eyes were drinking
From the crone's wide pair above unwink-
ing,

—Life's pure fire received without shrink-
ing,

Into the heart and breast whose heaving
Told you no single drop they were leaving,

—Life, that filling her, passed redundant
Into her very hair, back swerving

Over each shoulder, loose and abundant, As her head thrown back showed the white throat curving;

And the very tresses shared in the pleasure,
Moving to the mystic measure,
Bounding as the bosom bounded.

I stopped short, more and more confounded,

As still her cheeks burned and eyes glis-tened,

As she listened and she listened:
When all at once a hand detained me,
The selfsame contagion gained me,
And I kept time to the wondrous chime,
Making out words and prose and rhyme,
Till it seemed that the music furled

Its wings like a task fulfilled, and dropped

From under the words it first had propped,

And left them midway in the world:
Word took word as hand takes hand,
I could hear at last, and understand,
And when I held the unbroken thread,
The Gipsy said:—

'And so at last we find my tribe.

'And so I set thee in the midst,

'And to one and all of them describe

'What thou saidst and what thou didst,

'Our long and terrible journey through,

'And all thou art ready to say and do

'In the trials that remain:

'I trace them the vein and the other vein

'That meet on thy brow and part again,

'Making our rapid mystic mark;

'And I bid my people prove and probe

'Each eye's profound and glorious globe

'Till they detect the kindred spark

'In those depths so dear and dark,

'Like the spots that snap and burst and flee,

'Circling over the midnight sea.

'And on that round young cheek of thine

'I make them recognize the tinge,

'As when of the costly scarlet wine

'They drip so much as will impinge

'And spread in a thinnest scale afloat

'One thick gold drop from the olive's coat

'Over a silver plate whose sheen

'Still thro' the mixture shall be seen.

'For so I prove thee, to one and all,

'Fit, when my people ope their breast,

'To see the sign, and hear the call,

'And take the vow, and stand the test

'Which adds one more child to the
rest—

'When the breast is bare and the arms are
wide,

'And the world is left outside.

'For there is probation to decree,

'And many and long must the trials be

'Thou shalt victoriously endure,

'If that brow is true and those eyes are
sure;

'Like a jewel-finder's fierce assay

'Of the prize he dug from its mountain-tomb—

'Let once the vindicating ray

'Leap out amid the anxious gloom,

'And steel and fire have done their part

'And the prize falls on its finder's heart;

'So, trial after trial past,

'Wilt thou fall at the very last

'Breathless, half in trance

'With the thrill of the great deliverance,

'Into our arms for evermore;

'And thou shalt know, those arms once
curled

'About thee, what we knew before,

'How love is the only good in the world.

'Henceforth be'loved as heart can love,

'Or brain devise, or hand approve!

'Stand up, look below,

'It is our life at thy feet we throw

'To step with into light and joy;

'Not a power of life but we employ

'To satisfy thy nature's want;

'Art thou the tree that props the plant,

'Or the climbing plant that seeks the tree—

'Canst thou help us, must we help thee?

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

'If any two creatures grew into one,
 'They would do more than the world has
 done:
 'Though each apart were never so weak,
 'Ye vainly through the world should seek
 'For the knowledge and the might
 'Which in such union grew their right:
 'So, to approach at least that end,
 'And blend,—as much as may be, blend
 'Thee with us or us with thee,—
 'As climbing plant or propping tree,
 'Shall some one deck thee, over and down,
 'Up and about, with blossoms and
 leaves?
 'Fix his heart's fruit for thy garland-crown,
 'Cling with his soul as the gourd-vine cleaves,
 'Die on thy boughs and disappear
 'While not a leaf of thine is sere?
 'Or is the other fate in store,
 'And art thou fitted to adore,
 'To give thy wondrous self away,
 'And take a stronger nature's sway?
 'I foresee and could foretell
 'Thy future portion, sure and well:
 'But those passionate eyes speak true,
 speak true,
 'Let them say what thou shalt do!
 'Only be sure thy daily life,
 'In its peace or in its strife,
 'Never shall be unobserved;
 'We pursue thy whole career,
 'And hope for it, or doubt, or fear,—
 'Lo, hast thou kept thy path or swerved,
 'We are beside thee in all thy ways,
 'With our blame, with our praise,
 'Our shame to feel, our pride to show,
 'Glad, angry—but indifferent, no!
 'Whether it be thy lot to go,
 'For the good of us all, where the haters
 meet
 'In the crowded city's horrible street;
 'Or thou step alone through the morass
 'Where never sound yet was
 'Save the dry quick clap of the stork's bill,
 'For the air is still, and the water still,
 'When the blue breast of the dipping coot
 'Dives under, and all is mute.
 'So, at the last shall come old age,
 'Decrepit as befits that stage;
 'How else wouldst thou retire apart
 'With the hoarded memories of thy heart,
 'And gather all to the very least
 'Of the fragments of life's earlier feast,
 'Let fall through eagerness to find
 'The crowning dainties yet behind?
 'Ponder on the entire past
 'Laid together thus at last,
 'When the twilight helps to fuse
 'The first fresh with the faded hues,
 'And the outline of the whole,
 'As round eve's shades their framework
 roll,
 'Grandly fronts for once thy soul.

'And then as, 'mid the dark, a gleam
 'Of yet another morning breaks,
 'And like the hand which ends a dream,
 'Death, with the might of his sunbeam,
 'Touches the flesh and the soul awakes,
 'Then—
 Ay, then indeed something would happen!
 But what? For here her voice changed like a bird's;
 There grew more of the music and less of the words;
 Had Jacynth only been by me to clap pen
 To paper and put you down every syllable
 With those clever clerkly fingers,
 All I've forgotten as well as what lingers
 In this old brain of mine that's but ill
 able
 To give you even this poor version Of the speech I spoil, as it were, with stammering
 —More fault of those who had the hammering
 Of prosody into me and syntax,
 And did it, not with hobnails but tin-tacks!
 But to return from this excursion,— Just, do you mark, when the song was sweetest,
 The peace most deep and the charm completest,
 There came, shall I say, a snap—
 And the charm vanished!
 And my sense returned, so strangely banished,
 And, starting as from a nap,
 I knew the crone was bewitching my
 lady,
 With Jacynth asleep; and but one spring made I Down from the casement, round to the portal,
 Another minute and I had entered,— When the door opened, and more than mortal
 Stood, with a face where to my mind centred
 All beauties I ever saw or shall see,
 The Duchess: I stopped as if struck by palsy.
 She was so different, happy and beautiful,
 I felt at once that all was best,
 And that I had nothing to do, for the
 rest,
 But wait her commands, obey and be dutiful.
 Not that, in fact, there was any commanding;
 I saw the glory of her eye,
 And the brow's height and the breast's expanding,
 And I was hers to live or to die.
 As for finding what she wanted,
 You know God Almighty granted

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

Such little signs should serve wild creatures
To tell one another all their desires,
So that each knows what his friend requires,

And does its bidding without teachers.
I preceded her; the crone
Followed silent and alone;

I spoke to her, but she merely jabbered
In the old style; both her eyes had slunk
Back to their pits; her stature shrunk;

In short, the soul in its body sunk
Like a blade sent home to its scabbard.

We descended, I preceding;
Crossed the court with nobody heeding;

All the world was at the chase,
The courtyard like a desert-place

The stable emptied of its small fry;
I saddled myself the very palfrey

I remember patting while it carried her,
The day she arrived and the Duke married
her.

And, do you know, though it's easy deceiving

Oneself in such matters, I can't help believing

The lady had not forgotten it either,
And knew the poor devil so much beneath
her

Would have been only too glad for her service

To dance on hot ploughshares like a Turk dervise,

But, unable to pay proper duty where owing it,

Was reduced to that pitiful method of showing it:

For though the moment I began setting His saddle on my own nag of Berold's begetting,

(Not that I meant to be obtrusive)

She stopped me, while his rug was shifting,

By a single rapid finger's lifting,
And, with a gesture kind but conclusive,

And a little shake of the head, refused
me,—

I say, although she never used me,
Yet when she was mounted, the Gipsy behind her,

And I ventured to remind her,

I suppose with a voice of less steadiness
Than usual, for my feeling exceeded me, —Something to the effect that I was in readiness

Whenever God should please she needed
me,—

Then, do you know, her face looked down
on me

With a look that placed a crown on me,
And she felt in her bosom,—mark, her bosom—

And, as a flower-tree drops its blossom,

Dropped me . . . ah, had it been a purse
Of silver, my friend, or gold that's worse,

Why, you see, as soon as I found myself
So understood,—that a true heart so may gain

Such a reward,—I should have gone home again,

Kissed Jacynth, and soberly drowned myself!

It was a little plait of hair

Such as friends in a convent make

To wear, each for the other's sake,—

This, see, which at my breast I wear,

Ever did (rather to Jacynth's grudging),

And ever shall, till the Day of Judgment.

And then,—and then,—to cut short,—this is idle,

These are feelings it is not good to foster,—

I pushed the gate wide, she shook the bridle,

And the palfrey bounded,—and so we lost her.

XVI

When the liquor's out why clink the cannikin?

I did think to describe you the panic in The redoubtable breast of our master the mannikin,

And what was the pitch of his mother's yellowness,

How she turned as a shark to snap the spare-rib

Clean off, sailors say, from a pearl-diving Carib,

When she heard, what she called the flight of the feloness

—But it seems such child's play,
What they said and did with the lady away!

And to dance on, when we've lost the music, Always made me—and no doubt makes you—sick.

Nay, to my mind, the world's face looked so stern

As that sweet form disappeared through the postern,

She that kept it in constant good humour,

It ought to have stopped; there seemed nothing to do more.

But the world thought otherwise and went
on,

And my head's one that its spite was spent
on:

Thirty years are fled since that morning,
And with them all my head's adorning.

Nor did the old Duchess die outright,
As you expect, of suppressed spite,

The natural end of every adder
Not suffered to empty its poison-bladder:

But she and her son agreed, I take it,
That no one should touch on the story to wake it,

For the wound in the Duke's pride rankled fiery,

So, they made no search and small inquiry—

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

And when fresh Gipsies have paid us a visit, I've Noticed the couple were never inquisitive,

But told them they're folks the Duke don't want here,

And bade them make haste and cross the frontier.

Brief, the Duchess was gone and the Duke was glad of it,

And the old one was in the young one's stead,

And took, in her place, the household's head,

And a blessed time the household had of it!
And were I not, as a man may say, cautious

How I trench, more than needs, on the nauseous,

I could favour you with sundry touches
Of the paint-smutches with which the

Duchess

Heightened the mellowness of her cheek's yellowness

(To get on faster) until at last her Cheek grew to be one master-plaster

Of mucus and fucus from mere use of ceruse:

In short, she grew from scalp to udder
Just the object to make you shudder.

xvii

You're my friend—

What a thing friendship is, world without end!

How it gives the heart and soul a stir-up
As if somebody broached you a glorious runlet,

And poured out, all lovelily, sparkingly, sunlit,

Our green Moldavia, the streaky syrup,
Cotnar as old as the time of the Druids—

Friendship may match with that monarch of fluids;

Each supple a dry brain, fills you its ins-and-outs,

Gives your life's hour-glass a shake when the thin sand doubts

Whether to run on or stop short, and guarantees

Age is not all made of stark sloth and arrant ease.

I have seen my little lady once more,
Jacynth, the Gipsy, Berold, and the rest of it,

For to me spoke the Duke, as I told you before;

I always wanted to make a clean breast of it;

And now it is made—why, my heart's blood, that went trickle,

Trickle, but anon, in such muddy drib-lets,

Is pumped up brisk now, through the main ventricle,

And genially floats me about the giblets.

I'll tell you what I intend to do:

I must see this fellow his sad life through—
He is our Duke, after all,

And I, as he says, but a serf and thrall.

My father was born here, and I inherit His fame, a chain he bound his son with;

Could I pay in a lump I should prefer it,
But there's no mine to blow up and get done with:

So, I must stay till the end of the chapter.
For, as to our middle-age-manners-adapting,

Be it a thing to be glad on or sorry on,
Some day or other, his head in a morior

And breast in a hauberk, his heels he'll kick up,

Slain by an onslaught fierce of hiccup.

And then, when red doth the sword of our Duke rust,

And its leathern sheath lie o'ergrown with a blue crust,

Then I shall scrape together my earnings;
For, you see, in the churchyard Jacynth reposes,

And our children all went the way of the roses:

It's a long lane that knows no turnings.

One needs but little tackle to travel in;

So, just one stout cloak shall I induce:

And for a staff, what beats the javelin
With which his boars my father pinned you?

And then, for a purpose you shall hear presently,

Taking some Cotnar, a tight plump skinful,

I shall go journeying, who but I, pleasantly!

Sorrow is vain and despondency sinful.
What's a man's age? He must hurry more,

that's all;

Cram in a day, what his youth took a year to hold:

When we mind labour, then only, we're too old—

What age had Methusalem when he begat Saul?

And at last, as its haven some buffeted ship sees,

(Come all the way from the north-parts with sperm oil)

I hope to get safely out of the turmoil
And arrive one day at the land of the Gipsies,

And find my lady, or hear the last news of her

From some old thief and son of Lucifer,
His forehead chapleted green with wreathy hop,

Sunburned all over like an Æthiop.

And when my Cotnar begins to operate

And the tongue of the rogue to run at a proper rate,

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

And our wine-skin, tight once, shows each flaccid dent,

I shall drop in with—as if by accident—
'You never knew, then, how it all ended,
'What fortune good or bad attended
'The little lady your Queen befriended?'
—And when that's told me, what's remaining?

This world's too hard for my explaining.
The same wise judge of matters equine Who still preferred some slim four-year-
old

To the big-boned stock of mighty Berold,

And, for strong Cotnar, drank French weak wine,

He also must be such a lady's scorner!
Smooth Jacob still robs homely Esau:
Now up, now down, the world's one see-saw.

—So, I shall find out some snug corner
Under a hedge, like Orson the wood-
knight,

Turn myself round and bid the world good-
night;

And sleep a sound sleep till the trumpet's blowing

Wakes me (unless priests cheat us lay-
men)

To a world where will be no further throw-
ing

Pearls before swine that can't value them. Amen!

A GRAMMARIAN'S FUNERAL,

SHORTLY AFTER THE REVIVAL OF LEARNING IN EUROPE

LET us begin and carry up this corpse,
Singing together.

Leave we the common crofts, the vulgar thorpes

Each in its tether
Sleeping safe on the bosom of the plain,

Cared-for till cock-crow:
Look out if yonder be not day again

Rimming the rock-row!
That's the appropriate country; there,
man's thought,

Rarer, intenser,
Self-gathered for an outbreak, as it ought,
Chafes in the censer.

Leave we the unlettered plain its herd and crop;

Seek we sepulture
On a tall mountain, citied to the top,
Crowded with culture!

All the peaks soar, but one the rest excels;

Clouds overcome it;
Not yonder sparkle is the citadel's
Circling its summit.

Thither our path lies; wind we up the heights:

Wait ye the warning?
Our low life was the level's and the night's;
He's for the morning.

Step to a tune, square chests, erect each
head,

'Ware the beholders!
This is our master, famous calm and dead,
Borne on our shoulders.

Sleep, crop and herd! sleep, darkling thorpe and croft,

Safe from the weather!
He, whom we convoy to his grave aloft,
Singing together,

He was a man born with thy face and throat,

Lyric Apollo!

Long he lived nameless: how should spring take note

Winter would follow?
Till lo, the little touch, and youth was
gone!

Cramped and diminished,
Moaned he, 'New measures, other feet
anon!

'My dance is finished?'
No, that's the world's way: (keep the mountain-side,

Make for the city!)

He knew the signal, and stepped on with pride

Over men's pity;
Left play for work, and grappled with the
world

Bent on escaping:
'What's in the scroll,' quoth he, 'thou keepest furled?

'Show me their shaping,
'Theirs who most studied man, the bard and sage,—

'Give!'—So, he gowned him, Straight got by heart that book to its last page:

Learned, we found him.
Yea, but we found him bald too, eyes like
lead,

Accents uncertain:
'Time to taste life,' another would have
said,

'Up with the curtain!'
This man said rather, 'Actual life comes
next?

'Patience a moment!
'Grant I have mastered learning's crabbed
text,

'Still there's the comment.
'Let me know all! Prate not of most or
least,

'Painful or easy!
'Even to the crumbs I'd fain eat up the feast,

'Ay, nor feel queasy.'

A GRAMMARIAN'S FUNERAL

Oh, such a life as he resolved to live,
When he had learned it,
When he had gathered all books had to give!

Sooner, he spurned it.
Image the whole, then execute the parts—
Fancy the fabric
Quite, ere you build, ere steel strike fire from quartz,
Ere mortar dab brick!

(Here's the town-gate reached: there's the market-place

Gaping before us.)
Yea, this in him was the peculiar grace
(Hearten our chorus!)
That before living he'd learn how to live—
No end to learning:
Earn the means first—God surely will contrive

Use for our earning.
Others mistrust and say, 'But time escapes:

'Live now or never!'
He said, 'What's time? Leave Now for dogs and apes!

'Man has Forever.'
Back to his book then: deeper drooped his
head:

Calculus racked him:
Leaden before, his eyes grew dross of lead:
Tussis attacked him.

'Now, master, take a little rest!'—not he!
(Caution redoubled,

Step two abreast, the way winds narrowly!)
Not a whit troubled

Back to his studies, fresher than at first,
Fierce as a dragon
He (soul-hydroptic with a sacred thirst)
Sucked at the flagon.

Oh, if we draw a circle premature,
Heedless of far gain,
Greedy for quick returns of profit, sure
Bad is our bargain!

Was it not great? did not he throw on God,
(He loves the burthen)—
God's task to make the heavenly period
Perfect the earthen?

Did not he magnify the mind, show clear
Just what it all meant?

He would not discount life, as fools do
here,

Paid by instalment.
He ventured neck or nothing—heaven's
success

Found, or earth's failure:
'Wilt thou trust death or not?' He answered 'Yes:

'Hence with life's pale lure!'
That low man seeks a little thing to do,
Sees it and does it:

This high man, with a great thing to pursue,
Dies ere he knows it.

That low man goes on adding one to
one,

His hundred's soon hit:
This high man, aiming at a million,
Misses an unit.

That, has the world here—should he need the next,
Let the world mind him!

This, throws himself on God, and unperplexed
Seeking shall find him.

So, with the throttling hands of death at
strife,
Ground he at grammar;

Still, thro' the rattle, parts of speech were rife:

While he could stammer
He settled Hoti's business—let it be!— Properly based Oun—

Gave us the doctrine of the enclitic De,
Dead from the waist down.
Well, here's the platform, here's the proper place:

Hail to your purlieus,
All ye highfliers of the feathered race,
Swallows and curlews!

Here's the top-peak; the multitude below
Live, for they can, there:

This man decided not to Live but Know—
Bury this man there?

Here—here's his place, where meteors shoot, clouds form,
Lightnings are loosened,

Stars come and go! Let joy break with the storm,
Peace let the dew send!

Lofty designs must close in like effects:
Loftily lying,
Leave him—still loftier than the world suspects,

Living and dying.

THE HERETIC'S TRAGEDY

A MIDDLE-AGE INTERLUDE

ROSA MUNDI; SEU, FULCITE ME FLORIBUS, A CONCEIT OF MASTER GYSBRECHT,
CANON-REGULAR OF SAINT JODOCUS-
BY-THE-BAR, YPRES CITY. CANTUQUE, Virgilius. AND HATH OFTEN BEEN SUNG
AT HOCK-TIDE AND FESTIVALS. GAVI-SUS ERAM, Jessides.

(It would seem to be a glimpse from the burning of Jacques du Bourg-Molay, at Paris,
A.D. 1314; as distorted by the refraction from Flemish brain to brain, during the course of a couple of centuries.)

[Molay was Grand Master of the Templars when that order was suppressed in 1312.]

THE HERETIC'S TRAGEDY

I

PREADMONISHETH THE ABBOT DEODAET
 THE Lord, we look to once for all,
 Is the Lord we should look at, all at
 once:
 He knows not to vary, saith Saint Paul,
 Nor the shadow of turning, for the
 nonce.
 See him no other than as he is!
 Give both the infinitudes their due—Infinite mercy, but, I wis,
 As infinite a justice too.
[Organ: plagal-cadence.]
 As infinite a justice too.

II

ONE SINGETH

John, Master of the Temple of God,
 Falling to sin the Unknown Sin,
 What he bought of Emperor Aldabrod,
 He sold it to Sultan Saladin:
 Till, caught by Pope Clement, a-buzzing
 there,
 Hornet-prince of the mad wasps' hive,
 And clipt of his wings in Paris square,
 They bring him now to be burned alive.
[And wanteth there grace of lute or clavicithern, ye shall say to confirm him who singeth—]
 We bring John now to be burned alive.

III

In the midst is a goodly gallows built;
 'Twixt fork and fork, a stake is stuck;
 But first they set divers tumbrels a-tilt,
 Make a trench all round with the city muck;
 Inside they pile log upon log, good store;
 Faggots no few, bloc's great and small,
 Reach a man's mid-thigh, no less, no
 more,—
 For they mean he should roast in the sight of all.

CHORUS

We mean he should roast in the sight of all.

IV

Good sappy bavins that kindle forthwith;
 Billets that blaze substantial and slow;
 Pine-stump split deftly, dry as pith;
 Larch-heart that chars to a chalk-white
 glow:
 Then up they hoist me John in a chafe,
 Sling him fast like a hog to scorch,
 Spit in his face, then leap back safe,
 Sing 'Laudes' and bid clap-to the torch.

CHORUS

Laus Deo—who bids clap-to the torch.

V

John of the Temple, whose fame so bragged,
 Is burning alive in Paris square!
 How can he curse, if his mouth is gagged?
 Or wriggle his neck, with a collar there?
 Or heave his chest, which a band goes
 round?
 Or threat with his fist, since his arms are spliced?
 Or kick with his feet, now his legs are
 bound?
 —Thinks John, I will call upon Jesus Christ.

[Here, one crosseth himself.]

VI

Jesus Christ—John had bought and sold, Jesus Christ—John had eaten and drunk;
 To him, the Flesh meant silver and gold.
(Salvâ reverentiâ.)
 Now it was, 'Saviour, bountiful lamb,
 'I have roasted thee Turks, though men roast me!
 'See thy servant, the plight wherein I am!
 'Art thou a saviour? Save thou me!'

CHORUS

'Tis John the mocker cries, 'Save thou
 me!'

VII

Who maketh God's menace an idle word?
 —Saith, it no more means what it pro-
 claims,
 Than a damsel's threat to her wanton
 bird?—
 For she too prattles of ugly names.
 —Saith, he knoweth but one thing,—what he knows?
 That God is good and the rest is breath;
 Why else is the same styled Sharon's rose?
 Once a rose, ever a rose, he saith.

CHORUS

O, John shall yet find a rose, he saith!

VIII

Alack, there be roses and roses, John!
 Some, honied of taste like your leman's
 tongue:
 Some, bitter; for why? (roast gaily on!)
 Their tree struck root in devil's-dung.
 When Paul once reasoned of righteousness
 And of temperance and of judgment to
 come,
 Good Felix trembled, he could no less:
 John, snickering, crook'd his wicked thumb.

CHORUS

What cometh to John of the wicked
 thumb?

THE HERETIC'S TRAGEDY

IX

Ha, ha, John plucketh now at his rose
To rid himself of a sorrow at heart!
Lo,—petal on petal, fierce rays uncloze;
Anther on anther, sharp spikes outstart;
And with blood for dew, the bosom boils;
And a gust of sulphur is all its smell;
And lo, he is horribly in the toils
Of a coal-black giant flower of hell!

CHORUS

What maketh heaven, That maketh hell.

X

So, as John called now, through the fire amain,
On the Name, he had cursed with, all his life—
To the Person, he bought and sold again—
For the Face, with his daily buffets
rife—

Feature by feature It took its place:
And his voice, like a mad dog's choking
bark,

At the steady whole of the Judge's face—Died. Forth John's soul flared into the dark.

SUBJOINETH THE ABBOT DEODAET

God help all poor souls lost in the dark!

HOLY-CROSS DAY

ON WHICH THE JEWS WERE FORCED TO ATTEND AN ANNUAL CHRISTIAN SER-MON IN ROME.

[Now was come about Holy-Cross Day, and now must my lord preach his first sermon to the Jews: as it was of old cared for in the merciful bowels of the Church, that, so to speak, a crumb at least from her conspicuous table here in Rome should be, though but once yearly, cast to the famishing dogs, under-trampled and bespitten-upon beneath the feet of the guests. And a moving sight in truth, this, of so many of the besotted blind restif and ready-to-perish Hebrews! now maternally brought—nay (for He saith, 'Compel them to come in') haled, as it were, by the head and hair, and against their obstinate hearts, to partake of the heavenly grace. What awakening, what striving with tears, what working of a yeasty conscience! Nor was my lord wanting to himself on so apt an occasion; witness the abundance of conversions which did inconspicuously reward him: though not by my lord be altogether the glory."—Diary by the Bishop's Secretary, 1600.]

What the Jews really said, on thus being driven to church, was rather to this effect:—

I

FEE, faw, fum! bubble and squeak!
Blessedest Thursday's the fat of the week.
Rumble and tumble, sleek and rough,
Stinking and savoury, smug and gruff,

Take the church-road, for the bell's due chime
Gives us the summons—'tis sermon-time!

II

Boh, here's Barnabas! Job, that's you?
Up stumps Solomon—bustling too?
Shame, man! greedy beyond your years
To handsel the bishop's shaving-shears?
Fair play's a jewel! Leave friends in the lurch?
Stand on a line ere you start for the church!

III

Higgledy piggledy, packed we lie,
Rats in a hamper, swine in a sty,
Wasps in a bottle, frogs in a sieve,
Worms in a carcase, fleas in a sleeve.
Hist! square shoulders, settle your thumbs
And buzz for the bishop—here he comes.

IV

Bow, wow, wow—a bone for the dog!
I liken his Grace to an acorned hog.
What, a boy at his side, with the bloom of a lass,
To help and handle my lord's hour-glass!
Didst ever behold so lithe a chine?
His cheek hath laps like a fresh-singed swine.

Aaron's asleep—shove hip to haunch,
Or somebody deal him a dig in the paunch!
Look at the purse with the tassel and knob,
And the gown with the angel and thingumbob!
What's he at, quotha? reading his text!
Now you've his curtesy—and what comes next?

VI

See to our converts—you doomed black dozen—
No stealing away—nor cog nor cozen!
You five, that were thieves, deserve it fairly;
You seven, that were beggars, will live less sparely;
You took your turn and dipped in the hat,
Got fortune—and fortune gets you; mind
that!

VII

Give your first groan—compunction's at
work;
And soft! from a Jew you mount to a Turk.
Lo, Micah,—the selfsame beard on chin
He was four times already converted in!
Here's a knife, clip quick—it's a sign of
grace—
Or he ruins us all with his hanging-face.

HOLY-CROSS DAY

VIII

Whom now is the bishop a-leering at?
I know a point where his text falls pat.
I'll tell him to-morrow, a word just now
Went to my heart and made me vow
I meddle no more with the worst of trades—
Let somebody else pay his serenades.

IX

Groan all together now, whee—hee—heel!
It's a-work, it's a-work, ah, woe is me!
It began, when a herd of us, picked and placed,
Were spurred through the Corso, stripped to the waist;
Jew brutes, with sweat and blood well
spent
To usher in worthily Christian Lent.

X

It grew, when the hangman entered our
bounds:
Yelled, pricked us out to his church like hounds!
It got to a pitch, when the hand indeed Which gutted my purse would throttle my creed:
And it overflows when, to even the odd,
Men I helped to their sins help me to their God.

XI

But now, while the scapegoats leave our
flock,
And the rest sit silent and count the clock,
Since forced to muse the appointed time
On these precious facts and truths sublime,—
Let us fitly employ it, under our breath,
In saying Ben Ezra's Song of Death.

XII

For Rabbi Ben Ezra, the night he died,
Called sons and sons' sons to his side,
And spoke, 'This world has been harsh and strange;
'Something is wrong: there needeth a
change.
'But what, or where? at the last or first?
'In one point only we sinned, at worst.

XIII

'The Lord will have mercy on Jacob yet,
'And again in his border see Israel set.
'When Judah beholds Jerusalem,
'The stranger-seed shall be joined to them:
'To Jacob's House shall the Gentiles cleave.
'So the Prophet saith and his sons believe.'

XIV

'Ay, the children of the chosen race
'Shall carry and bring them to their place:

'In the land of the Lord shall lead the same,
'Bondsmen and handmaids. Who shall
blame,
'When the slaves 'enslave, the oppressed ones o'er
'The oppressor triumph for evermore?

XV

'God spoke, and gave us the word to keep,
'Bade never fold the hands nor sleep
'Mid a faithless world,—at watch and
ward,
'Till Christ at the end relieve our guard.
'By His servant Moses the watch was set;
'Though near upon cock-crow, we keep it
yet.

XVI

'Thou! if thou wast He, who at mid-watch
came,
'By the starlight, naming a dubious name!
'And if, too heavy with sleep—too rash
'With fear—O Thou, if that martyr-gash
'Fell on Thee coming to take thine own,
'And we gave the Cross, when we owed the Throne—

XVII

'Thou art the Judge. We are bruised thus.
'But, the Judgment over, join sides with
us!
'Thine too is the cause! and not more thine
'Than ours, is the work of these dogs and swine,
'Whose life laughs through and spits at their creed!
'Who maintain Thee in word, and defy Thee in deed!

XVIII

'We withstood Christ then? Be mindful
how
'At least we withstand Barabbas now!
'Was our outrage sore? But the worst we spared,
'To have called these—Christians, had we
dared!
'Let defiance to them pay mistrust of Thee,
'And Rome make amends for Calvary!

XIX

'By the torture, prolonged from age to age,
'By the infamy, Israel's heritage,
'By the Ghetto's plague, by the garb's dis-
grace,
'By the badge of shame, by the felon's
place,
'By the branding-tool, the bloody whip,
'And the summons to Christian fellowship,—

XX

'We boast our proof that at least the Jew
'Would wrest Christ's name from the Devil's crew.

'Thy face took never so deep a shade
'But we fought them in it, God our aid!
'A trophy to bear, as we march, thy band,
'South, East, and oh to the Pleasant
Land!'

[Pope Gregory XVI abolished this bad business of the Sermon.—R. B.]

PROTUS

AMONG these latter busts we count by scores,
Half-emperors and quarter-emperors,
Each with his bay-leaf fillet, loose-thonged
vest, Loric¹ and low-browed Gorgon on the
breast,—
One loves a baby face, with violets there,
Violets instead of laurel in the hair,
As those were all the little locks could bear.

Now read here. 'Protus ends a period
'Of empery beginning with a god;
'Born in the porphyry chamber at Byzant,
'Queens by his cradle, proud and ministrant:
'And if he quickened breath there, 'twould like fire
'Pantingly through the dim vast realm transpire.
'A fame that he was missing spread afar:
'The world from its four corners, rose in
war,
'Till he was borne out on a balcony
'To pacify the world when it should see.
'The captains ranged before him, one, his
hand
'Made baby points at, gained the chief command.
'And day by day more beautiful he grew
'In shape, all said, in feature and in hue,
'While young Greek sculptors, gazing on the child,
'Became with old Greek sculpture reconciled.
'Already sages laboured to condense
'In easy tomes a life's experience:
'And artists took grave counsel to impart
'In one breath and one hand-sweep, all their art—
'To make his graces prompt as blossoming
'Of plentifully-watered palms in spring:
'Since well beseems it, whoso mounts the
throne,
'For beauty, knowledge, strength, should stand alone,
'And mortals love the letters of his name.'

—Stop! Have you turned two pages? Still
the same.

New reign, same date. The scribe goes on to say
How that same year, on such a month and
day,
'John the Pannonian, groundedly believed
'A blacksmith's bastard, whose hard hand reprieved
'The Empire from its fate the year before,—
'Came, had a mind to take the crown, and wore
'The same for six years (during which the Huns
'Kept off their fingers from us), till his sons
'Put something in his liquor'—and so
forth.
Then a new reign. Stay—'Take at its just
worth'
(Subjoins an annotator) 'what I give 'As hearsay. Some think, John let Protus
live
'And slip away. 'Tis said, he reached man's age
'At some blind northern court; made, first
a page,
'Then tutor to the children; last, of use
'About the hunting-stables. I deduce
'He wrote the little tract "On worming dogs,"
'Whereof the name in sundry catalogues
'Is extant yet. A Protus of the race
'Is rumoured to have died a monk in Thrace,—
'And if the same, he reached senility.'

Here's John the Smith's rough-hammered head. Great eye, Gross jaw and griped lips do what granite
can
To give you the crown-grasper. What a
man!

THE STATUE AND THE BUST

THERE'S a palace in Florence, the world
knows well,
And a statue watches it from the square,
And this story of both do our townsmen
tell.

Agos ago, a lady there,
At the farthest window facing the East
Asked, 'Who rides by with the royal air?'

The bridesmaids' prattle around her
ceased;
She leaned forth, one on either hand;
They saw how the blush of the bride increased—

They felt by its beats her heart expand—
As one at each ear and both in a breath
Whispered, 'The Great-Duke Ferdinand.'

THE STATUE AND THE BUST

That self-same instant, underneath,
The Duke rode past in his idle way,
Empty and fine like a swordless sheath.

Gay he rode, with a friend as gay, Till he threw his head back—'Who is she?'
—'A bride the Riccardi brings home to-day.'

Hair in heaps lay heavily
Over a pale brow spirit-pure—
Carved like the heart of a coal-black tree,

Crisped like a war-steed's encolure
And vainly sought to dissemble her eyes
Of the blackest black our eyes endure.

And lo, a blade for a knight's emprise
Filled the fine empty sheath of a man,—
The Duke grew straightway brave and wise.

He looked at her, as a lover can;
She looked at him, as one who awakes:
The past was a sleep, and her life began.

Now, love so ordered for both their sakes,
A feast was held that selfsame night
In the pile which the mighty shadow makes.

(For Via Larga is three-parts light,
But the palace overshadows one,
Because of a crime which may God requite!

To Florence and God the wrong was done,
Through the first republic's murder there
By Cosimo and his cursed son.)

The Duke (with the statue's face in the square)
Turned in the midst of his multitude
At the bright approach of the bridal pair.

Face to face the lovers stood
A single minute and no more,
While the bridegroom bent as a man subdued—

Bowed till his bonnet brushed the floor—
For the Duke on the lady a kiss conferred,
As the courtly custom was of yore.

In a minute can lovers exchange a word?
If a word did pass, which I do not think,
Only one out of the thousand heard.

That was the bridegroom. At day's brink
He and his bride were alone at last
In a bedchamber by a taper's blink.

Calmly he said that her lot was cast,
That the door she had passed was shut on her Till the final catafalk repassed.

The world meanwhile, its noise and stir,
Through a certain window facing the East,
She could watch like a convent's chronicler.

Since passing the door might lead to a feast,
And a feast might lead to so much beside,
He, of many evils, chose the least.

'Freely I choose too,' said the bride—
'Your window and its world suffice,' Replied the tongue, while the heart replied—

'If I spend the night with that devil twice,
'May his window serve as my loop of hell
'Whence a damned soul looks on paradise!

'I fly to the Duke who loves me well,
'Sit by his side and laugh at sorrow
'Ere I count another ave-bell.

'Tis only the coat of a page to borrow,
'And tie my hair in a horse-boy's trim,
'And I save my soul—but not to-morrow'—

(She checked herself and her eye grew dim)
'My father tarries to bless my state:
'I must keep it one day more for him.

'Is one day more so long to wait?
'Moreover the Duke rides past, I know;
'We shall see each other, sure as fate.'

She turned on her side and slept. Just so!
So we resolve on a thing and sleep:
So did the lady, ages ago.

That night the Duke said, 'Dear or cheap
'As the cost of this cup of bliss may prove
'To body or soul, I will drain it deep.'

And on the morrow, bold with love,
He beckoned the bridegroom (close on call,
As his duty bade, by the Duke's alcove)

And smiled 'Twas a very funeral,
'Your lady will think, this feast of ours,—
'A shame to efface, whate'er befall!

'What if we break from the Arno bowers,
'And try if Petraja, cool and green,
'Cure last night's fault with this morning's flowers?'

The bridegroom, not a thought to be seen
On his steady brow and quiet mouth,
Said, 'Too much favour for me so mean!

'But, alas! my lady leaves the South;
'Each wind that comes from the Apennine
'Is a menace to her tender youth:

THE STATUE AND THE BUST

'Nor a way exists, the wise opine,
'If she quits' her palace twice this year,
'To avert the flower of life's decline.'

Quoth the Duke, 'A sage and a kindly fear.
'Moreover Petraja is cold this spring:
'Be our feast to-night as usual here!'

And then to himself—'Which night shall bring
'Thy bride to her lover's embraces, fool—
'Or I am the fool, and thou art the king!

'Yet my passion must wait a night, nor cool—
'For to-night the Envoy arrives from France

'Whose heart I unlock with thyself, my tool.

'I need thee still and might miss perchance.
'To-day is not wholly lost, beside,
'With its hope of my lady's countenance:

'For I ride—what should I do but ride? •
'And passing her palace, if I list,
'May glance at its window—well betide!'

So said, so done: nor the lady missed
One ray that broke from the ardent brow, Nor a curl of the lips where the spirit kissed.

Be sure that each renewed the vow,
No morrow's sun should arise and set
And leave them then as it left them now.

But next day passed, and next day yet,
With still fresh cause to wait one day more
Ere each leaped over the parapet.

And still, as love's brief morning wore,
With a gentle start, half smile, half sigh,
They found love not as it seemed before.

They thought it would work infallibly,
But not in despite of heaven and earth:
The rose would blow when the storm passed by.

Meantime they could profit in winter's
dearth

By store of fruits that supplant the rose:
The world and its ways have a certain
worth:

And to press a point while these oppose
Were simple policy; better wait:
We lose no friends and we gain no foes.

Meantime, worse fates than a lover's fate,
Who daily may ride and pass and look
Where his lady watches behind the grate!

And she—she watched the square like a book
Holding one picture and only one,
Which daily to find she undertook:

When the picture was reached the book was done,
And she turned from the picture at night to scheme

Of tearing it out for herself next sun.

So weeks grew months, years; gleam by gleam
The glory dropped from their youth and
love,
And both perceived they had dreamed a
dream;

Which hovered as dreams do, still above:
But who can take a dream for a truth?
Oh, hide our eyes from the next remove!

One day as the lady saw her youth
Depart, and the silver thread that streaked
Her hair, and, worn by the serpent's tooth,

The brow so puckered, the chin so peaked,—

And wondered who the woman was,
Hollow-eyed and haggard-cheeked,

Fronting her silent in the glass—
'Summon here,' she suddenly said,
'Before the rest of my old self pass,

'Him, the Carver, a hand to aid,
'Who fashions the clay no love will
change,

'And fixes a beauty never to fade.

'Let Robbia's craft so apt and strange
'Arrest the remains of young and fair,
'And rivet them while the seasons range.

'Make me a face on the window there,
'Waiting as ever, mute the while,
'My love to pass below in the square!

'And let me think that it may beguile
'Dreary days which the dead must spend
'Down in their darkness under the aisle,

'To say, "What matters it at the end?
'"I did no more while my heart was warm
'"Than does that image, my pale-faced
friend."

'Where is the use of the lip's red charm,
'The heaven of hair, the pride of the brow,
'And the blood that blues the inside arm—

'Unless we turn, as the soul knows how,
'The earthly gift to an end divine?
'A lady of clay is as good, I trow.'

But long ere Robbia's cornice, fine,
With flowers and fruits which leaves en-lace,
Was set where now is the empty shrine—

(And, leaning out of a bright blue space,
As a ghost might lean from a chink of sky,
The passionate pale lady's face—

THE STATUE AND THE BUST

Eyeing ever, with earnest eye
And quick-turned neck at its breathless
stretch,
Some one who ever is passing by—)

The Duke had sighed like the simplest wretch

In Florence, 'Youth—my dream escapes!
'Will its record stay?' And he bade them fetch

Some subtle moulder of brazen shapes—
'Can the soul, the will, die out of a man
'Ere his body find the grave that gapes?

'John of Douay shall effect my plan,
'Set me on horseback here aloft,
'Alive, as the crafty sculptor can,

'In the very square I have crossed so oft:
'That men may admire, when future suns
'Shall touch the eyes to a purpose soft,

'While the mouth and the brow stay brave in bronze—

'Admire and say, "When he was alive
'"How he would take his pleasure once!"

'And it shall go hard but I contrive
'To listen the while, and laugh in my tomb
'At idleness which aspires to strive.'

So! While these wait the trump of doom,
How do their spirits pass, I wonder,
Nights and days in the narrow room?

Still, I suppose, they sit and ponder
What a gift life was, ages ago,
Six steps out of the chapel yonder.

Only they see not God, I know,
Nor all that chivalry of his,
The soldier-saints who, row on row,

Burn upward each to his point of bliss—
Since, the end of life being manifest,
He had burned his way thro' the world to
this.

I hear you reproach, 'But delay was best,
'For their end was a crime.'—Oh, a crime will do

As well, I reply, to serve for a test,

As a virtue golden through and through,
Sufficient to vindicate itself
And prove its worth at a moment's view!

Must a game be played for the sake of self?
Where a button goes, 'twere an epigram
To offer the stamp of the very Guelph.

The true has no value beyond the sham:
As well the counter as coin, I submit,
When your table's a hat, and your prize a dram.

Stake your counter as boldly every whit,
Venture as warily, use the same skill,
Do your best, whether winning or losing it,

If you choose to play!—is my principle.
Let a man contend to the uttermost
For his life's set prize, be it what it will!

The counter our lovers staked was lost
As surely as if it were lawful coin:
The sin I impute to each frustrate ghost

Is—the unlit lamp and the ungirt loin,
Though the end in sight was a vice, I say.
You of the virtue (we issue join)
How strive you? De te, fabula!

PORPHYRIA'S LOVER

THE rain set early in to-night,
The sullen wind was soon awake,
It tore the elm-tops down for spite,
And did its worst to vex the lake:

I listened with heart fit to break.
'When glided in Porphyria; straight
She shut the cold out and the storm,
And kneeled and made the cheerless grate
Blaze up, and all the cottage warm;
Which done, she rose, and from her form
Withdrew the dripping cloak and shawl,
And laid her soiled gloves by, untied
Her hat and let the damp hair fall,
And, last, she sat down by my side
And called me. When no voice replied,
She put my arm about her waist,
And made her smooth white shoulder
bare,

And all her yellow hair displaced,
And, stooping, made my cheek lie there,
And spread, o'er all, her yellow hair, Murmuring how she loved me—she Too weak, for all her heart's endeavour,
To set its struggling passion free
From pride, and vainer ties disserve,
And give herself to me for ever.

But passion sometimes would prevail,
Nor could to-night's gay feast restrain
A sudden thought of one so pale
For love of her, and all in vain:
So, she came through wind and rain.

Be sure I looked up at her eyes
Happy and proud; at last I knew Porphyria worshipped me; surprise
Made my heart swell, and still it grew
While I debated what to do.

That moment she was mine, mine, fair,
'Perfectly pure and good: I found
A thing to do, and all her hair
In one long yellow string I wound
Three times her little throat around,
'And strangled her. No pain felt she;

I am quite sure she felt no pain.
As a shut bud that holds a bee,
I warily oped her lids: again
Laughed the blue eyes without a stain.

And I untightened next the tress

About her neck; her cheek once more Blushed bright beneath my burning kiss:

I propped her head up as before,
Only, this time my shoulder bore
Her head, which droops upon it still:

The smiling rosy little head,
So glad it has its utmost will,
That all it scorned at once is fled,
And I, its love, am gained instead!
Porphyria's love: she guessed not how
Her darling one wish would be heard.
And thus we sit together now,
And all night long we have not stirred,
And yet God has not said a word!

'CHILDE ROLAND TO THE DARK
TOWER CAME'

(See Edgar's song in 'LEAR')

I

My first thought was, he lied in every
word,

That hoary cripple, with malicious eye
Askance to watch the working of his lie
On mine, and mouth scarce able to afford Suppression of the glee, that pursed and scored
Its edge, at one more victim gained thereby.

II

What else should he be set for, with his staff?

What, save to waylay with his lies, ensnare

All travellers who might find him posted
there,

And ask the road? I guessed what skull-like laugh

Would break, what crutch 'gin write my epitaph

For pastime in the dusty thoroughfare,

III

If at his counsel I should turn aside
Into that ominous tract which, all agree, Hides the Dark Tower. Yet acquiesc-

ingly

I did turn as he pointed: neither pride
Nor hope rekindling at the end descried,
So much as gladness that some end might be.

IV

For, what with my whole world-wide wandering,

What with my search drawn out thro'
years, my hope

Dwindled into a ghost not fit to cope With that obstreperous joy success would bring,

I hardly tried now to rebuke the spring
My heart made, finding failure in its scope.

As when a sick man very near to death Seems dead indeed, and feels begin and
end

The tears and takes the farewell of each
friend,

And hears one bid the other go, draw
breath

Freelier outside, ('since all is o'er,' he saith,

'And the blow fallen no grieving can amend;')

VI

While some discuss if near the other graves
Be room enough for this, and when a
day

Suits best for carrying the corpse away,
With care about the banners, scarves and staves:

And still the man hears all, and only craves
He may not shame such tender love and stay.

VII

Thus, I had so long suffered in this quest, Heard failure prophesied so oft, been writ

So many times among 'The Band'—
to wit,

The knights who to the Dark Tower's search addressed

Their steps—that just to fail as they,
seemed best,

And all the doubt was now—should I be fit?

VIII

So, quiet as despair, I turned from him,
That hateful cripple, out of his highway
Into the path he pointed. All the day

Had been a dreary one at best, and dim
Was settling to its close, yet shot one grim

Red leer to see the plain catch its estray.

IX

For mark! no sooner was I fairly found Pledged to the plain, after a pace or two,
Than, pausing to throw backward a last
view

O'er the safe road, 'twas gone; grey plain all round:

Nothing but plain to the horizon's bound.
I might go on; nought else remained
to do.

X

So, on I went. I think I never saw Such starved ignoble nature; nothing throve:

For flowers—as well expect a cedar grove!

But cockle, spurge, according to their law Might propagate their kind, with none to awe,

You'd think; a burr had been a treasure-trove.

'CHILDE ROLAND TO THE DARK TOWER CAME'

XI

No! penury, inertness and grimace,
In some strange sort, were the land's portion. 'See
'Or shut your eyes,' said Nature peev-ishly,
'It nothing skills: I cannot help my case:
'Tis the Last Judgment's fire must cure this place,
'Calcine its clods and set my prisoners free.'

XII

If there pushed any ragged thistle-stalk Above its mates, the head was chopped;
the bents
Were jealous else. What made those holes and rents
In the dock's harsh swarth leaves, bruised as to baulk
All hope of greenness? 'tis a brute must walk
Pushing their life out, with a brute's intent.

XIII

As for the grass, it grew as scant as hair
In leprosy; thin dry blades pricked the mud
Which underneath looked kneaded up with blood.
One stiff blind horse, his every bone
a-stare,
Stood stupefied, however he came there:
Thrust out past service from the devil's stud!

XIV

Alive? he might be dead for aught I know,
With that red gaunt and colloped neck
a-strain,
And shut eyes underneath the rusty mane;
Seldom went such grotesqueness with such
woe;
I never saw a brute I hated so;
He must be wicked to deserve such pain.

XV

I shut my eyes and turned them on my
heart.
As a man calls for wine before he fights,
I asked one draught of earlier, happier
sights,
Ere fitly I could hope to play my part.
Think first, fight afterwards—the soldier's
art:
One taste of the old time sets all to rights.

XVI

Not it! I fancied Cuthbert's reddening
face
Beneath its garniture of curly gold,
Dear fellow, till I almost felt him fold

An arm in mine to fix me to the place,
That way he used. Alas, one night's dis-
grace!
Out went my heart's new fire and left it cold.

XVII

Giles then, the soul of honour—there he stands
Frank as ten years ago when knighted
first.
What honest man should dare (he said)
he durst.
Good—but the scene shifts—faugh! what hangman hands
Pin to his breast a parchment? His own bands
Read it. Poor traitor, spit upon and curst!

XVIII

Better this present than a past like that;
Back therefore to my darkening path
again!
No sound, no sight as far as eye could strain.
Will the night send a howlet or a bat?
I asked: when something on the dismal flat Came to arrest my thoughts and change their train.

XIX

A sudden little river crossed my path
As unexpected as a serpent comes.
No sluggish tide congenial to the
glooms;
This, as it frothed by, might have been a bath
For the fiend's glowing hoof—to see the wrath
Of its black eddy bespate with flakes and spumes.

XX

So petty yet so spiteful! All along,
Low scrubby alders kneeled down over
it;
Drenched willows flung them headlong in a fit
Of mute despair, a suicidal throng:
The river which had done them all the
wrong,
Whate'er that was, rolled by, deterred no whit.

XXI

Which, while I forded,—good saints, how I feared
To set my foot upon a dead man's cheek, Each step, or feel the spear I thrust to seek
For hollows, tangled in his hair or beard!
—It may have been a water-rat I speared, But, ugh! it sounded like a baby's shriek.

'CHILDE ROLAND TO THE DARK TOWER CAME'

XXII

Glad was I when I reached the other bank.
Now for a better country. Vain presagel Who were the strugglers, what war did they wage,
Whose savage trample thus could pad the dank
Soil to a plash? Toads in a poisoned tank,
Or wild cats in a red-hot iron cage—

XXIII

The fight must so have seemed in that fell cirque.
What penned them there, with all the plain to choose?
No foot-print leading to that horrid mews,
None out of it. Mad brewage set to work
Their brains, no doubt, like galley-slaves
the Turk
Pits for his pastime, Christians against Jews.

XXIV

And more than that—a furlong on—why,
there!
What bad use was that engine for, that wheel,
Or brake, not wheel—that harrow fit to reel
Men's bodies out like silk? with all the air
Of Tophet's tool, on earth left unaware,
Or brought to sharpen its rusty teeth of steel.

XXV

Then came a bit of stubbed ground, once a wood,
Next a marsh, it would seem, and now mere earth Desperate and done with; (so a fool finds mirth,
Makes a thing and then mars it, till his mood
Changes and off he goes!) within a rood—Bog, clay and rubble, sand and stark black dearth.

XXVI

Now blotches rankling, coloured gay and
grim,
Now patches where some leanness of the soil's
Broke into moss or substances like boils;
Then came some palsied oak, a cleft in him
Like a distorted mouth that splits its rim Gaping at death, and dies while it recoils.

XXVII

And just as far as ever from the end!
Nought in the distance but the evening,
nought
To point my footstep further! At the
thought,

A great black bird, Apollyon's bosom-
friend,
Sailed past, nor beat his wide wing dragon-penned
That brushed my cap—perchance the guide I sought.

XXVIII

For, looking up, aware I somehow grew,
'Spite of the dusk, the plain had given
place
All round to mountains—with such name to grace
Mere ugly heights and heaps now stolen in view.
How thus they had surprised me,—solve it, you!
How to get from them was no clearer case.

XXIX

Yet half I seemed to recognize some trick
Of mischief happened to me, God knows when—
In a bad dream perhaps. Here ended,
then,
Progress this way. When, in the very nick
Of giving up, one time more, came a click As when a trap shuts—you're inside the den!

XXX

Burningly it came on me all at once,
This was the place! those two hills on
the right,
Crouched like two bulls locked horn in horn in fight;
While to the left, a tall scalped mountain
... Dunce,
Dotard, a-doing at the very nonce,
After a life spent training for the sight!

XXXI

What in the midst lay but the Tower itself?
The round squat turret, blank as the fool's heart,
Built of brown stone, without a counter-
part
In the whole world. The tempest's mocking elf
Points to the shipman thus the unseen
shelf
He strikes on, only when the timbers start.

XXXII

Not see? because of night perhaps?—why,
day
Came back again for that! before it left,
The dying sunset kindled through a
cleft:
The hills, like giants at a hunting, lay,
Chin upon hand, to see the game at bay,—
'Now stab and end the creature—to the heft!'

'CHILDE ROLAND TO THE DARK TOWER CAME'

XXXIII

Not hear? when noise was everywhere! it tolled Increasing like a bell. Names in my ears
Of all the lost adventurers my peers,—
How such a one was strong, and such was bold,
And such was fortunate, yet each of old Lost, lost! one moment knelled the woe of years.

XXXIV

There they stood, ranged along the hillsides, met
To view the last of me, a living frame
For one more picture! in a sheet of
flame
I saw them and I knew them all. And yet
Dauntless the slug-horn to my lips I set,
And blew. 'Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came.'

LURIA

1846

I DEDICATE THIS LAST ATTEMPT FOR THE PRESENT AT DRAMATIC POETRY TO A GREAT DRAMATIC POET;
'WISHING WHAT I WRITE MAY BE READ BY HIS LIGHT:'
IF A PHRASE ORIGINALLY ADDRESSED, BY NOT THE LEAST WORTHY OF HIS CONTEMPORARIES, TO SHAKESPEARE,
MAY BE APPLIED HERE, BY ONE WHOSE SOLE PRIVILEGE IS IN A GRATEFUL ADMIRATION,

TO WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR

LONDON: 1846.

PERSONS

LURIA, a Moor, Commander of the Florentine Forces.
HUSAIN, a Moor, his friend.
PUCCIO, the old Florentine Commander, now LURIA'S chief officer.

BRACCIO, Commissary of the Republic of Florence.
JACOPO (LAPO), his secretary.
TIBURZIO, Commander of the Pisans.
DOMIZIA, a noble Florentine lady.

SCENE.—LURIA'S Camp between Florence and Pisa.

TIME, 14—.

ACT I

MORNING

BRACCIO, as dictating to his Secretary;
PUCCIO standing by.

Brac. [to PUCCIO]. Then, you join battle in an hour?

Puc.

Luria, the captain.

Brac. [to the Secretary]. 'In an hour, the battle.'

[To PUCCIO.] Sir, let your eye run o'er this loose digest,

And see if very much of your report
Have slipped away through my civilian phrase.

Does this instruct the Signory aright
How army stands with army?

Puc. [taking the paper]. All seems here:
—That Luria, seizing with our city's force
The several points of vantage, hill and
plain,

Shuts Pisa safe from help on every side,
And, baffling the Lucchese arrived too
late,
Must, in the battle he delivers now,

Beat her best troops and first of chiefs.

Brac.

So sure?

Tiburzio's a consummate captain too!

Puc. Luria holds Pisa's fortune in his
hand.

Brac. [to the Secretary]. 'The Signory hold Pisa in their hand.'

Your own proved soldiery's our warrant, sir:

So, while my secretary ends his task,
Have out two horsemen, by the open roads,
To post with it to Florence!

Puc. [returning the paper]. All seems
here;

Unless . . . Ser Braccio, 'tis my last report!
Since Pisa's outbreak, and my overthrow,
And Luria's hastening at the city's call

To save her, as he only could, no doubt;
Till now that she is saved or sure to be,—

Whatever you tell Florence, I tell you:
Each day's note you, her Commissary,

make

Of Luria's movements, I myself supply.
No youngster am I longer, to my cost;
Therefore while Florence gloried in her choice

And vaunted Luria, whom but Luria, still,
As if zeal, courage, prudence, conduct,
faith,

Had never met in any man before,
I saw no pressing need to swell the cry.
But now, this last report and I have done:
So, ere to-night comes with its roar of
praise,

'Twere not amiss if some one old i' the trade

Subscribed with, 'True, for once rash counsel's best.

'This Moor of the bad faith and doubtful
race,

'This boy to whose untried sagacity,

'Raw valour, Florence trusts without reserve

'The charge to save her,—justifies her
choice;

'In no point has this stranger failed his
friends.

'Now praise!' I say this, and it is not here.

Brac. [to the Secretary]. Write, 'Puccio, superseded in the charge,

'By Luria, bears full witness to his worth,
'And no reward our Signory can give

'Their champion but he'll back it cheerfully.'

Aught more? Five minutes hence, both messengers! [PUCCIO goes.]

Brac. [after a pause, and while he slowly tears the paper into shreds]. I think...
(pray God, I hold in fit contempt

This warfare's noble art and ordering,
And,—once the brace of prizes fairly matched,

Poleaxe with poleaxe, knife with knife as
good,—

Spit properly at what men term their skill!—)

Yet here I think our fighter has the odds.
With Pisa's strength diminished thus and
thus,

Such points of vantage in our hands and
such,

Lucca still off the stage, too,—all's assured:

Luria must win this battle. Write the Court,

That Luria's trial end and sentence pass!
Sec. Patron,—

Brac. Ay, Lapo?

Sec. If you trip, I fall;
'Tis in self-interest I speak—

Brac. Nay, nay,
You overshoot the mark, my Lapo! Nay!

When did I say pure love's impossible?
I make you daily write those red cheeks

thin,
Load your young brow with what concerns it least,

And, when we visit Florence, let you pace
The Piazza by my side as if we talked,

Where all your old acquaintances may see:

You'd die for me, I should not be surprised.
Now then!

Sec. Sir, look about and love yourself!
Step after step, the Signory and you

Tread gay till this tremendous point's to
pass;

Which pass not, pass not, ere you ask your-
self,—

Bears the brain steadily such draughts of
fire,

Or too delicious may not prove the pride
Of this long secret trial you dared plan,

Dare execute, you solitary here,
With the grey-headed toothless fools at

home,
Who think themselves your lords, such slaves are they?

If they pronounce this sentence as you bid,
Declare the treason, claim its penalty,—

And sudden out of all the blaze of life,
On the best minute of his brightest day,

From that adoring army at his back, Thro' Florence' joyous crowds before his

face,
Into the dark you beckon Luria...

Brac. Then—
Why, Lapo, when the fighting-people

vaunt,
We of the other craft and mystery,

May we not smile demure, the danger
past?

Sec. Sir, no, no, no,—the danger, and your spirit

At watch and ward? Where's danger on your part,

With that thin flitting instantaneous steel
'Gainst the blind bull-front of a brute-force

world?

If Luria, that's to perish sure as fate,
Should have been really guiltless after all?

Brac. Ah, you have thought that?
Sec. Here I sit, your scribe,

And in and out goes Luria, days and
nights;

This Puccio comes; the Moor his other
friend,

Husain; they talk—that's all feigned
easily;

He speaks (I would not listen if I could),
Reads, orders, counsels:—but he rests sometimes,—

I see him stand and eat, sleep stretched an hour

On the lynx-skins yonder; hold his bared black arms

Into the sun from the tent-opening; laugh
When his horse drops the forage from his teeth

And neighs to hear him hum his Moorish songs.

That man believes in Florence, as the saint Tied to the wheel believes in God.

Brac. How strange!
You too have thought that!

Sec. Do but you think too,
And all is saved! I only have to write,
'The man seemed false awhile, proves true
at last,

'Bury it'—so I write the Signory—
'Bury this trial in your breast for ever,
'Blot it from things or done or dreamed
about!

'So Luria shall receive his meed to-day
'With no suspicion what reverse was near,—

'As if no meteoric finger hushed
'The doom-word just on the destroyer's
lip,

'Motioned him off, and let life's sun fall
straight.'

Brac. [looks to the wall of the tent]. Did he draw that?

Sec. With charcoal, when the watch
Made the report at midnight; Lady Domizia

Spoke of the unfinished Duomo, you remember;

That is his fancy how a Moorish front Might join to, and complete, the body,— a sketch,—

And again where the cloak hangs, yonder in the shadow.

Brac. He loves that woman.

Sec. She is sent the spy
Of Florence,—spies on you as you on him:
Florence, if only for Domizia's sake,
Is surely safe. What shall I write?

Brac. I see—
A Moorish front, nor of such ill design!
Lapo, there's one thing plain and positive;
Man seeks his own good at the whole world's cost.

What? If to lead our troops, stand forth our chiefs,

And hold our fate, and see us at their beck,
Yet render up the charge when peace return,

Have ever proved too much for Floren-
tines,

Even for the best and bravest of ourselves—
If in the struggle when the soldier's sword Should sink its point before the statist's pen,

And the calm head replace the violent
hand,

Virtue on virtue still have fallen away
Before ambition with unvarying fate,
Till Florence' self at last in bitterness
Be forced to own such falls the natural end,

And, sparing further to expose her sons
To a vain strife and profitless disgrace, Declare, 'The foreigner, one not my child,
'Shall henceforth lead my troops, reach height by height

'The glory, then descend into the shame;
'So shall rebellion be less guilt in him,
'And punishment the easier task for me.'
—If on the best of us such brand she set,

Can I suppose an utter alien here,
This Luria, our inevitable foe,
Confessed a mercenary and a Moor,
Born free from many ties that bind the rest Of common faith in Heaven or hope on
earth,

No past with us, no future,—such a spirit Shall hold the path from which our staunchest broke,
Stand firm where every famed precursor
fell?

My Lapo, I will frankly say, these proofs
So duly noted of the man's intent,
Are for the doting fools at home, not me.
The charges here, they may be true or
false:

—What is set down? Errors and over-
sights,

A dallying interchange of courtesies
With Pisa's General,—all that, hour by
hour,

Puccio's pale discontent has furnished us,
Of petulant speeches, inconsiderate acts,
Now overhazard, overcaution now;
Even that he loves this lady who believes
She outwits Florence, and whom Florence posted

By my procurement here, to spy on me.
Lest I one minute lose her from my sight—
She who remembering her whole House's
fall,

That nest of traitors strangled in the birth,
Now labours to make Luria (poor device As plain) the instrument of her revenge —That she is ever at his ear to prompt

Inordinate conceptions of his worth,
Exorbitant belief in worth's reward,
And after, when sure disappointment follows,

Proportionable rage at such a wrong—
Why, all these reasons, while I urge them
most,

Weigh with me less than least—as nothing weigh.

Upon that broad man's-heart of his, I go:
On what I know must be, yet, while I live,
Shall never be, because I live and know.
Brute-force shall not rule Florence! Intellect

May rule her, bad or good as chance supplies:

But intellect it shall be, pure if bad,
And intellect's tradition so kept up.
Till the good come—'twas intellect that ruled,

'Not brute-force bringing from the battlefield

The attributes of wisdom, foresight's graces

We lent it there to lure its grossness on:
All which it took for earnest and kept safe
To show against us in our market-place,
Just as the plumes and tags and swords-man's-gear

(Fetched from the camp where, at their foolish best,

When all was done they frightened nobody)

Perk in our faces in the street, forsooth, With our own warrant and allowance. No!

The whole procedure's overcharged,—its end

In too strict keeping with the bad first step. To conquer Pisa was sheer inspiration?

Well then, to perish for a single fault, Let that be simple justice! There, my Lapo!

A Moorish front ill suits our Duomo's body:

Blot it out—and bid Luria's sentence come!

[LURIA, who, with DOMIZIA, has entered unobserved at the close of the last phrase, now advances.

Lur. And Luria, Luria, what of Luria now?

Brac. Ah, you so close, sir? Lady Domizia too?

I said it needs must be a busy moment For one like you: that you were now in the thick

Of your duties, doubtless, while we idlers sat . . .

Lur. No—in that paper,—it was in that paper

What you were saying!

Brac. Oh—my day's despatch!

I censure you to Florence: will you see?

Lur. See your despatch, your last, for the first time?

Well, if I should, now? For in truth, Domizia,

He would be forced to set about another, In his sly cool way, the true Florentine, To mention that important circumstance. So, while he wrote I should gain time, such time!

Do not send this!

Brac. And wherefore?

Lur. These Lucchese

Are not arrived—they never will arrive! And I must fight to-day, arrived or not, And I shall beat Tiburzio, that is sure: And then will be arriving his Lucchese, But slowly, oh so slowly, just in time To look upon my battle from the hills, Like a late moon, of use to nobody!

And I must break my battle up, send forth, Surround on this side, hold in check on that.

Then comes to-morrow, we negotiate, You make me send for fresh instructions home, —Incompleteness, incompleteness!

Brac. Ah, we scribes!

Why, I had registered that very point, The non-appearance of our foes' ally,

As a most happy fortune; both at once Were formidable: singly faced, each falls.

Lur. So, no great battle for my Florentines!

No crowning deed, decisive and complete, For all of them, the simple as the wise, Old, young, alike, that do not understand Our wearisome pedantic art of war, By which we prove retreat may be success, Delay—best speed,—half loss, at times,—whole gain:

They want results: as if it were their fault! And you, with warmest wish to be my friend,

Will not be able now to simply say 'Your servant has performed his task—

enough!

'You ordered, he has executed: good!

'Now walk the streets in holiday attire,

'Congratulate your friends, till noon strikes fierce,

'Then form bright groups beneath the Duomo's shade!'

No, you will have to argue and explain, Persuade them, all is not so ill in the end, Tease, tire them out! Arrive, arrive, Lucchese!

Dom. Well, you will triumph for the past enough,

Whatever be the present chance; no service

Falls to the ground with Florence: she awaits

Her saviour, will receive him fittingly.

Lur. Ah Braccio, you know Florence!

Will she, think you, Receive one . . . what means 'fittingly receive'?

—Receive compatriots, doubtless—I am none:

And yet Domizia promises so much!

Brac. Kind women still give men a woman's prize.

I know not o'er which gate most boughs will arch,

Nor if the Square will wave red flags or blue.

I should have judged, the fullest of rewards Our state gave Luria, when she made him chief

Of her whole force, in her best captain's place.

Lur. That, my reward? Florence on my account

Relieved Ser Puccio?—mark you, my reward!

And Puccio's having all the fight's true joy—

Goes here and there, gets close, may fight, himself,

While I must order, stand aloof, o'ersee. That was my calling, there was my true place!

I should have felt, in some one over me,

Florence impersonate, my visible head,
As I am over Puccio,—taking life
Directly from her eye! They give me you:
But do you cross me, set me half to work?
I enjoy nothing—though I will, for once!
Decide, shall we join battle? may I wait?

Brac. Let us compound the matter;
wait till noon:

Then, no arrival,—

Lur. Ah, noon comes too fast!
I wonder, do you guess why I delay
Involuntarily the final blow
As long as possible? Peace follows it!
Florence at peace, and the calm studious

heads

Come out again, the penetrating eyes;
As if a spell broke, all's resumed, each art
You boast, more vivid that it slept awhile.
'Gainst the glad heaven, o'er the white palace-front

The interrupted scaffold climbs anew;
The walls are peopled by the painter's
brush;

The statue to its niche ascends to dwell.
The present noise and trouble have retired
And left the eternal past to rule once more;
You speak its speech and read its records
plain,

Greece lives with you, each Roman breathes your friend:

But Luria—where will then be Luria's
place?

Dom. Highest in honour, for that past's own sake,

Of which his actions, sealing up the sum
By saving all that went before from wreck,
Will range as part, with which be worshipped too.

Lur. Then I may walk and watch you in your streets,

Lead the smooth life my rough life helps
no more,

So different, so new, so beautiful—
Nor fear that you will tire to see parade
The club that slew the lion, now that crooks

And shepherd-pipes come into use again?
For very lone and silent seems my East
In its drear vastness: still it spreads, and
still

No Braccios, no Domizias anywhere—
Not ever more! Well, well, to-day is ours!

Dom. [to BRACCIO]. Should he not have been one of us?

Lur.

Oh, no!

Not one of you, and so escape the thrill
Of coming into you, of changing thus,— Feeling a soul grow on me that restricts
The boundless unrest of the savage heart!
The sea heaves up, hangs loaded o'er the
land,

Breaks there and buries its tumultuous
strength;

Horror, and silence, and a pause awhile:

Lo, inland glides the gulf-stream, miles
away,

In rapture of assent, subdued and still,
'Neath those strange banks, those unimagined skies.

Well, 'tis not sure the quiet lasts for ever!
Your placid heads still find rough hands
new work;

Some minute's chance—there comes the need of mine:

And, all resolved on, I too hear at last.
Oh, you must find some use for me, Ser Braccio!

You hold my strength; 'twere best dispose
of it:

What you created, see that you find food
for—

I shall be dangerous else!

Brac. How dangerous, sir?

Lur. There are so many ways, Domizias warns me,

And one with half the power that I possess,
—Grows very formidable. Do you doubt?

*Why, first, who holds the army . . .

Dom. While we talk,

Morn wears; we keep you from your proper place,

The field.

Lur. Nay, to the field I move no more;
My part is done, and Puccio's may begin:
I cannot trench upon his province longer
With any face.—You think yourselves so
safe?

Why, see—in concert with Tiburzio,
now—

One could . . .

Dom. A trumpet!

Lur. My Lucchese at last!
Arrived, as sure as Florence stands! Your leave! [Springs out.]

Dom. How plainly is true greatness charactered

By such unconscious sport as Luria's here,
Strength sharing least the secret of itself!
Be it with head that schemes or hand that acts,

Such save the world which none but they could save,

Yet think whate'er they did, that world
could do.

Brac. Yes: and how worthy note, that these same great ones

In hand or head, with such unconscious-
ness

And all its due entailed humility,
'Should never shrink, so far as I perceive,
From taking up whatever tool there be Effects the whole world's safety or mishap,

Into their mild hands as a thing of course!
The statist finds it natural to lead

The mob who might as easily lead him—
The captain marshals troops born skilled in war—

Statist and captain verily believe!
While we poor scribes . . . you catch me thinking now,
That I shall in this very letter write
What none of you are able! To it, Lapo!
[DOMIZIA goes.]

This last worst all-affected childish fit
Of Luria's, this be-praised unconscious-
ness,
Convinces me; the past was no child's play:
It was a man beat Pisa,—not a child.
All's mere dissimulation—to remove The fear, he best knows we should entertain.
The utmost danger was at hand. Is't written?

Now make a duplicate, lest this should fail,
And speak your fullest on the other side.

Sec. I noticed he was busily repairing
My half-effacement of his Duomo sketch,
And, while he spoke of Florence, turned
to it,

As the Mage Negro king to Christ the babe.

I judge his childishness the mere relapse
To boyhood of a man who has worked lately,

And presently will work, so, meantime,
plays:

Whence, more than ever I believe in him.

Brac. [after a pause]. The sword! At best, the soldier, as he says,

In Florence—the black face, the barbarous
name,

For Italy to boast her show of the age,
Her man of men! To Florence with each letter!

ACT II

NOON

Dom. Well, Florence, shall I reach thee, pierce thy heart
Thro' all its safeguards? Hate is said to help—

Quicken the eye, invigorate the arm;
And this my hate, made up of many hates,
Might stand in scorn of visible instrument,
And will thee dead: yet do I trust it not.

Nor man's devices nor Heaven's memory
Of wickedness forgot on earth so soon,
But thy own nature,—hell and thee I trust,
To keep thee constant in that wickedness,
Where my revenge may meet thee. Turn
aside

A single step, for gratitude or shame,— Grace but this Luria,—this wild mass of
rage

I have prepared to launch against thee
now,—

With other payment than thy noblest
found,—

Give his desert for once its due reward,—

And past thee would my sure destruction
roll.

But thou, who mad'st our House thy sacrifice,

It cannot be thou wilt except this Moor
From the accustomed fate of zeal and
truth:

Thou wilt deny his looked-for recompense,
And then—I reach thee. Old and trained,
my sire

Could bow down on his quiet broken
heart,

Die awe-struck and submissive, when at
last

The strange blow came for the expected wreath;

And Porzio passed in blind bewilderment
To exile, never to return,—they say,

Perplexed in his frank simple honest soul,
As if some natural law had changed,—

how else
Could Florence, on plain fact pronouncing
thus,

Judge Porzio's actions worthy such reward?

But Berto, with the ever-passionate pulse,
—Oh that long night, its dreadful hour on
hour,

In which no way of getting his fair fame
From their inexplicable charges free,

Was found, save pouring forth the impatient blood

To show its colour whether false or no!
My brothers never had a friend like me

Close in their need to watch the time, then
speak,

—Burst with a wakening laughter on their
dream,

Cry, 'Florence was all falseness, so, false
here!'

And show them what a simple task remained—

To leave dreams, rise, and punish in God's
name

The city wedded to the wickedness.
None stood by them as I by Luria stand.

So, when the stranger cheated of his due
Turns on thee as his rapid nature bids,

Then, Florence, think, a hireling at thy throat

For the first outrage, think who bore thy
last,

Yet mutely in forlorn obedience died!
He comes—his friend—black faces in the camp

Where moved those peerless brows and eyes of old.

Enter LURIA and HUSAIN.

Dom. Well, and the movement—is it as you hope?

'Tis Lucca?

Lur. Ah, the Pisan trumpet merely!
Tiburzio's envoy, I must needs receive.

Dom. Whom I withdraw before; tho'
if I lingered

You could not wonder, for my time fleets
fast.

The overtaking night brings such reward!
And where will then be room for me? Yet, praised,

Remember who was first to promise praise,
And envy those who also can perform!

[Goes.]
Lur. This trumpet from the Pisans?—

Hus. In the camp;
A very noble presence—Braccio's visage On Puccio's body—calm and fixed and
good;

A man I seem as I had seen before:
Most like, it was some statue had the face.

Lur. Admit him! This will prove the last delay.

Hus. Ay, friend, go on, and die thou going on!

Thou heardest what the grave woman said
but now:

To-night rewards thee. That is well to hear;

But stop not therefore: hear it, and go on!

Lur. Oh, their reward and triumph and
the rest

They round me in the ears with, all day
long?

All that, I never take for earnest, friend!
Well would it suit us,—their triumphal
arch

Or storied pillar,—thee and me, the Moors!

But gratitude in those Italian eyes—
That, we shall get?

Hus. It is too cold an air.
Our sun rose out of yonder mound of mist:

Where is he now? So, I trust none of them.

Lur. Truly?

Hus. I doubt and fear. There stands a wall

'Twixt ~~an~~ expansive and explosive race
And those absorbing, concentrating men.

They use thee.

Lur. And I feel it, Husain! yes,
And care not—yes, an alien force like mine
Is only called to play its part outside Their different nature; where its sole use
seems

To fight with and keep off an adverse force,
As alien,—which repelled, mine too withdraws:

Inside, they know not what to do with me.
Thus I have told them laughingly and oft,
But long since am prepared to learn the worst.

Hus. What is the worst?

Lur. I will forestall them, Husain, Will speak the destiny they dare not
speak—

Banish myself before they find the heart.
I will be first to say, 'The work rewards!

'I know, for all your praise, my use is over,
'So may it prove!—meanwhile 'tis best I
go,

'Go carry safe my memories of you all
'To other scenes of action, newer lands.'—

Thus leaving them confirmed in their bélief

They would not easily have tired of me.
You think this hard to say?

Hus. Say or not say,
So thou but go, so they but let thee go!

This hating people, that hate each the other,

And in one blandness to us Moors unite—
Locked each to each like slippery snakes,

I say,
Which still in all their tangles, hissing
tongue

And threatening tail, ne'er do each other
harm;

While any creature of a better blood,
They seem to fight for, while they circle safe
And never touch it,—pines without a
wound,

Withers away beside their eyes and breath.
See thou, if Puccio come not safely out Of Braccio's grasp, this Braccio sworn his foe,

As Braccio safely from Domizia's toils Who hates him most! But thou, the friend
of all,

... Come out of them!

Lur. The Pisan trumpet now!

Hus. Breathe free—it is an enemy, no
friend!

Lur. He keeps his instincts, no new culture mars

Their perfect use in him; just so the brutes Rest not, are anxious without visible
cause,

When change is in the elements at work,
Which man's trained senses fail to apprehend.

But here,—he takes the distant chariot
wheel

For thunder, festal flame for lightning's
flash,

The finer traits of cultivated life
For treachery and malevolence: I see!

Enter TIBURZIO.

Lur. Quick, sir, your message! I but wait your message

To sound the charge. You bring no overture

For truce? I would not, for your General's
sake,

You spoke of truce: a time to fight is come,
And, whatso'er the fight's event, he keeps His honest soldier's-name to beat me with,
Or leaves me all himself to beat, I trust!

Tib. I am Tiburzio.

Lur. You? 'Tis—yes

... Tiburzio!

You were the last to keep the ford i' the valley

From Puccio, when I threw in succours there!

Why, I was on the heights—through the defile

Ten minutes after, when the prey was lost!

You wore an open skull-cap with a twist Of water-reeds—the plume being hewn away;

While I drove down my battle from the heights,

I saw with my own eyes!

Tib. And you are Luria Who sent my cohort, that laid down its arms

In error of the battle-signal's sense, Back safely to me at the critical time— One of a hundred deeds. I know you.

Therefore

To none but you could I . . .

Lur. No truce, Tiburzio!

Tib. Luria, you know the peril imminent

On Pisa,—that you have us in the toils, Us her last safeguard, all that intercepts The rage of her implacablest of foes From Pisa: if we fall to-day, she falls.

Tho' Lucca will arrive, yet, 'tis too late. You have so plainly here the best of it, That you must feel, brave soldier as you are,

How dangerous we grow in this extreme, How truly formidable by despair.

Still, probabilities should have their weight:

The extreme chance is ours, but, that chance failing,

You win this battle. Wherefore say I this? To be well apprehended when I add,

This danger absolutely comes from you. Were you, who threaten thus, a Florentine . . .

Lur. Sir, I am nearer Florence than her sons.

I can, and have perhaps obliged the State, Nor paid a mere son's duty.

Tib. Even so.

Were you the son of Florence, yet ended

With all your present nobleness of soul, No question, what I must communicate Would not detach you from her.

Lur. Me, detach?

Tib. Time urges. You will ruin presently

Pisa, you never knew, for Florence' sake You think you know. I have from time to time

Made prize of certain secret missives sent From Braccio here, the Commissary, home:

And knowing Florence otherwise, I piece

The entire chain out, from these its scattered links.

Your trial occupies the Signory;

They sit in judgment on your conduct now.

When men at home inquire into the acts

Which in the field e'en foes appreciate . . .

Brief, they are Florentines! You, saving them,

Seek but the sure destruction saviours find.

Lur. Tiburzio!

Tib. All the wonder is of course.

I am not here to teach you, nor direct,

Only to loyally apprise—scarce that.

This is the latest letter, sealed and safe,

As it left here an hour ago. One way

Of two thought free to Florence, I command.

The duplicate is on its road; but this,—

Read it, and then I shall have more to say.

Lur. Florence!

Tib. Now, were yourself a

Florentine,

This letter, let it hold the worst it can,

Would be no reason you should fall away.

The mother city is the mother still,

And recognition of the children's service

Her own affair; reward—there's no reward!

But you are bound by quite another tie.

Nor nature shows, nor reason, why at first

A foreigner, born friend to all alike,

Should give himself to any special State

More than another, stand by Florence'

side

Rather than Pisa; 'tis as fair a city

You war against as that you fight for—

famed

As well as she in story, graced no less

With noble heads and patriotic hearts:

Nor to a stranger's eye would either cause,

Stripped of the cumulative loves and hates

Which take importance from familiar

view,

Stand as the right and sole to Læzapheld.

Therefore, should the preponderating gift

Of love and trust, Florence was first to throw,

Which made you hers, not Pisa's, void the scale,—

Old ties dissolving, things resume their

place

And all begins again. Break seal and read!

At least let Pisa offer for you now!

And I, as a good Pisan, shall rejoice—

Though for myself I lose, in gaining you,

This last fight and its opportunity;

The chance it brings of saving Pisa yet,

Or in the turn of battle dying so

That shame should want its extreme bitter-

ness.

Lur. Tiburzio, you that fight for Pisa

now

As I for Florence . . . say my chance were

yours!

You read this letter, and you find . . . no,
no!

Too mad!

Tib. I read the letter, find they purpose
When I have crushed their foe, to crush me; well?

Lur. You, being their captain, what is it you do?

Tib. Why, as it is, all cities are alike;
As Florence pays you, Pisa will pay me.
I shall be as belied, whate'er the event,
As you, or more: my weak head, they will
say,

Prompted this last expedient, my faint
heart

Entailed on them indelible disgrace, Both which defects ask proper punishment.

Another tenure of obedience, mine!

You are no son of Pisa's: break and read!

Lur. And act on what I read? What act were fit?

If the firm-fixed foundation of my faith
In Florence, who to me stands for man-
kind,

—If that break up and, disimprisoning
From the abyss. . . Ah friend, it cannot be!
You may be very sage, yet—all the world
Having to fail, or your sagacity,
You do not wish to find yourself alone!
What would the world be worth? Whose love be sure?

The world remains: you are deceived!

Tib. Your hand!
I lead the vanguard.—If you fall, beside,
The better: I am left to speak! For me,
This was my duty, nor would I rejoice
If I could help, it misses its effect;
And after all you will look gallantly Found dead here with that letter in your
breast.

Lur. Tiburzio—I would see these people once

And test them ere I answer finally!

At your arrival let the trumpet sound:
If mine return not then the wonted cry
It means that I believe—am Pisa's!

Tib.

Well!

[Goes.

Lur. My heart will have it he speaks true! My blood

Beats close to this Tiburzio as a friend.
If he had stepped into my watch-tent, night
And the wild desert full of foes around,
I should have broke the bread and given the salt

Secure, and, when my hour of watch was
done,

Taken my turn to sleep between his knees,
Safe in the untroubled brow and honest
cheek.

Oh world, where all things pass and nought abides,

Oh life, the long mutation—is it so?

Is it with life as with the body's change?

—Where, e'en tho' better follow, good must pass,

Nor manhood's strength can mate with boyhood's grace,

Nor age's wisdom, in its turn, find
strength,

But silently the first gift dies away,
And though the new stays, never both at
once.

Life's time of savage instinct o'er with me,
It fades and dies away, past trusting more,
As if to punish the ingratitude

With which I turned to grow in these new lights,

And learned to look with European eyes.
Yet it is better, this cold certain way,

Where Braccio's brow tells nothing,
Puccio's mouth,

Domizia's eyes reject the searcher: yes!

For on their calm sagacity I lean,
Their sense of right, deliberate choice of
good,

Sure, as they know my deeds, they deal
with me.

Yes, that is better—that is best of all!
Such faith stays when mere wild belief would go.

Yes—when the desert creature's heart, at fault

Amid the scattering tempest's pillared
sands,

Betrays its step into the pathless drift—
The calm instructed eye of man holds fast

By the sole bearing of the visible star,
Sure that when slow the whirling wreck

subside,
The boundaries, lost now, shall be found
again,—

The palm-trees and the pyramid over all.
Yes: I trust Florence: Pisa is deceived.

Enter BRACCIO, PUCCIO, and DOMIZIA.

Brac. Noon's at an end: no Lucca?
You must fight.

Lur. Do you remember ever, gentle
friends,

I am no Florentine?

Dom. It is yourself

Who still are forcing us, importunately,
To bear in mind what else we should forget.

Lur. For loss!—for what I lose in being
none!

No shrewd man, such as you yourselves
respect,

But would remind you of the stranger's
loss

In natural friends and advocates at home,
Hereditary loves, even rivalships

With precedent for honour and reward.
Still, there's a gain, too! If you take it so,

The stranger's lot has special gain as well.
Do you forget there was my own far East

I might have given away myself to, once,
As now to Florence, and for such a gift,
Stood there like a descended deity?
There, worship waits us: what is it waits
here?

[Shows the letter.

See! Chance has put into my hand the
means
Of knowing what I earn, before I work.
Should I fight better, should I fight the
worse,

With payment palpably before me? See!
Here lies my whole reward! Best learn it
now

Or keep it for the end's entire delight?

Brac. If you serve Florence as the vulgar serve,
For swordsman's-pay alone,—break seal and read!

In that case, you will find your full desert.

Lur. Give me my one last happy moment, friends!

You need me now, and all the graciousness,
This letter can contain will hardly balance
The after-feeling that you need no more.
This moment . . . oh, the East has use with
you!

Its sword still flashes—is not flung aside
With the past praise, in a dark corner yet!
How say you? 'Tis not so with Floren-
tines,

Captains of yours: for them, the ended
war

Is but a first step to the peace begun:
He who did well in war, just earns the
right

To begin doing well in peace, you know:
And certain my precursors,—would not
such

Look to themselves in such a chance as
mine,

Secure the ground they trod upon, perhaps?

For I have heard, by fits, or seemed to
hear,

Of strange mishap, mistake, ingratitude,
Treachery even. Say that one of you Surmised this letter carried what might turn

To harm hereafter, cause him prejudice:
What would he do?

Dom. [hastily]. Thank God and take revenge!

Hurl her own force against the city straight
And, even at the moment when the foe Sounded defiance . . .

[TIBURZIO'S trumpet sounds in the distance.

Lur. Ah, you Florentines!
So would you do? Wisely for you, no
doubt.

My simple Moorish instinct bids me clench

The obligation you relieve me from,

Still deeper! [To PUCCIO.] Sound our answer, I should say,
And thus:—[tearing the paper.]—The battle! That solves every doubt.

ACT III

AFTERNOON

PUCCIO, as making a report to JACOPO.

Puc. And here, your captain must report the rest;

For, as I say, the main engagement over
And Luria's special part in it performed,
How could a subaltern like me expect Leisure or leave to occupy the field
And glean what dropped from his wide harvesting?

I thought, when Lucca at the battle's end Came up, just as the Pisan centre broke,
That Luria would detach me and prevent
The flying Pisans seeking what they found,
Friends in the rear, a point to rally by.
But no, more honourable proved my post!
I had the august captive to escort

Safe to our camp; some other could pursue,

Fight, and be famous; gentler chance was
mine—

Tiburzio's wounded spirit must be soothed!

He's in the tent there.

Jac. Is the substance down?
I write.—The vanguard beaten and both
wings

'In full retreat, Tiburzio prisoner'— And now,—'That they fell back and formed again

'On Lucca's coming.' Why then, after all,
'Tis half a victory, no conclusive one?

Puc. Two operations where a sole had served.

Jac. And Luria's fault was—
Puc. Oh, for fault—not much!

He led the attack, a thought impetuously,
—There's commonly more prudence;
now, he seemed

To hurry measures, otherwise well judged.
By over-concentrating strength at first Against the enemy's van, both wings
escaped:

That's reparable, yet it is a fault.

Enter BRACCIO.

Jac. As good as a full victory to Florence,
With the advantage of a fault beside—
What is it, Puccio?—that by pressing forward

With too impetuous . . .

Brac. The report anon!
Thanks, sir—you have elsewhere a charge,
I know. [PUCCIO goes.

LURIA

[ACT III]

There's nothing done but I would do again;

Yet, Lapo, it may be the past proves nothing,

And Luria has kept faithful to the close.
Jac. I was for waiting.

Brac. Yes: so was not I.
He could not choose but tear that letter—true!

Still, certain of his tones, I mind, and looks:—

You saw, too, with a fresher soul than I.
So, Porzio seemed an injured man, they say!

Well, I have gone upon the broad, sure ground.

Enter LURIA, PUCCIO, and DOMIZIA

Lur. [to PUCCIO]. Say, at his pleasure I will see Tiburzio!

All's at his pleasure.

Dom. [to LURIA]. Were I not forewarned

You would reject, as you do constantly,
Praise,—I might tell you how you have deserved

Of Florence by this last and crowning feat:
But words offend.

Lur. Nay, you may praise me now.
I want instruction every hour, I find,
On points where once I saw least need of it;

And praise, I have been used to slight perhaps,

Seems scarce so easily dispensed with now.
After a battle half one's strength is gone;
The glorious passion in us once appeased,
Our reason's calm cold dreadful voice begins.

All justice, power and beauty scarce appear

Monopolized by Florence, as of late,
To me, the stranger: you, no doubt, may know

Why Pisa needs must bear her rival's yoke.
And peradventure I grow nearer you,
For I, too, want to know and be assured.
When a cause ceases to reward itself,
Its friend seeks fresh sustainments; praise is one,

And here stand you—you, lady, praise me well.

But yours—(your pardon)—is unlearned praise.

To the motive, the endeavour, the heart's self,

Your quick sense looks: you crown and call aright

The soul o' the purpose, ere 'tis shaped as, act,

Takes flesh i' the world, and clothes itself a king.

But when the act comes, stands for what 'tis worth,

—Here's Puccio, the skilled soldier, he's my judge!

Was all well, Puccio?

Puc. All was . . . must be well:
If we beat Lucca presently, as doubtless . . .

—No, there's no doubt, we must—all was well done.

Lur. In truth? Still you are of the trade, my Puccio!

You have the fellow-craftsman's sympathy.

There's none cares, like a fellow of the craft,

For the all-unestimated sum of pains
That go to a success the world can see:

They praise then, but the best they never know

—While you know! So, if envy mix with it,

Hate even, still the bottom-praise of all,
Whatever be the dregs, that drop's pure gold!

—For nothing's like it; nothing else records

Those daily, nightly drippings in the dark
Of the heart's blood, the world lets drop away

For ever—so, pure gold that praise must be!

And I have yours, my soldier! yet the best is still to come. There's one looks on apart

Whom all refers to, failure or success;
What's done might be our best, our utmost work,

And yet inadequate to serve his need.
Here's Braccio now, for Florence—here's our service—

Well done for us, seems it well done for him?

His chosen engine, tasked to its full strength

Answers the end? Should he have chosen higher?

Do we help Florence, now our best is wrought?

Brac. This battle, with the foregone services,

Saves Florence.

Lur. Why then, all is very well!

Here am I in the middle of my friends,
Who know me and who love me, one and all.

And yet . . . 'tis like . . . this instant while I speak

'Is like the turning-moment of a dream
When . . . Ah, you are not foreigners like me!

Well then, one always dreams of friends at home;

And always comes, I say, the turning-point

When something changes in the friendly eyes

That love and look on you . . . so slight, so slight . . .

And yet it tells you they are dead and gone,
Or changed and enemies, for all their words,

And all is mockery and a maddening show.
You now, so kind here, all you Florentines,

What is it in your eyes . . . those lips, those brows . . .

Nobody spoke it, yet I know it well!
Come flow—this battle saves you, all's at end,

Your use of me is o'er, for good, for ill,—
Come now, what's done against me, while I speak,

In Florence? Come! I feel it in my blood,
My eyes, my hair, a voice is in my ears
That spite of all this smiling and soft speech

You are betraying me. What is it you do?
Have it your way, and think my use is over—

Think you are saved and may throw off the mask—

Have it my way, and think more work remains

Which I could do,—so, show you fear me not!

Or prudent be, or daring, as you choose,
But tell me—tell what I refused to know
At noon, lest heart should fail me! Well?

That letter?
My fate is sealed at Florence! What is it?

Brac. Sir, I shall not deny what you divine.

It is no novelty for innocence
To be suspected, but a privilege:

The after certain compensation comes.
Charges, I say not whether false or true,

Have been preferred against you some time since,

Which Florence was bound, plainly, to receive,

And which are therefore undergoing now
The due investigation. That is all.

I doubt not but your innocence will prove Apparent and illustrious, as to me,

To them this evening, when the trial ends.

Lur. My trial?
Dom. Florence, Florence to the end,

My whole heart thanks thee!

Puc. [to BRACCIO]. What is 'trial,' sir?
It was not for a trial—surely, no—

I furnished you those notes from time to time?

I held myself aggrieved—I am a man—
And I might speak,—ay, and speak mere truth, too,

And yet not mean at bottom of my heart
What should assist a—trial, do you say?

You should have told me!
Dom. Nay, go on, go on!

His sentence! Do they sentence him?
What is it?

The block—wheel?
Brac. Sentence there is none as yet,

Nor shall I give my own opinion now
Of what it should be, or is like to be.

When it is passed, applaud or disapprove!
Up to that point, what is there to impugn?

Lur. They are right, then, to try me?
Brac. I assert,

Maintain and justify the absolute right
Of Florence to do all she can have done

In this procedure,—standing on her guard,
Receiving even services like yours

With utmost fit suspicious wariness.
In other matters, keep the mummery up!

Take all the experiences of all the world,
Each knowledge that broke through a heart to life,

Each reasoning which, to reach, burnt out a brain,

—In other cases, know these, warrant these,

And then dispense with these—'tis very well!

Let friend trust friend, and love demand love's like.

And gratitude be claimed for benefits,—
There's grace in that,—and when the fresh heart breaks,

The new brain proves a ruin, what of them?

Where is the matter of one moth the more

Singed in the candle, at a summer's end?
But Florence is no simple John or James

To have his toy, his fancy, his conceit
That he's the one excepted man by fate,

And, when fate shows him he's mistaken there,

Die with all good men's praise, and yield his place

To Paul and George intent to try their chance!

Florence exists because these pass away.
She's a contrivance to supply a type

Of man, which men's deficiencies refuse;
She binds so many, that she grows out of them—

Stands steady o'er their numbers, though they change

And pass away—there's always what upholds,

Always enough to fashion the great show.
As see, yon hanging city, in the sun,

Of shapely cloud substantially the same!
A thousand vapours rise and sink again,

Are interfused, and live their life and die,—

Yet ever hangs the steady show 't' the air,
Under the sun's straight influence: that is well,

That is worth heaven should hold, and God should bless!

And so is Florence,—the unseen sun above, Which draws and holds suspended all of
us,

Binds transient vapours into a single cloud Differing from each and better than they
all.

And shall she dare to stake this permanence

On any one man's faith? Man's heart is
weak,

And its temptations many: let her prove
Each servant to the very uttermost
Before she grant him her reward, I say!

Dom. And as for hearts she chances to mistake,

Wronged hearts, not destined to receive
reward,

Though they deserve it, did she only know,
—What should she do for these?

Brac. What does she not?
Say, that she gives them but herself to
serve!

Here's Luria—what had profited his
strength,

When half an hour of sober fancying
Had shown him step by step the useless-
ness

Of strength exerted for strength's proper
sake?

But the truth is, she did create that
strength,

Draw to the end the corresponding means.
The world is wide—are we the only men?

Oh, for the time, the social purpose' sake,
Use words agreed on, bandy epithets,

Call any man the sole great wise and good!
But shall we therefore, standing by ourselves,

Insult our souls and God with the same
speech?

There, swarm the ignoble thousands under
him:

What makes us from the hundreds and the tens?

Florence took up, turned all one way the
soul

Of Luria with its fires, and here he glows!
She takes me out of all the world as him,

Fixing my coldness till like ice it checks
The fire! So, Braccio, Luria, which is best?

Lur. Ah, brave me? And is this indeed
the way

To gain your good word and sincere esteem?

Am I the baited animal that must turn And fight his baiters to deserve their
praise?

Obedience is mistake then? Be it so!
Do you indeed remember I stand here

The captain of the conquering army,—
mine—

With all your tokens, praise and promise, ready

To show for what their names meant when you gave,

Not what you style them now you take
away?

If I call in my troops to arbitrate,
And dash the first enthusiastic thrill

Of victory with this you menace now—
Commend to the instinctive popular sense,

My story first, your comment afterward,—
Will they take, think you, part with you or me?

If I say—I, the labourer they saw work, Ending my work, ask pay, and find my lords

Have all this while provided silently
Against the day of pay' and proving faith,

By what you call my sentence that's to
come—

Will friends advise I wait complacently?
If I meet Florence half way at their head,

What will you do, my mild antagonist?
Brac. I will rise up like fire, proud and triumphant

That Florence knew you thoroughly and by me,

And so was saved. 'See, Italy,' I'll say,
'The crown of our precautions! Here's a
man

'Was far advanced, just touched on the belief

'Less subtle cities had accorded long;
'But we are wiser: at the end comes this!'

And from that minute, where is Luria?
Lost!

The very stones of Florence cry against
The all-exacting, nought-enduring fool

Who thus resents her first probation, flouts

As if he, only, shone and cast no shade,
He, only, walked the earth with privilege

Against suspicion, free where angels fear:
He, for the first inquisitive mother's-word,

Must turn, and stand on his defence, for-
sooth!

Reward? You will not be worth punishment!

Lur. And Florence knew me thus!
Thus I have lived,—

And thus you, with the clear fine intellect,
Braccio, the cold acute instructed mind,

Out of the stir, so calm and unconfused,
Reported me—how could you otherwise!

Ay?—and what dropped from you, just now, moreover?

Your information, Puccio?—Did your
'skill,

Your understanding sympathy approve
Such a report of me? Was this the end?

Or is even this the end? Can I stop here?
'You, lady, with the woman's stand apart,

The heart to see with, past man's brain and
eyes,

... I cannot fathom why you should destroy

The unoffending one, you call your friend—

Still, lessoned by the good examples here
Of friendship, 'tis but natural I ask—
Had you a further aim, in aught you urged,
Than your friend's profit—in all those instances

Of perfidy, all Florence wrought of wrong—

All I remember now for the first time?

Dom. I am a daughter of the Traversari,
Sister of Porzio and of Berto both,
So, have foreseen all that has come to pass.
I knew the Florence that could doubt their faith,

Must needs mistrust a stranger's—dealing them

Punishment, would deny him his reward.
And I believed, the shame they bore and died,

He would not bear, but live and fight against—

Seeing he was of other stuff than they.

Lur. Hear them! All these against one foreigner!

And all this while, where is, in the whole world,

To his good faith a single witness?

Tib. [who has entered unseen during the preceding dialogue]. Here!

Thus I bear witness, not in word but deed.
I live for Pisa; she's not lost to-day
By many chances—much prevents from that!

Her army has been beaten, I am here,
But Lucca comes at last, one happy chance!

I rather would see Pisa three times lost
Than saved by any traitor, even by you;
The example of a traitor's happy fortune
Would bring more evil in the end than good;—

Pisa rejects the traitor, craves yourself!
I, in her name, resign forthwith to you
My charge,—the highest office, sword and shield!

You shall not, by my counsel, turn on Florence

Your army, give her calumny that ground—

Nor bring one soldier: be you all we gain!
And all she'll lose,—a head to deck some bridge,

And save the cost o' the crown should deck the head.

Leave her to perish in her perfidy,
Plague-stricken and stripped naked to all eyes,

A proverb and by-word in all mouths!
Go you to Pisa! Florence is my place—

Leave me to tell her of the rectitude,
I, from the first, told Pisa, knowing it.
To Pisa!

Dom. Ah my Braccio, are you caught?

Brac. Puccio, good soldier and good citizen,

Whom I have ever kept beneath my eye,
Ready as fit, to serve in this event

Florence, who clear foretold it from the first—

Through me, she gives you the command 2nd charge

She takes, through me, from him who held it late!

A painful trial, very sore, was yours:
All that could draw out, marshal in array
The selfish passions 'gainst the public good—

Slights, scorn, neglects, were heaped on you to bear:

And ever you did bear and bow the head!
It had been sorry trial, to precede

Your feet, hold up the promise of reward
For luring gleam; your footsteps kept the track

Thro' dark and doubt: take all the light at once!

Trial is over, consummation shines;
Well have you served, as well henceforth

command!

Puc. No, no . . . I dare not! I am grateful, glad;

But Luria—you shall understand he's wronged:

And he's my captain: this is not the way
We soldiers climb to fortune: think again!
The sentence is not even passed, beside!

I dare not: where's the soldier could?

Lur. Now, Florence—
Is it to be? You will know all the strength O' the savage—to your neck the proof must go?

You will prove the brute nature? Ah, I see!
The savage plainly is impassible:

He keeps his calm way through insulting words, Sarcastic looks, sharp gestures—one of which

Would stop you, fatal to your finer sense,
But if he stolidly advance, march mute

Without a mark upon his callous hide, Through the mere brushwood you grow angry with,

And leave the tatters of your flesh upon,

—You have to learn that when the true bar comes,

The murk mid-forest, the grand obstacle,
Which when you reach, you give the labour up,

Nor dash on, but lie down composed before,

—He goes against it, like the brute he is:
It falls before him, or he dies in his course.

I kept my course through past ingratitude:
I saw—it does seem, now, as if I saw,

Could not but see, those insults as they fell,
—Ay, let them glance from off me, very like,

LURIA

[ACT III]

Laughing, perhaps, to think the quality
You grew so bold on, while you so despised
The Moor's dull mute inapprehensive
mood,
Was saving you: I bore and kept my
course.
Now real wrong fronts me: see if I succumb!
Florence withstands me? I will punish
her.

At night my sentence will arrive, you say.
Till then I cannot, if I would, rebel —Unauthorized to lay my office down,
Retaining my full power to will and do:
After—it is to see. Tiburzio, thanks!
Go; you are free: join Lucca! I suspend
All further operations till to-night.
Thank you, and for the silence most of all!
[To BRACCIO.] Let my complacent bland accuser go

Carry his self-approving head and heart Safe through the army which would trample him

Dead in a moment at my word or sign!
Go, sir, to Florence; tell friends what I
say—

That while I wait my sentence, theirs waits
them!

[To DOMIZIA.] You, lady,—you have black Italian eyes!

I would be generous if I might: oh, yes—
For I remember how so oft you seemed Inclined at heart to break the barrier down Which Florence finds God built between us both.

Alas, for generosity! this hour
Asks retribution: bear it as you may,
I must—the Moor—the savage,—pardon
you!

Puccio, my trusty soldier, see them forth!

ACT IV

EVENING

Enter PUCCIO and JACOPO.

Puc. What Luria will do? Ah, 'tis yours, fair sir,

You and your subtle-witted master's
part,

To tell me that; I tell you what he can.

Jac. Friend, you mistake my station: I observe

The game, watch how my betters play, no
more.

Puc. But mankind are not pieces—
there's your fault!

You cannot push them, and, the first move
made,

Lean back and study what the next shall
be.

In confidence that, when 'tis fixed upon,

You find just where you left them, blacks and whites:

Men go on moving when your hand's
away.

You build, I notice, firm on Luria's faith
This whole time,—firmer than I choose to build,

Who never doubted it—of old, that is—
With Luria in his ordinary mind.

But now, oppression makes the wise man
mad:

How do I know he will not turn and stand
And hold his own against you, as he may?
Suppose he but withdraw to Pisa—well,—
Then, even if all happen to your wish,
Which is a chance . . .

Jac. Nay—'twas an oversight,
Not waiting till the proper warrant came:
You could not take what was not ours to
give.

But when at night the sentence really comes,

Our city authorizes past dispute
Luria's removal and transfers the charge,
You will perceive your duty and accept?

Puc. Accept what? muster-rolls of soldiers' names?

An army upon paper? I want men,
The hearts as well as hands—and where's a heart

But beats with Luria, in the multitude
I come from walking through by Luria's
side?

You gave them Luria, set him thus to grow, Head-like, upon their trunk; one heart feeds both,

They feel him there, live twice, and well know why.

—For they do know, if you are ignorant,
Who kept his own place and respected
theirs,

Managed their sweat, yet never spared his
blood.

All was your act: another might have served—

There's peradventure no such dearth of heads—

But you chose Luria; so, they grew one
flesh,

And now, for nothing they can understand,

Luria removed, off is to roll the head;
The body's mine—much I shall do with it!

Jac. That's at the worst.

Puc. No—at the best, it is!
Best, do you hear? I saw them by his side.

Only we two with Luria in the camp
Are left that keep the secret? You think
that?

Hear what I know: from rear to van, no
heart

But felt the quiet patient hero there Was wronged, nor in the moveless ranks

an eye

But glancing told its fellow the whole story
Of that convicted silent knot of spies Who passed thro' them to Florence; they might pass—

No breast but gladlier beat when free of
such!

Our troops will catch up Luria, close him
round,

Bear him to Florence as their natural lord,
Partake his fortune, live or die with him.

Jac. And by mistake catch up along with him

Puccio, no doubt, compelled in self despite
To still continue second in command!

Puc. No, sir, no second nor so fortunate!

Your tricks succeed with me too well for
that!

I am as you have made me, live and die
To serve your end—a mere trained fighting-hack,

With words, you laugh at while they leave your mouth

For my life's rule and ordinance of God!
I have to do my duty, keep my faith,
And earn my praise, and guard against my
blame,

As I was trained. I shall accept your
charge,

And fight against one better than myself, Spite of my heart's conviction of his
worth—

That, you may count on!—just as hitherto
I have gone on, persuaded I was wronged, Slighted, insulted, terms we learn by rote,—

All because Luria superseded me—
Because the better nature, fresh-inspired,

Mounted above me to its proper place!
What mattered all the kindly graciousness,

The cordial brother's-bearing? This was clear—

I, once the captain, now was subaltern,
And so must keep complaining like a fool!

Go, take the curse of a lost soul, I say!
You neither play your puppets to the end,

Nor treat the real man,—for his realness'
sake

Thrust rudely in their place,—with such regard

As might console them for their altered rank.

Me, the mere steady soldier, you depose
For Luria, and here's all your pet deserves!

Of what account, then, is your laughing,
stock?

One word for all: whatever Luria does,
—If backed by his indignant troops he

turn,
Revenge himself, and Florence go to
ground,—

Or, for a signal everlasting shame,
He pardon you, simply seek better friends,

Side with the Pisans and Lucchese for
change

—And if I, pledged to ingrates past belief, Dare fight against a man such fools call
false,

Who, inasmuch as he was true, fights
me,—

Whichever way he win, he wins for worth,
For every soldier, for all true and good!
Sir, chronicling the rest, omit not this!

As they go, enter LURIA and HUSAIN.

Hus. Saw'st thou?—For they are gone!
The world lies bare

Before thee, to be tasted, felt and seen
Like what it is, now Florence goes away!
Thou livest now, with men art man again!
Those Florentines were all to thee of old;
But Braccio, but Domizia, gone is each,
There lie beneath thee thine own multitudes!

Saw'st thou?

Lur. I saw.

Hus. Then, hold thy course,
my king!

The years return. Let thy heart have its
way:

Ah, they would play with thee as with all
else,

Turn thee to use, and fashion thee anew,
Find out God's fault in thee as in the rest?
Oh watch, oh listen only to these fiends
Once at their occupation! Ere we know,
The free great heaven is shut, their stifling pall

Drops till it frets the very tingling hair, So weighs it on our head,—and, for the
earth,

Our common earth is tethered up and
down,

Over and across—'here shalt thou move,' they cry!

Lur. Ay, Husain?

Hus. So have they spoiled all beside!
So stands a man girt round with Floren-
tines,

Priests, greybeards, Braccios, women,
boys and spies,

All in one tale, all singing the same song.
How thou must house, and live at bed and board,

Take pledge and give it, go their every way, Breathe to their measure, make thy blood beat time

With theirs—or, all is nothing—thou art
lost—

A savage, how shouldst thou perceive as they?

Feel glad to stand 'neath God's close naked hand!

Look up to it! Why, down they pull thy
neck,

Lest it crush thee, who feel'st it and wouldst
kiss,

Without their priests that needs must glove it first,

Lest peradventure flesh offend thy lip.
Love woman! Why, a very beast thou art!
Thou must . . .

Lur. Peace, Husain!

Hus. Ay but, spoiling all,
For all, else true things, substituting false,
That they should dare spoil, of all instincts,
thine!

Should dare to take thee with thine instincts up,

Thy battle-ardours, like a ball of fire,
And class them and allow them place and play

So far, no farther—unabashed the while!
Thou with the soul that never can take rest—

Thou born to do, undo, and do again,
And never to be still,—wouldst thou make war?

Oh, that is commendable, just and right!
'Come over,' say they, 'have the honour due

'In living out thy nature! Fight thy best:
'It is to be for Florence, not thyself!

'For thee, it were a horror and a plague;
'For us, when war is made for Florence,
see,

'How all is changed: the fire that fed on earth

'Now towers to heaven!'

Lur. And what sealed up so long
My Husain's mouth?

Hus. Oh friend, oh lord—for me,
What am I?—I was silent at thy side,
Who am a part of thee. It is thy hand,
Thy foot that glows when in the heart fresh blood

Boils up, thou heart of me! Now, live again,

Again love as thou likest, hate as free!
Turn to no Braccios nor Domizias now,
To ask, before thy very limbs dare move,
If Florence' welfare be concerned thereby!

Lur. So clear what Florence must expect of me?

Hus. Both armies against Florence!

Take revenge!

Wide, deep—to live upon, in feeling now,—

And, after live, in memory, year by year—
And, with the dear conviction, die at last!
She lies now at thy pleasure: pleasure have!

Their vaunted intellect that gilds our sense,
And blends with life, to show it better by,
—How think'st thou?—I have turned that light on them!

They called our thirst of war a transient thing;

'The battle-element must pass away
'From life,' they said, 'and leave a tranquil world.'

—Master, I took their light and turned it full

On that dull turgid vein they said would burst

And pass away; and as I looked on life,
Still everywhere I tracked this, though it hid

And shifted, lay so silent as it thought,
Changed shape and hue yet ever was the same.

Why, 'twas all fighting, all their nobler life!
All work was fighting, every harm—defeat,

And every joy obtained—a victory!

Be not their dupe!

—Their dupe? That hour is past!

Here stand'st thou in the glory and the calm:

All is determined. Silence for me now!

[HUSAIN goes.]

Lur. Have I heard all?

Dom. [advancing from the background].

No, Luria, I remain!

Not from the motives these have urged on thee,

Ignoble, insufficient, incomplete,
And pregnant each with sure seeds of decay,

As failing of sustainment from thyself,
—Neither from low revenge, nor selfishness,

Nor savage lust of power, nor one, nor all,
Shalt thou abolish Florence! I proclaim
The angel in thee, and reject the sprites
Which ineffectual crowd about his strength,

And mingle with his work and claim a share!

Inconsciously to the augustest end

Thou hast arisen: second not in rank

So much as time, to him who first ordained
That Florence, thou art to destroy, should be.

Yet him a star, too, guided, who broke first
The pride of lonely power, the life apart,

And made the eminences, each to each,
Lean o'er the level world and let it lie
Safe from the thunder henceforth 'neath their tops;

So the few famous men of old combined,
And let the multitude rise underneath,
And reach them and unite—so Florence grew:

Braccio speaks true, it was well worth the price.

But when the sheltered many grew in pride
And grudged the station of the elected ones,

Who, greater than their kind, are truly great

Only in voluntary servitude—

Time was for thee to rise, and thou art here.
Such plague possessed this Florence: who can tell

The mighty girth and greatness at the heart

Of those so perfect pillars of the grove
She pulled down in her envy? Who as I,
The light weak parasite born but to twine Round each of them and, measuring them,
live?

My light love keeps the matchless circle
safe,

My slender life proves what has passed
away.

I lived when they departed; lived to cling
To thee, the mighty stranger; thou wouldst
rise

And burst the thralldom, and avenge, I
knew.

I have done nothing; all was thy strong bole.

But a bird's weight can break the infant
tree

Which after holds an acy in its arms,
And 'twas my care that nought should warp thy spire

From rising to the height; the roof is reached

O' the forest, break through, see extend the sky!

Go on to Florence, Luria! 'Tis man's
cause!

Fail thou, and thine own fall were least to dread:

Thou keepest Florence in her evil way,
Encouragest her sin so much the more—
And while the ignoble past is justified, Thou all the surelier warp'st the future growth,

The chiefs to come, the Lurias yet unborn,
That, greater than thyself, are reached o'er
thee

Who giv'st the vantage-ground their foes require

As o'er my prostrate House thyself wast
reached.

Man calls thee, God requites thee! All is
said.

The mission of my House fulfilled at last:
And the mere woman, speaking for her-
self,

Reserves speech—it is now no woman's time. [DOMIZIA goes.

Lur. Thus at the last must figure Luria,
then!

Doing the various work of all his friends,
And answering every purpose save his
own.

No doubt, 'tis well for them to wish; but
him—

After the exploit what were left? Per-
chance

A little pride upon the swarthy brow,
At having brought successfully to bear

'Gainst Florence' self her own especial
arms,—

Her craftiness, impelled by fiercer strength

From Moorish blood than feeds the northern wit—

But after!—once the easy vengeance
willed,

Beautiful Florence at a word laid low —(Not in her domes and towers and palaces,

Not even in a dream, that outrage!)—low,
As shamed in her own eyes henceforth for
ever,

Low, for the rival cities round to laugh,
Conquered and pardoned by a hireling Moor!

—For him, who did the irreparable wrong,
What would be left, his life's illusion
fled,—

What hope or trust in the forlorn wide
world?

How strange that Florence should mistake
me so!

Whence grew this? What withdrew her faith from me?

Some cause! These fretful-blooded children talk

Against their mother,—they are wronged,
they say—

Notable wrongs her smile makes up again!
So, taking fire at each supposed offence,
They may speak rashly, suffer for their
speech:

But what could it have been in word or
deed

Thus injured me? Some one word spoken
more

Out of my heart, and all had changed perhaps,

My fault, it must have been,—for, what gain they?

Why risk the danger? See, what I could do!

And my fault, wherefore visit upon them,
My Florentines? The notable revenge
I meditated! To stay passively,

Attend their summons, be as they dispose!
Why, if my very soldiers keep the rank,
And if my chieftains acquiesce, what then?

I ruin Florence, teach her friends mistrust,
Confirm her enemies in harsh belief,
And when she finds one day, as find she
must,

The strange mistake, and how my heart was hers,

Shall it console me, that my Florentines
Walk with a sadder step, in graver guise,
Who took me with such frankness, praised
me so,

At the glad outset? Had they loved me
less,

They had less feared what seemed a change
in me.

And after all, who did the harm? Not
they!

How could they interpose with those old fools

LURIA

[ACT IV

I' the council? Suffer for those old fools' sake—

They, who made pictures of me, sang the songs

About my battles? Ah, we Moors get blind

Out of our proper world, where we can see! The sun that guides is closer to us!

There—

There, my own orb! He sinks from out the sky.

Why, there! a whole day has he blessed the land,

My land, our Florence all about the hills, The fields and gardens, vineyards, olive-grounds,

All have been blest: and yet we Florentines With souls intent upon our battle here, Found that he rose too soon, or set too late,

Gave us no vantage, or gave Pisa much— Therefore we wronged him! Does he turn in ire

To burn the earth that cannot understand? Or drop out quietly, and leave the sky, His task once ended? Night wipes blame away.

Another morning from my East shall spring

And find all eyes at leisure, all disposed To watch and understand its work, no doubt.

So, praise the new sun, the successor praise,

Praise the new Luria and forget the old! [Taking a phial from his breast.

Strange! This is all I brought from my own land

To help me: Europe would supply the rest,

All needs beside, all other helps save one! I thought of adverse fortune, battle lost, The natural upbraiding of the loser, And then this quiet remedy to seek At end of the disastrous day.

[He drinks.

'Tis sought!

This was my happy triumph-morning: Florence

Is saved: I drink this, and ere night,—die! Strange!

ACT V

NIGHT

LURIA and PUCCIO.

Lur. I thought to do this, not to talk this: well,

Such were my projects for the city's good, To help her in attack or by defence.

Time, here as elsewhere, soon or late may take

Our foresight by surprise thro' chance and change;

But not a little we provide against —If you see clear on every point.

Puc.

Most clear. Lur. Then all is said—not much, if you count words,

Yet to an understanding ear enough And all that my brief stay permits, beside.

Nor must you blame me, as I sought to teach

My elder in command, or threw a doubt Upon the very skill, it comforts me

To know I leave,—your steady soldiership Which never failed me: yet, because it seemed

A stranger's eye might haply note defect That skill, through use and custom, over-looks—

I have gone into the old cares once more, As if I had to come and save again

Florence—that May—that morning! 'Tis night now.

Well—I broke off with? . . .

Puc.

Of the past campaign You spoke—of measures to be kept in mind

For future use.

Lur. True, so . . . but, time—no time! As well end here: remember this, and me!

Farewell now!

Puc.

Dare I speak?

Lur. South o' the river— How is the second stream called . . . no, —the third?

Puc. Pesa.

Lur. And a stone's cast from the fording-place,

To the east,—the little mount's name? Puc. Lupo.

Lur. Ay! Ay—there the tower, and all that side is safe!

With San Romano, west of Evola, San Miniato, Scala, Empoli, Five towers in all,—forget not!

Puc.

Fear not me! Lur. —Nor to memorialize the Council now,

I' the easy hour, on those battalions' claim, Who forced a pass by Staggia on the hills,

And kept the Sienese at check! Puc. One word—

Sir, I must speak! That you submit yourself

To Florence's bidding, howsoever it prove, And give up the command to me—is much, Too much, perhaps: but what you tell me now,

Even will affect the other course you choose—

Poor as it may be, perils even that! Refuge you seek at Pisa: yet these plans

All militate for Florence, all conclude
Your formidable work to make her queen
O' the country,—which her rivals rose against

When you began it,—which to interrupt,

Pisa would buy you off at any price!
You cannot mean to sue for Pisa's help,
With this made perfect and on record?

Lur. I—
At Pisa, and for refuge, do you say?

Puc. Where are you going, then? You must decide

On leaving us, a silent fugitive, Alone, at night—you, stealing through our lines

Who were this morning's Luria,—you
escape

To painfully begin the world once more,
With such a past, as it had never been!
Where are you going?

Lur. Not so far, my Puccio,
But that I hope to hear, enjoy and praise (If you mind praise from your old captain
yet)

Each happy blow you strike for Florence.

Puc. Ay,—
But ere you gain your shelter, what may
come?

For see—though nothing's surely known as yet,

Still—truth must out—I apprehend the
worst.

If mere suspicion stood for certainty
Before, there's nothing can arrest the step Of Florence toward your ruin, once on foot.

Forgive her fifty times, it matters not!
And having disbelieved your innocence,
How can she trust your magnanimity?
You may do harm to her—why then, you
will!

And Florence is sagacious in pursuit.
Have you a friend to count on?

Lur. One sure friend.

Puc. Potent?

Lur. All-potent.

Puc. And he is apprised?

Lur. He waits me.

Puc. So!—Then I, put in your place,
Making my profit of all done by you, Calling your labours mine, reaping their
fruit,

To this, the State's gift, now add yours
beside—

That I may take as my peculiar store
These your instructions to work Florence
good.

And if, by putting some few happily
In practice, I should both advantage her And draw down honour on myself,—what
then?

Lur. Do it, my Puccio! I shall know and praise.

Puc. Though so, men say, 'mark what we gain by change

'—A Puccio for a Luria!

Lur. Even so.

Puc. Then, not for fifty hundred Florences,

Would I accept one office save my own,
Fill any other than my rightful post
Here at your feet, my captain and my lord!
That such a cloud should break, such trouble be,

Ere a man settle, soul and body, down
Into his true place and take rest for ever!
Here were my wise eyes fixed on your right-
hand,

And so the bad thoughts came and the worse words,

And all went wrong and painfully
enough,—

No wonder,—till, the right spot stumbled
on,

All the jar stops, and there is peace at once!
I am yours now,—a tool your right-hand wields!

God's love, that I should live, the man I am,

On orders, warrants, patents, and the like,

As if there were no glowing eye i' the world
To glance straight inspiration to my brain,

No glorious heart to give mine twice the beats!

For, see—my doubt, where is it?—fear?
'tis flown!

And Florence and her anger are a tale
To scare a child. Why, half-a-dozen
words

Will tell her, spoken as I now can speak,
Her error, my past folly—and all's right,

And you are Luria, our great chief again!
Or at the worst—which worst were best of
all—

To exile or to death I follow you.

Lur. Thanks, Puccio! Let me use the privilege

You grant me: if I still command you,— stay!

Remain here—my vicegerent, it shall be,
And not successor: let me, as of old,

Still serve the State, my spirit prompting
yours—

Still triumph, one for both. There! Leave me now!

You cannot disobey my first command?
Remember what I spoke of Jacopo,

And what you promised to concert with
him!

Send him to speak with me—nay, no fare-
well!

You shall be by me when the sentence comes.

[PUCCIO goes.
So, there's one Florentine returns again!
Out of the genial morning-company,
One face is left to take into the night.

Enter JACOPO.

Jac. I wait for your command, sir.

Lur. What, so soon!
I thank your ready presence and fair word.
I used to notice you in early days
As of the other species, so to speak,
Those watchers of the lives of us who act—
That weigh our motives, scrutinize our thoughts.

So, I propound this to your faculty
As you would tell me, were a town to take . . . That is, of old. I am departing hence Under these imputations; that is nought—
I leave no friend on whom they may re-
bound,

Hardly a name behind me in the land,
Being a stranger: all the more behoves
That I regard how altered were the case
With natives of the country, Florentines
On whom the like mischance should fall:
the roots

O' the tree survive the ruin of the trunk—
No root of mine will throb, you understand.

But I had predecessors, Florentines, Accused as I am now, and punished so—
The Traversari: you know more than I How stigmatized they are, and lost in
shame.

Now Puccio, who succeeds me in command,

Both served them and succeeded, in due
time;

He knows the way, holds proper documents,

And has the power to lay the simple truth
Before an active spirit, as I count yours:
And also there's Tiburzio, my new friend,
Will, at a word, confirm such evidence,
He being the great chivalric soul we know.
I put it to your tact, sir—were't not well,
—A grace, though but for contrast's sake,
no more,—

If you who witness, and have borne a share
Involuntarily in my mischance, Should, of your proper motion, set your
skill

To indicate—that is, investigate
The right or wrong of what mischance be-
fell

Those famous citizens, your countrymen?
Nay, you shall promise nothing: but reflect,

And if your sense of justice prompt you—
good!

Jac. And if, the trial past, their fame stand clear

To all men's eyes, as yours, my lord, to
mine—

Their ghosts may sleep in quiet satisfied!
For me, a straw thrown up into the air,
My testimony goes for a straw's worth.
I used to hold by the instructed brain,

And move with Braccio as my master-
wind;

The heart leads surelier: I must move with
you—

As greatest now, who ever were the best.
So, let the last and humblest of your servants

Accept your charge, as Braccio's heretofore.

And tender homage by obeying you!
[JACOPO goes.]

Lur. Another! Luria goes not poorly
forth.

If we could wait! The only fault's with
time;

All men become good creatures: but so
slow!

Enter DOMIZIA.

Lur. Ah, you once more?

Dom. Domizia, whom you knew,
Performed her task, and died with it. 'Tis
I,

Another woman, you have never known.
Let the past sleep now!

Lur. I have done with it.

Dom. How inexhaustibly the spirit grows!

One object, she seemed erewhile born to reach

With her whole energies and die content,—

So like a wall at the world's edge it stood,
With nought beyond to live for,—is that reached?

Already are new undreamed energies
Outgrowing under, and extending farther

To a new object; there's another world.
See! I have told the purpose of my life;

'Tis gained: you are decided, well or ill—
You march on Florence, or submit to
her—

My work is done with you, your brow declares.

But—leave you? More of you seems yet to reach:

I stay for what I just begin to see.

Lur. So that you turn not to the past!

Dom. You trace
Nothing but ill in it—my selfish impulse,
Which sought its end and disregarded
yours?

Lur. Speak not against your nature:
best, each keep

His own—you; yours—most, now that I keep mine,

—At least, fall by it, having too weakly
stood.

God's finger marks distinctions, all so fine,
We would confound: the lesser has its use,

Which, when it apes the greater, is for-
gone.

I, born a Moor, lived half a Florentine;
But, punished properly, can end, a Moor.

Beside, there's something makes me understand

Your nature: I have seen it.

Dom. Aught like mine?

Lur. In my own East . . . if you would stoop and help

My barbarous illustration! It sounds ill; Yet there's no wrong at bottom: rather, praise.

Dom. Well?

Lur. We have creatures there, which if you saw

The first time, you would doubtless marvel at

For their surpassing beauty, craft and strength.

And though it were a lively moment's shock

When you first found the purpose of forked tongues

That seem innocuous in their lambent play,

Yet, once made know such grace requires such guard,

Your reason soon would acquiesce, I think,

In wisdom which made all things for the best—

So, take them, good with ill, contentedly, The prominent beauty with the latent sting.

I am glad to have seen you wondrous Florentines:

Yet . . .

Dom. I am here to listen.

Lur. My own East!

How nearer God we were! He glows above With scarce an intervention, presses close

And palpitatingly, his soul o'er ours: We feel him, nor by painful reason know!

The everlasting minute of creation Is felt there; now it is, as it was then;

All changes at his instantaneous will, Not by the operation of a law

Whose maker is elsewhere at other work. His hand is still engaged upon his world—

Man's praise can forward it, man's prayer suspend,

For is not God all-mighty? To recast The world, erase old things and make them new,

What costs it Him? So, man breathes nobly there.

And inasmuch as feeling, the East's gift, Is quick and transient—comes, and lo, is gone—

While Northern thought is slow and durable,

Surely a mission was reserved for me, Who, born with a perception of the power

And use of the North's thought for us of the East,

Should have remained, turned knowledge to account,

Giving thought's character and permanence

To the too transitory feeling there—

Writing God's message plain in mortal words.

Instead of which, I leave my fated field For this where such a task is needed least,

Where all are born consummate in the art I just perceive a chance of making mine,—

And then, deserting thus my early post, I wonder that the men I come among Mistake me! There, how all had understood,

Still brought fresh stuff for me to stamp and keep,

Fresh instinct to translate them into law! Me, who . . .

Dom. Who here the greater task achieve, More needful even: who have brought fresh stuff For us to mould, interpret and prove right,— New feeling fresh from God, which, could we know O' the instant, where had been our need of it? —Whose life re-teaches us what life should be,

What faith is, loyalty and simpleness, All, once revealed but taught us so long since That, having mere tradition of the fact,—

Truth copied falteringly from copies faint, The early traits all dropped away,—we said On sight of faith like yours, 'So looks not faith 'We understand, described and praised before.' But still, the feat was dared; and though at first It suffered from our haste, yet trace by trace Old memories reappear, old truths return,

Our slow thought does its work, and all's re-known.

Oh noble Luria! What you have decreed I see not, but no animal revenge,

No brute-like punishment of bad by worse—

It cannot be, the gross and vulgar way Traced for me by convention and mistake,

Has gained that calm approving eye and brow!

Spare Florence, after all! Let Luria trust To his own soul, he whom I trust with mine! Lur. In time!

Dom. How, Luria?

Lur. It is midnight now,

And they arrive from Florence with my fate.

Dom. I hear no step.

Lur. I feel one, as you say.

Enter HUSAIN.

Hus. The man returned from Florence!

Lur. As I knew.

Hus. He seeks thee.

Lur. And I only wait for him.

Aught else?

Hus. A movement of the Lucchese troops

Southward—

Lur. Toward Florence? Have out instantly . . .

Ah, old use clings! Puccio must care henceforth.

In—quick—'tis nearly midnight! Bid him come!

Enter TIBURZIO, BRACCIO, and PUCCIO.
Tiburzio?—not at Pisa?

Tib. I return

From Florence: I serve Pisa, and must think

By such procedure I have served her best.

A people is but the attempt of many

To rise to the completer life of one;

And those who live as models for the mass

Are singly of more value than they all.

Such man are you, and such a time is this,

That your sole fate concerns a nation more

Than much apparent welfare: that to

prove

Your rectitude, and duly crown the same,

Imports us far beyond to-day's event,

A battle's loss or gain: man's mass remains,—

Keep but God's model safe, new men will

rise

To take its mould, and other days to prove

How great a good was Luria's glory.

True—

I might go try my fortune as you urged,

And, joining Lucca, helped by your dis-
grace,

Repair our harm—so were to-day's work
done;

But where leave Luria for our sons to see?

No, I look farther. I have testified

(Declaring my submission to your arms)

Her full success to Florence, making clear

Your probity, as none else could: I spoke,

And out it shone!

Lur. Ah—until Braccio spoke!

Brac. Till Braccio told in just a word
the whole—

His lapse to error, his return to knowledge:
Which told . . . Nay, Luria, I should droop

the head,

I whom shame rests with! Yet I dare look
up,

Sure of your pardon now I sue for it,

Knowing you wholly. Let the midnight
end!

'Tis morn approaches! Still you answer
not?

'Sunshine succeeds the shadow past away;

Our faces, which phantasmal grew and

false,

Are all that felt it: they change round you,

turn

Truly themselves now in its vanishing.

Speak, Luria! Here begins your true career:

Look up, advance! All now is possible,

Fact's grandeur, no false dreaming! Dare and do!

And every prophecy shall be fulfilled

Save one—(nay, now your word must come at last)

—That you would punish Florence!

Hus. [pointing to LURIA'S dead body].

That is done.

A SOUL'S TRAGEDY

1846

ACT FIRST, BEING WHAT WAS CALLED THE POETRY OF CHIAPPINO'S LIFE: AND ACT SECOND, ITS PROSE

PERSONS

LUITOLFO and EULALIA, betrothed lovers.
CHIAPPINO, their friend.

OGNIBEN, the Pope's Legate.
Citizens of Faenza.

TIME, 15—. PLACE, Faenza.

ACT I

SCENE.—Inside LUITOLFO'S house.

CHIAPPINO, EULALIA.

Eu. What is it keeps Luitolfo? Night's fast falling,

And 'twas scarce sunset . . . had the ave-bell

Sounded before he sought the Provost's
house?

I think not: all he had to say would take

Few minutes, such a very few, to say!

How do you think, Chiappino? If our
lord

The Provost were less friendly to your
friend

Than everybody here professes him,
I should begin to tremble—should not

you?

Why are you silent when so many times

I turn and speak to you?

Ch. That's good!

Eu. You laugh!

Ch. Yes. I had fancied nothing that bears price

In the whole world was left to call my own;
And, may be, felt a little pride thereat.
Up to a single man's or woman's love,
Down to the right in my own flesh and blood,

There's nothing mine, I fancied,—till you spoke:

—Counting, you see, as 'nothing' the permission

To study this peculiar lot of mine
In silence: well, go silence with the rest Of the world's good! What can I say, small serve?

Eu. This,—lest you, even more than needs, embitter

Our parting: say your wrongs have cast, for once,

A cloud across your spirit!

Ch. How a cloud?

Eu. No man nor woman loves you, did you say?

Ch. My God, were't not for thee!

Eu. Ay, God remains, Even did men forsake you.

Ch. Oh, not so!

Were't not for God, I mean, what hope of truth—

Speaking truth, hearing truth, would stay with man?

I, now—the homeless friendless penniless
Proscribed and exiled wretch who speak to you,—

Ought to speak truth, yet could not, for my death,

(The thing that tempts me most) help speaking lies

About your friendship and Luitolfo's courage

And all our townfolk's equanimity—
Through sheer incompetence to rid myself

Of the old miserable lying trick Caught from the liars I have lived with,—

God,

Did I not turn to thee! It is thy prompting
I dare to be ashamed of, and thy counsel

Would die along my coward lip, I know.
But I do turn to thee. This craven tongue,

These features which refuse the soul its way,

Reclaim thou! Give me truth—truth, power to speak—

And after be sole present to approve
The spoken truth! Or, stay, that spoken truth,

Who knows but you, too, may approve?

Eu. Ah, well—

Keep silence then, Chiappino!

Ch. You would hear,

You shall now,—why the thing we please to style

My gratitude to you and all your friends
For service done me, is just gratitude

So much as yours was service: no whit more.

I was born here, so was Luitolfo; both
At one time, much with the same circumstance

Of rank and wealth; and both, up to this night

Of parting company, have side by side
Still fared, he in the sunshine—I, the shadow.

'Why?' asks the world. 'Because,' replies the world

To its complacent self, 'these playfellows,
'Who took at church the holy-water drop

'Each from the other's finger, and so forth,—

'Were of two moods: Luitolfo was the proper

'Friend-making, everywhere friend-finding soul,

'Fit for the sunshine, so, it followed him.
'A happy-tempered bringer of the best

'Out of the worst; who bears with what's past cure,

'And puts so good a face on't—wisely passive

'Where action's fruitless, while he remedies

'In silence what the foolish rail against;
'A man to smooth such natures as parade

'Of opposition must exasperate;
'No general gauntlet-gatherer for the weak

'Against the strong, yet over-scrupulous
'At lucky junctures; one who won't force-

go
'The after-battle work of binding wounds,
'Because, forsooth he'd have to bring himself

'To side with wound-inflictors for their leave!'

—Why do you gaze, nor help me to repeat
What comes so glibly from the common mouth,

About Luitolfo and his so-styled friend?

Eu. Because that friend's sense is obscured . . .

Ch. I thought

You would be readier with the other half
Of the world's story, my half! Yet, 'tis true.

For all the world does say it. Say your worst!

True, I thank God, I ever said 'you sin,'
When a man did sin: if I could not say it,

I glared it at him; if I could not glare it,
I prayed against him; then my part seemed over.

God's may begin yet: so it will, I trust.

Eu. If the world outraged you, did we?

A SOUL'S TRAGEDY

[ACT I

Ch. What's 'me'
That you use well or ill? It's man, in me,
All your successes are an outrage to,
You all, whom sunshine follows, as you
say!

Here's our Faenza birthplace; they send
here

A provost from Ravenna: how he rules,
You can at times be eloquent about.

'Then, end his rule!'—'Ah yes, one stroke does that!

'But patience under wrong works slow and
sure,

'Must violence still bring peace forth?
He, beside,

'Returns so blandly one's obeisance! ah—
'Some latent virtue may be lingering yet,

'Some human sympathy which, once excite,

'And all the lump were leavened quietly:
'So, no more talk of striking, for this
time!'

But I, as one of those he rules, won't bear
These pretty takings-up and layings-down
Our cause, just as you think occasion suits.
Enough of earnest, is there? You'll play,
will you?

Diversify your tactics, give submission,
Obsequiousness and flattery a turn,

While we die in our misery patient deaths?
We all are outraged then, and I the first:

I, for mankind, resent each shrug and
smirk,

Each beck and bend, each . . . all you do and are,

I hate!

Eu. We share a common censure, then.
'Tis well you have not poor Luitolfo's part Nor mine to point out in the wide offence.

Ch. Oh, shall I let you so escape me,
lady?

Come, on your own ground, lady,—from
yourself,

(Leaving the people's wrong, which most is mine)

What have I got to be so grateful for?
These three last fines, no doubt, one on the other

Paid by Luitolfo?

Eu. Shame, Chiappino!
Ch. Shame

Fall presently on who deserves it most!
—Which is to see. He paid my fines—my
friend,

Your prosperous smooth lover presently,
Then, scarce your wooer,—soon, your husband: well—

I loved you.

Eu. Hold!
Ch. You knew it, years ago.

When my voice faltered and my eye grew
dim

Because you gave me your silk mask to
hold—

My voice that greatens when there's need to curse

The people's Provost to their heart's content,

—My eye, the Provost, who bears all men's
eyes,

Banishes now because he cannot bear,— You knew . . . but you do your parts—my
part, I:

So be it! You flourish, I decay: all's well.
Eu. I hear this for the first time.

Ch. The fault's there?
Then my days spoke not, and my nights of
fire

Were voiceless? Then the very heart may burst,

Yet all prove nought, because no mincing
speech

Tells leisurely that thus it is and thus?
Eulalia, truce with toying for this once!

A banished fool, who troubles you to-
night

For the last time—why, what's to fear
from me?

You knew I loved you!
Eu. Not so, on my faith!

You were my now-affianced lover's
friend—

Came in, went out with him, could speak as he.

All praise your ready parts and pregnant
wit;

See how your words come from you in a crowd!

Luitolfo's first to place you o'er himself
In all that challenges respect and love:

Yet you were silent then, who blame me
now.

I say all this by fascination, sure:
I, all but wed to one I love, yet listen!

It must be, you are wronged, and that the wrongs

Luitolfo pities . . .

Ch. —You too pity? Do!
But hear first what my wrongs are; so began

This talk and so shall end this talk. I say, Was't not enough that I must strive (I saw)

To grow so far familiar with your charms
As next contrive some way to win them—
which

To do, an age seemed far too brief—for,
see!

We all aspire to heaven; and there lies
heaven

Above us: go there! Dare we go? no, surely!

How dare we go without a reverent pause,
A growing less unfit for heaven? Just so,

I dared not speak: the greater fool, it
seems!

Was't not enough to struggle with such folly,

But I must have, beside, the very man

Whose slight free loose and incapacious
soul

Gave his tongue scope to say whate'er he would

—Must have him load me with his benefits —For fortune's fiercest stroke?

Eu. Justice to him
That's now entreating, at his risk perhaps,
Justice for you! Did he once call those acts
Of simple friendship—bounties, benefits?

Ch. No: the straight course had been to call them thus.

Then, I had flung them back, and kept myself

Unhampered, free as he to win the prize
We both sought. But 'the gold was dross,' he said:

'He loved me, and I loved him not: why spurn

'A trifle out of superfluity?

'He had forgotten he had done as much.'
So had not I! Henceforth, try as I could

To take him at his word, there stood by
you

My benefactor; who might speak and
laugh

And urge his nothings, even banter me Before you—but my tongue was tied. A

dream!
Let's wake: your husband . . . how you shake at that!

Good—my revenge!

Eu. Why should I shake?

What forced
Or forces me to be Luitolfo's bride?

Ch. There's my revenge, that nothing forces you.

No gratitude, no liking of the eye
Nor longing of the heart, but the poor

bond
Of habit—here so many times he came,
So much he spoke,—all these compose the tie

That pulls you from me. Well, he paid my fines,

Nor missed a cloak from wardrobe, dish from table;

He spoke a good word to the Provost here,
Held me up when my fortunes fell away

—It had not looked so well to let me drop—

Men take pains to preserve a tree-stump,
even,

Whose boughs they played beneath—much more a friend.

But one grows tired of seeing, after the first,
Pains spent upon impracticable stuff

Like me. I could not change: you know
the rest.

I've spoke my mind too fully out, by
chance,

This morning to our Provost; so, ere night
I leave the city on pain of death. And now

On my account there's gallant intercession

Goes forward—that's so graceful!—and
anon

He'll noisily come back: 'the intercession
'Was made and fails; all's over for us both;

'Tis vain contending; I would better go.'
And I do go—and straight to you he turns

Light of a load; and ease of that permits
His visage to repair the natural bland

Economy, sore broken late to suit
My discontent. Thus, all are pleased—you, with him,

He with himself, and all of you with me

—'Who,' say the citizens, 'had done far better

'In letting people sleep upon their woes,
'If not possessed with talent to relieve them

'When once awake;—but then I had,' they'll say,

'Doubtless some unknown compensating
pride

'In what I did; and as I seem content
'With ruining myself, why, so should they

be.'

And so they are, and so be with his prize
The devil, when he gets them speedily!

Why does not your Luitolfo come? I long
To don this cloak and take the Lugo path.

It seems you never loved me, then?

Eu. Chiappino!
Ch. Never?

Eu. Never.
Ch. That's sad. Say what

I might,
There was no help from being sure this

while You loved me. Love like mine must have return,

I thought: no river starts but to some sea.
And had you loved me, I could soon devise

Some specious reason why you stifled love,
Some fancied self-denial on your part.

Which made you choose Luitolfo; so, excepting

From the wide condemnation of all here,
One woman. Well, the other dream may

break!
If I knew any heart, as mine loved you,

Loved me, though in the vilest breast
'twere lodged,

I should, I think, be forced to love again:
Else there's no right nor reason in the

world.
Eu. 'If you knew,' say you,—but I did not know.

That's where you're blind, Chiappino!—

a disease
Which if I may remove, I'll not repent

The listening to. You cannot, will not, see How, place you but in every circumstance

Of us, you are just now indignant at,
You'd be as we.

Ch. I should be? . . . that;
again!

I, to my friend, my country and my love,

A SOUL'S TRAGEDY

[ACT I

Be as Luitolfo and these Faentines?

Eu. As we.

Ch. Now, I'll say something to remember.

I trust in nature for the stable laws
Of beauty and utility.—Spring shall plant,
And Autumn garner to the end of time:
I trust in God—the right shall be the right
And other than the wrong, while he endures:

I trust in my own soul, that can perceive
The outward and the inward, nature's good

And God's: so, seeing these men and myself,

Having a right to speak, thus do I speak.
I'll not curse—God bears with them, well may I—

But I—protest against their claiming me.
I simply say, if that's allowable,
I would not (broadly) do as they have done.

—God curse this townful of born slaves,
bred slaves,

Branded into the blood and bone, slaves!
Curse

Whoever loves, above his liberty,

House, land or life! and . . .

[A knocking without.
—bless my hero-friend,

Luitolfo!

Eu. How he knocks!

Ch.

The peril, lady!

'Chiappino, I have run a risk—a risk!
'For when I prayed the Provost (he's my friend)

'To grant you a week's respite of the sentence

'That confiscates your goods, exiles yourself,

'He shrugged his shoulder—I say, shrugged it! Yes, .

'And fright of that drove all else from my head.

'Here's a good, purse of scudi: off with you,

'Lest of that shrug come what God only knows!

'The scudi—friend, they're trash—no thanks, I beg!

'Take the north gate,—for San Vitale's suburb,

'Whose double taxes you appealed against,

'In discomposure at your ill-success

'Is apt to stone you: there, there—only go!

'Beside, Eulalia here looks sleepily.

'Shake . . . oh, you hurt me, so you squeeze my wrist!

—Is it not thus you'll speak, adventurous friend?

[As he opens the door, LUITOLFO rushes in, his garments disordered.

Eu. Luitolfo! Blood?

Luit.

There's more

—and more of it!

Eulalia—take the garment! No—you, friend!

You take it and the blood from me—you dare!

Eu. Oh, who has hurt you? where's the wound?

Ch.

'Who,' say you?

The man with many a touch of virtue yet!
The Provost's friend has proved too frank of speech,

And this comes of it. Miserable hound!
This comes of temporizing, as I said!

Here's fruit of your smooth speeches and soft looks!

Now see my way! As God lives, I go straight

To the palace and do justice, once for all!

Luit. What says he?

Ch. I'll do justice on him.

Luit.

Him?

Ch. The Provost.

Luit.

I've just killed him.

Eu.

Oh, my God!

Luit. My friend, they're on my trace;
they'll have me—now!

They're round him, busy with him: soon they'll find

He's past their help, and then they'll be on me!

Chiappino, save Eulalia! I forget . . .

Were you not bound for . . .

Ch.

Lugo?

Luit.

Ah—yes—yes!

That was the point I prayed of him to change.

Well, go—be happy! Is Eulalia safe?

They're on me!

Ch.

'Tis through me they reach you, then!

Friend, seem the man you are! Lock arms—that's right!

Now tell me what you've done; explain how you

That still professed forbearance, still preached peace,

Could bring yourself . . .

Luit.

What was peace for, Chiappino?

I tried peace: did that promise, when peace failed,

Strife should not follow? All my peaceful days

Were just the prelude to a day like this.

I cried 'You call me "friend": save my true friend!

'Save him, or lose me!'

Ch.

But you never said

You meant to tell the Provost thus and thus.

Luit. Why should I say it? What else did I mean?

Ch. Well? He persisted?

Luit. —'Would so order it
'You should not trouble him too soon
again.'

I saw a meaning in his eye and lip;
I poured my heart's store of indignant
words

Out on him: then—I know not! He retorted,

And I . . . some staff lay there to hand—I
think

He bade his servants thrust me out—I struck . . .

Ah, they come! Fly you, save yourselves, you two!

The dead back-weight of the beheading axe!

The glowing trip-hook, thumbscrews and the gadge!

Eu. They do come! Torches in the Place! Farewell,

Chiappino! You can work no good to us—Much to yourself; believe not, all the
world

Much needs be cursed henceforth!
Ch. And you?

Eu. I stay.
Ch. Ha, ha! Now, listen! I am master
here!

This was my coarse disguise; this paper shows

My path of flight and place of refuge—
see—

Lugo, Argenta, past San Nicolo,
Ferrara, then to Venice and all's safe!

Put on the cloak! His people have to fetch A compass round about. There's time
enough

Ere they can reach us, so you straightway
make

For Lugo . . . nay, he hears not! On with
it—

The cloak, Luitolfo, do you hear me?
See—

He obeys he knows not how. Then, if I must—

Answer me! Do you know the Lugo gate?
Eu. The north-west gate, over the bridge?

Luit. I know.

Ch. Well, there—you are not frightened? all my route

Is traced in that: at Venice you escape
Their power. Eulalia, I am master here!

[Shouts from without. He pushes out LUITOLFO, who complies mechanically.

In time! Nay, help me with him—so!
He's gone.

Eu. What have you done? On you, perchance, all know

The Provost's hater, will men's vengeance
fall

As our accomplice.
Ch. Mere accomplice? See!

[Putting on LUITOLFO'S vest.

Now, lady, am I true to my profession,
Or one of these?

Eu. You take Luitolfo's place?
Ch. Die for him.

Eu. Well done!
[Shouts increase.

Ch. How the people tarry!
I can't be silent; I must speak: or sing—

How natural to sing now!
Eu. Hush and pray!

We are to die; but even I perceive
'Tis not a very hard thing so to die.

My cousin of the pale-blue tearful eyes, Poor Cesca, suffers more from one day's

life
With the stern husband; Tisbe's heart goes forth

Each evening after that wild son of hers,
To track his thoughtless footstep through
the streets:

How easy for them both to die like this!
I am not sure that I could live as they.

Ch. Here they come, crowds! They pass the gate? Yes!—No!—

One torch is in the courtyard. Here flock
all.

Eu. At least Luitolfo has escaped.
What cries!

Ch. If they would drag one to the market-place,

One might speak there!
Eu. List, list!

Ch. They mount the steps.

Enter the Populace.

Ch. I killed the Provost!
[The Populace [speaking together].

'Twas Chiappino, friends!
Our saviour! The best man at last as first!

He who first made us feel what chains we
wore,

He also strikes the blow that shatters them,
He at last saves us—our best citizen!

—Oh, have you only courage to speak
now?

My eldest son was christened a year since
'Cino' to keep Chiappino's name in
mind—

Cino, for shortness merely, you observe!
The city's in our hands. The guards are fled.

Do you, the cause of all, come down—
come up—

Come out to counsel us, our chief, our
king,

Whatever rewards you! Choose your own reward!

The peril over, its reward begins!
Come and harangue us in the market-
place!

Eu. Chiappino?
Ch. Yes—I understand your
eyes!

A SOUL'S TRAGEDY

[ACT I

You think I should have promptlier disowned
This deed with its strange unforeseen
success,

In favour of Luitolfo. But the peril,
So far from ended, hardly seems begun.
To-morrow, rather, when a calm succeeds,
We easily shall make him full amends:
And meantime—if we save them as they
pray,

And justify the deed by its effects?

Eu. You would, for worlds, you had denied at once.

Ch. I know my own intention, be assured!

All's well. Precede us, fellow-citizens!

ACT II

SCENE.—The Market-place. LUITOLFO in disguise mingling with the Populace assembled opposite the Provost's Palace.

1st Bystander [to LUITOLFO]. You, a friend of Luitolfo's? Then, your friend is vanished,—in all probability killed on the night that his patron the tyrannical Provost was loyally suppressed here, exactly a month ago, by our illustrious fellow-citizen, thrice-noble saviour, and new Provost that is like to be, this very morning,—Chiappino!

Luit. He the new Provost?

2nd Bys. Up those steps will he go, and beneath yonder pillar stand, while Ogniben, the Pope's Legate from Ravenna, reads the new dignitary's title to the people, according to established custom: for which reason, there is the assemblage you inquire
about.

Luit. Chiappino—the late Provost's successor? Impossible! But tell me of that presently. What I would know first of all is, wherefore Luitolfo must so necessarily have been killed on that memorable night?

3rd Bys. You were Luitolfo's friend?
So was I. Never, if you will credit me, did there exist so poor-spirited a milksop. He, with all the opportunities in the world, furnished by daily converse with our oppressor, would not stir a finger to help us: and, when Chiappino rose in solitary majesty and . . . how does one go on saying? . . .
dealt the godlike blow,—this Luitolfo, not unreasonably fearing the indignation of an aroused and liberated people, fled precipitately. He may have got trodden to death in the press at the south-east gate, when the Provost's guards fled through it to Ravenna, with their wounded master,— if he did not rather hang himself under some hedge.

Luit. Or why not simply have lain perdue in some quiet corner,—such as San Cassiano, where his estate was,—receiving daily intelligence from some sure friend, meanwhile, as to the turn matters were taking here—how, for instance, the Provost was not dead, after all, only wounded —or, as to day's news would seem to prove, how Chiappino was not Brutus the Elder, after all, only the new Provost—and thus Luitolfo be enabled to watch a favourable opportunity for returning?

Might it not have been so?

3rd Bys. Why, he may have taken that care of himself, certainly, for he came of a cautious stock. I'll tell you how his uncle, just such another gingerly treader on tiptoes with finger on lip,—how he met his death in the great plague-year: dico vobis!
Hearing that the seventeenth house in a certain street was infected, he calculates to pass it in safety by taking plentiful breath, say, when he shall arrive at the eleventh house; then scouring by, holding that breath, till he be got so far on the other side as number twenty-three, and thus elude the danger.—And so did he begin; but, as he arrived at thirteen, we will say,—thinking to improve on his precaution by putting up a little prayer to St. Nepomucene of Prague, this exhausted so much of his lungs' reserve, that at sixteen it was clean spent,—consequently at the fatal seventeen he inhaled with a vigour and persistence enough to suck you any latent venom out of the heart of a stone—Ha, ha!

Luit. [aside]. (If I had not lent that man the money he wanted last spring, I should fear this bitterness was attributable to me.)
Luitolfo is dead then, one may conclude?

3rd Bys. Why, he had a house here, and a woman to whom he was affianced; and as they both pass naturally to the new Provost, his friend and heir . . .

Luit. Ah, I suspected you of imposing on me with your pleasantry! I know Chiappino better.

1st Bys. (Our friend has the bile! After all, I do not dislike finding somebody vary a little this general gape of admiration at Chiappino's glorious qualities.) Pray, how much may you know of what has taken place in Faenza since that memorable
night?

Luit. It is most to the purpose, that I know Chiappino to have been by profession a hater of that very office of Provost, you now charge him with proposing to accept.

1st Bys. Sir, I'll tell you. That night was indeed memorable. Up we rose, a mass of us, men, women, children; out fled the guards with the body of the tyrant; we were to defy the world; but, next grey morning,
'What will Rome say?' began everybody.

You know we are governed by Ravenna, which is governed by Rome. And quietly into the town, by the Ravenna road, comes on muleback a portly personage, Ogniben by name, with the quality of Pontifical Legate; trots briskly through the streets humming a 'Cur fremuere gentes,' and makes directly for the Provost's Palace—there it faces you. 'One Messer Chiappino is your leader? I have known three-and-twenty leaders of revolts!' (laughing gently to himself)—'Give me the help of your arm from my mule to yonder steps under the pillar—So! And now, my revolters and good friends, what do you want? The guards burst into Ravenna last night bearing your wounded Provost; and, having had a little talk with him, I take on myself to come and try appease the disorderliness, before Rome, hearing of it, resort to another method: 'tis I come, and not another, from a certain love I confess to, of composing differences. So, do you understand, you are about to experience this unheard-of tyranny from me, that there shall be no heading nor hanging, no confiscation nor exile: I insist on your simply pleasing yourselves. And now, pray, what does please you? To live without any government at all? Or having decided for one, to see its minister murdered by the first of your body that chooses to find himself wronged, or disposed for reverting to first principles and a justice anterior to all institutions,—and so will you carry matters, that the rest of the world must at length unite and put down such a den of wild beasts? As for vengeance on what has just taken place,—once for all, the wounded man assures me he cannot conjecture who struck him; and this so earnestly, that one may be sure he knows perfectly well what intimate acquaintance could find admission to speak with him late last evening. I come not for vengeance therefore, but from pure curiosity to hear what you will do next.' And thus he ran on, on, easily and volubly, till he seemed to arrive quite naturally at the praise of law, order, and paternal government by somebody from rather a distance. All our citizens were in the snare, and about to be friends with so congenial an adviser; but that Chiappino suddenly stood forth, spoke out indignantly, and set things right again.

Luit. Do you see? I recognize him there!

3rd Bys. Ay but, mark you, at the end of Chiappino's longest period in praise of a pure republic,—'And by whom do I desire such a government should be administered, perhaps, but by one like yourself?'—returns the Legate: thereupon speaking for a quarter of an hour together, on the natural and only legitimate government by the best and wisest. And it should seem there was soon discovered to be no such vast discrepancy at bottom between this and Chiappino's theory, place but each in its proper light. 'Oh, are you there?' quoth Chiappino: 'Ay, in that, I agree,' returns Chiappino: and so on.

Luit. But did Chiappino cede at once to this?

1st Bys. Why, not altogether at once. For instance, he said that the difference between him and all his fellows was, that they seemed all wishing to be kings in one or another way,—'whereas what right,' asked he, 'has any man to wish to be superior to another?'—whereat, 'Ah, sir,' answers the Legate, 'this is the death of me, so often as I expect something is really going to be revealed to us by you clearer-seers, deeper-thinkers—this—that your right-hand (to speak by a figure) should be found taking up the weapon it displayed so ostentatiously, not to destroy any dragon in our path, as was prophesied, but simply to cut off its own fellow left-hand: yourself set about attacking yourself. For see now! Here are you who, I make sure, glory exceedingly in knowing the noble nature of the soul, its divine impulses, and so forth; and with such a knowledge you stand, as it were, armed to encounter the natural doubts and fears as to that same inherent nobility, which are apt to waylay us, the weaker ones, in the road of life. And when we look eagerly to see them fall before you, lo, round you wheel, only the left-hand gets the blow; one proof of the soul's nobility destroys simply another proof, quite as good, of the same, for you are found delivering an opinion like this! Why, what is this perpetual yearning to exceed, to subdue, to be better than, and a king over, one's fellows,—all that you so disclaim,—but the very tendency yourself are most proud of, and under another form, would oppose to it,—only in a lower stage of manifestation? You don't want to be vulgarly superior to your fellows after their poor fashion—to have me hold solemnly up your gown's tail, or hand you an express of the last importance from the Pope, with all these bystanders noticing how unconcerned you look the while: but neither does our gaping friend, the burges yonder, want the other kind of kingship, that consists in understanding better than his fellows this and similar points of human nature, nor to roll under his tongue this 'sweeter morsel still,—the feeling that, through immense philosophy, he does not feel, he rather thinks, above you and me!' And so chatting, they glided off arm-in-arm.

Luit. And the result is . . .

1st Bys. Why that, a month having gone by, the indomitable Chiappino, marrying as he will Luitolfo's love—at all events succeeding to Luitolfo's wealth—becomes the first inhabitant of Faenza, and a proper aspirant to the Provostship; which we assemble here to see conferred on him this morning. The Legate's Guard to clear the way! He will follow presently.

Luit. [withdrawing a little]. I understand the drift of Eulalia's communications less than ever. Yet she surely said, in so many words, that Chiappino was in urgent danger: wherefore, disregarding her injunction to continue in my retreat and await the result of—what she called, some experiment yet in process—I hastened here without her leave or knowledge: how could I else? But if this they say be true—if it were for such a purpose, she and Chiappino kept me away . . . Oh, no, no! I must confront him and her before I believe this of them. And at the word, see!

Enter CHIAPPINO and EULALIA.

Eu. We part here, then? The change in your principles would seem to be complete.

Ch. Now, why refuse to see that in my present course I change no principles, only re-adapt them and more adroitly? I had despaired of, what you may call the material instrumentality of life; of ever being able to rightly operate on mankind through such a deranged machinery as the existing modes of government: but now, if I suddenly discover how to inform these perverted institutions with fresh purpose, bring the functionary limbs once more into immediate communication with, and subjection to, the soul I am about to bestow on them—do you see? Why should one desire to invent, as long as it remains possible to renew and transform? When all further hope of the old organization shall be extinct, then, I grant you, it may be time to try and create another.

Eu. And there being discoverable some hope yet in the hitherto much-abused old system of absolute government by a Provost here, you mean to take your time about endeavouring to realize those visions of a perfect State, we once heard of?

Ch. Say, I would fain realize my conception of a palace, for instance, and that there is, abstractedly, but a single way of erecting one perfectly. Here, in the market-place is my allotted building-ground; here I stand without a stone to lay, or a labourer to help me,—stand, too, during a short day of life, close on which the night comes. On the other hand, circumstances suddenly offer me (turn and see it!) the old

Provost's house to experiment upon—ruinous, if you please, wrongly constructed at the beginning, and ready to tumble now. But materials abound, a crowd of workmen offer their services; here, exists yet a Hall of Audience of originally noble proportions, there a Guest-chamber of symmetrical design enough; and I may restore, enlarge, abolish or unite these to heart's content. Ought I not make the best of such an opportunity, rather than continue to gaze disconsolately with folded arms on the flat pavement here, while the sun goes slowly down, never to rise again? Since you cannot understand this nor me, it is better we should part as you desire.

Eu. So, the love breaks away too!

Ch. No, rather my soul's capacity for love widens—needs more than one object to content it,—and, being better instructed, will not persist in seeing all the component parts of love in what is only a single part,—nor in finding that so many and so various loves are all united in the love of a woman,—manifest uses in one instrument, as the savage has his sword, staff, sceptre and idol, all in one club-stick. Love is a very compound thing. The intellectual part of my love I shall give to men, the mighty dead or the illustrious living; and determine to call a mere sensual instinct by as few fine names as possible. What do I lose?

Eu. Nay, I only think, what do I lose? and, one more word—which shall complete my instruction—does friendship go too? What of Luitolfo, the author of your present prosperity?

Ch. How the author?

Eu. That blow now called yours . . .

Ch. Struck without principle or purpose, as by a blind natural operation: yet to which all my thought and life directly and advisedly tended. I would have struck it, and could not: he would have done his utmost to avoid striking it, yet did so. I dispute his right to that deed of mine—a final action with him, from the first effect of which he fled away,—a mere first step with me, on which I base a whole mighty superstructure of good to follow. Could he get good from it?

Eu. So we profess, so we perform!

Enter OGNIBEN. EULALIA stands apart.

Ogni. I have seen three-and-twenty leaders of revolts. By your leave, sir! Perform? What does the lady say of performing?

Ch. Only the trite saying, that we must not trust profession, only performance.

Ogni. She'll not say that, sir, when she knows you longer; you'll instruct her better. Ever judge of men by their professions! For though the bright moment of promising is but a moment and cannot be prolonged, yet, if sincere in its moment's extravagant goodness, 'why, trust it and know the man by it, I say—not by his performance; which is half the world's work, interfere as the world needs must, with its accidents and circumstances: the profession was purely the man's own. I judge people by what they might be,—not are, nor will be.

Ch. But have there not been found, too, performing natures, not merely promising?

Ogni. Plenty. Little Bindo of our town, for instance, promised his friend, great ugly Masaccio, once, 'I will repay you!'—for a favour done him. So, when his father came to die, and Bindo succeeded to the inheritance, he sends straightway for Masaccio and shares all with him—gives him half the land, half the money, half the kegs of wine in the cellar. 'Good,' say you: and it is good. But had little Bindo found himself possessor of all this wealth some five years before—on the happy night when Masaccio procured him that interview in the garden with his pretty cousin Lisa—instead of being the beggar he then was,—I am bound to believe that in the warm moment of promise he would have given away all the wine-kegs and all the money and all the land, and only reserved to himself some hut on a hill-top hard by, whence he might spend his life in looking and seeing his friend enjoy himself: he meant fully that much, but the world interfered.—To our business! Did I understand you just now within-doors? You are not going to marry your old friend's love, after all?

Ch. I must have a woman that can sympathize with, and appreciate me, I told you.

Ogni. Oh, I remember! you, the greater nature, needs must have a lesser one (—avowedly lesser—contest with you on that score would never do)—such a nature must comprehend you, as the phrase is, accompany and testify of your greatness from point to point onward. Why, that were being not merely as great as yourself, but greater considerably! Meantime, might not the more bounded nature as reasonably count on your appreciation of it, rather?—on your keeping close by it, so far as you both go together, and then going on by yourself as far as you please? Thus God serves us.

Ch. And yet a woman that could understand the whole of me, to whom I could reveal alike the strength and the weakness—

Ogni. Ah, my friend, wish for nothing so foolish! Worship your love, give her the best of you to see; be to her like the western lands (they bring us such strange news of) to the Spanish Court; send her only your lumps of gold, fans of feathers, your spirit-like birds, and fruits and gems! So shall you, what is unseen of you, be supposed altogether a paradise by her,—as these western lands by Spain: though I warrant there is filth, red baboons, ugly reptiles and squalor enough, which they bring Spain as few samples of as possible. Do you want your mistress to respect your body generally? Offer her your mouth to kiss: don't strip off your boot and put your foot to her lips! You understand my humour by this time? I help men to carry out their own principles: if they please to say two and two make five, I assent, so they will but go on and say, four and four make ten.

Ch. But these are my private affairs; what I desire you to occupy yourself about, 'is my public appearance presently: for when the people hear that I am appointed Provost, though you and I may thoroughly discern—and easily, too—the right principle at bottom of such a movement, and how my republicanism remains thoroughly unaltered, only takes a form of expression hitherto commonly judged (and heretofore by myself) incompatible with its existence,—when thus I reconcile myself to an old form of government instead of proposing a new one . . .

Ogni. Why, you must deal with people broadly. Begin at a distance from this matter and say,—New truths, old truths! sirs, there is nothing new possible to be revealed to us in the moral world; we know all we shall ever know: and it is for simply reminding us, by 'heir various respective expedients, how we do know this and the other matter, that men get called prophets, poets and the like. A philosopher's life is spent in discovering that, of the half-dozen truths he knew when a child, such an one is a lie, as the world states it in set terms; and then, after a weary lapse of years, and plenty of hard-thinking, it becomes a truth again after all, as he happens to newly consider it and view it in a different relation with the others: and so he restates it, to the confusion of somebody else in good time. As for adding to the original stock of truths,—impossible! Thus, you see the expression of them is the grand business:—you have got a truth in your head about the right way of governing people, and you took a mode of expressing it which now you confess to be imperfect. But what then? There is truth in falsehood, falsehood in truth. No man ever told one great truth, that I know, without the help of a good dozen of lies at least, generally unconscious ones. And as when a child comes in breathlessly and relates a strange story, you try to conjecture from the very falsities in it, what the reality was,—do not conclude that he saw nothing in the sky, because he assuredly did not see a flying horse there as he says,—so, through the contradictory expression, do you see, men should look painfully for, and trust to arrive eventually at, what you call the true principle at bottom. Ah, what an answer is there! to what will it not prove applicable?—‘Contradictions? Of course there were,’ say you!

Ch. Still, the world at large may call it inconsistency, and what shall I urge in reply?

Ogni. Why, look you, when they tax you with tergiversation or duplicity, you may answer—you begin to perceive that, when all's done and said, both great parties in the State, the advocates of change in the present system of things, and the opponents of it, patriot and anti-patriot, are found working together for the common good; and that in the midst of their efforts for and against its progress, the world somehow or other still advances: to which result they contribute in equal proportions, those who spend their life in pushing it onward, as those who give theirs to the business of pulling it back. Now, if you found the world stand still between the opposite forces, and were glad, I should conceive you; but it steadily advances, you rejoice to see! By the side of such a rejoicer, the man who only winks as he keeps cunning and quiet, and says, ‘Let yonder hot-headed fellow fight out my battle! I, for one, shall win in the end by the blows he gives, and which I ought to be giving!’—even he seems graceful in his avowal, when one considers that he might say, ‘I shall win quite as much by the blows our antagonist gives him, blows from which he saves me—I thank the antagonist equally!’ Moreover, you may enlarge on the loss of the edge of party-animosity with age and experience. . . .

Ch. And naturally time must wear off such asperities: the bitterest adversaries get to discover certain points of similarity between each other, common sympathies—do they not?

Ogni. Ay, had the young David but sat first to dine on his cheeses with the Philistine, he had soon discovered an abundance of such common sympathies. He of Gath, it is recorded, was born of a father and mother, had brothers and sisters like another man,—they, no more than the sons of Jesse, were used to eat each other. But, for the sake of one broad antipathy that had existed from the beginning, David slung the stone, cut off the giant's head, made a spoil of it, and after ate his cheeses alone, with the better appetite, for all I can learn. My friend, as you, with a quickened eye-sight, go on discovering much good on the worse side, remember that the same process should proportionately magnify and demonstrate to you the much more good on the better side! And when I profess no sympathy for the Goliaths of our time, and you object that a large nature should sympathize with every form of intelligence, and see the good in it, however limited—I answer, ‘So I do; but preserve the proportions of my sympathy, however finelier or widelier I may extend its action.’ I desire to be able, with a quickened eye-sight, to descry beauty in corruption where others see foulness only: but I hope I shall also continue to see a redoubled beauty in the higher forms of matter, where already everybody sees no foulness at all. I must retain, too, my old power of selection, and choice of appropriation, to apply to such new gifts; else they only dazzle instead of enlightening me. God has his archangels and consorts with them: though he made too, and intimately sees what is good in, the worm. Observe, I speak only as you profess to think and, so, ought to speak: I do justice to your own principles, that is all.

Ch. But you very well know that the two parties do, on occasion, assume each other's characteristics. What more disgusting, for instance, than to see how promptly the newly emancipated slave will adopt, in his own favour, the very measures of precaution, which pressed sorest on himself as institutions of the tyranny he has just escaped from? Do the classes, hitherto without opinion, get leave to express it? there follows a confederacy immediately, from which—exercise your individual right and dissent, and woe be to you!

Ogni. And a journey over the sea to you! That is the generous way. Cry—‘Emancipated slaves, the first excess, and off I go!’ The first time a poor devil, who has been bastinadoed steadily his whole life long, finds himself let alone and able to legislate, so, begins pettishly, while he rubs his soles, ‘Woe-be to whoever brings anything in the shape of a stick this way!’—you, rather than give up the very innocent pleasure of carrying one to switch flies with,—you go away, to everybody's sorrow. Yet you were quite reconciled to staying at home while the governors used to pass, every now and then, some such edict as ‘Let no man indulge in owning a stick which is not thick enough to chastise our slaves, if need require!' Well, there are pre-ordained hierarchies among us, and a profane vulgar subjected to a different law altogether; yet I am rather sorry you should see it so clearly: for, do you know what is to—all but save you at the Day of Judgment, all you men of genius? It is this: that, while you generally began by pulling down God, and went on to the end of your life, in one effort at setting up your own genius in his place,—still, the last, bitterest concession wrung with the utmost unwillingness from the experience of the very loftiest of you, was invariably—would one think it?—that the rest of mankind, down to the lowest of the mass, stood not, nor ever could stand, just on a level and equality with yourselves. That will be a point in the favour of all such, I hope and believe.

Ch. Why, men of genius are usually charged, I think, with doing just the reverse; and at once acknowledging the natural inequality of mankind, by themselves participating in the universal craving after, and deference to, the civil distinctions which represent it. You wonder they pay such undue respect to titles and badges of superior rank.

Ogni. Not I (always on your own ground and showing, be it noted!) Who doubts that, with a weapon to brandish, a man is the more formidable? Titles and badges are exercised as such a weapon, to which you and I look up wistfully. We could pin lions with it moreover, while in its present owner's hands it hardly prods rats. Nay, better than a mere weapon of easy mastery and obvious use, it is a mysterious divining rod that may serve us in undreamed-of ways. Beauty, strength, intellect—men often have none of these, and yet conceive pretty accurately what kind of advantages they would bestow on the possessor. We know at least what it is we make up our mind to forego, and so can apply the fittest substitute in our power. Wanting beauty, we cultivate good humour; missing wit, we get riches; but the mystic unimaginable operation of that gold collar and string of Latin names which suddenly turned poor stupid little peevish Cecco of our town into natural lord of the best of us—a Duke, he is now—there indeed is a virtue to be revered!

Ch. Ay, by the vulgar: not by Messere Stiatto the poet, who pays more assiduous court to him than anybody.

Ogni. What else should Stiatto pay court to? He has talent, not honour and riches: men naturally covet what they have not.

Ch. No, or Cecco would covet talent, which he has not, whereas he covets more riches, of which he has plenty, already.

Ogni. Because a purse added to a purse makes the holder twice as rich: but just such another talent as Stiatto's, added to what he now possesses, what would that profit him? Give the talent a purse indeed, to do something with! But lo, how we keep the good people waiting! I only desired to do justice to the noble sentiments which animate you, and which you are too modest to duly enforce. Come, to our main business: shall we ascend the steps? I am going to propose you for Provost to the people; they know your antecedents, and will accept you with a joyful unanimity: whereon I confirm their choice. Rouse up! Are you nerving yourself to an effort? Beware the disaster of Messere Stiatto we were talking of! who, determining to keep an equal mind and constant face on whatever might be the fortune of his last new poem with our townsmen, heard too plainly 'hiss, hiss, hiss,' increase every moment. Till at last the man fell senseless: not perceiving that the portentous sounds had all the while been issuing from between his own nobly clenched teeth, and nostrils narrowed by resolve.

Ch. Do you begin to throw off the mask?—to jest with me, having got me effectually into your trap?

Ogni. Where is the trap, my friend? You hear what I engage to do, for my part you, for yours, have only to fulfil your promise made just now within doors, of professing unlimited obedience to Rome's authority in my person. And I shall authorize no more than the simple re-establishment of the Provostship and the conferment of its privileges upon yourself: the only novel stipulation being a birth of the peculiar circumstances of the time.

Ch. And that stipulation?

Ogni. Just the obvious one—that in the event of the discovery of the actual assailant of the late Provost . . .

Ch. Hal!

Ogni. Why, he shall suffer the proper penalty, of course; what did you expect?

Ch. Who heard of this?

Ogni. Rather, who needed to hear of this?

Ch. Can it be, the popular rumour never reached you . . .

Ogni. Many more such rumours reach me, friend, than I choose to receive; those which wait longest have best chance. Has the present one sufficiently waited? Now is its time or entry with effect. See the good people crowding about yonder palace-steps—which we may not have to ascend, after all. My good friends! (nay, two or three of you will answer every purpose)—who was it fell upon and proved nearly the death of your late Provost? His successor desires to hear, that his day of inauguration may be graced by the act of prompt bare justice we all anticipate. Who dealt the blow that night, does anybody know?

Luit. [coming forward]. I:

All. Luitolfo!

Luit. I avow the deed, justify and approve it, and stand forth now, to relieve my friend of an unearned responsibility. Having taken thought, I am grown stronger: I shall shrink from nothing that awaits me. Nay, Chiappino—we are friends still: I dare say there is some proof of your superior nature in this starting aside, strange as it seemed at first. So, they tell me, my horse is of the right stock, because a shadow in the path frightens him into a frenzy, makes him dash my brains out. I understand only the dull mule's way of standing stockishly, plodding soberly, suffering on occasion a blow or two with due patience.

Eu. I was determined to justify my choice, Chiappino,—to let Luitolfo's nature vindicate itself. Henceforth we are undivided, whatever be our fortune.

Ogni. Now, in these last ten minutes of silence, what have I been doing, deem you? Putting the finishing stroke to a homily of mine, I have long taken thought to perfect, on the text, 'Let whoso thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.' To your house, Luitolfo! Still silent, my patriotic friend? Well, that is a good sign however. And you will go aside for a time? That is better still. I understand: it would be easy for you to die of remorse here on the spot and shock us all, but you mean to live and grow worthy of coming back to us one day. There, I will tell everybody; and you only do right to believe you must get better as you get older. Ah men do so: they are worst in childhood, improve in manhood, and get ready in old age for another world. Youtn, with its beauty and grace, would seem bestowed on us for some such reason as to make us partly endurable till we have time for really becoming so of ourselves, without their aid; when they leave us. The sweetest child we all smile on for his pleasant want of the whole world to break up, or suck in his mouth, seeing no other good in it—would be rudely handled by that world's inhabitants, if he retained those angelic infantine desires when he had grown six feet high, black and bearded. But, little by little, he sees fit to forego claim after claim on the world, puts up with a less and less share of its good as his proper portion; and when the octogenarian asks barely a sup of gruel and a fire of dry sticks, and thanks you as for his full allowance and right in the common good of life,—hoping nobody may murder him,—he who began by asking and expecting the whole of us to bow down in worship to him,—why, I say he is advanced, far onward, very far, nearly out of sight like our friend Chiappino yonder. And now—(ay, good-bye to you! He turns round the north-west gate: going to Lugo again? Good-bye!)—and now give thanks to God, the keys of the Provost's palace to me, and yourselves to profitable meditation at home! I have known Four-and-twenty leaders of revolts.

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

CHRISTMAS EVE

I

Out of the little chapel I burst
Into the fresh night-air again.
Five minutes full, I waited first

In the doorway, to escape the rain
That drove in gusts down the common's centre

At the edge of which the chapel stands,
Before I plucked up heart to enter.

Heaven knows how many sorts of hands
Reached past me, groping for the latch
Of the inner door that hung on catch
More obstinate the more they fumbled,

Till, giving way at last with a scold
Of the crazy hinge, in squeezed or tumbled
One sheep more to the rest in fold,

And left me irresolute, standing sentry
In the sheepfold's lath-and-plaster entry,
Six feet long by three feet wide,
Partitioned off from the vast inside—

I blocked up half of it at least.
No remedy; the rain kept driving.

They eyed me much as some wild beast,
That congregation, still arriving,
Some of them by the main road, white
A long way past me into the night,
Skirting the common, then diverging;
Not a few suddenly emerging From the common's self thro' the palinggaps,

—They house in the gravel-pits perhaps.
Where the road stops short with its safeguard border
Of lamps, as tired of such disorder;—

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

But the most turned in yet more abruptly
From a certain squalid knot of alleys,
Where the town's bad blood once slept corruptly,

Which now the little chapel rallies
And leads into day again,—its priestliness Lending itself to hide their beastliness
So cleverly (thanks in part to the mason),
And putting so cheery a whitewashed face
on

Those neophytes too much in lack of it,
That, where you cross the common as I
did,

And meet the party thus presided,
'Mount Zion' with Love-lane at the back
of it,

They front you as little disconcerted
As, bound for the hills, her fate averted,
And her wicked people made to mind
him,

Lot might have marched with Gomorrah behind him.

II

Well, from the road, the lanes or the common,

In came the flock: the fat weary woman,
Panting and bewildered, down-clapping

Her umbrella with a mighty report,
Grounded it by me, wry and flapping,
A wreck of whalebones; then, with a snort,

Like a startled horse, at the interloper (Who humbly knew himself improper,
But could not shrink up small enough)

—Round to the door, and in,—the gruff Hinge's invariable scold
Making my very blood run cold.

Prompt in the wake of her, up-pattered
On broken clogs, the many-tattered Little old-faced peaking sister-turned-mother

Of the sickly babe she tried to smother
Somehow up, with its spotted face,
From the cold, on her breast, the one warm
place;

She too must stop, wring the poor ends dry
Of a draggled shawl, and add thereby
Her tribute to the door-mat, sopping Already from my own clothes' dropping,
Which yet she seemed to grudge I should stand on:

Then, stooping down to take off her pattens,

She bore them defiantly, in each hand one,
Planted together before her breast
And its babe, as good as a lance in rest.

Close on her heels, the dingy satins
Of a female something, past me flitted,

With lips as much too white, as a streak
Lay far too red on each hollow cheek;

And it seemed the very door-hinge pitied
All that was left of a woman once,
Holding at least its tongue for the nonce.

Then a tall yellow man, like the Penitent Thief,

With his jaw bound up in a handkerchief,
And eyelids screwed together tight,
Led himself in by some inner light.

And, except from him, from each that entered,

I got the same interrogation—

'What, you the alien, you have ventured

'To take with us, the elect, your station?

'A carer for none of it, a Gallio!'

Thus, plain as print, I read the glance

At a common prey, in each countenance

As of huntsman giving his hounds the tallyho.

And, when the door's cry drowned their
wonder,

The draught, it always sent in shutting,
Made the flame of the single tallow candle

In the cracked square lantern I stood under,

Shoot its blue lip at me, rebutting

As it were, the luckless cause of scandal:

I verily fancied the zealous light

(In the chapel's secret, too!) for spite

Would shudder itself clean off the wick,

With the airs of a Saint John's Candlestick.'

There was no standing it much longer.

'Good folks,' thought I, as resolve grew stronger,

'This way you perform the Grand-Inquisitor

'When the weather sends you a chance visitor?

'You are the men, and wisdom shall die
with you,

'And none of the old Seven Churches vic
with you!

'But still, despite the pretty perfection

'To which you carry your trick of exclu-siveness,

'And, taking God's word under wise protection,

'Correct its tendency to diffusiveness,
'And bid one reach it over hot ploughshares,—

Still, as I say, though you've found

salvation,
'If I should choose to cry, as now,

"Shares!"—
'See if the best of you bars me my ration!

'I prefer, if you please, for my expounder
'Of the laws of the feast, the feast's own

Founder;

'Mine's the same right with your poorest and sickliest

'Supposing I don the marriage vesti-
ment:

'So, shut your mouth and open your Testament,

'And carve me my portion at your quick-liest!'

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

Accordingly, as a shoemaker's lad
With wizened face in want of soap,
And wet apron wound round his waist like a rope,

(After stopping outside, for his cough was bad,

To get the fit over, poor gentle creature,
And so avoid disturbing the preacher)
—Passed in, I sent my elbow spikewise At the shutting door, and entered like-
wise,

Received the hinge's accustomed greeting,
And crossed the threshold's magic pentacle,

And found myself in full conventicle,
—To wit, in Zion Chapel Meeting,
On the Christmas-Eve of 'Forty-nine,
Which, calling its flock to their special clover,

Found all assembled and one sheep
over,
Whose lot, as the weather pleased, was
mine.

III

I very soon had enough of it.
The hot smell and the human noises,
And my neighbour's coat, the greasy cuff
of it,

Were a pebble-stone that a child's hand
poises,
Compared with the pig-of-lead-like pressure

Of the preaching man's immense stupidity,
As he poured his doctrine forth, full
measure,

To meet his audience's avidity.
You needed not the wit of the Sibyl
To guess the cause of it all, in a twinkling:

No sooner our friend had got an inkling
Of treasure hid in the Holy Bible, (Whene'er 'twas the thought first struck
him,

How death, at unawares, might duck him
Deeper than the grave, and quench
The gin-shop's light in hell's grim drench)
Than he handled it so, in fine irreverence,
As to hug the book of books to pieces:
And, a patchwork of chapters and texts in severance,

Not improved by the private dog's-ears and creases,

Having clothed his own soul with, he'd fain see equipt yours,—

So tossed you again your Holy Scriptures.
And you picked them up, in a sense, no
doubt:

Nay, had but a single face of my neighbours

Appeared to suspect that the preacher's labours

Were help which the world could be saved
without,

'Tis odds but I might have borne in quiet
A qualm or two at my spiritual diet,
Or (who can tell?) perchance even muste-
tered

Somewhat to urge in behalf of the sermon:

But the flock sat on, divinely flustered,
Sniffing, methought, its dew of Hermon
With such content in every snuffle,
As the devil inside us loves to ruffle.
My old fat woman purred with pleasure,
And thumb round thumb went twirling faster,

While she, to his periods keeping measure,
Maternally devoured the pastor.
The man with the handkerchief untied it,
Showed us a horrible wen inside it,
Gave his eyelids yet another screwing,
And rocked himself as the woman was doing.

The shoemaker's lad, discreetly choking, Kept down his cough. 'Twas too provo-
king!

'My gorge rose at the nonsense and stuff
of it;

So, saying like Eve when she plucked the apple,

'I wanted a taste, and now there's enough of it,'

I flung out of the little chapel.

IV

There was a lull in the rain, a lull
In the wind too; the moon was risen,
And would have shone out pure and full,
But for the ramparted cloud-prison,
Block on block built up in the West,
For what purpose the wind knows best,
Who changes his mind continually.
And the empty other half of the sky
Seemed in its silence as if it knew What, any moment, might look through
A chance gap in that fortress massy:—

Through its fissures you got hints
Of the flying moon, by the shifting tints,
Now, a dull lion-colour, now, brassy
Burning to yellow, and whitest yellow,
Like furnace-smoke just ere flames bellow,
All a-simmer with intense strain
To let her through,—then blank again,
At the hope of her appearance failing.
Just by the chapel, a break in the railing Shows a narrow path directly across;
'Tis ever dry walking there, on the moss—
Besides, you go gently all the way uphill.

I stooped under and soon felt better:
My head grew lighter, my limbs more supple,

As I walked on, glad to have slipt the fetter.

My mind was full of the scene I had left,
That placid flock, that pastor vociferant, —How this outside was pure and different!

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

The sermon, now—what a mingled weft
Of good and ill! Were either less,
Its fellow had coloured the whole distinctly;

But alas for the excellent earnestness,
And the truths, quite true if stated succinctly,

But as surely false, in their quaint presentment,

However to pastor and flock's contentment!

Say rather, such truths looked false to your eyes,

With his provings and parallels twisted and twined,

Till how could you know them, grown double their size

In the natural fog of the good man's mind,

Like yonder spots of our roadside lamps, Haloed about with the common's damps?

Truth remains true, the fault's in the prover;

The zeal was good, and the aspiration;

And yet, and yet, yet, fifty times over,
Pharaoh received no demonstration,

By his Baker's dream of Baskets Threë,
Of the doctrine of the Trinity,—

Although, as our preacher thus embellished it,

Apparently his hearers relished it With so unfeigned a gust—who knows if

They did not prefer our friend to Joseph?
But so it is everywhere, one way with all of them!

These people have really felt, no doubt,
A something, the motion they style the Call of them;

And this is their method of bringing about,

By a mechanism of words and tones,
(So many texts in so many groans)

A sort of reviving and reproducing,
More or less perfectly, (who can tell?)

The mood itself, which strengthens by using;

And how that happens, I understand well.

A tune was born in my head last week,
Out of the thump-thump and shriek-shriek

Of the train, as I came by it, up from Manchester;

And when, next week, I take it back again,
My head will sing to the engine's clack again,

While it only makes my neighbour's haunches stir,

—Finding no dormant musical sprout
In him, as in me, to be jolted out.

'Tis the taught already that profits by teaching;

He gets no more from the railway's preaching

Than, from this preacher who does the rail's office, I:

Whom therefore the flock cast a jealous eye on.

Still, why paint over their door 'Mount Zion,'

To which all flesh shall come, saith the prophecy?

But wherefore be harsh on a single case?
After how many modes, this Christmas-

Eve,

Does the self-same weary thing take place?
The same endeavour to make you believe,

And with much the same effect, no more:
Each method abundantly convincing,

As I say, to those convinced before,
But scarce to be swallowed without wincing

By the not-as-yet-convinced. For me,
I have my own church equally:

And in this church my faith sprang first!
(I said, as I reached the rising ground,

And the wind began again, with a burst
Of rain in my face, and a glad rebound

From the heart beneath, as if, God speeding me,

I entered his church-door, nature leading me)

—In youth I looked to these very skies,
And probing their immensities,

I found God there, his visible power;
Yet felt in my heart, amid all its sense

Of the power, an equal evidence
That his love, there too, was the nobler dower.

For the loving worm within its clod,
Were diviner than a loveless god

Amid his worlds, I will dare to say.
You know what I mean: God's all,

man's nought:

But also, God, whose pleasure brought Man into being, stands away

As it were a handbreadth off, to give Room for the newly-made to live,

And look at him from a place apart,
And use his gifts of brain and heart,

Given, indeed, but to keep for ever.
Who speaks of man, then, must not sever

Man's very elements from man,
Saying, 'But all is God's'—whose plan

Was to create man and then leave him
Able, his own word saith, to grieve him,

But able to glorify him too,

As a mere machine could never do,
That prayed or praised, all unaware

Of its fitness for aught but praise and prayer,

Made perfect as a thing of course.
Man, therefore, stands on his own stock

Of love and power as a pin-point rock:
And, looking to God who ordained divorce

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

Of the rock from his boundless continent,
Sees, in his power made evident,
Only excess by a million-fold O'er the power God gave man in the mould.

For, note: man's hand, first formed to carry

A few pounds' weight, when taught to marry

Its strength with an engine's, lifts a mountain,

—Advancing in power by one degree;
And why count steps through eternity?

But love is the ever-springing fountain:
Man may enlarge or narrow his bed
For the water's play, but the water-head—
How can he multiply or reduce it?

As easy create it, as cause it to cease;
He may profit by it, or abuse it,

But 'tis not a thing to bear increase
As power does: be love less or more

In the heart of man, he keeps it shut
Or opes it wide, as he pleases, but

Love's sum remains what it was before.
So, gazing up, in my youth, at love

As seen through power, ever above
All modes which make it manifest,

My soul brought all to a single test—
That he, the Eternal First and Last,

Who, in his power, had so surpassed
All man conceives of what is might,—

Whose wisdom, too, showed infinite,
—Would prove as infinitely good;

Would never, (my soul understood,)
With power to work all love desires,

Bestow e'en less than man requires;
That he who endlessly was teaching,

Above my spirit's utmost reaching,
What love can do in the leaf or stone,

(So that to master this alone,
This done in the stone or leaf for me,

I must go on learning endlessly)
Would never need that I, in turn,

Should point him out defect unheeded,
And show that God had yet to learn

What the meanest human creature needed.

—Not life, to wit, for a few short years, Tracking his way through doubts and

fears,
While the stupid earth on which I stay

Suffers no change, but passive adds
Its myriad years to myriads,

Though I, he gave it to, decay,
Seeing death come and choose about me,

And my dearest ones depart without me.
No: love which, on earth, amid all the shows of it,

Has ever been seen the sole good of life

in it,
The love, ever growing there, spite of the strife in it, Shall arise, made perfect, from death's repose of it.

And shall behold thee, face to face,
O God, and in thy light retrace
How in all I loved here, still wast thou!
Whom pressing to, then, as I fain would

now,
I shall find as able to satiate

The love, thy gift, as my spirit's wonder
Thou art able to quicken and sublimiate,

With this sky of thine, that I now walk
under,

And glory in thee for, as I gaze
Thus, thus! Oh, let men keep their ways

Of seeking thee in a narrow shrine—
Be this my way! And this is mine!

VI

For lo, what think you? suddenly
The rain and the wind ceased, and the sky

Received at once the full fruition
Of the moon's consummate apparition.

The black cloud-barricade was riven,
Ruined beneath her feet, and driven

Deep in the West; while, bare and breath-
less,

North and South and East lay ready For a glorious thing that, dauntless, death-

less,
Sprang across them and stood steady.

'Twas a moon-rainbow, vast and perfect,
From heaven to heaven extending, perfect

As the mother-moon's self, full in face.
It rose, distinctly at the base

With its seven proper colours chorded,
Which still, in the rising, were compressed,

Until at last they coalesced,
And supreme the spectral creature

lorded
In a triumph of whitest white,—

Above which intervened the night.
But above night too, like only the next,

The second of a wondrous sequence,
Reaching in rare and rarer frequency,

Till the heaven of heavens were circumflexed,

Another rainbow rose, a mightier,
Fainter, flushier and flightier,—

Rapture dying along its verge.
Oh, whose foot shall I see emerge,

Whose, from the straining topmost dark,
On to the keystone of that arc?

This sight was shown me, there and then,—
Me, one out of a world of men,

Singled forth, as the chance might hap
To another if, in a thunderclap

Where I heard noise and you saw flame,
Some one man knew God called his name.

For me, I think I said, 'Appear!
'Good were it to be ever here.

'If thou wilt, let me build to thee
'Service-tabernacles three,

'Where, forever in thy presence,
'In ecstatic acquiescence,

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

'Far alike from thriftless learning
'And ignorance's undiscerning,
'I may worship and remain!

Thus at the show above me, gazing
With upturned eyes, I felt my brain
Glutted with the glory, blazing Throughout its whole mass, over and under Until at length it burst asunder
And out of it bodily there streamed,
The too-much glory, as it seemed,
Passing from out me to the ground,
Then palely serpentine round
Into the dark with mazy error.

VIII

All at once I looked up with terror.
He was there.

He himself with his human air.
On the narrow pathway, just before.
I saw the back of him, no more—
He had left the chapel, then, as I.
I forgot all about the sky.

No face: only the sight
Of a sweepy garment, vast and white,
With a hem that I could recognize.

I felt terror, no surprise;
My mind filled with the cataract,
At one bound of the mighty fact.

'I remember, he did say

'Doubtless that, to this world's end,
'Where two or three should meet and pray,
'He would be in the midst, their friend;
'Certainly he was there with them!'

And my pulses leaped for joy
Of the golden thought without alloy,
That I saw his very vesture's hem.
Then rushed the blood back, cold and
clear,

With a fresh enhancing shiver of fear;
And I hastened, cried out while I pressed
To the salvation of the vest,

'But not so, Lord! It cannot be
'That thou, indeed, art leaving me—
'Me, that have despised thy friends!

'Did my heart make no amends?
'Thou art the love of God—above
'His power, didst hear me place his love,
'And that was leaving the world for thee.
'Therefore thou must not turn from me
'As I had chosen the other part!

'Folly and pride o'ercame my heart.
'Our best is bad, nor bears thy test;
'Still, it should be our very best.

'I thought it best that thou, the spirit,
'Be worshipped in spirit and in truth,
'And in beauty, as even we require it—

'Not in the forms burlesque, uncouth,
'I left but now, as scarcely fitted
'For thee: I knew not what I pitied.

'But, all I felt there, right or wrong,
'What is it to thee, who curest sinning?
'Am I not weak as thou art strong?

'I have looked to thee from the beginning,

'Straight up to thee through all the world
'Which, like an idle scroll, lay furled
'To nothingness on either side:
'And since the time thou wast descried,
'Spite of the weak heart, so have I 'Lived ever, and so fain would die,
'Living and dying, thee before!
'But, if thou leavest me——'

IX

Less or more,
I suppose that I spoke thus.

When,—have mercy, Lord, on us!
The whole face turned upon me full.

And I spread myself beneath it,
As when the bleacher spreads, to see the
it

In the cleansing sun, his wool,— Steeps in the flood of noontide whiteness
Some defiled, discoloured web—

So lay I, saturate with brightness.
And when the flood appeared to ebb,
Lo, I was walking, light and swift,

With my senses settling fast and steady-
ing,

But my body caught up in the whirl and
drift

Of the vesture's amplitude, still eddying
On, just before me, still to be followed,

As it carried me after with its motion:
What shall I say?—as a path were hol-
lowed

And a man went weltering through the
ocean,

Sucked along in the flying wake
Of the luminous water-snake.

Darkness and cold were cloven, as through
I passed, upborne yet walking too.

And I turned to myself at intervals,—
'So he said, so it befalls.

'God who registers the cup
'Of mere cold water, for his sake

'To a disciple rendered up,
'Disdains not his own thirst to slake

'At the poorest love was ever offered:
'And because my heart I proffered,

'With true love trembling at the brim,
'He suffers me to follow him

'For ever, my own way,—dispensed
'From seeking to be influenced

'By all the less immediate ways
'That earth, in worships manifold,

'Adopts to reach, by prayer and praise,
'The garment's hem, which, lo, I hold!'

X

And so we crossed the world and stopped.

For where am I, in city or plain,
Since I am 'ware of the world again?

And what is this that rises propped
With pillars of prodigious girth?

Is it really on the earth,
This miraculous Dome of God?
Has the angel's measuring-rod

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

Which numbered cubits, gem from gem,
'Twixt the gates of the New Jerusalem,
Meted it out,—and what he meted,
Have the sons of men completed?

—Binding, ever as he bade,
Columns in the colonnade
With arms wide open to embrace
The entry of the human race
To the breast of . . . what is it, yon building, Ablaze in front, all paint and gilding,
With marble for brick, and stones of price
For garniture of the edifice?
Now I see; it is no dream;
It stands there and it does not seem;
For ever, in pictures, thus it looks,
And thus I have read of it in books
Often in England, leagues away,
And wondered how these fountains play,
Growing up eternally
Each to a musical water-tree,
Whose blossoms drop, a glittering boon,
Before my eyes, in the light of the moon,
To the granite lavers underneath.
Liar and dreamer in your teeth!
I, the sinner that speak to you,
Was in Rome this night, and stood, and
knew

Both this and more. For see, for see,
The dark is rent, mine eye is free
To pierce the crust of the outer wall,
And I view inside, and all there, all,
As the swarming hollow of a hive,
The whole Basilica alive!
Men in the chancel, body and nave,
Men on the pillars' architrave,
Men on the statues, men on the tombs
With popes and kings in their porphyry wombs,
All famishing in expectation
Of the main-altar's consummation.
For see, for see, the rapturous moment
Approaches, and earth's best endowment Blends with heaven's; the taper-fires
Pant up, the winding brazen spires
Heave loftier yet the baldachin;
The incense-gaspings, long kept in,
Supsire in clouds; the organ blatant Holds his breath and grovels latent,
As if God's hushing finger grazed him,
(Like Behemoth when he praised him)
At the silver bell's shrill tinkling,
Quick cold drops of terror sprinkling
On the sudden pavement strewed
With faces of the multitude.
Earth breaks up, time drops away,
In flows heaven, with its new day
Of endless life, when He who trod,
Very man and very God,
This earth in weakness, shame and pain,
Dying the death whose signs remain
Up yonder on the accursed tree,— Shall come again, no more to be Of captivity the thrall,
But the one God, All in all,

King of kings, Lord of lords,
As His servant John received the words,
'I died, and live for evermore!'

XI

Yet I was left outside the door.
'Why sit I here on the threshold-stone
'Left till He return, alone
'Save for the garment's extreme fold
'Abandoned still to bless my hold?'
My reason, to my doubt, replied,
As if a book were opened wide,
And at a certain page I traced
Every record undefaced,
Added by successive years,—
The harvestings of truth's stray ears
Singly gleaned, and in one sheaf
Bound together for belief.
Yes, I said—that he will go
And sit with these in turn, I know.
Their faith's heart beats, though her head swims

Too giddily to guide her limbs,
Disabled by their palsy-stroke
From propping mine. Though Rome's gross yoke
Drops off, no more to be endured,
Her teaching is not so obscured
By errors and perversities,
That no truth shines athwart the lies
And he, whose eye detects a spark Even where, to man's, the whole seems
dark,

May well see flame where each beholder
Acknowledges the embers smoulder.
But I, a mere man, fear to quit
The clue God gave me as most fit
To guide my footsteps through life's maze,
Because himself discerns all ways
Open to reach him: I, a man
Able to mark where faith began
To swerve aside, till from its summit
Judgment drops her damning plummet,
Pronouncing such a fatal space
Departed from the founder's base:
He will not bid me enter too,
But rather sit, as now I do,
Awaiting his return outside.

—'Twas thus my reason straight replied
And joyously I turned, and pressed
The garment's skirt upon my breast,
Until, afresh its light suffusing me,
My heart cried—What has been abusing
me

That I should wait here lonely and coldly
Instead of rising, entering boldly, Baring truth's face, and letting drift
Her veils of lies as they choose to shift?
Do these men praise him? I will raise
My voice up to their point of praise!
I see the error; but above
The scope of error, see the love.—
Oh, love of those first Christian days!
—Fanned so soon into a blaze,

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

From the spark preserved by the trampled sect,

That the antique sovereign Intellect
Which then sat ruling in the world,
Like a change in dreams, was hurled
From the throne he reigned upon;
You looked up and he was gone;
Gone, his glory of the pen!

—Love, with Greece and Rome in ken,
Bade her scribes abhor the trick
Of poetry and rhetoric,
And exult with hearts set free,
In blessed imbecility
Scrawled, perchance, on some torn sheet
Leaving Sallust incomplete.

Gone, his pride of sculptor, painter!
—Love, while able to acquaint her
With the thousand statues yet
Fresh from chisel, pictures wet

From brush, she saw on every side,
Chose rather with an infant's pride
To frame those portents which impart
Such unction to true Christian Art.
Gone, music too! The air was stirred
By happy wings: Terpander's bird
(That, when the cold came, fled away)
Would tarry not the wintry day,—

As more-enduring sculpture must,
Till filthy saints rebuked the gust
With which they chanced to get a sight
Of some dear naked Aphrodite
They glanced a thought above the toes of,
By breaking zealously her nose off.

Love, surely, from that music's lingering,
Might have filched her organ-fingering,
Nor chosen rather to set prayings
To hog-grunts, praises to horse-neighings.
Love was the startling thing, the new:
Love was the all-sufficient too;

And seeing that, you see the rest:
As a babe can find its mother's breast
As well in darkness as in light,
Love shut our eyes, and all seemed right.
True, the world's eyes are open now:
—Less need for me to disallow

Some few that keep Love's zone unbuckled,

Peevish as ever to be suckled,
Lulled by the same old baby-prattle
With intermixture of the rattle,
When she would have them creep, stand steady

Upon their feet, or walk already,
Not to speak of trying to climb.
I will be wise another time,
And not desire a wall between us,

When next I see a church-roof cover
So many species of one genus,

All with foreheads bearing lover
Written above the earnest eyes of them;

All with breasts that beat for beauty, Whether sublimed, to the surprise of
them,

In noble daring, steadfast duty,

The heroic in passion, or in action,—
Or, lowered for sense's satisfaction,
To the mere outside of human creatures,
Mere perfect form and faultless features.

What? with all Rome here, whence to levy
Such contributions to their appetite,
With women and men in a gorgeous bevy,
They take, as it were, a padlock, clap it tight

On their southern eyes, restrained from feeding

On the glories of their ancient reading,
On the beauties of their modern singing,
On the wonders of the builder's bringing,
On the majesties of Art around them,—

And, all these loves, late struggling incessant,

When faith has at last united and bound
them,

They offer up to God for a present?
Why, I will, on the whole, be rather proud
of it,—

And, only taking the act in reference To the other recipients who might have allowed it,

I will rejoice that God had the preference.

XII

So I summed up my new resolves:

Too much love there can never be.

And where the intellect devolves
Its function on love exclusively,

I, a man who possesses both,
Will accept the provision, nothing loth,
—Will feast my love, then depart else-
where,

That my intellect may find its share.
And ponder, O soul, the while thou de-partest,

And see thou applaud the great heart of the artist,

Who, examining the capabilities
Of the block of marble he has to fashion

Into a type of thought or passion,—
Not always, using obvious facilities,

Shapes it, as any artist can,
Into a perfect symmetrical man,
Complete from head to foot of the life-size,
Such as old Adam stood in his wife's
eyes,—

But, now and then, bravely aspires to consummate

A Colossus by no means so easy to come at,

And uses the whole of his block for the bust,

Leaving the mind of the public to finish
it,

Since cut it ruefully short he must:
On the face alone he expends his devotion,

He rather would mar than resolve to diminish it,

—Saying, 'Applaud me for this grand notion

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

'Of what a face may be! As for completing it
'In breast and body and limbs, do that,
you!'

All hail! I fancy how, happily meeting it,
A trunk and legs would perfect the statue,

Could man carve so as to answer volition.
And how much nobler than petty cavils,
Were a hope to find, in my spirit-travels,
Some artist of another ambition,

Who having a block to carve, no bigger,
Has spent his power on the opposite
quest,
And believed to begin at the feet was
best—

For so may I see, ere I die, the whole figure!

xiii

No sooner said than out in the night!
My heart beat lighter and more light:
And still, as before, I was walking swift,
With my senses settling fast and steady-
ing,

But my body caught up in the whirl and
drift

Of the vesture's amplitude, still eddying
On just before me, still to be followed,
As it carried me after with its motion,
—What shall I say?—as a path were hol-
lowed,

And a man went weltering through the
ocean,
Sucked along in the flying wake
Of the luminous water-snake.

xiv

Alone! I am left alone once more—(Save for the garment's extreme fold Abandoned still to bless my hold)

Alone, beside the entrance-door
Of a sort of temple,—perhaps a college,
—Like nothing I ever saw before
At home in England, to my knowledge.
The tall old quaint irregular town!

It may be... though which, I can't affirm
...any

Of the famous middle-age towns of Germany;

And this flight of stairs where I sit down,
Is it Halle, Weimar, Cassel, Frankfurt
Or Göttingen, I have to thank for't?
It may be Göttingen,—most likely.
Through the open door I catch obliquely
Glimpses of a lecture-hall;

And not a bad assembly neither,
Ranged decent and symmetrical

On benches, waiting what's to see there;
Which, holding still by the vesture's hem,
I also resolve to see with them,
Cautious this time how I suffer to slip
The chance of joining in fellowship

With any that call themselves his friends;
As these folk do, I have a notion.
But hist—a buzzing and emotion!

All settle themselves, the while ascends
By the creaking rail to the lecture-desk,
Step by step, deliberate

Because of his cranium's over-freight,
Three parts sublime to one grotesque,
If I have proved an accurate guesser,
The hawk-nosed high-cheek-boned Professor.

I felt at once as if there ran A shoot of love from my heart to the
man—

That sallow virgin-minded studious
Martyr to mild enthusiasm,
As he uttered a kind of cough-preludious
That woke my sympathetic spasm,
(Beside some spitting that made me sorry)
And stood, surveying his auditory
With a wan pure look, well nigh celestial,—

Those blue eyes had survived so much!
While, under the foot they could not smutch,

Lay all the fleshly and the bestial.
Over he bowed, and arranged his notes,
Till the auditory's clearing of throats
Was done with, died into a silence

And, when each glance was upward
sent,

Each bearded mouth composed intent,
And a pin might be heard drop half a mile
hence,—

He pushed back higher his spectacles, Let the eyes stream out like lamps from cells,

And giving his head of hair—a hake
Of undressed tow, for colour and quantity—

One rapid and impatient shake, (As our own Young England adjusts a jaunty tie

When about to impart, on mature digestion,
Some thrilling view of the surplice-question)

—The Professor's grave voice, sweet though hoarse,
Broke into his Christmas-Eve discourse.

xv

And he began it by observing
How reason dictated that men Should rectify the natural swerving,

By a reversion, now and then,
To the well-heads of knowledge, few
And far away, whence rolling grew
The life-stream wide whereat we drink, Commingled, as we needs must think,

With waters alien to the source;
To do which, aimed this eve's discourse;
Since, where could be a fitter time
For tracing backward to its prime

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

This Christianity, this lake,
This reservoir, whereat we slake,
From one or other bank, our thirst?
So, he proposed inquiring first
Into the various sources whence

This Myth of Christ is derivable;
Demanding from the evidence,
(Since plainly no such life was liveable)

How these phenomena should class?
Whether 'twere best opine Christ was,
Or never was at all, or whether
He was and was not, both together—
It matters little for the name,
So the idea be left the same.

Only, for practical purpose' sake,
'Twas obviously as well to take
The popular story,—understanding
How the ineptitude of the time,
And the penman's prejudice, expanding Fact into fable fit for the clime,
Had, by slow and sure degrees, translated it

Into this myth, this Individuum,— Which, when reason had strained and abated it

Of foreign matter, left, for residuum,
A Man!—a right true man, however,
Whose work was worthy a man's endeavour:

Work, that gave warrant almost sufficient
To his disciples, for rather believing
He was just omnipotent and omniscient,
As it gives to us, for as frankly receiving His word, their tradition,—which, though it meant

Something entirely different
From all that those who only heard it,
In their simplicity thought and averred it,
Had yet a meaning quite as respectable:
For, among other doctrines delectable,
Was he not surely the first to insist on

The natural sovereignty of our race?—
Here the lecturer came to a pausing-
place.

And while his cough, like a drouthy piston, Tried to dislodge the husk that grew to
him,

I seized the occasion of bidding adieu to
him,

The vesture still within my hand.

XVI

I could interpret its command.
This time he would not bid me enter
The exhausted air-bell of the Critic.
Truth's atmosphere may grow mephitic
When Papist struggles with Dissenter, Impregnating its pristine clarity,

—One, by his daily fare's vulgarity,
Its gust of broken meat and garlic;

—One, by his soul's too-much presuming
To turn the frankincense's fuming
And vapours of the candle starlike

Into the cloud her wings she buoys on.

Each, that thus sets the pure air seething,

May poison it for healthy breathing—

But the Critic leaves no air to poison;

Pumps out with ruthless ingenuity

Atom by atom, and leaves you—vacuity.

Thus much of Christ does he reject?

And what retain? His intellect?

What is it I must reverence duly?

Poor intellect for worship, truly,

Which tells me simply what was told

(If mere morality, bereft

Of the God in Christ, be all that's left)

Elsewhere by voices manifold;

With this advantage, that the stater

Made nowise the important stumble

Of adding, he, the sage and humble,

Was also one with the Creator.

You urge Christ's followers' simplicity:

But how does shifting blame, evade it?

Have wisdom's words no more felicity?

The stumbling-block, his speech—who laid it?

How comes it that for one found able

To sift the truth of it from fable,

Millions believe it to the letter?

Christ's goodness, then—does that fare

better?

Strange goodness, which upon the score

Of being goodness, the mere due

Of man to fellow-man, much more

To God,—should take another view

Of its possessor's privilege,

And bid him rule his race! You pledge

Your fealty to such rule? What, all—

From heavenly John and Attic Paul,

And that brave weather-battered Peter,

Whose stout faith only stood completer

For buffets, sinning to be pardoned,

As, the more his hands hauled nets, they hardened,—

All, down to you, the man of men,

Professing here at Göttingen,

Compose Christ's flock! They, you and I,

Are sheep of a good man! And why?

The goodness,—how did he acquire it?

Was it self-gained, did God inspire it?

Choose which; then tell me, on what

ground

Should its possessor dare propound

His claim to rise o'er us an inch?

Were goodness all some man's inven-

tion,

Who arbitrarily made mention

What we should follow, and whence

flinch,—

What qualities might take the style

Of right and wrong,—and had such guessing

Met with as general acquiescing

As graced the alphabet erewhile,

When A got leave an Ox to be,

No Camel (quoth the Jews) like G,¹—

For thus inventing thing and title
 Worship were that man's fit requital.
 But if the common conscience must Be ultimately judge, adjust
 Its apt name to each quality
 Already known,—I would decree
 Worship for such mere demonstration
 And simple work of nomenclature,
 Only the day I praised, not nature,
 But Harvey, for the circulation.
 I would praise such a Christ, with pride
 And joy, that he, as none beside,
 Had taught us how to keep the mind
 God gave him, as God gave his kind,
 Freer than they from fleshly taint:
 I would call such a Christ our Saint,
 As I declare our Poet, him
 Whose insight makes all others dim:
 A thousand poets pried at life,
 And only one amid the strife
 Rose to be Shakespeare: each shall take His crown, I'd say, for the world's sake—
 Though some objected—'Had we seen
 'The heart and head of each, what screen
 'Was broken there to give them light,
 'While in ourselves it shuts the sight,
 'We should no more admire, perchance,
 'That these found truth out at a glance,
 'Than marvel how the bat discerns
 'Some pitch-dark cavern's fifty turns,
 'Led by a finer tact, a gift
 'He boasts, which other birds must shift
 'Without, and grope as best they can.'
 No, freely I would praise the man,—
 Nor one whit more, if he contended
 That gift of his, from God descended.
 Ah friend, what gift of man's does not?
 No nearer something, by a jot,
 Rise an infinity of nothings
 Than one: take Euclid for your teacher:
 Distinguish kinds: do crownings, cloth-ings,
 Make that creator which was creature?
 Multiply gifts upon man's head,
 And what, when all's done, shall be said
 But—the more gifted he, I ween!
 That one's made Christ, this other,
 Pilate,
 And this might be all that has been,—
 So what is there to frown or smile at?
 What is left for us, save, in growth
 Of soul, to rise up, far past both,
 From the gift looking to the giver,
 And from the cistern to the river,
 And from the finite to infinity,
 And from man's dust to God's divinity?

xvii

Take all in a word: the truth in God's
 breast
 Lies trace for trace upon ours impressed:
 Though he is so bright and we so dim,
 We are made in his image to witness him:

And were no eye in us to tell,
 Instructed by no inner sense,
 The light of heaven from the dark of hell,
 That light would want its evidence,— Though justice, good and truth were still Divine, if, by some demon's will,
 Hatred and wrong had been proclaimed Law through the worlds, and right misnamed.

No mere exposition of morality
 Made or in part or in totality,
 Should win you to give it worship, there-
 fore:

And, if no better proof you will care for,
 —Whom do you count the worst man upon earth?

Be sure, he knows, in his conscience,
 more

Of what right is, than arrives at birth
 In the best man's acts that we bow
 before:

This last knows better—true, but my fact
 is,

'Tis one thing to know, and another to practise.

And thence I conclude that the real God-function

Is to furnish a motive and injunction
 For practising what we know already.

And such an injunction and such a motive
 As the God in Christ, do you waive, and 'heady,

'High-minded,' hang your tablet-votive
 Outside the fane on a finger-post?

Morality to the uttermost,
 Supreme in Christ as we all confess,

Why need we prove would avail no jot
 To make him God, if God he were not?

What is the point where himself lays stress?

Does the precept run 'Believe in good,
 'In justice, truth, now understood

'For the first time?'—or, 'Believe in me,
 'Who lived and died, yet essentially

'Am Lord of Life?' Whoever can take The same to his heart and for mere love's
 sake

Conceive of the love,—that man obtains
 A new truth; no conviction gains

Of an old one only, made intense
 By a fresh appeal to his faded sense.

xviii

Can it be that he stays inside?

Is the vesture left me to commune with?
 Could my soul find aught to sing in tune
 with

Even at this lecture, if she tried?
 Oh, let me at lowest sympathize

With the lurking drop of blood that lies
 In the desiccated brain's white roots

Without throb for Christ's attributes,
 As the lecturer makes his special boast!

If love's dead there, it has left a ghost.

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

Admire we, how from heart to brain
(Though to say so strike the doctors dumb)

One instinct rises and falls again,
Restoring the equilibrium.
And how when the Critic had done his best,
And the pearl of price, at reason's test,
Lay dust and ashes levigable
On the Professor's lecture-table,— When we looked for the inference and monition

That our faith, reduced to such condition,
Be swept forthwith to its natural dust-hole,—

He bids us, when we least expect it, Take back our faith,—if it be not just
whole,

Yet a pearl indeed, as his tests affect it,
Which fact pays damage done reward-
ingly,
So, prize we our dust and ashes accordingly!

'Go home and venerate the myth
'I thus have experimented with—
'This man, continue to adore him
'Rather than all who went before him,
'And all who ever followed after!— Surely for this I may praise you, my brother!

Will you take the praise in tears or laughter?
That's one point gained: can I compass another?

Unlearned love was safe from spurning—
Can't we respect your loveless learning?
Let us at least give learning honour!
What laurels had we showered upon her,
Girding her loins up to perturb
Our theory of the Middle Verb;
Or Turk-like brandishing a scimitar
O'er anapaests in comic-trimeter;
Or curing the halt and maimed 'Iketides,' While we lounged on at our indebted ease:
Instead of which, a tricky demon
Sets her at Titus or Philemon!

When ignorance wags his ears of leather
And hates God's word, 'tis altogether;
Nor leaves he his congenial thistles
To go and browse on Paul's Epistles.
—And you, the audience, who might rave

The world wide, enviably savage,
Nor heed the cry of the retriever,
More than Herr Heine (before his fever),—
I do not tell a lie so arrant

As say my passion's wings are furled up,
And, without plainest heavenly warrant,
I were ready and glad to give the world
up—

But still, when you rub brow meticulous,
And ponder the profit of turning holy,
If not for God's, for your own sake solely,

—God forbid I should find you ridiculous!

Deduce from this lecture all that eases you,
Nay, call yourselves, if the calling pleases
you,

'Christians,'—abhor the deist's pravity,— Go on, you shall no more move my gravity
Than, when I see boys ride a-cockhorse,
I find it in my heart to embarrass them
By hinting that their stick's a mock horse,
And they really carry what they say carries
them.

XIX

So sat I talking with my mind.
I did not long to leave the door
And find a new church, as before,
But rather was quiet and inclined
To prolong and enjoy the gentle resting From further tracking and trying and testing.

'This tolerance is a genial mood!'
(Said I, and a little pause ensued.)

'One trims the bark 'twixt shoal and shelf,
'And sees, each side, the good effects of
it,

'A value for religion's self,
'A carelessness about the sects of it.

'Let me enjoy my own conviction,
'Not watch my neighbour's faith with fretfulness,

'Still spying there some dereliction
'Of truth, perversity, forgetfulness!

'Better a mild indifferentism,
'Teaching that both our faiths (though duller

'His shine through a dull spirit's prism)
'Originally had one colour!

'Better pursue a pilgrimage
'Through ancient and through modern
times

'To many peoples, various climes,
'Where I may see saint, savage, sage

'Tuse their respective creeds in one
'Before the general Father's throne!'

XX

—'Twas the horrible storm began afresh!
The black night caught me in his mesh,
Whirled me up, and flung me prone.
I was left on the college-step alone.
I looked, and far there, ever fleeting Far, far away, the receding gesture,
And looming of the lessening vesture!—
Swept forward from my stupid hand,
While I watched my foolish heart expand
In the lazy glow of benevolence,

O'er the various modes of man's belief.
I sprang up with fear's vehemence.

Needs must there be one way, our chief
Best way of worship: let me strive
To find it, and when found, contrive

My fellows also take their share!
This constitutes my earthly care:

God's is above it and distinct.
For I, a man, with men am linked

And not a brute with brutes; no gain
That I experience, must remain
Unshared: but should my best endeavour
To share it, fail—subsisteth ever God's care above, and I exult
That God, by God's own ways occult,
May—doth, I will believe—bring back
All wanderers to a single track.
Meantime, I can but testify
God's care for me—no more, can I—
It is but for myself I know;

The world rolls witnessing around me
Only to leave me as it found me;
Men cry there, but my ear is slow:
Their races flourish or decay
—What boots it, while yon lucid way
Loaded with stars divides the vault?
But soon my soul repairs its fault
When, sharpening sense's hebetude,
She turns on my own life! So viewed,
No mere mote's breadth but teems immense

With witnessings of providence:
And woe to me if when I look Upon that record, the sole book
Unsealed to me, I take no heed
Of any warning that I read!
Have I been sure, this Christmas-Eve,
God's own hand did the rainbow weave,
Whereby the truth from heaven slid Into my soul?—I cannot bid
The world admit he stooped to heal
My soul, as if in a thunder-peal
Where one heard noise, and one saw flame,
I only knew he named my name:
But what is the world to me, for sorrow
Or joy in its censure, when to-morrow
It drops the remark, with just-turned head
Then, on again, 'That man is dead'?
Yes, but for me—my name called,—drawn
As a conscript's lot from the lap's black yawn,

He has dipt into on a battle-dawn:
Bid out of life by a nod, a glance,— Stumbling, mute-mazed, at nature's
chance,—

With a rapid finger circled round,
Fixed to the first poor inch of ground
To fight from, where his foot was found;
Whose ear but a minute since lay free
To the wide camp's buzz and gossipry—
Summoned, a solitary man
To end his life where his life began,
From the safe glad rear, to the dreadful van!

Soul of mine, hadst thou caught and held
By the hem of the vesture!—

XXI

And I caught
At the flying robe, and unrepelled
Was lapped again in its folds full-fraught

With warmth and wonder and delight,
God's mercy being infinite.
For scarce had the words escaped my
tongue,

When, at a passionate bound, I sprung,
Out of the wandering world of rain,
Into the little chapel again.

XXII

How else was I found there, bolt upright
On my bench, as if I had never left it?
—Never flung out on the common at night,
Nor met the storm and wedge-like cleft
it,

Seen the raree-show of Peter's successor,
Or the laboratory of the Professor!
For the Vision, that was true, I wist,
True as that heaven and earth exist.
There sat my friend, the yellow and tall,
With his neck and its wen in the selfsame
place;

Yet my nearest neighbour's cheek showed gall.

'She had slid away a contemptuous
space:

And the old fat woman, late so placable, Eyed me with symptoms, hardly mis-takable,

Of her milk of kindness turning rancid.
In short, a spectator might have fancied
That I had nodded, betrayed by slumber,
Yet kept my seat, a warning ghastly,

Through the heads of the sermon, nine in number,

And woke up now at the tenth and lastly.
But again, could such disgrace have happened?

Each friend at my elbow had surely nudged it;

And, as for the sermon, where did my nap
end?

Unless I heard it, could I have judged it?
Could I report as I do at the close,
First, the preacher speaks through his
nose:

Second, his gesture is too emphatic:
Thirdly, to waive what's pedagogic,
The subject-matter itself lacks logic:
Fourthly, the English is ungrammatic.
Great news! the preacher is found no
Pascal,

Whom, if I pleased, I might to the task call
Of making square to a finite eye

The circle of infinity,
And find so all-but-just-succeeding!
Great news! the sermon proves no reading
Where bee-like in the flowers I bury me, Like Taylor's, the immortal Jeremy!
And now that I know the very worst of
him,

What was it I thought to obtain at first of
him?

Ha! Is God mocked, as he asks?

Shall I take on me to change his tasks,

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

And dare, despatched to a river-head
For a simple draught of the element,
Neglect the thing for which he sent,
And return with another thing instead?—

Saying, 'Because the water found
'Welling up from underground,
'Is mingled with the taints of earth,
'While thou, I know, dost laugh at dearth,
'And couldst, at wink or word, convulse
'The world with the leap of a river-pulse,— 'Therefore I turned from the ooziings muddy,

'And bring thee a chalice I found, instead:

'See the brave veins' in the breccia ruddy!
'One would suppose that the marble bled.

'What matters the water? A hope I have nursed:

'The waterless cup will quench my thirst.'
—Better have knelt at the poorest stream That trickles in pain from the straitest rift!

For the less or the more is all God's gift,
Who blocks up or breaks wide the granite-seam.

And here, is there water or not, to drink?

I then, in ignorance and weakness,
Taking God's help, have attained to think My heart does best to receive in meek-
ness

That mode of worship, as most to his mind,
Where earthly aids being cast behind,
His All in All appears serene
With the thinnest human veil between,
Letting the mystic lamps, the seven,

The many motions of his spirit,
Pass, as they list, to earth from heaven.

For the preacher's merit or demerit,
It were to be wished the flaws were fewer
In the earthen vessel, holding treasure
Which lies as safe in a golden ewer;

But the main thing is, does it hold good measure?

Heaven soon sets right all other matters!—

Ask, else, these ruins of humanity,
This flesh worn out to rags and tatters,

This soul at struggle with insanity,
Who thence take comfort—can I doubt?—

Which an empire gained, were a loss with-
out.

May it be mine! And let us hope
That no worse blessing befall the Pope,
Turned sick at last of to-day's buffoonery,
Of posturings and petticoatings,

Beside his Bourbon bully's gloatings
In the bloody orgies of drunk poltroonery!

Nor may the Professor forego its peace
At Göttingen presently, when, in the dusk

Of his life, if his cough, as I fear, should increase,

Propheied of by that horrible husk—

When thicker and thicker the darkness fills
The world through his misty spectacles,
And he gropes for something more substantial

Than a fable, myth or personification,— May Christ do for him what no mere man
shall,

And stand confessed as the God of salvation!

Meantime, in the still recurring fear
Lest myself, at unawares, be found,

While attacking the choice of my neighbours round,

With none of my own made—I choose
here!

The giving out of the hymn reclaims me;
I have done: and if any blames me,

Thinking that merely to touch in brevity
The topics I dwell on, were unlawful,—

Or worse, that I trench, with undue levity, On the bounds of the holy and the awful,—

I praise the heart, and pity the head of him,
'And refer myself to THEE, instead of him,

Who head and heart alike discernest,
Looking below light speech we utter,

When frothy spume and frequent
sputter

Prove that the soul's depths boil in earnest!
May truth shine out, stand ever before us!

I put up pencil and join chorus
To Hepzibah Tune, without further apology,

The last five verses of the third section
Of the seventeenth hymn of Whitfield's Collection,

To conclude with the doxology.

EASTER-DAY

I

How very hard it is to be A Christian! Hard for you and me,

—Not the mere task of making real
That duty up to its ideal,

Effecting thus, complete and whole,
A purpose of the human soul—

For that is always hard to do;
But hard, I mean, for me and you

To realize it, more or less,
With even the moderate success

Which commonly repays our strife
To carry out the aims of life.

'This aim is greater,' you will say,
'And so more arduous every way.'

—But the importance of their fruits
Still proves to man, in all pursuits,

Proportional encouragement.
'Then, what if it be God's intent

'That labour to this one result
'Should seem unduly difficult?'

Ah, that's a question in the dark—
And the sole thing that I remark

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

Upon the difficulty, this;
We do not see it where it is,
At the beginning of the race:
As we proceed, it shifts its place,
And where we looked for crowns to fall,
We find the tug's to come,—that's all.

II

At first you say, 'The whole, or chief
'Of difficulties, is belief.
'Could I believe once thoroughly,
'The rest were simple. What? Am I
'An idiot, do you think,—a beast?
'Prove to me, only that the least
'Command of God is God's indeed,
'And what injunction shall I need
'To pay obedience? Death so nigh,
'When time must end, eternity
'Begin,—and cannot I compute,
'Weigh loss and gain together, suit
'My actions to the balance drawn,
'And give my body to be sawn
'Asunder, hacked in pieces, tied
'To horses, stoned, burned, crucified,
'Like any martyr of the list?
'How gladly!—if I make acquit,
'Through the brief minute's fierce annoy,
'Of God's eternity of joy.'

III

—And certainly you name the point
Whereon all turns: for could you joint
This flexile finite life once tight
Into the fixed and infinite,
You, safe inside, would spurn what's out,
With carelessness enough, no doubt—
Would spurn mere life: but when time brings
To their next stage your reasonings,
Your eyes, late wide, begin to wink
Nor see the path so well, I think.

IV

You say, 'Faith may be, one agrees,
'A touchstone for God's purposes,
'Even as ourselves conceive of them.
'Could he acquit us or condemn
'For holding what no hand can loose,
'Rejecting when we can't but choose?
'As well award the victor's wreath
'To whosoever should take breath
'Duly each minute while he lived—
'Grant heaven, because a man contrived
'To see its sunlight every day
'He walked forth on the public way.
'You must mix some uncertainty
'With faith, if you would have faith be.
'Why, what but faith, do we abhor
'And idolize each other for—
'Faith in our evil or our good,
'Which is or is not understood
'Aright by those we love or those 'We hate, thence called our friends or foes?

'Your mistress saw your spirit's grace,
'When, turning from the ugly face,
'I found belief in it too hard;
'And she and I have our reward.
'—Yet here a doubt peeps: well for us
'Weak beings, to go using thus
'A touchstone for our little ends,
'Trying with faith the foes and friends;
'—But God, bethink you! I would fain
'Conceive of the Creator's reign
'As based upon exacter laws
'Than creatures build by with applause.
'In all God's acts—(as Plato cries
'He doth)—he should geometrize.
'Whence, I desiderate . . .

V

I see!
You would grow as a natural tree,
Stand as a rock, soar up like fire.
The world's so perfect and entire,
Quite above faith, so right and fit!
Go there, walk up and down in it!
No. The creation travails, groans—Contrive your music from its moans,
Without or let or hindrance, friend!
That's an old story, and its end
As old—you come back (be sincere)
With every question you put here (Here where there once was, and is still,
We think, a living oracle, Whose answers you stand carping at)
This time flung back unanswered flat,— Beside, perhaps, as many more
As those that drove you out before,
Now added, where was little need.
Questions impossible, indeed,
To us who sat still, all and each Persuaded that our earth had speech,
Of God's, writ down, no matter if
In cursive type or hieroglyph,—
Which one fact freed us from the yoke
Of guessing why He never spoke.
You come back in no better plight
Than when you left us,—am I right?

VI

So, the old process, I conclude,
Goes on, the reasoning's pursued Further. You own, 'Tis well averred,
'A scientific faith's absurd,
'—Frustrates the very end 'twas meant
'To serve. So, I would rest content
'With a mere probability,
'But, probable; the chance must lie
'Clear on one side,—lie all in rough,
'So long as there be just enough
'To pin my faith to, though it hap
'Only at points: from gap to gap
'One hangs up a huge curtain so,
'Grandly, nor seeks to have it go
'Foldless and flat along the wall.
'What care I if some interval

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

'Of life less plainly may depend
 'On God? I'd hang there to the end;
 'And thus I should not find it hard
 'To be a Christian and debarred
 'From trailing on the earth, till furled
 'Away by death.—Renounce the world!
 'Were that a mighty hardship? Plan
 'A pleasant life, and straight some man
 'Beside you, with, if he thought fit,
 'Abundant means to compass it,
 'Shall turn deliberate aside
 'To try and live as, if you tried
 'You clearly might, yet most despise.
 'One friend of mine wears out his eyes,
 'Slighting the stupid joys of sense,
 'In patient hope that, ten years hence,
 'Somewhat completer," he may say,
 '"My list of coleoptera!"
 'While just the other who most laughs
 'At him, above all epitaphs
 'Aspires to have his tomb describe
 'Himself as sole among the tribe
 'Of snuff-box-fanciers, who possessed
 'A Grignon with the Regent's crest.
 'So that, subduing, as you want,
 'Whatever stands predominant
 'Among my earthly appetites
 'For tastes and smells and sounds and sights,
 'I shall be doing that alone,
 'To gain a palm-branch and a throne.
 'Which fifty people undertake 'To do, and gladly, for the sake
 'Of giving a Semitic guess,
 'Or playing pawns at blindfold chess.'

VII

Good: and the next thing is,—look round
 For evidence enough! 'Tis found,
 No doubt: as is your sort of mind,
 So is your sort of search: you'll find
 What you desire, and that's to be A Christian. What says history?
 How comforting a point it were
 To find some mummy-scrap declare
 There lived a Moses! Better still,
 Prove Jonah's whale translatable
 Into some quicksand of the seas,
 Isle, cavern, rock, or what you please,
 That faith might flap her wings and crow
 From such an eminence! Or, no—
 The human heart's best; you prefer Making that prove the minister
 To truth; you probe its wants and needs,
 And hopes and fears, then try what creeds
 Meet these most aptly,—resolute
 That faith plucks such substantial fruit
 Wherever these two correspond,
 She little needs to look beyond,
 And puzzle out who Orpheus was,
 Or Dionysius Zagrias.
 You'll find sufficient, as I say,
 To satisfy you either way;

You wanted to believe; your pains
 Are crowned—you do: and what remains?
 'Renounce the world!'—Ah, were it done
 By merely cutting one by one
 Your limbs off, with your wise head last,
 How easy were it!—how soon past,
 If once in the believing mood!
 'Such is man's usual gratitude,
 'Such thanks to God do we return,
 'For not exacting that we spurn
 'A single gift of life, forego
 'One real gain,—only taste them so
 'With gravity and temperance,
 'That those mild virtues may enhance
 'Such pleasures, rather than abstract—
 'Last spice of which, will be the fact
 'Of love discerned in every gift;
 'While, when the scene of life shall shift,
 'And the gay heart be taught to ache,
 'As sorrows and privations take 'The place of joy,—the thing that seems
 'Mercy misery, under human schemes,
 'Becomes, regarded by the light
 'Of love, as very near, or quite
 'As good a gift as joy before.
 'So plain is it that, all the more
 'A dispensation's merciful,
 'More pettishly we try and cull
 'Briars, thistles, from our private plot,
 'To mar God's ground where thorns are
 not!'

VIII

Do you say this, or I?—Oh, you!
 Then, what, my friend?—(thus I pursue Our parley)—you indeed opine
 That the Eternal and Divine
 Did, eighteen centuries ago,
 In very truth . . . Enough! you know
 The all-stupendous tale,—that Birth,
 That Life, that Death! And all, the earth Shuddered at,—all, the heavens grew
 black
 Rather than see; all, nature's rack
 And throe at dissolution's brink
 Attested,—all took place, you think,
 Only to give our joys a zest,
 And prove our sorrows for the best?
 We differ, then! Where I, still pale
 And heartstruck at the dreadful tale,
 Waiting to hear God's voice declare
 What horror followed for my share,
 As implicated in the deed,
 Apart from other sins,—concede
 That if He blacked out in a blot
 My brief life's pleasantness, 'twere not
 So very disproportionate!
 Or there might be another fate—
 I certainly could understand (If fancies were the thing in hand)
 How God might save, at that day's price,
 The impure in their impurities,
 Give licence formal and complete
 To choose the fair and pick the sweet.

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

But there be certain words, broad, plain,
Uttered again and yet again,
Hard to mistake or overgloss—
Announcing this world's gain for loss,
And bidding us reject the same:
The whole world lieth (they proclaim)
In wickedness,—come out of it!
Turn a deaf ear, if you think fit,
But I who thrill through every nerve
At thought of what deaf ears deserve—
How do you counsel in the case?

IX

'I'd take, by all means, in your place,
'The safe side, since it so appears:
'Deny myself, a few brief years,
'The natural pleasure, leave the fruit
'Or cut the plant up by the root.
'Remember what a martyr said
'On the rude tablet overhead!
'"I was born sickly, poor and mean,
'"A slave: no misery could screen
'"The holders of the pearl of price
'"From Cæsar's envy; therefore twice
'"I fought with beasts, and three times
saw
'"My children suffer by his law;
'"At last my own release was earned:
'"I was some time in being burned,
'"But at the close a Hand came through
'"The fire above my head, and drew
'"My soul to Christ, whom now I see.
'"Sergius, a brother, writes for me
'"This testimony on the wall—
'"For me, I have forgot it all."
'You say right; this were not so hard!
'And since one nowise is debarred
'From this, why not escape some sins
'By such a method?'

X

Then begins

To the old point revulsion new—(For 'tis just this I bring you to)
If after all we should mistake,
And so renounce life for the sake
Of death and nothing else? You hear
Each friend we jeered at, send the jeer Back to ourselves with good effect—
'There were my beetles to collect!
'My box—a trifle, I confess,
'But here I hold it, ne'ertheless!
Poor idiots, (let us pluck up heart And answer) we, the better part
Have chosen, though 'twere only hope,— Nor envy moles like you that grope
Amid your veritable muck,
More than the grasshoppers would truck,
For yours, their passionate life away,
That spends itself in leaps all day
To reach the sun, you want the eyes
To see, as they the wings to rise
And match the noble hearts of them!
Thus the contemner we condemn,—

And, when doubt strikes us, thus we ward
Its stroke off, caught upon our guard, —Not struck enough to overturn
Our faith, but shake it—make us learn
What I began with, and, I wis, End, having proved,—how hard it is To be a Christian!

XI

'Proved, or not,
'How'er you wis, small thanks, I wot,
'You get of mine, for taking pains
'To make it hard to me. Who gains
'By that, I wonder? Here I live
'In trusting ease; and here you drive
'At causing me to lose what most
'Yourself would mourn for had you lost!'

XII

But, do you see, my friend, that thus
You leave Saint Paul for Æschylus?
—Who made his Titan's arch-device
The giving men blind hopes to spice
The meal of life with, else devoured
In bitter haste, while lo, death loured
Before them at the platter's edge!
If faith should be, as I allege,
Quite other than a condiment
To heighten flavours with, or meant (Like that brave curry of his Grace)
To take at need the victuals' place?
If, having dined, you would digest
Besides, and turning to your rest
Should find instead . . .

XIII

Now, you shall see
And judge if a mere popery Pricks on my speaking! I resolve
To utter—yes, it shall devolve
On you to hear as solemn, strange
And dread a thing as in the range Of facts,—or fancies, if God will—E'er happened to our kind! I still Stand in the cloud and, while it wraps
My face, ought not to speak perhaps;
Seeing that if I carry through My purpose, if my words in you Find a live actual listener,
My story, reason must aver
False after all—the happy chance!
While, if each human countenance
I meet in London day by day,
Be what I fear,—my warnings fray
No one, and no one they convert,
And no one helps me to assert
'How hard it is to really be
A Christian, and in vacancy
I pour this story!

XIV

I commence
By trying to inform you, whence
It comes that every Easter-night
As now, I sit up, watch, till light,

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

Upon those chimney-stacks and roofs, Give, through my window-pane, grey
proofs

That Easter-day is breaking slow.
On such a night three years ago,
It chanced that I had cause to cross
The common, where the chapel was,
Our friend spoke of, the other day—
You've not forgotten, I dare say.
I fell to musing of the time
So close, the blessed matin-prime
All hearts leap up at, in some guise—
One could not well do otherwise.
Insensibly my thoughts were bent
Toward the main point; I overwent
Much the same ground of reasoning
As you and I just now. One thing Remained, however—one that tasked
My soul to answer; and I asked,
Fairly and frankly, what might be
That History, that Faith, to me
—Me there—not me in some domain
Built up and peopled by my brain,
Weighing its merits as one weighs Mere theories for blame or praise,
—The kingcraft of the Lucumons,
Or Fourier's scheme, its pros and cons,—
But my faith there, or none at all.
'How were my case, now, did I fall
'Dead here, this minute—should I lie
'Faithful or faithless?' Note that I Inclined thus ever!—little prone
For instance, when I lay alone
In childhood, to go calm to sleep
And leave a closet where might keep His watch perdue some murderer
Waiting till twelve o'clock to stir,
As good authentic legends tell:
'He might; but how improbable!
'How little likely to deserve
'The palms and trial to the nerve
'Of thrusting head into the dark!'— Urged my old nurse, and bade me mark
Beside, that, should the dreadful scout Really lie hid there, and leap out
At first turn of the rusty key,
Mine were small gain that she could see,
Killed not in bed but on the floor,
And losing one night's sleep the more.
I tell you, I would always burst
The door ope, know my fate at first.
This time, indeed, the closet penned
No such assassin: but a friend
Rather, peeped out to guard me, fit
For counsel, Common Sense, to wit,
Who said a good deal that might pass,— Heartening, impartial too, it was,
Judge else: 'For, soberly now,—who 'Should be a Christian if not you?' (Hear how he smoothed me down.) 'One takes
'A whole life, sees what course it makes
'Mainly, and not by fits and starts—
'In spite of stoppage which imparts

'Fresh value to the general speed.
'A life, with none, would fly indeed:
'Your progressing is slower—right!
'We deal with progress and not flight.
'Through baffling senses passionate,
'Fancies as restless,—with a freight
'Of knowledge cumbersome enough
'To sink your ship when waves grow
rough,
'Though meant for ballast in the hold,—
'I find, 'mid dangers manifold,
'The good bark answers to the helm
'Where faith sits, easier to o'erwhelm
'Than some stout peasant's heavenly guide,
'Whose hard head could not, if it tried,
'Conceive a doubt, nor understand
'How senses hornier than his hand
'Should 'tice the Christian off his guard.
'More happy! But shall we award
'Less honour to the hull which, dogged
'By storms, a mere wreck, waterlogged,
'Masts by the board, her bulwarks gone
'And stanchions going, yet bears on,—
'Than to mere life-boats, built to save,
'And triumph o'er the breaking wave?
'Make perfect your good ship as these,
'And what were her performances!
'I added—'Would the ship reach home!
'I wish indeed "God's kingdom come—"
'The day when I shall see appear
'His bidding, as my duty, clear
'From doubt! And it shall dawn, that day,
'Some future season; Easter may 'Prove, not impossibly, the time—
'Yes, that were striking—fates would chime
'So aptly! Easter-morn, to bring
'The Judgment!—deeper in the spring
'Than now, however, when there's snow
'Capping the hills; for earth must show
'All signs of meaning to pursue
'Her tasks as she was wont to do
'—The skylark, taken by surprise
'As we ourselves, shall recognize 'Sudden the end. For suddenly
'It comes; the dreadfulness must be
'In that; all warrants the belief—
'"At night it cometh like a thief."
'I fancy why the trumpet blows;
'—Plainly, to wake one. From repose
'We shall start up, at last awake
'From life, that insane dream we take
'For waking now, because it seems.
'And as, when now we wake from dreams,
'We laugh, while we recall them, "Fool,
'"To let the chance slip, linger cool
'"When such adventure offered! Just '"A bridge to cross, a dwarf to trust
'"Aside, a wicked mage to stab—
'"And, lo ye, I had kissed Queen Mab!"
'So shall we marvel why we grudged
'Our labour here, and idly judged

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

'Of heaven, we might have gained, but lose!

'Lose? Talk of loss, and I refuse 'To plead at all! You speak no worse

'Nor better than my ancient nurse

'When she would tell me in my youth

'I well deserved that shapes uncouth

'Frighted and teased me in my sleep:

'Why could I not in memory keep

'Her precept for the evil's cure?

"Pinch your own arm, boy, and be sure

"You'll wake forthwith!"

XV

And as I said
This nonsense, throwing back my head
With light complacent laugh, I found
Suddenly all the midnight round
One fire. The dome of heaven had stood
As made up of a multitude
Of handbreadth cloudlets, one vast rack
Of ripples infinite and black,
From sky to sky. Sudden there went,
Like horror and astonishment,
A fierce vindictive scribble of red
Quick flame across, as if one said
(The angry scribe of Judgment) 'There—
'Burn it!' And straight I was aware That the whole ribwork round, minute
Cloud touching cloud beyond compute,
Was tinted, each with its own spot
Of burning at the core, till clot
Jammed against clot, and spilt its fire
Over all heaven, which 'gan suspire
As fanned to measure equable,—
Just so great conflagrations kill Night overhead, and rise and sink, Reflected. Now the fire would shrink
And wither off the blasted face
Of heaven, and I distinct might trace
The sharp black ridgy outlines left Unburned like network—then, each cleft
The fire had been sucked back into,
Regorged, and out it surging flew Furiously, and night writhed inflamed,
Till, tolerating to be tamed
No longer, certain rays world-wide Shot downwardly. On every side
Caught past escape, the earth was lit;
As if a dragon's nostril split
And all his famished ire o'erflowed;
Then, as he winced at his lord's goad,
Back he inhaled: whereat I found
The clouds into vast pillars bound,
Based on the corners of the earth,
Propping the skies at top: a dearth
Of fire i' the violet intervals,
Leaving exposed the utmost walls
Of time, about to tumble in
And end the world.

XVI

I felt begin
The Judgment-Day: to retrocede
Was too late now. 'In very deed,'

(I uttered to myself) 'that Day!'

The intuition burned away

All darkness from my spirit too:

There, stood I, found and fixed, I knew,

Choosing the world. The choice was
made;

And naked and disguiseless stayed,

And unevadable, the fact.

My brain held all the same compact

Its senses, nor my heart declined

Its office; rather, both combined

To help me in this juncture. I

Lost not a second,—agony

Gave boldness: since my life had end

And my choice with it—best defend,

Applaud both! I resolved to say,

'So was I framed by thee, such way

'I put to use thy senses here!

'It was so beautiful, so near,

'Thy world,—what could I then but
choose

'My part there? Nor did I refuse

'To look above the transient boon

'Of time; but it was hard so soon

'As in a short life, to give up

'Such beauty: I could put the cup

'Undrained of half its fulness, by;

'But, to renounce it utterly,

'—That was too hard! Nor did the cry

'Which bade renounce it, touch my brain

'Authentically deep and plain

'Enough to make my lips let go.

'But Thou, who knowest all, dost know

'Whether I was not, life's brief while,

'Endeavouring to reconcile

'Those lips (too tardily, alas!)

'To letting the dear remnant pass,

'One day,—some drops of earthly good

'Untasted! Is it for this mood,

'That Thou, whose earth delights so well,

'Hast made its complement a hell?'

XVII

A final belch of fire like blood, Overbroke all heaven in one flood
Of doom. Then fire was sky, and sky
Fire, and both, one brief ecstasy, Then ashes. But I heard no noise (Whatever was) because a voice Beside me spoke thus, 'Life is done,
'Time ends, Eternity's begun,
'And thou art judged for evermore.'

XVIII

I looked up; all seemed as before;
Of that cloud-Tophet overhead
No trace was left: I saw instead
The common round me, and the sky
Above, stretched drear and empty
Of life. 'Twas the last watch of night, Except what brings the morning quite;
When the armed angel, conscience-clear,
His task nigh done, leans o'er his spear

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

And gazes on the earth he guards,
Safe one night more through all its wards,
Till God relieve him at his post.

'A dream—a waking dream at most!'
(I spoke out quick, that I might shake The horrid nightmare off, and wake.)
'The world gone, yet the world is here?
'Are not all things as they appear?
'Is Judgment past for me alone?
'—And where had place the great white
throne?

'The rising of the quick and dead?
'Where stood they, small and great? Who read

'The sentence from the opened book?'
So, by degrees, the blood forsook
My heart, and let it beat afresh;
I knew I should break through the mesh
Of horror, and breathe presently:
When, lo, again, the voice by me!

XIX

I saw . . . Oh brother, 'mid far sands
The palm-tree-cinctured city stands, Bright-white beneath, as heaven, bright-
blue,

Leans o'er it, while the years pursue
Their course, unable to abate
Its paradisaal laugh at fate!
One morn,—the Arab staggers blind
O'er a new tract of death, calcined
To ashes, silence, nothingness,—
And strives, with dizzy wits, to guess
Whence fell the blow. What if, 'twixt skies
And prostrate earth, he should surprise
The imaged vapour, head to foot,
Surveying, motionless and mute,
Its work, ere, in a whirlwind rapt
It vanish up again?—So hapt My chance. He stood there. Like the smoke

Pillared o'er Sodom, when day broke,—
I saw Him. One magnific pall Mantled in massive fold and fall
His head, and coiled in snaky swathes
About His feet: night's black, that bathes
All else, broke, grizzled with despair,
Against the soul of blackness there.
A gesture told the mood within—
That wrapped right hand which based the
chin,

That intense meditation fixed
On His procedure,—pity mixed
With the fulfilment of decree.
Motionless, thus, He spoke to me,
Who fell before His feet, a mass,
No man now.

XX

'All is come to pass.
'Such shows are over for each soul
'They had respect to. In the roll
'Of Judgment which convinced mankind
'Of sin, stood many, bold and blind,

'Terror must burn the truth into:
'Their fate for them!—thou hadst to do
'With absolute omnipotence,
'Able its judgments to dispense
'To the whole race, as every one
'Were its sole object. Judgment done,
'God is, thou art,—the rest is hurled
'To nothingness for thee. This world,
'This finite life, thou hast preferred,
'In disbelief of God's plain word,
'To heaven and to infinity.
'Here the probation was for thee,
'To show thy soul the earthly mixed
'With heavenly, it must choose betwixt.
'The earthly joys lay palpable,—
'A taint, in each, distinct as well;
'The heavenly flitted, faint and rare,
'Above them, but as truly were
'Taintless, so, in their nature, best.
'Thy choice was earth: thou didst attest
'Twas fitter spirit should subserve
'The flesh, than flesh refine to nerve 'Beneath the spirit's play. Advance
'No claim to their inheritance
'Who chose the spirit's fugitive
'Brief gleams, and yearned, "This were to
live

"Indeed, if rays, completely pure
"From flesh that dulls them, could endure,—
"Not shoot in meteor-light athwart
"Our earth, to show how cold and swart
"It lies beneath their fire, but stand
"As stars do, destined to expand,
"Prove veritable worlds, our home!"
'Thou saidst,—"Let spirit star the dome
"Of sky, that flesh may miss no peak,
"No nook of earth,—I shall not seek
"Its service further!" Thou art shut 'Out of the heaven of spirit; glut
'Thy sense upon the world: 'tis thine
'For ever—take it!

XXI

'How? Is mine,
'The world?' (I cried, while my soul broke Out in a transport.) 'Hast Thou spoke Plainly in that? Earth's exquisite 'Treasures of wonder and delight,
'For me?'

XXII

The austere voice returned,—
'So soon made happy? Hadst thou
learned
'What God accounteth happiness,
'Thou wouldst not find it hard to guess
'What hell may be his punishment
'For those who doubt if God invent
'Better than they. Let such men rest
'Content with what they judged the best.
'Let the unjust usurp at will:
'The filthy shall be filthy still:
'Miser, there waits the gold for thee!
'Hater, indulge thine enmity!

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

'And thou, whose heaven self-ordained
'Was, to enjoy earth unrestrained,
'Do it! Take all the ancient show!
'The woods shall wave, the rivers flow,
'And men apparently pursue
'Their works, as they were wont to do,
'While living in probation yet.
'I promise not thou shalt forget
'The past, now gone to its account;
'But leave thee with the old amount
'Of faculties, nor less nor more,
'Unvisited, as heretofore,
'By God's free spirit, that makes an end.
'So, once more, take thy world! Expend 'Eternity upon its shows,
'Flung thee as freely as one rose
'Out of a summer's opulence,
'Over the Eden-barrier whence
'Thou art excluded. Knock in vain!'

XXIII

I sat up. All was still again.
I breathed free: to my heart, back fled
The warmth. 'But, all the world!'—I said.
I stooped and picked a leaf of fern,
And recollected I might learn
From books, how many myriad sorts
Of fern exist, to trust reports,
Each as distinct and beautiful
As this, the very first I cull.
Think, from the first leaf to the last!
Conceive, then, earth's resources! Vast Exhaustless beauty, endless change
Of wonder! And this foot shall range Alps, Andes,—and this eye devour
The bee-bird and the aloe-flower?

XXIV

Then the voice, 'Welcome so to rate
'The arras-folds that variegates
'The earth, God's antechamber, well!
'The wise, who waited there, could tell
'By these, what royalties in store
'Lay one step past the entrance-door.
'For whom, was reckoned, not too much,
'This life's munificence? For such 'As thou,—a race, whereof scarce one
'Was able, in a million,
'To feel that any marvel lay
'In objects round his feet all day;
'Scarce one, in many millions more,
'Willing, if able, to explore
'The secreter, minuter charm!
'—Brave souls, a fern-leaf could disarm.
'Of power to cope with God's intent,—
'Or scared if the south firmament
'With north-fire did its wings reffedge!
'All partial beauty was a pledge 'Of beauty in its plenitude:
'But since the pledge sufficed thy mood,
'Retain it! plenitude be theirs
'Who looked above!'

XXV

Though sharp despairs
Shot through me, I held up, bore on.
'What matter though my trust were gone 'From natural things? Henceforth my
part
'Be less with nature than with art!
'For art supplants, gives mainly worth
'To nature; 'tis man stamps the earth—
'And I will seek his impress, seek
'The statuary of the Greek,
'Italy's painting—there my choice
'Shall fix!'

XXVI

'Obtain it!' said the voice,
'—The one form with its single act,
'Which sculptors laboured to abstract,
'The one face, painters tried to draw,
'With its one look, from throngs they saw.
'And that perfection in their soul,
'These only hinted at? The whole,
'They were but parts of? What each laid
'His claim to glory on?—afraid
'His fellow-men should give him rank
'By mere tentatives which he shrank
'Smitten at heart from, all the more,
'That gazers pressed in to adore!
'"Shall I be judged by only these?"
'If such his soul's capacities,
'Even while he trod the earth,—think, now,
'What pomp in Buonarroti's brow,
'With its new palace-brain where dwells
'Superb the soul, unweaved by cells
'That crumbled with the transient clay!
'What visions will his right hand's sway
'Still turn to forms, as still they burst
'Upon him? How will he quench thirst,
'Titanically infantine,
'Laid at the breast of the Divine?
'Does it confound thee,—this first page
'Emblazoning man's heritage?—
'Can this alone absorb thy sight,
'As pages were not infinite,—
'Like the omnipotence which tasks
'Itself to furnish all that asks
'The soul it means to satiate?
'What was the world, the starry state
'Of the broad skies,—what, all displays
'Of power and beauty intermixed,
'Which now thy soul is chained betwixt,—
'What else than needful furniture
'For life's first stage? God's work, be
sure,
'No more spreads wasted, than falls scant!
'He filled, did not exceed, man's want 'Of beauty in this life. But through 'Life pierce,—and what has earth to do,
'Its utmost beauty's appanage,
'With the requirement of next stage?
'Did God pronounce earth "very good"?
'Needs must it be, while understood
'For man's preparatory state;
'Nought here to heighten nor abate;

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

'Transfer the same completeness here,
 'To serve a new state's use,—and drear
 'Deficiency gapes every side!
 'The good, tried once, were bad, retried.
 'See the enwrapping rocky niche,
 'Sufficient for the sleep in which
 'The lizard breathes for ages safe:
 'Split the mould—and as light would chafe
 'The creature's new world-widened sense,
 'Dazzled to death at evidence
 'Of all the sounds and sights that broke
 'Innumerable at the chisel's stroke,—
 'So, in God's eye, the earth's first stuff
 'Was, neither more nor less, enough
 'To house man's soul, man's need fulfil.
 'Man reckoned it immeasurable?
 'So thinks the lizard of his vault!
 'Could God be taken in default,
 'Short of contrivances, by you,—
 'Or reached, ere ready to pursue
 'His progress through eternity?
 'That chambered rock, the lizard's world,
 'Your easy mallet's blow has hurled
 'To nothingness for ever; so,
 'Has God abolished at a blow
 'This world, wherein his saints were pent,—
 'Who, though found grateful and content,
 'With the provision there, as thou,
 'Yet knew he would not disallow
 'Their spirit's hunger, felt as well,—
 'Unsated,—not unsatable,
 'As paradise gives proof. Deride
 'Their choice now, thou who sit'st outside!'

XXVII

I cried in anguish, 'Mind, the mind,
 'So miserably cast behind,
 'To gain what had been wisely lost!
 'Oh, let me strive to make the most 'Of the poor stunted soul, I nipped
 'Of budding wings, else now equipped 'For voyage from summer isle to isle!
 'And though she needs must reconcile
 'Ambition to the life on ground,
 'Still, I can profit by late found
 'But precious knowledge. Mind is best—
 'I will seize mind, forego the rest,
 'And try how far my tethered strength
 'May crawl in this poor breadth and
 length.
 'Let me, since I can fly no more,
 'At least spin dervish-like about '(Till giddy rapture almost doubt
 'I fly) through circling sciences,
 'Philosophies and histories!
 'Should the whirl slacken there, then
 verse,
 'Fining to music, shall asperse
 'Fresh and fresh fire-dew, till I strain
 'Intoxicate, half-break my chain!

'Not joyless, though more favoured feet
 'Stand calm, where I want wings to beat
 'The floor. At least earth's bond is broke!'

XXVIII

Then, (sickening even while I spoke)
 'Let me alone! No answer, pray,
 'To this! I know what Thou wilt say!
 'All still is earth's,—to know, as much
 'As feel its truths, which if we touch
 'With sense, or apprehend in soul,
 'What matter? I have reached the goal—
 '"Where'to does knowledge serve!" will burn
 'My eyes, too sure, at every turn!
 'I cannot look back now, nor stake
 'Bliss on the race, for running's sake.
 'The goal's a ruin like the rest!—
 'And so much worse thy latter quest,' (Added the voice) 'that even on earth—
 'Whenever, in man's soul, had birth
 'Those intuitions, grasps of guess,
 'Which pull the more into the less,
 'Making the finite comprehend
 'Infinity,—the bard would spend
 'Such praise alone, upon his craft,
 'As, when wind-lyres obey the waft,
 'Goes to the craftsman who arranged
 'The seven strings, changed them and re-
 changed—
 'Knowing it was the South that harped.
 'He felt his song, in singing, warped;
 'Distinguished his and God's part: whence
 'A world of spirit as of sense
 'Was plain to him, yet not too plain,
 'Which he could traverse, not remain
 'A guest in:—else were permanent
 'Heaven on the earth its gleams were meant
 'To sting with hunger for full light,—
 'Made visible in verse, despite
 'The veiling weakness,—truth by means 'Of fable, showing while it screens,—
 'Since highest truth, man e'er supplied,
 'Was ever fable on outside.
 'Such gleams made bright the earth an
 age;
 'Now the whole sun's his heritage!
 'Take up thy world, it is allowed,
 'Thou who hast entered in the cloud!'

XXIX

Then I—'Behold, my spirit bleeds,
 'Catches no more at broken reeds,—
 'But lilies flower those reeds above:
 'I let the world go, and take love!
 'Love survives in me, albeit those
 'I love be henceforth masks and shows,
 'Not living men and women: still
 'I mind how love repaired all ill,
 'Cured wrong, soothed grief, made earth
 amends
 'With parents, brothers, children, friends!

CHRISTMAS-EVE AND EASTER-DAY

'Some semblance of a woman yet
'With eyes to help me to forget,
'Shall look on me; and I will match
'Departed love with love, attach
'Old memories to new dreams, nor scorn
'The poorest of the grains of corn
'I save from shipwreck on this isle,
'Trusting its barrenness may smile,
'With happy foodful green one day,
'More precious for the pains. I pray,—
'Leave to love, only!'

XXX

At the word,
The form, I looked to have been stirred
With pity and approval, rose O'er me, as when the headsman throws
Axe over shoulder to make end—
I fell prone, letting Him expend
His wrath, while thus the inflicting voice Smote me. 'Is this thy final choice?
'Love is the best? 'Tis somewhat late!
'And all thou dost enumerate
'Of power and beauty in the world,
'The mightiness of love was curled
'Inextricably round about.
'Love lay within it and without,
'To clasp thee,—but in vain! Thy soul
'Still shrunk from Him who made the
whole,
'Still set deliberate aside
'His love!—Now take love! Well betide
'Thy tardy conscience! Haste to take 'The show of love for the name's sake,
'Remembering every moment Who,
'Beside creating thee unto
'These ends, and these for thee, was said
'To undergo death in thy stead
'In flesh like thine: so ran the tale.
'What doubt in thee could countervail
'Belief in it? Upon the ground
"That in the story had been found "Too much love! How could God love
so?"
'He who in all his works below
'Adapted to the needs of man,
'Made love the basis of the plan,—
'Did love, as was demonstrated:
'While man, who was so fit instead
'To hate, as every day gave proof,—
'Man thought man, for his kind's behoof,
'Both could and did invent that scheme
'Of perfect love: 'twould well beseem
'Cain's nature thou wast wont to praise,
'Not tally with God's usual ways!'

XXXI

And I covered deprecatingly—
'Thou Love of God! Or let me die,

'Or grant what shall seem heaven almost!
'Let me not know that all is lost,
'Though lost it be—leave me not tied
'To this despair, this corpse-like bride!
'Let that old life seem mine—no more—
'With limitation as before,
'With darkness, hunger, toil, distress:
'Be all the earth a wilderness!
'Only let me go on, go on,
'Still hoping ever and anon
'To reach one eve the Better Land!'

XXXII

Then did the form expand,—
I knew Him through the dread disguise
As the whole God within His eyes Embraced me.

XXXIII

When I lived again,
'The day was breaking,—the grey plain
I rose from, silvered thick with dew.
Was this a vision? False or true?
Since then, three varied years are spent,
And commonly my mind is bent
To think it was a dream—be sure
A mere dream and distemperature—
The last day's watching: then the night,—
The shock of that strange Northern
Light
Set my head swimming, bred in me
A dream. And so I live, you see,
Go through the world, try, prove, reject,
I prefer, still struggling to effect
My warfare; happy that I can Be crossed and thwarted as a man,
Not left in God's contempt apart,
With ghastly smooth life, dead at heart,
Tame in earth's paddock as her prize.
Thank God, she still each method tries
To catch me, who may yet escape,
She knows,—the fiend in angel's shape!
Thank God, no paradise stands barred
To entry, and I find it hard
To be a Christian, as I said!
Still every now and then my head Raised glad, sinks mournful—all grows
drear
Spite of the sunshine, while I fear
And think, 'How dreadful to be grudging
'No ease henceforth, as one that's judged.
'Condemned to earth for ever, shut
'From heaven!'

But Easter-Day breaks! But Christ rises! Mercy every way
Is infinite,—and who can say?

MEN AND WOMEN

184-185-

'TRANSCENDENTALISM: A POEM IN TWELVE BOOKS'

STOP playing, poet! May a brother speak?
'Tis you speak, that's your error. Song's our art:

Whereas you please to speak these naked
thoughts

Instead of draping them in sights and sounds.

—True thoughts, good thoughts, thoughts fit to treasure up!

But why such long profusion and display,
Such turning and adjustment of the harp,
And taking it upon your breast, at length,
Only to speak dry words across its strings?
Stark-naked thought is in request enough:
Speak prose and hollo it till Europe hears!
The six-foot Swiss tube, braced about with
bark,

Which helps the hunter's voice from Alp to Alp—

Exchange our harp for that,—who hinders you?

But here's your fault; grown men want thought, you think;

Thought's what they mean by verse, and seek in verse.

Boys seek for images and melody, Men must have reason—so, you aim at
men.

Quite otherwise! Objects throng our youth, 'tis true;

We see and hear and do not wonder much:
If you could tell us what they mean, in-
deed!

As German Boehme never cared for plants
Until it happened, a-walking in the fields,
He noticed all at once that plants could
speak,

Nay, turned with loosened tongue to talk
with him.

That day the daisy had an eye indeed—Colloquized with the cowslip on such themes!

We find them extant yet in Jacob's prose.
But by the time youth slips a stage or two While reading prose in that tough book he wrote

(Collating and emendating the same And settling on the sense most to our
mind),

We shut the clasps and find life's summer
past.

Then, who helps more, pray, to repair our loss—

Another Boehme with a tougher book
And subtler meanings of what roses say,— Or some stout Mage like him of Halberstadt,¹

John, who made things Boehme wrote thoughts about?

He with a 'look you!' vents a brace of
rhymes,

And in there breaks the sudden rose her-
self,

Over us, under, round us every side,
Nay, in and out the tables and the chairs
And musty volumes, Boehme's book and
all,—

Buries us with a glory, young once more,
Pouring heaven into this shut house of life.

So come, the harp back to your heart
again!

You are a poem, though your poem's naught.

The best of all you showed before, believe,
Was your own boy-face o'er the finer chords

Bent, following the cherub at the top
That points to God with his paired half-moon wings.

HOW IT STRIKES A CONTEMPORARY

I ONLY knew one poet in my life:
And this, or something like it, was his way.

You saw go up and down Valladolid,
A man of mark, to know next time you
saw.

His very serviceable suit of black
Was courtly once and conscientious still,
And many might have worn it, though none did:

The cloak, that somewhat shone and showed the threads,

Had purpose, and the ruff, significance.
He walked and tapped the pavement with his cane,

Scenting the world, looking it full in face,

An old dog, bald and blindish, at his heels.
They turned up, now, the alley by the

church,
That leads nowhither; now, they breathed themselves

On the main promenade just at the wrong
time:

¹ John of Halberstadt, a magician botanist and a chymist.

HOW IT STRIKES A CONTEMPORARY

You'd come upon his scrutinizing hat, Making a peaked shade blacker than it-
 self
 Against the single window spared some
 house
 Intact yet with its mouldered Moorish
 work,—
 Or else surprise the ferrel of his stick Trying the mortar's temper 'tween the chinks
 Of some new shop a-building, French and fine.
 He stood and watched the cobbler at his trade,
 The man who slices lemons into drink,
 The coffee-roaster's brazier, and the boys
 That volunteer to help him turn its winch.
 He glanced o'er books on stalls with half
 an eye,
 And fly-leaf ballads on the vendor's string,
 And broad-edge bold-print posters by the wall.
 He took such cognizance of men and
 things,
 If any beat a horse, you felt he saw;
 If any cursed a woman, he took note;
 Yet stared at nobody,—you stared at him,
 And found, less to your pleasure than
 surprise,
 He seemed to know you and expect as
 much.
 So, next time that a neighbour's tongue was loosed,
 It marked the shameful and notorious fact,
 We had among us, not so much a spy,
 As a recording chief-inquisitor,
 The town's true master if the town but
 knew!
 We merely kept a governor for form, While this man walked about and took account
 Of all thought, said and acted, then went
 home,
 And wrote it fully to our Lord the King
 Who has an itch to know things, he knows
 why,
 And reads them in his bedroom of a night.
 Oh, you might smile! there wanted not a
 touch,
 A tang of . . . well, it was not wholly ease
 As back into your mind the man's look
 came.
 Stricken in years a little,—such a brow
 His eyes had to live under!—clear as flint
 On either side the formidable nose Curved, cut and coloured like an eagle's claw.
 Had he to do with A.'s surprising fate?
 When altogether old B. disappeared
 And young C. got his mistress,—was't our
 friend,
 His letter to the King, that did it all?
 What paid the bloodless man for so much pains?

Our Lord the King has favourites manifold.
 And shifts his ministry some once a month;
 Our city gets new governors at whiles,—
 But never word or sign, that I could hear,
 Notified to this man about the streets
 The King's approval of those letters conned
 The last thing duly at the dead of night.
 Did the man love his office? Frowned our
 Lord,
 Exhorting when none heard—'Beseech
 me not!
 'Too far above my people,—beneath me!
 'I set the watch,—how should the people
 know?
 'Forget them, keep me all the more in
 mind!'
 Was some such understanding 'twixt the two?

I found no truth in one report at least—
 That if you tracked him to his home, down lanes
 Beyond the Jewry, and as clean to pace,
 You found he ate his supper in a room Blazing with lights, four Titians on the wall,
 And twenty naked girls to change his plate!
 Poor man, he lived another kind of life
 In that rew stuccoed third house by the bridge,
 Fresh-painted, rather smart than otherwise!
 The whole street might o'erlook him as he sat,
 Leg crossing leg, one foot on the dog's
 back,
 Playing a decent cribbage with his maid (Jacynth, you're sure her name was) o'er the cheese
 And fruit, three red halves of starved winter-pears,
 Or treat of radishes in April. Nine, Ten, struck the church clock, straight to bed went he.

My father, like the man of sense he was,
 Would point him out to me a dozen times;
 "St—'St," he'd whisper, 'the Corregidor!'
 I had been used to think that personage
 Was one with lacquered breeches, lustrous belt,
 And feathers like a forest in his hat,
 Who blew a trumpet and proclaimed the
 news,
 Announced the bull-fights, gave each church its turn,
 And memorized the miracle in vogue!
 He had a great observance from us boys;
 We were in error; that was not the man.

I'd like now, yet had haply been afraid,
 To have just looked, when this man came to die,

HOW IT STRIKES A CONTEMPORARY

And seen who lined the clean gay garret-sides
And stood about the neat low truckle-bed,
With the heavenly manner of relieving guard.

Here had been, mark, the general-in-chief,
Thro' a whole campaign of the world's life and death,

Doing the King's work all the dim day
long,

In his old coat and up to knees in mud,
Smoked like a herring, dining on a crust,—
And, now the day was won, relieved at
once!

No further show or need for that old coat,
You are sure, for one thing! Bless us, all the while

How sprucely we are dressed out, you
and I!

A second, and the angels alter that.
Well, I could never write a verse,—could
you?

Let's to the Prado and make the most of
time.

ARTEMIS PROLOGIZES

I AM a goddess of the ambrosial courts,
And save by Here, Queen of Pride, sur-
passed

By none whose temples whiten this the
world.

Through heaven I roll my lucid moon
along;

I shed in hell o'er my pale people peace;
On earth I, caring for the creatures, guard Each pregnant yellow wolf and fox-bitch sleek,

And every feathered mother's callow
brood,

And all that love green haunts and loneli-
ness.

Of men, the chaste adore me, hanging crowns

Of poppies red to blackness, bell and stem,
Upon my image at Athenai here;

And this dead Youth, Asclepius bends
above,

Was dearest to me. He, my buskined step
To follow through the wild-wood leafy
ways,

And chase the panting stag, or swift with darts

Stop the swift ounce, or lay the leopard
low,

Neglected homage to another god:
Whence Aphrodite, by no midnight smoke
Of tapers lulled, in jealousy despatched
A noisome lust that, as the gadbee stings, Possessed his stepdame Phaidra for himself

The son of Theseus her great absent spouse.

Hippolitos exclaiming in his rage

Against the fury of the Queen, she judged Life insupportable; and, pricked at heart
An Amazonian stranger's race should dare
To scorn her, perished by the murderous cord:

Yet, ere she perished, blasted in a scroll
The fame of him her swerving made not swerve.

And Theseus, read, returning, and believed,

And exiled, in the blindness of his wrath,
The man without a crime who, last as first,
Loyal, divulged not to his sire the truth.

Now Theseus from Poseidon had obtained
That of his wishes should be granted three,
And one he imprecated straight—'Alive
'May ne'er Hippolitos reach other lands!'

Poseidon heard, ai ai! And scarce the prince

Had stepped into the fixed boots of the car That gave the feet a stay against the
strength

Of the Henetian horses, and around His body flung the rein, and urged their speed

Along the rocks and shingles of the shore,
When from the gaping wave a monster flung

His obscene body in the coursers' path.
These, mad with terror, as the sea-bull sprawled

Wallowing about their feet, lost care of
him

That reared them; and the master-chariotpole

Snapping beneath their plunges like a reed, Hippolitos, whose feet were trammelled
fast,

Was yet dragged forward by the circling rein

Which either hand directed; nor they quenched

The frenzy of their flight before each trace.
Wheel-spoke and splinter of the woeful car,

Each boulder-stone, sharp stub and spiny shell,

Huge fish-bone wrecked and wreathed amid the sands

On that detested beach, was bright with blood

And morsels of his flesh: then fell the steeds Head foremost, crashing in their mooned fronts,

Shivering with sweat, each white eye horror-fixed.

His people, who had witnessed all afar,
Bore back the ruins of Hippolitos.

But when his sire, too swoln with pride, rejoiced

(Indomitable as a man foredoomed)
That vast Poseidon had fulfilled his prayer,

I, in a flood of glory visible,
Stood o'er my dying votary and, deed

ARTEMIS PROLOGIZES

By deed, revealed, as all took place, the truth.

Then Theseus lay the woefullest of men,
And worthily; but ere the death-veils hid His face, the murdered prince full pardon
breathed
To his rash sire. Whereat Athenai wails.

So I, who ne'er forsake my votaries,
Lest in the cross-way none the honey-cake
Should tender, nor pour out the dog's hot
life;

Lest at my fane the priests disconsolate
Should dress my image with some faded poor

Few crowns, made favours of, nor dare object

Such slackness to my worshippers who
turn

Elsewhere the trusting heart and loaded
hand,

As they had climbed Olumpos to report
Of Artemis and nowhere found her
throne—

I interposed: and, this eventful night,— (While round the funeral pyre the populace

Stood with fierce light on their black robes which bound

Each sobbing head, while yet their hair they clipped

O'er the dead body of their withered
prince,

And, in his palace, Theseus prostrated
On the cold hearth, his brow cold as the slab

'Twas bruised on, groaned away the heavy
grief—

As the pyre fell, and down the cross logs crashed

Sending a crowd of sparkles through the
night,

And the gay fire, elate with mastery,
Towered like a serpent o'er the clotted jars
Of wine, dissolving oils and frankincense, And splendid gums like gold),—my potency

Conveyed the perished man to my retreat
In the thrice-venerable forest here.

And this white-bearded sage who squeezes
now

The berried plant, is Phoibos' son of fame, Asclepios, whom my radiant brother taught

The doctrine of each herb and flower and
root,

To know their secret'st virtue and express
The saving soul of all: who so has soothed With lavers the torn brow and murdered cheeks,

Composed the hair and brought its gloss
again,

And called the red bloom to the pale skin
back,

And laid the strips and jagged ends of flesh
Even once more, and slacked the sinew's knot

Of every tortured limb—that now he lies
As if mere sleep possessed him underneath These interwoven oaks and pines. Oh cheer,

Divine presenter of the healing rod, Thy snake, with ardent throat and lulling
eye,

Twines his lithe spires around! I say, much cheer!

Proceed thou with thy wisest pharmacies!
And ye, white crowd of woodland sisternymphs,

Ply, as the sage directs, these buds and
leaves

That strew the turf around the twain!
While I

Await, in fitting silence, the event.

AN EPISTLE

CONTAINING THE STRANGE MEDICAL EX-PERIENCE OF KARSHISH, THE ARAB PHYSICIAN.

KARSHISH, the picker-up of learning's
crumbs,

The not-incurious in God's handiwork
(This man's-flesh he hath admirably made,

Blown like a bubble, kneaded like a paste,
To coop up and keep down on earth a
space

That puff of vapour from its mouth, man's
soul)

—To Abib, all-sagacious in our art,
Breeder in me of what poor skill I boast,

Like me inquisitive how pricks and cracks Befall the flesh through too much stress and strain,

Whereby the wily vapour fain would slip

Back and rejoin its source before the term,—

And aptest in contrivance (under God)
To baffle it by deftly stopping such:—

The vagrant Scholar to his Sage at home Sends greeting (health and knowledge, fame with peace)

Three samples of true snakestone—rarer
still,

One of the other sort, the melon-shaped, (But fitter, pounded fine, for charms than drugs)

And writeth now the twenty-second time.

• My journeyings were brought to Jericho:

Thus I resume. Who studious in our art
Shall count a little labour unrepaid?

• I have shed sweat enough, left flesh and bone

On many a flinty furlong of this land.
Also, the country-side is all on fire

With rumours of a marching hitherward:

Some say Vespasian cometh, some, his son.
A black lynx snarled and pricked a tufted
ear;

Lust of my blood inflamed his yellow balls:
I cried and threw my staff and he was gone.
Twice have the robbers stripped and beaten me,

And once a town declared me for a spy;
But at the end, I reach Jerusalem, Since this poor covert where I pass the
night,
This Bethany, lies scarce the distance
thence

A man with plague-sores at the third degree

Runs till he drops down dead. Thou laughest here!

'Sooth, it elates me, thus reposed and safe,
To void the stuffing of my travel-scrip
And share with thee whatever Jewry yields.
A viscid choler is observable

In tertians, I was nearly bold to say;
And falling-sickness hath a happier cure
Than our school wots of: there's a spider
here

Weaves no web, watches on the ledge of tombs,

Sprinkled with mottles on an ash-grey
back;

Take five and drop them . . . but who knows his mind,

The Syrian runagate I trust this to?
His service payeth me a sublimate
Blown up his nose to help the ailing eye.
Best wait: I reach Jerusalem at morn,
There set in order my experiences,
Gather what most deserves, and give thee
all—

Or I might add, Judæa's gum-tragacanth Scales off in purer flakes, shines clearer-grained,

Cracks 'twixt the pestle and the porphyry,
In fine exceeds our produce. Scalp-disease
Confounds me, crossing so with leprosy—Thou hadst admired one sort I gained at Zoar—

But zeal outruns discretion. Here I end.

Yet stay: my Syrian blinketh gratefully,
Protesteth his devotion is my price—Suppose I write what harms not, though he steal?

I half resolve to tell thee, yet I blush,
What set me off a-writing first of all.
An itch I had, a sting to write, a tang!
For, be it this town's barrenness—or else
The Man had something in the look of
him—

His case has struck me far more than 'tis
worth.

So, pardon if—(lest presently I lose
In the great press of novelty at hand
The care and pains this somehow stole
from me)

I bid thee take the thing while fresh in
mind,

Almost in sight—for, wilt thou have the
truth?

The very man is gone from me but now,
Whose ailment is the subject of discourse.
Thus then, and let thy better wit help all!

'Tis but a case of mania—subinduced
By epilepsy, at the turning-point Of trance prolonged unduly some three
days:

When, by the exhibition of some drug
Or spell, exorcization, stroke of art Unknown to me and which 'twere well to
know,

The evil thing out-breaking all at once
Left the man whole and sound of body
indeed,—

But, flinging (so to speak) life's gates too
wide,

Making a clear house of it too suddenly,
The first conceit that entered might inscribe

Whatever it was minded on the wall
So plainly at that vantage, as it were,
(First come, first served) that nothing subsequent

Attaineth to erase those fancy-scrawl
The just-returned and new-established soul
Hath gotten now so thoroughly by heart That henceforth she will read or these or none.

And first—the man's own firm conviction rests

That he was dead (in fact they buried him) —That he was dead and then restored to
life

By a Nazarene physician of his tribe:
—'Sayeth, the same bade 'Rise,' and he did rise.

'Such cases are diurnal,' thou wilt cry.
Not so this figment!—not, that such a
fume,

Instead of giving way to time and health,
Should eat itself into the life of life,
As saffron tingeth flesh, blood, bores and
all!

For see, how he takes up the after-life.
The man—it is one Lazarus a Jew,
Sanguine, proportioned, fifty years of age,
The body's habit wholly laudable,
As much, indeed, beyond the common health

As he were made and put aside to show.
Think, could we penetrate by any drug
And bathe the wearied soul and worried
flesh,
And bring it clear and fair, by three days'
sleep!

Whence has the man the balm that brightens all?

This grown man eyes the world now like a child.

AN EPISTLE

Some elders of his tribe, I should premise,
Led in their friend, obedient as a sheep,
To bear my inquisition. While they spoke,
Now sharply, now with sorrow,—told the
case,—

He listened not except I spoke to him,
But folded his two hands and let them talk,
Watching the flies that buzzed: and yet no
fool.

And that 's a sample how his years must go.
Look, if a beggar, in fixed middle-life, Should find a treasure,—can he use the
same

With straitened habits and with tastes starved small,

And take at once to his impoverished
brain

The sudden element that changes things,
That sets the undreamed-of rapture at his
hand

And puts the cheap old joy in the scorned
dust?

Is he not such an one as moves to mirth—
Warily parsimonious, when no need,
Wasteful as drunkenness at undue times?
All prudent counsel as to what befits
The golden mean, is lost on such an one:
The man's fantastic will is the man's law.
So here—we call the treasure knowledge,
say,

Increased beyond the fleshly faculty—Heaven opened to a soul while yet on
earth,

Earth forced on a soul's use while seeing
heaven:

The man is witless of the size, the sum,
The value in proportion of all things,
Or whether it be little or be much.
Discourse to him of prodigious armaments

Assembled to besiege his city now,
And of the passing of a mule with gourds—
'Tis one! Then take it on the other side, Speak of some trifling fact,—he will gaze rapt

With stupor at its very littleness,
(Far as I see) as if in that indeed
He caught prodigious import, whole results;

And so will turn to us the bystanders
In ever the same stupor (note this point)
That we too see not with his opened eyes.
Wonder and doubt come wrongly into
play,

Preposterously, at cross purposes.
Should his child sicken unto death,—why,
look

For scarce abatement of his cheerfulness,
Or pretermission of the daily craft!
While a word, gesture, glance from that same child

At play or in the school or laid asleep,
Will startle him to an agony of fear,
Exasperation, just as like. Demand

The reason why—'tis but a word,' object—

'A gesture'—he regards thee as our lord
Who lived there in the pyramid alone,
Looked at us (dost thou mind?) when,
being young,

We both would unadvisedly recite
Some charm's beginning, from that book of his,

Able to bid the sun throb wide and burst
All into stars, as suns grown old are wont.
Thou and the child have each a veil alike Thrown o'er your heads, from under which ye both

Stretch your blind hands and trifle with a match

Over a mine of Greek fire, did ye know!
He holds on firmly to some thread of life—
(It is the life to lead perforce)

Which runs across some vast distracting
orb

Of glory on either side that meagre thread,
Which, conscious of, he must not enter
yet—

The spiritual life around the earthly life:
The law of that is known to him as this,
His heart and brain move there, his feet stay here.

So is the man perplex with impulses Sudden to start off crosswise, not straight
on,

Proclaiming what is right and wrong across,

And not along, this black thread through the blaze—

'It should be' balked by 'here it cannot
be.'

And oft the man's soul springs into his face
As if he saw again and heard again
His sage that bade him 'Rise' and he did
rise.

Something, a word, a tick o' the blood within

Admonishes: then back he sinks at once
To ashes, who was very fire before,
In sedulous recurrence to his trade
Whereby he earneth him the daily bread;
And studiously the humbler for that pride,
Professedly the faultier that he knows God's secret, while he holds the thread of
life.

Indeed the especial marking of the man
Is prone submission to the heavenly will—Seeing it, what it is, and why it is.

'Sayeth, he will wait patient to the last
For that same death which must restore his being

To equilibrium, body loosening soul Divorced even now by premature full growth:

He will live, nay, it pleaseth him to live
So long as God please, and just how God
please.

He even seeketh not to please God more

(Which meaneth, otherwise) than as God please.

Hence, I perceive not he affects to preach
The doctrine of his sect whate'er it be,
Make proselytes as madmen thirst to do:
How can he give his neighbour the real
ground,

His own conviction? Ardent as he is—
Call his great truth a lie, why, still the old
'Be it as God please' reassureth him.
I probe'd the sore as thy disciple should:
'How, beast,' said I, 'this stolid careless-

ness
'Sufficeth thee, when Rome is on her
march

'To stamp out like a little spark thy town,
'Thy tribe, thy crazy tale and thee at once?'
He merely looked with his large eyes on
me.

The man is apathetic, you deduce?
Contrariwise, he loves both old and young,
Able and weak, affects the very brutes
And birds—how say I? flowers of the field—

As a wise workman recognizes tools
In a master's workshop, loving what they
make.

Thus is the man as harmless as a lamb:
Only impatient. let him do his best,
At ignorance and carelessness and sin—
An indignation which is promptly curbed:
As when in certain travel I have feigned
To be an ignoramus in our art
According to some preconceived design,
And happed to hear the land's practitioners

Steeped in conceit sublimed by ignorance,
Prattle fantastically on disease,
Its cause and cure—and I must hold my
peace!

Thou wilt object—Why have I not ere
this

sought out the sage himself, the Nazarene Who wrought this cure, inquiring at the source,

Conferring with the frankness that befits?
Alas! it grieveth me, the learned leech Perished in a tumult many years ago,
Accused,—our learning's fate,—of wizar-dery,

Rebellion, to the setting up a rule
And creed prodigious as described to me.
His death, which happened when the earthquake fell

(Prefiguring, as soon appeared, the loss
To occult learning in our lord the sage
Who lived there in the pyramid alone)
Was wrought by the mad people—that's their wont!

On vain recourse, as I conjecture it,
To his tried virtue, for miraculous help—
How could he stop the earthquake?
That's their way!

The other imputations must be lies:
But take one, though I loathe to give it
thee,

In mere respect for any good man's fame.
(And after all, our patient Lazarus Is stark mad; should we count on what he says?

Perhaps not; though in writing to a leech
'Tis well to keep back nothing of a case.)
This man so cured regards the curer, then,
As—God forgive me! who but God him-
self,

Creator and sustainer of the world,
That came and dwelt in flesh on it awhile!
—'Sayeth that such an one was born and
lived

Taught, healed the sick, broke bread at his own house,
Then died, with Lazarus by, for aught I
know,

And yet was . . . what I said nor choose
repeat,
And must have so avouched himself, in
fact,

In hearing of this very Lazarus Who saith—but why all this of what he saith?

Why write of trivial matters, things of price
Calling at every moment for remark?
I noticed on the margin of a pool
Blue-flowering borage, the Aleppo sort,
Aboundeth, very nitrous. It is strange!

Thy pardon for this long and tedious
case,

Which, now that I review it, needs must
seem

Unduly dwelt on, prolixly set forth!
Nor I myself discern in what is writ
Good cause for the peculiar interest
And awe indeed this man has touched me
with.

Perhaps the journey's end, the weariness
'I had wrought upon me first. I met him
thus:

I crossed a ridge of short sharp broken hills
Like an old lion's cheek-teeth. Out there came

A moon made like a face with certain spots
Multiform, manifold and menacing:

Then a wind rose behind me. So we met
In this old sleepy town at unaware
The man and I. I send thee what is writ.
Regard it as a chance, a matter risked
To this ambiguous Syrian—he may lose,
Or steal, or give it thee with equal good.
Jerusalem's repose shall make amends
For time this letter wastes, thy time and
mine;

Till when, once more thy pardon and
farewell!

The very God! think, Abib; dost thou
think?

FRA LIPPO LIPPI

And all's come square again. I'd like his face—

His, elbowing on his comrade in the door
With the pike and lantern,—for the slave that holds

John Baptist's head a-dangle by the hair With one hand ('Look you, now,' as who should say)

And his weapon in the other, yet unwiped!
It's not your chance to have a bit of chalk,
A wood-coal or the like? or you should see!
Yes, I'm the painter, since you style me so.
What, brother Lippo's doings, up and
down,

You know them and they take you? like
enough!

I saw the proper twinkle in your eye—
'Tell you, I liked your looks at very first.
Let's sit and set things straight now, hip to haunch.

Here's spring come, and the nights one makes up bands

To roam the town and sing out carnival,
And I've been three weeks shut within my mew,

A-painting for the great man, saints and saints

And saints again. I could not paint all
night—

Ouf! I leaned out of window for fresh air.
There came a hurry of feet and little feet,
A sweep of lute-strings, laughs, and whiffs of song,—

*Flower o' the broom,
Take away love, and our earth is a tomb!*

*Flower o' the quince,
I let Lisa go, and what good in life since?*

Flower o' the thyme—and so on. Round they went.

Scarce had they turned the corner when a titter

Like the skipping of rabbits by moonlight,—three slim shapes,

And a face that looked up . . . zooks, sir,
flesh and blood,

That's all I'm made of! Into shreds it
went,

Curtain and counterpane and coverlet,
All the bed-furniture—a dozen knots,

There was a ladder! Down I let myself, Hands and feet, scrambling somehow,

and so dropped,
And after them. I came up with the fun

Hard by Saint Laurence, hail fellow, well met,—

*Flower o' the rose,
If I've been merry, what matter who knows?*

And so as I was stealing back again
To get to bed and have a bit of sleep

Ere I rise up to-morrow and go work
On Jerome knocking at his poor old breast

With his great round stone to subdue the
flesh,

You snap me of the sudden. Ah, I see!

Though your eye twinkles still, you shake your head—

Mine's shaved—a monk, you say—the sting's in that!

If Master Cosimo announced himself,
Mum's the word naturally; but a monk!

Come, what am I a beast for? tell us, now!
I was a baby when my mother died

And father died and left me in the street.
I starved there, God knows how, a year or
two

On fig-skins, melon-parings, rinds and shucks,

Refuse and rubbish. One fine frosty day,
My stomach being empty as your hat,

The wind doubled me up and down I went.
Old Aunt Lapaccia trussed me with one
hand,

(Its fellow was a stinger as I knew)
And so along the wall, over the bridge,

By the straight cut to the convent. Six words there,

While I stood munching my first bread that month:

'So, boy, you're minded,' quoth the good fat father

Wiping his own mouth, 'twas refectio-
time,—

'To quit this very miserable world?
'Will you renounce' . . . 'the mouthful of bread?' thought I;

By no means! Brief, they made a monk of
me;

I did renounce the world, its pride and greed,

Palace, farm, villa, shop and banking-
house,

Trash, such as these poor devils of Medici Have given their hearts to—all at eight years old.

Well, sir, I found in time, you may be sure,
'Twas not for nothing—the good bellyful,

The warm serge and the rope that goes all
round,

And day-long blessed idleness beside!
'Let's see what the urchin's fit for'—that came next.

Not overmuch their way, I must confess.
Such a to-do! They tried me with their books:

Lord, they'd have taught me Latin in pure
waste!

*Flower o' the clove,
All the Latin I construe is, 'amo' I love!*

But, mind you; when a boy starves in the streets

Eight years together, as my fortune was, Watching folk's faces to know who will fling

The bit of half-stripped grape-bunch he desires,

And who will curse or kick him for his
pains,—

Which gentleman processional and fine,

Holding a candle to the Sacrament,
Will wink and let him lift a plate and catch
The droppings of the wax to sell again,
Or holla for the Eight and have him whipped,—

How say I?—nay, which dog bites, which lets drop

His bone from the heap of offal in the street,—

Why, soul and sense of him grow sharp alike,

He learns the look of things, and none the less

For admonition from the hunger-pinch.
I had a store of such remarks, be sure,
Which, after I found leisure, turned to use.
I drew men's faces on my copy-books,
Scrawled them within the antiphonary's marge,

Joined legs and arms to the long music-notes,

Found eyes and nose and chin for A's and B's,

And made a string of pictures of the world
Betwixt the ins and outs of verb and noun, On the wall, the bench, the door. The monks looked black.

'Nay,' quoth the Prior, 'turn him out,
d'ye say?

'In no wise. Lose a crow and catch a lark.

'What if at last we get our man of parts,

'We Carmelites, like those Camaldolese

'And Preaching Friars, to do our church up fine

'And put the front on it that ought to be!'
And hereupon he bade me daub away.

Thank you! my head being crammed, the walls a blank,

Never was such prompt disembodying.
First, every sort of monk, the black and
white,

I drew them, fat and lean: then, folk at
church,

From good old gossips waiting to confess Their cribs of barrel-droppings, candle-
ends,—

To the breathless fellow at the altar-foot, Fresh from his murder, safe and sitting
there

With the little children round him in a row

Of admiration, half for his beard and half
For that white anger of his victim's son

Shaking a fist at him with one fierce arm, Signing himself with the other because of Christ

(Whose sad face on the cross sees only this After the passion of a thousand years)

Till some poor girl, her apron o'er her
head,

(Which the intense eyes looked through) came at eve

On tiptoe, said a word, dropped in a loaf,
Her pair of earrings and a bunch of flowers

(The brute took growling), prayed, and so was gone.

I painted all, then cried 'Tis ask and have;
'Choose, for more's ready!'—laid the ladder flat,

And showed my covered bit of cloister-
wall.

The monks closed in a circle and praised
loud

Till checked, taught what to see and not
to see,

Being simple bodies,—'That's the very
man!

'Look at the boy who stoops to pat the dog!

'That woman's like the Prior's niece who comes

'To care about his asthma: it's the life!'
But there my triumph's straw-fire flared and finked;

Their betters took their turn to see and say:
The Prior and the learned pulled a face

And stopped all that in no time. 'How?
what's here?

'Quite from the mark of painting, bless us
all!

'Faces, arms, legs and bodies like the true
'As much as pea and pea! it's devil's-game!

'Your business is not to catch men with show,

'With homage to the perishable clay,
'But lift them over it, ignore it all,

'Make them forget there's such a thing as
flesh.

'Your business is to paint the souls of
men—

'Man's soul, and it's a fire, smoke . . . no, it's not . . .

'It's vapour done up like a new-born
babe—

'(In that shape when you die it leaves your mouth)

'It's . . . well, what matters talking, it's the soul!

'Give us no more of body than shows soul!
'Here's Giotto, with his Saint a-praising
God,

'That sets us praising,—why not stop with
him?

'Why put all thoughts of praise out of our
head

'With wonder at lines, colours, and what
not?

'Paint the soul, never mind the legs and
arms!

'Rub all out, try at it a second time.
'Oh, that white smallish female with the breasts,

'She's just my niece . . . Herodias, I would say,—

'Who went and danced and got men's heads cut off!

'Have it all out!' Now, is this sense, I
ask?

FRA LIPPO LIPPI

A fine way to paint soul, by painting body
So ill, the eye can't stop there, must go further

And can't fare worse! Thus, yellow does for white

When what you put for yellow's simply
black,

And any sort of meaning looks intense When all beside itself means and looks
nought.

Why can't a painter lift each foot in turn,
Left foot and right foot, go a double step,
Make his flesh liker and his soul more like,
Both in their order? Take the prettiest
face,

The Prior's niece . . . patron-saint—is it so pretty

You can't discover if it means hope, fear, Sorrow or joy? won't beauty go with these?
Suppose I've made her eyes all right and
blue,

Can't I take breath and try to add life's
flash,

And then add soul and heighten them threefold?

Or say there's beauty with no soul at all—
(I never saw it—put the case the same—)
If you get simple beauty and nought else,
You get about the best thing God invents:
That's somewhat: and you'll find the soul
you have missed,

Within yourself, when you return him
thanks.

'Rub all out!' Well, well, there's my life,
in short,

And so the thing has gone on ever since.
I'm grown a man no doubt, I've broken
bounds:

You should not take a fellow eight years
old

And make him swear to never kiss the girls.
I'm my own master, paint now as I
please—

Having a friend, you see, in the Corner-
house!

Lord, it's fast holding by the rings in front—

Those great rings serve more purposes than just

To plant a flag in, or tie up a horse!

And yet the old schooling sticks, the old grave eyes

Are peeping o'er my shoulder as I work,
The heads shake still—'It's art's decline, my son!

'You're not of the true painters, great and'
old;

'Brother Angelico's the man, you'll find;
'Brother Lorenzo stands his single peer:

'Fag on at flesh, you'll never make the third!'

Flower o' the pine,

You keep your mistr . . . manners, and I'll stick to mine!

I'm not the third, then: bless us, they must
know!

Don't you think they're the likeliest to
know,

They with their Latin? So, I swallow my
rage,

Clench my teeth, suck my lips in tight, and paint

To please them—sometimes do and sometimes don't;

For, doing most, there's pretty, sure to
come

A turn, some warm eve finds me at my saints—

A laugh, a cry, the business of the world—(Flower o' the peach,

Death for us all, and his own life for each!)

And my whole soul revolves, the cup runs
over,

The world and life's too big to pass for a
dream,

And I do these wild things in sheer despite,
And play the fooleries you catch me at,

In pure rage! The old mill-horse, out at
grass

After hard years, throws up his stiff heels
so,

Although the miller does not preach to him
The only good of grass is to make chaff.

What would men have? Do they like grass or no—

May they or mayn't they? all I want's the
thing

Settled for ever one way. As it is,
You tell too many lies and hurt yourself:

You don't like what you only like too
much,

You do like what, if given you at your
word,

You find abundantly detestable.

For me, I think I speak as I was taught;
I always see the garden and God there

A-making man's wife: and, my lesson
learned,

The value and significance of flesh,
I can't unlearn ten minutes afterwards.

You understand me: I'm a beast, I
know.

But see, now—why, I see as certainly
As that the morning-star's about to shine,

What will hap some day. We've a youngster here

Comes to our convent, studies what I do,
Slouches and stares and lets no atom drop:

His name is Guidi—he'll not mind the monks—

They call him Hulking Tom, he lets them
talk—

He picks my practice up—he'll paint
apace,

I hope so—though I never live so long,
I know what's sure to follow. You be
judge!

You speak no Latin more than I, belike;
However, you're my man, you've seen the
world

—The beauty and the wonder and the
power,

The shapes of things, their colours, lights and shades,

Changes, surprises,—and God made it all!

—For what? Do you feel thankful, ay or
no,

For this fair town's face, yonder river's line,

The mountain round it and the sky above,
Much more the figures of man, woman,
child,

These are the frame to? What's it all
about?

To be passed over, despised? or dwelt
upon,

Wondered at? oh, this last of course!—
you say.

But why not do as well as say,—paint these
Just as they are, careless what comes of it?

God's works—paint any one, and count it
crime

To let a truth slip. Don't object, 'Ilis works

'Are here already; nature is complete:
'Suppose you reproduce her—(which you can't)

'There's no advantage! you must beat
her, then.'

For, don't you mark? we're made so that we love

First when we see them painted, things we have passed

Perhaps a hundred times nor cared to see;
And so they are better, painted—better to
us,

Which is the same thing. Art was given for
that;

God uses us to help each other so,
Lending our minds out. Have you noticed,
now,

Your cullion's hanging face? A bit of chalk,

And trust me but you should, though!
How much more,

If I drew higher things with the same
truth!

That were to take the Prior's pulpit-place,
Interpret God to all of you! Oh, oh,

It makes me mad to see what men shall
do

And we in our graves! This world's no blot for us,

Nor blank; it means intensely, and means
good:

To find its meaning is my meat and drink.
'Ay, but you don't so instigate to prayer!'

Strikes in the Prior: 'when your meaning's
plain

'It does not say to folk—remember
matins,

'Or, mind you fast next Friday!' Why,
for this

What need of art at all? A skull and bones, Two bits of stick nailed crosswise, or,
what's best,

A bell to chime the hour with, does as well.
I painted a Saint Laurence six months
since

At Prato, splashed the fresco in fine style:
'How looks my painting, now the scaffold's down?'

I ask a brother: 'Hugely,' he returns—
'Already not one phiz of your three slaves

'Who turn the Deacon off his toasted side,
'But's scratched and prodded to our heart's content,

'The pious people have so eased their own
'With coming to say prayers there in a
rage:

'We get on fast to see the bricks beneath.
'Expect another job this time next year,
'For pity and religion grow i' the crowd—
'Your painting serves its purpose!' Hang the fools!

—That is—you'll not mistake an idle
word

Spoke in a huff by a poor monk, God wot,
Tasting the air this spicy night which turns
The unaccustomed head like Chianti wine!

Oh, the church knows! don't misreport
me, now!

It's natural a poor monk out of bounds
Should have his apt word to excuse himself:

And hearken how I plot to make amends.
I have bethought me: I shall paint a piece
... There's for you! Give me six months, then go, see

Something in Sant' Ambrogio's! Bless the nuns!

They want a cast o' my office. I shall paint
God in the midst, Madonna and her babe,
Ringed by a bowery flowery angel-brood,
Lilies and vestments and white faces, sweet
As puff on puff of grated orris-root

When ladies crowd to church at midsummer.

And then i' the front, of course a saint or
two—

Saint John, because he saves the Floren-
tines,

Saint Ambrose, who puts down in black and white

The convent's friends and gives them a long day,

And Job, I must have him there past mistake,

The man of Uz (and Us without the z, Painters who need his patience). Well, all
these

Secured at their devotion, up shall come Out of a corner when you least expect,
As one by a dark stair into a great light,

FRA LIPPO LIPPI

Music and talking, who but Lippo! I!— Mazed, motionless and moonstruck—I'm the man!

Back I shrink—what is this I see and hear?
I, caught up with my monk's-things by mistake,

My old serge gown and rope that goes all
round,

I, in this presence, this pure company!
Where's a hole, where's a corner for escape?

Then steps a sweet angelic slip of a thing Forward, puts out a soft palm—"Not so
fast!"

—Addresses the celestial presence, 'nay—
'He made you and devised you, after all,
'Though he's none of you! Could Saint John there draw—

'His camel-hair make up a painting-brush?
'We come to brother Lippo for all that,
'Iste perfect opus!' So, all smile—

I shuffle sideways with my blushing face
Under the cover of a hundred wings Thrown like a spread of kirtles when you're gay

And play hot cockles, all the doors being shut,

Till, wholly unexpected, in there pops
The hothead husband! Thus I scuttle off
To some safe bench behind, not letting go

The palm of her, the little lily thing That spoke the good word for me in the nick,

Like the Prior's niece . . . Saint Lucy, I would say.

And so all's saved for me, and for the church

A pretty picture gained. Go, six months
hence!

Your hand, sir, and good-bye: no lights,
no lights!

The street's hushed, and I know my own way back,

Don't fear me! There's the grey beginning. Zooks!

ANDREA DEL SARTO

(CALLED 'THE FAULTLESS PAINTER')

BUT do not let us quarrel any more,
No, my Lucrezia; bear with me for once:
Sit down and all shall happen as you wish.
You turn your face, but does it bring your
heart?

I'll work then for your friend's friend,
never fear,

Treat his own subject after his own way,
Fix his own time, accept too his own price,
And shut the money into this small hand When next it takes mine. Will it? tenderly?

Oh, I'll content him,—but to-morrow,
Love!

I often am much wearier than you think,

This evening more than usual, and it seems
As if—forgive now—should you let me sit Here by the window with your hand in
mine

And look a half-hour forth on Fiesole,
Both of one mind, as married people use,
Quietly, quietly the evening through,
I might get up to-morrow to my work Cheerful and fresh as ever. Let us try.
To-morrow, how you shall be glad for
this!

Your soft hand is a woman of itself,
And mine the man's bared breast she curls inside.

Don't count the time lost, neither; you must serve

For each of the five pictures we require:
It saves a model. So! keep looking so—My serpentine beauty, rounds on rounds!

—How could you ever prick those perfect
ears,

Even to put the pearl there! oh, so sweet—
'My face, my moon, my everybody's moon,
Which everybody looks on and calls his,
And, I suppose, is looked on by in turn,
While she looks—no one's: very dear, no
less.

You smile? why, there's my picture ready
made,

There's what we painters call our harmony!

A common greyness silvers everything,—
All in a twilight, you and I alike

—You, at the point of your first pride in
me

(That's gone you know),—but I, at every
point;

My youth, my hope, my art, being all toned down

To yonder sober pleasant Fiesole.
There's the bell clinking from the chapel-
top;

That length of convent-wall across the way
Holds the trees safer, huddled more inside;
The last monk leaves the garden; days decrease,

And autumn grows, autumn in everything.
Eh? the whole seems to fall into a shape
As if I saw alike my work and self

And all that I was born to be and do, A twilight-piece. Love, we are in God's
hand.

How strange now, looks the life he makes us lead;

So free we seem, so fettered fast we are!
I feel he laid the fetter: let it lie!

This chamber for example—turn your
head—

All that's behind us! You don't understand

Nor care to understand about my art,
But you can hear at least when people
speak:

And that cartoon, the second from the door—
It is the thing, Love! so such things
should be—

Behold Madonna!—I am bold to say.
I can do with my pencil what I know,
What I see, what at bottom of my heart
I wish for, if I ever wish so deep—
Do easily, too—when I say, perfectly,
I do not boast, perhaps: yourself are judge,
Who listened to the Legate's talk last week,
And just as much they used to say in France.

At any rate 'tis easy, all of it!
No sketches first, no studies, that's long
past:

I do what many dream of, all their lives,
—Dream? strive to do, and agonize to do,
And fail in doing. I could count twenty
such

On twice your fingers, and not leave this town,

Who strive—you don't know how the others strive

To paint a little thing like that you smeared Carelessly passing with your robes afloat,—

Yet do much less, so much less, Someone
says,
(I know his name, no matter)—so much less!

Well, less is more, Lucrezia: I am judged.
There burns a truer light of God in them,
In their vexed beating stuffed and stopped-up brain,

Heart, or whate'er else, than goes on to prompt

This low-pulsed forthright craftsman's hand of mine.

Their works drop groundward, but themselves, I know,

Reach many a time a heaven that's shut to
me,

Enter and take their place there sure
enough,

Though they come back and cannot tell
the world.

My works are nearer heaven, but I sit here!
The sudden blood of these men! at a
word—

Praise them, it boils, or blame them, it boils too.

I, painting from myself and to myself, Know what I do, am unmoved by men's
blame

Or their praise either. Somebody remarks
Morello's outline there is wrongly traced,
His hue mistaken; what of that? or else, Rightly traced and well ordered; what of
that?

Speak as they please, what does the mountain care?

Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp,

Or what's a heaven for? All is silver-grey,
Placid and perfect with my art: the worse!
I know both what I want and what might
gain,

And yet how profitless to know, to sigh
'Had I been two, another and myself,
'Our head would have o'erlooked the world!' No doubt.

Yonder's a work now, of that famous
youth

The Urbinate who died five years ago.
(Tis copied, George Vasari sent it me.)

Well, I can fancy how he did it all, Pouring his soul, with kings and popes to
see,

Reaching, that heaven might so replenish
him,

Above and through his art—for it gives
way;

That arm is wrongly put—and there
again—

A fault to pardon in the drawing's lines,
Its body, so to speak: its soul is right,
He means right—that, a child may understand.

Still, what an arm! and I could alter it:
But all the play, the insight and the stretch—

Out of me, out of me! And wherefore out?
Had you enjoined them on me, given me
soul,

We might have risen to Rafael, I and you!
Nay, Love, you did give all I asked, I
think—

More than I merit, yes, by many times.
But had you—oh, with the same perfect
brow,

And perfect eyes, and more than perfect
mouth,

And the low voice my soul hears, as a bird
The fowler's pipe, and follows to the snare—

Had you, with these the same, but brought a mind!

Some women do so. Had the mouth there urged

'God and the glory! never care for gain.
'The present by the future, what is that?

'Live for fame, side by side with Agnolo!
'Rafael is waiting: up to God, all three!'

I might have done it for you. So it seems:
Perhaps not. All is as God over-rules.

Beside, incentives come from the soul's
self;

The rest avail not. Why do I need you?
'What wife had Rafael, or has Agnolo?

In this world, who can do a thing, will not;
And who would do it, cannot, I perceive:

Yet the will's somewhat—somewhat, too,
the power—

And thus we half-men struggle. At the
end,

God, I conclude, compensates, punishes.
'Tis safer for me, if the award be strict,

ANDREA DEL SARTO

That I am something underrated here, Poor this long while, despised, to speak
the truth.

I dared not, do you know, leave home all
day,

For fear of chancing on the Paris lords.
The best is when they pass and look aside;
But they speak sometimes; I must bear it
all.

Well may they speak! That Francis, that first time,
And that long festal year at Fontainebleau!

I surely then could sometimes leave the
ground,

Put on the glory, Rafael's daily wear,
In that humane great monarch's golden
look,—

One finger in his beard or twisted curl Over his mouth's good mark that made the
smile,

One arm about my shoulder, round my
neck,

The jingle of his gold chain in my ear,
I painting proudly with his breath on me,
All his court round him, seeing with his
eyes,

Such frank French eyes, and such a fire of souls

Profuse, my hand kept plying by those hearts,—

And, best of all, this, this, this face beyond, This in the background, waiting on my
work,

To crown the issue with a last reward!
A good time, was it not, my kingly
days?

And had you not grown restless . . . but I
know—

'Tis done and past; 'twas right, my instinct
said;

Too live the life grew, golden and not grey,
And I'm the weak-eyed bat no sun should
tempt

Out of the grange whose four walls make his world.

How could it end in any other way?
You called me, and I came home to your
heart.

The triumph was—to reach and stay there;
since

I reached it ere the triumph, what is lost?
Let my hands frame your face in your hair's gold,

You beautiful Lucrezia that are mine!
'Rafael did this, Andrea painted that;

'The Roman's is the better when you pray,
'But still the other's Virgin was his wife—

Men will excuse me. I am glad to judge Both pictures in your presence; clearer
grows

My better fortune, I resolve to think.
For, do you know, Lucrezia, as God lives,
Said one day Agnolo, his very self,

To Rafael . . . I have known it all these years . . .

(When the young man was flaming out his thoughts

Upon a palace-wall for Rome to see,
Too lifted up in heart because of it)

'Frierd, there's a certain sorry little scrub
'Goes up and down our Florence, none cares how,

'Who, were he set to plan and execute
'As you are, pricked on by your piques and kings,

'Would bring the sweat into that brow of
yours!'

To Rafael's!—And indeed the arm is
wrong.

I hardly dare . . . yet, only you to see,
Give the chalk here—quick, thus the line should go!

Ay, but the soul! he's Rafael! rub it out!
Still, all I care for, if he spoke the truth,

(What he? why, who but Michel Agnolo?
'Do you forget already words like those?')

If really there was such a chance, so lost,— Is, whether you're—not grateful—but more pleased.

Well, let me think so. And you smile
indeed!

This hour has been an hour! Another
smile?

If you would sit thus by me every night
I should work better, do you comprehend?
I mean that I should earn more, give you
more.

See, it is settled dusk now; there's a star;
Morello's gone, the watch-lights show the
wall,

The cue-owls speak the name we call them
by.

Come from the window, love,—come in,
at last,

Inside the melancholy little house
We built to be so gay with. God is just.

King Francis may forgive me: oft at nights
When I look up from painting, eyes tired
out,

The walls become illumined, brick from brick

Distinct, instead of mortar, fierce bright
gold,

That gold of his I did cement them with!
Let us but love each other. Must you go?

That Cousin here again? he waits outside?
Must see you—you, and not with me?

Those loans?
* More gaming debts to pay? you smiled for
that?

Well, let smiles buy me! have you more to
spend?

While hand and eye and something of a
heart

Are left me, work's my ware, and what's it worth?

I'll pay my fancy. Only let me sit

The grey remainder of the evening out,
Idle, you call it, and muse perfectly How I could paint, were I but back in France,

One picture, just one more—the Virgin's
face,
Not yours this time! I want you at my
side

To hear them—that is, Michel Agnolo—
Judge all I do and tell you of its worth.
Will you? To-morrow, satisfy your friend.
I take the subjects for his corridor,
Finish the portrait out of hand—there,
there,

And throw him in another thing or two
If he demurs; the whole should prove
enough

To pay for this same Cousin's freak. Be-
side,

What's better and what's all I care about,
Get you the thirteen scudi for the ruff!
Love, does that please you? Ah, but what does he,

The Cousin! what does he to please you
more?

I am grown peaceful as old age to-
night.

I regret little, I would change still less.
Since there my past life lies, why alter it?
The very wrong to Francis!—it is true
I took his coin, was tempted and complied,
And built this house and sinned, and all is said.

My father and my mother died of want.
Well, had I riches of my own? you see How one gets rich! Let each one bear his lot.

They were born poor, lived poor, and poor they died:

And I have laboured somewhat in my
time

And not been paid profusely. Some good
son

Paint my two hundred pictures—let him
try!

No doubt, there's something strikes a balance. Yes,

You loved me quite enough, it seems to-
night.

This must suffice me here. What would one have?

In heaven, perhaps, new chances, one more chance—

Four great walls in the New Jerusalem,
Meted on each side by the angel's reed,
For Leonard, Rafael, Agnolo and me
To cover—the three first without a wife, While I have mine! So—still they over-
come

Because there's still Lucrezia,—as I
choose.

Again the Cousin's whistle! Go, my Love.

THE BISHOP ORDERS HIS TOMB
AT SAINT PRAXED'S CHURCH

ROME, 15—

VANITY, saith the preacher, vanity!
Draw round my bed: is Anselm keeping
'back?

Nephews—sons mine . . . ah God, I know not! Well—

She, men would have to be your mother
once,

Old Gandolf envied me, so fair she was!
What's done is done, and she is dead
beside,

Dead long ago, and I am Bishop since,
And as she died so must we die ourselves,
And thence ye may perceive the world's a dream.

Life, how and what is it? As here I lie
In this state-chamber, dying by degrees, Hours and long hours in the dead night, I
ask

'Do I live, am I dead?' Peace, peace seems all.

Saint Praxed's ever was the church for
peace;

And so, about this tomb of mine. I fought With tooth and nail to save my niche, ye
know:

—Old Gandolf cozened me, despite my
care;

Shrewd was that snatch from out the corner South

He graced his carrion with, God curse the
same!

Yet still my niche is not so cramped but
thence

One sees the pulpit o' the epistle-side,
And somewhat of the choir, those silent seats,

And up into the aery dome where live
The angels, and a sunbeam's sure to lurk:

And I shall fill my slab of basalt there,
And 'neath my tabernacle take my rest,

With those nine columns round me, two and two,

The odd one at my feet where Anselm
stands:

Peach-blossom marble all, the rare, the ripe

As fresh-poured red wine of a mighty pulse.

—Old Gandolf with his paltry onion-
stone,

Put me where I may look at him! True peach,

Rosy and flawless: how I earned the prize!
Draw close: that conflagration of my church

—What then? So much was saved if aught were missed!

My sons, ye would not be my death? Go dig

THE BISHOP ORDERS HIS TOMB

The white-grape vineyard where the oil-press stood,
Drop water gently till the surface sink,
And if ye find . . . Ah God, I know not,
I! . . .

Bedded in store of rotten fig-leaves soft,
And corded up in a tight olive-frail,
Some lump, ah God, of lapis lazuli,
Big as a Jew's head cut off at the nape,
Blue as a vein o'er the Madonna's
breast . . .

Sons, all have I bequeathed you, villas, all,
That brave Frascati villa with its bath,
So, let the blue lump poise between my
knees,

Like God the Father's globe on both his hands

Ye worship in the Jesu Church so gay, For Gandolf shall not choose but see and burst!

Swift as a weaver's shuttle fleet our years:
Man goeth to the grave, and where is
he?

Did I say basalt for my slab, sons? Black—'Twas ever antique-black I meant! How
else

Shall ye contrast my frieze to come beneath?

The bas-relief in bronze ye promised me,
Those Pans and Nymphs ye wot of, and
perchance

Some tripod, thyrsus, with a vase or so,
The Saviour at his sermon on the mount,
Saint Praxed in a glory, and one Pan Ready to twitch the Nymph's last garment
off,

And Moses with the tables . . . but I know Ye mark me not! What do they whisper
thee,

Child of my bowels, Anselm? Ah, ye hope
To revel down my villas while I gasp Bricked o'er with beggar's mouldy travertine

Which Gandolf from his tomb-top chuckles at!

Nay, boys, ye love me—all of jasper, then!
'Tis jasper ye stand pledged to, lest I grieve.
My bath must needs be left behind, alas!
One block, pure green as a pistachio-nut,

There's plenty jasper somewhere in the
world—

And have I not Saint Praxed's ear to pray Horses for ye, and brown Greek manuscripts,

And mistresses with great smooth marbly limbs?

—That's if ye carve my epitaph aright, Choice Latin, picked phrase, Tully's every
word,

No gaudy ware like Gandolf's second
line—

Tully, my masters? Ulpian serves his
need!

And then how I shall lie through centuries,

And hear the blessed mutter of the mass,
And see God made and eaten all day
long,

And feel the steady candle-flame, and taste
Good strong thick stupefying incense-
smoke!

For as I lie here, hours of the dead night,
Dying in state and by such slow degrees,
I fold my arms as if they clasped a crook,
And stretch my feet forth straight as stone can point,

And let the bedclothes, for a mortcloth,
drop

Into great laps and folds of sculptor's-
work:

And as yon tapers dwindle, and strange
thoughts

Grow, with a certain humming in my ears,
About the life before I lived this life,
And this life too, popes, cardinals and priests,

Saint Praxed at his sermon on the mount,
Your tall pale mother with her talking
eyes,

And new-found agate urns as fresh as day,
And marble's language, Latin pure, discreet,

—Aha, ELUCESCEBAT quoth our friend?
No Tully, said I, Ulpian at the best!

Evil and brief hath been my pilgrimage.
All lapis, all, sons! Else I give the Pope
My villas! Will ye ever eat my heart?

Ever your eyes were as a lizard's quick,
The glitter like your mother's for my soul,
Or ye would heighten my impoverished frieze,

Piece out its starved design, and fill my vase

With grapes, and add a vizor and a Term,
And to the tripod ye would tie a lynx
That in his struggle throws the thyrsus
down,

To comfort me on my entablature
Whereon I am to lie till I must ask

'Do I live, am I dead?' There, leave me,
there!

For ye have stabbed me with ingratitude
To death—ye wish it—God, ye wish it!
Stone—

Gritstone, a-crumble! Clammy squares which sweat

As if the corpse they keep were oozing
through—

And no more lapis to delight the world!
Well go! I bless ye. Fewer tapers there,

But in a row: and, going, turn your backs
—Ay, like departing altar-ministrants,

And leave me in my church, the church for
peace,

That I may watch at leisure if he leers—
Old Gandolf, at me, from his onion-stone,
As still he envied me, so fair she was!

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

No more wine? then we'll push back chairs and talk.

A final glass for me, though: cool, i' faith! We ought to have our Abbey back, you see.

It's different, preaching in basilicas, And doing duty in some masterpiece Like this of brother Pugin's, bless his heart!

I doubt if they're half baked, those chalk rosettes,

Ciphers and stucco—twiddlings everywhere;

It's just like breathing in a lime-kiln: eh? These hot long ceremonies of our church Cost us a little—oh, they pay the price, You take me—amply pay it! Now, we'll talk.

So, you despise me, Mr. Gigadibs. No deprecation,—nay, I beg you, sir! Beside 'tis our engagement: don't you know,

I promised, if you'd watch a dinner out, We'd see truth dawn together?—truth that peeps

Over the glasses' edge when dinner's done, And body gets its sop and holds its noise And leaves soul free a little. Now's the time:

Truth's break of day! You do despise me then.

And if I say, 'despise me,'—never fear! I know you do not in a certain sense— Not in my arm-chair, for example: here, I well imagine you respect my place (Status, entourage, worldly circumstance) Quite to its value—very much indeed:

—Are up to the protesting eyes of you In pride at being seated here for once— You'll turn it to such capital account! When somebody, through years and years to come,

Hints of the bishop,—names me—that's enough:

'Blougram? I knew him'—(into it you slide)

'Dined with him once, a Corpus Christi Day,

'All alone, we two; he's a clever man: 'And after dinner,—why, the wine you know,—

'Oh, there was wine, and good!—what with the wine . . .

'Faith, we began upon all sorts of talk! 'He's no bad fellow, Blougram; he had seen

'Something of mine he relished, some review:

'He's quite above their humbug in his heart,

'Half-said as much, indeed—the thing's his trade.

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

'I warrant, Blougram's sceptical at times: 'How otherwise? I liked him, I confess!' Che che, my dear sir, as we say at Rome, Don't you protest now! It's fair give and take;

You have had your turn and spoken your home-truths:

The hand's mine now, and here you follow suit.

Thus much conceded, still the first fact stays—

You do despise me; your ideal of life Is not the bishop's: you would not be I. You would like better to be Goethe, now, Or Buonaparte, or, bless me, lower still, Count D'Orsay,—so you did what you preferred,

Spoke as you thought, and, as you cannot help,

Believed or disbelieved, no matter what, So long as on that point, whatever it was, You loosed your mind, were whole and sole yourself.

—That, my ideal never can include, Upon that element of truth and worth Never be based! for say they make me

Pope— (They can't—suppose it for our argument!)

Why, there I'm at my tether's end, I've reached

My height, and not a height which pleases you:

An unbelieving Pope won't do, you say. It's like those eerie stories nurses tell, Of how some actor on a stage played Death,

With pasteboard crown, sham orb and tinselled dart,

And called himself the monarch of the world;

Then, going in the tire-room afterward, Because the play was done, to shift himself, Got touched upon the sleeve familiarly, The moment he had shut the closet door, By Death himself. Thus God might touch a Pope

At unawares, ask what his baubles mean, And whose part he presumed to play just now.

Best be yourself, imperial, plain and true!

So, drawing comfortable breath again, You weigh and find, whatever more or less I boast of my ideal realized

Is nothing in the balance when opposed To your ideal, your grand simple life,

Of which you will not realize one jot. I am much, you are nothing; you would be all,

I would be merely much: you beat me there.

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

No, friend, you do not beat me: hearken
why!

The common problem, yours, mine, every one's,

Is—not to fancy what were fair in life
Provided it could be,—but, finding first What may be, then find how to make it fair

Up to our means: a very different thing!
No abstract intellectual plan of life
Quite irrespective of life's plainest laws,
But one, a man, who is man and nothing
more,

May lead within a world which (by your leave)

Is Rome or London, not Fool's-paradise.
Embellish Rome, idealize away,
Make paradise of London if you can,
You're welcome, nay, you're wise.

A simile!

We mortals cross the ocean of this world
Each in his average cabin of a life;

The best's not big, the worst yields elbow-
room.

Now for our six months' voyage—how prepare?

You come on shipboard with a landsman's list

Of things he calls convenient: so they are!
An India screen is pretty furniture,
A piano-forte is a fine resource,
All Balzac's novels occupy one shelf,
The new edition fifty volumes long;
And little Greek books, with the funny
type

They get up well at Leipsic, fill the next:
Go on! slabbed marble, what a bath it makes!

And Parma's pride, the Jerome, let us add!
'Twere pleasant could Correggio's fleeting
glow

Hang full in face of one where'er one roams,

Since he more than the others brings with
him

Italy's self,—the marvellous Modenese!—
Yet was not on your list before, perhaps.
—Alas, friend, here's the agent . . . is't
the name?

The captain, or whoever's master here—
You see him screw his face up; what's his
cry

Ere you set foot on shipboard? 'Six feet
square!'

If you won't understand what six feet
mean,

Compute and purchase stores accordingly—

And if, in pique because he overhauls Your Jerome, piano, bath, you come on board

Bare—why, you cut a figure at the first
While sympathetic landsmen see you off;

Not afterward, when long ere half seas
over,

You peep up from your utterly naked boards

Into some snug and well-appointed berth,
Like mine for instance (try the cooler jug—Put back the other, but don't jog the ice!)
And mortified you mutter 'Well and good;
'He sits enjoying his sea-furniture;
'Tis stout and proper, and there's store
of it:

'Though I've the better notion, all agree,
'Of fitting rooms up. Hang the carpenter,
'Neat ship-shape fixings and contrivances—

'I would have brought my Jerome, frame
and all!'

And meantime you bring nothing: never
mind—

You've proved your artist-nature: what you don't

You might bring, so despise me, as I say.

* Now come, let's backward to the starting-place.

See my way: we're two college friends,
suppose.

Prepare together for our voyage, then;
Each note and check the other in his
work,—

Here's mine, a bishop's outfit; criticize!
What's wrong? why won't you be a bishop
too?

Why first, you don't believe, you don't and can't,

(Not stately, that is, and fixedly
And absolutely and exclusively)

In any revelation called divine.
No dogmas nail your faith; and what remains

But say so, like the honest man you are?
First, therefore, overhaul theology!

Nay, I too, not a fool, you please to think,
Must find believing every whit as hard:

And if I do not frankly say as much,
The ugly consequence is clear enough.

Now wait, my friend: well, I do not believe—

If you'll accept no faith that is not fixed,
Absolute and exclusive, as you say.

You're wrong—I mean to prove it in due
time.

Meanwhile, I know where difficulties lie
I could not, cannot solve, nor ever shall,

So give up hope accordingly to solve—(To you, and over the wine). Our dogmas
then

With both of us, though in unlike degree, Missing full credence—overboard with
them!

I mean to meet you on your own premise:
Good, there go mine in company with
yours!

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

And now what are we? unbelievers both,
Calm and complete, determinately fixed
To-day, to-morrow and for ever, pray?
You'll guarantee me that? Not so, I think!
In no wise! all we've gained is, that belief,
As unbelief before, shakes us by fits,
Confound us like its predecessor.

Where's

The gain? how can we guard our unbelief,
Make it bear fruit to us?—the problem
here.

Just when we are safest, there's a sunset-
touch,

A fancy from a flower-bell, some one's
death,

A chorus-ending from Euripides,—
And that's enough for fifty hopes and fears

As old and new at once as nature's self,
To rap and knock and enter in our soul,

Take hands and dance there, a fantastic
ring,

Round the ancient idol, on his base
again,—

The grand Perhaps! We look on helplessly.

There the old misgivings, crooked questions are—

This good God,—what he could do, if he would,

Would, if he could—then must have done long since:

If so, when, where and how? some way must be,—

Once feel about, and soon or late you hit
Some sense, in which it might be, after all.

Why not, 'The Way, the Truth, the Life?'

—That way

Over the mountain, which who stands
upon

Is apt to doubt if it be meant for a road;
While, if he views it from the waste itself,

Up goes the line there, plain from base to
brow,

Not vague, mistakeable! what's a break
or two

Seen from the unbroken desert either side?

And then (to bring in fresh philosophy)
What if the breaks themselves should prove at last

The most consummate of contrivances

To train a man's eye, teach him what is faith?

And so we tumble at truth's very test!
All we have gained then by our unbelief

Is a life of doubt diversified by faith,
For one of faith diversified by doubt:

We called the chess-board white,—we call it black.

'Well,' you rejoin, 'the end's no worse,
at least

'We've reason for both colours on the board:

'Why not confess then, where I drop the faith

'And you the doubt, that I'm as right as
you?'

Because, friend, in the next place, this being so,

And both things even,—faith and unbelief Left to a man's choice,—we'll proceed a

step,

Returning to our image, which I like.

A man's choice, yes—but a cabin-pas-senger's—

The man made for the special life o' the
world—

Do you forget him? I remember though!
Consult our ship's conditions and you

find

One and but one choice suitable to all;
The choice, that you unluckily prefer,

Turning things topsy-turvy—they or it Going to the ground. Belief or unbelief

Bears upon life, determines its whole
course,

Begins at its beginning. See the world
Such as it is,—you made it not, nor I;

I mean to take it as it is,—and you,
Not so you'll take it,—though you get nought else.

I know the special kind of life I like,
What suits the most my idiosyncrasy,

Brings out the best of me and bears me
fruit

In power, peace, pleasantness and length of days.

I find that positive belief does this
For me, and unbelief, no whit of this.

—For you, it does, however?—that, we'll try!

'Tis clear, I cannot lead my life, at least,
Induce the world to let me peaceably,

Without declaring at the outset, 'Friends,
'I absolutely and peremptorily

'Believe!'—I say, faith is my waking life:
One sleeps, indeed, and dreams at intervals,

We know, but waking's the main point with us,

And my provision's for life's waking part.
Accordingly, I use heart, head and hand

All day, I build, scheme, study, and make
friends;

And when night overtakes me, down I
lie,

'Sleep, dream a little, and get done with it,
The sooner the better, to begin afresh.

What's midnight doubt before the day-spring's faith?

*You, the philosopher, that disbelieve,
That recognize the night, give dreams their weight—

To be consistent you should keep your bed,

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

Abstain from healthy acts that prove you
man,
For fear you drowse perhaps at unawares!
And certainly at night you'll sleep and
dream,
Live through the day and bustle as you
please.
And so you live to sleep as I to wake,
To unbelieve as I to still believe?
Well, and the common sense o' the world calls you
Bed-ridden,—and its good things come to
me.
Its estimation, which is half the fight,
That's the first-cabin comfort I secure:
The next . . . bu. you perceive with half an
eye!
Come, come, it's best believing, if we may;
You can't but own that!

Next, concede again,
If once we choose belief, on all accounts
We can't be too decisive in our faith,
Conclusive and exclusive in its terms,
To suit the world which gives us the good
things.

In every man's career are certain points
Whereon he dares not be indifferent;
The world detects him clearly, if he dare,
As baffled at the game, and losing life.
He may care little or he may care much For riches, honour, pleasure, work, re-
pose,

Since various theories of life and life's Success are extant which might easily Comport with either estimate of these;
And whoso chooses wealth or poverty,
Labour or quiet, is not judged a fool Because his fellow would choose otherwise:

We let him choose upon his own account
So long as he's consistent with his choice.
But certain points, left wholly to himself,
When once a man has arbitrated on,
We say he must succeed there or go hang.
Thus, he should wed the woman he loves
most

Or needs most, whatsoe'er the love or
need—
For he can't wed twice. Then, he must avouch,

Or follow, at the least, sufficiently,
The form of faith his conscience holds the
best,

Whate'er the process of conviction was:
For nothing can compensate his mistake.
On such a point, the man himself being
judge:
He cannot wed twice, nor twice lose his
soul.

Well now, there's one great form of Christian faith
I happened to be born in—which to teach

Was given me as I grew up, on all hands,
As best and readiest means of living by;
The same on examination being proved
The most pronounced moreover, fixed, precise

And absolute form of faith in the whole
world—

Accordingly, most potent of all forms For working on the world. Observe, my friend!

Such as you know me, I am free to say,
In these hard latter days which hamper
one,

Myself—by no immoderate exercise
Of intellect and learning, but the tact
To let external forces work for me, —Bid the street's stones be bread and they are bread;

Bid Peter's creed, or rather, Hildebrand's,
Exalt me o'er my fellows in the world
And make my life an ease and joy and
pride;

It does so,—which for me's a great point
gained,

Who have a soul and body that exact
A comfortable care in many ways.
There's power in me and will to dominate
Which I must exercise, they hurt me else:
In many ways I need mankind's respect, Obedience, and the love that's born of
fear:

While at the same time, there's a taste I
have,

A toy of soul, a titillating thing,
Refuses to digest these dainties crude.
The naked life is gross till clothed upon:
I must take what men offer, with a grace
As though I would not, could I help it,
take!

An uniform I wear though over-rich—Something imposed on me, no choice of
mine;

No fancy-dress worn for pure fancy's sake
And despicable therefore! now folk kneel
And kiss my hand—of course the Church's
hand.

Thus I am made, thus life is best for me,
And thus that it should be I have procured;
And thus it could not be another way,
I venture to imagine.

You'll reply,
So far my choice, no doubt, is a success;
But were I made of better elements,
With nobler instincts, purer tastes, like
you,

I hardly would account the thing success
Though it did all for me I say.

But, friend,
We speak of what is; not of what might be,
And how 'twere better if 'twere otherwise.
I am the man you see here plain enough:

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

Grant I'm a beast, why, beasts must lead beasts' lives!

Suppose I own at once to tail and claws;
The tailless man exceeds me: but being tailed

I'll lash out lion-fashion, and leave apes
To dock their stump and dress their haunches up.

My business is not to remake myself,
But make the absolute best of what God
made.

Or—our first simile—though you prove me doomed

To a viler berth still, to the steerage-hole,
The sheep-pen or the pig-stye, I should strive

To make what use of each were possible;
And as this cabin gets upholstery,
That hutch should rustle with sufficient straw.

But, friend, I don't acknowledge quite so fast

I fail of all your manhood's lofty tastes'
Enumerated so complacently,
On the mere ground that you forsooth can
find

In this particular life I choose to lead
No fit provision for them. Can you not?
Say you, my fault is I address myself
To grosser estimators than should judge?
And that's no way of holding up the soul,
Which, robber, needs men's praise perhaps, yet knows

One wise man's verdict outweighs all the fools'—

Would like the two, but, forced to choose, takes that.

I pine among my million imbeciles (You think) aware some dozen men of
sense

Eye me and know me, whether I believe
In the last winking Virgin, as I vow,
And am a fool, or disbelieve in her
And am a knave,—approve in neither case, Withhold their voices though I look their
way:

Like Verdi when, at his worst opera's end (The thing they gave at Florence,—what's its name?)

While the mad houseful's plaudits near outbang

His orchestra of salt-box, tongs and bones,
He looks through all the roaring and the wreaths

Where sits Rossini patient in his stall.

Nay, friend, I meet you with an answer
here—

That even your prime men who appraise their kind

Are men still, catch a wheel within a wheel, See more in a truth than the truth's simple
self,

Confuse themselves. You see lads walk the street

Sixty the minute; what's to note in that?
You see one lad o'erstride a chimney-stack;

Him you must watch—he's sure to fall,
yet stands!

Our interest's on the dangerous edge of
things.

The honest thief, the tender murderer,
The superstitious atheist, demirep
That loves and saves her soul in new French books—

We watch while these in equilibrium keep
The giddy line midway: one step aside, They're classed and done with. I, then,
keep the line

Before your sages,—just the men to shrink
From the gross weights, coarse scales and labels broad

You offer their refinement. Fool or knave?

Why needs a bishop be a fool or knave
When there's a thousand diamond weights
between?

So, I enlist them. Your picked twelve, you'll find,

Profess themselves indignant, scandalized
At thus being held unable to explain
How a superior man who disbelieves
May not believe as well: that's Schelling's
way!

It's through my coming in the tail of time,
Nicking the minute with a happy tact.

Had I been born three hundred years ago They'd say, 'What's strange? Blougram of course believes!'

And, seventy years since, 'disbelieves of
course.'

But now, 'He may believe; and yet, and
yet

'How can he?' All eyes turn with interest.

Whereas, step off the line on either side—
You, for example, clever to a fault,
The rough and ready man who write
apace,

Read somewhat seldomer, think perhaps even less—

You disbelieve! Who wonders and who cares?

Lord So-and-so—his coat bedropped with wax,

All Peter's chains about his waist, his
back

Brave with the needlework of Noodledom—

Believes! Again, who wonders and who cares?

But I, the man of sense and learning too,
The able to think yet act, the this, the that,
I, to believe at this late time of day!

Enough; you see, I need not fear contempt.

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

—Except it's yours! Admire me as these may,
You don't. But whom at least do you admire?

Present your own perfection, your ideal,
Your pattern man for a minute—oh, make haste!

Is it Napoleon you would have us grow?
Concede the means; allow his head and hand,

(A large concession, clever as you are) Good! In our common primal element Of unbelief (we can't believe, you know—We're still at that admission, recollect!)
Where do you find—apart from, towering o'er

The secondary temporary aims
Which satisfy the gross taste you despise—
Where do you find his star?—his crazy trust

God knows through what or in what? it's alive
And shines and leads him, and that's all we want.

Have we aught in our sober night shall point

Such ends as his were, and direct the means Of working out our purpose straight as his,
Nor bring a moment's trouble on success
With after-care to justify the same?

—Be a Napoleon, and yet disbelieve—
Why, the man's mad, friend, take his light away!

What's the vague good o' the world, for which you dare

With comfort to yourself blow millions up?

We neither of us see it! we do see
The blown-up millions—spatter of their brains

And writhing of their bowels and so forth,
In that bewildering entanglement
Of horrible eventualities

Past calculation to the end of time!

Can I mistake for some clear word of God
(Which were my ample warrant for it all)
His puff of hazy instinct, idle talk,

'The State, that's I,' quack-nonsense about crowns,

And (when one beats the man to his last hold)

A vague idea of setting things to rights,
Policing people efficaciously,

More to their profit, most of all to his own;
The whole to end that dimmest of ends
By an Austrian marriage, cant to us the Church,

And resurrection of the old régime?

Would I, who hope to live a dozen years,
Fight Austerlitz for reasons such and such?

No: for, concede me but the merest chance
Doubt may be wrong—there's judgment, life to come!

With just that chance, I dare not. Doubt proves right?

This present life is all?—you offer me
Its dozen noisy years, without a chance
That wedding an archduchess, wearing lace,

And getting called by divers new-coined names,

Will drive off ugly thoughts and let me dine,

Sleep, read and chat in quiet as I like!
Therefore I will not.

Take another case;

Fit up the cabin yet another way.

What say you to the poets? shall we write
Hamlet, Othello—make the world our own,

Without a risk to run of either sort?

I can't!—to put the strongest reason first.
'But try,' you urge, 'the trying shall suffice;

'The aim, if reached or not, makes great the life:

'Try to be Shakespeare, leave the rest to fate!'

Spare my self-knowledge—there's no fooling me!

If I prefer remaining my poor self,
I say so not in self-dispraise but praise.

If I'm a Shakespeare, let the well alone;
Why should I try to be what now I am?

If I'm no Shakespeare, as too probable,— His power and consciousness and self-delight

And all we want in common, shall I find—
Trying for ever? while on points of taste

Wherewith, to speak it humbly, he and I Are dowered alike—I'll ask you, I or he,
Which in our two lives realizes most?

Much, he imagined—somewhat, I possess.
He had the imagination; stick to that!

Let him say, 'In the face of my soul's works

'Your world is worthless and I touch it not
'Lest I should wrong them'—I'll withdraw my plea.

But does he say so? look upon his life!
Himself, who only can, gives judgment there.

He leaves his towers and gorgeous palaces
To build the trimmest house in Stratford town;

Saves money, spends it, owns the worth of things,

Giulio Romano's pictures, Dowland's lute;

Enjoys a show, respects the puppets, too,
And none more, had he seen its entry once,

Than 'Pandolph, of fair Milan cardinal.'

Why then should I who play that personage,

The very Pandolph Shakespeare's fancy made,

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

Be told that had the poet chanced to start From where I stand now (some degree like
mine

Being just the goal he ran his race to reach)
He would have run the whole race back,
forsooth,

And left being Pandulph, to begin 'write plays?

Ah, the earth's best can be but the earth's
best!

Did Shakespeare live, he could but sit at
home

And get himself in dreams the Vatican, Greek busts, Venetian paintings, Roman
walls,

And English books, none equal to his own,
Which I read, bound in gold (he never did).

—Terni's fall, Naples' bay and Gothard's
top—

Eh, friend? I could not fancy one of these;
But, as I pour this claret, there they are:
I've gained them—crossed St. Gothard last July

With ten mules to the carriage and a bed
Slung inside; is my hap the worse for that?
We want the same things, Shakespeare and myself,

And what I want, I have: he, gifted more, Could fancy he too had them when he liked,

But not so thoroughly that, if fate allowed,
He would not have them also in my sense.
We play one game; I send the ball aloft
No less adroitly that of fifty strokes Scarce five go o'er the wall so wide and high

Which sends them back to me: I wish and
get.

He struck balls higher and with better
skill,

But at a poor fence level with his head,
And hit—his Stratford house, a coat of
arms,

Successful dealings in his grain and wool,—

While I receive heaven's incense in my nose

And style myself the cousin of Queen Bess.
Ask him, if this life's all, who wins the game?

Believe — and our whole argument breaks up.

Enthusiasm's the best thing, I repeat;
Only, we can't command it; fire and life

Are all, dead matter's nothing, we agree:
And be it a mad dream or God's very

breath,
The fact's the same,—belief's fire, once in

us,
Makes of all else mere stuff to show itself:

We penetrate our life with such a glow
As fire lends wood and iron—this turns
steel,

That burns to ash—all's one, fire proves its power

For good or ill, since men call flare success.
But paint a fire, it will not therefore burn.

Light one in me, I'll find it food enough!
Why, to be Luther—that's a life to lead,

Incomparably better than my own.
He comes, reclaims God's earth for God,

he says,
Sets up God's rule again by simple means,

Re-opens a shut book, and all is done.
He flared out in the flaring of mankind;

Such Luther's luck was: how shall such be mine?

If he succeeded, nothing's left to do:
And if he did not altogether—well,

Strauss is the next advance. All Strauss should be

I might be also. But to what result?
He looks upon no future: Luther did.

What can I gain on the denying side?
Ice makes no conflagration. State the facts,

Read the text right, emancipate the

world—
The emancipated world enjoys itself

With scarce a thank-you: Blougram told it first

It could not owe a farthing,—not to him
More than Saint Paul! 'twould press its pay, you think?

Then add there's still that plaguy hundredth chance Strauss may be wrong. And so a risk is run—

For what gain? not for Luther's, who secured

A real heaven in his heart throughout his

life,
Supposing death a little altered things.

'Ay, but since really you lack faith,' you
cry,

'You run the same risk really on all sides,
'In cool indifference as bold unbelief.

'As well be Strauss as swing 'twixt Paul and him.

'It's not worth having, such imperfect
faith,

'No more available to do faith's work
'Than unbelief like mine. Whole faith, or

none!'

Softly, my friend! I must dispute that point.

Once own the use of faith, I'll find you
faith.

We're back on Christian ground. You call for faith:

I show you doubt, to prove that faith exists.

The more of doubt, the stronger faith, I
say,

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

If faith o'ercomes doubt. How I know it does?

By life and man's free will, God gave for that!

To mould life as we choose it, shows our choice:

That's our one act, the previous work's his own.

You criticize the soul? it reared this tree—

This broad life and whatever fruit it bears!

What matter though I doubt at every pore, Head-doubts, doubts at my fingers' ends,

Doubts in the trivial work of every day, Doubts at the very bases of my soul

In the grand moments when she probes herself—

If finally I have a life to show, The thing I did, brought out in evidence Against the thing done to me underground By hell and all its brood, for aught I know?

I say, whence sprang this? shows it faith or doubt?

All's doubt in me; where's break of faith in this?

It is the idea, the feeling and the love, God means mankind should strive for and show forth

Whatever be the process to that end,— And not historic knowledge, logic sound, And metaphysical acumen, sure!

'What think ye of Christ,' friend? when all's done and said,

Like you this Christianity or not? It may be false, but will you wish it true?

Has it your vote to be so if it can? Trust you an instinct silenced long ago

That will break silence and enjoin you love What mortified philosophy is hoarse,

And all in vain, with bidding you despise? If you desire faith—then you've faith enough:

What else seeks God—nay, what else seek ourselves?

You form a notion of me, we'll suppose, On hearsay; it's a favourable one:

'But still' (you add), 'there was no such good man,

'Because of contradiction in the facts. 'One proves, for instance, he was born in Rome,

'This Blougram; yet throughout the tales of him

'I see he figures as an Englishman.' Well, the two things are reconcileable.

But would I rather you discovered that, Subjoining—'Still, what matter though they be?

'Blougram concerns me nought, born here or there.'

Pure faith indeed—you know not what you ask!

Naked belief in God the Omnipotent, Omniscient, Omnipresent, sears too much

The sense of conscious creatures to be borne.

It were the seeing him, no flesh shall dare. Some think, Creation's meant to show him forth:

I say it's meant to hide him all it can, And that's what all the blessed evil's for.

Its use in Time is to environ us, Our breath, our drop of dew, with shield enough

Against that sight till we can bear its stress. Under a vertical sun, the exposed brain

And lidless eye and disemprisoned heart Less certainly would wither up at once

Than mind, confronted with the truth of him.

But time and earth case-harden us to live; The feeblest sense is trusted most, (the child

Feels God a moment, ichors o'er the place, Plays on and grows to be a man like us.

With me, faith means perpetual unbelief Kept quiet like the snake 'neath Michael's foot

'Who stands calm just because he feels it writhe.

Or, if that's too ambitious,—here's my box—

I need the excitation of a pinch Threatening the torpor of the inside-nose

Nigh on the imminent sneeze that never comes.

'Leave it in peace' advise the simple folk: Make it aware of peace by itching-fits,

Say I—let doubt occasion still more faith!

You'll say, once all believed, man, woman, child,

In that dear middle-age these noodles praise.

How you'd exult if I could put you back Six hundred years, blot out cosmogony, Geology, ethnology, what not, (Greek endings, each the little passing-bell

That signifies some faith's about to die), And set you square with Genesis again,—

When such a traveller told you his last news,

He saw the ark a-top of Ararat But did not climb there since 'twas getting dusk

And robber-bands infest the mountain's foot!

How should you feel, I ask, in such an age, How act? As other people felt and did;

With soul more blank than this decanter's knob,

Believe—and yet lie, kill, rob, fornicate Full in belief's face, like the beast you'd bel

No, when the fight begins within himself,

A man's worth something. God stoops o'er his head,

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

Satan looks up between his feet—both tug—
 He's left, himself, i' the middle; the soul wakes
 And grows. Prolong that battle through his life!
 Never leave growing till the life to come!
 Here, we've got callous to the Virgin's winks
 That used to puzzle people wholesomely:
 Men have outgrown the shame of being fools.
 What are the laws of nature, not to bend
 If the Church bid them?—brother Newman asks.
 Up with the Immaculate Conception,
 then—
 On to the rack with faith!—is my advice.
 Will not that hurry us upon our knees,
 Knocking our breasts, 'It can't be—yet it shall!
 'Who am I, the worm, to argue with my Pope?
 'Low things confound the high things!'— and so forth.
 That's better than acquitting God with
 grace
 As some folk do. He's tried—no case is proved,
 Philosophy is lenient—he may go!

You'll say, the old system's not so obsolete
 But men believe still: ay, but who and
 where?
 King Bomba's lazzaroni foster yet
 The sacred flame, so Antonelli writes;
 But even of these, what ragamuffin-saint Believes God watches him continually,
 As he believes in fire that it will burn,
 Or rain that it will drench him? Break fire's law,
 Sin against rain, although the penalty Be just a singe or soaking? 'No,' he smiles;
 'Those laws are laws that can enforce
 themselves.'

The sum of all is—yes, my doubt is great,
 My faith's still greater, then my faith's
 enough.
 I have read much, thought much, experienced much,
 Yet would die rather than avow my fear
 The Naples' liquefaction may be false,
 When set to happen by the palace-clock
 According to the clouds or dinner-time.
 I hear you recommend, I might at least Eliminate, declassify my faith
 Since I adopt it; keeping what I must
 And leaving what I can—such points as
 this.
 I won't—that is, I can't throw one away.

Supposing there's no truth in what I hold
 About the need of trial to man's faith,
 Still, when you bid me purify the same,
 To such a process I discern no end.
 Clearing off one excrescence to see two,
 There's ever a next in size, now grown as big,
 That meets the knife: I cut and cut again!
 First cut the Liquefaction, what comes last
 But Fichte's clever cut at God himself?
 Experimentalize on sacred things!
 I trust nor hand nor eye nor heart nor brain
 To stop betimes: they all get drunk alike.
 The first step, I am master not to take.

You'd find the cutting-process to your
 taste
 As much as leaving growths of lies unpruned,
 Nor see more danger in it,—you retort.
 Your taste's worth mine; but my taste proves more wise
 When we consider that the steadfast hold
 On the extreme end of the chain of faith Gives the advantage, makes the difference
 With the rough purblind mass we seek to rule:
 We are their lords, or they are free of us,
 Just as we tighten or relax our hold.
 So, other matters equal, we'll revert To the first problem—which, if solved my
 way
 And thrown into the balance, turns the scale—
 How we may lead a comfortable life,
 How suit our luggage to the cabin's size.

Of course you are remarking all this
 time
 How narrowly and grossly I view life,
 Respect the creature-comforts, care to rule
 The masses, and regard complacently
 'The cabin,' in our old phrase. Well, I do.
 I act for, talk for, live for this world now,
 As this world prizes action, life and talk:
 No prejudice to what next world may
 prove,
 Whose new laws and requirements, my best pledge
 To observe then, is that I observe these
 now,
 Shall do hereafter what I do meanwhile.
 Let us concede (gratuitously though)
 Next life relieves the soul of body, yields
 Pure spiritual enjoyment: well, my friend, Why lose this life i' the meantime, since its use
 May be to make the next life more intense?

Do you know, I have often had a dream (Work it up in your next month's article)
 Of man's poor spirit in its progress, still Losing true life for ever and a day

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

Through ever trying to be and ever being—
In the evolution of successive spheres—
Before its actual sphere and place of life, Halfway into the next, which having
reached,

It shoots with corresponding foolery
Halfway into the next still, on and off!
As when a traveller, bound from North to

South,
Scouts fur in Russia: what's its use in France?

In France spurns flannel: where's its need in Spain?

In Spain drops cloth, too cumbrous for Algiers!

Linen goes next, and last the skin itself,
A superfluity at Timbuctoo.

When, through his journey, was the fool at ease?

I'm at ease now, friend; worldly in this
world,

I take and like its way of life; I think
My brothers, who administer the means,
Live better for my comfort—that's good
too;

And God, if he pronounce upon such life,
Approves my service, which is better still.
If he keep silence,—why, for you or me Or that brute beast pulled-up in to-day's
'Times,'

What odds is't, save to ourselves, what life
we lead?

You meet me at this issue: you declare,—

All special-pleading done with—truth is
truth,

And justifies itself by undreamed ways.
You don't fear but it's better, if we
doubt,

To say so, act up to our truth perceived However feebly. Do then,—act away!
'Tis there I'm on the watch for you. How one acts

Is, both of us agree, our chief concern:
And how you'll act is what I fain would see
If, like the candid person you appear,
You dare to make the most of your life's scheme

As I of mine, live up to its full law Since there's no higher law that counter-checks,

Put natural religion to the test You've just demolished the revealed with
—quick,

Down to the root of all that checks your
will,

All prohibition to lie, kill and thief,
Or even to be an atheistic priest!
Suppose a pricking to incontinence—
Philosophers deduce you chastity
Or shame, from just the fact that at the
first

Whoso embraced a woman in the field,

Threw club down and forewent his brains
beside,

So, stood a ready victim in the reach
Of any brother savage, club in hand;
Hence saw the use of going out of sight
In wood or cave to prosecute his loves:
I read this in a French book t'other day.
Does law so analysed coerce you much?
Oh, men spin clouds of fuzz where matters
end,

But you who reach where the first thread begins,

You'll soon cut that!—which means you can, but won't,

Through certain instincts, blind, unreasoned out,

You dare not set aside, you can't tell why,
But there they are, and so you let them
rule.

Then, friend, you seem as much a slave
as I,

A liar, conscious coward and hypocrite,
Without the good the slave expects to get,
In case he has a master after all!
You own your instincts? why, what else
do I,

Who want, am made for, and must have a God

Ere I can be aught, do aught?—no mere
name

Want, but the true thing with what proves its truth,

To wit, a relation from that thing to me,
Touching from head to foot—which touch
I feel,

And with it take the rest, this life of ours!
I live my life here; yours you dare not live.

—Not as I state it, who (you please subjoin)

Disfigure such a life and call it names.
While, to your mind, remains another way
For simple men: knowledge and power have rights,

But ignorance and weakness have rights
too.

There needs no crucial effort to find truth
If here or there or anywhere about:

We ought to turn each side, try hard and
see,

And if we can't, be glad we've earned at least

The right, by one laborious proof the
more,

To graze in peace earth's pleasant pastur-
age.

Men are not angels, neither are they brutes:

Something we may see, all we cannot see.
What need of lying? I say, I see all,

And swear to each detail the most minute
In what I think a Pan's face—you, mere
cloud:

I swear I hear him speak and see him wink,

BISHOP BLOUGRAM'S APOLOGY

For fear, if once I drop the emphasis, Mankind may doubt there's any cloud at
all.

You take the simple life—ready to see,
Willing to see (for no cloud's worth a
face)—

And leaving quiet what no strength can
move,

And which, who bids you move? who has the right?

I bid you; but you are God's sheep, not
mine:

'Pastor est tui Dominus.' You find
In this the pleasant pasture of our life

Much you may eat without the least offence,

Much you don't eat because your maw objects,

Much you would eat but that your fellow-
flock

Open great eyes at you and even butt,
And thereupon you like your mates so well

You cannot please yourself, offending
them;

Though when they seem exorbitantly
sheep,

You weigh your pleasure with their butts and bleats

And strike the balance. Sometimes certain
fears

Restrain you, real checks since you find them so;

Sometimes you please yourself and nothing checks:

And thus you graze through life with not one lie,

And like it best.

But do you, in truth's name?

If so, you beat—which means you are not
I—

Who needs must make earth mine and feed my fill

Not simply unbutted at, unbickered with,
But motioned to the velvet of the sword

By those obsequious wethers' very selves.
Look at me, sir; my age is double yours:

At yours, I knew beforehand, so enjoyed,
What now I should be—as, permit the

word,
I pretty well imagine your whole range

And stretch of tether twenty years to come.
We both have minds and bodies much

alike:
In truth's name, don't you want my bishopric,

My daily bread, my influence and my

state?
You're young. I'm old; you must be old one day;

Will you find then, as I do hour by hour,

Women their lovers kneel to, who cut curls
From your fat lap-dog's ear to grace a brooch—

Dukes, who petition just to kiss your ring—

With much beside you know or may conceive?

Suppose we die to-night: well, here am I,
Such were my gains, life bore this fruit to

me,
While writing all the same my articles

On music, poetry, the fictile vase Found at Albano, chess, Anacreon's

Greek.
But you—the highest honour in your life,

The thing you'll crown yourself with, all your days,

Is—dining here and drinking this last glass
I pour you out in sign of amity

Before we part for ever. Of your power And social influence, worldly worth in

short,
Judge what's my estimation by the fact,

I do not condescend to enjoin, beseech,
Hint secrecy on one of all these words!

You're shrewd and know that should you publish one

The world would brand the lie—my enemies first,

Who'd sneer—'the bishop's an arch-hypocrite

'And knave perhaps, but not so frank a
fool.'

Whereas I should not dare for both my ears

Breathe one such syllable, smile one such
smile,

Before the chaplain who reflects myself—
My shade's so much more potent than your flesh.

What's your reward, self-abnegating

friend?
Stood you confessed of those exceptional

And privileged great natures that dwarf
mine—

A zealot with a mad ideal in reach,
A poet just about to print his ode,

A statesman with a scheme to stop this
war,

An artist whose religion is his art—
I should have nothing to object: such men

Carry the fire, all things grow warm to
them,

Their druggist's worth my purple, they beat me.

But you,—you're just as little those as I—
You, Gigadibs, who, thirty years of age,

Write steadily for Blackwood's Magazine,

Believe you see two points in Hamlet's soul Unseized by the Germans yet—which view

you'll print—
Meantime the best you have to show being

still
That lively lightsome article we took Almost for the true Dickens,—what's its name?

CLEON

Resolved into a subtler element.

And yet the vulgar call the sphere first full
Up to the visible height—and after, void;
Not knowing air's more hidden properties.
And thus our soul, misknown, cries out to Zeus

To vindicate his purpose in our life:

Why stay we on the earth unless to grow?
Long since, I imaged, wrote the fiction out,
That he or other god descended here
And, once for all, showed simultaneously
What, in its nature, never can be shown, Piecemeal or in succession;—showed, I
say,

The worth both absolute and relative
Of all his children from the birth of time,
His instruments for all appointed work.

I now go on to image,—might we hear
The judgment which should give the due to each,

Show where the labour lay and where the
ease,

And prove Zeus' self, the latent every-
where!

This is a dream:—but no dream, let us
hope,

That years and days, the summers and the
springs,

Follow each other with unwaning powers.
The grapes which dye thy wine are richer
far,

Through culture, than the wild wealth of the rock;

The suave plum than the savage-tasted
drupe;

The pastured honey-bee drops choicer
sweet;

The flowers turn double, and the leaves turn flowers;

That young and tender crescent-moon, thy
slave,

Sleeping above her robe as buoyed by clouds,

Refines upon the women of my youth.
What, and the soul alone deteriorates?

I have not chanted verse like Homer, no—Nor swept string like Terpander, no—nor carved

And painted men like Phidias and his
friend:

I am not great as they are, point by point.
But I have entered into sympathy

With these four, running these into one
soul,

Who, separate, ignored each other's art.
Say, is it nothing that I know them all?

The wild flower was the larger; I have dashed

Rose-blood upon its petals, pricked its cup's

Honey with wine, and driven its seed to
fruit,

And show a better flower if not so large:
I stand myself. Refer this to the gods

Whose gift alone it is! which, shall I dare
(All pride apart) upon the absurd pretext
That such a gift by chance lay in my hand,
Discourse of lightly or depreciate?

It might have fallen to another's hand:
what then?

I pass too surely: let at least truth stay!

And next, of what thou followest on to
ask.

This being with me as I declare, C king,
My works, in all these varicoloured kinds,
So done by me, accepted so by men—

Thou askest, if (my soul thus in men's hearts)

I must not be accounted to attain

The very crown and proper end of life?

Inquiring thence how, now life closeth up,
I face death with success in my right hand:

Whether I fear death less than dost thyself
The fortunate of men? 'For' (writest
thou)

'Thou leavest much behind, while I leave
nought.

'Thy life stays in the poems men shall sing,
'The pictures men shall study; while my
life,

'Complete and whole now in its power and
joy,

'Dies altogether with my brain and arm,
'Is lost indeed; since, what survives my-
self?

'The brazen statue to o'erlook my grave,
'Set on the promontory which I named.

'And that—some supple courtier of my heir

'Shall use its robed and sceptred arm, perhaps,

'To fix the rope to, which best drags it
down.

'I go then: triumph thou, who dost not
go!'

Nay, thou art worthy of hearing my whole mind.

Is this apparent, when thou turn'st to muse Upon the scheme of earth and man in
chief,

That admiration grows as knowledge
grows?

That imperfection means perfection hid,
Reserved in part, to grace the after-time?

If, in the morning of philosophy, Ere aught had been recorded, nay per-
ceived,

Thou, with the light now in thee, couldst have looked

On all earth's tenantry, from worm to bird, Ere man, her last, appeared upon the
stage—

Thou wouldst have seen them perfect, and deduced

The perfectness of others yet unseen.

Conceding which,—had Zeus then questioned thee

'Shall I go on a step, improve on this,
'Do more for visible creatures than is done?'

Thou wouldst have answered, 'Ay, by making each

'Grow conscious in himself—by that alone.

'All's perfect else: the shell sucks fast the rock,

'The fish strikes through the sea, the snake both swims

'And slides, forth range the beasts, the birds take flight,

'Till life's mechanics can no further go—
'And all this joy in natural life is put

'Like fire from off thy finger into each,
'So exquisitely perfect is the same.

'But 'tis pure fire, and they mere matter are;

'It has them, not they it: and so I choose
'For man, thy last premeditated work

'(If I might add a glory to the scheme)'
'That a third thing should stand apart from both,

'A quality arise within his soul,

'Which, intro-active, made to supervise
'And feel the force it has, may view it-

self,
'And so be happy.' Man might live at first

The animal life: but is there nothing more?
In due time, let him critically learn

How he lives; and, the more he gets to know

Of his own life's adaptabilities,
The more joy-giving will his life become.

Thus man, who hath this quality, is best.

But thou, king, hadst more reasonably said:

'Let progress end at once,—man make no step

'Beyond the natural man, the better beast,
'Using his senses, not the sense of sense.'

In man there's failure, only since he left
The lower and unconscious forms of life.

We called it an advance, the rendering plain

Man's spirit might grow conscious of man's life,

And, by new lore so added to the old,
Take each step higher over the brute's head.

This grew the only life, the pleasure-house,
Watch-tower and treasure-fortress of the soul,

Which whole surrounding flats of natural life

Seemed only fit to yield subsistence to;
A tower that crowns a country. But alas,

The soul now climbs it just to perish there!
For thence we have discovered ('tis no dream—

We know this, which we had not else perceived)

That there's a world of capability
For joy, spread round about us, meant

for us,
Inviting us; and still the soul craves all,

And still the flesh replies, 'Take no jot more

'Than ere thou clombst the tower to look abroad!

'Nay, so much less as that fatigue has brought 'Deduction to it.' We struggle, fain to enlarge

Our bounded physical reciprocity, Increase our power, supply fresh oil to

life,
Repair the waste of age and sickness: no,

It skills not! life's inadequate to joy,
As the soul sees joy, tempting life to take.

They praise a fountain in my garden here
Wherein a Naiad sends the water-bow

Thin from her tube; she smiles to see it rise.
What if I told her, it is just a thread

From that great river which the hills shut up,

And mock her with my leave to take the same?

The artificer has given her one small tube Past power to widen or exchange—what

boots
To know she might spout oceans if she could?

She cannot lift beyond her first thin thread:

And so a man can use but a man's joy

While he sees God's. Is it for Zeus to boast,

'See, man, how happy I live, and despair—
'That I may be still happier—for thy use!'

If this were so, we could not thank our lord,

As hearts beat on to doing; 'tis not so—
Malice it is not. Is it carelessness?

Still, no. If care—where is the sign? I ask,
And get no answer, and agree in sum,

O king, with thy profound discouragement,

Who seest the wider but to sigh the more.
Most progress is most failure: thou sayest well.

The last point now:—thou dost except a case—

Holding joy not impossible to one
With artist-gifts—to such a man as I

Who leave behind me living works indeed;
For, such a poem, such a painting lives.

What? dost thou verily trip upon a word,
Confound the accurate view of what joy is (Caught somewhat clearer by my eyes than thine)

With feeling joy? confound the knowing how

CLEON

And showing how to live (my faculty)
With actually living?—Otherwise
Where is the artist's vantage o'er the king?
Because in my great epos I display
How divers men young, strong, fair, wise, can act—

Is this as though I acted? if I paint, Carve the young Phœbus, am I therefore
young?

Methinks I'm older that I bowed myself
The many years of pain that taught me art!
Indeed, to know is something, and to prove

How all this beauty might be enjoyed, is
more:

But, knowing nought, to enjoy is something too.

Yon rower, with the moulded muscles
there,

Lowering the sail, is nearer it than I.
I can write love-odes: thy fair slave's an ode.

I get to sing of love, when grown too grey
For being beloved: she turns to that young
man,

The muscles all a-ripple on his back.
I know the joy of kingship: well, thou art
king.

'But,' sayest thou—(and I marvel, I
repeat,
To find thee trip on such a mere word)
'what

'Thou writest, paintest, stays; that does not die:

'Sappho survives, because we sing her
songs,

'And Æschylus, because we read his plays!'

Why, if they live still, let them come and take

Thy slave in my despite, drink from thy
cup,

Speak in my place. Thou diest while I survive?

Say rather that my fate is deadlier still,
In this, that every day my sense of joy Grows more acute, my soul (intensified By power and insight) more enlarged, more keen;

While every day my hairs fall more and
more,

My hand shakes, and the heavy years increase—

The horror quickening still from year to year,

The consummation coming past escape
When I shall know most, and yet least enjoy—

When all my works wherein I prove my
worth,

Being present still to mock me in men's mouths,

Alive still, in the praise of such as thou,

I, I the feeling, thinking, acting man,
The man who loved his life so over-much,
Sleep in my urn. It is so horrible,
I dare at times imagine to my need
Some future state revealed to us by Zeus, Unlimited in capability

For joy, as this is in desire for joy,
—To seek which, the joy-hunger forces us:
That, stung by straitness of our life, made strait

On purpose to make prized the life at large—

Freed by the throbbing impulse we call
death,

We burst there as the worm into the fly,
Who, while a worm still, wants his wings.

But no!
Zeus has not yet revealed it; and alas,
He must have done so, were it possible!

Live long and happy, and in that thought die:

Glad for what was! Farewell. And for
the rest,

I cannot tell thy messenger aright
Where to deliver what he bears of thine

To one called Paulus; we have heard his
name

Indeed, if Christus be not one with him—
I know not, nor am troubled much to
know.

Thou canst not think a mere barbarian
Jew,

As Paulus proves to be, one circumcized,
Hath access to a secret shut from us?

Thou wrongest our philosophy, O king,
In stooping to inquire of such an one,

As if his answer could impose at all!
He writeth, doth he? well, and he may write.

Oh, the Jew findeth scholars! certain slaves
Who touched on this same isle, preached him and Christ:

And (as I gathered from a bystander)
Their doctrine could be held by no sane
man.

RUDEL TO THE LADY OF TRIPOLI

I

I KNOW a Mount, the gracious Sun perceives

First, when he visits, last, too, when he leaves

The world; and, vainly favoured, it repays
The day-long glory of his steadfast gaze

By no change of its large calm front of snow.

And underneath the Mount, a Flower I
know,

He cannot have perceived, that changes
ever

At his approach; and, in the lost endeavour

RUDEL TO THE LADY OF TRIPOLI

To live his life, has parted, one by one,
With all a flower's true graces, for the
grace

Of being but a foolish mimic sun,
With ray-like florets round a disk-like face.
Men nobly call by many a name the Mount
As over many a land of theirs its large Calm front of snow like a triumphal targe
Is reared, and still with old names, fresh names vie,

Each to its proper praise and own account:
Men call the Flower, the Sunflower, sport-tively.

II

Oh, Angel of the East, one, one gold look Across the waters to this twilight nook,
—The far sad waters, Angel, to this nook!

III

Dear Pilgrim, art thou for the East indeed?
Go!—saying ever as thou dost proceed,
That I, French Rudel, choose for my device

A sunflower outspread like a sacrifice
Before its idol. See! These inept
And hurried fingers could not fail to hurt
The woven picture; 'tis a woman's skill
Indeed; but nothing baffled me, so, ill Or well, the work is finished. Say, men feed

On songs I sing, and therefore bask the bees

On my flower's breast as on a platform
broad:

But, as the flower's concern is not for these
But solely for the sun, so men applaud
In vain this Rudel, he not looking here
But to the East—the East! Go, say this,
Pilgrim dear!

ONE WORD MORE!

TO E. B. B.

1855

I

THERE they are, my fifty men and women
Naming me the fifty poems finished!

Take them, Love, the book and me together:

Where the heart lies, let the brain lie also.

II

Rafael made a century of sonnets,
Made and wrote them in a certain volume
Dinted with the silver-pointed pencil
Else he only used to draw Madonnas:
These, the world might view—but one, the volume.

Who that one, you ask? Your heart instructs you.

¹ [Originally appended to the collection of Poems called 'Men and Women', the greater portion of which has now been, more correctly, distributed under the other titles of this edition.—R. B.]

Did she live and love it all her life-time?
Did she drop, his lady of the sonnets,
Die, and let it drop beside her pillow
Where it lay in place of Rafael's glory, Rafael's cheek so duteous and so loving—Cheek, the world was wont to hail a painter's,
Rafael's cheek, her love had turned a poet's?

III

You and I would rather read that volume, (Taken to his beating bosom by it)
Lean and list the bosom-beats of Rafael,
Would we not? than wonder at Madonnas—

Her, San Sisto names, and Her, Foligno,
Her, that visits Florence in a vision,
Her, that's left with lilies in the Louvre—
Seen by us and all the world in circle.

IV

You and I will never read that volume.
Guido Reni, like his own eye's apple Guarded long the treasure-book and loved
it.

Guido Reni dying, all Bologna Cried, and the world cried too, 'Ours, the treasure!'

Suddenly, as rare things will, it vanished.

V

Dante once prepared to paint an angel:
Whom to please? You whisper 'Beatrice.' While he mused and traced it and retraced
it,

(Peradventure with a pen corroded Still by drops of that hot ink he dipped for,
When, his left-hand i' the hair o' the wicked,

Back he held the brow and pricked its stigma,

Bit into the live man's flesh for parch-
ment,

Loosed him, laughed to see the writing
rankle,

Let the wretch go festering through Florence)—

Dante, who loved well because he hated, Hated wickedness that hinders loving,
Dante standing, studying his angel,—
In there broke the folk of his Inferno.

Says he—'Certain people of importance' (Such he gave his daily dreadful line to) 'Entered and would seize, forsooth, the poet.'

Says the poet—'Then I stopped my painting.'

VI

You and I would rather see that angel,
Painted by the tenderness of Dante, Would we not?—than read a fresh Inferno.

VII

You and I will never see that picture.
While he mused on love and Beatrice,
While he softened o'er his outlined angel,
In they broke, those 'people of importance.'
We and Bice bear the loss for ever.

VIII

What of Rafael's sonnets, Dante's picture?
This: no artist lives and loves, that longs
not
Once, and only once, and for one only,
(Ah, the prize!) to find his love a language
Fit and fair and simple and sufficient—
Using nature that's an art to others,
Not, this one time, art that's turned his nature.
Ay, of all the artists living, loving,
None but would forego his proper dowry,—
Does he paint? he fain would write a poem,—
Does he write? he fain would paint a picture,
Put to proof art alien to the artist's,
Once, and only once, and for one only,
So to be the man and leave the artist,
Gain the man's joy, miss the artist's sorrow.

IX

Wherefore? Heaven's gift takes earth's abatement!
He who smites the rock and spreads the water,
Bidding drink and live a crowd beneath
him,
Even he, the minute makes immortal, Proves, perchance, but mortal in the minute,
Desecrates, belike, the deed in doing.
While he smites, how can he but remember,
So he smote before, in such a peril,
When they stood and mocked—'Shall smiting help us?'
When they drank and sneered—'A stroke is easy!'
When they wiped their mouths and went their journey,
Throwing him for thanks—'But drought was pleasant.'
Thus old memories mar the actual triumph;
Thus the doing savours of disrelish;
Thus achievement lacks a gracious something;
O'er-importuned brows becloud the mandate,
Carelessness or consciousness—the gesture.
For he bears an ancient wrong about him,
Sees and knows again those phalanxed
faces,

Hears, yet one time more, the 'customed prelude—

'How shouldst thou, of all men, smite, and save us?'
Guesses what is like to prove the sequel—
'Egypt's flesh-pots—nay, the drought was better.'

X

Oh, the crowd must have emphatic warrant!
Theirs, the Sinai-forehead's cloven brilliance,
Right-arm's rod-sweep, tongue's imperial fiat.
Never dares the man put off the prophet.

XI

Did he love one face from out the thousands,
(Were she Jethro's daughter, white and wifely,
Were she but the Æthiopian bondslave,)
He would envy yon dumb patient camel,
Keeping a reserve of scanty water
Meant to save his own life in the desert;
Ready in the desert to deliver (Kneeling down to let his breast be opened)
Hoard and life together for his mistress.

XII

I shall never, in the years remaining,
Paint you pictures, no, nor carve you statues,
Make you music that should all-express
me;
So it seems: I stand on my attainment.
This of verse alone, one life allows me;
Verse and nothing else have I to give you.
Other heights in other lives, God willing:
All the gifts from all the heights, your own,
Love!

XIII

Yet a semblance of resource avails us—Shade so finely touched, love's sense must seize it.
Take these lines, look lovingly and nearly,
Lines I wrote the first time and the last
time.
He who works in fresco, steals a hair-
brush,
Curbs the liberal hand, subservient proudly,
Cramps his spirit, crowds its all in little,
Makes a strange art of an art familiar,
Fills his lady's missal-marge with flower-ets.
He who blows thro' bronze, may breathe thro' silver,
Fitably serenade a slumbrous princess.
He who writes, may write for once as I do.

XIV

Love, you saw me gather men and women,
Live or dead or fashioned by my fancy,

ONE WORD MORE

Enter each and all, and use their service, Speak from every mouth,—the speech, a poem.

Hardly shall I tell my joys and sorrows,
Hopes and fears, belief and disbelieving:
I am mine and yours—the rest be all men's,
Karshish, Cleon, Norbert and the fifty.
Let me speak this once in my true person,
Not as Lippo, Roland or Andrea,
Though the fruit of speech be just this sentence:

Pray you, look on these my men and women,

Take and keep my fifty poems finished;
Where my heart lies, let my brain lie also!
Poor the speech; be how I speak, for all things.

XV

Not but that you know me! Lo, the moon's self!

Here in London, yonder late in Florence, Still we find her face, the thrice-transfigured.

Curving on a sky imbrued with colour,
Drifted over Fiesole by twilight, Came she, our new crescent of a hair's-
breadth.

Full she flared it, lamping Samminiato,
Rouder 'twixt the cypresses and rounder,
Perfect till the nightingales applauded.

Now, a piece of her old self, impoverished,
Hard to greet, she traverses the house-roofs,

Hurries with unhandsome thrift of silver,
Goes dispiritedly, glad to finish.

XVI

What, there's nothing in the moon noteworthy?

Nay: for if that moon could love a mortal,
Use, to charm him (so to fit a fancy),
All her magic ('tis the old sweet mythos),
She would turn a new side to her mortal,
Side unseen of herdsman, huntsman, steersman—

Blank to Zoroaster on his terrace,
Blind to Galileo on his turret,
Dumb to Homer, dumb to Keats—him,
even!

Think, the wonder of the moonstruck
mortal—

When she turns round, comes again in
heaven,

Opens out anew for worse or better!
Proves she like some portent of an iceberg
Swimming full upon the ship it founders, Hungry with huge teeth of splintered crystals?

Proves she as the paved work of a sapphire Seen by Moses when he climbed the mountain?

Moses, Aaron, Nadab and Abihu Climbed and saw the very God, the Highest,

Stand upon the paved work of a sapphire.
Like the bodied heaven in his clearness Shone the stone, the sapphire of that paved
work,

When they ate and drank and saw God also!

XVII

What were seen? None knows, none ever shall know.

Only this is sure—the sight were other,
Not the moon's same side, born late in Florence,

Dying now impoverished here in London.
God be thanked, the meanest of his creatures

Boasts two soul-sides, one to face the world with,

One to show a woman when he loves her!

XVIII

This I say of me, but think of you, Love!
This to you—yourself my moon of poets!
Ah, but that's the world's side, there's the
wonder,

Thus they see you, praise you, think they know you!

There, in turn I stand with them and praise
you—

Out of my own self, I dare to phrase it.
But the best is when I glide from out them,
Cross a step or two of dubious twilight,
Come out on the other side, the novel Silent silver lights and darks undreamed
of,

Where I hush and bless myself with silence.

XIX

Oh, their Rafael of the dear Madonnas,
Oh, their Dante of the dread Inferno,
Wrote one song—and in my brain I sing it, Drew one angel—borne, see, on my bosom!

IN A BALCONY

1855

PERSONS

NORBERT.

CONSTANCE.

THE QUEEN.

CONSTANCE and NORBERT.

Nor. Now!

Con. Not now!

Nor. Give me them

again, those hands:

Put them upon my forehead, how it throbs!

Press them before my eyes, the fire comes through!

You cruellest, you dearest in the world, Let me! The Queen must grant what'er

I ask—

How can I gain you and not ask the Queen?

There she stays waiting for me, here stand you;

Some time or other this was to be asked; Now is the one time—what I ask, I gain:

Let me ask now, Love!

Con. Do, and ruin us.

Nor. Let it be now, Love! All my soul breaks forth.

How I do love you! Give my love its way! A man can have but one life and one

death,

One heaven, one hell. Let me fulfil my fate—

Grant me my heaven now! Let me know you mine,

Prove you mine, write my name upon your brow,

Hold you and have you, and then die away,

If God please, with completion in my soul!

Con. I am not yours then? How content this man!

I am not his—who change into himself, Have passed into his heart and beat its

beats,

Who give my hands to him, my eyes, my hair,

Give all that was of me away to him— So well, that now, my spirit turned his

own,

Takes part with him against the woman here,

Bids him not stumble at so mere a straw As caring that the world be cognizant

How he loves her and how she worships him.

You have this woman, not as yet that world.

Go on, I bid, nor stop to care for me

By saying what I cease to care about, The courtly name and pride of circumstance—

The name you'll pick up and be cumbered with

Just for the poor parade's sake, nothing more;

Just that the world may slip from under you—

Just that the world may cry 'So much for him—

'The man predestined to the heap of crowns:

'There goes his chance of winning one, at least!'

Nor. The world!

Con. You love it. Love me quite as well,

And see if I shall pray for this in vain! Why must you ponder what it knows or thinks?

Nor. You pray for—what, in vain?

Con. Oh my heart's heart, How I do love you, Norbert! That is

right:

But listen, or I take my hands away! You say, 'let it be now': you would go

now

And tell the Queen, perhaps six steps from us,

You love me—so you do, thank God!

Nor. Thank God!

Con. Yes, Norbert,—but you fain would tell your love,

And, what succeeds the telling, ask of her

My hand. Now take this rose and look at it,

Listening to me. You are the minister, The Queen's first favourite, nor without a cause.

To-night completes your wonderful year's-work

(This palace-feast is held to celebrate) Made memorable by her life's success,

The junction of two crowns, on her sole head,

Her house had only dreamed of anciently: That this mere dream is grown a stable

truth,

To-night's feast makes authentic. Whose the praise?

Whose genius, patience, energy, achieved What turned the many heads and broke the hearts?

You are the fate, your minute's in the heaven.

Next comes the Queen's turn. 'Name your own reward!'

With leave to clench the past, chain the to-come,

Put out an arm and touch and take the sun

And fix it ever full-faced on your earth, Possess yourself supremely of her life,—

You choose the single thing she will not grant;

Nay, very declaration of which choice Will turn the scale and neutralize your work:

At best she will forgive you, if she can. You think I'll let you choose—her cousin's hand?

Nor. Wait. First, do you retain your old belief

The Queen is generous,—nay, is just?

Con. There, there! So men make women love them, while they know

No more of women's hearts than . . . look you here,

You that are just and generous beside, Make it your own case! For example now,

I'll say—I let you kiss me, hold my hands—

Why? do you know why? I'll instruct you, then—

The kiss, because you have a name at court;

This hand and this, that you may shut in each

A jewel, if you please to pick up such. That's horrible? Apply it to the Queen—

Suppose I am the Queen to whom you speak:

'I was a nameless man; you needed me: 'Why did I proffer you my aid? there stood

'A certain pretty cousin at your side. 'Why did I make such common cause with you?

'Access to her had not been easy else. 'You give my labour here abundant praise?

'Faith, labour, which she overlooked, grew play.

'How shall your gratitude discharge itself? 'Give me her hand!'

Nor. And still I urge the same. Is the Queen just? just—generous or no!

Con. Yes, just. You love a rose; no harm in that:

But was it for the rose's sake or mine You put it in your bosom? mine, you said—

Then, mine you still must say or else be false.

You told the Queen you served her for herself;

If so, to serve her was to serve yourself, She thinks, for all your unbelieving face!

I know her. In the hall, six steps from us, One sees the twenty pictures; there's a life

Better than life, and yet no life at all. Conceive her born in such a magic dome,

Pictures all round her! why, she sees the world,

Can recognize its given things and facts, The fight of giants or the feast of gods,

Sages in senate, beauties at the bath, Chases and battles, the whole earth's display, Landscape and sea-piece, down to flowers and fruit—

And who shall question that she knows them all,

In better semblance than the things outside?

Yet bring into the silent gallery Some live thing to contrast in breath and blood,

Some lion, with the painted lion there— You think she'll understand composedly?

—Say, 'that's his fellow in the hunting-piece

'Yonder, I've turned to praise a hundred times?'

Not so. Her knowledge of our actual earth,

Its hopes and fears, concerns and sympathies,

Must be too far, too mediate, too unreal. The real exists for us outside, not her:

How should it, with that life in these four walls—

That father and that mother, first to last No father and no mother—friends, a heap,

Lovers, no lack—a husband in due time, And every one of them alike a lie!

Things painted by a Rubens out of nought Into what kindness, friendship, love should be;

All better, all more grandiose than the life, Only no life; mere cloth and surface-paint,

You feel, while you admire. How should she feel?

Yet now that she has stood thus fifty years The sole spectator in that gallery,

You think to bring this warm real struggling love

In to her of a sudden, and suppose She'll keep her state untroubled? Here's the truth—

She'll apprehend truth's value at a glance, Prefer it to the pictured loyalty?

You only have to say, 'so men are made, 'For this they act; the thing has many names,

'But this the right one: and now, Queen, be just!'

Your life slips back; you lose her at the word:

You do not even for amends gain me.

IN A BALCONY

He will not understand; oh, Norbert,
Norbert,

Do you not understand?

Nor. The Queen's the Queen:
I am myself—no picture, but alive
In every nerve and every muscle, here
At the palace-window o'er the people's

street,
As she in the gallery where the pictures
glow:

The good of life is precious to us both.
She cannot love; what do I want with rule?
When first I saw your face a year ago
I knew my life's good, my soul heard one
voice—

'The woman yonder, there's no use of life
'But just to obtain her! heap earth's woes in one

'And bear them—make a pile of all earth's joys

'And spurn them, as they help or help not
this;

'Only, obtain her!' How was it to be?
I found you were the cousin of the Queen;
I must then serve the Queen to get to you.
No other way. Suppose there had been
one,

And I, by saying prayers to some white
star

With promise of my body and my soul, Might gain you,—should I pray the star
or no?

Instead, there was the Queen to serve! I served,

Helped, did what other servants failed to do.

Neither she sought nor I declared my end.
Her good is hers, my recompense be
mine,—

I therefore name you as that recompense.
She dreamed that such a thing could never
be?

Let her wake now. She thinks there was more cause

In love of power, high fame, pure loyalty?
Perhaps she fancies men wear out their
lives

Chasing such shades. Then, I've a fancy
too;

I worked because I want you with my soul:
I therefore ask your hand. Let it be now!

Con. Had I not loved you from the very
first,

Were I not yours, could we not steal out
thus

So wickedly, so wildly, and so well, You might become impatient. What's conceived

Of us without here, by the folk within?
Where are you now? immersed in cares d'

state—
Where am I now? intent on festal robes—
We two, embracing under death's spread
hand!

What was this thought for, what that scruple of yours

Which broke the council up?—to bring
about

One minute's meeting in the corridor!
And then the sudden sleights, strange secrecies,

Complots inscrutable, deep telegraphs, Long-planned chance-meetings, hazards of a look,

'Does she know? does she not know?
saved or lost?'

A year of this compression's ecstasy
All goes for nothing! you would give this
up

For the old way, the open way, the world's,
His way who beats, and his who sells his wife!

What tempts you?—their notorious happiness

Makes you ashamed of ours? The best you'll gain

Will be—the Queen grants all that you require,

Concedes the cousin, rids herself of you
And me at once, and gives us ample leave To live like our five hundred happy
friends.

The world will show us with officious hand
Our chamber-entry, and stand sentinel

Where we so oft have stolen across its traps!

Get the world's warrant, ring the falcons'
feet,

And make it duty to be bold and swift,
Which long ago was nature. Have it so!

We never hawked by rights till flung from fist?

Oh, the man's thought! no woman's such a fool.

Nor. Yes, the man's thought and my thought, which is more—

One made to love you, let the world take
note!

Have I done worthy work? be love's the
praise,

Though hampered by restrictions, barred against

By set forms, blinded by forced secrecies!
Set free my love, and see what love can do

Shown in my life—what work will spring from that!

The world is used to have its business done
On other grounds, find great effects produced

For power's sake, fame's sake, motives in men's mouth.

So, good: but let my low ground shame their high!

Truth is the strong thing. Let man's life be true!

And love's the truth of mine. Time prove
the rest!

I choose to wear you stamped all over me,

Your name upon my forehead and my breast,
 You, from the sword's blade to the rib-bon's edge,
 That men may see, all over, you in me—
 That pale loves may die out of their presence
 In face of mine, shames thrown on love fall off.
 Permit this, Constance! Love has been so
 long Subdued in me, eating me through and
 through,
 That now 'tis all of me and must have way.
 Think of my work, 'that chaos of intrigues,
 Those hopes and fears, surprises and delays,
 That long endeavour, earnest, patient,
 slow,
 Trembling at last to its assured result:
 Then think of this revulsion! I resume Life after death, (it is no less than life, After such long unlovely labouring days)
 And liberate to beauty life's great need O' the beautiful, which, while it prompted
 work, Suppressed itself awhile. This eve's the
 time,
 This eve intense with yon first trembling
 star
 We seem to pant and reach; scarce aught
 between
 The earth that rises and the heaven that bends;
 All nature self-abandoned, every tree
 Flung as it will, pursuing its own thoughts
 And fixed so, every flower and every weed,
 No pride, no shame, no victory, no defeat;
 All under God, each measured by itself.
 These statues round us stand abrupt, distinct,
 The strong in strength, the weak in weakness fixed,
 The Muse for ever wedded to her lyre, Nymph to her fawn, and Silence to her
 rose:
 See God's approval on his universe!
 Let us do so—aspire to live as these In harmony with truth, ourselves being
 true!
 Take the first way, and let the second
 come!
 My first is to possess myself of you;
 The music sets the march-step—forward,
 then!
 And there's the Queen, I go to claim you
 of,
 The world to witness, wonder and applaud.
 Our flower of life breaks open. No delay!
 Con. And so shall we be ruined, both of us.
 Norbert, I know her to the skin and bone:
 You do not know her, were not born to it,

To feel what she can see or cannot see.
 Love, she is generous,—ay, despite your
 smile,
 Generous as you are: for, in that thin
 frame
 Pain-twisted, punctured through and through with cares,
 There lived a lavish soul until it starved, Debarred of healthy food. Look to the
 soul—
 Pity that, stoop to that, ere you begin (The true man's-way) on justice and your rights,
 Exactions and acquittance of the past!
 Begin so—see what justice she will deal!
 We women hate a debt as men a gift.
 Suppose her some poor keeper of a school Whose business is to sit thro' summer months
 And dole out children leave to go and play, Herself superior to such lightness—she
 In the arm-chair's state and pædagogic
 pomp—
 To the life, the laughter, sun and youth
 outside:
 We wonder such a face looks black on us?
 I do not bid you wake her tenderness, (That were vain truly—none is left to wake)
 But let her think her justice is engaged
 To take the shape of tenderness, and mark
 If she'll not coldly pay its warmest debt!
 Does she love me, I ask you? not a whit:
 Yet, thinking that her justice was engaged
 To help a kinswoman, she took me up—Did more on that bare ground than other
 loves
 Would do on greater argument. For me,
 I have no equivalent of such cold kind
 To pay her with, but love alone to give
 If I give anything. I give her love:
 I feel I ought to help her, and I will.
 So, for her sake, as yours, I tell you twice
 That women hate a debt as men a gift.
 If I were you, I could obtain this grace—
 Could lay the whole I did to love's account,
 Nor yet be very false as courtiers go—
 Declaring my success was recompense;
 It would be so, in fact: what were it else?
 And then, once loose her generosity,—
 Oh, how I see it!—then, were I but you,
 To turn it, let it seem to move itself,
 And make it offer what I really take,
 Accepting just, in the poor cousin's hand,
 Her value as the next thing to the Queen's—
 Since none love Queens directly, none dare that,
 And a thing's shadow or a name's mere echo
 Suffices those who miss the name and
 thing!
 You pick up just a ribbon she has worn,

IN A BALCONY

To keep in proof how near her breath you came.

Say, I'm so near I seem a piece of her—
Ask for me that way—(oh, you understand)

You'd find the same gift yielded with a grace,

Which, if you make the least show to extort . . .

—You'll see! and when you have ruined both of us,

Dissertate on the Queen's ingratitude!
Nor. Then, if I turn it that way, you consent?

'Tis not my way; I have more hope in truth:

Still, if you won't have truth—why, this indeed,

Were scarcely false, as I'd express the sense.

Will you remain here?
Con. O best heart of mine,

How I have loved you! then, you take my way?

Are mine as you have been her minister,
Work out my thought, give it effect for me,

Paint plain my poor conceit and make it serve?

I owe that withered woman everything—
Life, fortune, you, remember! Take my part—

Help me to pay her! Stand upon your rights?

You, with my rose, my hands, my heart on you?

Your rights are mine—you have no rights but mine.

Nor. Remain here. How you know me!

Con. Ah, but still—[He breaks from her: she remains.

Dance-music from within.

Enter the QUEEN.

Queen. Constance? She is here as he said. Speak quick!

Is it so? Is it true or false? One word!

Con. True.

Queen. Mercifullest Mother, thanks to thee!

Con. Madam?

Queen. I love you, Constance, from my soul.

Now say once more, with any words you will,

'Tis true, all true, as true as that I speak.
Con. Why should you doubt it?

Queen. Ah, why doubt? why doubt?

Dear, make me see it! Do you see it so? None see themselves; another sees them best.

You say 'why doubt it?'—you see him and me.

It is because the Mother has such grace
That if we had but faith—wherein we fail—

Whate'er we yearn for would be granted us;
Yet still we let our whims prescribe despair,

Our fancies thwart and cramp our will and power,

And, while accepting life, abjure its use.
Constance, I had abjured the hope of love

And being loved, as truly as yon palm
The hope of seeing Egypt from that plot.

Con. Heaven!
Queen. But it was so, Constance, it was so!

Men say—or do men say it? fancies say—
'Stop here, your life is set, you are grown old.

'Too late—no love for you, too late for love—

'Leave love to girls. Be queen: let Constance love.'

One takes the hint—half meets it like a child,

Ashamed at any feelings that oppose.
'Oh love, true, never think of love again!

'I am a queen: I rule, not love forsooth.'
So it goes on; so a face grows like this,

Hair like this hair, poor arms as lean as these,

Till,—nay, it does not end so, I thank God!
Con. I cannot understand—

Queen. The happier you!
Constance, I know not how it is with men:

For women (I am a woman now like you)
There is no good of life but love—but love!

What else looks good, is some shade flung from love;

Love gifts it, gives it worth. Be warned by me,

Never you cheat yourself one instant!
Love,

Give love, ask only love, and leave the rest!
O Constance, how I love you!

Con. I love you.

Queen. I do believe that all is come through you.

I took you to my heart to keep it warm
When the last chance of love seemed dead

in me;

I thought your fresh youth warmed my withered heart.

Oh, I am very old now, am I not?

Not so! it is true and it shall be true!
Con. Tell it me: let me judge if true or false.

Queen. Ah, but I fear you! you will look at me

And say, 'she's old, she's grown unlovely quite

'Who ne'er was beauteous: men want beauty still.'

Well, so I feared—the curse! so I felt sure!
Con. Be calm. And now you feel not sure, you say?

IN A BALCONY

Queen. Constance, he came,—the coming was not strange—

Do not I stand and see men come and go?
I turned a half-look from my pedestal Where I grow marble—'one young man
the more!

'He will love some one; that is nought to me;

'What would he with my marble stateliness?'

Yet this seemed somewhat worse than heretofore;

The man more gracious, youthful, like a god,

And I still older, with less flesh to change—
We two those dear extremes that long to touch.

It seemed still harder when he first began
To labour at those state-affairs, absorbed
The old way for the old end—interest.

Oh, to live with a thousand beating hearts
Around you, swift eyes, serviceable hands,
Professing they've no care but for your cause,

Thought but to help you, love but for yourself,—

And you the marble statue all the time
They praise and point at as preferred to life.

Yet leave for the first breathing woman's smile,

First dancer's, gipsy's or street baladine's!
Why, how I have ground my teeth to hear men's speech

Stified for fear it should alarm my ear,
Their gait subdued lest step should startle me,

Their eyes declined, such queendom to respect,

Their hands alert, such treasure to preserve,

While not a man of them broke rank and spoke,

Wrote me a vulgar letter all of love,
Or caught my hand and pressed it like a hand!

There have been moments, if the sentinel
Lowering his halbert to salute the queen,
Had flung it brutally and clasped my knees,

I would have stooped and kissed him with my soul.

Con. Who could have comprehended?

Queen. Ay, who—who?

Who, no one, Constance, but this one who did.

Not they, not you, not I. Even now perhaps

It comes too late—would you but tell the truth.

Con. I wait to tell it.

Queen. Well, you see, he came,

Outfaced the others, did a work this year
Exceeds in value all was ever done,

You know—it is not I who say it—all Say it. And so (a second pang and worse)
I grew aware not only of what he did,
But why so wondrously. Oh, never work
Like his was done for work's ignoble sake—

Souls need a finer aim to light and lure!
I felt, I saw, he loved—loved somebody.

And Constance, my dear Constance, do you know,

I did believe this while 'twas you he loved.

Con. Me, madam?

Queen. It did seem to me, your face Met him where'er he looked: and whom
but you

Was such a man to love? It seemed to me,
You saw he loved you, and approved his love,

And both of you were in intelligence.

You could not loiter in that garden, step Into this balcony, but I straight was stung
And forced to understand. It seemed so true,

So right, so beautiful, so like you both,
That all this work should have been done by him

Not for the vulgar hope of recompense,
But that at last—suppose, some night like this—

Borne on to claim his due reward of me,
He might say 'Give her hand and pay me so.'

And I (O Constance, you shall love me now!)

I thought, surmounting all the bitterness, —'And he shall have it. I will make her blest,

'My flower of youth, my woman's self that was,

'My happiest woman's self that might have been!

'These two shall have their joy and leave me here.'

Yes—yes!

Con. Thanks!

Queen. And the word was on my lips
When he burst in upon me. I looked to hear

A mere calm statement of his just desire
For payment of his labour. When—O heaven,

How can I tell you? lightning on my eyes
And thunder in my ears proved that first word

Which told 'twas love of me, of me, did all—

I loved me—from the first step to the last,
Loved me!

Con. You hardly saw, scarce heard him speak

Of love: what if you should mistake?

Queen. No, no—

No mistake! Ha, there shall be no mistake!

IN A BALCONY

He had not dared to hint the love he felt—
You were my reflex—(how I understood!)
He said you were the ribbon I had worn,
He kissed my hand, he looked into my eyes,

And love, love came at end of every phrase.
Love is begun; this much is come to pass:
The rest is easy. Constance, I am yours!
I will learn, I will place my life on you,
Teach me but how to keep what I have won!

Am I so old? This hair was early grey;
But joy ere now has brought hair brown again,
And joy will bring the cheek's red back, I feel.

I could sing once too; that was in my youth.

Still, when men paint me, they declare me . . . yes,

Beautiful—for the last French painter did!
I know they flatter somewhat; you are frank—

I trust you. How I loved you from the first!
Some queens would hardly seek a cousin out

And set her by their side to take the eye:
I must have felt that good would come from you.

I am not generous—like him—like you!
But he is not your lover after all:
It was not you he looked at. Saw you him?
You have not been mistaking words or looks?

He said you were the reflex of myself.
And yet he is not such a paragon
To you, to younger women who may choose

Among a thousand Norberts. Speak the truth!

You know you never named his name to me:

You know, I cannot give him up—ah God,
Not up now, even to you!

Con. Then calm yourself.

Queen. See, I am old—look here, you happy girl!

I will not play the fool, deceive—ah, whom?

'Tis all gone: put your cheek beside my cheek

And what a contrast does the moon behold!

But then I set my life upon one chance,
The last chance and the best—am I not left,
My soul, myself? All women love great men

If young or old; it is in all the tales:
Young beauties love old poets who can love—

Why should not he, the poems in my soul,
The passionate faith, the pride of sacrifice,
Life-long, death-long? I throw them at his feet.

Who cares to see the fountain's very shape,
Whether it be a Triton's or a Nymph's
That pours the foam, makes rainbows all around?

You could not praise indeed the empty conch;

But I'll pour floods of love and hide myself.
How I will love him! Cannot men love love?

Who was a queen and loved a poet once Humpbacked, a dwarf? ah, women can do that!

Well, but men too; at least, they tell you so.
They love so many women in their youth,
And even in age they all love whom they please;

And yet the best of them confide to friends
That 'tis not beauty makes the lasting love—

They spend a day with such and tire the next:

They like soul,—well then, they like phantasy,

Novelty even. Let us confess the truth,
Horrible though it be, that prejudice,
Prescription . . . curses! they will love a queen.

They will, they do: and will not, does not—he?

Con. How can he? You are wedded: 'tis a name

We know, but still a bond. Your rank remains,

His rank remains. How can he, nobly souled

As you believe and I incline to think,
Aspire to be your favourite, shame and all?

Queen. Hear her! There, there now—could she love like me?

What did I say of smooth-cheeked youth and grace?

See all it does or could do! so youth loves! Oh, tell him, Constance, you could never do

What I will—you, it was not born in! I Will drive these difficulties far and fast
As yonder mists curdling before the moon.
I'll use my light too, gloriously retrieve
My youth from its enforced calamity, Dissolve that hateful marriage, and be his.
His own in the eyes alike of God and man.

Con. You will do—dare do . . . pause on what you say!

Queen. Hear her! I thank you, sweet, for that surprise.

You have the fair face: for the soul, see mine!

I have the strong soul: let me teach you, here.

I think I have borne enough and long enough,
And patiently enough, the world remarks,

IN A BALCONY

To have my own way now, unblamed by all.

It does so happen (I rejoice for it)
This most unhopèd-for issue cuts the knot.
There's not a better way of settling claims
Than this; God sends the accident express:
And were it for my subjects' good, no more,

'Twere best thus ordered. I am thankful now,

Mute, passive, acquiescent. I receive,
And bless God simply, or should almost fear

To walk so smoothly to my ends at last.
Why, how I baffle obstacles, spurn fate!
How strong I am! Could Norbert see me now!

Con. Let me consider. It is all too strange.

Queen. You, Constance, learn of me;
do you, like me!

You are young, beautiful: my own, best girl,

You will have many lovers, and love one—
Light hair, not hair like Norbert's, to suit yours:

Taller than he is, since yourself are tall.
Love him, like me! Give all away to him;
Think never of yourself; throw by your pride,

Hope, fear,—your own good as you saw it once,

And love him simply for his very self.
Remember, I (and what am I to you?)
Would give up all for one, leave throne, lose life,

Do all but just unlove him! He loves me.
Con. He shall.

Queen. You, step inside my inmost heart!

Give me your own heart: let us have one heart!

I'll come to you for counsel; 'this he says,
'This he does; what should this amount to, pray?

'Beseech you, change it into current coin!
'Is that worth kisses? Shall I please him there?'

And then we'll speak in turn of you—what else?

Your love, according to your beauty's worth,

For you shall have some noble love, all gold:

Whom choose you? we will get him at your choice.

—Constance, I leave you. Just a minute since,

I felt as I must die or be alone
Breathing my soul into an ear like yours:
Now, I would face the world with my new life,

Wear my new crown. I'll walk around the rooms,

And then come back and tell you how it feels.

How soon a smile of God can change the world!

How we are made for happiness—how work

Grows play, adversity a winning fight!
True, I have lost so many years: what then!

Many remain: God has been very good.
You, stay here! 'Tis as different from

dreams,
From the mind's cold calm estimate of bliss,

As these stone statues from the flesh and blood.

The comfort thou hast caused mankind,
God's moon!

[She goes out, leaving CONSTANCE.
Dance-music from within.

NORBERT enters.

Nor. Well? we have but one minute and one word!

Con. I am yours, Norbert!
Nor. Yes, mine.

Con. Not till now!
You were mine. Now I give myself to you.

Nor. Constance?
Con. Your own! I know

the thrifter way
Of giving—haply, 'tis the wiser way.

Meaning to give a treasure, I might dole Coin after coin out (each, as that were all,

With a new largess still at each despair)
And force you keep in sight the deed, pre-

serve Exhaustless till the end my part and yours.

My giving and your taking; both our joys Dying together. Is it the wiser way?

I choose the simpler; I give all at once.
Know what you have to trust to, trade

upon!
Use it, abuse it,—anything but think

Hereafter, 'Had I known she loved me so,
'And what my means, I might have thriven with it.'

This is your means. I give you all myself.

Nor. I take you and thank God.
Con. Look on through years!

We cannot kiss, a second day like this;
Else were this earth no earth.

Nor. With this day's heat
We shall go on through years of cold.

Con. So, best!
—I try to see those years—I think I see.

You walk quick and new warmth comes;
you look back

And lay all to the first glow—not sit down
For ever brooding on a day like this

While seeing embers whiten and love die.
Yes, love lives best in its effect; and mine,

Full in its own life, yearns to live in yours.
Nor. Just so. I take and know you all

at once.

IN A BALCONY

Your soul is disengaged so easily,
Your face is there, I know you; give me
time,
Let me be proud and think you shall know
me.

My soul is slower: in a life I roll
The minute out whereto you condense
yours—

The whole slow circle round you I must
move,

To be just you. I look to a long life
To decompose this minute, prove its
worth.

'Tis the sparks' long succession one by
one

Shall show you, in the end, what fire was crammed

In that mere stone you struck: how could
you know,

If it lay ever unproved in your sight,
As now my heart lies? your own warmth would hide

Its coldness, were it cold.

Con. But how prove, how?

Nor. Prove in my life, you ask?

Con. Quick, Norbert—how?

Nor. That's easy told. I count life just a stuff

To try the soul's strength on, educe the
man.

Who keeps one end in view makes all things serve.

As with the body—he who hurls a lance Or heaps up stone on stone, shows strength
alike:

So must I seize and task all means to prove
And show this soul of mine, you crown as yours,

And justify us both.

Con. Could you write books,
Paint pictures! One sits down in poverty And writes or paints, with pity for the rich.

Nor. And loves one's painting and one's writing, then,

And not one's mistress! All is best, believe,

And we best as no other than we are.
We live, and they experiment on life—

Those poets, painters, all who stand aloof
To overlook the farther. Let us be

The thing they look at! I might take your
face

And write of it and paint it—to what end?
For whom? what pale dictatress in the air

Feeds, smiling sadly, her fine ghost-like
form

With earth's real blood and breath, the beauteous life

She makes despised for ever? You are
mine,

Made for me, not for others in the world,
Nor yet for that which I should call my art,

The cold calm power to see how fair you
look.

I come to you; I leave you not, to write
Or paint. You are, I am: let Rubens there Paint us!

Con. So, best!

Nor. I understand your soul.

You live, and rightly sympathize with life,
With action, power, success. This way is
straight;

And time were short beside, to let me
change

The craft my childhood learnt: my craft shall serve.

Men set me here to subjugate, enclose, Manure their barren lives, and force thence fruit

First for themselves, and afterward for me
In the due tithe; the task of some one soul, Through ways of work appointed by the
world.

I am not bid create—men see no star Transfiguring my brow to warrant that—But find and bind and bring to bear their wills.

So I began: to-night sees how I end.

What if it see, too, power's first outbreak
here

Amid the warmth, surprise and sympathy,
And instincts of the heart that teach the
head?

What if the people have discerned at length

The dawn of the next nature, novel brain Whose will they venture in the place of
theirs,

Whose work, they trust, shall find them as novel ways

To untied heights which yet he only sees?
I felt it when you kissed me. See this

Queen,

This people—in our phrase, this mass of
men—

See how the mass lies passive to my hand
Now that my hand is plastic, with you by

To make the muscles iron! Oh, an end Shall crown this issue as this crowns the

first!

My will be on this people! then, the strain,
The grappling of the potter with his clay,

The long uncertain struggle,—the success
And consummation of the spirit-work,

Some vase shaped to the curl of the god's
lip,

While rounded fair for human sense to see
The Graces in a dance men recognize

With turbulent applause and laughs of
heart!

So triumph ever shall renew itself;

Ever shall end in efforts higher yet,

Ever begin . . .

Con. I ever helping?

Nor. Thus!

[As he embraces her, the QUEEN enters.

Con. Hist, madam! So have I performed my part.

You see your gratitude's true decency, Norbert? A little slow in seeing it!

Begin, to end the sooner! What's a kiss? Nor. Constance?

Con. Why, must I teach it you again?

You want a witness to your dulness, sir? What was I saying these ten minutes long?

Then I repeat—when some young handsome man

Like you has acted out a part like yours, Is pleased to fall in love with one beyond,

So very far beyond him, as he says— So hopelessly in love that but to speak

Would prove him mad,—he thinks judiciously,

And makes some insignificant good soul, Like me, his friend, adviser, confidant,

And very stalking-horse to cover him In following after what he dares not face.

When his end's gained—(sir, do you understand?)

When she, he dares not face, has loved him first,

—May I not say so, madam?—tops his hope,

And overpasses so his wildest dream, With glad consent of all, and most of her

The confidant who brought the same about—

Why, in the moment when such joy explodes,

I do hold that the merest gentleman Will not start rudely from the stalking-horse, Dismiss it with a 'There, enough of you!' Forget it, show his back unmannerly:

But like a liberal heart will rather turn And say, 'A tingling time of hope was

ours;

'Betwixt the fears and falterings, we two lived

'A chanceful time in waiting for the prize: The confidant, the Constance, served not ill.

'And though I shall forget her in due time, Her use being answered now, as reason bids,

'Nay as herself bids from her heart of hearts,—

'Still, she has rights, the first thanks go to her,

'The first good praise goes to the prosperous tool,

'And the first—which is the last—rewarding kiss.'

Nor. Constance, it is a dream—ah, see, you smile!

Con. So, now his part being properly performed,

Madam, I turn to you and finish mine As duly; I do justice in my turn.

Yes, madam, he has loved you—long and well;

He could not hope to tell you so—'twas I Who served to prove your soul accessible,

I led his thoughts on, drew them to their place

When they had wandered else into despair, And kept love constant toward its natural

aim.

Enough, my part is played; you stoop half-way

And meet us royally and spare our fears: 'Tis like yourself. He thanks you, so do I.

Take him—with my full heart! my work is praised

By what comes of it. Be you happy, both! Yourself—the only one on earth who can—

Do all for him, much more than a mere heart

Which though warm is not useful in its warmth

As the silk vesture of a queen! fold that Around him gently, tenderly. For him—

For him,—he knows his own part! Nor. Have you done?

I take the jest at last. Should I speak now? Was yours the wager, Constance, foolish

child,

Or did you but accept it? Well—at least You lose by it.

Con. Nay, madam, 'tis your turn! Restrain him still from speech a little

more,

And make him happier as more confident! Pity him, madam, he is timid yet!

Mark, Norbert! Do not shrink now! Here I yield

My whole right in you to the Queen, observe!

With her go put in practice the great schemes

You team with, follow the career else closed—

Be all you cannot be except by her! Behold her!—Madam, say for pity's sake

Anything—frankly say you love him! Else

He'll not believe it: there's more earnest in His fear than you conceive: I know the man! Nor. I know the woman somewhat, and confess

I thought she had jested better: she begins To overcharge her part. I gravely wait

Your pleasure, madam: where is my reward?

Queen. Norbert, this wild girl (whom I recognize

Scarce more than you do, in her fancy-fit, Eccentric speech and variable mirth,

Not very wise perhaps and somewhat bold, Yet suitable, the whole night's work being strange)

IN A BALCONY

—May still be right: I may do well to speak
And make authentic what appears a dream To even myself. For, what she says, is
true:

Yes, Norbert—what you spoke just now of love,

Devotion, stirred no novel sense in me,
But justified a warmth felt long before.

Yes, from the first—I loved you, I shall
say:

Strange! but I do grow stronger, now 'tis
said.

Your courage helps mine: you did well to
speak

To-night, the night that crowns your twelvemonths' toil:

But still I had not waited to discern Your heart so long, believe me! From the first

The source of so much zeal was almost
plain,

In absence even of your own words just
now

Which hazarded the truth. 'Tis very
strange,

But takes a happy ending—in your love
Which mine meets: be it so! as you chose
me,

So I choose you.

Nor. And worthily you choose.
I will not be unworthy your esteem,

No, madam. I do love you; I will meet Your nature, now I know it. This was
well.

I see,—you dare and you are justified:
But none had ventured such experiment,

Less versed than you in nobleness of heart,
Less confident of finding such in me.

I joy that thus you test me ere you grant
The dearest richest beauteousest and best
Of women to my arms: 'tis like yourself.

So—back again into my part's set words—
Devotion to the uttermost is yours,

But no, you cannot, madam, even you,
Create in me the love our Constance does.

Or—something truer to the tragic
phrase—

Not yon magnolia-bell superb with scent
Invites a certain insect—that's myself—

But the small eye-flower nearer to the ground.

I take this lady.

Con. Stay—not hers, the trap—Stay, Norbert—that mistake were worst
of all!

He is too cunning, madam! It was I,
I, Norbert, who . . .

Nor. You, was it, Constance?

Then.

But for the grace of this divinest hour
Which gives me you, I might not pardon
here!

I am the Queen's; she only knows my
brain:

She may experiment upon my heart
And I instruct her too by the result.

But you, sweet, you who know me, who so long

Have told my heart-beats over, held my
life

In those white hands of yours,—it is not
well!

Con. Tush! I have said it, did I not say
it all?

The life, for her—the heart-beats, for her
sake!

Nor. Enough! my cheek grows red, I think. Your test?

There's not the meanest woman in the
world,

Not she I least could love in all the
world,

Whom, did she love me, had love proved
itself,

I dare insult as you insult me now.
Constance, I could say, if it must be said,

'Take back the soul you offer, I keep
mine!'

But—'Take the soul still quivering on your hand,

'The soul so offered, which I cannot use,
'And, please you, give it to some playful
friend,

'For—what's the trifle he requites me
with?'

I, tempt a woman, to amuse a man,
That two may mock her heart if it succumb?

No: fearing God and standing 'neath his
heaven,

I would not dare insult a woman so,
Were she the meanest woman in the world,

And he, I cared to please, ten emperors!

Con. Norbert!

Nor. I love once as I live but
once.

What case is this to think or talk about?
I love you. Would it mend the case at all

If such a step as this killed love in me?
Your part were done: account to God for
it!

But mine—could murdered love get up
again,

And kneel to whom you please to designate,

And make you mirth? It is too horrible.
You did not know this, Constance? now
you know

That body and soul have each one life, but one:

And here's my love, here, living, at your feet.

Con. See the Queen! Norbert—this one more last word—

If thus you have taken jest for earnest—
thus

Loved me in earnest . . .

Nor. Ah, no jest holds here!

IN A BALCONY

Where is the laughter in which jests break
up,
And what this horror that grows palpable?
Madam—why grasp you thus the balcony?
Have I done ill? Have I not spoken
truth?
How could I other? Was it not your test,
To try me, what my love for Constance
meant?
Madam, your royal soul itself approves,
The first, that I should choose thus! so one takes
A beggar,—asks him, what would buy his
child?
And then approves the expected laugh of scorn Returned as something noble from the rags.
Speak, Constance, I'm the beggar! Ha, what's this?
You two glare each at each like panthers
now.
Constance, the world fades; only you stand there!
You did not, in to-night's wild whirl of
things,
Sell me—your soul of souls, for any price?
No—no—'tis easy to believe in you!
Was it your love's mad trial to o'erstop Mine by this vain self-sacrifice? well,
still—
Though I might curse, I love you. I am
love

And cannot change: love's self is at your feet!

[The QUEEN goes out.]

Con. Feel my heart; let it die against your own!

Nor. Against my own. Explain not;
let this be!

This is life's height.

Con. Yours, yours, yours!

Nor. You and I—

Why care by what meanders we are here
I' the centre of the labyrinth? Men have died

Trying to find this place, which we have
found.

Con. Found, found!

Nor. Sweet, never fear
what she can do!

We are past harm now.

Con. On the breast of God.

I thought of men—as if you were a man.
Tempting him with a crown!

Nor. This must end here:

It is too perfect.

Con. There's the music stopped.

What measured heavy tread? It is one blaze

About me and within me.

Nor. Oh, some death

Will run its sudden finger round this spark
And sever us from the rest!

Con. And so do well.

Now the doors open.

Nor. 'Tis the guard comes.

Con. Kiss!

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ

1864

JAMES LEE'S WIFE

JAMES LEE'S WIFE SPEAKS AT THE WINDOW

I

AH, Love, but a day
And the world has changed!
The sun's away,
And the bird estranged;
The wind has dropped,
And the sky's deranged:
Summer has stopped.

II

Look in my eyes!
Wilt thou change too?
Should I fear surprise?
Shall I find aught new
In the old and dear,
In the good and true,
With the changing year?

III

Thou art a man,
But I am thy love.
For the lake, its swan;
For the dell, its dove;
And for thee—(oh, haste!)
Me, to bend above,
Me, to hold embraced.

II

BY THE FIRESIDE

I

Is all our fire of shipwreck wood,
Oak and pine?
Oh, for the ill half-understood,
The dim dead woe
Long ago
Befallen this bitter coast of France!
Well, poor sailors took their chance;
I take mine.

JAMES LEE'S WIFE

II

A ruddy shaft our fire must shoot
O'er the sea:
Do sailors eye the casement—mute,
Drenched and stark,
From their bark—
And envy, gnash their teeth for hate
O' the warm safe house and happy freight —Thee and me?

III

God help you, sailors, at your need!
Spare the curse!
For some ships, safe in port indeed,
Rot and rust,
Run to dust,
All through worms i' the wood, which crept,
Gnawed our hearts out while we slept:
That is worse.

IV

Who lived here before us two?
Old-world pairs.
Did a woman ever—would I knew!—
Watch the man
With whom began Love's voyage full-sail,—(now, gnash your teeth!)
When planks start, open hell beneath Unawares?

III

IN THE DOORWAY

I

THE swallow has set her six young on the rail,
And looks sea-ward:
The water's in stripes like a snake, olive-pale
To the leeward,—
On the weather-side, black, spotted white with the wind.
'Good fortune departs, and disaster's behind,'—
Hark, the wind with its wants and its infinite wail!

II

Our fig-tree, that leaned for the saltness, has furled
Her five fingers,
Each leaf like a hand opened wide to the
world
Where there lingers
No glint of the gold, Summer sent for her
sake:
How the vines writhe in rows, each impaled on its stake!
My heart shrivels up and my spirit shrinks curled.

III

Yet here are we two; we have love, house
enough,
With the field there,
This house of four rooms, that field red and rough,
Though it yield there,
For the rabbit that robs, scarce a blade or a bent;
If a magpie alight now, it seems an event;
And they both will be gone at November's rebuff.

IV

But why must cold spread? but wherefore bring change
To the spirit, God meant should mate his with an infinite range,
And inherit
His power to put life in the darkness and cold?
Oh, live and love worthily, bear and be bold!
Whom Summer made friends of, let Winter estrange!

ALONG THE BEACH

I

I WILL be quiet and talk with you,
And reason why you are wrong.
You wanted my love—is that much true?
And so I did love, so I do:
What has come of it all along?

II

I took you—how could I otherwise?
For a world to me, and more;
For all, love greatens and glorifies
Till God's a-glow, to the loving eyes,
In what was mere earth before.

III

Yes, earth—yes, mere ignoble earth!
Now do I mis-state, mistake?
Do I wrong your weakness and call it
worth?
Expect all harvest, dread no dearth,
Seal my sense up for your sake?

IV

Oh, Love, Love, no, Love! not so, indeed!
You were just weak earth, I knew:
With much in you waste, with many a
weed,
'And plenty of passions run to seed,
But a little good grain too.

V

And such as you were, I took you for mine:
Did not you find me yours,
To watch the olive and wait the vine,
And wonder when rivers of oil and wine
Would flow, as the Book assures?

VI

Well, and if none of these good things
came,
What did the failure prove?
The man was my whole world, all the
same,
With his flowers to praise or his weeds to
blame,
And, either or both, to love.

VII

Yet this turns now to a fault—there! there!
That I do love, watch too long,
And wait too well, and weary and wear;
And 'tis all an old story, and my despair
Fit subject for some new song:

VIII

How the light, light love, he has wings to fly
'At suspicion of a bond:
'My wisdom has bidden your pleasure
good-bye,
'Which will turn up next in a laughing eye,
'And why should you look beyond?'

V

ON THE CLIFF

I

I LEANED on the turf,
I looked at a rock
Left dry by the surf;
For the turf, to call it grass were to mock:
Dead to the roots, so deep was done
The work of the summer sun.

II

And the rock lay flat
As an anvil's face:
No iron like that!
Baked dry; of a weed, of a shell, no trace:
Sunshine outside, but ice at the core,
Death's altar by the lone shore.

III

On the turf, sprang gay
With his films of blue,
No cricket, I'll say,
But a warhorse, barded and chanfroned
too,
The gift of a quixote-mage to his knight,
Real fairy, with wings all right.

IV

On the rock, they scorch
Like a drop of fire
From a brandished torch,
Fall two red fans of a butterfly:
No turf, no rock: in their ugly stead,
See, wonderful blue and red!

V

Is it not so
With the minds of men?
The level and low,
The burnt and bare, in themselves; but
then
With such a blue and red grace, not theirs,—
Love settling unawares!

VI

READING A BOOK, UNDER THE CLIFF

I

'Still ailing, Wind? Wilt be appeased or
no?
'Which needs the other's office, thou or I?
'Dost want to be disburthened of a woe,
'And can, in truth, my voice untie
'Its links, and let it go?

II

'Art thou a dumb wronged thing that would be righted,
'Entrusting thus thy cause to me? Forbear!
'No tongue can mend such pleadings;
faith, requited
'With falsehood,—love, at last aware
'Of scorn,—hopes, early blighted,—

III

'We have them; but I know not any tone
'So fit as thine to falter forth a sorrow:
'Dost think men would go mad without a moan,
'If they knew any way to borrow
'A pathos like thy own?

'Which sigh wouldst mock, of all the sighs? The one
'So long escaping from lips starved and
blue,
'That lasts while on her pallet-bed the nun
'Stretches her length; her foot comes
through
'The straw she shivers on;

V

'You had not thought she was so tall: and
spent,
'Her shrunk lids open, her lean fingers
shut
'Close, close, their sharp and livid nails indent
'The clammy palm; then all is mute:
'That way, the spirit went.

JAMES LEE'S WIFE

VI

'Or wouldst thou rather that I understand
'Thy will to help me?—like the dog I
found
'Once, pacing sad this solitary strand,
'Who would not take my food, poor hound,
'But whined and licked my hand.'

VII

All this, and more, comes from some young man's pride
Of power to see,—in failure and mistake,
Relinquishment, disgrace, on every side,— Merely examples for his sake,
Helps to his path untried:

VIII

Instances he must—simply recognize?
Oh, more than so!—must, with a learner's zeal,
Make doubly prominent, twice emphasize,
By added touches that reveal
The god in babe's disguise.

IX

Oh, he knows what defeat means, and the
rest!
Himself the undefeated that shall be:
Failure, disgrace, he flings them you to test,—
His triumph, in eternity
Too plainly manifest!

X

Whence, judge if he learn forthwith what the wind
Means in its moaning—by the happy
prompt
Instinctive way of youth, I mean; for kind Calm years, exacting their accopt
Of pain, mature the mind:

XI

And some midsummer morning, at the lull
Just about daybreak, as he looks across
A sparkling foreign country, wonderful
To the sea's edge for gloom and gloss,
Next minute must annul,—

XII

Then, when the wind begins among the vines,
So low, so low, what shall it say but this?
'Here is the change beginning, here the lines
'Circumscribe beauty, set to bliss
'The limit time assigns.'

XIII

Nothing can be as it has been before;
Better, so call it, only not the same.
To draw one beauty into our hearts' core,
And keep it changeless! such our claim,
So answered,—Never more!

XIV

Simple? Why this is the old woe o' the
world;
Tune, to whose rise and fall we live and
die.
Rise with it, then! Rejoice that man is hurled
From change to change unceasingly,
His soul's wings never furled!

XV

That's a new question; still replies the
fact,
Nothing endures: the wind moans, saying so;
We moan in acquiescence: there's life's pact,
Perhaps probation—do I know?
God does: endure his act!

XVI

Only, for man, how bitter not to grave
On his soul's hands' palms one fair good wise thing
Just as he grasped it! For himself, death's
wave;
While time first washes—ah, the stinging!—
O'er all he'd sink to save.

VII

AMONG THE ROCKS

I

Oh, good gigantic smile o' the brown: old
earth,
This autumn morning! How he sets his bones
To bask i' the sun, and thrusts out knees and feet
For the ripple to run over in its mirth;
Listening the while, where on the heap of stones
The white breast of the sea-lark twitters sweet.

II

That is the doctrine, simple, ancient, true;
'Such is life's trial, as old earth smiles and knows.
If you loved only what were worth your
love,
'Love were clear gain, and wholly well for
you:
Make the low nature better by your throes!
Give earth yourself, go up for gain above!

VIII

BESIDE THE DRAWING BOARD

I

'As like as a Hand to another Hand!'
Whoever said that foolish thing,
Could not have studied to understand
The counsels of God in fashioning,
Out of the infinite love of his heart,
This Hand, whose beauty I praise, apart
From the world of wonder left to praise,
If I tried to learn the other ways
Of love in its skill, or love in its power.
'As like as a Hand to another Hand':
Who said that, 'never took his stand,
Found and followed, like me, an hour,
The beauty in this,—how free, how fine
To fear, almost,—of the limit-line!
As I looked at this, and learned and drew,
Drew and learned, and looked again,
While fast the happy minutes flew,
Its beauty mounted into my brain,
And a fancy seized me; I was fain
To efface my work, begin anew,
Kiss what before I only drew;
Ay, laying the red chalk 'twixt my lips,
With soul to help if the mere lips failed,
I kissed all right where the drawing ailed,
Kissed fast the grace that somehow slips
Still from one's soulless finger-tips.

II

'Tis a clay cast, the perfect thing,
From Hand live once, dead long ago:
Princess-like it wears the ring
To fancy's eye, by which we know
That here at length a master found
His match, a proud lone soul its mate,
As soaring genius sank to ground,
And pencil could not emulate
The beauty in this,—how free, how fine
To fear almost!—of the limit-line.
Long ago the god, like me
The worm, learned, each in our degree:
Looked and loved, learned and drew,
Drew and learned and loved again,
While fast the happy minutes flew,
Till beauty mounted into his brain
And on the finger which outvied
His art he placed the ring that's there,
Still by fancy's eye descried,
In token of a marriage rare:
For him on earth, his art's despair,
For him in heaven, his soul's fit bride.

III

Little girl with the poor coarse hand
I turned from to a cold clay cast—
I have my lesson, understand
The worth of flesh and blood at last.
Nothing but beauty in a Hand?

Because he could not change the hue,
Mend the lines and make them true
To this which met his soul's demand,—
Would Da Vinci turn from you?
I hear him laugh my woes to scorn—
'The fool forsooth is all forlorn
'Because the beauty, she thinks best,
'Lived long ago or was never born,—
'Because no beauty bears the test
'In this rough peasant Hand! Confessed!
"Art is null and study void!"
'So sayest thou? So said not I,
'Who threw the faulty pencil by,
'And years instead of hours employed,
'Learning the veritable use
'Of flesh and bone and nerve beneath
'Lines and hue of the outer sheath,
'If haply I might reproduce
'One motive of the powers profuse,
'Flesh and bone and nerve that make
'The poorest coarsest human hand
'An object worthy to be scanned
'A whole life long for their sole sake.
'Shall earth and the cramped moment-
space
'Yield the heavenly crowning grace?
'Now the parts and then the whole!
'Who art thou, with stunted soul
'And stunted body, thus to cry
"I love,—shall that be life's strait dole?"
"I must live beloved or die!"
'This peasant hand that spins the wool
'And bakes the bread, why lives it on,
'Poor and coarse with beauty gone,—
'What use survives the beauty?' Fool!

Go, little girl with the poor coarse hand!
I have my lesson, shall understand.

IX

ON DECK

I

THERE is nothing to remember in me,
Nothing I ever said with a grace,
Nothing I did that you care to see,
Nothing I was that deserves a place
In your mind, now I leave you, set you free.

II

Conceded! In turn, concede to me,
Such things have been as a mutual
flame.
Your soul's locked fast; but, love for a key,
You might let it loose, till I grew the
same
In your eyes, as in mine you stand: strange plea!

III

For then, then, what would it matter to me
That I was the harsh ill-favoured one?

JAMES LEE'S WIFE

We both should be like as pea and pea;
It was ever so since the world begun:
So, let me proceed with my reverie.

IV

How strange it were if you had all me,
As I have all you in my heart and brain,
You, whose least word brought gloom or
glee,

Who never lifted the hand in vain—
Will hold mine yet, from over the sea!

V

Strange, if a face, when you thought of me,
Rose like your own face present now,
With eyes as dear in their due degree,
Much such a mouth, and as bright a
brow,
Till you saw yourself, while you cried 'Tis
She!'

VI

Well, you may, you must set down to me
Love that was life, life that was love;
A tenure of breath at your lips' decree,
A passion to stand as your thoughts approve,
A rapture to fall where your foot might be.

But did one touch of such love for me
Come in a word or a look of yours,
Whose words and looks will, circling, flee Round me and round while life endures,—
Could I fancy 'As I feel, thus feels he';

VIII

Why, fade you might to a thing like me,
And your hair grow these coarse hanks of hair,
Your skin, this bark of a gnarled tree,—
You might turn myself!—should I know or care
When I should be dead of joy, James Lee?

GOLD HAIR:

A STORY OF PORNIC

I

OH, the beautiful girl, too white,
Who lived at Pornic, down by the sea,
Just where the sea and the Loire unite!
And a boasted name in Brittany
She bore, which I will not write.

II

Too white, for the flower of life is red;
Her flesh was the soft seraphic screen
Of a soul that is meant (her parents said)
To just see earth, and hardly be seen,
And blossom in heaven instead.

III

Yet earth saw one thing, one how fair!
One grace that grew to its full on earth:

Smiles might be sparse on her cheek so sparse,
And her waist want half a girdle's girth,
But she had her great gold hair.

IV

Hair, such a wonder of flax and floss, Freshness and fragrance—floods of it,
too!
Gold, did I say? Nay, gold's mere dross:
Here, Life smiled, 'Think what I meant
to do!'

And Love sighed, 'Fancy my loss!'

V

So, when she died, it was scarce more
strange
Than that, when delicate evening dies,
And you follow its spent sun's pallid range, There's a shoot of colour startles the skies

With sudden, violent change,—

VI

That, while the breath was nearly to seek,
As they put the little cross to her lips,
She changed; a spot came out on her
cheek,

A spark from her eye in mid-eclipse,
And she broke forth, 'I must speak!'

VII

'Not my hair!' made the girl her moan—
'All the rest is gone or to go;
'But the last, last grace, my all, my own,
'Let it stay in the grave, that the ghosts may know!
'Leave my poor gold hair alone!'

VIII

The passion thus vented, dead lay she;
Her parents sobbed their worst on that;
All friends joined in, nor observed degree:
For indeed the hair was to wonder at,
As it spread—not flowing free,

IX

But curled around her brow, like a crown,
And coiled beside her cheeks, like a cap,
And calmed about her neck—ay, down
To her breast, pressed flat, without a gap
I' the gold, it reached her gown.

X

All kissed that face, like a silver wedge
'Mid the yellow wealth, nor disturbed its hair:
E'en the priest allowed death's privilege,
As he planted the crucifix with care
On her breast, 'twixt edge and edge.

XI

And thus was she buried, inviolate
Of body and soul, in the very space

By the altar; keeping saintly state

In Pornic church, for her pride of race,
Pure life and piteous fate.

XII

And in after-time would your fresh tear
fall,

Though your mouth might twitch with a dubious smile,
As they told you of gold, both robe and
pall,

How she prayed them leave it alone
awhile,
So it never was touched at all.

XIII

Years flew; this legend grew at last

The life of the lady; all she had done,
All been, in the memories fading fast

Of lover and friend, was summed in one Sentence survivors passed:

XIV

To wit, she was meant for heaven, not,
earth;

Had turned an angel before the time:
Yet, since she was mortal, in such dearth
Of frailty, all you could count a crime
Was—she knew her gold hair's worth.

XV

At little pleasant Pornic church,
It chanced, the pavement wanted repair,

Was taken to pieces: left in the lurch,
A certain sacred space lay bare,
And the boys began research.

XVI

'Twas the space where our sires would lay a saint,

A benefactor,—a bishop, suppose,
A baron with armour-adornments quaint,
Dame with chased ring and jewelled
rose,

Things sanctity saves from taint;

XVII

So we come to find them in after-days

When the corpse is presumed to have done with gauds.

Of use to the living, in many ways:

For the boys get pelf, and the town applauds,

And the church deserves the praise.

XVIII

They grubbed with a will; and at length—

O cor

Humanum, pectora cæca, and the rest!—
They found—no gaud they were prying
for,

No ring, no rose, but—who would have guessed?—

A double Louis-d'or!

XIX

Here was a case for the priest: he heard,
Marked, inwardly digested, laid Finger on nose, smiled, 'There's a bird
'Chirps in my ear': then, 'Bring a spade,
'Dig deeper!'—he gave the word.

XX

And lo, when they came to the coffin-lid,
Or rotten planks which composed it
once,

Why, there lay the girl's skull wedged amid
A mint of money, it served for the nonce
To hold in its hair-heaps hid!

XXI

Hid there? Why? Could the girl be wont (She the stainless soul) to treasure up
Money, earth's trash and heaven's affront?
Had a spider found out the communion-
cup,

Was a toad in the christening-font?

XXII

Truth is truth: too true it was.
Gold! She hoarded and hugged it first,
Longed for it, leaned o'er it, loved it—
alas—

Till the humour grew to a head and
burst,
And she cried, at the final pass,—

XXIII

'Talk not of God, my heart is stone!
'Nor lover nor friend—be gold for both!
'Gold I lack; and, my all, my own,
'It shall hide in my hair. I scarce die loth
'If they let my hair alone!'

XXIV

Louis-d'or, some six times five,
And duly double, every piece.
Now do you see? With the priest to thrive,
With parents preventing her soul's release
By kisses that kept alive,—

XXV

With heaven's gold gates about to ope,
With friends' praise, gold-like, lingering
still,

An instinct had bidden the girl's hand gripe

For gold, the true sort—'Gold in heaven, if you will;
'But I keep earth's too, I hope.'

XXVI

Enough! The priest took the grave's grim yield:

The parents, they eyed that price of sin
As if thirty pieces lay revealed

On the place to bury strangers in,
The hideous Potter's Field.

GOLD HAIR

XXVII

But the priest bethought him: "Milk that's spilt"
'—You know the adage! Watch and
pray!
'Saints tumble to earth with so slight a tilt!
'It would build a new altar; that, we
may!
And the altar therewith was built.

XXVIII

Why I deliver this horrible verse?
As the text of the sermon, which now
I preach:
Evil or good may be better or worse
In the human heart, but the mixture of
each
Is a marvel and a curse.

XXIX

The candid incline to surmise of late
That the Christian faith proves false, I
find;
For our Essays-and-Reviews' debate
Begins to tell on the public mind,
And Colenso's words have weight:

XXX

I still, to suppose it true, for my part,
See reasons and reasons; this, to begin:
'Tis the faith that launched point-blank her dart
At the head of a lie—taught Original
Sin,
The Corruption of Man's Heart.

THE WORST OF IT

I

WOULD it were I had been false, not you!
I that am nothing, not you that are all:
I, never the worse for a touch or two
On my speckled hide; not you, the pride
Of the day, my swan, that a first fleck's fall
On her wonder of white must unswan, undo!

II

I had dipped in life's struggle and, out
again,
Bore specks of it here, there, easy to see,
When I found my swan and the cure was
plain;
The dull turned bright as I caught your
white
On my bosom: you saved me—saved in,
vain
If you ruined yourself, and all through me!

III

Yes, all through the speckled beast that I
am,
Who taught you to stoop; you gave me
yourself,

And bound your soul by the vows that damn:
Since on better thought you break, as you ought,
Vows—words, no angel set down, some elf
Mistook,—for an oath, an epigram!

IV

Yes, might I judge you, here were my heart,
And a hundred its like, to treat as you pleased!
I choose to be yours, for my proper part,
Yours, leave or take, or mar me or
make;
If I acquiesce, why should you be teased With the conscience-prick and the memory-smart?

V

But what will God say? Oh, my sweet,
Think, and be sorry you did this thing Though earth were unworthy to feel your
feet,
'There's a heaven above may deserve your love:
Should you forfeit heaven for a snapt gold ring
And a promise broke, were it just or meet?

VI

And I to have tempted you! I, who tired Your soul, no doubt, till it sank! Unwise,
I loved and was lowly, loved and aspired,
Loved, grieving or glad, till I made you
mad,
And you meant to have hated and despised—
Whereas, you deceived me nor inquired!

VII

She, ruined? How? No heaven for her?
Crowns to give, and none for the brow
That looked like marble and smelt like myrrh?
Shall the robe be worn, and the palm-branch borne,
And she go graceless, she graced now
Beyond all saints, as themselves aver?

VIII

Hardly! That must be understood!
The earth is your place of penance, then;
And what will it prove? I desire your
good,
But, plot as I may, I can find no way How a blow should fall, such as falls on
men,
Nor prove too much for your womanhood.

IX

It will come, I suspect, at the end of life,
When you walk alone, and review the
past;

THE WORST OF IT

And I, who so long shall have done with
strife,
And journeyed my stage and earned my wage
And retired as was right,—I am called at
last
When the devil stabs you, to lend the knife.

x

He stabs for the minute of trivial wrong,
Nor the other hours are able to save,
The happy, that lasted my whole life long:
For a promise broke, not for first words
spoke,
The true, the only, that turn my grave
To a blaze of joy and a crash of song.

xii

Witness beforehand! Off I trip
On a safe path gay through the flowers you flung:
My very name made great by your lip,
And my heart a-glow with the good I
know
Of a perfect year when we both were young,
And I tasted the angels' fellowship.

xiii

And witness, moreover . . . Ah, but wait!
I spy the loop whence an arrow shoots!
It may be for yourself, when you meditate,
That you grieve—for slain ruth, murdered truth.
'Though falsehood escape in the end, what boots?
'How truth would have triumphed!'— you sigh too late.

xiii

Ay, who would have triumphed like you,
I say!
Well, it is lost now; well, you must bear,
Abide and grow fit for a better day:
You should hardly grudge, could I be your judge!
But hush! For you, can be no despair:
There's amends: 'tis a secret: hope and pray!

xiv

For I was true at least—oh, true enough!
And, Dear, truth is not as good as it
seems!
Commend me to conscience! Idle stuff!
Much help is in mine, as I mope and pine,
And skulk through day, and scowl in my
dreams
At my swan's obtaining the crow's rebuff.

xv

Men tell me of truth now—'False!' I cry:
Of beauty—'A mask, friend! Look beneath!'

We take our own method, the devil and I,
With pleasant and fair and wise and rare:
And the best we wish to what lives, is—
death;
Which even in wishing, perhaps we lie!

xvi

Far better commit a fault and have done—
As you, Dear!—for ever; and choose the pure,
And look where the healing waters run,
And strive and strain to be good again,
And a place in the other world ensue,
All glass and gold, with God for its sun.

xvii

Misery! What shall I say or do?
I cannot advise, or, at least, persuade:
Most like, you are glad you deceived me
—rue
No whit of the wrong: you endured too
long,
Have done no evil and want no aid,
Will live the old life out and chance the new.

xviii

And your sentence is written all the same,
And I can do nothing,—pray, perhaps:
But somehow the world pursues its
game,—
If I pray, if I curse,—for better or worse:
And my faith is torn to a thousand scraps,
And my heart feels ice while my words breathe flame.

xix

Dear, I look from my hiding-place.
Are you still so fair? Have you still the
eyes?
Be happy! Add but the other grace,
Be good! Why want what the angels
vaunt?
I knew you once: but in Paradise,
If we meet, I will pass nor turn my face.

DÏS ALITER VISUM; OR, LE BYRON DE NOS JOURS

i

STOP, let me have the truth of that!
Is that all true? I say, the day
Ten years ago when both of us
Met on a morning, friends—as thus We meet this evening, friends or what?—

ii

Did you—because I took your arm
'And sillily smiled, 'A mass of brass
'That sea looks, blazing underneath!'
While up the cliff-road edged with heath,
We took the turns nor came to harm—

DIS ALITER VISUM

III

Did you consider 'Now makes twice 'That I have seen her, walked and talked
'With this poor pretty thoughtful thing,
'Whose worth I weigh: she tries to sing;
'Draws, hopes in time the eye grows nice;

'Reads verse and thinks she understands;
'Loves all, at any rate, that's great,
'Good, beautiful; but much as we
'Down at the bath-house love the sea,
'Who breathe its salt and bruise its sands:

V

'While . . . do but follow the fishing-gull
'That flaps and floats from wave to cove!
'There's the sea-lover, fair my friend!
'What then? Be patient, mark and mend!
'Had you the making of your scull?'

VI

And did you, when we faced the church
With spire and sad slate roof, aloof
From human fellowship so far,
Where a few graveyard crosses are,
And garlands for the swallows' perch,—

Did you determine, as we stepped O'er the lone stone fence, 'Let me get 'Her for myself, and what's the earth
'With all its art, verse, music, worth—
'Compared with love, found, gained, and kept?

VIII

'Schumann's our music-maker now;
'Has his march-movement youth and mouth?
'Ingres's the modern man that paints;
'Which will lean on me, of his saints?
'Heine for songs; for kisses, how?'

IX

And did you, when we entered, reached
The votive frigate, soft aloft
Riding on air this hundred years,
Safe-smiling at old hopes and fears,—
Did you draw profit while she preached?

Resolving, 'Fools we wise men grow!
'Yes, I could easily blurt out curt
'Some question that might find reply
'As prompt in her stopped lips, dropped eye,
'And rush of red to cheek and brow:

XI

'Thus were a match made, sure and fast,
'Mid the blue weed-flowers round the mound

'Where, issuing, we shall stand and stay
'For one more look at baths and bay,
'Sands, sea-gulls, and the old church last—

XII

'A match 'twixt me, bent, wigged and lamed,
'Famous, however, for verse and worse,
'Sure of the Fortieth spare Arm-chair
'When gout and glory seat me there,
'So, one whose love-freaks pass unblamed,—

XIII

'And this young beauty, round and sound
'As a mountain-apple, youth and truth
'With loves and doves, at all events
'With money in the Three per Cents;
'Whose choice of me would seem profound:—

XIV

'She might take me as I take her.
'Perfect the hour would pass, alas!
'Climb high, love high, what matter?
Still,
'Feet, feelings, must descend the hill:
'An hour's perfection can't recur.

XV

'Then follows Paris and full time
'For both to reason: "Thus with us!"
'She'll sigh, "Thus girls give body and soul
'"At first word, think they gain the goal,
'"When 'tis the starting-place they climb!

XVI

'My friend makes verse and gets renown;
'"Have they all fifty years, his peers?"
'"He knows the world, firm, quiet and gay;
'"Boys will become as much one day:
'"They're fools; he cheats, with beard less brown.

XVII

'"For boys say, Love me or I die!
'"He did not say, The truth is, youth
'"I want, who am old and know too much;
'"I'd catch youth: lend me sight and touch!
'"Drop heart's blood where life's wheels grate dry!"

XVIII

'While I should make rejoinder'—(then
It was, no doubt, you ceased that least Light pressure of my arm in yours)
'"I can conceive of cheaper cures
'"For a yawning-fit o'er books and men.

XIX

'"What? All I am, was, and might be,
'"All, books taught, art brought, life's whole strife,

"Painful results since precious, just "Were fitly exchanged, in wise disgust,
 "For two cheeks freshened by youth and sea?

xx

"All for a nosegay!—what came first;
 "With fields on flower, untried each
 side;
 "I rally, need my books and men,
 "And find a nosegay": drop it, then,
 'No match yet made for best or worst!'

xxi

That ended me. You judged the porch
 We left by, Norman; took our look
 At sea and sky; wondered so few Find out the place for air and view;
 Remarked the sun began to scorch;

xxii

Descended, soon regained the baths,
 And then, good-bye! Years ten since
 then:
 Ten years! We meet: you tell me, now,
 By a window-seat for that cliff-brow,
 On carpet-stripes for those sand-paths.

xxiii

Now I may speak: you fool, for all Your lore! WHO made things plain in
 vain?
 What was the sea for? What, the grey Sad church, that solitary day,
 Crosses and graves and swallows' call?

xxiv

Was there nought better than to enjoy?
 No feat which, done, would make time
 break,
 And let us pent-up creatures through
 Into eternity, our due?
 No forcing earth teach heaven's employ?

xxv

No wise beginning, here and now, What cannot grow complete (earth's feat)
 And heaven must finish, there and then?
 No tasting earth's true food for men,
 Its sweet in sad, its sad in sweet?

xxvi

No grasping at love, gaining a share
 O' the sole spark from God's life a strife
 With death, so, sure of range above
 The limits here? For us and love, Failure; but, when God fails, despair.

xxvii

This you call wisdom? Thus you add
 Good unto good again, in vain?
 You loved, with body worn and weak;
 I loved, with faculties to seek:
 Were both loves worthless since ill-clad?

xxviii

Let the mere star-fish in his vault
 Crawl in a wash of weed, indeed,
 Rose-jacynth to the finger-tips:
 He, whole in body and soul, outstrips Man, found with either in default.

xxix

But what's whole, can increase no more,
 Is dwarfed and dies, since here's its
 sphere.
 The devil laughed at you in his sleeve!
 You knew not? That I well believe;
 Or you had saved two souls: nay, four.

xxx

For Stephanie sprained last night her
 wrist,
 Ankle or something. 'Pooh,' cry you?
 At any rate she danced, all say,
 Vilely; her rogue has had its day.
 Here comes my husband from his whist.

TOO LATE

I

HERE was I with my arm and heart
 And brain, all yours for a word, a want Put into a look—just a look, your part,—
 While mine, to repay it . . . vainest vaunt, Were the woman, that's dead, alive to
 hear,
 Had her lover, that's lost, love's proof to show!
 But I cannot show it; you cannot speak
 From the churchyard neither, miles removed,
 Though I feel by a pulse within my cheek,
 Which stabs and stops, that the woman
 I loved
 Needs help in her grave and finds none
 near,
 Wants warmth from the heart which sends it—so!

II

Did I speak once angrily, all the drear days
 You lived, you woman I loved so well,
 Who married the other? Blame or praise, Where was the use then? Time would
 tell,
 And the end declare what man for you,
 What woman for me, was the choice of
 God.
 But, Edith dead! no doubting more!
 I used to sit and look at my life
 As it rippled and ran till, right before,
 A great stone stopped it: oh, the strife
 Of waves at the stone some devil threw
 In my life's midcurrent, thwarting God!

III

But either I thought, 'They may churn and chide
 'Awhile, my waves which came for their joy

TOO LATE

'And found this horrible stone full-tide:
'Yet I see just a thread escape, deploy
'Through the evening-country, silent and
safe,
'And it suffers no more till it finds the
sea.
Or else I would think, 'Perhaps some night 'When new things happen, a meteor-
ball
'May slip through the sky in a line of light;
'And earth breathe hard, and landmarks fall,
'And my waves no longer champ nor chafe,
'Since a stone will have rolled from its place: let be!'

IV

But, dead! All's done with: wait who
may,
Watch and wear and wonder who will.
Oh, my whole life that ends to-day!
Oh, my soul's sentence, sounding still,
'The woman is dead that was none of his;
'And the man that was none of hers,
may go!
There's only the past left: worry that!
Wreak, like a bull, on the empty coat,
Rage, its late wearer is laughing at!
Tear the collar to rags, having missed his throat;
Strike stupidly on—'This, this and this,
'Where I would that a bosom received the blow!'

V

I ought to have done more: once my
speech,
And once your answer, and there, the
end,
And Edith was henceforth out of reach!
Why, men do more to deserve a friend,
Be rid of a foe, get rich, grow wise, Nor, folding their arms, stare fate in the
face.
Why, better even have burst like a thief
And borne you away to a rock for us
two,
In a moment's horror, bright, bloody and
brief:
Then changed to myself again—'I slew
'Myself in that moment; a ruffian lies 'Somewhere: your slave, see, born in his place!'

VI

What did the other do? You be judge!
Look at us, Edith! Here are we both!
Give him his six whole years: I grudge
None of the life with you, nay, loathe
Myself that I grudged his start in advance
Of me who could overtake and pass.
But, as if he loved you! No, not he,
Nor anyone else in the world, 'tis plain:
Who ever heard that another, free
As I, young, prosperous, sound and sane,

Poured life out, proffered it—'Half a glance
'Of those eyes of yours and I drop the glass!'

VII

Handsome, were you? 'Tis more than they held,
More than they said; I was 'ware and
watched:
I was the 'scapegrace, this rat belled
The cat, this fool got his whiskers scratched:
The others? No head that was turned, no
heart
Broken, my lady, assure yourself!
Each soon made his mind up; so and so Married a dancer, such and such Stole his friend's wife, stagnated slow,
Or maundered, unable to do as much,
And muttered of peace where he had no
part:
While, hid in the closet, laid on the shelf,—

VIII

On the whole, you were let alone, I think!
So, you looked to the other, who acquiesced;
My rival, the proud man,—prize your pink
Of poets! A poet he was! I've guessed:
He rhymed you his rubbish nobody read,
Loved you and doved you—did not I
laugh!
There was a prize! But we both were tried.
Oh, heart of mine, marked broad with her mark,
Tekel, found wanting, set aside, Scorned! See, I bleed these tears in the dark
Till comfort come and the last be bled:
He? He is tagging your epitaph.

IX

If it would only come over again!
—Time to be patient with me, and probe
This heart till you punctured the proper vein,
Just to learn what blood is: twitch the robe
From that blank lay-figure your fancy draped,
Prick the leathern heart till the—verses spirt!
And late it was easy; late, you walked Where a friend might meet you; Edith's
name
Arose to one's lip if one laughed or talked;
If I heard good news, you heard the
same;
When I woke, I knew that your breath
escaped;
I could bide my time, keep alive, alert.

X

And alive I shall keep and long, you will see!

I knew a man, was kicked like a dog
From gutter to cesspool; what cared he So long as he picked from the filth his prog?

He saw youth, beauty and genius die,
And jollily lived to his hundredth year.
But I will live otherwise: none of such life!
At once I begin as I mean to end.
Go on with the world, get hold in its strife,
Give your spouse the slip and betray your friend!

There are two who decline, a woman and I,
And enjoy our death in the darkness
here.

XI

I liked that way you had with your curls
Wound to a ball in a net behind:

Your cheek was chaste as a quaker-girl's,
And your mouth—there was never, to my mind,
Such a funny mouth, for it would not shut;
And the dented chin too—what a chin!
There were certain ways when you spoke,
some words

That you know you never could pronounce:

You were thin, however; like a bird's
Your hand seemed—some would say,
the pounce

Of a scaly-footed hawk—all but!
The world was right when it called you thin.

XII

But I turn my back on the world: I take Your hand, and kneel, and lay to my lips.

Bid me live, Edith! Let me slake
Thirst at your presence! Fear no slips:
Tis your slave shall pay, while his soul endures,

Full due, love's whole debt, summum jus.
My queen shall have high observance, planned

Courtship made perfect, no least line
Crossed without warrant. There you stand, Warm too, and white too: would this wine

Had washed all over that body of yours,
Ere I drank it, and you down with it,
thus!

ABT VOGLER

(AFTER HE HAS BEEN EXTEMPORIZING UPON THE MUSICAL INSTRUMENT OF HIS IN-VENTION.)

I

WOULD that the structure brave, the manifold music I build, Bidding my organ obey, calling its keys to their work,

Claiming each slave of the sound, at a touch, as when Solomon willed Armies of angels that soar, legions of demons that lurk,

Man, brute, reptile, fly,—alien of end and of aim,

Adverse, each from the other heaven-high, hell-deep removed,— Should rush into sight at once as he named the ineffable Name,
And pile him a palace straight, to pleasure the princess he loved!

II

Would it might tarry like his, the beautiful building of mine,

This which my keys in a crowd pressed and importuned to raise!

Ah, one and all, how they helped, would dispart now and now combine, Zealous to hasten the work, heighten their master his praise!

And one would bury his brow with a blind plunge down to hell,

Burrow awhile and build, broad on the root of things,

Then up again swim into sight, having based me my palace well,

Founded it, fearless of flame, flat on the nether springs.

And another would mount and march, like the excellent minion he was,

Ay, another and yet another, one crowd
but with many a crest,

Raising my rampired walls of gold as transparent as glass,

Eager to do and die, yield each his place to the rest:

For higher still and higher (as a runner tips with fire,

When a great illumination surprises a festal night—

Outlining round and round Rome's dome from space to spire)

Up, the pinnaced glory reached, and the pride of my soul was in sight.

IV

In sight? Not half! for it seemed, it was certain, to match man's birth,

Nature in turn conceived, obeying an impulse as I;

And the emulous heaven yearned down,
made effort to reach the earth,

As the earth had done her best, in my passion, to scale the sky:

Novel splendours burst forth, grew familiar and dwelt with mine,

Not a point nor peak but found and fixed its wandering star;

Meteor-moons, balls of blaze: and they did not pale nor pine,

For earth had attained to heaven,
there was no more near nor far.

ABT VOGLER

V

Nay more; for there wanted not who walked in the glare and glow, Presences plain in the place; or, fresh from the Protoplast, Furnished for ages to come, when a kindlier wind should blow.
Lured now to begin and live, in a house to their liking at last;
Or else the wonderful Dead who have passed through the body and gone, But were back once more to breathe in an old world worth their new:
What never had been, was now; what was,
as it shall be anon;
And what is,—shall I say, matched both? for I was made perfect too.

VI

All through my keys that gave their sounds to a wish of my soul,
All through my soul that praised as its wish flowed visibly forth, All through music and me! For think,
had I painted the whole,
Why, there it had stood, to see, nor the process so wonder-worth:
Had I written the same, made verse—still,
effect proceeds from cause,
Ye know why the forms are fair, ye hear how the tale is told;
It is all triumphant art, but art in obedience to laws,
Painter and poet are proud in the artist-list enrolled:—

But here is the finger of God, a flash of the will that can,
Existent behind all laws, that made them and, lo, they are!
And I know not if, save in this, such gift be allowed to man,
That out of three sounds he frame, not a fourth sound, but a star.
Consider it well: each tone of our scale in itself is nought;
It is everywhere in the world—loud,
soft, and all is said:
Give it to me to use! I mix it with two in my thought:
And, there! Ye have heard and seen:
consider and bow the head!

VIII

Well, it is gone at last, the palace of music
I reared; Gone! and the good tears start, the praises that come too slow;
For one is assured at first, one scarce can say that he feared,
That he even gave it a thought, the gone thing was to go

Never to be again! But many more of the
kind
As good, nay, better perchance: is this your comfort to me?
To me, who must be saved because I cling with my mind
To the same, same self, same love, same God: ay, what was, shall be.

IX

Therefore to whom turn I but to thee, the ineffable Name?
Builder and maker, thou, of houses not made with hands!
What, have fear of change from thee who art ever the same?
Doubt that thy power can fill the heart that thy power expands?
There shall never be one lost good! What was, shall live as before;
The evil is null, is nought, is silence implying sound;
What was good shall be good, with, for evil, so much good more;
On the earth the broken arcs; in the heaven, a perfect round.

X

All we have willed or hoped or dreamed of good shall exist;
Not its semblance, but itself; no beauty, nor good, nor power
Whose voice has gone forth, but each survives for the melodist
When eternity affirms the conception of an hour.
The high that proved too high, the heroic for earth too hard,
The passion that left the ground to lose itself in the sky,
Are music sent up to God by the lover and
the bard;
Enough that he heard it once: we shall hear it by-and-by.

XI

And what is our failure here but a triumph's evidence For the fulness of the days? Have we withered or agonized?
Why else was the pause prolonged but that singing might issue thence?
Why rushed the discords in but that harmony should be prized?
Sorrow is hard to bear, and doubt is slow to clear,
Each sufferer says his say, his scheme of the weal and woe:
But God has a few of us whom he whispers in the ear;
The rest may reason and welcome: 'tis we musicians know.

XII

Well, it is earth with me; silence resumes her reign:
I will be patient and proud, and soberly acquiesce.
Give me the keys. I feel for the common chord again,
Sliding by semitones, till I sink to the minor,—yes,
And I blunt it into a ninth, and I stand on alien ground,
Surveying awhile the heights I rolled from into the deep;
Which, hark, I have dared and done, for my resting-place is found,
The C Major of this life: so, now I will try to sleep.

RABBI BEN EZRA

I

GROW old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was
made:
Our times are in His hand
Who saith 'A whole I planned,
'Youth shows but half; trust God: see all nor be afraid!'

II

Not that, amassing flowers, Youth sighed 'Which rose make
ours,
'Which lily leave and then as best recall?'
Not that, admiring stars,
It yearned 'Nor Jove, nor Mars;
'Mine be some figured flame which blends, transcends them all!'

III

Not for such hopes and fears
Annulling youth's brief years,
Do I remonstrate: folly wide the mark!
Rather I prize the doubt
Low kinds exist without,
Finished and finite clods, untroubled by a spark.

IV

Poor vaunt of life indeed,
Were man but formed to feed
On joy, to solely seek and find and feast:
Such feasting ended, then
As sure an end to men;
Irks care the crop-full bird? Frets doubt the maw-crammed beast?

Rejoice we are allied
To That which doth provide
And not partake, effect and not receive!
A spark disturbs our clod;
Nearer we hold of God
Who gives, than of His tribes that take, I must believe.

VI

Then, welcome each rebuff
That turns earth's smoothness
rough,
Each sting that bids nor sit nor stand but
go!
'Be our joys three-parts pain!
Strive, and hold cheap the strain;
I earn, nor account the pang; dare, never grudge the throe!

VII

For thence,—a paradox
Which comforts while it mocks,—
Shall life succeed in that it seems to fail:
What I aspired to be,
And was not, comforts me:
A brute I might have been, but would not sink i' the scale.

VIII

What is he but a brute
Whose flesh has soul to suit,
Whose spirit works lest arms and legs want
play?
To man, propose this test—
Thy body at its best,
How far can that project thy soul on its lone way?

IX

Yet gifts should prove their use:
I own the Past profuse
Of power each side, perfection every turn:
Eyes, ears took in their dole,
Brain treasured up the whole;
Should not the heart beat once 'How good to live and learn?'

X

Not once beat 'Praise be Thine!
'I see the whole design,
'I, who saw power, see now love perfect
too:
'Perfect I call Thy plan:
'Thanks that I was a man!
'Maker, remake, complete,—I trust what Thou shalt do!'

XI

For pleasant is this flesh;
Our soul, in its rose-mesh Pulled ever to the earth, still yearns for
rest;
Would we some prize might hold
To match those manifold Possessions of the brute,—gain most, as we did best!

XII

Let us not always say
'Spite of this flesh to-day
'I strove, made head, gained ground upon
the whole!'

RABBI BEN EZRA

As the bird wings and sings,
Let us cry 'All good things
Are ours, nor soul helps flesh more, now, than flesh helps soul!'

xiii

Therefore I summon age
To grant youth's heritage, Life's struggle having so far reached its
term:
Thence shall I pass, approved
A man, for aye removed From the developed brute; a god though in the germ.

xiv

And I shall thereupon
Take rest, ere I be gone Once more on my adventure brave and
new:
Fearless and unperplexed,
When I wage battle next,
What weapons to select, what armour to indue.

xv

Youth ended, I shall try
My gain or loss thereby;
Leave the fire ashes, what survives is gold:
And I shall weigh the same,
Give life its praise or blame:
Young, all lay in dispute; I shall know, being old.

xvi

For note, when evening shuts,
A certain moment cuts
The deed off, calls the glory from the grey:
A whisper from the west
Shoots—'Add this to the rest,
'Take it and try its worth: here dies another day.'

xvii

So, still within this life,
Though lifted o'er its strife, Let me discern, compare, pronounce at
last,
'This rage was right i' the main,
'That acquiescence vain:
'The Future I may face now I have proved
the Past.'

xviii

For more is not reserved
To man, with soul just nerved
To act to-morrow what he learns to-day:
Here, work enough to watch
The Master work, and catch Hints of the proper craft, tricks of the tool's true play.

xix

As it was better, youth Should strive, through acts uncouth,
Toward making, than repose on aught found made:

So, better, age, exempt
From strife, should know, than
tempt

Further. Thou waitedest age: wait death nor be afraid!

xx

Enough now, if the Right
And Good and Infinite
Be named here, as thou callest thy hand thine own,
With knowledge absolute,
Subject to no dispute
From fools that crowded youth, nor let thee feel alone.

xxi

Be there, for once and all,
Severed great minds from small,
Announced to each his station in the
Past!
Was I, the world arraigned,
Were they, my soul disdained, Right? Let age speak the truth and give us peace at last!

xxii

Now, who shall arbitrate?
Ten men love what I hate,
Shun what I follow, slight what I receive;
Ten, who in ears and eyes
Match me: we all surmise,
They this thing, and I that: whom shall my soul believe?

xxiii

Not on the vulgar mass
Called 'work,' must sentence pass, Things done, that took the eye and had the price:
O'er which, from level stand,
The low world laid its hand, Found straightway to its mind, could value in a trice:

xxiv

But all, the world's coarse thumb
And finger failed to plumb,
So passed in making up the main account;
All instincts immature,
All purposes unsure,
That weighed not as his work, yet swelled
the man's amount:

xxv

Thoughts hardly to be packed
Into a narrow act, Fancies that broke through language and
escaped;
All I could never be,
All, men ignored in me,
This, I was worth to God, whose wheel the pitcher shaped.

XXVI

Ay, note that Potter's wheel,
That metaphor! and feel Why time spins fast, why passive lies our clay,—

Thou, to whom fools propound,
When the wine makes its round,
Since life fleets, all is change; the Past gone, seize to-day!

XXVII

Fool! All that is, at all,
Lasts ever, past recall;
Earth changes, but thy soul and God stand
sure:

What entered into thee,
That was, is, and shall be:
Time's wheel runs back or stops: Potter and clay endure.

XXVIII

He fixed thee mid this dance
Of plastic circumstance,
This Present, thou, forsooth, wouldst fain arrest:

Machinery just meant
To give thy soul its bent,
Try thee and turn thee forth, sufficiently impressed.

XXIX

What though the earlier grooves
Which ran the laughing loves Around thy base, no longer pause and press?

What though, about thy rim,
Skull-things in order grim Grow out, in graver mood, obey the sterner stress?

XXX

Look not thou down but up!
To uses of a cup,
The festal board, lamp's flash and trum-pet's peal,

The new wine's foaming flow,
The Master's lips a-glow!
Thou, heaven's consummate cup, what need'st thou with earth's wheel?

XXXI

But I need, now as then,
Thee, God, who mouldest men;
And since, not even while the whirl was
worst,

Did I,—to the wheel of life
With shapes and colours rife,
Bound dizzily,—mistake my end, to slake Thy thirst:

XXXII

So, take and use Thy work:
Amend what flaws may lurk,
What strain o' the stuff, what warpings past the aim!

My times be in Thy hand!
Perfect the cup as planned!

Let age approve of youth, and death complete the same!

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

[SUPPOSED of Pamphylax the Antiochene:
It is a parchment, of my rolls the fifth,
Hath three skins glued together, is all
Greek

And goeth from Epsilon down to Mu:
Lies second in the surnamed Chosen
Chest,

Stained and conserved with juice of terebinth,
Covered with cloth of hair, and lettered Xi, From Xanthus, my wife's uncle, now at
peace:

Mu and Epsilon stand for my own name.
I may not write it, but I make a cross
To show I wait His coming, with the rest,
And leave off here: beginneth Pamphylax.]

I said, 'If one should wet his lips with wine,
'And slip the broadest plantain-leaf we
find,

'Or else the lappet of a linen robe,
'Into the water-vessel, lay it right,
'And cool his forehead just above the eyes,
'The while a brother, kneeling either side,
'Should chafe each hand and try to make it warm,—

'He is not so far gone but he might speak.'

This did not happen in the outer cave,
Nor in the secret chamber of the rock
Where, sixty days since the decree was out,
We had him, bedded on a camel-skin,
And waited for his dying all the while;
But in the midmost grotto: since noon's
light

Reached there a little, and we would not lose

The last of what might happen on his face.

I at the head, and Xanthus at the feet,
With Valens and the Boy, had lifted him,
And brought him from the chamber in the depths,
And laid him in the light where we might
see:

For certain smiles began about his mouth,
And his lids moved, presageful of the end.

Beyond and half way up the mouth o' the cave,

The Bactrian convert, having his desire,
Kept watch, and made pretence to graze a goat

That gave us milk, on rags of various herb, Plantain and quitch, the rocks' shade
keens alive:

So that if any thief or soldier passed,
(Because the persecution was aware)

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

Yielding the goat up promptly with his life,
Such man might pass on, joyful at a prize,
Nor care to pry into the cool o' the cave.
Outside was all noon and the burning blue.

'Here is wine,' answered Xanthus,— dropped a drop;
I stooped and placed the lap of 'cloth
aright,
Then chafed his right hand, and the Boy his left:
But Valens had bethought him, and produced
And broke a ball of nard, and made perfume.
Only, he did—not so much wake, as—turn
And smile a little, as a sleeper does
If any dear one call him, touch his face—
And smiles and loves, but will not be disturbed.

Then Xanthus said a prayer, but still he slept:
It is the Xanthus that escaped to Rome,
Was burned, and could not write the chronicle.

Then the Boy sprang up from his knees,
and ran,
Stung by the splendour of a sudden
thought,
And fetched the seventh plate of graven
lead
Out of the secret chamber, found a place,
Pressing with finger on the deeper dints,
And spoke, as 'twere his mouth proclaiming first,
'I am the Resurrection and the Life.'

Whereat he opened his eyes wide at once,
And sat up of himself, and looked at us;
And thenceforth nobody pronounced a
word:

Only, outside, the Bactrian cried his cry Like the lone desert-bird that wears the ruff,
As signal we were safe, from time to time.

First he said, 'If a friend declared to me,
'This my son Valens, this my other son,
'Were James and Peter,—nay, declared as
well

'This lad was very John,—I could believe!
—Could, for a moment, doubtlessly believe:

'So is myself withdrawn into my depths,
'The soul retreated from the perished brain
'Whence it was wont to feel and use the
world

'Through these dull members, done with long ago.

'Yet I myself remain; I feel myself:
'And there is nothing lost. Let be, awhile!'

[This is the doctrine he was wont to teach,
How divers persons witness in each man,

Three souls which make up one soul: first,
to wit,

A soul of each and all the bodily parts,
Seated therein, which works, and is what Does,

And has the use of earth, and ends the man Downward: but, tending upward for advice,

Grows into, and again is grown into
By the next soul, which, seated in the brain,
Useth the first with its collected use,
And feebleth, thinketh, willeth,—is what
Knows:

Which, duly tending upward in its turn,
Grows into, and again is grown into
By the last soul, that uses both the first,
Subsisting whether they assist or no,
And, constituting man's self, is what Is—
And leans upon the former, makes it play,
As that played off the first: and, tending up, Holds, is upheld by, God, and ends the
man

Upward in that dread point of intercourse,
Nor needs a place, for it returns to Him.
What Does, what Knows, what Is; three souls, one man.

I give the glossa of Theotypas.]

And then, 'A stick, once fire from end to
end;

'Now, ashes save the tip that holds a spark!
'Yet, blow the spark, it runs back, spreads
itself

'A little where the fire was: thus I urge
'The soul that served me, till it task once
more

'What ashes of my brain have kept their
shape,

'And these make effort on the last o' the
flesh,

'Trying to taste again the truth of things—' (He smiled)—'their very superficial truth;

'As that ye are my sons, that it is long 'Since James and Peter had release by
death,

'And I am only he, your brother John,
'Who saw and heard, and could remember
all.

'Remember all! It is not much to say.
'What if the truth broke on me from above

'As once and oft-times? Such might hap-
again:

'Doubtlessly He might stand in presence
here,

'With head wool-white, eyes flame, and feet like brass,

'The sword and the seven stars, as I have seen—

'I who now shudder only and surmise
"How did your brother bear that sight and live?"

'If I live yet, it is for good, more love
'Through me to men: be nought but ashes
here

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

- 'That keep awhile my semblance, who was John,—
 'Still, when they scatter, there is left on earth
 'No one alive who knew (consider this!)
 '—Saw with his eyes and handled with his hands
 'That which was from the first, the Word of Life.
 'How will it be when none more saith "I saw"?
- 'Such ever was love's way: to rise, it stoops.
 'Since I, whom Christ's mouth taught, was bidden teach,
 'I went, for many years, about the world,
 'Saying "It was so; so I heard and saw,"
 'Speaking as the case asked: and men believed.
 'Afterward came the message to myself
 'In Patmos isle; I was not bidden teach,
 'But simply listen, take a book and write,
 'Nor set down other than the given word,
 'With nothing left to my arbitrament
 'To choose or change: I wrote, and men believed.
 'Then, for my time grew brief, no message more,
 'No call to write again, I found a way,
 'And, reasoning from my knowledge, merely taught
 'Men should, for love's sake, in love's strength believe;
 'Or I would pen a letter to a friend
 'And urge the same as friend, nor less nor more;
 'Friends said I reasoned rightly, and believed.
 'But at the last, why, I seemed left alive
 'Like a sea-jelly weak on Patmos strand,
 'To tell dry sea-beach gazers how I fared
 'When there was mid-sea, and the mighty things;
 'Left to repeat, "I saw, I heard, I knew,"
 'And go all over the old ground again,
 'With Antichrist already in the world,
 'And many Antichrists, who answered prompt
 '"Am I not Jasper as thyself art John?"
 '"Nay, young, whereas through age thou mayest forget;
 '"Wherefore, explain, or how shall we believe?"
 'I never thought to call down fire on such,
 'Or, as in wonderful and early days,
 'Pick up the scorpion, tread the serpent dumb;
 'But patient stated much of the Lord's life
 'Forgotten or misdelivered, and let it work:
 'Since much that at the first, in deed and word,
 'Lay simply and sufficiently exposed,
- 'Had grown (or else my soul was grown to match,
 'Fed through such years, familiar with such light,
 'Guarded and guided still to see and speak)
 'Of new significance and fresh result;
 'What first were guessed as points, I now knew stars,
 'And named them in the Gospel I have writ.
 'For men said, "It is getting long ago:
 '"Where is the promise of His coming?"
 —asked
 'These young ones in their strength, as loth to wait,
 'Of me who, when their sires were born, was old.
 'I, for I loved them, answered, joyfully,
 'Since I was there, and helpful in my age;
 'And, in the main, I think such men believed.
 'Finally, thus endeavouring, I fell sick,
 'Ye brought me here, and I supposed the end,
 'And went to sleep with one thought that, at least,
 'Though the whole earth should lie in wickedness,
 'We had the truth, might leave the rest to God.
 'Yet now I wake in such decrepitude
 'As I had slidden down and fallen afar,
 'Past even the presence of my former self,
 'Grasping the while for stay at facts which snap,
 'Till I am found away from my own world,
 'Feeling for foot-hold through a blank profound,
 'Along with unborn people in strange lands,
 'Who say—I hear said or conceive they say—
 '"Was John at all, and did he say he saw?"
 '"Assure us, ere we ask what he might see!"
 'And how shall I assure them? Can they share
 '—They, who have flesh, a veil of youth and strength
 'About each spirit, that needs must bide its time,
 'Living and learning still as years assist
 'Which wear the thickness thin, and let man see—
 'With me who hardly am withheld at all,
 'But shudderingly, scarce a shred between,
 'Lie bare to the universal prick of light?
 'Is it for nothing we grow old and weak,
 'We whom God loves? When pain ends, gain ends too.
 'To me, that story—ay, that Life and Death
 'Of which I wrote "it was"—to me, it is;

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

- '—Is, here and now: I apprehend nought else.
 'Is not God now i' the world His power first made?
 'Is not His love at issue still with sin,
 'Visibly when a wrong is done on earth?
 'Love, wrong, and pain, what see I else around?
 'Yea, and the Resurrection and Uprise
 'To the right hand of the throne—what is it beside,
 'When such truth, breaking bounds, o'er-floods my soul,
 'And, as I saw the sin and death, even so
 'See I the need yet transiency of both,
 'The good and glory consummated thence?
 'I saw the power; I see the Love, once weak,
 'Resume the Power: and in this word "I see,"
 'Lo, there is recognized the Spirit of both
 'That moving o'er the spirit of man, un-blinds
 'His eye and bids him look. These are, I see;
 'But ye, the children, His beloved ones too,
 'Ye need,—as I should use an optic glass
 'I wondered at erewhile, somewhere i' the world,
 'It had been given a crafty smith to make;
 'A tube, he turned on objects brought too close,
 'Lying confusedly insubordinate
 'For the unassisted eye to master once:
 'Look through his tube, at distance now they lay,
 'Become succinct, distinct, so small, so clear!
 'Just thus, ye needs must apprehend what truth
 'I see, reduced to plain historic fact,
 'Diminished into clearness, proved a point
 'And far away: ye would withdraw your sense
 'From out eternity, strain it upon time,
 'Then stand before that fact, that Life and Death,
 'Stay there at gaze, till it dispart, disspread,
 'As though a star should open out, all sides,
 'Grow the world on you, as it is my world.
 'For life, with all it yields of joy and woe,
 'And hope and fear,—believe the aged friend,—
 'Is just our chance o' the prize of learning love,
 'How love might be, hath been indeed, and is;
 'And that we hold thenceforth to the uttermost
 'Such prize despite the envy of the world,
 'And, having gained truth, keep truth: that is all.
- 'But see the double way wherein we are led,
 'How the soul learns diversely from the flesh!
 'With flesh, that hath so little time to stay,
 'And yields mere basement for the soul's emprise,
 'Expect prompt teaching. Helpful was the light,
 'And warmth was cherishing and food was choice
 'To every man's flesh, thousand years ago,
 'As now to yours and mine; the body sprang
 'At once to the height, and stayed: but the soul,—no!
 'Since sages who, this noontide, meditate
 'In Rome or Athens, may descry some point 'Of the eternal power, hid yestereve;
 'And, as thereby the power's whole mass extends,
 'So much extends the æther floating o'er,
 'The love that tops the might, the Christ in God.
 'Then, as new lessons shall be learned in these 'Till earth's work stop and useless time run out,
 'So duly, daily, needs provision be
 'For keeping the soul's prowess possible,
 'Building new barriers as the old decay,
 'Saving us from evasion of life's proof,
 'Putting the question ever, "Does God love,
 '"And will ye hold that truth against the world?"
 'Ye know there needs no second proof with good
 'Gained for our flesh from any earthly source:
 'We might go freezing, ages,—give us fire,
 'Thereafter we judge fire at its full worth,
 'And guard it safe through every chance, ye know!
 'That fable of Prometheus and his theft,
 'How mortals gained Jove's fiery flower, grows old
 '(I have been used to hear the pagans own)
 'And out of mind; but fire, howe'er its birth,
 'Here is it, precious to the sophist now
 'Who laughs the myth of Æschylus to scorn,
 'As precious to those satyrs of his play,
 'Who touched it in gay wonder at the thing.
 'While were it so with the soul,—this gift of truth
 'Once grasped, were this our soul's gain safe, and sure 'To prosper as the body's gain is wont,—
 'Why, man's probation would conclude, his earth

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

- 'Crumble; for he both reasons and decides,
 'Weighs first, then chooses: will he give up fire
 'For gold or purple once he knows its worth?
 'Could he give Christ up were His worth as plain?
 'Therefore, I say, to test man, the proofs shift,
 'Nor may he grasp that fact like other fact,
 'And straightway in his life acknowledge it,
 'As, say, the indubitable bliss of fire.
 'Sigh ye, "It had been easier once than now"?
 'To give you answer I am left alive;
 'Look at me who was present from the first!
 'Ye know what things I saw; then came a test,
 'My first, befitting me who so had seen;
 '"Forsake the Christ thou sawest transfigured, Him
 '"Who trod the sea and brought the dead to life?
 '"What should wring this from thee!"—ye laugh and ask.
 'What wrung it? Even a torchlight and a noise,
 'The sudden Roman faces, violent hands,
 'And fear of what the Jews might do! Just that,
 'And it is written, "I forsook and fled":
 'There was my trial, and it ended thus.
 'Ay, but my soul had gained its truth, could grow:
 'Another year or two,—what little child,
 'What tender woman that had seen no least
 'Of all my sights, but barely heard them told,
 'Who did not clasp the cross with a light laugh,
 'Or wrap the burning robe round, thanking God?
 'Well, was truth safe for ever, then? Not so.
 'Already had begun the silent work
 'Whereby truth, deadened of its absolute blaze,
 'Might need love's eye to pierce the o'er-stretched doubt.
 'Teachers were busy, whispering "All is true
 '"As the aged ones report; but youth can reach
 '"Where age gropes dimly, weak with stir and strain,
 '"And the full doctrine slumbers till to-day."
 'Thus, what the Roman's lowered spear was found,
- 'A bar to me who touched and handled truth,
 'Now proved the glozing of some new shrewd tongue,
 'This Ebion, this Cerinthus or their mates,
 'Till imminent was the outcry "Save our Christ!"
 'Whereon I stated much of the Lord's life
 'Forgotten or misdelivered, and let it work
 'Such work done, as it will be, what comes next?
 'What do I hear say, or conceive men say,
 '"Was John at all, and did he say he saw?
 '"Assure us, ere we ask what he might see!"
 'Is this indeed a burthen for late days,
 'And may I help to bear it with you all,
 'Using my weakness which becomes your strength?
 'For if a babe were born inside this grot,
 'Grew to a boy here, heard us praise the sun,
 'Yet had but yon sole glimmer in light's place,—
 'One loving him and wishful he should learn,
 'Would much rejoice himself was blinded first 'Month by month here, so made to understand
 'How eyes, born darkling, apprehend amiss:
 'To think I could explain to such a child
 'There was some glow outside than gleams he caught,
 'Ay, nor need urge "I saw it, so believe!"
 'It is a heavy burthen you shall bear
 'In latter days, new lands, or old grown strange,
 'Left without me, which must be very soon.
 'What is the doubt, my brothers? Quick with it!
 'I see you stand conversing, each new face,
 'Either in fields, of yellow summer eves
 'On islets yet unnamed amid the sea;
 'Or pace for shelter 'neath a portico
 'Out of the crowd in some enormous town
 'Where now the larks sing in a solitude;
 'Or muse upon blank heaps of stone and sand
 'Idly conjectured to be Ephesus:
 'And no one asks his fellow any more
 '"Where is the promise of His coming?" but
 '"Was he revealed in any of His lives,
 '"As Power, as Love, as Influencing Soul?"
 'Quick, for time presses, tell the whole mind out,
 'And let us ask and answer and be saved!
 'My book speaks on, because it cannot pass;

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

- "One listens quietly, nor scoffs but pleads
 "Here is a tale of things done ages since;
 "What truth was ever told the second
 day?
 "Wonders, that would prove doctrine,
 go for nought.
 "Remains the doctrine, love; well, we must love,
 "And what we love most, power and love
 in one,
 "Let us acknowledge on the record here,
 "Accepting these in Christ: must Christ then be?
 "Has He been? Did not we ourselves make Him?
 "Our mind receives but what it holds, no
 more.
 "First of the love, then; we acknowledge
 Christ—
 "A proof we comprehend His love, a proof
 "We had such love already in ourselves,
 "Knew first what else we should not recognize.
 "'Tis mere projection from man's inmost
 mind,
 "And, what he loves, thus falls reflected
 back,
 "Becomes accounted somewhat out of
 him;
 "He throws it up in air, it drops down earth's,
 "With shape, name, story added, man's old way.
 "How prove you Christ came otherwise
 at least?
 "Next try the power: He made and rules
 the world:
 "Certes there is a world once made, now
 ruled,
 "Unless things have been ever as we see.
 "Our sires declared a charioteer's yoked steeds
 "Brought the sun up the east and down the west,
 "Which only of itself now rises, sets,
 "As if a hand impelled it and a will,— "Thus they long thought, they who had will and hands:
 "But the new question's whisper is distinct,
 "Wherefore must all force needs be like ourselves?
 "We have the hands, the will; what made and drives
 "The sun is force, is law, is named, not known,
 "While will and love we do know; marks of these,
 "Eye-witnesses attest, so books declare—
 "As that, to punish or reward our race,
 "The sun at undue times arose or set
 "Or else stood still: what do not men affirm?
 "But earth requires as urgently reward
 "Or punishment to-day as years ago,
 "And none expects the sun will interpose:
 "Therefore it was mere passion and mistake,
 "Or erring zeal for right, which changed
 the truth.
 "Go back, far, farther, to the birth of
 things;
 "Ever the will, the intelligence, the love,
 "Man's!—which he gives, supposing he but finds,
 "As late he gave head, body, hands and
 feet,
 "To help these in what forms he called his
 gods.
 "First, Jove's brow, Juno's eyes were swept away,
 "But Jove's wrath, Juno's pride continued long;
 "As last, will, power, and love discarded
 these,
 "So law in turn discards power, love,
 and will.
 "What proveth God is otherwise at least?
 "All else, projection from the mind of
 man!"
 "Nay, do not give me wine, for I am strong,
 "But place my gospel where I put my hands.
 "I say that man was made to grow, not stop;
 "That help, he needed once, and needs no
 more,
 "Having grown but an inch by, is withdrawn:
 "For he hath new needs, and new helps to
 these.
 "This imports solely, man should mount on each
 "New height in view; the help whereby he mounts,
 "The ladder-rung his foot has left, may
 fall,
 "Since all things suffer change save God
 the Truth.
 "Man apprehends Him newly at each stage
 "Whereat earth's ladder drops, its service
 done;
 "And nothing shall prove twice what once was proved.
 "You stick a garden-plot with ordered twigs
 "To show inside lie germs of herbs unborn,
 "And check the careless step would spoil their birth;
 "But when herbs wave, the guardian twigs
 may go,
 "Since should ye doubt of virtues, question kinds,
 "It is no longer for old twigs ye look,
 "Which proved once underneath lay store
 of seed,

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

- 'But to the herb's self, by what light ye
boast,
'For what fruit's signs are. This book's fruit is plain,
'Nor miracles need prove it any more.
'Doth the fruit show? Then miracles bade
ware
'At first of root and stem, saved both till
now
'From trampling ox, rough boar and wanton goat.
'What? Was man made a wheelwork to wind up,
'And be discharged, and straight wound up anew?
'No!—grown, his growth lasts; taught, he ne'er forgets:
'May learn a thousand things, not twice
the same.
'This might be pagan teaching: now hear
mine.
'I say, that as the babe, you feed awhile,
'Becomes a boy and fit to feed himself,
'So, minds at first must be spoon-fed with
truth:
'When they can eat, babe's-nurture is withdrawn.
'I fed the babe whether it would or no:
'I bid the boy or feed himself or starve.
'I cried once, "That ye may believe in Christ,
"Behold this blind man shall receive his sight!"
'I cry now, "Urgest thou, for I am shrewd
"And smile at stories how John's word could cure—
"Repeat that miracle and take my faith?"
'I say, that miracle was duly wrought
'When, save for it, no faith was possible.
'Whether a change were wrought i' the shows o' the world,
'Whether the change came from our minds which see
'Of shows o' the world so much as and no
more
'Than God wills for His purpose,—(what do I
'See now, suppose you, there where you see rock
'Round us?—)I know not; such was the effect,
'So faith grew, making void more miracles
'Because too much: they would compel,
not help.
'I say, the acknowledgment of God in Christ
'Accepted by thy reason, solves for thee
'All questions in the earth and out of it,
'And has so far advanced thee to be wise.
'Wouldst thou unprove this to re-prove the proved?
'In life's mere minute, with power to use that proof,
- 'Leave knowledge and revert to how it sprung?
'Thou hast it; use it and forthwith, or die!
'For I say, this is death and the sole death,
'When a man's loss comes to him from his
gain,
'Darkness from light, from knowledge ignorance,
'And lack of love from love made manifest;
'A lamp's death when, replete with oil, it
chokes;
'A stomach's when, surcharged with food,
it starves.
'With ignorance was surety of a cure.
'When man, appalled at nature, questioned first
"What if there lurk a might behind this might?"
'He needed satisfaction God could give,
'And did give, as ye have the written word:
'But when he finds might still redouble might,
'Yet asks, "Since all is might, what use of
will?"
'—Will, the one source of might,—he being man
'With a man's will and a man's might, to teach
'In little how the two combine in large,—
'That man has turned round on himself and stands,
'Which in the course of nature is, to die.
'And when man questioned, "What if there be love
'Behind the will and might, as real as
they?"—
'He needed satisfaction God could give,
'And did give, as ye have the written word:
'But when, beholding that love every-
where,
'He reasons, "Since such love is every-
where,
'And since ourselves can love and would be loved,
'We ourselves make the love, and Christ was not,"—
'How shall ye help this man who knows
himself,
'That he must love and would be loved
again,
'Yet, owning his own love that proveth
Christ,
'Rejecteth Christ through very need of
Him?
'The lamp o' erswims with oil, the stomach flags
'Loaded with nurture, and that man's soul
dies.
'If he rejoin, "But this was all the while "A trick; the fault was, first of all, in
thee,
"Thy story of the places, names and dates,

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

- "Where, when and how the ultimate truth had rise,
 "—"Thy prior truth, at last discovered none,
 "Whence now the second suffers detriment.
 "What good of giving knowledge if, because
 "O' the manner of the gift, its profit fail?
 "And why refuse what modicum of help
 "Had stopped the after-doubt, impossible
 "'I' the face of truth—truth absolute, uniform?
 "Why must I hit of this and miss of that,
 "Distinguish just as I be weak or strong,
 "And not ask of thee and have answer prompt,
 "Was this once, was it not once?—then and now
 "And evermore, plain truth from man to man.
 "Is John's procedure just the heathen bard's?
 "Put question of his famous play again
 "How for the ephemerals' sake Jove's fire was filched,
 "And carried in a cane and brought to earth:
 "The fact is in the fable, cry the wise,
 "Mortals obtained the boon, so much is fact,
 "Though fire be spirit and produced on earth.
 "As with the Titan's, so now with thy tale:
 "Why breed in us perplexity, mistake,
 "Nor tell the whole truth in the proper words?"
- "I answer, Have ye yet to argue out
 "The very primal thesis, plainest law,
 "—Man is not God but hath God's end to serve,
 "A master to obey, a course to take,
 "Somewhat to cast off, somewhat to become?
 "Grant this, then man must pass from old to new,
 "From vain to real, from mistake to fact,
 "From what once seemed good, to what now proves best.
 "How could man have progression otherwise?
 "Before the point was mooted "What is God?"
 "No savage man inquired "What am myself?"
 "Much less replied, "First, last, and best of things."
 "Man takes that title now if he believes
 "Might can exist with neither will nor love,
 "In God's case—what he names now Nature's Law—
- "While in himself he recognizes love
 "No less than might and will: and rightly takes.
 "Since if man prove the sole existent thing
 "Where these combine, whatever their degree,
 "However weak the might or will or love,
 "So they be found there, put in evidence,—
 "He is as surely higher in the scale
 "Than any might with neither love nor will,
 "As life, apparent in the poorest midge,
 "(When the faint dust-speck flits, ye guess its wing)
 "Is marvellous beyond dead Atlas' self—
 "Given to the nobler midge for resting-place!
 "Thus, man proves best and highest—God, in fine,
 "And thus the victory leads but to defeat,
 "The gain to loss, best rise to the worst fall,
 "His life becomes impossible, which is death.
- "But if, appealing thence, he cower, avouch
 "He is mere man, and in humility
 "Neither may know God nor mistake himself;
 "I point to the immediate consequence
 "And say, by such confession straight he falls
 "Into man's place, a thing nor God nor beast,
 "Made to know that he can know and not more:
 "Lower than God who knows all and can all,
 "Higher than beasts which know and can so far
 "As each beast's limit, perfect to an end,
 "Nor conscious that they know, nor craving more;
 "While man knows partly but conceives beside,
 "Creeps ever on from fancies to the fact,
 "And in this striving, this converting air
 "Into a solid he may grasp and use,
 "Finds progress, man's distinctive mark alone,
 "Not God's, and not the beasts': God is, they are,
 "Man partly is and wholly hopes to be.
 "Such progress could no more attend his soul
 "Were all it struggles after found at first
 "And guesses changed to knowledge absolute,
 "Than motion wait his body, were all else
 "Than it the solid earth on every side,
 "Where now through space he moves from rest to rest.
 "Man, therefore, thus conditioned, must expect

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

'He could not, what he knows now, know
 at first;
 'What he considers that he knows to-day,
 'Come but to-morrow, he will find mis-
 known;
 'Getting increase of knowledge, since he learns
 'Because he lives, which is to be a man,
 'Set to instruct himself by his past self:
 'First, like the brute, obliged by facts to
 learn,
 'Next, as man may, obliged by his own
 mind,
 'Bent, habit, nature, knowledge turned to law.
 'God's gift was that man should conceive of truth
 'And yearn to gain it, catching at mistake,
 'As midway help till he reach fact indeed.
 'The statuary ere he mould a shape
 'Boasts a like gift, the shape's idea, and
 next
 'The aspiration to produce the same;
 'So, taking clay, he calls his shape there-
 out,
 'Cries ever "Now I have the thing I see":
 'Yet all the while goes changing what was
 wrought,
 'From falsehood like the truth, to truth it-
 self.
 'How were it had he cried "I see no face,
 "No breast, no feet i' the ineffectual
 clay"?
 'Rather commend him that he clapped his hands,
 'And laughed "It is my shape and lives
 again!"
 'Enjoyed the falsehood, touched it on to
 truth,
 'Until yourselves applaud the flesh indeed
 'In what is still flesh-imitating clay.
 'Right in you, right in him, such way be man's!
 'God only makes the live shape at a jet.
 'Will ye renounce this pact of creature-
 ship?
 'The pattern on the Mount subsists no
 more,
 'Seemed awhile, then returned to nothing-
 ness;
 'But copies, Moses strove to make there-
 by,
 'Serve still and are replaced as time requires:
 'By these, make newest vessels, reach the type!
 'If ye demur, this judgment on your head,
 'Never to reach the ultimate, angel's law,
 'Indulging every instinct of the soul
 'There where law, life, joy, impulse are one thing!
 'Such is the burthen of the latest time.
 'I have survived to hear it with my ears,

'Answer it with my lips: does this suffice?
 'For if there be a further woe than such,
 'Wherein my brothers struggling need a
 hand,
 'So long as any pulse is left in mine,
 'May I be absent even longer yet,
 'Plucking the blind ones back from the
 abyss,
 'Though I should tarry a new hundred
 years!'

But he was dead; 'twas about noon, the
 day
 Somewhat declining: we five buried him
 That eve, and then, dividing, went five
 ways,
 And I, disguised, returned to Ephesus.

By this, the cave's mouth must be filled with sand.

Valens is lost, I know not of his trace;
 The Bactrian was but a wild childish man,
 And could not write nor speak, but only
 loved:

So, lest the memory of this go quite,
 Seeing that I to-morrow fight the beasts,
 I tell the same to Phœbas, whom believe!
 For many look again to find that face,
 Beloved John's to whom I ministered, Somewhere in life about the world; they err:

Either mistaking what was darkly spoke
 At ending of his book, as he relates,
 Or misconceiving somewhat of this speech Scattered from mouth to mouth, as I suppose.

Believe ye will not see him any more
 About the world with his divine regard!
 For all was as I say, and now the man Lies as he lay once, breast to breast with
 God.

[Cerinthus read and mused; one added
 this:

'If Christ, as thou affirmest, be of men
 'Mere man, the first and best but nothing
 more,—

'Account Him, for reward of what He was,
 'Now and for ever, wretchedest of all.
 'For see; Himself conceived of life as love,
 'Conceived of love as what must enter in,
 'Fill up, make one with His each soul He
 loved:

'Thus much for man's joy, all men's joy
 for Him.

'Well, He is gone, thou sayest, to fit reward.
 'But by this time are many souls set free,
 'And very many still retained alive:
 'Nay, should His coming be delayed
 awhile,

'Say, ten years longer (twelve years, some compute)

A DEATH IN THE DESERT

'See if, for every finger of thy hands,
'There be not found, that day the world
shall end,
'Hundreds of souls, each holding by Christ's word
'That He will grow incorporate with all,
'With me as Pamphylax, with him as John,
'Groom for each bride! Can a mere man
do this?
'Yet Christ saith, this He lived and died
to do.
'Call Christ, then, the illimitable God,
'Or lost!'

But 'twas Cerinthus that is lost.]

CALIBAN UPON SETEBOS; OR, NATURAL THEOLOGY IN THE ISLAND.

'Thou thoughtest that I was altogether such a one as thyself.'

['WILL sprawl, now that the heat of day is
best,
Flat on his belly in the pit's much mire,
With elbows wide, fists clenched to prop his chin.
And, while he kicks both feet in the cool slush,
And feels about his spine small eft-things
course,
Run in and out each arm, and make him
laugh:
And while above his head a pompion-
plant,
Coating the cave-top as a brow its eye, Creeps down to touch and tickle hair and
beard,
And now a flower drops with a bee inside,
And now a fruit to snap at, catch and crunch.—
He looks out o'er yon sea which sunbeams
cross
And recross till they weave a spider-web (Meshes of fire, some great fish breaks at times)
And talks to his own self, howe'er he
please,
Touching that other, whom his dam called
God.
Because to talk about Him, vexes—ha, Could He but know! and time to vex is
now,
When talk is safer than in winter-time.
Moreover Prosper and Miranda sleep
In confidence he drudges at their task,
And it is good to cheat the pair, and gibe, Letting the rank tongue blossom into Setebos, Setebos, and Setebos!

'Thinketh, He dwelleth i' the cold o' the moon.

'Thinketh He made it, with the sun to
match,
But not the stars; the stars come otherwise;
Only made clouds, winds, meteors, such as that:
Also this isle, what lives and grows thereon,
And snaky sea which rounds and ends the
same.

'Thinketh, it came of being ill at ease:
He hated that He cannot change His cold,
Nor cure its ache. 'Hath spied an icy fish
That longed to 'scape the rock-stream where she lived,
And thaw herself within the lukewarm brine

O' the lazy sea her stream thrusts far amid,
A crystal spike 'twixt two warm walls of
wave;

Only, she ever sickened, found repulse
At the other kind of water, not her life, (Green-dense and dim-delicious, bred o'
the sun)

Flounced back from bliss she was not born to breathe,
And in her old bounds buried her despair, Hating and loving warmth alike: so He.

'Thinketh, He made thereat the sun, this
isle,
Trees and the fowls here, beast and creeping thing.

Yon otter, sleek-wet, black, lithe as a leech;
Yon auk, one fire-eye in a ball of foam,
That floats and feeds; a certain badger
brown

He hath watched hunt with that slant white-wedged eye
By moonlight; and the pie with the long tongue

That pricks deep into oakwarts for a worm,
And says a plain word when she finds her
prize,

But will not eat the ants; the ants themselves
That build a wall of seeds and settled stalks About their hole—He made all these and
more,

Made all we see, and us, in spite: how else?
He could not, Himself, make a second self
To be His mate; as well have made Him-
self:

He would not make what he mislikes or slights,
An eyesore to Him, or not worth His
pains:

But did, in envy, listlessness or sport,
Make what Himself would fain, in a manner, be—

Weaker in most points, stronger in a few,
Worthy, and yet mere playthings all the while,

CALIBAN UPON SETEBOS

Things He admires and mocks too,—that is it.

Because, so brave, so better though they
be,

It nothing skills if He begin to plague.

Look now, I melt a gourd-fruit into mash, Add honeycomb and pods, I have per-
ceived,

Which bite like finches when they bill and
kiss,—

Then, when froth rises bladdery, drink up
all,

Quick, quick, till maggots scamper through my brain;

Last, throw me on my back i' the seeded thyme,

And wanton, wishing I were born a bird.
Put case, unable to be what I wish,

I yet could make a live bird out of clay:
Would not I take clay, pinch my Caliban

Able to fly?—for, there, see, he hath
wings,

And treat comb like the hoopoe's to admire,

And there, a sting to do his foes offence,
There, and I will that he begin to live,

Fly to yon rock-top, nip me off the horns
Of grigs high up that make the merry din,

Saucy through their veined wings, and mind me not.

In which feat, if his leg snapped, brittle
clay,

And he lay stupid-like,—why, I should
laugh;

And if he, spying me, should fall to weep,
Beseech me to be good, repair his wrong,

Bid his poor legs smart less or grow again,— Well, as the chance were, this might take
or else

Not take my fancy: I might hear his cry,
And give the manikin three sound legs for
one,

Or pluck the other off, leave him like an egg,

And lessoned he was mine and merely
clay.

Were this no pleasure, lying in the thyme, Drinking the mash, with brain become
alive,

Making and marring clay at will? So He.

'Thinketh, such shows nor right nor wrong in Him,

Nor kind, nor cruel: He is strong and
Lord.

'Am strong myself compared to yonder crabs

That march now from the mountain to the sea;

'Let twenty pass, and stone the twenty-
first,

Loving not, hating not, just choosing so.

'Say, the first straggler that boasts purple spots

Shall join the file, one pincer twisted off;
'Say, this bruised fellow shall receive a
worm,

And two worms he whose nippers end in red;

As it likes me each time, I do: so He.

Well then, 'supposeth He is good i' the main,

Placable if His mind and ways were
guessed,

But rougher than His handiwork, be sure!
Oh, He hath made things worthier than Himself,

And envieth that, so helped, such things do more

Than He who made them! What consoles but this?

That they, unless through Him, do nought
at all,

And must submit: what other use in
things?

'Hath cut a pipe of pithless elder-joint That, blown through, gives exact the scream o' the jay

When from her wing you twitch the feathers blue:

Sound this, and little birds that hate the jay

Flock within stone's throw, glad their foe is hurt:

Put case such pipe could prattle and boast
forsooth

'I catch the birds, I am the crafty thing,
'I make the cry my maker cannot make

'With his great round mouth; he must blow through mine!'

Would not I smash it with my foot? So He.

But wherefore rough, why cold and ill at ease?

Aha, that is a question! Ask, for that,
What knows,—the something over Setebos

That made Him, or He, may be, found and fought,

Worsted, drove off and did to nothing,
perchance.

There may be something quiet o'er His
head,

Out of His reach, that feels nor joy nor grief,

Since both derive from weakness in some
way.

I joy because the quails come; would not
joy

Could I bring quails here when I have a
mind:

This Quiet, all it hath a mind to, doth.

'Esteemeth stars the outposts of its couch,
But never spends much thought nor care that way.

It may look up, work up,—the worse for those

CALIBAN UPON SETEBOS

It works on! 'Careth but for Setebos
 The many-handed as a cuttle-fish,
 Who, making Himself feared through what He does,
 Looks up, first, and perceives he cannot soar
 To what is quiet and hath happy life;
 Next looks down here, and out of very spite
 Makes this a bauble-world to ape yon real,
 These good things to match those as hips do grapes.
 'Tis solace making baubles, ay, and sport.
 Himself peeped late, eyed Prosper at his books
 Careless and lofty, lord now of the isle:
 Vexed, 'stitched a book of broad leaves,
 arrow-shaped,
 Wrote thereon, he knows what, prodigious
 words;
 Has peeled a wand and called it by a name;
 Weareth at whiles for an enchanter's robe
 The eyed skin of a supple oncelot;
 And hath an ounce sleeker than youngling mole,
 A four-legged serpent he makes cower and couch,
 Now snarl, now hold its breath and mind
 his eye,
 And saith she is Miranda and my wife:
 'Keeps for his Ariel a tall pouch-bill crane
 He bids go wade for fish and straight disgorge;
 Also a sea-beast, lumpish, which he snared, Blinded the eyes of, and brought somewhat tame,
 And split its toe-webs, and now pens the drudge
 In a hole o' the rock and calls him Caliban;
 A bitter heart that bides its time and bites.
 'Plays thus at being Prosper in a way,
 Taketh his mirth with make-believes: so
 He.

His dam held that the Quiet made all things
 Which Setebos vexed only: 'holds not so.
 Who made them weak, meant weakness
 He might vex.
 Had He meant other, while His Hand was
 in,
 Why not make horny eyes no thorn could
 prick,
 Or plate my scalp with bone against the
 snow,
 Or overscale my flesh 'neath joint and
 joint,
 Like an orc's armour? Ay,—so spoil His sport!
 He is the One now: only He doth all.

'Saith, He may like, perchance, what profits Him.
 Ay, himself loves what does him good;
 but why?

'Gets good no otherwise. This blinded beast
 Loves whoso places flesh-meat on his nose.
 But, had he eyes, would want no help, but hate
 Or love, just as it liked him: He hath eyes.
 Also it pleaseth Setebos to work,
 Use all His hands, and exercise much craft,
 By no means for the love of what is worked.
 'Tasteth, himself, no finer good i' the
 world
 When all goes right, in this safe summer-
 time,
 And he wants little, hungers, aches not
 much,
 Than trying what to do with wit and
 strength.
 'Falls to make something: 'piled yon pile of turfs,
 And squared and stuck there squares of soft white chalk,
 And, with a fish-tooth, scratched a moon
 on each,
 And set up endwise certain spikes of tree,
 And crowned the whole with a sloth's skull a-top,
 Found dead i' the woods, too hard for one to kill.
 No use at all i' the work, for work's sole
 sake;
 'Shall some day knock it down again: so
 He.

'Saith He is terrible: watch His feats in
 proof!
 One hurricane will spoil six good months'
 hope.
 He hath a spite against me, that I know,
 Just as He favours Prosper, who knows
 why?
 So it is, all the same, as well I find.
 'Wove wattles half the winter, fenced them firm
 With stone and stake to stop she-tortoises Crawling to lay their eggs here: well, one
 wave,
 Feeling the foot of Him upon its neck,
 Gaped as a snake does, lolled out its large
 tongue,
 And licked the whole labour flat: so much for spite.
 'Saw a ball flame down late (yonder it lies) Where, half an hour before, I slept i' the shade:
 Often they scatter sparkles: there is force!
 'Dug up a newt He may have envied once
 And turned to stone, shut up inside a stone.
 Please Him and hinder this?—What Prosper does?
 Aha, if He would tell me how! Not He!
 There is the sport: discover how or die!
 All need not die, for of the things o' the isle
 Some flee afar, some dive, some run up
 trees;

CALIBAN UPON SETEBOS

Those at His mercy,—why, they please Him most

When . . . when . . . well, never try the same way twice!

Repeat what act has pleased, He may grow wroth.

You must not know His ways, and play
Him off,

Sure of the issue. 'Doth the like himself:
'Spareth a squirrel that it nothing fears But steals the nut from underneath my thumb,

And when I threat, bites stoutly in defence:
'Spareth an urchin that contrariwise,
Curls up into a ball, pretending death
For fright at my approach: the two ways
please.

But what would move my choler more than this,

That either creature counted on its life
To-morrow and next day and all days to
come,

Saying, forsooth, in the inmost of its heart,
'Because he did so yesterday with me,
'And otherwise with such another brute,
'So must he do henceforth and always.'—
Ay?

Would teach the reasoning couple what
'must' means!

'Doth as he likes, or wherefore Lord? So
He.

'Conceiveth all things will continue thus,
And we shall have to live in fear of Him
So long as He lives, keeps His strength: no
change,

If He have done His best, make no new
world

To please Him more, so leave off watching
this,—

If He surprise not even the Quiet's self Some strange day,—or, suppose, grow into it

As grubs grow butterflies: else, here are we,
And there is He, and nowhere help at all.

'Believeth with the life, the pain shall stop.
His dam held different, that after death
He both plagued enemies and feasted
friends:

Idly! He doth His worst in this our life, Giving just respite lest we die through
pain,

Saving last pain for worst,—with which,
an end.

Meanwhile, the best way to escape His ire
Is, not to seem too happy. 'Sees, himself, Yonder two flies, with purple films and pink,

Bask on the pompion-bell above: kills
both.

'Sees two black painful beetles roll their
ball

On head and tail as if to save their lives:

Moves them the stick away they strive to clear.

Even so, 'would have Him misconceive,
suppose

This Caliban strives hard and ails no less,
And always, above all else, envies Him;
Wherefore he mainly dances on dark
nights,

Moans in the sun, gets under holes to
laugh,

And never speaks his mind save housed
as now:

Outside, 'groans, curses. If He caught me
here,

O'erheard this speech, and asked 'What chucklest at?'

'Would, to appease Him, cut a finger off,
Or of my three kid yearlings burn the best,
Or let the toothsome apples rot on tree,
Or push my tame beast for the orc to taste:

While myself lit a fire, and made a song
And sung it, 'What I hate, be consecrate

'To celebrate Thee and Thy state, no mate
'For Thee; what see for envy in poor me?'

Hoping the while, since evils sometimes
mend,

Warts rub away and sores are cured with slime,

That some strange day, will either the Quiet catch

And conquer Setebos, or likelier He Decrepit may doze, doze, as good as die.

[What, what? A curtain o'er the world at
once!

Crickets stop hissing; not a bird—or, yes,
There scuds His raven that has told Him
all!

It was fool's play, this prattling! Ha! The wind

Shoulders the pillared dust, death's house
o' the move,

And fast invading fires begin! White
blaze—

A tree's head snaps—and there, there,
there, there, there,

His thunder follows! Fool to gibe at Him!
Lo! 'Lieth flat and loveth Setebos!

'Maketh his teeth meet through his upper
lip,

Will let those quails fly, will not eat this month

One little mess of whelks, so he may
'scape!]

CONFESSIONS

I

WHAT is he buzzing in my ears?

'Now that I come to die,

'Do I view the world as a vale of tears?'

Ah, reverend sir, not I

CONFESSIONS

II

What I viewed there once, what I view
again
Where the physic bottles stand
On the table's edge,—is a suburb lane,
With a wall to my bedside hand.

III

That lane sloped, much as the bottles do,
From a house you could descry
O'er the garden-wall: is the curtain blue
Or green to a healthy eye?

IV

To mine, it serves for the old June weather
Blue above lane and wall;
And that farthest bottle labelled 'Ether'
Is the house o'ertopping all.

V

At a terrace, somewhere near the stopper,
There watched for me, one June,
A girl: I know, sir, it's improper,
My poor mind's out of tune.

VI

Only, there was a way . . . you crept
Close by the side, to dodge Eyes in the house, two eyes except:
They styled their house 'The Lodge.'

VII

What right had a lounge up their lane?
But, by creeping very close,
With the good wall's help,—their eyes might strain
And stretch themselves to Oes,

VIII

Yet never catch her and me together,
As she left the attic, there,
By the rim of the bottle labelled 'Ether,'
And stole from stair to stair,

IX

And stood by the rose-wreathed gate.
Alas,
We loved, sir—used to meet:
How sad and bad and mad it was—
But then, how it was sweet!

MAY AND DEATH

I

I wish that when you died last May,
Charles, there had died along with you
Three parts of spring's delightful things;
Ay, and, for me, the fourth part too.

II

A foolish thought, and worse, perhaps!
There must be many a pair of friends
Who, arm in arm, deserve the warm
Moon-births and the long evening-ends.

III

So, for their sake, be May still May!
Let their new time, as mine of old,
Do all it did for me: I bid Sweet sights and sounds throng manifold.

IV

Only, one little sight, one plant,
Woods have in May, that starts up green
Save a sole streak which, so to speak,
Is spring's blood, spilt its leaves between,—

V

That, they might spare; a certain wood Might miss the plant; their loss were
small:
But I,—where'er the leaf grows there,
Its drop comes from my heart, that's all.

DEAF AND DUMB

A GROUP BY WOOLNER

ONLY the prism's obstruction shows aright
The secret of a sunbeam, breaks its light
Into the jewelled bow from blankest white;
So may a glory from defect arise:
Only by Deafness may the vexed Love
wreak
Its insuppressible sense on brow and cheek,
Only by Dumbness adequately speak
As favoured mouth could never, through the eyes.

PROSPICE

FEAR death?—to feel the fog in my throat,
The mist in my face,
When the snows begin, and the blasts denote
I am nearing the place,
The power of the night, the press of the storm,
The post of the foe;
Where he stands, the Arch Fear in a visible
form,
Yet the strong man must go:
For the journey is done and the summit
attained,
And the barriers fall,
Though a battle's to fight ere the guerdon be gained,
The reward of it all.
I was ever a fighter, so—one fight more,
The best and the last!
I would hate that death bandaged my eyes,
and forebore,
And bade me creep past.
No! let me taste the whole of it, fare like my peers
The heroes of old,
Bear the brunt, in a minute pay glad life's arrears
Of pain, darkness and cold.

For sudden the worst turns the best to the brave,

The black minute's at end,
And the elements' rage, the fiend-voices that rave,
Shall dwindle, shall blend, .

Shall change, shall become first a peace out of pain,

Then a light, then thy breast,
O thou soul of my soul! I shall clasp thee
again,

And with God be the rest!

EURYDICE TO ORPHEUS

A PICTURE BY LEIGHTON

BUT give them me, the mouth, the eyes, the
brow!

Let them once more absorb me! One look
now

Will lap me round for ever, not to pass
Out of its light, though darkness lie beyond:

Hold me but safe again within the bond
Of one immortal look! All woe that
was,

Forgotten, and all terror that may be,
Defied,—no past is mine, no future: look at me!

YOUTH AND ART

I

It once might have been, once only:

We lodged in a street together,
You, a sparrow on the housetop lonely,
I, a lone she-bird of his feather.

II

Your trade was with sticks and clay, You thumbed, thrust, patted and polished,
Then laughed 'They will see some day
'Smith made, and Gibson demolished.'

III

My business was song, song, song;
I chirped, cheeped, trilled and twittered,
'Kate Brown's on the boards ere long,
'And Grisi's existence embittered!'

IV

I earned no more by a warble
Than you by a sketch in plaster;
You wanted a piece of marble,
I needed a music-master.

V

We studied hard in our styles,
Chipped each at a crust like Hindoos,
For air looked out on the tiles,
For fun watched each other's windows.

VI

You lounged, like a boy of the South, Cap and blouse—nay, a bit of beard
too;

Or you got it, rubbing your mouth
With fingers the clay adhered to.

VII

And I—soon managed to find Weak points in the flower-fence facing,
Was forced to put up a blind
And be safe in my corset-lacing.

VIII

No harm! It was not my fault
If you never turned your eye's tail up
As I shook upon E in alt,
Or ran the chromatic scale up:

IX

For spring bade the sparrows pair,
And the boys and girls gave guesses,
And stalls in our street looked rare
With bulrush and watercresses.

X

Why did not you pinch a flower
In a pellet of clay and fling it?
Why did not I put a power
Of thanks in a look, or sing it?

XI

I did look, sharp as a lynx,
(And yet the memory rankles)
When models arrived, some minx
Tripped up-stairs, she and her ankles.

XII

But I think I gave you as good!
'That foreign fellow,—who can know
'How she pays, in a playful mood,
'For his tuning her that piano?'

XIII

Could you say so, and never say
'Suppose we join hands and fortunes,
'And I fetch her from over the way,
'Her piano, and long tunes and short tunes?'

XIV

No, no: you would not be rash,
Nor I rasher and something over:
You've to settle yet Gibson's hash,
And Grisi yet lives in clover.

XV

But you meet the Prince at the Board,
I'm queen myself at bals-paré,
I've married a rich old lord,
And you're dubbed knight and an R.A.

XVI

Each life unfulfilled, you see;
It hangs still, patchy and scrappy:
We have not sighed deep, laughed free, Starved, feasted, despaired,—been happy.

xvii

And nobody calls you a dunce,
And people suppose me clever:
This could but have happened once,
And we missed it, lost it for ever.

A FACE

If one could have that little head of hers
Painted upon a background of pale gold,
Such as the Tuscan's early art prefers!
No shade encroaching on the matchless
mould
Of those two lips, which should be opening
soft
In the pure profile; not as when she laughs,
For that spoils all; but rather as if aloft Yon hyacinth, she loves so, leaned its staff's
Burthen of honey-coloured buds to kiss
And capture 'twixt the lips apart for this.
Then her lithe neck, three fingers might
surround,
How it should waver on the pale gold
ground
Up to the fruit-shaped, perfect chin it lifts!
I know, Correggio loves to mass, in rifts
Of heaven, his angel faces, orb on orb Breaking its outline, burning shades absorb:
But these are only massed there, I should
think,
Waiting to see some wonder momentarily Grow out, stand full, fade slow against
the sky
(That's the pale ground you'd see this sweet face by),
All heaven, meanwhile, condensed into one eye
Which fears to lose the wonder, should it wink.

A LIKENESS

SOME people hang portraits up
In a room where they dine or sup:
And the wife clinks tea-things under,
And her cousin, he stirs his cup,
Asks, 'Who was the lady, I wonder?'
'Tis a daub John bought at a sale, Quoth the wife,—looks black as thunder:
'What a shade beneath her nose!
'Snuff-taking, I suppose,—'
Adds the cousin, while John's corns ail.
Or else, there's no wife in the case,
But the portrait's queen of the place,
Alone 'mid the other spoils
Of youth,—masks, gloves and foils,
And pipe-sticks, rose, cherry-tree, jasmine,
And the long whip, the tandem-lasher,
And the cast from a fist ('not, alas! mine,
'But my master's, the Tipton Slasher'),
And the cards where pistol-balls mark ace,
And a satin shoe used for cigar-case,

And the chamois-horns ('shot in the Chablais')

And prints—Rarey drumming on Cruis-ser,

And Sayers, our champion, the bruiser,
And the little edition of Rabelais:

Where a friend, with both hands in his pockets,

May saunter up close to examine it,
And remark a good deal of Jane Lamb
in it,

'But the eyes are half out of their sockets;
'That hair's not so bad, where the gloss is,

'But they've made the girl's nose a pro-boscis:

'Jane Lamb, that we danced with at Vichy!
'What, is not she Jane? Then, who is she?'

All that I own is a print,

An etching, a mezzotint;

'Tis a study, a fancy, a fiction,

Yet a fact (take my conviction)

Because it has more than a hint

Of a certain face, I never Saw elsewhere touch or trace of

In women I've seen the face of:

Just an etching, and, so far, clever.

I keep my prints, an imbroglio,
Fifty in one portfolio.

When somebody tries my claret,

We turn round chairs to the fire,

Chirp over days in a garret,

Chuckle o'er increase of salary,

Taste the good fruits of our leisure,

Talk about pencil and lyre,

And the National Portrait Gallery:

Then I exhibit my treasure.

After we've turned over twenty,

And the debt of wonder my crony owes

Is paid to my Marc Antonios,

He stops me—'Festina lente!

'What's that sweet thing there, the etch-
ing?'

How my waistcoat-strings want stretching,

How my cheeks grow red as tomatoes,

How my heart leaps! But hearts, after leaps, ache.

'By the by, you must take, for a keepsake,

'That other, you praised, of Volnato's.'

The fool! would he try a flight further and
say—

He never saw, never before to-day,

What was able to take his breath away,

A face to lose youth for, to occupy age

With the dream of, meet death with,— why, I'll not engage

But that, half in a rapture and half in a
rage,

I should toss him the thing's self—'Tis only a duplicate,

'A thing of no value! Take it, I supplicate!'

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Now, don't, sir! Don't expose me! Just this once!

This was the first and only time, I'll swear,—

Look at me,—see, I kneel,—the only time, I swear, I ever cheated,—yes, by the soul Of Her who hears—(your sainted mother, sir!)

All, except this last accident, was truth—This little kind of slip!—and even this, It was your own wine, sir, the good champagne,

(I took it for Catawba, you're so kind) Which put the folly in my head!

'Get up?'

You still inflict on me that terrible face? You show no mercy?—Not for Her dear sake,

The sainted spirit's, whose soft breath even now Blows on my cheek—(don't you feel some-thing, sir?)

You'll tell?

Go tell, then! Who the devil cares What such a rowdy chooses to . . .

Aie—aie—aie!

Please, sir! your thumbs are through my windpipe, sir!

Ch—ch!

Well, sir, I hope you've done it now! Oh Lord! I little thought, sir, yesterday, When your departed mother spoke those words

Of peace through me, and moved you, sir, so much,

You gave me—(very kind it was of you) These shirt-studs—(better take them back again, Please, sir)—yes, little did I think so soon A trifle of trick, all through a glass too much

Of his own champagne, would change my best of friends

Into an angry gentleman!

Though, 'twas wrong. I don't contest the point; your anger's just:

Whatever put such folly in my head, I know 'twas wicked of me. There's a thick Dusk undeveloped spirit (I've observed) Owes me a grudge—a negro's, I should say,

Or else an Irish emigrant's; yourself Explained the case so well last Sunday, sir, When we had summoned Franklin to clear up

A point about those shares i' the telegraph: Ay, and he swore . . . or might it be Tom Paine? . . .

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Thumping the table close by where I crouched,

He'd do me soon a mischief: that's come true!

Why, now your face clears! I was sure it would!

Then, this one time . . . don't take your hand away,

Through your's I surely kiss your mother's hand . . .

You'll promise to forgive me?—or, at least,

Tell nobody of this? Consider, sir! What harm can mercy do? Would but the shade

Of the venerable dead—one just vouchsafe A rap or tip! What bit of paper's here?

Suppose we take a pencil, let her write, Make the least sign, she urges on her child

Forgiveness? There now! Eh? Oh! 'Twas your foot,

And not a natural creak, sir?

Answer, then!

Once, twice, thrice . . . see, I'm waiting to say 'thrice!'

All to no use? No sort of hope for me? It's all to post to Greeley's newspaper?

What? If I told you all about the tricks? Upon my soul!—the whole truth, and nought else, And how there's been some falsehood—

for your part, Will you engage to pay my passage out,

And hold your tongue until I'm safe on board?

England's the place, not Boston—no offence!

I see what makes you hesitate: don't fear! I mean to change my trade and cheat no more, Yes, this time really it's upon my soul!

Be my salvation!—under Heaven, of course.

I'll tell some queer things. Sixty Vs must do.

A trifle, though, to start with! We'll refer The question to this table?

How you're changed!

Then split the difference; thirty more, we'll say.

Ay, but you leave my presents! Else I'll swear

'Twas all through those: you wanted yours again,

So, picked a quarrel with me, to get them back!

Tread on a worm, it turns, sir! If I turn, Your fault! 'Tis you'll have forced me!

Who's obliged To give up life yet try no self-defence?

At all events, I'll run the risk. Eh?

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Done!
 May I sit, sir? This dear old table, now!
 Please, sir, a parting egg-nogg and cigar!
 I've been so happy with you! Nice stuffed chairs,
 And sympathetic sideboards; what an end To all the instructive evenings! (It's alright.)
 Well, nothing lasts, as Bacon came and
 said.
 Here goes,—but keep your temper, or I'll scream!

Fol-lol-the-rido-liddle-iddle-ol!
 You see, sir, it's your own fault more than
 mine;
 It's all your fault, you curious gentlefolk!
 You're prigs,—excuse me,—like to look so spry,
 So clever, while you cling by half a claw
 To the perch whereon you puff yourselves at roost,
 Such piece of self-conceit as serves for perch
 Because you chose it, so it must be safe.
 Oh, otherwise you're sharp enough! You spy
 Who slips, who slides, who holds by help of wing,
 Wanting real foothold,—who can't keep upright
 On the other perch, your neighbour chose,
 not you:
 There's no outwitting you respecting him!
 For instance, men love money—that, you
 know
 And what men do to gain it; well, suppose
 A poor lad, say a help's son in your house,
 Listening at keyholes, hears the company Talk grand of dollars, V-notes, and so
 forth,
 How hard they are to get, how good to
 hold,
 How much they buy,—if, suddenly, in pops he—
 'I've got a V-note!'—what do you say to
 him?
 What's your first word which follows your last kick?
 'Where did you steal it, rascal?' That's because
 He finds you, fain would fool you, off your perch,
 Not on the special piece of nonsense, sir,
 Elected your parade-ground: let him try Lies to the end of the list,—'He picked it
 up,
 'His cousin died and left it him by will,
 'The President flung it to him, riding by,
 'An actress trucked it for a curl of his hair,
 'He dreamed of luck and found his shoe enriched,
 'He dug up clay, and out of clay made
 gold—

How would you treat such possibilities?
 Would not you, prompt, investigate the
 case
 With cow-hide? 'Lies, lies, lies,' you'd shout: and why?
 Which of the stories might not prove mere
 truth?
 This last, perhaps, that clay was turned to coin!
 Let's see, now, give him me to speak for
 him!
 How many of your rare philosophers,
 In plaguy books I've had to dip into,
 Believed gold could be made thus, saw it
 made
 And made it? Oh, with such philosophers You're on your best behaviour! While the lad—
 With him, in a trice, you settle likelihoods,
 Nor doubt a moment how he got his prize:
 In his case, you hear, judge and execute,
 All in a breath: so would most men of
 " sense.

But let the same lad hear you talk as grand
 At the same keyhole, you and company,
 Of signs and wonders, the invisible world;
 How wisdom scouts our vulgar unbelief!
 More than our vilest credulity:
 How good men have desired to see a ghost,
 What Johnson used to say, what Wesley
 did,
 Mother Goose thought, and fiddle-diddle-dee:—
 If he break in with, 'Sir, I saw a ghost!'
 Ah, the ways change! He finds you perched and prim;
 It's a conceit of yours that ghosts may be:
 There's no talk now of cow-hide. 'Tell it
 out!
 'Don't fear us! Take your time and recollect!
 'Sit down first: try a glass of wine, my boy!
 'And, David, (is not that your Christian
 name?)
 'Of all things, should this happen twice—
 it may—
 'Be sure, while fresh in mind, you let us
 know!
 Does the boy blunder, blurt out this, blab
 that,
 Break down in the other, as beginners will?
 All's candour, all's considerateness—'No
 haste!
 'Pause and collect yourself! We understand!
 'That's the bad memory, or the natural
 shock,
 'Or the unexplained phenomena!'

Egad,
 The boy takes heart of grace; finds, never
 fear,
 The readiest way to ope yo'r own heart
 wide,

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Show—what I call your peacock-porch, pet post
To strut, and spread the tail, and squawk
upon!
'Just as you thought, much as you might expect!
'There be more things in heaven and earth,
Horatio.' . . .
And so on. Shall not David take the hint, Grow bolder, stroke you down at quickened rate?
If he ruffle a feather, it's 'Gently, patiently!
'Manifestations are so weak at first!
'Doubting, moreover, kills them, cuts all
short,
'Cures with a vengeance!'

There, sir, that's your style!
You and your boy—such pains bestowed
on him,
Or any headpiece of the average worth,
To teach, say, Greek, would perfect him
apace,
Make him a Person ('Porson?' thank you,
sir!)
Much more, proficient in the art of lies.
You never leave the lesson! Fire alight, Catch you permitting it to die! You've
friends;
There's no withholding knowledge,— least from those Apt to look elsewhere for their souls' supply:
Why should not you parade your lawful
prize?
Who finds a picture, digs a medal up,
Hits on a first edition,—he henceforth Gives it his name, grows notable: how much more,
Who ferrets out a 'medium'? 'David's
yours,
'You highly-favoured man? Then, pity
souls
'Less privileged! Allow us share your luck!
So, David holds the circle, rules the roast,
Narrates the vision, peeps in the glass ball,
Sets-to the spirit-writing, hears the raps,
As the case may be.

Now mark! To be precise—Though I say, 'lies' all these, at this first
stage,
'Tis just for science' sake: I call such grubs
By the name of what they'll turn to, dragonflies.
Strictly, it's what good people style un-
truth;
But yet, so far, not quite the full-grown
thing:
It's fancying, fable-making, nonsense-
work—
What never meant to be so very bad—
The knack of story-telling, brightening up
Each dull old bit of fact that drops its shine.

One does see somewhat when one shuts one's eyes,
If only spots and streaks; tables do tip
In the oddest way of themselves: and pens, good Lord,
Who knows if you drive them or they drive
you?
'Tis but a foot in the water and out again;
Not that duck-under which decides your dive.
Note this, for it's important: listen why.

I'll prove, you push on David till he dives And ends the shivering. Here's your circle, now:
Two-thirds of them, with heads like you their host,
Turn up their eyes, and cry, as you expect,
'Lord, who'd have thought it!' But there's always one Looks wise, compassionately smiles, submits
'Of your veracity no kind of doubt,
'But—do you feel so certain of that boy's?
'Really, I wonder! I confess myself
'More chary of my faith!' That's galling,
sir!
What, he the investigator, he the sage,
When all's done? Then, you just have shut your eyes,
Opened your mouth, and gulped down
David whole,
You! Terrible were such catastrophe!
So, evidence is redoubled, doubled again,
And doubled besides; once more, 'He heard, we heard,
'You and they heard, your mother and your wife,
'Your children and the stranger in your gates:
'Did they or did they not?' So much for
him,
The black sheep, guest without the wedding-garb,
The doubting Thomas! Now's your turn to crow:
'He's kind to think you such a fool: Sludge cheats?

'Leave you alone to take precautions!'
Straight
The rest join chorus. Thomas stands
abashed,
Sips silent some such beverage as this,
Considers if it be harder, shutting eyes
And gulping David in good fellowship,
Than going elsewhere, getting, in ex-
change,
With no egg-nogg to lubricate the food,
Some just as tough a morsel. Over the
way,
Holds Captain Sparks his court: is it better
there?
Have not you hunting-stories, scalping-
scenes,

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

And Mexican War exploits to swallow plump

If you'd be free o' the stove-side, rockingchair,

And trio of affable daughters?
Doubt succumbs!

Victory! All your circle's yours again!
Out of the clubbing of submissive wigs,

David's performance rounds, each chink gets patched,

Every protrusion of a point's filed fine,
All's fit to set a-rolling round the world,

And then return to David finally,
Lies seven-feet thick about his first half-
inch.

Here's a choice birth o' the supernatural, Poor David's pledged to! You've employed no tool

That laws exclaim at, save the devil's own, Yet screwed him into henceforth gulling
you

To the top o' your bent,—all out of one half-lie!

You hold, if there's one half or a hundredth
part

Of a lie, that's his fault,—his be the penalty!

I dare say! You'd prove firmer in his
place?

You'd find the courage,—that first flurry
over,

That mild bit of romancing-work at end,—
To interpose with 'It gets serious, this;

'Must stop here. Sir, I saw no ghost at all.
'Inform your friends I made . . . well, fools of them,

'And found you ready-made. I've lived in clover

'These three weeks: take it out in kicks
of me!'

I doubt it. Ask your conscience! Let me
know,

Twelve months hence, with how few em-bellishments

You've told almighty Boston of this passage

Of arms between us, your first taste o' the foil

From Sludge who could not fence, sir!
Sludge, your boy!

I lied, sir,—there! I got up from my gorge
On offal in the gutter, and preferred
Your canvas-backs: I took their carver's
size,

Measured his modicum of intelligence,
Tickled him on the cockles of his heart
With a raven feather, and next week found myself

Sweet and clean, dining daintily, dizen'd smart,

Set on a stool buttressed by ladies' knees,
Every soft smiler calling me her pet,
Encouraging my story to uncoil

And creep out from its hole, inch after inch,

'How last night, I no sooner snug in bed,
'Tucked up, just as they left me,—than came raps!

'While a light whisked'; . . . 'Shaped somewhat like a star?'

'Well, like some sort of stars, ma'am.'—
'So we thought!

'And any voice? Not yet? Try hard,
next time,

'If you can't hear a voice; we think you
may:

'At least, the Pennsylvanian "mediums"
did.'

Oh, next time comes the voice! 'Just as we hoped!'

Are not the hoppers proud now, pleased, profuse

O' the natural acknowledgment?
Of course!

So, off we push, illy-oh-yo, trim the boat,
On we sweep with a cataract ahead,

We're midway to the Horseshoe: stop,
who can,

The dance of bubbles gay about our prow!
Experiences become worth waiting for,

Spirits now speak up, tell their inmost
mind,

And compliment the 'medium' properly, Concern themselves about his Sunday
coat,

See rings on his hand with pleasure. Ask yourself

How you'd receive a course of treats like
these!

Why, take the quietest hack and stall him
up,

Cram him with corn a month, then out
with him

Among his mates on a bright April morn,
With the turf to tread; see if you find or no
A caper in him, if he bucks or bolts!

Much more a youth whose fancies sprout as rank

As toadstool-clump from melon-bed. 'Tis
soon,

'Sirrah, you spirit, come, go, fetch and carry,

'Read, write, rap, rub-a-dub, and hang
yourself!'

I'm spared all further trouble; all's arranged;

Your circle does my business; I may rave
Like an epileptic dervish in the books,

Foam, fling myself flat, rend my clothes to shreds;

No matter: lovers, friends and country-
men

Will lay down spiritual laws, read wrong things right

By the rule o' reverse. If Francis Verulam

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Styles himself Bacon, spells the name
beside

With a y and a k, says he drew breath in York,

Gave up the ghost in Wales when Cromwell reigned,

(As, sir, we somewhat fear he was apt to
say,

Before I found the useful book that knows) Why, what harm's done? The circle smiles

apace,
'It was not Bacon, after all, you see!

'We understand; the trick's but natural:
'Such spirits' individuality

'Is hard to put in evidence: they incline
'To gibe and jeer, these undeveloped sorts.

'You see, their world's much like a jail broke loose,

'While this of ours remains shut, bolted,
barred,

'With a single window to it. Sludge, our
friend,

'Serves as this window, whether thin or
thick,

'Or stained or stainless; he's the medium-pane

'Through which, to see us and be seen,
they peep:

'They crowd each other, hustle for a
chance,

'Tread on their neighbour's kibes, play tricks enough!

'Does Bacon, tired of waiting, swerve
aside?

'Up in his place jumps Barnum—"I'm your man,

"I'll answer you for Bacon!" Try once
more!

Or else it's—"What's a "medium"? He's a means,

'Good, bad, indifferent, still the only
means

'Spirits can speak by; he may misconceive,
'Stutter and stammer,—he's their Sludge and drudge,

'Take him or leave him; they must hold their peace,

'Or else, put up with having knowledge

strained
'To half-expression through his ignorance.

'Suppose, the spirit Beethoven wants to shed

'New music he's brimful of; why, he turns
'The handle of this organ, grinds with

Sludge,
'And what he poured in at the mouth o' the mill

'As a Thirty-third Sonata, (fancy now!)

'Comes from the hopper as bran-new Sludge, nought else,

'The Shakers' Hymn in G, with a natural F,

'Or the "Stars and Stripes" set to consecutive fourths.'

Sir, where's the scrape you did not help me through,

You that are wise? And for the fools, the folk

Who came to see,—the guests, (observe that word!)

Pray do you find guests criticize your wine,
Your furniture, your grammar, or your

nose?
Then, why your 'medium'? What's the difference?

Prove your madeira red-ink and gam-boge,—

Your Sludge, a cheat—then, somebody's a goose

For vaunting both as genuine. 'Guests!'
Don't fear!

They'll make a wry face, nor too much of
that,

And leave you in your glory.

'No, sometimes
'They doubt and say as much!' Ay, doubt they do!

And what's the consequence? 'Of course they doubt'— (You triumph) 'that explains the hitch at

once!
'Doubt posed our "medium," puddled

his pure mind;
'He gave them back their rubbish: pitch chaff in,

'Could flour come out o' the honest mill?'

So, prompt
Applaud the faithful: cases flock in point,

'How, when a mocker willed a "medium,"
once

'Should name a spirit James whose name was George,

"James" cried the "medium,"—'twas the test of truth!

In short, a hit proves much, a miss proves
more.

Does this convince? The better: does it fail?

Time for the double-shotted broadside,
then—

The grand means, last resource. Look black and big!

'You style us idiots, therefore—why stop
short?

'Accomplices in rascality: this we hear
'In our own house, from our invited guest

'Found brave enough to outrage a poor
boy

'Exposed by our good faith! Have you been heard?

'Now, then, hear us; one man's not quite worth twelve.

'You see a cheat? Here's some twelve see an ass

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

'Excuse me if I calculate: good day!'
Out slinks the sceptic, all the laughs explode.
Sludge waves his hat in triumph!

Or—he don't.
There's something in real truth (explain who can!)
One casts a wistful eye at, like the horse Who mopes beneath stuffed hay-racks and won't munch
Because he spies a corn-bag: hang that
truth,
It spoils all dainties proffered in its place!
I've felt at times when, cockered, cosseted
And coddled by the aforesaid company,
Bidden enjoy their bullying,—never fear,
But o'er their shoulders spit at the flying
man,—
I've felt a child; only, a fractious child
That, dandled soft by nurse, aunt, grandmother,
Who keep him from the kennel, sun and
wind,
Good fun and wholesome mud,—enjoined be sweet,
And comely and superior,—eyes askance
The ragged sons o' the gutter at their
game,
Fain would be down with them i' the thick
o' the filth,
Making dirt-pies, laughing free, speaking
plain,
And calling granny the grey old cat she is.
I've felt a spite, I say, at you, at them, Huggings and humbug—gnashed my teeth to mark
A decent dog pass! It's too bad, I say, Ruining a soul so!

But what's 'so,' what's fixed,
Where may one stop? Nowhere! The cheating's nursed
Out of the lying, softly and surely spun
To just your length, sir! I'd stop soon
enough:
But you're for progress. 'All old, nothing
new?
'Only the usual talking through the
mouth,
'Or writing by the hand? I own, I thought
'This would develop, grow demonstrable,
'Make doubt absurd, give figures we might see,
'Flowers we might touch. There's no one doubts you, Sludge!
'You dream the dreams, you see the spiritual sights,
'The speeches come in your head, beyond
dispute.
'Still, for the sceptics' sake, to stop all
mouths,
'We want some outward manifestation!—
well,

'The Pennsylvanians gained such; why not Sludge?
'He may improve with time!'

Ay, that he may!
He sees his lot: there's no avoiding fate.
'Tis a trifle at first. 'Eh, David? Did you hear?
'You jogged the table, your foot caused the squeak,
'This time you're . . . joking, are you not,
my boy?
'N-n-no!'—and I'm done for, bought and sold henceforth.
The old good easy jog-trot way, the . . . eh?
The . . . not so very false, as falsehood goes,
The spinning out and drawing fine, you
know,—
Really mere novel-writing of a sort,
Acting, or improvising, make-believe,
Surely not downright cheater, —any how,
'Tis done with and my lot cast; Cheat's my name:
The fatal dash of brandy in your tea
Has settled what you'll have the souchong's smack:
The caddy gives way to the dram-bottle.
Then, it's so cruel easy! Oh, those tricks
That can't be tricks, those feats by sleight of hand,
Clearly no common conjuror's!—no in-
deed!
A conjuror? Choose me any craft i' the
world
A man puts hand to; and with six months'
pains
I'll play you twenty tricks miraculous
To people untaught the trade: have you seen glass blown,
Pipes pierced? Why, just this biscuit that I chip,
Did you ever watch a baker toss one flat
To the oven? Try and do it! Take my
word,
Practise but half as much, while limbs are lithe,
To turn, shove, tilt a table, crack your joints,
Manage your feet, dispose your hands
aright,
Work wires that twitch the curtains, play
the glove
At end o' your slipper,—then put out the lights
And . . . there, there, all you want you'll get, I hope!
I found it slip, easy as an old shoe.
Now, lights on table again! I've done my
part,
You take my place while I give thanks and rest.
'Well, Judge Humgruffin, what's your verdict, sir?

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

'You, hardest head in the United States,—
'Did you detect a cheat here? Wait! Let's
see!

'Just an experiment first, for candour's
sake!

'I'll try and cheat you, Judge! The table tilts:

'Is it I that move it? Write! I'll press your
hand:

'Cry when I push, or guide your pencil,
Judge!'

Sludge still triumphant! 'That a rap,
indeed?

'That, the real writing? Very like a whale!

'Then, if, sir, you—a most distinguished
man,

'And, were the Judge not here, I'd say, ... no matter!

'Well, sir, if you fail, you can't take us
in,—

'There's little fear that Sludge will!'

Won't he, ma'am?

But what if our distinguished host, like
Sludge,

Bade God bear witness that he played no
trick,

While you believed that what produced the raps

Was just a certain child who died, you
know,

And whose last breath you thought your lips had felt?

Eh? That's a capital point, ma'am:
Sludge begins

At your entreaty with your dearest dead,
The little voice set lisping once again,

The tiny hand made feel for yours once
more,

The poor lost image brought back, plain as
dreams,

Which image, if a word had chanced recall,
The customary cloud would cross your
eyes,

Your heart return the old tick, pay its pang!

A right mood for investigation, this!

One's at one's ease with Saul and Jonathan,

Pompey and Cæsar: but one's own lost
child ...

I wonder, when you heard the first clod
drop

From the spadeful at the grave-side, felt you free

To investigate who twitched your funeral scarf

Or brushed your flounces? Then, it came
of course

You should be stunned and stupid; then,
(how else?)

Your breath stopped with your blood, your brain struck work.

But now, such causes fail of such effects,

All's changed,—the little voice begins afresh,

Yet you, calm, consequent, can test and try And touch the truth. 'Tests? Didn't the creature tell

'Its nurse's name, and say it lived six years,
'And rode a rocking-horse? Enough of tests!

'Sludge never could learn that!'

He could not, eh?

You compliment him. 'Could not?'

Speak for yourself!

I'd like to know the man I ever saw Once,—never mind where, how, why,

when,—once saw,
Of whom I do not keep some matter in
mind

He'd swear I 'could not' know, sagacious
soul!

What? Do you live in this world's blow of blacks,

Palaver, gossipry, a single hour
Nor find one smut has settled on your
nose,

Of a smut's worth, no more, no less?—one
fact

Out of the drift of facts, whereby you
learn

What someone was, somewhere, somewhen, somehow?

You don't tell folk—'See what has stuck
to me!

'Judge Humgruffin, our most distinguished man,

'Your uncle was a tailor, and your wife
'Thought to have married Miggs, missed him, hit you!—

Do you, sir, though you see him twice a-week?

'No,' you reply, 'what use retailing it?
'Why should I?' But, you see, one day you should,

Because one day there's much use,—when this fact

Brings you the Judge upon both gouty
knees

Before the supernatural; proves that
Sludge

Knows, as you say, a thing he 'could not'
know:

Will not Sludge thenceforth keep an outstretched face

The way the wind drives?

'Could not!' Look you now, I'll tell you a story! There's a whiskered chap,

A foreigner, that teaches music here
And gets his bread,—knowing no better
way:

He says, the fellow who informed of him
And made him fly his country and fall
West

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Was a hunchback cobbler, sat, stitched soles and sang,
 In some outlandish place, the city Rome,
 In a cellar by their Broadway, all day long;
 Never asked questions, stopped to listen or look,
 Nor lifted nose from lapstone; let the
 world
 Roll round his three-legged stool, and news run in The ears he hardly seemed to keep pricked
 up.
 Well, that man went on Sundays, touched his pay,
 And took his praise from government, you
 see;
 For something like two dollars every week,
 He'd engage tell you some one little thing
 Of some one man, which led to many more, (Because one truth leads right to the world's end)
 And make you that man's master—when he dined
 And on what dish, where walked to keep his health
 And to what street. His trade was, throwing thus
 His sense out, like an ant-eater's long
 tongue,
 Soft, innocent, warm, moist, impassible,
 And when 'twas crusted o'er with creatures
 —slick,
 Their juice enriched his palate. 'Could not Sludge!'

I'll go yet a step further, and maintain,
 Once the imposture plunged its proper depth
 I' the rotten of your natures, all of you,— (If one's not mad nor drunk, and hardly
 then)
 It's impossible to cheat—that's, be found
 out!
 Go tell your brotherhood this first slip of
 mine,
 All to-day's tale, how you detected Sludge, Behaved unpleasantly, till he was fain
 confess,
 And so has come to grief! You'll find, I
 think,
 Why Sludge still snaps his fingers in your
 face.
 There now, you've told them! What's their prompt reply?
 'Sir, did that youth confess he had cheated
 me,
 'I'd disbelieve him. He may cheat at
 times;
 'That's in the "medium"-nature, thus they're made,
 'Vain and vindictive, cowards, prone to scratch.
 'And so all cats are; still, a cat's the beast

'You coax the strange electric sparks from
 out,
 'By rubbing back its fur; not so a dog,
 'Nor lion, nor lamb: 'tis the cat's nature,
 sir!
 'Why not the dog's? Ask God, who made them beasts!
 'D'ye think the sound, the nicely-balanced
 man
 '(Like me'—aside)—'like you yourself,'
 —(aloud)
 '—He's stuff to make a "medium"? Bless your soul,
 'Tis these hysteric, hybrid half-and-halves,
 'Equivocal, worthless vermin yield the fire!
 'We take such as we find them, 'ware their tricks,
 'Wanting their service. Sir, Sludge took in you—
 'How, I can't say, not being there to
 watch:
 'He was tried, was tempted by your easi-
 ness,—
 'He did not take in me!'

Thank you for Sludge!
 I'm to be grateful to such patrons, eh.
 When what you hear's my best word? 'Tis a challenge
 'Snap at all strangers, half-tamed prairiedog,
 'So you cower duly at your keeper's beck!
 'Cat, show what claws were made for,
 muffling them
 'Only to me! Cheat others if you can,
 'Me, if you dare!' And, my wise sir, I
 dared—
 Did cheat you first, made you cheat others
 next,
 And had the help o' your vaunted manli-
 ness
 To bully the incredulous. You used me?
 Have not I used you, taken full revenge, Persuaded folk they knew not their own
 name,
 And straight they'd own the error! Who was the fool
 When, to an awe-struck wide-eyed open-mouthed
 Circle of sages, Sludge would introduce Milton composing baby-rhymes, and Locke
 Reasoning in gibberish, Homer writing
 Greek
 In noughts and crosses, Asaph setting
 psalms
 To crotchet and quaver? I've made a spirit squeak
 In sham voice for a minute, then outbroke
 Bold in my own, defying the imbeciles—
 Have copied some ghost's pothooks, half
 a page,
 Then ended with my own scrawl undisguised.

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

'All right! The ghost was merely using Sludge,
'Sitting itself from his imperfect stock!'
Don't talk of gratitude to me! For what?
For being treated as a showman's ape,
Encouraged to be wicked and make sport,
Fret or sulk, grin or whimper, any mood
So long as the ape be in it and no man—
Because a nut pays every mood alike.
Curse your superior, superintending sort,
Who, since you hate smoke, send up boys that climb
To cure your chimney, bid a 'medium' lie To sweep your truth down! Curse your women too,
Your insolent wives and daughters, that fire up
Or faint away if a male hand squeeze theirs, Yet, to encourage Sludge, may play with
Sludge
As only a 'medium,' only the kind of thing
They must humour, fondle . . . oh, to mis-
conceive
Were too preposterous! But I've paid them out!
They've had their wish—called for the naked truth,
And in she tripped, sat down and bade them stare!
They had to blush a little and forgive!
'The fact is, children talk so; in next world
'All our conventions are reversed,—perhaps
'Made light of: something like old prints, my dear!
'The Judge has one, he brought from Italy,
'A metropolis in the background,—o'er a bridge,
'A team of trotting roadsters,—cheerful groups
'Of wayside travellers, peasants at their
work,
'And, full in front, quite unconcerned,
why not?
'Three nymphs conversing with a cavalier,
'And never a rag among them: "fine," folk
cry—
'And heavenly manners seem not much unlike!
'Let Sludge go on; we'll fancy it's in print!
If such as came for wool, sir, went home shorn,
Where is the wrong I did them? 'Twas their choice;
They tried the adventure, ran the risk, tossed up
And lost, as some one's sure to do in games;
They fancied I was made to lose,—smoked glass
Useful to spy the sun through, spare their
eyes:
And had I proved a red-hot iron plate

They thought to pierce, and, for their pains, grew blind,
Whose were the fault but theirs? While,
as things go,
Their loss amounts to gain, the more's the
shame!
They've had their peep into the spirit-
world,
And all this world may know it! They've fed fat
Their self-conceit which else had starved:
what chance
Save this, of cackling o'er a golden egg
And compassing distinction from the
flock,
Friends of a feather? Well, they paid for it,
And not prodigiously; the price o' the
play,
Not counting certain pleasant interludes, Was scarce a vulgar play's worth. When you buy
The actor's talent, do you dare propose For his soul beside? Whereas my soul you buy!
Sludge acts Macbeth, obliged to be Macbeth,
Or you'll not hear his first word! Just go
through
That slight formality, swear himself's the Thane,
And thenceforth he may strut and fret his
hour,
Spout, spawl, or spin his target, no one
cares!
Why hadn't I leave to play tricks, Sludge as Sludge?
Enough of it all! I've wiped out scores
with you—
Vented your fustian, let myself be streaked Like tom-fool with your ochre and car-
mine,
Worn patchwork your respectable fingers sewed
To metamorphose somebody,—yes, I've earned
My wages, swallowed down my bread of
shame,
And shake the crumbs off—where but in your face?
As for religion—why, I served it, sir!
I'll stick to that! With my phenomena
I laid the atheist sprawling on his back,
Propped up Saint Paul, or, at least,
Swedenborg!
In fact, it's just the proper way to baulk These troublesome fellows—liars, one and
all,
Are not these sceptics? Well, to baffle
them,
No use in being squeamish: lie yourself!
Erect your buttress just as wide o' the line,
Your side, as they build up the wall on
theirs;

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Where both meet, midway in a point, is truth

High overhead: so, take your room, pile bricks,

Lie! Oh, there's titillation in all shame! What snow may lose in white, snow gains in rose!

Miss Stokes turns—Rahab,—nor a bad exchange!

Glory be on her, for the good she wrought, Breeding belief anew 'neath ribs of death, Browbeating now the unabashed before, Ridding us of their whole life's gathered straws

By a live coal from the altar! Why, of old, Great men spent years and years in writing books

To prove we've souls, and hardly proved it then:

Miss Stokes with her live coal, for you and me!

Surely, to this good issue, all was fair— Not only fondling Sludge, but, even suppose

He let escape some spice of knavery,— well,

In wisely being blind to it! Don't you praise

Nelson for setting spy-glass to blind eye And saying . . . what was it—that he could not see

The signal he was bothered with? Ay, indeed!

I'll go beyond: there's a real love of a lie, Liars find ready-made for lies they make, As hand for glove, or tongue for sugar-plum.

At best, 'tis never pure and full belief; Those furthest in the quagmire,—don't suppose

They strayed there with no warning, got no chance

Of a filth-speck in their face, which they clenched teeth,

Bent brow against! Be sure they had their doubts,

And fears, and fairest challenges to try The floor o' the seeming solid sand! But no! Their faith was pledged, acquaintance too appraised,

All but the last step ventured, kerchiefs waved,

And Sludge called 'pet': 'twas easier marching on

To the promised land; join those who, Thursday next,

Meant to meet Shakespeare; better follow Sludge—

Prudent, oh sure!—on the alert, how else?—

But making for the mid-bog, all the same! To hear your outcries, one would think I caught

Miss Stokes by the scruff o' the neck, and pitched her flat,

Foolish - face - foremost! Hear these simpletons,

That's all I beg, before my work's begun, Before I've touched them with my fingertip!

Thus they await me (do but listen, now! It's reasoning, this is,—I can't imitate

The baby voice, though) 'In so many tales 'Must be some truth, truth though a pinpoint big,

'Yet, some: a single man's deceived, perhaps—

'Hardly, a thousand: to suppose one cheat 'Can gull all these, were more miraculous far

'Than aught we should confess a miracle'—

And so on. Then the Judge sums up—(it's rare)—

Bids you respect the authorities that leap To the judgment-seat at once,—why don't you note

The limpid nature, the unblemished life, The spotless honour, indisputable sense

Of the first upstart with his story? What— Outrage a boy on whom you ne'er till now

Set eyes, because he finds raps trouble him?

Fools, these are: ay, and how of their opposites

Who never did, at bottom of their hearts, Believe for a moment?—Men emasculate,

Blank of belief, who played, as eunuchs use, With superstition safely,—cold of blood,

Who saw what made for them i' the mystery,

Took their occasion, and supported Sludge

—As proselytes? No, thank you, far too shrewd!

—But promisers of fair play, encouragers O' the claimant; who in candour needs must hoist Sludge up on Mars' Hill, get speech out of Sludge

To carry off, criticize, and cant about! Didn't Athens treat Saint Paul so?—at any rate, It's 'a new thing' philosophy fumbles at.

Then there's the other picker-out of pearl From dung-heaps,—ay, your literary man,

Who draws on his kid gloves to deal with Sludge

Daintily and discreetly,—shakes a dust O' the doctrine, flavours thence, he well knows how, The narrative or the novel,—half-believes,

All for the book's sake, and the public's stare,

And the cash that's God's sole solid in this world!

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Look at him! Try to be too bold, too gross For the master! Not you! He's the man for muck;

Shovel it forth, full-splash, he'll smooth your brown

Into artistic richness, never fear!
Find him the crude stuff; when you're recognize

Your lie again, you'll doff your hat to it, Dressed out for company! 'For company,'

I say, since there's the relish of success:
Let all pay due respect, call the lie truth,
Save the soft silent smirking gentleman Who ushered in the stranger: you must sigh

'How melancholy, he, the only one
'Fails to perceive the bearing of the truth
'Himself' gave birth to!'—There's the triumph's smack!

That man would choose to see the whole world roll

I' the slime o' the slough, so he might touch the tip

Of his brush with what I call the best of browns—

Tint ghost-tales, spirit-stories, past the
power

Of the outworn umber and bistre!

Yet I think

There's a more hateful form of foolery—
The social sage's, Solomon of saloons
And philosophic diner-out, the fribble
Who wants a doctrine for a choppingblock

To try the edge of his faculty upon,
Prove how much common sense he'll hack and hew

I' the critical minute 'twixt the soup and fish!

These were my patrons: these, and the like of them

Who, rising in my soul now, sicken it,— These I have injured! Gratitude to these?
The gratitude, forsooth, of a prostitute
To the greenhorn and the bully—friends of hers,

From the wag that wants the queer jokes
for his club,

To the snuff-box-decorator, honest man,
Who just was at his wits' end where to find
So genial a Pasiphae! All and each Pay, compliment, protect from the police:
And how she hates them for their pains,
like me!

So much for my remorse at thanklessness
Toward a deserving public!

But, for God?

Ay, that's a question! Well, sir, since you
press—

(How you do tease the whole thing out of
me!

I don't mean you, you know, when I say
'them':

Hate you, indeed! But that Miss Stokes, that Judge!

Enough, enough—with sugar: thank you,
sir!)

Now for it, then! Will you believe me, though?

You've heard what I confess; I don't un-
say

A single word: I cheated when I could, Rapped with my toe-joints, set sham hands at work,

Wrote down names weak in sympathetic ink,

Rubbed odic lights with ends of phosphor-
match,

And all the rest; believe that: believe this,
By the same token, though it seem to set
The crooked straight again, unsay the said, Stick up what I've knocked down; I can't help that:

It's truth! I somehow vomit truth to-day.
This trade of mine—I don't know, can't be
sure

But there was something in it, tricks and
all!

Really, I want to light up my own mind.
They were tricks,—true, but what I mean to add

Is also true. First,—don't it strike you,
sir?

Go back to the beginning,—the first fact We're taught is, there's a world beside this
world,

With spirits, not mankind, for tenantry;
That much within that world once so-journd here,

That all upon this world will visit there,
And therefore that we, bodily here below,
Must have exactly such an interest

In learning what may be the ways o' the
world

Above us, as the disembodied folk Have (by all analogic likelihood)

In watching how things go in the old home
With us, their sons, successors, and what
not.

Oh yes, with added powers probably,
Fit for the novel state,—old loves grown
pure,

Old interests understood aright,—they
watch!

Eyes to see, ears to hear, and hands to help, Proportionate to advancement: they're ahead,

That's all—do what we do, but noblier
done—

Use plate, whereas we eat our meals off delf,

(To use a figure).

Concede that, and I ask

Next what may be the mode of intercourse

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Between us men here, and those once-men there?

First comes the Bible's speech; then, history

With the supernatural element,—you know—

All that we sucked in with our mothers' milk,

Grew up with, got inside of us at last, Till it's found bone of bone and flesh of flesh.

See now, we start with the miraculous, And know it used to be, at all events:

What's the first step we take, and can't but take,

In arguing from the known to the obscure? Why this: 'What was before, may be to-day.

'Since Samuel's ghost appeared to Saul, of course

'My brother's spirit may appear to me.' Go tell your teacher that! What's his reply?

What brings a shade of doubt for the first time

O'er his brow late so luminous with faith? 'Such things have been,' says he, 'and there's no doubt

'Such things may be: but I advise mistrust 'Of eyes, ears, stomach, and, more than all, your brain,

'Unless it be of your great-grandmother, 'Whenever they propose a ghost to you!

The end is, there's a composition struck; 'Tis settled, we've some way of inter-

course

Just as in Saul's time; only, different: How, when and where, precisely,—find it out!

I want to know, then, what's so natural As that a person born into this world

And seized on by such teaching, should begin

With firm expectancy and a frank look-out For his own allotment, his especial share

I' the secret,—his particular ghost, in fine? I mean, a person born to look that way,

Since natures differ: take the painter-sort. One man lives fifty years in ignorance

Whether grass be green or red,—'No kind of eye

'For colour,' say you; while another picks And puts away even pebbles, when a child,

Because of bluish spots and pinky veins— 'Give him forthwith a paint-box!' Just

the same

Was I born . . . 'medium,' you won't let me say,—

Well, seer of the supernatural Everywhen, everyhow and everywhere,— Will that do?

I and all such boys of course Started with the same stock of Bible-truth;

Only,—what in the rest you style their sense,

Instinct, blind reasoning but imperative, This, betimes, taught them the old world had one law

And ours another: 'New world, new laws,' cried they:

'None but old laws, seen everywhere at work,'

Cried I, and by their help explained my life The Jews' way, still a working way to me.

Ghosts made the noises, fairies waved the lights,

Or Santa Claus slid down on New Year's Eve

And stuffed with cakes the stocking at my bed,

Changed the worn shoes, rubbed clean the fingered slate

O' the sum that came to grief the day before.

This could not last long: soon enough I found

Who had worked wonders thus, and to what end:

But did I find all easy, like my mates? Henceforth no supernatural any more?

Not a whit: what projects the billiard-balls?

'A cue,' you answer: 'Yes, a cue,' said I; 'But what hand, off the cushion, moved the cue?

'What unseen agency, outside the world, 'Prompted its puppets to do this and that,

'Put cakes and shoes and slates into their mind,

'These mothers and aunts, nay even schoolmasters?'

Thus high I sprang, and there have settled since.

Just so I reason, in sober earnest still, About the greater godsend, what you call

The serious gains and losses of my life. What do I know or care about your world

Which either is or seems to be? This snap O' my fingers, sir! My care is for myself;

Myself am whole and sole reality Inside a raree-show and a market-mob

Gathered about it: that's the use of things. 'Tis easy saying they serve vast purposes,

Advantage their grand selves: be it true or false,

Each thing may have two uses. What's a star?

A world, or a world's sun: doesn't it serve As taper also, time-piece, weather-glass,

And almanac? Are stars not set for signs When we should shear our sheep, sow corn, prune trees? The Bible says so.

Well, I add one use To all the acknowledged uses, and declare

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

If I spy Charles's Wain at twelve to-night,
It warns me, 'Go, nor lose another day,
'And have your hair cut, Sludge!' You laugh: and why?

Were such a sign too hard for God to give?
No: but Sludge seems too little for such
grace:

Thank you, sir! So you think, so does not Sludge!

When you and good men gape at Providence,

Go into history and bid us mark
Not merely powder-plots prevented,
crowns

Kept on kings' heads by miracle enough,
But private mercies—oh, you've told me,
sir,

Of such interpositions! How yourself
Once, missing on a memorable day
Your handkerchief—just setting out, you
know,—

You must return to fetch it, lost the train,
And saved your precious self from what, befell

The thirty-three whom Providence forgot.
You tell, and ask me what I think of this?
Well, sir, I think then, since you needs
must know,

What matter had you and Boston city to boot

Sailed skyward, like burnt onion-peelings? Much

To you, no doubt: for me—undoubtedly
The cutting of my hair concerns me more,
Because, however sad the truth may seem,
Sludge is of all-importance to himself.

You set apart that day in every year
For special thanksgiving, were a heathen
else:

Well, I who cannot boast the like escape,
Suppose I said 'I don't thank Providence
'For my part, owing it no gratitude'?

'Nay, but you owe as much'—you'd tutor
me,

'You, every man alive, for blessings
gained

'In every hour o' the day, could you but
know!

'I saw my crowning mercy: all have such,
'Could they but see!' Well, sir, why don't they see?

'Because they won't look,—or perhaps, they can't.'

Then, sir, suppose I can, and will, and do Look, microscopically as is right,
Into each hour with its infinitude

Of influences at work to profit Sludge?
For that's the case: I've sharpened up my sight

To spy a providence in the fire's going out,
The kettle's boiling, the dime's sticking
fast

Despite the hole i' the pocket. Call such facts

Fancies, too petty a work for Providence,
And those same thanks which you exact
from me

Prove too prodigious payment: thanks for
what,

If nothing guards and guides us little men?
No, no, sir! You must put away your
pride,

Resolve to let Sludge into partnership!
I live by signs and omens: looked at the roof

Where the pigeons settle—'If the further
bird,

'The white, takes wing first, I'll confess when thrashed;

'Not, if the blue does'—so I said to myself Last week, lest you should take me by surprise:

Off flapped the white,—and I'm confessing, sir!

Perhaps 'tis Providence's whim and way
With only me, i' the world: how can you tell?

'Because unlikely!' Was it likelier, now,
That this our one out of all worlds be-
side,

The what-d'you-call-'em millions, should be just

Precisely chosen to make Adam for,
And the rest o' the tale? Yet the tale's true, you know:

Such undeserving clod was graced so once;
Why not graced likewise undeserving
Sludge?

Are we merit-mongers, flaunt we filthy
rags?

All you can bring against my privilege
Is, that another way was taken with you,—
Which I don't question. It's pure grace, my luck:

I'm broken to the way of nods and winks,
And need no formal summoning. You've a help;

Holloa his name or whistle, clap your
hands,

Stamp with your foot or pull the bell: all's
one,

He understands you want him, here he comes.

Just so, I come at the knocking: you, sir,
wait

The tongue o' the bell, nor stir before you catch

Reason's clear tingle, nature's clapper
brisk,

Or that traditional peal was wont to cheer
Your mother's face turned heavenward:
short of these

There's no authentic intimation, eh?
Well, when you hear, you'll answer them, start up

And stride into the presence, top of toe,
And there find Sludge beforehand, Sludge that sprang

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

At noise o' the knuckle on the partition-wall!

I think myself the more religious man.
Religion's all or nothing; it's no mere smile

O' contentment, sigh of aspiration, sir—
No quality o' the finelier-tempered clay
Like its whiteness or its lightness; rather, stuff

O' the very stuff, life of life, and self of self.
I tell you, men won't notice; when they do,
They'll understand. I notice nothing else:
I'm eyes, ears, mouth of me, one gaze and gape,

Nothing eludes me, everything's a hint,
Handle and help. It's all absurd, and yet
There's something in it all, I know: how much?

No answer! What does that prove?
Man's still man,

Still meant for a poor blundering piece of work

When all's done; but, if somewhat's done, like this,

Or not done, is the case the same? Suppose
I blunder in my guess at the true sense
O' the knuckle-summons, nine times out of ten,—

What if the tenth guess happen to be right?
If the tenth shovel-load of powdered quartz

Yield me the nugget? I gather, crush, sift all,

Pass o'er the failure, pounce on the success.
To give you a notion, now—(let who wins, laugh!)

When first I see a man, what do I first?
Why, count the letters which make up his name,

And as their number chances, even or odd,
Arrive at my conclusion, trim my course:
Hiram H. Horsefall is your honoured name,

And haven't I found a patron, sir, in you?
'Shall I cheat this stranger?' I take apple-pips,

Stick one in either canthus of my eye,
And if the left drops first—(your left, sir, stuck)

I'm warned, I let the trick alone this time.
You, sir, who smile, superior to such trash,
You judge of character by other rules:
Don't your rules sometimes fail you?

Pray, what rule
Have you judged Sludge by hitherto?

Oh, be sure,
You, everybody blunders, just as I,
In simpler things than these by far! For see:

I knew two farmers,—one, a wiseacre
Who studied seasons, rummaged almanacs,

Quoted the dew-point, registered the frost,

And then declared, for outcome of his pains,

Next summer must be dampish: 'twas a drought.

His neighbour prophesied such drought would fall,

Saved hay and corn, made cent. per cent. thereby,

And proved a sage indeed: how came his lore?

Because one brindled heifer, late in March,
Stiffened her tail of evenings, and somehow

He got into his head that drought was meant!

I don't expect all men can do as much:
Such kissing goes by favour. You must take

A certain turn of mind for this,—a twist
I' the flesh, as well. Be lazily alive,
Open-mouthed, like my friend the ant-eater,

Letting all nature's loosely-guarded motes Settle and, slick, be swallowed! Think yourself

The one i' the world, the one for whom the world

Was made, expect it tickling at your mouth!

Then will the swarm of busy buzzing flies,
Clouds of coincidence, break egg-shell, thrive,

Breed, multiply, and bring you food enough.

I can't pretend to mind your smiling, sir!
Oh, what you mean is this! Such intimate way,

Close converse, frank exchange of offices,
Strict sympathy of the immeasurably great
With the infinitely small, betokened here
By a course of signs and omens, raps and sparks,—

How does it suit the dread traditional text
O' the 'Great and Terrible Name'? Shall the Heaven of Heavens

Stoop to such child's play?

Please, sir, go with me
A moment, and I'll try to answer you.

The 'Magnum et terribile' (is that right?)
Well, folk began with this in the early day;

And all the acts they recognized in proof
Were thunders, lightnings, earthquakes, whirlwinds, dealt

Indisputably on men whose death they caused.

There, and there only, folk saw Providence
At work,—and seeing it, 'twas right enough

All heads should tremble, hands wring hands amain,

And knees knock hard together at the breath

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

O' the Name's first letter; why, the Jews,
I'm told,
Won't write it down, no, to this very hour,
Nor speak aloud: you know best if't be so.
Each ague-fit of fear at end, they crept (Because somehow people once born must
live)

Out of the sound, sight, swing and sway o'
the Name,

Into a corner, the dark rest of the world,
And safe space where as yet no fear had
reached;

'Twas there they looked about them,
breathed again,

And felt indeed at home, as we might say.
The current o' common things, the daily
life,

This had their due contempt; no Name pursued

Man from the mountain-top where fires
abide,

To his particular mouse-hole at its foot
Where he ate, drank, digested, lived in,
short:

Such was man's vulgar business, far too
small

To be worth thunder: 'small,' folk kept on,
'small,'

With much complacency in those great
days!

A mote of sand, you know, a blade of grass—

What was so despicable as mere grass,
Except perhaps the life o' the worm or fly Which fed there? These were 'small' and men were great.

Well, sir, the old way's altered somewhat
since,

And the world wears another aspect now:
Somebody turns our spyglass round, or
else

Puts a new lens in it: grass, worm, fly grow
big:

We find great things are made of little
things,

And little things go lessening till at last Comes God behind them. Talk of mountains now?

We talk of mould that heaps the mountain, mites

That throng the mould, and God that makes the mites.

The Name comes close behind a stomach-
cyst,

The simplest of creations, just a sac That's mouth, heart, legs and belly at once, yet lives

And feels, and could do neither, we conclude,

If simplified still further one degree:
The small becomes the dreadful and immense!

Lightning, forsooth? No word more upon
that!

A tin-foil bottle, a strip of greasy silk,
With a bit of wire and knob of brass, and there's

Your dollar's-worth of lightning! But the cyst—

The life of the least of the little things?

No, no!
Preachers and teachers try another tack, Come near the truth this time: they put aside

Thunder and lightning: 'That's mistake,'
they cry,

'Thunderbolts fall for neither fright nor sport,

'But do appreciable good, like tides,
'Changes o' the wind, and other natural
facts—

“‘Good’ meaning good to man, his body or soul.

'Mediate, immediate, all things minister
'To man,—that's settled: be our future
text

“‘We are His children!’” So, they now harangue

About the intention, the contrivance, all
That keeps up an incessant play of love,—
See the Bridgewater book.

Amen to it!
Well, sir, I put this question: I'm a child?
I lose no time, but take you at your word:
How shall I act a child's part properly?
Your sainted mother, sir,—used you to
live

With such a thought as this a-worrying
you?

'She has it in her power to throttle me,
'Or stab or poison: she may turn me out,
'Or lock me in,—nor stop at this, to-day,
'But cut me off to-morrow from the estate

'I look for'—(long may you enjoy it, sir!)
'In brief, she may unchild the child I am.'

You never had such crotchets? Nor have I!
Who, frank confessing childship from the
first,

Cannot both fear and take my ease at once,
So, don't fear,—know what might be, well
enough,

But know too, child-like, that it will not be,
At least in my case, mine, the son and heir

O' the kingdom, as yourself proclaim my style.

But do you fancy I stop short at this?

Wonder if suit and service, son and heir
Needs must expect, I dare pretend to find?

If, looking for signs proper to such an one,
I straight perceive them irresistible?

Concede that homage is a son's plain right,
And, never mind the nods and raps and
winks,

'Tis the pure obvious supernatural Steps forward, does its duty: why, of
course!

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

I have presentiments; my dreams come true:

I fancy a friend stands whistling all in white

Blithe as a boblink, and he's dead I learn.

I take dislike to a dog my favourite long,
And sell him; he goes mad next week and snaps.

I guess that stranger will turn up to-day
I have not seen these three years; there's his knock.

I wager 'sixty peaches on that tree!'—
That I pick up a dollar in my walk,
That your wife's brother's cousin's name
was George—

And win on all points. Oh, you wince at this?

You'd fain distinguish between gift and gift,

Washington's oracle and Sludge's itch
O' the elbow when at whist he ought to trump?

With Sludge it's too absurd? Fine, draw the line
Somewhere, but, sir, your somewhere is not mine!

Bless us, I'm turning poet! It's time to end.

How you have drawn me out, sir! All I ask

Is—am I heir or not heir? If I'm he,
Then, sir, remember, that same personage (To judge by what we read i' the newspaper)

Requires, beside one nobleman in gold
To carry up and down his coronet,
Another servant, probably a duke,
To hold egg-nogg in readiness: why want Attendance, sir, when helps in his father's house

Abound, I'd like to know?

Enough of talk!

My fault is that I tell too plain a truth.
Why, which of those who say they dis-
believe,

Your clever people, but has dreamed his
dream,

Caught his coincidence, stumbled on his
fact

He can't explain, (he'll tell you smilingly)
Which he's too much of a philosopher

To count as supernatural, indeed,
So calls a puzzle and problem, proud of it:
Bidding you still be on your guard, you
know,

Because one fact don't make a system
stand,

Nor prove this an occasional escape
Of spirit beneath the matter: that's the
way!

Just so wild Indians picked up, piece by piece,

The fact in California, the fine gold
That underlay the gravel—hoarded these,
But never made a system stand, nor dug!
So wise men hold out in each hollowed
palm

A handful of experience, sparkling fact They can't explain; and since their rest of
life

Is all explainable, what proof in this?
Whereas I take the fact, the grain of gold,
And fling away the dirty rest of life,
And add this grain to the grain each fool has found

O' the million other such philosophers,—
Till I see gold, all gold and only gold,
Truth questionless though unexplainable,
And the miraculous proved the common-
place!

The other fools believed in mud, no
doubt—

Failed to know gold they saw: was that so strange?

Are all men born to play Bach's fiddle-fugues,

'Time' with the foil in carte, jump their own height,

Cut the mutton with the broadsword,
skate a five,

Make the red hazard with the cue, clip nails

While swimming, in five minutes row a mile,

Pull themselves three feet up with the left arm,

Do sums of fifty figures in their head,
And so on, by the scores of instances?

The Sludge with luck, who sees the spiritual facts

His fellows strive and fail to see, may rank
With these, and share the advantage.

Ay, but share

The drawback! Think it over by yourself;
I have not heart, sir, and the fire's gone
grey.

Defect somewhere compensates for success,

Everyone knows that. Oh, we're equals,
sir!

The big-legged fellow has a little arm
And a less brain, though big legs win the
race:

Do you suppose I 'scape the common lot?
Say, I was born with flesh so sensitive,

Soul so alert, that, practice helping both,
I guess what's going on outside the veil,
Just as a prisoned crane feels pairing-time
In the islands where his kind are, so must
fall

To capering by himself some shiny night,
As if your back-yard were a plot of spice—

Thus am I 'ware o' the spirit-world: while
you,

Blind as a beetle that way,—for amends,

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Why, you can double fist and floor me, sir!
Ride that hot hardmouthed horrid horse
of yours,
Laugh while it lightens, play with the great
dog,
Speak your mind though it vex some friend to hear,
Never brag, never bluster, never blush,—
In short, you've pluck, when I'm a coward
—there!

I know it, I can't help it,—folly or no,
I'm paralyzed, my hand 's no more a hand,
Nor my head a head, in danger: you can
smile

And change the pipe in your cheek. Your gift 's not mine.

Would you swap for mine? No! but you'd add my gift

To yours: I dare say! I too sigh at times, Wish I were stouter, could tell truth nor
flinch,

Kept cool when threatened, did not mind so much

Being dressed gaily, 'making strangers
stare,

Eating nice things; when I'd amuse my-
self,

I shut my eyes and fancy in my brain
I'm—now the President, now Jenny Lind,

Now Emerson, now the Benicia Boy—
With all the civilized world a-wondering

And worshipping. I know it's folly and
worse;

I feel such tricks sap, honeycomb the soul,
But I can't cure myself: despond, despair,

And then, hey, presto, there's a turn o' the wheel,

Under comes uppermost, fate makes full
amends;

Sludge knows and sees and hears a hundred things

You all are blind to,—I've my taste of truth, Likewise my touch of falsehood,—vice no
doubt,

But you've your vices also: I'm content.

What, sir? You won't shake hands? 'Because I cheat!'

'You've found me out in cheating!'
That's enough

To make an apostle swear! Why, when I
cheat,

Mean to cheat, do cheat, and am caught in the act,

Are you, or, rather, am I sure o' the fact?
(There's verse again, but I'm inspired somehow.)

Well then I'm not sure! I may be, perhaps,
Free as a babe from cheating; how it began,

My gift,—no matter; what 'tis got to be In the end now, that's the question;

answer that!

Had I seen, perhaps, what hand was holding mine,

Leading me whither, I had died of fright:
So, I was made believe I led myself.

If I should lay a six-inch plank from roof
To roof, you would not cross the street, one
step,

Even at your mother's summons: but,
being shrewd,

If I paste paper on each side the plank
And swear 'tis solid pavement, why, you'll cross

Humming a tune the while, in ignorance Beacon Street stretches a hundred feet
below:

I walked thus, took the paper-cheat for
stone.

Some impulse made me set a thing o' the
move

Which, started once, ran really by itself;
Beer flows thus, suck the siphon; toss the kite,

It takes the wind and floats of its own force.
Don't let truth's lump rot stagnant for the lack

Of a timely helpful lie to leaven it!
Put a chalk-egg beneath the clucking hen,

She'll lay a real one, laudably deceived,
Daily for weeks to come. I've told my lie,
And seen truth follow, marvels none of
mine;

All was not cheating, sir, I'm positive!
I don't know if I move your hand sometimes

When the spontaneous writing spreads so
far,

If my knee lifts the table all that height,
Why the inkstand don't fall off the desk
a-tilt,

Why the accordian plays a prettier waltz
Than I can pick out on the piano-forte,

Why I speak so much more than I intend,
Describe so many things I never saw.

I tell you, sir, in one sense, I believe Nothing at all,—that everybody can,
Will, and does cheat: but in another sense

I'm ready to believe my very self—
That every cheat 's inspired, and every lie
Quick with a germ of truth.

You ask perhaps
Why I should condescend to trick at all

If I know a way without it? This is why!
There's a strange secret sweet self-sacrifice

In any desecration of one's soul
To a worthy end,—isn't it Herodotus

(I wish I could read Latin!) who describes
The single gift o' the land's virginity,

Demanded in those old Egyptian rites,
(I've but a hazy notion—help me, sir!)
For one purpose in the world, one day in a
life,

One hour in a day—thereafter, purity,
And a veil thrown o'er the past for ever-
more!

Well, now, they understand a many things

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Down by Nile city, or wherever it was!
I've always vowed, after the minute's lie,
And the end's gain,—truth should be mine henceforth.

This goes to the root o' the matter, sir,— this plain

Plump fact: accept it and unlock with it
The wards of many a puzzle!

Or, finally,
Why should I set so fine a gloss on things?
What need I care? I cheat in self-defence,
And there's my answer to a world of cheats!

Cheat? To be sure, sir! What's the world worth else?

Who takes it as he finds, and thanks his stars?

Don't it want trimming, turning, furbish-ing up

And polishing over? Your so-styled great
men,

Do they accept one truth as truth is found,
Or try their skill at tinkering? What's your world?

Here are you born, who are, I'll say at
once,

Of the luckiest kind, whether in head and
heart,

Body and soul, or all that helps them both.
Well, now, look back: what faculty of
yours

Came to its full, had ample justice done
By growing when rain fell, biding its time,

Solidifying growth when earth was dead,
Spiring up, broadening wide, in seasons
due?

Never! You shot up and frost nipped you
off,

Settled to sleep when sunshine bade you sprout;

One faculty thwarted its fellow: at the end,
All you boast is 'I had proved a topping
tree

'In other climes'—yet this was the right clime

Had you foreknown the seasons. Young, you've force

Wasted like well-streams: old,—oh, then
indeed,

Behold a labyrinth of hydraulic pipes
Through which you'd play off wondrous waterwork;

Only, no water's left to feed their play.
Young,—you've a hope, an aim, a love:
it's tossed

And crossed and lost: you struggle on,
some spark

Shut in your heart against the puffs
around,

Through cold and pain; these in due time
subside,

Now then for age's triumph, the hoarded
light

You mean to loose on the altered face of
things,—

Up with it on the tripod! It's extinct.
Spend your life's remnant asking, which was best,

Light smothered up that never peeped forth once,

Or the cold cresset with full leave to shine?
Well, accept this too,—seek the fruit of it

Not in enjoyment, proved a dream on
earth,

But knowledge, useful for a second chance, Another life,—you've lost this world—you've gained

Its knowledge for the next. What knowledge, sir,

Except that you know nothing? Nay, you
doubt

Whether 'twere better have made you man or brute,

If aught be true, if good and evil clash.
No foul, no fair, no inside, no outside,
There's your world!

Give it me! I slap it brisk
With harlequin's pasteboard sceptre:
what's it now?

Changed like a rock-flat, rough with rusty
weed,

At first wash-over o' the returning wave!
All the dry dead impracticable stuff

Starts into life and light again; this world
Pervaded by the influx from the next.

I cheat, and what's the happy consequence?

You find full justice straightway dealt you
out,

Each want supplied, each ignorance set at
ease,

Each folly fooled. No life-long labour now
As the price of worse than nothing! No mere film

Holding you chained in iron, as it seems,
Against the outstretch of your very arms

And legs i' the sunshine moralists forbid!
What would you have? Just speak and,
there, you see!

You're supplemented, made a whole at
last,

Bacon advises, Shakespeare writes you
songs,

And Mary Queen of Scots embraces you.
Thus it goes on, not quite like life perhaps,

But so near, that the very difference piques, Shows that e'en better than this best will
be—

This passing entertainment in a hut Whose bare walls take your taste since, one stage more,

And you arrive at the palace: all half real,
And you, to suit it, less than real beside,

In a dream, lethargic kind of death in life,
That helps the interchange of natures,
flesh

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

Transfused by souls, and such souls! Oh,
'tis choice!

And if at whiles the bubble, blown too
thin,

Seem nigh on bursting,—if you nearly see
The real world through the false,—what do you see?

Is the old so ruined? You find you're in a flock

O' the youthful, earnest, passionate—genius, beauty,

Rank and wealth also, if you care for
these:

And all depose their natural rights, hail
you,

(That's me, sir) as their mate and yoke-
fellow,

Participate in Sludgehood—nay, grow
mine,

I veritably possess them—banish doubt,
And reticence and modesty alike!

Why, here's the Golden Age, old Paradise
Or new Eutopia! Here's true life indeed,

And the world well won now, mine for the first time!

And all this might be, may be, and with good help

Of a little lying shall be: so, Sludge lies!
Why, he's at worst your poet who sings

how Greeks
That never were, in Troy which never was,

Did this or the other impossible great
thing!

He's Lowell—it's a world (you smile applause)

Of his own invention—wondrous Long-
fellow,

Surprising Hawthorne! Sludge does more than they,

And acts the books they write: the more his
praise!

But why do I mount to poets? Take plain prose—

Dealers in common sense, set these at
work,

What can they do without their helpful
lies?

Each states the law and fact and face o' the
thing

Just as he'd have them, finds what he thinks fit,

Is blind to what missuits him, just records
What makes his case out, quite ignores the

rest.
It's a History of the World, the Lizard

Age,
The Early Indians, the Old Country War,

Jerome Napoleon, whatsoever you please,
All as the author wants it. Such a scribe

You pay and praise for putting life in stones,

Fire into fog, making the past your world.

There's plenty of 'How did you contrive to grasp

'The thread which led you through this labyrinth?

'How build such solid fabric out of air?
'How on so slight foundation found this tale,

'Biography, narrative?' or, in other

words,
'How many lies did it require to make

'The portly truth you here present us
with?'

'Oh,' quoth the penman, purring at your
praise,

'Tis fancy all; no particle of fact:
'I was poor and threadbare when I wrote

that book
"Bliss in the Golden City." I, at Thebes?

'We writers paint out of our heads, you
see!'

'—Ah, the more wonderful the gift in
you,

'The more creativeness and godlike craft!'
But I, do I present you with my piece,

It's 'What, Sludge? When my sainted mother spoke

'The verses Lady Jane Grey last composed

'About the rosy bower in the seventh
heaven

'Where she and Queen Elizabeth keep
house,—

'You made the raps? 'Twas your invention that?

'Cur, slave and devil!'—eight fingers and two thumbs

Stuck in my throat!

Well, if the marks seem gone,
'Tis because stiffish cock-tail, taken in

time,
Is better for a bruise than arnica.

There, sir! I bear no malice: 'tisn't in me.
I know I acted wrongly: still, I've tried

What I could say in my excuse,—to show
The devil's not all devil... I don't pretend,

He's angel, much less such a gentleman.
As you, sir! And I've lost you, lost myself,

Lost all-I-I-I...

No—are you in earnest, sir?
O yours, sir, is an angel's part! I know

What prejudice prompts, and what's the common course

Men take to soothe their ruffled self-conceit:

Only you rise superior to it all!
No, sir, it don't hurt much; it's speaking

long
That makes me choke a little: the marks will go!

What? Twenty V-notes more, and outfit

too,
And not a word to Greeley? One—one kiss

MR. SLUDGE, 'THE MEDIUM'

O' the hand that saves me! You'll not let me speak,
I well know, and I've lost the right, too
true!
But I must say, sir, if She hears (she does)
Your sainted . . . Well, sir,—be it so!
That's, I think,
My bed-room candle. Good-night!
Bl-l-less you, sir!

R-r-r, you brute-beast and blackguard!
Cowardly scamp!
I only wish I dared burn down the house And spoil your sniggering! Oh what, you're the man?
You're satisfied at last? You've found out
Sludge?
We'll see that presently: my turn, sir, next!
I too can tell my story: brute,—do you
hear?—
You throttled your sainted mother, that old hag,
In just such a fit of passion: no, it was . . .
To get this house of hers, and many a note Like these . . . I'll pocket them, however
. . . five,
Ten, fifteen . . . ay, you gave her throat
the twist,
Or else you poisoned her! Confound the cuss!
Where was my head? I ought to have prophesied
He'll die in a year and join her: that's the
way.

I don't know where my head is: what had
I done?
How did it all go? I said he poisoned her,
And hoped he'd have grace given him to repent,
Whereon he picked this quarrel, bullied
me
And called me cheat: I thrashed him,— who could help?
He howled for mercy, prayed me on his knees
To cut and run and save him from dis-
grace:
I do so, and once off, he slanders me.
An end of him! Begin elsewhere anew!
Boston's a hole, the herring-pond is wide,
V-notes are something, liberty still more.
Beside, is he the only fool in the world?

APPARENT FAILURE

'We shall soon lose a celebrated building.' Paris Newspaper.

I

No, for I'll save it! Seven years since,
I passed through Paris, stopped a day
To see the baptism of your Prince;
Saw, made my bow, and went my way:

Walking the heat and headache off,
I took the Seine-side, you surmise,
Thought of the Congress, Gortschakoff, Cavour's appeal and Buol's replies,
So sauntered till—what met my eyes?

II

Only the Doric little Morgue!
The dead-house where you show your drowned:
Petrarch's Vauclose makes proud the Sorgue,
Your Morgue has made the Seine renowned.
One pays one's debt in such a case;
I plucked up heart and entered,— stalked,
Keeping a tolerable face Compared with some whose cheeks were chalked:
Let them! No Briton's to be baulked!

III

First came the silent gazers; next,
A screen of glass, we're thankful for;
Last, the sight's self, the sermon's text,
The three men who did most abhor
Their life in Paris yesterday,
So killed themselves: and now, enthroned
Each on his copper couch, they lay Fronting me, waiting to be owned.
I thought, and think, their sin's atoned.

IV

Poor men, God made, and all for that!
The reverence struck me; o'er each head
Religiously was hung its hat,
Each coat dripped by the owner's bed,
Sacred from touch: each had his berth,
His bounds, his proper place of rest,
Who last night tenanted on earth
Some arch, where twelve such slept abreast,—
Unless the plain asphalté seemed best.

V

How did it happen, my poor boy?
You wanted to be Buonaparte
And have the Tuileries for toy,
And could not, so it broke your heart?
You, old one by his side, I judge,
Were, red as blood, a socialist,
A leveller! Does the Empire grudge You've gained what no Republic
missed?
Be quiet, and unclench your fist!

VI

And this—why, he was red in vain,
Or black,—poor fellow that is blue!
What fancy was it turned your brain?
Oh, women were the prize for you!

APPARENT FAILURE

Money gets women, cards and dice Get money, and ill-luck gets just
The copper couch and one clear nice
Cool squirt of water o'er your bust,
The right thing to extinguish lust!

VII

It's wiser being good than bad;
It's safer being meek than fierce:
It's fitter being sane than mad.
My own hope is, a sun will pierce
The thickest cloud earth ever stretched;
That, after Last, returns the First,
Though a wide compass round be fetched;
That what began best, can't end worst,
Nor what God blessed once, prove accurst.

EPILOGUE

FIRST SPEAKER, as David.

I

ON the first of the Feast of Feasts,
The Dedication Day,
When the Levites joined the Priests
At the Altar in robed array,
Gave signal to sound and say,—

II

When the thousands, rear and van,
Swarming with one accord
Became as a single man
(Look, gesture, thought and word)
In praising and thanking the Lord,—

III

When the singers lift up their voice,
And the trumpets made endeavour,
Sounding, 'In God rejoice!'
Saying, 'In Him rejoice
'Whose mercy endureth for ever!'

IV

Then the Temple filled with a cloud,
Even the House of the Lord;
Porch bent and pillar bowed:
For the presence of the Lord,
In the glory of His cloud,
Had filled the House of the Lord.

SECOND SPEAKER, as Renan.

Gone now! All gone across the dark so
far,
Sharpening fast, shuddering ever, shutting still,
Dwindling into the distance, dies that star Which came, stood, opened once! We gazed our fill
With upturned faces on as real a Face That, stooping from grave music and mild fire,
Took in our homage, made a visible place Through many a depth of glory, gyre on gyre,

For the dim human tribute. Was this true?
Could man indeed avail, mere praise of
his,

To help by rapture God's own rapture too, Thrill with a heart's red tinge that pure pale bliss?

Why did it end? Who failed to beat the
breast,

And shriek, and throw the arms protesting wide,

When a first shadow showed the star
addressed

Itself to motion, and on either side
The rims contracted as the rays retired;

The music, like a fountain's sickening
pulse,

Subsided on itself; awhile transpired
Some vestige of a Face no pangs con-
vulse,

No prayers retard; then even this was
gone,

Lost in the night at last. We, lone and left

* Silent through centuries, ever and anon
Venture to probe again the vault bereft

Of all now save the lesser lights, a mist
Of multitudinous points, yet suns, men

say—

And this leaps ruby, this lurks amethyst, But where may hide what came and loved our clay?

How shall the sage detect in yon expanse
The star which chose to stoop and stay

for us?

Unroll the records! Hailed ye such advance

Indeed, and did your hope evanish thus?
Watchers of twilight, is the worst averred?

We shall not look up, know ourselves are seen,

Speak, and be sure that we again are heard,
Acting or suffering, have the disk's serene

Reflect our life, absorb an earthly flame, Nor doubt that, were mankind inert and numb,

Its core had never crimsoned all the same,
Nor, missing ours, its music fallen

dumb?

Oh, dread succession to a dizzy post,
Sad sway of sceptre whose mere touch

appals,

Ghastly dethronement, cursed by those the most

On whose repugnant brow the crown next falls!

THIRD SPEAKER.

I

Witless alike of will and way divine,
How heaven's high with earth's low should intertwine!

Friends, I have seen through your eyes:
now use mine!

EPILOGUE

II

Take the least man of all mankind, as I;
Look at his head and heart, find how and
why
He differs from his fellows utterly:

III

Then, like me, watch when nature by degrees
Grows alive round him, as in Arctic seas (They said of old) the instinctive water flees

IV

Toward some elected point of central rock,
As though, for its sake only, roamed the
flock
Of waves about the waste: awhile they mock

V

With radiance caught for the occasion,— hues
Of blackest hell now, now such reds and blues
As only heaven could fitly interfuse,—

VI

The mimic monarch of the whirlpool, king O' the current for a minute: then they wring
Up by the roots and oversweep the thing,

VII

And hasten off, to play again elsewhere
The same part, choose another peak as bare.
They find and flatter, feast and finish there.

VIII

When you see what I tell you,—nature
dance
About each man of us, retire, advance,
As though the pageant's end were to enhance

IX

His worth, and—once the life, his product, gained—
Roll away elsewhere, keep the strife sustained,
And show thus real, a thing the North but feigned—

X

When you acknowledge that one world
could do
All the diverse work, old yet ever new,
Divide us, each from other, me from
you,—

XI

Why, where's the need of Temple, when the walls
O' the world are that? What use of swells and falls
From Levites' choir, Priests' cries, and trumpet-calls?

XII

That one Face, far from vanish, rather
grows,
Or decomposes but to recompose,
Become my universe that feels and knows.

From 'FIFINE AT THE FAIR'

1872

PROLOGUE

AMPHIBIAN

I

THE fancy I had to-day,
Fancy which turned a fear!
I swam far out in the bay,
Since waves laughed warm and clear.

II

I lay and looked at the sun,
The noon-sun looked at me:
Between us two, no one
Live creature, that I could see.

III

Yes! There came floating by Me, who lay floating too,
Such a strange butterfly!
Creature as dear as new:

IV

Because the membraned wings
So wonderful, so wide,
So sun-suffused, were things
Like soul and nought beside.

V

A handbreadth over head!
All of the sea my own,
It owned the sky instead;
Both of us were alone.

VI

I never shall join its flight,
For, nought buoys flesh in air.
If it touch the sea—good night!
Death sure and swift waits there.

VII

Can the insect feel the better
For watching the uncouth play
Of limbs that slip the fetter,
Pretend as they were not clay?

VIII

Undoubtedly I rejoice
That the air comports so well
With a creature which had the choice
Of the land once. Who can tell?

IX

What if a certain soul
Which early slipped its sheath,
And has for its home the whole
Of heaven, thus look beneath,

X

Thus watch one who, in the world,
Both lives and likes life's way,
Nor wishes the wings unfurled
That sleep in the worm, they say?

XI

But sometimes when the weather
Is blue, and warm waves tempt
To free oneself of tether,
And try a life exempt

XII

From worldly noise and dust,
In the sphere which overbrims
With passion and thought,—why, just Unable to fly, one swims!

XIII

By passion and thought upborne,
One smiles to oneself—'They fare
Scarce better, they need not scorn
Our sea, who live in the air!'

XIV

Emancipate through passion
And thought, with sea for sky,
We substitute, in a fashion,
For heaven—poetry:

XV

Which sea, to all intent,
Gives flesh such noon-disport
As a finer element
Affords the spirit-sort.

XVI

Whatever they are, we seem:
Imagine the thing they know;
All deeds they do, we dream;
Can heaven be else but so?

XVII

And meantime, yonder streak
Meets the horizon's verge;
That is the land, to seek
If we tire or dread the surge:

XVIII

Land the solid and safe—
To welcome again (confess!)
When, high and dry, we chafe
The body, and don the dress.

XIX

Does she look, pity, wonder
At one who mimics flight,
Swims—heaven above, sea under,
Yet always earth in sight?

EPILOGUE

THE HOUSEHOLDER

I

SAVAGE I was sitting in my house, late, lone:
Dreary, weary with the long day's work:
Head of me, heart of me, stupid as a stone:
Tongue-tied now, now blaspheming like a Turk;
When, in a moment, just a knock, call, cry,
Half a pang and all a rapture, there again were we!—
'What, and is it really you again?' quoth I:
'I again, what else did you expect?'
quoth She.

II

'Never mind, hie away from this old
house—
Every crumbling brick embrowned with sin and shame!
Quick, in its corners ere certain shapes arouse!
Let them—every devil of the night—lay
claim,
Make and mend, or rap and rend, for me!
Good-bye!
God be their guard from disturbance at their glee,
Till, crash, comes down the carcass in a heap!' quoth I:
'Nay, but there's a decency required!'
quoth She.

III

'Ah, but if you knew how time has dragged, days, nights!
All the neighbour-talk with man and maid—such men!
All the fuss and trouble of street-sounds,
window-sights:
All the worry of flapping door and echoing roof; and then,
All the fancies . . . Who were they had leave, dared try Darker arts that almost struck despair
in me?
If you knew but how I dwelt down here!'
quoth I:
'And was I so better off up there?'
quoth She.

IV

'Help and get it over! Re-united to his wife (How draw up the paper lets the parish-people know?)
Lies M., or N., departed from this life, Day the this or that, month and year the so and so.
What is the way of final flourish? Prose, verse? Try!
Affliction sore long time he bore, or, what is it to be?
Till God did please to grant him ease. Do end!' quoth I:
'I end with—Love is all and Death is nought!' quoth She.

PACCHIAROTTO

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

ET CETERA'

1876

PROLOGUE

I

O THE old wall here! How I could pass
Life in a long Midsummer day,
My feet confined to a plot of grass,
My eyes from a wall not once away!

II

And lush and lithe do the creepers clothe Yon wall I watch, with a wealth of green:
Its bald red bricks draped, nothing loth,
In lappets of tangle they laugh between.

III

Now, what is it makes pulsate the robe?
Why tremble the sprays? What life o'er-brims
The body,—the house, no eye can probe,—
Divined as, beneath a robe, the limbs?

IV

And there again! But my heart may guess Who tripped behind; and she sang perhaps:
So, the old wall throbbed, and its life's excess
Died out and away in the leafy wraps.

V

Wall upon wall are between us: life
And song should away from heart to
heart.
I—prison-bird, with a ruddy strife
At breast, and a lip whence storm-notes start—

VI

Hold on, hope hard in the subtle thing
That's spirit: though cloistered fast, soar free;
Account as wood, brick, stone, this ring
Of the rueful neighbours, and—forth to
thee!

OF PACCHIAROTTO, AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

I

QUERY: was ever a quainter
Crotchet than this of the painter
Giacomo Pacchiarotto
Who took 'Reform' for his motto?

II

He, pupil of old Fungaio,
Is always confounded (heigho!)
With Pacchia, contemporaneous
No question, but how extraneous
In the grace of soul, the power
Of hand,—undoubted dower
Of Pacchia who decked (as we know, My Kirkup!) San Bernardino,
Turning the small! dark Oratory
To Siena's Art-laboratory,
As he made its straitness roomy
And glorified its gloomy,
With Bazzi and Beccafumi.
(Another heigho for Bazzi:
How people miscall him Razzi!)

III

This Painter was of opinion
Our earth should be his dominion
Whose Art could correct to pattern
What Nature had slurred—the slattern!
And since, beneath the heavens,
Things lay now at sixes and sevens,
Or, as he said, sopra-sotto—
Thought the painter Pacchiarotto Things wanted reforming, therefore.
'Wanted it'—ay, but wherefore?
When earth held one so ready
As he to step forth, stand steady
In the middle of God's creation
And prove to demonstration
What the dark is, what the light is,
What the wrong is, what the right is,
What the ugly, what the beautiful,
What the restive, what the dutiful,
In Mankind profuse around him?
Man, devil as now he found him,
Would presently soar up angel
At the summons of such evangel,
And owe—what would Man not owe
To the painter Pacchiarotto?
Ay, look to thy laurels, Giotto!

IV

But Man, he perceived, was stubborn,
Grew regular brute, once cub born;
And it struck him as expedient—
Ere he tried to make obedient
The wolf, fox, bear and monkey,
By piping advice in one key—
That his pipe should play a prelude To something heaven-tinged not hell-hued,

Something not harsh but docile,
Man-liquid, not Man-fossil—
Not fact, in short, but fancy.
By a laudable necromancy
He would conjure up ghosts—a circle
Deprived of the means to work ill
Should his music prove distasteful .
And pearls to the swine go wasteful.
To be rent of swine—that was hard!
With fancy he ran no hazard:
Fact might knock him o'er the mazzard.

V

So, the painter Pacchiarotto
Constructed himself a grotto
In the quarter of Stalloreggi—
As authors of note allege ye.
And on each of the whitewashed sides
of it

He painted—(none far and wide so fit
As he to perform in fresco)—
He painted nor cried quiesco
Till he peopled its every square foot
With Man—from the Beggar barefoot
To the Noble in cap and feather:
All sorts and conditions together.
The Soldier in breastplate and helmet Stood frowningly—hail fellow well met—By the Priest armed with bell, book and candles.

Nor did he omit to handle
The Fair Sex, our brave distemperer:
Not merely King, Clown, Pope, Emperor—
He diversified too his Hades
Of all forms, pinched Labour and paid
Ease,
With as mixed an assemblage of Ladies.

VI

Which work done, dry,—he rested him, Cleaned pallet, washed brush, divested
him

Of the apron that suits frescanti,
And, bonnet on ear stuck jaunty,
This hand upon hip well planted,
That, free to wave as it wanted,
He addressed in a choice oration
His folk of each name and nation,
Taught its duty to every station.
The Pope was declared an arrant Impostor at once, I warrant.
The Emperor—truth might tax him
With ignorance of the maxim
'Shear sheep but nowise flay them!'
And the Vulgar that obey them,
The Ruled, well-matched with the Ruling,
They failed not of wholesome schooling
On their knavery and their fooling.
As for Art—where's decorum? Pooh-poohed it is
By Poets that plague us with lewd ditties,
And Painters that pester with nudities!

VII

Now, your rater and debater
Is balked by a mere spectator
Who simply stares and listens
Tongue-tied, while eye nor glistens
Nor brow grows hot and twitchy,
Nor mouth, for a combat itchy,
Quivers with some convincing
Reply—that sets him wincing?
Nay, rather—reply that furnishes
Your debater with just what burnishes
The crest of him, all one triumph,
As you see him rise, hear him cry 'Humph!
Convinced am I? This confutes me?
Receive the rejoinder that suits me!
Confutation of vassal for prince meet—
Wherein all the powers that convince meet,
And mash my opponent to mincemeat!'

VIII

So, off from his head flies the bonnet,
His hip loses hand planted on it,
While t'other hand, frequent in gesture,
Slinks modestly back beneath vesture,
As,—hop, skip and jump,—he's along
with Those weak ones he late proved so strong
with!
Pope, Emperor, lo, he's beside them, Friedly now, who late could not abide
them,
King, Clown, Soldier, Priest, Noble, Burgess;
And his voice, that out-roared Boanerges,
How minikin-mildly it urges
In accents how gentle and gingered
Its word in defence of the injured!
'O call him not culprit, this Pontiff!
Be hard on this Kaiser ye won't if Ye take into con-si-der-ation
What dangers attend elevation!
The Priest—who expects him to descant
On duty with more zeal and less cant?
He preaches but rubbish he's reared in.
The Soldier, grown deaf (by the mere din Of battle) to mercy, learned tipling
And what not of vice while a stripling.
The Lawyer—his lies are conventional.
And as for the Poor Sort—why mention all Obstructions that leave barred and bolted
Access to the brains of each dolt-head?'

IX

He ended, you wager? Not half! A bet?
Precedence to males in the alphabet!
Still, disposed of Man's A, B, C, there's
X,
Y, Z, want assistance,—the Fair Sex!
How much may be said in excuse of Those vanities—males see no use of—
From silk shoe on heel to laced poll's-
hood!
What's their frailty beside our own falsehood?

PACCHIAROTTO

The boldest, most brazen of . . . trumpets,
How kind can they be to their dumb pets!
Of their charms—how are most frank,
how few venal!

While as for those charges of Juvenal—
Quæ nemo dixisset in toto
Nisi (ædepol) ore illoto—
He dismissed every charge with an 'Apage!'

x

Then, cocking (in Scotch phrase) his cap
a-gee,
Right hand disengaged from the doublet —Like landlord, in house he had sub-let Resuming of guardianship gestion,
To call tenants' conduct in question—
Hop, skip, jump, to inside from outside
Of chamber, he lords, ladies, louts eyed
With such transformation of visage
As fitted the censor of this age.
No longer an advocate tepid
Of frailty, but champion intrepid
Of strength, not of falsehood but verity,
He, one after one, with asperity
Stripped bare all the cant-clothed abuses,
Disposed of sophistic excuses,
Forced folly each shift to abandon,
And left vice with no leg to stand on.
So crushing the force he exerted,
That Man at his foot lay converted!

xii

True—Man bred of paint-pot and
mortal!
But why suppose folks of this sort are More likely to hear and be tractable Than folks all alive and, in fact, able To testify promptly by action
Their ardour, and make satisfaction
For misdeeds non verbis sed factis?
'With folk all alive be my practice
Henceforward! O mortal, paint-pot O, Farewell to ye!' cried Pacchiarotto,
'Let only occasion interpose!'

xiii

It did so: for, pat to the purpose
Through causes I need not examine,
There fell upon Siena a famine.
In vain did the magistrates busily
Seek succour, fetch grain out of Sicily, Nay, throw mill and bakehouse wide open—
Such misery followed as no pen
Of mine shall depict ye. Faint, fainter
Waxed hope of relief: so, our painter,
Emboldened by triumph of recency,
How could he do other with decency
Than rush in this strait to the rescue,
Play schoolmaster, point as with fescue
To each and all slips in Man's spelling
The law of the land?—slips now telling
With monstrous effect on the city,
Whose magistrates moved him to pity

As, bound to read law to the letter,
They minded their hornbook no better.

xiii

I ought to have told you, at starting,
How certain, who itched to be carting
Abuses away clean and thorough
From Siena, both province and borough,
Had formed themselves into a company Whose swallow could bolt in a lump any Obstruction of scruple, provoking
The nicer throat's coughing and choking:
Fit Club, by as fit a name dignified
Of 'Freed Ones'—'Bardottri'—which signified
'Spare-Horses' that walk by the waggon
The team has to drudge for and drag on.
This notable club Pacchiarotto
Had joined long since, paid scot and lot
to,
As free and accepted 'Bardotto.'
The Bailiwick watched with no quiet eye
The outrage thus done to society,
And noted the advent especially Of Pacchiarotto their fresh ally.

xiv

These Spare-Horses forthwith assembled:
Neighed words whereat citizens trembled
As oft as the chiefs, in the Square by The Duomo, proposed a way whereby
The city were cured of disaster.
'Just substitute servant for master,
Make Poverty Wealth and Wealth
Poverty,
Unloose Man from overt and covert tie,
And straight out of social confusion True Order would spring!' Brave illusion—
Aims heavenly attained by means earthy!

xv

Off to these at full speed rushed our worthy,—
Brain practised and tongue no less tutored,
In argument's armour accoutred,— Sprang forth, mounted rostrum and essayed
Proposals like those to which 'Yes' said
So glibly each personage painted
O' the wall-side wherewith you're acquainted.
He harangued on the faults of the Baili-wick:
'Red soon were our State-candle's paly
wick,
If wealth would become but interfluous,
Fill voids up with just the superfluous;
If ignorance gave way to knowledge
—Not pedantry picked up at college
From Doctors, Professors et cætera— (They say: "kai ta loipa")—like better a

PACCHIAROTTO

Long Greek string of kappas, taus, lamb-das,

Tacked on to the tail of each damned ass)—

No knowledge we want of this quality,
But knowledge indeed—practicality
Through insight's fine universality!
If you shout "Bailiffs, out on ye all! Fie, Thou Chief of our forces, Amalfi, Who shieldest the rogue and the clotpoll!"
If you pounce on and poke out, with what pole

I leave ye to fancy, our Siena's Beast-litter of sloths and hyenas—(Whoever to scan this is ill able Forgets the town's name's a dissyllable)
'If, this done, ye did—as ye might—place
For once the right man in the right place,
If you listened to me . . .'

XVI

At which last 'If'
There flew at his throat like a mastiff
One Spare-Horse—another and another!
Such outbreak of tumult and pother,
Horse-faces a-laughing and fleering,
Horse-voices a-mocking and jeering,
Horse-hands raised to collar the caitiff Whose impudence ventured the late 'If'—
That, had not fear sent Pacchiarotto
Off tramping, as fast as could trot toe,
Away from the scene of discomfiture—
Had he stood there stock-still in a dumb fit—sure

Am I he had paid in his person
Till his mother might fail to know her son,
Though she gazed on him never so wistful,
In the figure so tattered and tristful.
Each mouth full of curses, each fist full
Of cuffings—behold, Pacchiarotto,
The pass which thy project has got to,
Of trusting, nigh ashes still hot—tow!
(The paraphrase—which I much need—is From Horace 'per ignes incedis.')

Right and left did he dash helter-skelter
In agonized search of a shelter.
No purlieu so blocked and no alley
So blind as allowed him to rally
His spirits and see—nothing hampered
His steps if he trudged and not scampered
Up here and down there in a city
That's all ups and downs, more the pity
For folk who would outrun the constable.
At last he stopped short at the one stable
And sure place of refuge that's offered Humanity. Lately was coffered
A corpse in its sepulchre, situate
By St. John's Observance. 'Habituate
Thyself to the strangest of bedfellows,
And, kicked by the live, kiss the dead
fellows!'

So Misery counselled the craven.
At once he crept safely to haven

Through a hole left unbricked in the structure.

Ay, Misery, in have you tucked your Poor client and left him conterminous
With—pah!—the thing fetid and verminous!

(I gladly would spare you the detail, But History writes what I retail.)

XVIII

Two days did he groan in his domicile:
'Good Saints, set me free and I promise I'll Abjure all ambition of preaching Change, whether to minds touched by teaching
—The smooth folk of fancy, mere figments
Created by plaster and pigments,—
Or to minds that receive with such rudeness Dissuasion from pride, greed and lewdness,

—The rough folk of fact, life's true specimens
Of mind—"haud in posse sed esse mens"
As it was, is, and shall be for ever
Despite of my utmost endeavour.
O live foes I thought to illumine, Henceforth lie untroubled your gloom in!
I need my own light, every spark, as I couch with this sole friend—a carcase!'

XIX

Two days thus he maundered and rambled;
Then, starved back to sanity, scrambled
From out his receptacle loathsome.
'A spectre!'—declared upon oath some Who saw him emerge and (appalling To mention) his garments a-crawling
With plagues far beyond the Egyptian.
He gained, in a state past description,
A convent of monks, the Observancy.

XX

Thus far is a fact: I reserve fancy
For Fancy's more proper employment:
And now she waves wing with enjoyment,
To tell ye how preached the Superior
When somewhat our painter's exterior
Was sweetened. He needed (no mincing
The matter) much soaking and rinsing,
Nay, rubbing with drugs odoniferous,
Till, rid of his garments pestiferous
And robbed by the help of the Brotherhood
In odds and ends,—this gown and t'other
hood,—
His empty inside first well-garnished,—
He delivered a tale round, unvarnished.

XXI

'Ah, Youth!' ran the Abbot's admonishment,
'Thine error scarce moves my astonishment,

PACCHIAROTTO

For—why shall I shrink from asserting?— Myself have had hopes of converting
The foolish to wisdom, till, sober,
My life found its May grow October.
I talked and I wrote, but, one morning,
Life's Autumn bore fruit in this warning:
"Let tongue rest, and quiet thy quill be!
Earth is earth and not heaven, and ne'er
will be."

Man's work is to labour and leaven—
As best he may—earth here with heaven;
'Tis work for work's sake that he's need-
ing:

Let him work on and on as if speeding
Work's end, but not dream of succeeding!
Because if success were intended,
Why, heaven would begin ere earth ended.
A Spare-Horse? Be rather a thill-horse,
Or—what's the plain truth—just a mill-horse!

Earth's a mill where we grind and wear
mufflers:

A whip awaits shirkers and shufflers
Who slacken their pace, sick of lugging
At what don't advance for their tugging.
Though round goes the mill, we must still post

On and on as if moving the mill-post.
So, grind away, mouth-wise and pen-wise,
Do all that we can to make men wise!
And if men prefer to be foolish, Ourselves have proved horse-like not mulish:

Sent grist, a good sackful, to hopper,
And worked as the Master thought proper.
Tongue I wag, pen I ply, who am Abbot; Stick thou, Son, to daub-brush and dab-pot!

But, soft! I scratch hard on the scab hot?
Though cured of thy plague, there may linger

A pimple I fray with rough finger?
So soon could my homily transmute Thy brass into gold? Why, the man's mute!

XXI

'Ay, Father, I'm mute with admiring
How Nature's indulgence untiring
Still bids us turn deaf ear to Reason's
Best rhetoric—clutch at all seasons
And hold fast to what's proved untenable!
Thy maxim is—Man's not amenable
To argument: whereof by consequence—Thine arguments reach me: a non-sequence!

Yet blush not discouraged, O Father!
I stand unconverted, the rather
That nowise I need a conversion.
No live man (I cap thy assertion)
By argument ever could take hold Of me. 'Twas the dead thing, the clay-
cold,

Which grinned "Art thou so in a hurry
That out of warm light thou must skurry

And join me down here in the dungeon
Because, above, one's Jack and one—John,
One's swift in the race, one—a hobbler, One's a crowned king, and one—a capped cobble,

Rich and poor, sage and fool, virtuous, vicious?

Why complain? Art thou so unsuspicious
That all's for an hour of essaying
Who's fit and who's unfit for playing His part in the after-construction —Heaven's Piece whereof Earth's the Induction?

Things rarely go smooth at Rehearsal
Wait patient the change universal,
And act, and let act, in existence!
For, as thou art clapped hence or hissed
hence,

Thou hast thy promotion or otherwise.
And why must wise thou have thy brother
wise

Because in rehearsal thy cue be
To shine by the side of a booby?
No polishing garnet to ruby!
All's well that ends well—through Art's magic

Some end, whether comic or tragic,
The Artist has purposed, be certain!
Explained at the fall of the curtain—
In showing thy wisdom at odds with That folly: he tries men and gods with No problem for weak wits to solve meant,
One nor worth such Author's evelment.
So, back nor disturb play's production
By giving thy brother instruction
To throw up his fool's-part allotted!
Lest haply thyself prove besotted
When stript, for thy pains, of that costume
Of sage, which has bred the imposthume
I prick to relieve thee of,—Vanity!"

XXIII

'So, Father, behold me in sanity!
I'm back to the palette and mahlstick:
And as for Man—let each and all stick
To what was prescribed them at starting!
Once planted as fools—no departing
From folly one inch, saeculorum
In saecula! Pass me the jorum,
And push me the platter—my stomach Retains, through its fasting, still some ache—
And then, with your kind Benedicite, Good-bye!"

XXIV

I have told with simplicity
My tale, dropped those harsh analytics,
And tried to content you, my critics,
Who greeted my early uprising!
I knew you through all the disguising,
Droll dogs, as I jumped up, cried 'Heyday!
This Monday is—what else but May-day?
And these in the drabs, blues and yellows,
Are surely the privileged fellows.

So, saltbox and bones, tongs and bellows,
(I threw up the window) 'your pleasure?'

XXV

Then he who directed the measure—
An old friend—put leg forward nimbly,
'We critics as sweeps out your chimbley!
Much soot to remove from your flue, sir!
Who spares coal in kitchen an't you, sir!
And neighbours complain it's no joke, sir,
—You ought to consume your own smoke,
sir!'

XXVI

Ah, rogues, but my housemaid suspects
you—

Is confident oft she detects you
In bringing more filth into my house
Than ever you found there! I'm pious However: 'twas God made you dingy
And me—with no need to be stingy
Of soap, when 'tis sixpence the packet.
So, dance away, boys, dust my jacket,
Bang drum and blow fife—ay, and rattle
Your brushes, for that's half the battle!
Don't trample the grass,—hocus-pocus With grime my Spring snowdrop and crocus,—

And, what with your rattling and tinkling,
Who knows but you give me an inkling
How music sounds, thanks to the jangle
Of regular drum and triangle?
Whereby, tap-tap, chink-chink, 'tis proven
I break rule as bad as Beethoven.
'That chord now—a groan or a grunt is'?
Schumann's self was no worse contrapunctist.
No ear! or if ear, so tough-gristled—
He thought that he sung while he whistled!'

XXVII

So, this time I whistle, not sing at all,
My story, the largess I fling at all
And every the rough there whose aubade
Did its best to amuse me,—nor so bad!
Take my thanks, pick up largess, and scamper
Off free, ere your mirth gets a damper!
You've Monday, your one day, your
day,
While mine is a year that's all Sunday.
I've seen you, times—who knows how many?—
Dance in here, strike up, play the zany,
Make mouths at the tenant, hoot warning You'll find him decamped next May-
morning;
Then scuttle away, glad to 'scape hence
With—kicks? no, but laughter and ha-pence!
Mine's freehold, by grace of the grand
Lord
Who lets out the ground here,—my landlord:

To him I pay quit-rent—devotion;
Nor hence shall I budge, I've a notion,
Nay, here shall my whistling and singing
Set all his street's echoes a-ringing Long after the last of your number
Has ceased my front-court to encumber
While, treading down rose and ranunculus,
You Tommy-make-room-for-your-Uncle
us!

Troop, all of you—man or homunculus, Quick march! for Xanthippe, my house-
maid,

If once on your pates she a souse made
With what, pan or pot, bowl or skoramis
First comes to her hand—things were more amiss!

I would not for worlds be your place in—
Recipient of slops from the basin!
You, Jack-in-the-Green, leaf-and-twig-gishness

Won't save a dry thread on your priggish-
ness!

While as for Quilp-Hop-o'-my-thumb
there,
Banjo-Byron that twangs the strum-strum
there—

He'll think, as the pickle he curses,
I've discharged on his pate his own verses!
'Dwarfs are saucy,' says Dickens: so,
sauced in

Your own sauce, . . .¹

XXVIII

But, back to my Knight of the Pencil,
Dismissed to his fresco and stencil!
Whose story—begun with a chuckle,
And throughout timed by raps of the knuckle,—

To small enough purpose were studied If it ends with crown cracked or nose bloodied.

Come, critics,—not shake hands, excuse
me!

But—say have you grudged to amuse me
This once in the forty-and-over Long years since you trampled my clover
And scared from my house-eaves each sparrow

I never once harmed by that arrow
Of song, karterotaton belos,
(Which Pindar declares the true melos)
I was forging and filing and finishing,
And no whit my labours diminishing
Because, though high up in a chamber Where none of your kidney may clamber
Your hullabaloo would approach me?

Was it 'grammar' wherein you would

'coach' me—

You,—pacing in even that paddock
Of language allotted you ad hoc,

¹ No, please! For

'Who would be satirical
On a thing so very small?'

—Printer's Devil.

PACCHIAROTTO

With a clog at your fetlocks,—you—scorners

Of me free of all its four corners?

Was it 'clearness of words which convey
thought'?

Ay, if words never needed enswathe aught
But ignorance, impudence, envy
And malice—what word-swathe would then vie

With yours for a clearness crystalline?
But had you to put in one small line
Some thought big and bouncing—as noddle

Of goose, born to cackle and waddle
And bite at man's heel as goose-wont is,
Never felt plague its puny os frontis— You'd know, as you hissed, spat and spattered,

Clear cackle is easily uttered!

XXIX

Lo, I've laughed out my laugh on this mirth-day!

Beside, at week's end, dawns my birth-day,
That hebdoma, hieron emar—
(More things in a day than you deem are!)

—Tei gar Apollona chrusaora
Egeinato Leto. So, gray or ray

Betide me, six days hence, I'm vexed here
By no sweep, that's certain, till next year!
'Vexed?'—roused from what else were insipid ease!

Leave snoring a-bed to Pheidippides!
We'll up and work! won't we, Euripides?

AT THE 'MERMAID'

The figure that thou here seest . . . Tut!
Was it for gentle Shakespeare put?

B. JONSON, (Adapted.)

I

I—'Next Poet?' No, my hearties,
I nor am nor fain would be!
Choose your chiefs and pick your parties,
Not one soul revolt to me!

I, forsooth, sow song-sedition?

I, a schism in verse provoke?

I, blown up by bard's ambition,
Burst—your bubble-king? You joke.

II

Come, be grave! The sherris mantling
Still about each mouth, mayhap,
Breeds you insight—just a scantling—
Brings me truth out—just a scrap.

Look and tell me! Written, spoken, Here's my life-long work: and where —Where's your warrant or my token
I'm the dead king's son and heir?

III

Here's my work: does work discover—
What was rest from work—my life?
Did I live man's hater, lover?
Leave the world at peace, at strife?

Call earth ugliness or beauty?

See things there in large or small?

Use to pay its Lord my duty?

Use to own a lord at all?

Blank of such a record, truly

Here's the work I hand, this scroll,
Yours to take or leave; as duly,

Mine remains the unproffered soul.
So much, no whit more, my debtors—

How should one like me lay claim
To that largess elders, betters

Sell you cheap their souls for—fame?

V

Which of you did I enable

Once to slip inside my breast,
There to catalogue and label

What I like least, what love best,
Hope and fear, believe and doubt of,

Seek and shun, respect—deride?

Who has right to make a rout of Rarities he found inside?

VI

Rarities or, as he'd rather,

Rubbish such as stocks his own:

Need and greed (O strange) the Father
Fashioned not for him alone!

Whence—the comfort set a-strutting,

Whence—the outcry 'Haste, behold!

Bard's breast open wide, past shutting,
Shows what brass we took for gold!'

VII

Friends, I doubt not he'd display you

Brass—myself call orichalc,—

Furnish much amusement; pray you

Therefore, be content I baulk

Him and you, and bar my portal!

Here's my work outside: opine

What's inside me mean and mortal!

Take your pleasure, leave me mine!

VIII

Which is—not to buy your laurel

As last king did, nothing loth.

Tale adorned and pointed moral

Gained him praise and pity both.

Out rushed sighs and groans by dozens,

Forth by scores oaths, curses flew:

Proving you were cater-cousins,

Kith and kindred, king and you!

IX

Whereas do I ne'er so little

(Thanks to sherris) leave ajar

Bosom's gate—no jot nor tittle

Grow we nearer than we are.

Sinning, sorrowing, despairing,

Body-ruined, spirit-wrecked,—

Should I give my woes an airing,—

Where's one plague that claims respect?

AT THE 'MERMAID'

X
Have you found your life distasteful?
My life did, and does, smack sweet.
Was your youth of pleasure wasteful?
Mine I saved and hold complete.
Do your joys with age diminish?
When mine fail me, I'll complain.
Must in death your daylight finish?
My sun sets to rise again.

XI
What, like you, he proved—your Pilgrim—
This our world a wilderness,
Earth still grey and heaven still grim,
Not a hand there his might press,
Not a heart his own might throb to,
Men all rogues and women—say,
Dolls which boys' heads duck and bob to,
Grown folk drop or throw away?

XII
My experience being other,
How should I contribute verse
Worthy of your king and brother?
Balaam-like I bless, not curse.
I find earth not grey but rosy,
Heaven not grim but fair of hue.
Do I stoop? I pluck a posy.
Do I stand and stare? All's blue.

XIII
Doubtless I am pushed and shoved by Rogues and fools enough: the more Good luck mine, I love, am loved by Some few honest to the core.
Scan the near high, scout the far low!
'But the low come close:' what then?
Simpletons? My match is Marlowe;
Sciolists? My mate is Ben.

XIV
Womankind—'the cat-like nature,
False and fickle, vain and weak'—
What of this sad nomenclature
Suits my tongue, if I must speak?
Does the sex invite, repulse so,
Tempt, betray, by fits and starts?
So becalm but to convulse so,
Decking heads and breaking hearts?

XV
Well may you blaspheme at fortune!
I 'threw Venus'¹ (Ben, expound!)
Never did I need importune
Her, of all the Olympian round.
Blessings on my benefactress!
Cursings suit—for aught I know—
Those who twitched her by the back tress, Tugged and thought to turn her—so!

XVI
Therefore, since no leg to stand on Thus I'm left with,—joy or grief
Be the issue,—I abandon Hope or care you name me Chief!

¹ The best cast in dice (three sixes) is called Venus.

Chief and king and Lord's anointed,
I?—who never once have wished Death before the day appointed:
Lived and liked, not poohed and pished!

XVII
'Ah, but so I shall not enter,
Scroll in hand, the common heart—Stopped at surface: since at centre
Song should reach Welt-schmerz, world-smart!
'Enter in the heart?' Its shelly Cuirass guard mine, fore and aft!
Such song 'enters in the belly
And is cast out in the draught.'

XVIII
Back then to our sherris-brewage!
'Kingship' quotha? I shall wait—
Waive the present time: some new age...
But let fools anticipate!
Meanwhile greet me—'friend, good fellow,
Gentle Will,' my merry men!
As for making Envy yellow
With 'Next Poet'—(Manners, Ben!)

HOUSE

I
SHALL I sonnet-sing you about myself?
Do I live in a house you would like to see?
Is it scant of gear, has it store of pelf?
'Unlock my heart with a sonnet-key?'

II
Invite the world, as my betters have done?
'Take notice: this building remains on view,
Its suites of reception every one,
Its private apartment and bedroom too;

III
'For a ticket, apply to the Publisher.'
No: thanking the public, I must decline.
A peep through my window, if folk prefer;
But, please you, no foot over threshold of mine!

IV
I have mixed with a crowd and heard free talk
In a foreign land where an earthquake
chanced:
And a house stood gaping, nought to baulk
Man's eye wherever he gazed or glanced.

The whole of the frontage shaven sheer,
The inside gaped: exposed to day,
Right and wrong and common and queer,
Bare, as the palm of your hand, it lay.

HOUSE

VI

The owner? Oh, he had been crushed, no doubt!
'Odd tables and chairs for a man of wealth!
What a parcel of musty old books about!
He smoked,—no wonder he lost his health!

VII

'I doubt if he bathed before he dressed.
A brasier?—the pagan, he burned perfumes!
You see it is proved, what the neighbours guessed:
His wife and himself had separate rooms.'

VIII

Friends, the goodman of the house at least Kept house to himself till an earthquake came:
'Tis the fall of its frontage permits you feast
On the inside arrangement you praise or blame.

IX

Outside should suffice for evidence:
And whoso desires to penetrate Deeper, must dive by the spirit-sense—
No optics like yours, at any rate!

X

'Hoity toity! A street to explore,
Your house the exception! "With this same key Shakespeare unlocked his heart," once more!
Did Shakespeare? If so, the less Shakespeare he!

SHOP

I

So, friend, your shop was all your house!
Its front, astonishing the street,
Invited view from man and mouse
To what diversity of treat
Behind its glass—the single sheet!

II

What gimcracks, genuine Japanese:
Gape-jaw and goggle-eye, the frog;
Dragons, owls, monkeys, beetles, geese;
Some crush-nosed human-hearted dog:
Queer names, too, such a catalogue!

III

I thought 'And he who owns the wealth
Which blocks the window's vastitude,
—Ah, could I peep at him by stealth Behind his ware, pass shop, intrude
On house itself, what scenes were viewed!

IV

'If wide and showy thus the shop,
What must the habitation prove?
The true house with no name a-top—
The mansion, distant one remove,
Once get him off his traffic-groove!

'Pictures he likes, or books perhaps;
And as for buying most and best,
Commend me to these City chaps!
Or else he's social, takes his rest
On Sundays, with a Lord for guest.

VI

'Some suburb-palace, parked about
And gated grandly, built last year:
The four-mile walk to keep off gout;
Or big seat sold by bankrupt peer:
But then he takes the rail, that's clear.

VII

'Or, stop! I wager, taste selects
Some out o' the way, some all-unknown
Retreat: the neighbourhood suspects
Little that he who rambles lone Makes Rothschild tremble on his throne!'

VIII

Nowise! Nor Mayfair residence
Fit to receive and entertain,— Nor Hampstead villa's kind defence
From noise and crowd, from dust and drain,—
Nor country-box was soul's domain!

IX

Nowise! At back of all that spread
Of merchandize, woe's me, I find
A hole i' the wall where, heels by head,
The owner couched, his ware behind,
—In cupboard suited to his mind.

For why? He saw no use of life
But, while he drove a roaring trade,
To chuckle 'Customers are rife!'
To chafe 'So much hard cash outlaid
Yet zero in my profits made!

XI

'This novelty costs pains, but—takes?
Cumbers my counter! Stock no more!
This article, no such great shakes, Fizzes like wildfire? Underscore
The cheap thing—thousands to the fore!'

XII

'Twas lodging best to live most nigh (Cramp, coffinlike as crib might be) Receipt of Custom; ear and eye
Wanted no outworld: 'Hear and see The bustle in the shop!' quoth he.

XIII

My fancy of a merchant-prince Was different. Through his wares we groped
Our dorkling way to—not to mince
The matter—no black den where mope
The master if we interloped!

XIV

Shop was shop only: household-stuff?
What did he want with comforts there?
'Walls, ceiling, floor, stay blank and
rough,
So goods on sale show rich and rare!
"Sell and scud home" be shop's affair!'

XV

What might he deal in? Gems, suppose!
Since somehow business must be done
At cost of trouble,—see, he throws
You choice of jewels, everyone,
Good, better, best, star, moon and sun!

XVI

Which lies within your power of purse?
This ruby that would tip aright
Solomon's sceptre? Oh, your nurse Wants simply coral, the delight
Of teething baby,—stuff to bite!

XVII

Howe'er your choice fell, straight you took Your purchase, prompt your money
rang
On counter,—scarce the man forsook
His study of the 'Times,' just swang Till-ward his hand that stopped the clang,—

XVIII

Then off made buyer with a prize,
Then seller to his 'Times' returned;
And so did day wear, wear, till eyes
Brightened apace, for rest was earned:
He locked door long ere candle burned.

XIX

And whither went he? Ask himself,
Not me! To change of scene, I think.
Once sold the ware and pursed the pelf,
Chaffer was scarce his meat and drink,
Nor all his music—money-chink.

XX

Because a man has shop to mind
In time and place, since flesh must live,
Needs spirit lack all life behind,
All stray thoughts, fancies fugitive,
All loves except what trade can give?

XXI

I want to know a butcher paints,
A baker rhymes for his pursuit,
Candlestick-maker much acquaints
His soul with song, or, haply mute,
Blows out his brains upon the flute!

XXII

But—shop each day and all day long!
Friend, your good angel slept, your star
Suffered eclipse, fate did you wrong!
From where these sorts of treasures are,
There should our hearts be—Christ, how far!

PISGAH-SIGHTS. I

I
OVER the ball of it,
Peering and prying,
How I see all of it,
Life there, outlying!
Roughness and smoothness,
Shine and defilement,
Grace and uncouthness:
One reconciliation.

II

Orbed as appointed,
Sister with brother
Joins, ne'er disjointed
One from the other.
All's lend-and-borrow;
Good, see, wants evil,
Joy demands sorrow,
Angel weds devil!

'Which things must—why be?'
Vain our endeavour!
So shall things aye be
As they were ever.
'Such things should so be!'
Sage our desistence!
Rough-smooth let globe be,
Mixed—man's existence!

IV

Man—wise and foolish,
Lover and scorners,
Docile and mulish—
Keep each his corner!
Honey yet gall of it!
There's the life lying,
And I see all of it,
Only, I'm dying!

PISGAH-SIGHTS. II

I

COULD I but live again,
Twice my life over,
Would I once strive again?
Would not I cover
Quietly all of it—
Greed and ambition—
So, from the pall of it,
Pass to fruition?

II

'Soft!' I'd say, 'Soul mine!
Three-score and ten years,
Let the blind mole mine
Digging out deniers!

PISGAH-SIGHTS

Let the dazed hawk soar,
Claim the sun's rights too!
Turf 'tis thy walk's o'er,
Foliage thy flight's to.'

III

Only a learner,
Quick one or slow one,
Just a discernor,
I would teach no one.
I am earth's native:
No rearranging it!
I be creative,
Chopping and changing it?

IV

March, men, my fellows!
Those who, above me,
(Distance so mellows)
Fancy you love me:
Those who, below me,
(Distance makes great so)
Free to forego me,
Fancy you hate so!

V

Praising, reviling,
Worst head and best head,
Past me defiling,
Never arrested,
Wanters, abounders,
March, in gay mixture,
Men, my surrounders!
I am the fixture.

VI

So shall I fear thee,
Mightiness yonder!
Mock-sun—more near thee,
What is to wonder?
So shall I love thee,
Down in the dark,—lest Glowworm I prove thee,
Star that now sparklest!

FEARS AND SCRUPLES

I

HERE's my case. Of old I used to love him
This same unseen friend, before I knew:
Dream that was none like him, none above him,— Wake to hope and trust my dream was true.

II

Loved I not his letters full of beauty?
Not his actions famous far and wide?
Absent, he would know I vowed him duty;
Present, he would find me at his side.

III

Pleasant fancy! for I had but letters,
Only knew of actions by hearsay:
He himself was busied with my betters;
What of that? My turn must come some day.

IV

'Some day' proving—no day! Here's the puzzle.
Passed and passed my turn is. Why complain?
He's so busied! If I could but muzzle People's foolish mouths that give me pain!

'Letters?' (hear them!) 'You a judge of writing?
Ask the experts!—How they shake the
head
O'er these characters, your friend's indiating—
Call them forgery from A to Z!

VI

'Actions? Where's your certain proof' (they bother)
'He, of all you find so great and good,
He, he only, claims this, that, the other 'Action—claimed by men, a multitude?'

VII

I can simply wish I might refute you, Wish my friend would,—by a word, a wink,—
Bid me stop that foolish mouth,—you brute you!
He keeps absent,—why, I cannot think.

VIII

Never mind! Though foolishness may flout me,
One thing's sure enough: 'tis neither
frost,
No, nor fire, shall freeze or burn from out me
Thanks for truth—though falsehood, gained—though lost.

IX

All my days, I'll go the softer, sadder, For that dream's sake! How forget the thrill
Through and through me as I thought
'The gladlier
Lives my friend because I love him still!'

X

Ah, but there's a menace someone utters!
'What and if your friend at home play
tricks?
Peep at hide-and-seek behind the shutters?
Mean your eyes should pierce through solid bricks?

XI

'What and if he, frowning, wake you,
dreamy?
Lay on you the blame that bricks—conceal?
Say "At least I saw who did not see me, Does see now, and presently shall feel!"'

FEARS AND SCRUPLES

BIFURCATION

XII

'Why, that makes your friend a monster!' say you:
'Had his house no window? At first nod,
Would you not have hailed him?' Hush,
I pray you!
What if this friend happen to be—God?

NATURAL MAGIC

I

ALL I can say is—I saw it!
The room was as bare as your hand.
I locked in the swarth little lady,—I swear,
From the head to the foot of her—well, quite as bare!
'No Nautch shall cheat me,' said I, 'taking my stand
At this bolt which I draw!' And this bolt
—I withdraw it,
And there laughs the lady, not bare, but embowered
With—who knows what verdure, o'er-fruited, o'erflowered?
Impossible! Only—I saw it!

II

All I can sing is—I feel it!
This life was as blank as that room;
I let you pass in here. Precaution, indeed?
Walls, ceiling and floor,—not a chance for a weed!
Wide opens the entrance: where's cold
now, where's gloom?
No May to sow seed here, no June to reveal it,
Behold you enshrined in these blooms of your bringing,
These fruits of your bearing—nay, birds of your winging!
A fairy-tale! Only—I feel it!

MAGICAL NATURE

I

FLOWER—I never fancied, jewel—I profess you!
Bright I see and soft I feel the outside of a flower.
Save but glow inside and—jewel, I should guess you,
Dim to sight and rough to touch: the glory is the dower.

II

You, forsooth, a flower? Nay, my love, a jewel—
Jewel at no mercy of a moment in your
prime!
Time may fray the flower-face: kind be time or cruel,
Jewel, from each facet, flash your laugh at time!

We were two lovers; let me lie by her,
My tomb beside her tomb. On hers inscribe—

'I loved him; but my reason bade prefer Duty to love, reject the tempter's bribe
Of rose and lily when each path diverged,
And either I must pace to life's far end
As love should lead me, or, as duty urged, Plod the worn causeway arm-in-arm with
friend.

So, truth turned falsehood: "*How I loathe
a flower,*

How prize the pavement!" still caressed his ear—

The deafish friend's—through life's day, hour by hour,
As he laughed (coughing) "Ay, it would appear!"

But deep within my heart of hearts there hid Ever the confidence, amends for all,
That heaven repairs what wrong earth's journey did,
When love from life-long exile comes at
call.

Duty and love, one broadway, were the
best—
Who doubts? But one or other was to choose.

I chose the darkling half, and wait the rest
In that new world where light and darkness fuse.'

Inscribe on mine—'I loved her: love's track lay
O'er sand and pebble, as all travellers
know.

Duty led through a smiling country, gay
With greensward where the rose and lily blow.

"Our roads are diverse: farewell, love!" said she;

"'Tis duty I abide by: *homely sward
And not the rock-rough picturesque for me!*
*Above, where both roads join, I wait reward.
Be you as constant to the path whereon
I leave you planted!*" But man needs must

move,
Keep moving—whither, when the star is
gone

Whereby he steps secure nor strays from
love?
No stone but I was tripped by, stumbling-block

But brought me to confusion. Where I fell,
There I lay flat, if moss disguised the rock, Thence, if flint pierced, I rose and cried
"All's well!"

*Duty be mine to tread in that high sphere
Where love from duty ne'er disparts, I trust,
And two halves make that whole, whereof —since here*

One must suffice a man—why, this one must!"

BIFURCATION

Inscribe each tomb thus: then, some sage acquaint
The simple—which holds sinner, which holds saint!

NUMPHOLEPTOS

STILL you stand, still you listen, still you
smile!
Still melts your moonbeam through me,
white awhile,
Softening, sweetening, till sweet and soft Increase so round this heart of mine, that oft
I could believe your moonbeam-smile has
past
The pallid limit, lies, transformed at last
To sunlight and salvation—warms the soul It sweetens, softens! Would you pass that goal,
Gain love's birth at the limit's happier
verge,
And, where an iridescence lurks, but urge
The hesitating pallor on to prime Of dawn!—true blood-streaked, sun-warmth, action-time,
By heart-pulse ripened to a ruddy glow
Of gold above my clay—I scarce should
know
From gold's self, thus suffused! For gold means love.
What means the sad slow silver smile
above
My clay but pity, pardon?—at the best,
But acquiescence that I take my rest, Contented to be clay, while in your heaven
The sun reserves love for the Spirit—Seven Companions God's throne they lamp
before,
—Leaves earth a mute waste only wandered o'er
By that pale soft sweet disempathioned
moon
Which smiles me slow forgiveness! Such the boon
I beg? Nay, dear, submit to this—just this Supreme endeavour! As my lips now
kiss
Your feet, my arms convulse your shrouding robe,
My eyes, acquainted with the dust, dare probe
Your eyes above for—what, if born, would blind
Mine with redundant bliss, as flash may
find
The inert nerve, sting awake the palsied
limb,
Bid with life's ecstasy sense overbrim
And suck back death in the resurging joy—Love, the love whole and sole without alloy!

Vainly! The promise withers! I employ

Lips, arms, eyes, pray the prayer which finds the word,
Make the appeal which must be felt, not
heard,
And none the more is changed your calm
regard:
Rather, its sweet and soft grow harsh and hard—
Forbearance, then repulsion, then disdain.
Avert the rest! I rise, see!—make, again Once more, the old departure for some track
Untried yet through a world which brings me back
Ever thus fruitlessly to find your feet,
To fix your eyes, to pray the soft and sweet
Which smile there—take from his new pilgrimage
Your outcast, once your inmate, and assuage
With love—not placid pardon now—his thirst
For a mere drop from out the ocean erst
He drank at! Well, the quest shall be renewed.
Fear nothing! Though I linger, unembued
With any drop, my lips thus close. I go!
So did I leave you, I have found you so,
And doubtlessly, if fated to return,
So shall my pleading persevere and earn Pardon—not love—in that same smile, I
learn,
And lose the meaning of, to learn once
more, Vainly!

What fairy track do I explore?
What magic hall return to, like the gem
Centuply-angled o'er a diadem?
You dwell there, hearted; from your mid-most home
Rays forth—through that fantastic world
I roam
Ever—from centre to circumference, Shaft upon coloured shaft: this crimsons
thence,
That purples out its precinct through the waste.
Surely I had your sanction when I faced,
Fared forth upon that untried yellow ray Whence I retrack my steps? They end to-
day
Where they began—before your feet, beneath
Your eyes, your smile: the blade is shut in sheath,
Fire quenched in flint; irradiation, late Triumphant through the distance, finds its fate,
Merged in your blank pure soul, alike the source
And tomb of that prismatic glow: divorce
Absolute, all-conclusive! Forth I fared, Treading the lambent flamelet: little cared

If now its flickering took the topaz tint,
 If now my dull-caked path gave sulphury
 hint
 Of subterranean rage—no stay nor stint
 To yellow, since you sanctioned that I bathe, Burnish me, soul and body, swim and swathe
 In yellow license. Here I reek suffused
 With crocus, saffron, orange, as I used
 With scarlet, purple, every dye o' the bow Born' of the storm-cloud. As before, you show
 Scarce recognition, no approval, some Mistrust, more wonder at a man become Monstrous in garb, nay—flesh disguised
 as well,
 Through his adventure. Whatso'er befell,
 I followed, wheresoe'er it wound, that vein
 You authorized should leave your whiteness, stain
 Earth's sombre stretch beyond your mid-most place
 Of vantage,—trode that tinct whereof the trace
 On garb and flesh repel you! Yes, I plead
 Your own permission—your command,
 indeed,
 That who would worthily retain the love Must share the knowledge shrined those eyes above,
 Go boldly on adventure, break through
 bounds
 O' the quintessential whiteness that surrounds
 Your feet, obtain experience of each tinge
 That bickers forth to broaden out, impinge Plainer his foot its pathway all distinct From every other. Ah, the wonder, linked With fear, as exploration manifests
 What agency it was first tipped the crests
 Of unnamed wildflower, soon protruding grew
 Portentous mid the sands, as when his hue Betrays him and the burrowing snake gleams through;
 Till, last . . . but why parade more shame
 and pain?
 Are not the proofs upon me? Here again
 I pass into your presence, I receive Your smile of pity, pardon, and I leave . . .
 No, not this last of times I leave you, mute,
 Submitted to my penance, so my foot May yet again adventure, tread, from
 source
 To issue, onemore ray of rays which course Each other, at your bidding, from the
 sphere
 Silver and sweet, their birthplace, down that drear
 Dark of the world,—you promise shall return
 Your pilgrim jewelled as with drops o' the urn

The rainbow paints from, and no smatch
 at all
 Of ghastliness at edge of some cloud-pall Heaven cowers before, as earth awaits the
 fall
 O' the bolt and flash of doom. Who trusts your word
 Tries the adventure: and returns—absurd
 As frightful—in that sulphur-steeped disguise
 Mocking the priestly cloth-of-gold, sole
 prize
 The arch-heretic was wont to bear away
 Until he reached the burning. No, I say:
 No fresh adventure! No more seeking
 love
 At end of toil, and finding, calm above
 My passion, the old statuesque regard,
 The sad petrific smile!

O you—less hard
 And hateful than mistaken and obtuse
 Unreason of a she-intelligence!
 You very woman with the pert pretence To match the male achievement! Like
 enough!
 Ay, you were easy victors, did the rough Straightway efface itself to smooth, the gruff
 Grind down and grow a whisper,—did man's truth
 Subdue, for sake of chivalry and ruth,
 Its rapier-edge to suit the bulrush-spear Womanly falsehood fights with! O that
 ear
 All fact pricks rudely, that thrice-superfine
 Femininity of sense, with right divine
 To waive all process, take result stain-free
 From out the very muck wherein . . .

Ah me!
 The true slave's querulous outbreak! All
 the rest
 Be resignation! Forth at your behest
 I fare. Who knows but this—the crimson-quest—
 May deepen to a sunrise, not decay
 To that cold sad sweet smile?—which I obey.

APPEARANCES

I

AND so you found that poor room dull,
 Dark, hardly to your taste, my dear?
 Its features seemed unbeautiful:
 But this I know—'twas there, not here,
 You plighted troth to me, the word
 Which—ask that poor room how it heard.

II

And this rich room obtains your praise
 Unqualified,—so bright, so fair,
 So all whereat perfection stays?

APPEARANCES

Ay, but remember—here, not there,
The other word was spoken! Ask This rich room how you dropped the mask!

ST. MARTIN'S SUMMER

I

No protesting, dearest!
Hardly kisses even!
Don't we both know how it ends?
How the greenest leaf turns serest,
Bluest outbreak—blankest heaven,
Lovers—friends?

II

You would build a mansion,
I would weave a bower
—Want the heart for enterprise.
Walls admit of no expansion:
Trellis-work may haply flower
Twice the size.

III

What makes glad Life's Winter?
New buds, old blooms after.
Sad the sighing 'How suspect
Beams would ere mid-Autumn splinter, Roof-tree scarce support a rafter,
Walls lie wrecked?'

You are young, my princess!
I am hardly older:
Yet—I steal a glance behind.
Dare I tell you what convinces
Timid me that you, if bolder,
Bold—are blind?

V

Where we plan our dwelling
Glooms a graveyard surely!
Headstone, footstone moss may drape,—
Name, date, violets hide from spelling,—
But, though corpses rot obscurely, Ghosts escape.

VI

Ghosts! O breathing Beauty,
Give my frank word pardon!
What if I—somehow, somewhere—
Pledged my soul to endless duty
Many a time and oft? Be hard on Love—laid there?

VII

Nay, blame grief that's fickle,
Time that proves a traitor,
Chance, change, all that purpose
warps,—
Death who spares to thrust the sickle Laid Love low, through flowers which later
Shroud the corpse!

VIII

And you, my winsome lady,
Whisper with like frankness!
Lies nothing buried long ago?
Are you—which shimmer mid the shady Where moss and violet run to rank-
ness—
Tombs or no?

IX

Who taxes you with murder?
My hands are clean—or nearly!
Love being mortal needs must pass.
Repentance? Nothing were absurder.
Enough: we felt Love's loss severely;
Though now—alas!

Love's corpse lies quiet therefore,
Only Love's ghost plays truant,
And warns us have in wholesome awe Durable mansionry; that's wherefore
I weave but trellis-work, pursuant —Life, to law.

XI

The solid, not the fragile,
Tempt rain and hail and thunder.
If bower stand firm at Autumn's close, Beyond my hope,—why, boughs were agile;
If bower fall flat, we scarce need wonder Wreathing—rose!

XII

So, truce to the protesting,
So, muffled be the kisses!
For, would we but avow the truth,
Sober is genuine joy. No jesting!
Ask else Penelope, Ulysses—
Old in youth!

XIII

For why should ghosts feel angered?
Let all their interference
Be faint march-music in the air!
'Up! Join the rear of us the vanguard!
Up, lovers, dead to all appearance,
Laggard pair!'

XIV

The while you clasp me closer,
The while I press you deeper,
As safe we chuckle,—under breath,
Yet all the slyer, the jocosier,— 'So, life can boast its day, like leap-year, Stolen from death!'

XV

Ah me—the sudden terror!
Hence quick—avaunt, avoid me,
You cheat, the ghostly flesh-disguised!
Nay, all the ghosts in one! Strange error!
So, 'twas Death's self that clipped and cloyed me,
Loved—and lied!

ST. MARTIN'S SUMMER

XVI

Ay, dead loves are the potent!
Like any cloud they used you,
Mere semblance you, but substance
they!
Build we no mansion, weave we no tent!
Mere flesh—their spirit interfused you!
Hence, I say!

XVII

All theirs, none yours the glamour!
Theirs each low word that won me, Soft look that found me Love's, and
left
What else but you—the tears and clamour
That's all your very own! Undone me—
Ghost-bereft!

HERVÉ RIEL

I

ON the sea and at the Hogue, sixteen hundred ninety-two,
Did the English fight the French,—woe to France!
And, the thirty-first of May, helter-skelter
through the blue,
Like a crowd of frightened porpoises a shoal of sharks pursue,
Came crowding ship on ship to Saint-Malo on the Rance,
With the English fleet in view.

II

'Twas the squadron that escaped, with the victor in full chase;
First and foremost of the drove, in his great ship, Damfreville;
Close on him fled, great and small,
Twenty-two good ships in all;
And they signalled to the place
'Help the winners of a race!
Get us guidance, give us harbour, take us quick—or, quicker still,
Here's the English can and will!'

III

Then the pilots of the place put out brisk and leapt on board;
'Why, what hope or chance have ships like these to pass?' laughed they:
'Rocks to starboard, rocks to port, all the passage scarred and scored,— Shall the "Formidable" here, with her twelve and eighty guns, Think to make the river-mouth by the single narrow way,
Trust to enter—where 'tis ticklish for a craft of twenty tons,
And with flow at full beside?
Now, 'tis slackest ebb of tide.
Reach the mooring? Rather say,
While rock stands or water runs,
Not a ship will leave the bay!'

IV

Then was called a council straight.
Brief and bitter the debate:
'Here's the English at our heels; would you have them take in tow
All that's left us of the fleet, linked together stern and bow,
For a prize to Plymouth Sound?
Better run the ships aground!'
(Ended Damfreville his speech.)
'Not a minute more to wait!
Let the Captains all and each Shove ashore, then blow up, burn the vessels on the beach!
France must undergo her fate.

Give the word!' But no such word
Was ever spoke or heard;
For up stood, for out stepped, for in struck amid all these
—A Captain? A Lieutenant? A Mate—first, second, third?
No such man of mark, and meet
With his betters to compete!
But a simple Breton sailor pressed by Tourville for the fleet,
A poor coasting-pilot he, Hervé Riel the Croisickese.

VI

And 'What mockery or malice have we here?' cries Hervé Riel:
'Are you mad, you Malouins? Are you cowards, fools, or rogues?
Talk to me of rocks and shoals, me who took the soundings, tell
On my fingers every bank, every shallow, every swell
'Twixt the offing here and Grève where the river disembogues?
Are you bought by English gold? Is it love the lying's for?
Morn and eve, night and day,
Have I piloted your bay,
Entered free and anchored fast at the foot of Solidor.
Burn the fleet and ruin France? That were worse than fifty Hagues!
Sirs, they know I speak the truth!
Sirs, believe me there's a way!
Only let me lead the line,
Have the biggest ship to steer,
Get this "Formidable" clear,
Make the others follow mine,
And I lead them, most and least, by a passage I know well,
Right to Solidor past Grève,
And there lay them safe and sound;
And if one ship misbehave,— —Keel so much as grate the ground, Why, I've nothing but my life,—here's my head!' cries Hervé Riel.

VII

Not a minute more to wait.
 'Steer us in, then, small and great!
 Take the helm, lead the line, save the squadron!' cried its chief.
 Captains, give the sailor place!
 He is Admiral, in brief.
 Still the north-wind, by God's grace!
 See the noble fellow's face
 As the big ship, with a bound,
 Clears the entry like a hound, Keeps the passage, as its inch of way were the wide sea's profound!
 See, safe thro' shoal and rock,
 How they follow in a flock,
 Not a ship that misbehaves, not a keel that grates the ground,
 Not a spar that comes to grief!
 The peril, see, is past.
 All are harboured to the last,
 And just as Hervé Riel hollas 'Anchor!'— sure as fate,
 Up the English come,—too late!

VIII

So, the storm subsides to calm:
 They see the green trees wave
 On the heights o'erlooking Grève.
 Hearts that bled are stanch'd with balm.
 'Just our rapture to enhance,
 Let the English rake the bay,
 Gnash their teeth and glare askance
 As they cannonade away!
 'Neath rampired Solidor pleasant riding on the Rance!'—
 How hope succeeds despair on each Captain's countenance!
 Out burst all with one accord,
 'This is Paradise for Hell!
 Let France, let France's King
 Thank the man that did the thing!'
 What a shout, and all one word,
 'Hervé Riel!
 As he stepped in front once more,
 Not a symptom of surprise
 In the frank blue Breton eyes,
 Just the same man as before.

IX

Then said Damfreville, 'My friend,
 I must speak out at the end,
 Though I find the speaking hard.
 Praise is deeper than the lips:
 You have saved the King his ships,
 You must name your own reward.
 'Faith, our sun was near eclipse!
 Demand whate'er you will,
 France remains your debtor still.
 Ask to heart's content and have! or my name's not Damfreville.'

X

Then a beam of fun outbroke
 On the bearded mouth that spoke,

As the honest heart laughed through Those frank eyes of Breton blue:
 'Since I needs must say my say,
 Since on board the duty's done,
 And from Malo Roads to Croisic Point, what is it but a run?—
 Since 'tis ask and have, I may—
 Since the others go ashore—
 Come! A good whole holiday!
 Leave to go and see my wife, whom I call the Belle Aurore!'
 That he asked and that he got,—nothing
 more.

XI

Name and deed alike are lost:
 Not a pillar nor a post
 In his Croisic keeps alive the feat as it befell;
 Not a head in white and black
 On a single fishing-smack,
 In memory of the man but for whom had gone to wrack
 All that France saved from the fight whence England bore the bell.
 Go to Paris, rank on rank
 Search the heroes flung pell-mell
 On the Louvre, face and flank!
 You shall look long enough ere you come to Hervé Riel.
 So, for better and for worse,
 Hervé Riel, accept my verse!
 In my verse, Hervé Riel, do thou once
 more Save the squadron, honour France, love thy wife the Belle Aurore!

A FORGIVENESS

I AM indeed the personage you know.
 As for my wife,—what happened long ago,—
 You have a right to question me, as I Am bound to answer.

('Son, a fit reply!')

The monk half spoke, half ground through his clenched teeth,
 At the confession-grate I knelt beneath.)

Thus then all happened, Father! Power and place

I had as still I nave. I ran life's race,
 With the whole world to see, as only strains
 His strength some athlete whose prodigious gains

Of good appal him: happy to excess,—
 Work freely done should balance happiness

Fully enjoyed; and, since beneath my roof Housed she who made home heaven, in heaven's behoof

I went forth every day, and all day long Worked for the world. Look, how the labourer's song

A FORGIVENESS

Cheers him! Thus sang my soul, at each sharp throe
Of labouring flesh and blood—'She loves me so!'

One day, perhaps such song so knit the nerve
That work grew play and vanished. 'I deserve

Haply my heaven an hour before the time!' I laughed, as silverly the clockhouse-chime Surprised me passing through the postern-gate

—Not the main entry where the menials wait

And wonder why the world's affairs allow
The master sudden leisure. That was how I took the private garden-way for once.

Forth from the alcove, I saw start, ensconce Himself behind the porphyry vase, a man.
My fancies in the natural order ran:

'A spy,—perhaps a foe in ambushade,—
A thief,—more like, a sweetheart of some maid
Who pitched on the alcove for tryst perhaps.'

'Stand there!' I bid.

Whereat my man but wraps
His face the closelier with uplifted arm
Whereon the cloak lies, strikes in blind alarm

This and that pedestal as,—stretch and stoop,—

Now in, now out of sight, he thrids the group

Of statues, marble god and goddess ranged Each side the pathway, till the gate's exchanged

For safety: one step thence, the street, you know!

Thus far I followed with my gaze. Then, slow,

Near on admiringly, I breathed again,
And—back to that last fancy of the train—

'A danger risked for hope of just a word
With—which of all my nest may be the bird

This poacher covets for her plumage, pray?
Carmen? Juana? Carmen seems too gay
For such adventure, while Juana's grave —Would scorn the folly. I applaud the knave!

He had the eye, could single from my brood

His proper fledgeling!

As I turned, there stood
In face of me, my wife stone-still stone-white.

Whether one bound had brought her,— at first sight

Of what she judged the encounter, sure to be

Next moment, of the venturesome man and me,—

Brought her to clutch and keep me from my prey:

Whether impelled because her death no day

Could come so absolutely opportune
As now at joy's height, like a year in June

Stayed at the fall of its first ripened rose:
Or whether hungry for my hate—who knows?—

Eager to end an irksome lie, and taste
Our tingling true relation, hate embraced

By hate one naked moment:—anyhow
There stone-still stone-white stood my wife, but now

The woman who made heaven within my house.

Ay, she who faced me was my very spouse
As well as love—you are to recollect!

'Stay!' she said. 'Keep at least one soul unspecked

With crime, that's spotless hitherto—your own!

Kill me who court the blessing, who alone
Was, am, and shall be guilty, first to last!

The man lay helpless in the toils I cast
About him, helpless as the statue there

Against that strangling bell-flower's bondage: tear

Away and tread to dust the parasite,
But do the passive marble no despite!

I love him as I hate you. Kill me! Strike
At one blow both infinitudes alike

Out of existence—hate and love! Whence love?

That's safe inside my heart, nor will remove

For any searching of your steel, I think.
Whence hate? The secret lay on lip, at brink

Of speech, in one fierce tremble to escape,
At every form wherein your love took shape,

At each new provocation of your kiss.
Kill me!

We went in.

Next day after this,
I felt as if the speech might come. I spoke—Easily, after all.

'The lifted cloak
Was screen sufficient: I concern myself
Hardly with laying hands on who for pelf—

Whate'er the ignoble kind—may prowl and brave

Cuffing and kicking proper to a knave

A FORGIVENESS

Detected by my household's vigilance.
Enough of such! As for my love-
romance—

I, like our good Hidalgo, rub my eyes
And wake and wonder how the film could
rise

Which changed for me a barber's basin
straight

Into—Mambrino's helm? I hesitate
Nowise to say—God's sacramental cup!
Why should I blame the brass which, burnished up,

Will blaze, to all but me, as good as gold?
To me—a warning I was overbold

In judging metals. The Hidalgo waked
Only to die, if I remember,—staked
His life upon the basin's worth, and lost:
While I confess torpidity at most

In here and there a limb; but, lame and halt,
Still should I work on, still repair my fault
Ere I took rest in death,—no fear at all!
Now, work—no word before the curtain
fall!

The 'curtain'? That of death on life, I
meant:

My 'word,' permissible in death's event,
Would be—truth, soul to soul; for, otherwise,

Day by day, three years long, there had to rise

And, night by night, to fall upon our
stage—

Ours, doomed to public play by heritage—
Another curtain, when the world, perforce
Our critical assembly, in due course Came and went, witnessing, gave praise or
blame

To art-mimetic. It had spoiled the game
If, suffered to set foot behind our scene,
The world had witnessed how stage-king and queen,

Gallant and lady, but a minute since Enarming each the other, would evince
No sign of recognition as they took

His way and her way to whatever nook
Waited them in the darkness either side Of that bright stage where lately groom and bride

Had fired the audience to a frenzy-fit
Of sympathetic rapture—every whit Earned as the curtain fell on her and me, —Actors. Three whole years, nothing was
to see

But calm and concord; where a speech was due

There came the speech: when smiles were wanted too

Smiles were as ready. In a place like mine, Where foreign and domestic cares combine,

There's audience every day and all day
long;

But finally the last of the whole throng

Who linger lets one see his back. For her—
Why, liberty and liking: I aver,
Liking and liberty! For me—I breathed, Let my face rest from every wrinkle
wreathed

Smile-like about the mouth, unlearned my task

Of personation till next day bade mask,
And quietly betook me from that world
To the real world, not pageant: there unfurled

In work, its wings, my soul, the fretted
power.

Three years I worked, each minute of each
hour

Not claimed by acting:—work I may dispense

With talk about, since work in evidence,
Perhaps in history; who knows or cares?

After three years, this way, all unawares,
Our acting ended. She and I, at close Of a loud night-feast, led, between two rows

Of bending male and female loyalty,
Our lord the king down staircase, while,
held high

At arm's length did the twisted tapers' flare Herald his passage from our palace, where Such visiting left glory evermore.

Again the ascent in public, till at door
As we two stood by the saloon—now blank
And disencumbered of its guests—there
sank

A whisper in my ear, so low and yet
So unmistakable!

'I half forget

The chamber you repair to, and I want Occasion for one short word—if you grant That grace—within a certain room you called

Our "Study," for you wrote there while I scrawled

Some paper full of faces for my sport.
That room I can remember. Just one short Word with you there, for the remembrance' sake!

'Follow me thither!' I replied.

We break

The gloom a little, as with guiding lamp
I lead the way, leave warmth and cheer, by damp

Blind disused serpentine ways afar
From where the habitable chambers are, Ascend, descend stairs tunnelled through the stone,—

Always in silence,—till I reach the lone Chamber sepulchred for my very own
Out of the palace-quarry. When a boy, Here was my fortress, stronghold from annoy,

A FORGIVENESS

Proof-positive of ownership; in youth
I garnered up my gleanings here—uncouth
But precious relics of vain hopes, vain
fears;

Finally, this became in after years
My closet of entrenchment to withstand Invasion of the foe on every hand—
The multifarious herd in bower and hall,
State-room,—rooms whatsoe'er the style, which call

On masters to be mindful that, before Men, they must look like men and something more.

Here,—when our lord the king's bestow-ment ceased

To deck me on the day that, golden-fleeced,
I touched ambition's height,—'twas here,
released

From glory (always symbolled by a chain!)
No sooner was I privileged to gain
My secret domicile than glad I flung That last toy on the table—gazed where hung

On hook my father's gift, the arquebuss—
And asked myself 'Shall I envisage thus The new prize and the old prize, when I reach

Another year's experience?—own that each Equalled advantage—sportsman's—statesman's tool?

That brought me down an eagle, this—a
fool!

Into which room on entry, I set down
The lamp, and turning saw whose rustled gown

Had told me my wife followed, pace for pace.

Each of us looked the other in the face.
She spoke. 'Since I could die now . . .'

(To explain

Why that first struck me, know—not once
again

Since the adventure at the porphyry's edge
Three years before, which sundered like a wedge

Her soul from mine,—though daily, smile to smile,

We stood before the public,—all the while
Not once had I distinguished, in that face
I paid observance to, the faintest trace
Of feature more than requisite for eyes
To do their duty by and recognize:

So did I force mine to obey my will And pry no further. There exists such skill,—

Those know who need it. What physician shrinks

From needful contact with a corpse? He drinks

No plague so long as thirst for knowledge
—not

An idler impulse—prompts inquiry.
What,

And will you disbelieve in power to bid
Our spirit back to bounds, as though we chid

A child from scrutiny that's just and right
In manhood? Sense, not soul, accomplished sight,

Reported daily she it was—not how Nor why a change had come to cheek and
brow.)

'Since I could die now of the truth concealed,

Yet dare not, must not die—so seems revealed

The Virgin's mind to me—for death means
peace,

Wherein no lawful part have I, whose lease
Of life and punishment the truth avowed May haply lengthen,—let me push the shroud

Away, that steals to muffle ere is just My penance-fire in snow! I dare—I must Live, by avowal of the truth—this truth—
I loved you! Thanks for the fresh serpent's tooth

That, by a prompt new pang more exquisite Than all preceding torture, proves me
right!

I loved you yet I lost you! May I go Burn to the ashes, now my shame you
know?'

I think there never was such—how express?—

Horror coquetting with voluptuousness,
As in those arms of Eastern workmanship—

Yataghan, kandjar, things that rend and rip,

Gash rough, slash smooth, help hate so many ways,

Yet ever keep a beauty that betrays
Love still at work with the artificer

Throughout his quaint devising. Why prefer,

Except for love's sake, that a blade should writhe

And bicker like a flame?—now play the scythe

As if some broad neck tempted,—now contract

And needle off into a fineness lacked
For just that puncture which the heart demands?

Then, such adornment! Wherefore need our hands

Enclose not ivory alone, nor gold Roughened for use, but jewels? Nay, behold!

Fancy my favourite—which I seem to grasp

While I describe the luxury. No asp
Is diapered more delicate round throat
Than this below the handle! These denote

A FORGIVENESS

—These mazy lines meandering, to end
Only in flesh they open—what intend They else but water-purlings—pale contrast

With the life-crimson where they blend at
last?

And mark the handle's dim pellucid green, Carved, the hard jadestone, as you pinch
a bean,

Into a sort of parrot-bird! He pecks
A grape-bunch; his two eyes are rubyspecks

Pure from the mine: seen this way,—glassy
blank,

But turn them,—lo the inmost fire, that shrank

From sparkling, sends a red dart right to
aim!

Why did I choose such toys? Perhaps the
game

Of peaceful men is warlike, just as men War-wearied get amusement from that pen

And paper we grow sick of—statesfolk
tired

Of merely (when such measures are required)

Dealing out doom to people by three
words,

A signature and seal: we play with swords Suggestive of quick process. That is how I came to like the toys described you now, Store of which glittered on the walls and strewed

The table, even, while my wife pursued
Her purpose to its ending. 'Now you
know

This shame, my three years' torture, let me go,

Burn to the very ashes! You—I lost,
Yet you—I loved!'

The thing I pity most
In men is—action prompted by surprise
Of anger: men? nay, bulls—whose onset lies

At instance of the firework and the goad!
Once the foe prostrate,—trampling once bestowed,—

Prompt follows placability, regret, Atonement. Trust me, blood-warmth never yet

Betokened strong will! As no leap of pulse Pricked me, that first time, so did none convulse

My veins at this occasion for resolve.
Had that devolved which did not then devolve

Upon me, I had done—what now to do
Was quietly apparent.

'Tell me who
The man was, crouching by the porphyry
vase!'

'No, never! All was folly in his case,
All guilt in mine. I tempted, he complied.'

'And yet you loved me?'

'Loved you. Double-dyed
In folly and in guilt, I thought you gave Your heart and soul away from me to slave At statecraft. Since my right in you seemed lost,

I stung myself to teach you, to your cost,
What you rejected could be prized beyond Life, heaven, by the first fool! I threw a fond Look on, a fatal word to.'

'And you still Love me? Do I conjecture well or ill?'

'Conjecture—well or ill! I had three years To spend in learning you.'

'We both are peers
In knowledge, therefore: since three years are spent

'Ere thus much of yourself I learn—who
went

Back to the house, that day, and brought
my mind

To bear upon your action, uncombined Motive from motive, till the dross, deprived

Of every purer particle, survived
At last in native simple hideousness,
Utter contemptibility, nor less

Nor more. Contemptibility—exempt
How could I, from its proper due—contempt?

I have too much despised you to divert
My life from its set course by help or hurt
Of your all-despicable life—perturb

The calm, I work in, by—men's mouths to curb,

Which at such news were clamorous
enough—

Men's eyes to shut before my broidered stuff

With the huge hole there, my emblazoned
wall

Blank where a scutcheon hung,—by,
worse than all,

Each day's procession, my paraded life Robbed and impoverished through the wanting wife

—Now that my life (which means—my work) was grown

Riches indeed! Once, just this worth alone Seemed work to have, that profit gained thereby

Of good and praise would—how reward-
ingly!—

Fall at your feet,—a crown I hoped to cast Before your love, my love should crown
at last.

No love remaining to cast crown before,
My love stopped work now: but contempt
the more

A FORGIVENESS

Impelled me task as ever head and hand, Because the very fiends weave ropes of sand

Rather than taste pure hell in idleness.
Therefore I kept my memory down by
stress

Of daily work I had no mind to stay
For the world's wonder at the wife away.
Oh, it was easy all of it, believe,
For I despised you! But your words retrieve

Importantly the past. No hate assumed The mask of love at any time! There
gloomed

A moment when love took hate's semblance, urged
By causes you declare; but love's self purged

Away a fancied wrong I did both loves —Yours and my own: by no hate's help, it proves,

Purgation was attempted. Then, you rise
High by how many a grade! I did despise—
I do but hate you. Let hate's punishment Replace contempt's! First step to which ascent—

Write down your own words I re-utter
you!

*"I loved my husband and I hated—who
He was, I took up as my first chance, mere Mud-ball to fling and make love foul with!"*

Here
Lies paper!"

'Would my blood for ink suffice!'

'It may: this minion from a land of spice, Silk, feather—every bird of jewelled
breast—

This poignard's beauty, ne'er so lightly prest

Above your heart there . . .'

'Thus?'

'It flows, I see.
Dip there the point and write!'

'Dictate to me!

Nay, I remember.'

And she wrote the words.
I read them. Then—'Since love, in you, affords

License for hate, in me, to quench (I say) Contempt—why, hate itself has passed
away

In vengeance—foreign to contempt. De-
part

Peacefully to that death which Eastern art
Imbued this weapon with, if tales be true!
Love will succeed to hate. I pardon you—Dead in our chamber!"

True as truth the tale.
She died ere morning: then, I saw how pale

Her cheek was ere it wore day's paint-
disguise,

And what a hollow darkened 'neath her
eyes,

Now that I used my own. She sleeps, as erst

Beloved, in this your church: ay, yours!

Immersed
In thought so deeply, Father? Sad, perhaps?

For whose sake, hers or mine or his who wraps

—Still plain I seem to see!—about his
head

The idle cloak,—about his heart (instead Of cuirass) some fond hope he may elude
My vengeance in the cloister's solitude?

Hardly, I think! As little helped his brow
The cloak then, Father—as your grate helps now!

CENCIAJA

Ogni cencio vuol entrare in bucato.
—Italian Proverb.

MAY I print, Shelley, how it came to pass That when your Beatrice seemed—by lapse

Of many a long month since her sentence
fell—

Assured of pardon for the parricide,—
By intercession of staunch friends, or, say,
By certain pricks of conscience in the Pope

Conniver at Francesco Cenci's guilt,— Suddenly all things changed and Clement grew

'Stern,' as you state, 'nor to be moved nor
bent,

But said these three words coldly "She must die."

Subjoining "*Pardon? Paolo Santa Croce
Murdered his mother also yestereve,
And he is fled: she shall not flee at least!*"

—So, to the letter, sentence was fulfilled?
Shelley, may I condense verbosity

Tha lies before me, into some few words
Of English, and illustrate your superb

Achievement by a rescued anecdote,
No great things, only new and true beside?

As if some mere familiar of a house
Should venture to accost the group at gaze Before its Titian, famed the wide world
through,

And supplement such pictured masterpiece

By whisper 'Searching in the archives here,
I found the reason of the Lady's fate,

And how by accident it came to pass
She wears the halo and displays the palm:

Who, haply, else had never suffered—no,
Nor graced our gallery, by consequence.'

Who loved the work would like the little news

CENCIAJA

Who lauds your poem lends an ear to me
 Relating how the penalty was paid
 By one Marchese dell' Oriolo, called Onofrio Santa Croce otherwise,
 For his complicity in matricide With Paolo his own brother,—he whose crime
 And flight induced 'those three words—
 She must die.'
 Thus I unroll you then the manuscript.

'God's justice'—(of the multiplicity
 Of such communications extant still,
 Recording, each, injustice done by God
 In person of his Vicar-upon-earth, Scarce one but leads off to the self-same tune)—
 'God's justice, tardy though it prove per-
 chance,
 Rests never on the track until it reach Delinquency. In proof I cite the case
 Of Paolo Santa Croce.'

Many times
 The youngster,—having been importunate
 That Marchesine Costanza, who remained His widowed mother, should supplant the heir
 Her elder son, and substitute himself
 In sole possession of her faculty,—
 And meeting just as often with rebuff,— Blinded by so exorbitant a lust
 Of gold, the youngster straightway tasked his wits,
 Casting about to kill the lady—thus.

He first, to cover his iniquity,
 Writes to Onofrio Santa Croce, then Authoritative lord, acquainting him
 Their mother was contamination—
 wrought
 Like hell-fire in the beauty of their House
 By dissoluteness and abandonment
 Of soul and body to impure delight.
 Moreover, since she suffered from disease,
 Those symptoms which her death made manifest
 Hydroptic, he affirmed were fruits of sin
 About to bring confusion and disgrace
 Upon the ancient lineage and high fame
 O' the family, when published. Duty
 bound,
 He asked his brother—what a son should
 do?

Which when Marchese dell' Oriolo
 heard
 By letter, being absent at his land Oriolo, he made answer, this, no more:
 'It must behove a son,—things haply so,—
 To act as honour prompts a cavalier
 And son, perform his duty to all three,
 Mother and brothers'—here advice broke
 off.

By which advice informed and fortified,
 As he professed himself—since bound by birth
 To hear God's voice in primogeniture—
 Paolo, who kept his mother company
 In her domain Subiaco, straightway dared
 His whole enormity of enterprise
 And, falling on her, stabbed the lady dead;
 Whose death demonstrated her innocence,
 And happened,—by the way,—since Jesus
 Christ
 Died to save man, just sixteen hundred
 years.
 Costanza was of aspect beautiful
 Exceedingly, and seemed, although in age
 Sixty about, to far surpass her peers
 The coëtaneous dames, in youth and grace.

Done the misdeed, its author takes to
 flight,
 Foiling thereby the justice of the world:
 Not God's however,—God, be sure,
 knows well
 The way to clutch a culprit. Witness here!
 The present sinner, when he least expects,
 Snug-cornered somewhere i' the Basilicate,
 Stumbles upon his death by violence.
 A man of blood assaults a man of blood And slays him somehow. This was afterward:
 Enough, he promptly met with his deserts,
 And, ending thus, permits we end with
 him,
 And push forthwith to this important
 point—
 His matricide fell out, of all the days,
 Precisely when the law-procedure closed
 Respecting Count Francesco Cenci's death
 Chargeable on his daughter, sons and wife.
 'Thus patricide was matched with matri-cide,'
 A poet not inelegantly rhymed:
 Nay, fratricide—those Princes Massimi!—
 Which so disturbed the spirit of the Pope
 That all the likelihood Rome entertained
 Of Beatrice's pardon vanished straight,
 And she endured the piteous death.

Now see
 The sequel—what effect commandment had
 For strict inquiry into this last case,
 When Cardinal Aldobrandini (great His efficacy—nephew to the Pope)
 Was bidden crush—ay, though his very
 hand
 Got soil i' the act—crime spawning every-
 where!
 Because, when all endeavour had been used
 To catch the aforesaid Paolo, all in vain—
 'Make perquisition' quoth our Eminence,
 'Throughout his now deserted domicile!
 Ransack the palace, roof and floor, to find

If haply any scrap of writing, hid In nook or corner, may convict—who knows?—

Brother Onofrio of intelligence
With brother Paolo, as in brotherhood Is but too likely: crime spawns every-
where.

And, every cranny searched accordingly,
There comes to light—O lynx-eyed Cardinal!—

Onofrio's unconsidered writing-scrap,
The letter in reply to Paolo's prayer,
The word of counsel that—things proving
so,

Paolo should act the proper knightly part,
And do as was incumbent on a son,
A brother—and a man of birth, be sure!

Whereat immediately the officers
Proceeded to arrest Onofrio—found
At foot-ball, child's play, unaware of harm, Safe with his friends, the Orsini, at their seat

Monte Giordano; as he left the house
He came upon the watch in wait for him
Set by the Barigel,—was caught and caged.

News of which capture being, that same
hour,
Conveyed to Rome, forthwith our Eminence,

Commands Taverna, Governor and Judge,
To have the process in especial care,
Be, first to last, not only president
In person, but inquisitor as well,
Nor trust the by-work to a substitute:
Bids him not, squeamish, keep the bench,
but scrub

The floor of Justice, so to speak,—go try
His best in prison with the criminal:
Promising, as reward for by-work done
Fairly on all-fours, that, success obtained
And crime avowed, or such connivency
With crime as should procure a decent
death—

Himself will humbly beg—which means, procure—

The Hat and Purple from his relative
The Pope, and so repay a diligence
Which, meritorious in the Cenci-case,
Mounts plainly here to Purple and the Hat.

Whereupon did my lord the Governor
So masterfully exercise the task Enjoined him, that he, day by day, and
week

By week, and month by month, from first to last

Toiled for the prize: now, punctual at his
place,
Played Judge, and now, assiduous at his post,

Inquisitor—pressed cushion and scoured plank,

Early and late. Noon's fervour and night's chill,

Nought moved whom morn would,
purpling, make amends!

So that observers laughed as, many a day,
He left home, in July when day is flame,

Posted to Tordinona-prison, plunged Into a vault where daylong night is ice,

There passed his eight hours on a stretch,
content,

Examining Onofrio: all the stress
Of all examination steadily

Converging into one pin-point,—he pushed

Tentative now of head and now of heart.
As when the nuthatch tars and tries the nut

This side and that side till the kernel
sound,—

So did he press the sole and single point —What was the very meaning of the phrase

'Do as beseems an honoured cavalier'?

Which one persistent question-torture,
—plied

Day by day, week by week, and month by month,

Morn, noon and night,—fatigued away a
mind

Grown imbecile by darkness, solitude,
And one vivacious memory gnawing there

As when a corpse is coffined with a snake —Fatigued Onofrio into what might seem

Admission that perchance his judgment
groped

So blindly, feeling for an issue—aught
With semblance of an issue from the toils

Cast of a sudden round feet late so free,
He possibly might have envisaged, scarce

Recoiled from—even were the issue death —Even her death whose life was death and worse!

Always provided that the charge of crime,
Each jot and tittle of the charge were true.

In such a sense, belike, he might advise
His brother to expurgate crime with . . .

well,
With blood, if blood must follow on 'the
course

Taken as might beseem a cavalier.'

Whereupon process ended, and report
Was made without a minute of delay

To Clement who, because of those two crimes

O' the Massimi and Cenci flagrant late,
Must needs impatiently desire result.

Result obtained, he bade the Governor Summon the Congregation and despatch.
Summons made, sentence passed accordingly

CENCIAJA

—Death by beheading. When his death-decree

Was intimated to Onofrio, all Man could do—that did he to save himself.
'Twas much, the having gained for his defence

The Advocate o' the Poor, with natural help
Of many noble friendly persons fain
To disengage a man of family,
So young too, from his grim entanglement:

But Cardinal Aldobrandini ruled
There must be no diversion of the law.
Justice is justice, and the magistrate
Bears not the sword in vain. Who sins must die.

So, the Marchese had his head cut off,
With Rome to see, a concourse infinite,
In Place Saint Angelo beside the Bridge:
Where, demonstrating magnanimity
Adequate to his birth and breed,—poor boy!—

He made the people the accustomed speech,

Exhorted them to true faith, honest works,
And special good behaviour as regards
A parent of no matter what the sex,
Bidding each son take warning from himself.

Truly, it was considered in the boy
Stark staring lunacy, no less, to snap
So plain a bait, be hooked and hauled ashore

By such an angler as the Cardinal!
Why make confession of his privacy
To Paolo's enterprise? Mere sealing lips—
Or, better, saying 'When I counselled him
"To do as might beseem a cavalier,"
What could I mean but "Hide our parent's shame

As Christian ought, by aid of Holy Church!
Bury it in a convent—ay, beneath
Enough dotation to prevent its ghost From troubling earth!" Mere saying thus,
—'tis plain,

Not only was his life the recompense,
But he had manifestly proved himself
True Christian, and in lieu of punishment
Got praise of all men. So the populace.

Anyhow, when the Pope made promise good

(That of Aldobrandini, near and dear)
And gave Taverna, who had toiled so much,
A Cardinal's equipment, some such word
As this from mouth to ear went saucily:
'Taverna's cap is dyed in what he drew
From Santa Croce's veins!' So joked the world.

I add: Onofrio left one child behind,
A daughter named Valeria, dowered with grace

Abundantly of soul and body, doomed
To life the shorter for her father's fate.
By death of her, the Marquisate returned
To that Orsini House from whence it came:

Oriolo, having passed as donative
To Santa Croce from their ancestors.

And no word more? By all means!
Would you know

The authoritative answer, when folk urged
'What made Aldobrandini, hound-like staunch,

Hunt out of life a harmless simpleton?'
The answer was—'Hatred implacable,
By reason they were rivals in their love.'
The Cardinal's desire was to a dame
Whose favour was Onofrio's. Pricked with pride,

The simpleton must ostentatiously
Display a ring, the Cardinal's love-gift,
Given to Onofrio as the lady's gage;
Which ring on finger, as he put forth hand
To draw a tapestry, the Cardinal
Saw and knew, gift and owner, old and young;

Whereon a fury entered him—the fire
He quenched with what could quench fire only—blood.

Nay, more: 'there want not who affirm to boot,

The unwise boy, a certain festal eve,
Feigned ignorance of who the wight might be

That pressed too closely on him with a crowd.

He struck the Cardinal a blow: and then,
To put a face upon the incident,
Dared next day, smug as ever, go pay court
I' the Cardinal's antechamber. Mark and mend,

Ye youth, by this example how may greed
Vainglorious operate in worldly souls!'

So ends the chronicler, beginning with 'God's justice, tardy though it prove perchance,

Rests never till it reach delinquency.'
Ay, or how otherwise had come to pass
That Victor rules, this present year, in Rome?

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

A REMINISCENCE OF A.D. 1676

I

'No, boy, we must not'—so began
My Uncle (he's with God long since)
A-petting me, the good old man!

'We must not'—and he seemed to wince,

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

And lost that laugh whereto had grown
His chuckle at my piece of news,
How cleverly I aimed my stone—
'I fear we must not pelt the Jews!

II

'When I was young indeed,—ah, faith
Was young and strong in Florence too!
We Christians never dreamed of scathe
Because we cursed or kicked the crew.
But now—well, well! The olive-crops Weighed double then, and Arno's pranks
Would always spare religious shops
Whenever he o'erflowed his banks!

III

'I'll tell you'—and his eye regained Its twinkle—'tell you something
choice!
Something may help you keep unstained
Your honest zeal to stop the voice
Of unbelief with stone-throw—spite
Of laws, which modern fools enact,
That we must suffer Jews in sight
Go wholly unmolested! Fact!

IV

'There was, then, in my youth, and yet
Is, by our San Frediano, just Below the Blessed Olivet,
A wayside ground wherein they thrust Their dead,—these Jews,—the more our
shame!
Except that, so they will but die,
Christians perchance incur no blame
In giving hogs a hoist to sty.

V

'There, anyhow, Jews stow away
Their dead; and,—such their insolence,— Slink at odd times to sing and pray
As Christians do—all make-pretence!—
Which wickedness they perpetrate
Because they think no Christians see.
They reckoned here, at any rate,
'Without their host: ha, ha, he, he!

VI

'For, what should join their plot of ground
But a good Farmer's Christian field?
The Jews had hedged their corner round
With bramble-bush to keep concealed
Their doings: for the public road Ran betwixt this their ground and that The Farmer's, where he ploughed and sowed,
Grew corn for barn and grapes for vat.

VII

'So, properly to guard his store
And gall the unbelievers too,
He builds a shrine and, what is more,
Procures a painter whom I knew,

One Buti (he's with God) to paint
A holy picture there—no less Than Virgin Mary free from taint Borne to the sky by angels: yes!

VIII

Which shrine he fixed,—who says him
nay?—
A-facing with its picture-side
Not, as you'd think, the public way.
But just where sought these hounds to hide
Their carrion from that very truth
Of Mary's triumph: not a hound
Could act his mummeries uncouth
But Mary shamed the pack all round!

IX

'Now, if it was amusing, judge!
—To see the company arrive,
Each Jew intent to end his trudge
And take his pleasure (though alive)
With all his Jewish kith and kin
Below ground, have his venom out,
Sharpen his wits for next day's sin,
Curse Christians, and so home, no
doubt!

X

'Whereas, each phyz upturned beholds
Mary, I warrant, soaring brave!
And in a trice, beneath the folds
Of filthy garb which gowns each knave,
Down drops it—there to hide grimace,
Contortion of the mouth and nose
At finding Mary in the place
They'd keep for Pilate, I suppose!

XI

'At last, they will not brook—not they!—
Longer such outrage on their tribe:
So, in some hole and corner, lay
Their heads together—how to bribe
The meritorious Farmer's self
To straight undo his work, restore Their chance to meet and muse on pelf—
Pretending sorrow, as before!

XII

'Forthwith, a posse, if you please,
Of Rabbi This and Rabbi That Almost go down upon their knees
To get him lay the picture flat.
The spokesman, eighty years of age,
Grey as a badger, with a goat's
Not only beard but bleat, 'gins wage War with our Mary. Thus he dotes:—

XIII

*"Friends, grant a grace! How Hebrews
toil
Through life in Florence—why relate
To those who lay the burden, spoil
Our paths of peace? We bear our fate,*

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

*But when with life the long toil ends,
Why must you—the expression craves
Pardon, but truth compels me, friends!—
Why must you plague us in our graves?*

XIV

*“Thoughtlessly plague, I would believe!
For how can you—the lords of ease
By nurture, birthright—e’en conceive
Our luxury to lie with trees
And turf,—the cricket and the bird
Left for our last companionship:
No harsh deed, no unkindly word,
No frowning brow nor scornful lip!*

XV

*“Death’s luxury, we now rehearse While, living, through your streets we fare
And take your hatred: nothing worse
Have we, once dead and safe, to bear!
So we refresh our souls, fulfil
Our works, our daily tasks; and thus Gather you grain—earth’s harvest—still
The wheat for you, the straw for us.*

XVI

*“‘What flouting in a face, what harm,
In just a lady borne from bier
By boys’ heads, wings for leg and arm?’
You question. Friends, the harm is
here—
That just when our last sigh is heaved,
And we would fain thank God and you
For labour done and peace achieved,
Back comes the Past in full review!*

XVII

*“At sight of just that simple flag, Starts the foe-feeling serpent-like
From slumber. Leave it lulled, nor drag—Though fangless—forth, what needs must strike
When stricken sore, though stroke be vain Against the mailed oppressor! Give Play to our fancy that we gain
Life’s rights when once we cease to live!*

XVIII

*“Thus much to courtesy, to kind,
To conscience! Now to Florence folk!
There’s core beneath this apple-rind,
Beneath this white-of-egg there’s yolk!
Beneath this prayer to courtesy, Kind, conscience—there’s a sum to pouch!
How many ducats down will buy
Our shame’s removal, sirs? Avouch!*

XIX

*“Removal, not destruction, sirs!
Just turn your picture! Let it front
The public path! Or memory errs,
Or that same public path is wont*

*To witness many a chance befall
Of lust, theft, bloodshed—sins enough,
Wherein our Hebrew part is small.
Convert yourselves!”—he cut up rough*

XX

*“Look you, how soon a service paid Religion yields the servant fruit!
A prompt reply our Farmer made
So following: “Sirs, to grant your suit Involves much danger! How? Transpose
Our Lady? Stop the chastisement,
All for your good, herself bestows?
What wonder if I grudge consent?*

XXI

*“—Yet grant it: since, what cash I take
Is so much saved from wicked use.
We know you! And, for Mary’s sake,
A hundred ducats shall induce Concession to your prayer. One day
Suffices: Master Buti’s brush
Turns Mary round the other way,
And deluges your side with slush.*

XXII

*“Down with the ducats therefore!” Dump, Dump, dump it falls, each counted
piece,
Hard gold. Then out of door they stump,
These dogs, each brisk as with new lease
Of life, I warrant,—glad he’ll die
Henceforward just as he may choose,
Be buried and in clover lie!
Well said Esaias—“stiff-necked Jews!”*

XXIII

*“Off posts without a minute’s loss
Our Farmer, once the cash in poke,
And summons Luti—ere its ploss
Have time to fade from off the joke—
To chop and change his werk, undo
The done side, make the side, now
blank,
Recipient of our Lady—who,
Displaced thus, had these dogs to thank!*

XXIV

*“Now, boy, you’re hardly to instruct
In technicalities of Art!
My nephew’s childhood sure has sucked
Along with mother’s-milk some part Of painter’s-practice—learned, at least,
How expeditiously is plied
A work in fresco—never ceased
When once begun—a day, each side.*

XXV

*“So, Buti—(he’s with God)—begins:
First covers up the shrine all round
With hoarding; then, as like as twins,
Paints, t’other side the burial-ground,
New Mary, every point the same;
Next, sluices over, as agreed,
The old; and last—but, spoil the game
By telling you? Not I, indeed!*

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

XXVI

'Well, ere the week was half at end,
Out came the object of this zeal,
This fine alacrity to spend
Hard money for mere dead men's weal!
How think you? That old spokesman
Jew
Was High Priest, and he had a wife
As old, and she was dying too,
And wished to end in peace her life!

XXVII

'And he must humour dying whims,
And soothe her with the idle hope They'd say their prayers and sing their hymns
As if her husband were the Pope!
And she did die—believing just
This privilege was purchased! Dead
In comfort through her foolish trust!
"Stiff-necked ones," well Esaias said!

XXVIII

'So, Sabbath morning, out of gate
And on to way, what sees our arch Good Farmer? Why, they hoist their freight—
The corpse—on shoulder, and so,
march!
"Now for it, Buti!" In the nick
Of time 'tis pully-haully, hence
With hoarding! O'er the wayside quick There's Mary plain in evidence!

XXIX

And here's the convoy halting: right!
O they are bent on howling psalms
And growling prayers, when opposite!
And yet they glance, for all their qualms, Approve that promptitude of his,
The Farmer's—duly at his post
To take due thanks from every phyz, Sour smirk—nay, surly smile almost!

XXX

Then earthward drops each brow again;
The solemn task's resumed; they reach
Their holy field—the unholy train:
Enter its precinct, all and each,
Wrapt somehow in their godless rites;
Till, rites at end, up-waking, lo
They lift their faces! What delights
The mourners as they turn to go?

XXXI

'Ha, ha, he, he! On just the side
They drew their purse-strings to make quit
Of Mary,—Christ the Crucified
Fronted them now—these biters bit!
Never was such a hiss and snort,
Such screwing nose and shooting lip!
Their purchase—honey in report—
Proved gall and verjuice at first sip!

XXXII

'Out they break, on they bustle, where,
A-top of wall, the Farmer waits
With Buti: never fun so rare!
The Farmer has the best: he rates
The rascal, as the old High Priest Takes on himself to sermonize—
Nay; sneer "*We Jews supposed, at least,
Theft was a crime in Christian eyes!*"

XXXIII

"Theft?" cries the Farmer. "*Eat your
words!*
*Show me what constitutes a breach
Of faith in aught was said or heard!*
*I promised you in plainest speech
I'd take the thing you count disgrace
And put it here—and here 'tis put!*
*Did you suppose I'd leave the place
Blank, therefore, just your rage to glaze?*

XXXIV

"*I guess you dared not stipulate
For such a damned impertinence!*
*So, quick, my greybeard, out of gate
And in at Ghetto! Haste you hence!*
*As long as I have house and land,
To spite you irreligious chaps
Here shall the Crucifixion stand—Unless you down with cash, perhaps!"*

XXXV

'So snickered he and Buti both.
The Jews said nothing, interchanged
A glance or two, renewed their oath
To keep ears stopped and hearts estranged
From grace, for all our Church can do;
Then off they scuttle: sullen jog
Homewards, against our Church to brew
Fresh mischief in their synagogue.

XXXVI

'But next day—see what happened, boy!
See why I bid you have a care
How you pelt Jews! The knaves employ Such methods of revenge, forbear
No outrage on our faith, when free To wreak their malice! Here they took So base a method—plague o' me
If I record it in my Book!

XXXVII

'For, next day, while the Farmer sat
Laughing with Buti, in his shop,
At their successful joke,—rat-tat,— Door opens, and they're like to drop Down to the floor as in there stalks
A six-feet-high herculean-built Young he-Jew with a beard that baulks Description. "Help ere blood be spilt!"

XXXVIII

—'Screamed Buti: for he recognized Whom but the son, no less no more,
Of that High Priest his work surprised
So pleasantly the day before!

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

Son of the mother, then, whereof
The bier he lent a shoulder to,
And made the moans about, dared scoff
At sober Christian grief—the Jew!

XXXIX

“Sirs, I salute you! Never rise!
No apprehension!” (Buti, white
And trembling like a tub of size,
Had tried to smuggle out of sight
The picture’s self—the thing in oils,
You know, from which a fresco’s
dashed
Which courage speeds while caution spoils)

“Stay and be praised, sir, unabashed!

XL

“Praised,—ay, and paid too: for I come
To buy that very work of yours.
My poor abode, which boasts—well, some Few specimens of Art, secures Haply, a masterpiece indeed
If I should find my humble means Suffice the outlay. So, proceed!
Propose—ere prudence intervenes!”

XLI

‘On Buti, cowering like a child,
These words descended from aloft,
In tone so ominously mild,
With smile terrifically soft
To that degree—could Buti dare (Poor fellow) use his brains, think twice?
He asked, thus taken unaware,
No more than just the proper price!

XLII

“Done!” cries the monster. “I disburse
Forthwith your moderate demand.
Count on my custom—if no worse
Your future work be, understand,
Than this I carry off! No aid!
My arm, sir, lacks nor bone nor thews:
The burden’s easy, and we’re made,
Easy or hard, to bear—we Jews!”

XLIII

‘Crossing himself at such escape,
Buti by turns the money eyes
And, timidly, the stalwart shape
Now moving doorwards; but, more
wise,
The Farmer,—who, though dumb, this
while
Had watched advantage,—straight conceived
A reason for that tone and smile
So mild and soft! The Jew—believed!

XLIV

‘Mary in triumph borne to deck
A Hebrew household! Pictured where
No one was used to bend the neck
In praise or bow the knee in prayer!

Borne to that domicile by whom?
The son of the High Priest! Through
what?
An insult done his mother’s tomb!
Saul changed to Paul—the case came pat!

XLV

“Stay, dog Jew . . . gentle sir, that is!
Resolve me! Can it be, she crowned,— Mary, by miracle,—Oh bliss!—
My present to your burial ground?
Certain, a ray of light has burst
Your veil of darkness! Had you else,
Only for Mary’s sake, unpursed
So much hard money? Tell—oh, tell ’s!”

XLVI

‘Round—like a serpent that we took
For worm and trod on—turns his bulk
About the Jew. First dreadful look Sends Buti in a trice to skulk
Out of sight somewhere, safe—alack!
But our good Farmer faith made bold:
And firm (with Florence at his back)
He stood, while gruff the gutturals rolled—

XLVII

“Ay, sir, a miracle was worked,
By quite another power, I trow,
Than ever yet in canvases lurked,
Or you would scarcely face me now!
A certain impulse did suggest
A certain grasp with this right-hand,
Which probably had put to rest
Our quarrel,—thus your throat once spanned!

XLVIII

“But I remembered me, subdued
That impulse, and you face me still!
And soon a philosophic mood Succeeding (hear it, if you will!)
Has altogether changed my views Concerning Art. Blind prejudice!
Well may you Christians tax us Jews
With scrupulosity too nice!

XLIX

“For, don’t I see,—let’s issue join!— Whenever I’m allowed pollute
(I—and my little bag of coin)
Some Christian palace of repute,— Don’t I see stuck up everywhere
Abundant proof that cultured taste
Has Beauty for its only care,
And upon Truth no thought to waste?

L

“Jew, since it must be, take in pledge
Of payment ‘—so a Cardinal
Has sighed to me as if a wedge Entered his heart—’ this best of all My treasures!’ Leda, Ganymede
Or Antiope: swan, eagle, ape,
(Or what’s the beast of what’s the breed)
And Jupiter in every shape!

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

LI

"Whereat if I presume to ask
'But, Eminence, though Titian's whisk
Of brush have well performed its task,
How comes it these false godships frisk
In presence of—what yonder frame
Pretends to image? Surely, odd'
It seems, you let confront The Name
Each beast the heathen called his god!"

LII

"Bertignant smiles me pity straight
The Cardinal. 'Tis Truth, we prize!
Art's the sole question in debate!
These subjects are so many lies!
We treat them with a proper scorn
When we turn lies—called gods for-
sooth—
To lies' fit use, now Christ is born.
Drawing and colouring are Truth.

LIII

"Think you I honour lies so much
As scruple to parade the charms
Of Leda—Titian, every touch—
Because the thing within her arms
Means Jupiter who had the praise
And prayer of a benighted world?
He would have mine too, if, in days
Of light, I kept the canvas furled!"

LIV

"So ending, with some easy gibe.
What power has logic! I, at once,
Acknowledged error in our tribe
So squeamish that, when friends ensconce
A pretty picture in its niche
To do us honour, deck our graves,
We fret and fume and have an itch
To strangle folk—ungrateful knaves!

LIV

"No, sir! Be sure that—what's its style,
Your picture?—shall possess ungrudged
A place among my rank and file
Of Leda's and what not—be judged
Just as a picture! and (because I fear me much I scarce have bought A Titian) Master Buti's flaws Found there, will have the laugh flaws ought!"

LVI

'So, with a scowl, it darkens door—
This bulk—no longer! Buti makes Prompt glad re-entry; there's a score
Of oaths, as the good Farmer wakes
From what must needs have been a trance,
Or he had struck (he swears) to ground
The bold bad mouth that dared advance
Such doctrine the reverse of sound!

LVII

'Was magic here? Most like! For, since,
Somehow our city's faith grows still More and more lukewarm, and our Prince Or loses heart or wants the will

To check increase of cold. 'Tis "Live
And let live! Languidly repress
The Dissident! In short,—contrive Christians must bear with Jews: no less!"

LVIII

The end seems, any Israelite
Wants any picture,—pishes, poohs,
Purchases, hangs it full in sight
In any chamber he may choose!
In Christ's crown, one more thorn we rue!
In Mary's bosom, one more sword!
No, boy, you must not pelt a Jew!
O Lord, how long? How long, O
Lord?"

EPILOGUE

μεστοι . . .
οι δ' ἀμφερῆς οἶνον μέλανος διδοσάμιον

I

'The poets pour us wine—'
Said the dearest poet I ever knew,
Dearest and greatest and best to me.
You clamour athirst for poetry—
We pour. 'But when shall a vintage be'— You cry—'strong grape, squeezed gold from screw,
Yet sweet juice, flavoured flowery-fine?
That were indeed the wine!'

II

One pours your cup—stark strength,
Meat for a man; and you eye the pulp Strained, turbid still, from the viscous
blood
Of the snaky bough: and you grumble
'Good!
For it swells resolve, breeds hardihood;
Despatch it, then, in a single gulp!
So, down, with a wry face, goes at length
The liquor: stuff for strength.

III

One pours your cup—sheer sweet,
The fragrant fumes of a year condensed:
Suspicion of all that's ripe or rathe,
From the bud on branch to the grass in swathe.
'We suck mere milk of the seasons,' saith
A curl of each nostril—'dew, dispensed
Nowise for nerving man to feat:
Boys sip such honeyed sweet!'

IV

And thus who wants wine strong,
Waves each sweet smell of the year
away;
Who likes to swoon as the sweets suffuse His brain with a mixture of beams and dews Turned syrupy drink—rough strength eschews:
'What though in our veins your wine-stock stay?
The lack of the bloom does our palate
wrong.
Give us wine sweet, not strong!'

EPILOGUE

V

Yet wine is—some affirm—
 Prime wine is found in the world some-
 where,
 Of potable strength with sweet to match.
 You double your heart its dose, yet
 catch—
 As the draught descends—a violet-smatch,
 Softness—however it came there,
 Through drops expressed by the fire and
 worm:
 Strong sweet wine—some affirm.

VI

Body and bouquet both?
 'Tis easy to ticket a bottle so;
 But what was the case in the cask, my
 friends?
 Cask? Nay, the vat—where the maker mends
 His strong with his sweet (you suppose) and blends
 His rough with his smooth, till none can
 know
 How it comes you may tipple, nothing loth,
 Body and bouquet both.

'You' being just—the world.
 No poets—who turn, themselves, the winch
 Of the press; no critics—I'll even say,
 (Being flustered and easy of faith to-day)
 Who for love of the work have learned the
 way
 Till themselves produce home-made, at a pinch:
 No! You are the world, and wine ne'er purled
 Except to please the world!

VIII

'For, oh the common heart!
 And, ah the irremissible sin
 Of poets who please themselves, not us!
 Strong wine yet sweet wine pouring thus,
 How please still—Pindar and Æschylus!—
 Drink—dipped into by the bearded chin Alike and the bloomy lip—no part Denied the common heart!

IX

'And might we get such grace,
 And did you moderns but stock our vault
 With the true half-brandied half-attar-gul, How would seniors indulge at a hearty pull
 While juniors tossed off their thimbleful!
 Our Shakespeare and Milton escaped your fault,
 So, they reign supreme o'er the weaker
 race
 That wants the ancient grace!'

X

If I paid myself with words
 (As the French say well) I were dupe
 indeed!
 I were found in belief that you quaffed and bowed
 At your Shakespeare the whole day long,
 caroused,
 In your Milton pottle-deep nor drowsed
 A moment of night—toped on, took heed
 Of nothing like modern cream-and-curd.
 Pay me with deeds, not words!

XI

For—see your cellarage!
 There are forty barrels with Shakespeare's brand.
 Some five or six are abroach: the rest
 Stand spigoted, fauceted. Try and test
 What yourselves call best of the very best!
 How comes it that still untouched they
 stand?
 Why don't you try tap, advance a stage
 With the rest in cellarage?

XII

For—see your cellarage!
 There are four big butts of Milton's brew.
 How comes it you make old drips and
 drops
 Do duty, and there devotion stops?
 Leave such an abyss of malt and hops Embellished in butts which bungs still glue?
 You hate your bard! A fig for your rage!
 Free him from cellarage!

XIII

'Tis said I brew stiff drink,
 But the deuce a flavour of grape is there.
 Hardly a May-go-down, 'tis just A sort of a gruff Go-down-it-must—
 No Merry-go-down, no gracious gust Commingles the racy with Springtide's rare!
 'What wonder,' say you 'that we cough, and blink
 At Autumn's heady drink?'

XIV

Is it a fancy, friends?
 Mighty and mellow are never mixed, Though mighty and mellow be born at
 once,
 Sweet for the future,—strong for the
 nonce!
 Stuff you should stow away, ensconce
 In the deep and dark, to be found fast-fixed
 At the century's close: such time strength spends
 A-sweetening for my friends!

EPILOGUE

XV

And then—why, what you quaff
 With a smack of lip and a cluck of
 tongue,
 Is leakage and leavings—just what haps
 From the tun some learned taster, taps
 With a promise 'Prepare your watery chaps!
 Here's properest wine for old and
 young!
 Dispute its perfection—you make us
 laugh!
 Have faith, give thanks, but—quaff!'

XVI

Leakage, I say, or—worse—
 Leavings suffice pot-valiant souls.
 Somebody, brimful, long ago,
 Frothed flagon he drained to the dregs;
 and lo,
 Down whisker and beard what an overflow!
 Lick spilt that has trickled from classic jowls,
 Sup the single scene, sip the only verse—
 Old wine, not new and worse!

XVII

I grant you: worse by much!
 Renounce that new where you never
 gained
 One glow at heart, one gleam at head,
 And stick to the warrant of age instead!
 No dwarf's-lap! Fatten, by giants fed!
 You fatten, with oceans of drink un-drained?
 You feed—who would choke did a cobweb smutch
 The Age you love so much?

XVIII

A mine's beneath a moor:
 Acres of moor roof fathoms of mine Which diamonds dot where you please to dig;
 Yet who plies spade for the bright and
 big?
 Your product is—truffles, you hunt with a pig!
 Since bright-and-big, when a man would dine,
 Suits badly: and therefore the Koh-i-noor
 May sleep in mine 'neath moor!

XIX

Wine, pulse in might from me!
 It may never emerge in must from vat,
 Never fill cask nor furnish can.
 Never end sweet, which strong began—
 God's gift to gladden the heart of man;
 But spirit's at proof, I promise that!
 No sparing of juice spoils what should be Fit brewage—mine for me.

XX

Man's thoughts and loves and hates!
 Earth is my vineyard, these grew there:
 From grape of the ground, I made or
 marred
 My vintage; easy the task or hard,
 Who set it—his praise be my reward!
 Earth's yield! Who yearn for the Dark Blue Sea's,
 Let them 'lay, pray, bray'—the addlepates!
 Mine be Man's thoughts, loves, hates!

XXI

But someone says 'Good Sir!' ('Tis a worthy versed in what concerns
 The making such labour turn out well)
 'You don't suppose that the nosegaysmell
 Needs always come from the grape?
 Each bell
 At your foot, each bud that your culture
 spurns,
 The very cowlip would act like myrrh
 On the stiffest brew—good Sir!

XXII

'Cowslips, abundant birth
 O'er meadow and hillside, vineyard
 too,
 —Like a schoolboy's scrawlings in and
 out
 Distasteful lesson-book—all about Greece and Rome, victory and rout—
 Love-verses instead of such vain ado!
 So, fancies frolic it o'er the earth
 Where thoughts have rightlier birth.

XXIII

'Nay, thoughtlings they themselves:
 Loves, hates—in little and less and
 least!
 Thoughts? "What is a man beside a mount!"
 Loves? "*Absent—poor lovers the minutes
 count!*"
 Hates? "Fie—Pope's letters to Martha Blount!"
 These furnish a wine for a children's-
 feast:
 Insipid to man, they suit the elves
 Like thoughts, loves, hates themselves.'

XXIV

And, friends, beyond dispute
 I too have the cowslips dewy and dear.
 Punctual as Springtide forth peep they:
 I leave them to make my meadow gay.
 But I ought to pluck and impound them,
 eh?
 Not let them alone, but deftly shear
 And shred and reduce to—what may suit
 Children, beyond dispute?

EPILOGUE

XXV

And, here's May-month, all bloom,
 All bounty: what if I sacrifice?
 If I out with shears and shear, nor stop
 Shearing till prostrate, lo, the crop?
 And will you prefer it to ginger-pop When I've made you wine of the memories
 Which leave as bare as a churchyard tomb
 My meadow, late all bloom?

XXVI

Nay, what ingratitude
 Should I hesitate to amuse the wits
 That have pulled so long at my flask, nor grudged
 The headache that paid their pains, nor budged
 From bunghole before they sighed and judged
 'Too rough for our taste, to-day, befits
 The racy and right when the years conclude!'
 Out on ingratitude!

XXVII

Grateful or ingrate—none,
 No cowlslip of all my fairy crew Shall help to concoct what makes you
 wink
 And goes to your head till you think you
 think!
 I like them alive: the printer's ink
 'Would sensibly tell on the perfume too.
 I may use up my nettles, ere I've done;
 But of cowlslips—friends get none!

XXVIII

Don't nettles make a broth Wholesome for blood grown lazy and thick?
 Maws out of sorts make mouths out of
 taste.
 My Thirty-four Port—no need to waste
 On a tongue that's fur and a palate—
 paste!
 A magnum for friends who are sound!
 The sick—
 I'll posset and cosset them, nothing loth, Henceforward with nettle-broth!

LA SAISIAZ

1878

I

GOOD, to forgive;
 Best, to forget!
 Living, we fret;
 Dying, we live.
 Fretless and free,
 Soul, clap thy pinion!
 Earth have dominion,
 Body, o'er thee!

II

Wander at will,
 Day after day,—
 Wander away,
 Wandering still—
 Soul that canst soar!
 Body may slumber:
 Body shall cumber
 Soul-flight no more.

III

Waft of soul's wing!
 What lies above?
 Sunshine and Love,
 Skyblue and Spring!
 Body hides—where?
 Ferns of all feather,
 Mosses and heather,
 Yours be the care!

LA SAISIAZ

A. E. S. SEPTEMBER 14, 1877

DARED and done: at last I stand upon the summit, Dear and True!
 Singly dared and done; the climbing both of us were bound to do.
 Petty feat and yet prodigious: every side my glance was bent O'er the grandeur and the beauty lavished through the whole ascent.
 Ledge by ledge, out broke new marvels,
 now minute and now immense:
 Earth's most exquisite disclosure, heaven's own God in evidence!
 And no berry in its hiding, no blue space in its outspread,
 Pleaded to escape my footstep, challenged my emerging head,
 (As I climbed or paused from climbing, now o'erbranched by shrub and tree,
 Now built round by rock and boulder,
 now at just a turn set free,
 Stationed face to face with—Nature?
 rather with Infinitude)
 —No revelation of them all, as singly I my path pursued,
 But a bitter touched its sweetness, for the thought stung 'Even so Both of us had loved and wondered just the same, five days ago!'

Five short days, sufficient hardly to entice, from out its den Splintered in the slab, this pink perfection of the cyclamen;
 Scarce enough to heal and coat with amber gum the sloe-tree's gash, Bronze the clustered wilding apple, redden ripe the mountain ash:
 Yet of might to place between us—Oh the barrier! Yon Profound Shrinks beside it, proves a pin-point: barrier this, without a bound!
 Boundless though it be, I reach you: somehow seem to have you here —Who are there. Yes, there you dwell now, plain the four low walls appear;
 Those are vineyards they enclose from; and the little spire which points
 —That's Collonge, henceforth your dwelling. All the same, howe'er disjoins Past from present, no less certain you are here, not there: have dared, Done the feat of mountain-climbing,—five days since, we both prepared Daring, doing, arm in arm, if other help should haply fail.
 For you asked, as forth we sallied to see sunset from the vale,
 'Why not try for once the mountain,—take a foretaste, snatch by stealth Sight and sound, some unconsidered fragment of the hoarded wealth?
 Six weeks at its base, yet never once have we together won Sight or sound by honest climbing: let us two have dared and done
 Just so much of twilight journey as may prove to-morrow's jaunt
 Not the only mode of wayfare—wheeled to reach the eagle's haunt!'
 So, we turned from the low grass-path you were pleased to call 'your own,'
 Set our faces to the rose-bloom o'er the summit's front of stone
 Where Salève obtains, from Jura and the sunken sun she hides, Due return of blushing 'Good Night,' rosy as a borne-off bride's,
 For his masculine 'Good Morrow' when, with sunrise still in hold,
 Gay he hails her, and, magnificent, thrilled her black length burns to gold.
 Up and up we went, how careless—nay, how joyous! All was new,
 All was strange. 'Call progress toilsome? that were just insulting you!
 How the trees must temper noontide! Ah, the thicket's sudden break!
 What will be the morning glory, when at dusk thus gleams the lake?
 Light by light puts forth Geneva: what a land—and, of the land,
 Can there be a lovelier station than this spot where now we stand?

Is it late, and wrong to linger? True, to-morrow makes amends.
 Toilsome progress? child's play, call it—specially when one descends!
 There, the dread descent is over—hardly our adventure, though!
 Take the vale where late we left it, pace the grass-path, "mine," you know!
 Proud completion of achievement!' And we paced it, praising still
 That soft tread on velvet verdure as it wound through hill and hill;
 And at very end there met us, coming from Collonge, the pair
 —All our people of the Chalet—two, enough and none to spare.
 So, we made for home together, and we reached it as the stars
 One by one came lamping—chiefly that prepotency of Mars—
 And your last word was 'I owe you this enjoyment!'—met with 'Nay:
 With yourself it rests to have a month of morrows like to-day!'
 Then the meal, with talk and laughter, and the news of that rare nook
 Yet untroubled by the tourist, touched on by no travel-book,
 All the same—though latent—patent, hybrid birth of land and sea,
 And (our travelled friend assured you)—if such miracle might be—Comparable for completeness of both blessings—all around Nature, and, inside her circle, safety from world's sight and sound—Comparable to our Saisiaz. 'Hold it fast and guard it well!
 Go and see and vouch for certain, then come back and never tell Living soul but us; and haply, prove our sky from cloud as clear,
 There may we four meet, praise fortune just as now, another year!'

Thus you charged him on departure: not without the final charge
 'Mind to-morrow's early meeting! We must leave our journey marge Ample for the wayside wonders: there's the stoppage at the inn
 Three-parts up the mountain, where the hardships of the track begin;
 There's the convent worth a visit; but, the triumph crowning all—There's Salève's own platform facing glory which strikes greatness small,
 —Blanc, supreme above his earth-brood, needles red and white and green, Horns of silver, fangs of crystal set on edge in his demesne.
 So, some three weeks since, we saw them: so, to-morrow we intend

LA SAISIAZ

You shall see them likewise; therefore Good Night till to-morrow, friend!
Last, the nothings that extinguish embers of a vivid day:

'What might be the Marshal's next move, what Gambetta's counter-play?'

Till the landing on the staircase saw escape the latest spark:

'Sleep you well!' 'Sleep but as well, you!'
—lazy love quenched, all was dark.

Nothing dark next day at sundown! Up
I rose and forth I fared:

Took my plunge within the bath-pool, pacified the watch-dog scared,

Saw proceed the transmutation—Jura's black to one gold glow,

Trod your level path that let me drink the morning deep and slow,

Reached the little quarry—ravage recompensed by shrub and fern—

Till the overflowing ardours told me time was for return.

So, return I did, and gaily. But, for once, from no far mound

Waved salute a tall white figure. 'Has her sleep been so profound?'

Foresight, rather, prudent saving strength for day's expenditure!

Ay, the chamber-window's open: out and on the terrace, sure!

No, the terrace showed no figure, tall, white, leaning through the wreaths,

Tangle-twine of leaf and bloom that intercept the air one breathes,

Interpose between one's love and Nature's loving, hill and dale

Down to where the blue lake's wrinkle marks the river's inrush pale

—Mazy Arve: whereon no vessel but goes sliding white and plain,

Not a steamboat pants from harbour but one hears pulsate amain,

Past the city's congregated peace of homes and pomp of spires

—Man's mild protest that there's something more than Nature, man requires,

And that, useful as is Nature to attract the tourist's foot,

Quiet slow sure money-making proves the matter's very root,—

Need for body,—while the spirit also needs a comfort reached

By no help of lake or mountain, but the texts whence Calvin preached.

'Here's the veil withdrawn from landscape: up to Jura and beyond,

All awaits us ranged and ready; yet she violates the bond,

Neither leans nor looks nor listens: why is this?' A turn of eye

'Took the whole sole answer, gave the undisputed reason 'why!'

This dread way you had your summons!
No premonitory touch,

As you talked and laughed ('tis told me) scarce a minute ere the clutch

Captured you in cold forever. Cold? nay, warm you were as life

When I raised you, while the others used,
in passionate poor strife,

All the means that seemed to promise any aid, and all in vain.

Gone you were, and I shall never see that earnest face again

Grow transparent, grow transfigured with the sudden light that leapt,

At the first word's provocation, from the heart-deeps where it slept.

Therefore, paying piteous duty, what seemed You have we consigned

Peacefully to—what I think were, of all earthbeds, to your mind

Most the choice for quiet, yonder: low walls stop the vines' approach,

Lovingly Salève protects you; village sports will ne'er encroach

On the stranger lady's silence, whom friends bore so kind and well

Thither 'just for love's sake,'—such their own word was: and who can tell?

You supposed that few or none had known and loved you in the world:

May be! flower that's full-blown tempts
the butterfly, not flower that's furled.

But more learned sense unlocked you, loosed the sheath and let expand

Bud to bell and outspread flower-shape at the least warm touch of hand

—Maybe, throb of heart, beneath which,
—quickenings farther than it knew,—

Treasure oft was disembosomed, scent all strange and unguessed hue.

Disembosomed, re-embosomed,—must one memory suffice,

Prove I knew an Alpine-rose which all beside named Edelweiss?

Rare thing, red or white, you rest now:
two days slumbered through; and since

One day more will see me rid of this same scene whereat I wince,

Tetchy at all sights and sounds and pettish
at each idle charm

Proffered me who pace now singly where we two went arm in arm,—

I have turned upon my weakness: asked
'And what, forsooth, prevents

That, this latest day allowed me, I fulfil of her intents

One she had the most at heart—that we should thus again survey

From Salève Mont Blanc together?'
Therefore,—dared and done to-day

Climbing,—here I stand: but you—
where?

If a spirit of the place
Broke the silence, bade me question, promised answer,—what disgrace Did I stipulate 'Provided answer suit my hopes, not fears!'
Would I shrink to learn my life-time's limit—days, weeks, months or years?
Would I shirk assurance on each point whereat I can but guess—
'Does the soul survive the body? Is there God's self, no or yes?'
If I know my mood, 'twere constant—come in whatsoe'er uncouth Shape it should, nay, formidable—so the answer were but truth.

Well, and wherefore shall it daunt me, when 'tis I myself am tasked,
When, by weakness weakness questioned, weakly answers—weakly asked?
Weakness never needs be falseness: truth is truth in each degree
—Thunderpealed by God to Nature, whispered by my soul to me.
Nay, the weakness turns to strength and triumphs in a truth beyond:
'Mine is but man's truest answer—how were it did God respond?'
I shall no more dare to mimic such response in futile speech,
Pass off human lip as echo of the sphere-song out of reach,
Than,—because it well may happen yonder, where the far snows blanch Mute Mont Blanc, that who stands near them sees and hears an avalanche,— I shall pick a clod and throw,—cry 'Such the sight and such the sound!
What though I nor see nor hear them?
Others do, the proofs abound!'
Can I make my eye an eagle's, sharpen ear to recognize
Sound o'er league and league of silence?
Can I know, who but surmise?
If I dared no self-deception when, a week since, I and you Walked and talked along the grass-path, passing lightly in review
What seemed hits and what seemed misses in a certain fence-play,—strife Sundry minds of mark engaged in 'On the Soul and Future Life,'—
If I ventured estimating what was come of parried thrust,
Subtle stroke, and, rightly, wrongly, estimating could be just —Just, though life so seemed abundant in the form which moved by mine,
I might well have played at feigning, fooling,—laughed 'What need opine Pleasure must succeed to pleasure, else past pleasure turns to pain,
And this first life claims a second, else I count its good no gain?'

Much less have I heart to palter when the matter to decide
Now becomes 'Was ending ending once and always, when you died?'
Did the face, the form I lifted as it lay, reveal the loss
Not alone of life but soul? A tribute to yon flowers and moss,
What of you remains beside? A memory!
Easy to attest
'Certainly from out the world that one believes who knew her best Such was good in her, such fair, which fair and good were great perchance Had but fortune favoured, bidden each shy faculty advance;
After all—who knows another? Only as I know, I speak.'
So much of you lives within me while I live my year or week.
Then my fellow takes the tale up, not unwilling to aver Duly in his turn 'I knew him best of all, as he knew her:
Such he was, and such he was not, and such other might have been But that somehow every actor, somewhere in this earthly scene, Fails.' And so both memories dwindle, yours and mine together linked,
Till there is but left for comfort, when the last spark proves extinct,
This—that somewhere new existence led by men and women new Possibly attains perfection coveted by me
and you;
While ourselves, the only witness to what work our life evolved,
Only to ourselves proposing problems proper to be solved
By ourselves alone,—who working ne'er shall know if work bear fruit Others reap and garner, heedless how produced by stalk and root,—
We who, darkling, timed the day's birth, —struggling, testified to peace,— Earned, by dint of failure, triumph,—we, creative thought, must cease
In created word, thought's echo, due to impulse long since sped!
Why repine? There's ever someone lives although ourselves be dead!
Well, what signifies repugnance? Truth is truth howe'er it strike.
Fair or foul the lot apportioned life on earth, we bear alike.
Stalwart body idly yoked to stunted spirit, powers, that fain
Else would soar, condemned to grovel, groundlings through the fleshly
chain,—
Help that hinders, hindrance proved but help disguised when all too late,—

LA SAISIAZ

Hindrance is the fact acknowledged, how-soe'er explained as Fate, Fortune, Providence: we bear, own life a burthen more or less.

Life thus owned unhappy, is there supplemental happiness

Possible and probable in life to come? or must we count

Life a curse and not a blessing, summed-up in its whole amount,

Help and hindrance, joy and sorrow?

Why should I want courage here?

I will ask and have an answer,—with no favour, with no fear,—

From myself. How much, how little, do
I inwardly believe

True that controverted doctrine? Is it fact to which I cleave,

Is it fancy I but cherish, when I take upon my lips

Phrase the solemn Tuscan fashioned, and declare the soul's eclipse

Not the soul's extinction? take his 'I believe and I declare—

Certain am I—from this life I pass into a better, there

Where that lady lives of whom enamoured was my soul'—where this

Other lady, my companion dear and true, she also is?

I have questioned and am answered.

Question, answer presuppose

Two points: that the thing itself which questions, answers,—is, it knows;

As it also knows the thing perceived outside itself,—a force

Actual ere its own beginning, operative through its course,

Unaffected by its end,—that this thing likewise needs must be;

Call this—God, then, call that—soul, and both—the only facts for me.

Prove them facts? that they o'erpass my power of proving, proves them
such:

Fact it is I know I know not something which is fact as much.

What before caused all the causes, what effect of all effects

Haply follows,—these are fancy. Ask the rush if it suspects

Whence and how the stream which floats it had a rise, and where and how

Falls or flows on still! What answer makes the rush except that now

Certainly it floats and is, and, no less certain than itself,

Is the everyway external stream that now through shoal and shelf

Floats it onward, leaves it—may be—wrecked at last, or lands on shore

There to root again and grow and flourish stable evermore.

—May be! mere surmise not knowledge:
much conjecture styled belief,

What the rush conceives the stream means through the voyage blind and brief.

Why, because I doubtless am, shall I as doubtless be? 'Because God seems good and wise.' Yet under this our life's apparent laws

Reigns a wrong which, righted once, would give quite other laws to life.

'He seems potent.' Potent here, then why are right and wrong at strife?

Has in life the wrong the better? Happily life ends so soon!

Right predominates in life? Then why two lives and double boon?

'Anyhow, we want it: wherefore want?'
Because, without the want,

Life, now human, would be brutish: just that hope, however scant,

Makes the actual life worth leading; take the hope therein away,

All we have to do is surely not endure
another day.

This life has its hopes for this life, hopes that promise joy: life done—

Out of all the hopes, how many had complete fulfilment? none.

'But the soul is not the body:' and the breath is not the flute;

Both together make the music: either marred and all is mute.

Truce to such old sad contention whence,
according as we share

Most of hope or most of fear, we issue in a half-escape:

'We believe' is sized. I take the cup of comfort proffered thus,

Taste and try each soft ingredient, sweet infusion, and discuss

What their blending may accomplish for the cure of doubt, till—slow,

Sorrowful, but how decided! needs must
I o'erturn it—so!

Cause before, effect behind me—blanks!
The midway point I am,

Caused, itself—itself efficient: in that narrow space must cram

All experience—out of which there crowds conjecture manifold,

But, as knowledge, this comes only—things may be as I behold,

Or may not be, but, without me and above me, things there are;

I myself am what I know not—ignorance which proves no bar

To the knowledge that I am, and, since I am, can recognize

What to me is pain and pleasure: this is sure, the rest—surmise.

If my fellows are or are not, what may please them and what pain,—

Mere surmise: my own experience—that is knowledge, once again!

I have lived, then, done and suffered, loved and hated, learnt and taught This—there is no reconciling wisdom with a world distraught, Goodness with triumphant evil, power with failure in the aim,
 If—(to my own sense, remember! though none other feel the same!)—
 If you bar me from assuming earth to be a pupil's place,
 And life, time,—with all their chances,
 changes,—just probation-space, Mine, for me. But those apparent other mortals—theirs, for them?
 Knowledge stands on my experience: all outside its narrow hem,
 Free surmise may sport and welcome!
 Pleasures, pains affect mankind Just as they affect myself? Why, here's my neighbour colour-blind, Eyes like mine to all appearance: 'green as grass' do I affirm?
 'Red as grass' he contradicts me: which employs the proper term?
 Were we two the earth's sole tenants, with no third for referee,
 How should I distinguish? Just so, God must judge 'twixt man and me.
 To each mortal peradventure earth becomes a new machine, Pain and pleasure no more tally in our sense than red and green;
 Still, without what seems such mortal's pleasure, pain, my life were lost —Life, my whole sole chance to prove—although at man's apparent cost—What is beauteous and what ugly, right to strive for, right to shun, Fit to help and fit to hinder,—prove my forces everyone,
 Good and evil,—learn life's lesson, hate of evil, love of good,
 As 'tis set me, understand so much as may be understood—
 Solve the problem: 'From thine apprehended scheme of things, deduce Praise or blame of its contriver, shown a niggard or profuse
 In each good or evil issue! nor miscalculate alike
 Counting one the other in the final balance, which to strike, Soul was born and life allotted: ay, the show of things unfurled
 For thy summing-up and judgment,— thine, no other mortal's world!'

What though fancy scarce may grapple with the complex and immense
 —'His own world for every mortal?'
 Postulate omnipotence!
 Limit power, and simple grows the complex: shrunk to atom size,

That which loomed immense to fancy low before my reason lies,— I survey it and pronounce it work like other work: success
 Here and there, the workman's glory,— here and there, his shame no less.
 Failure as conspicuous. Taunt not 'Human work ape work divine?'
 As the power, expect performance! God's be God's as mine is mine!
 God whose power made man and made man's wants, and made, to meet those wants,
 Heaven and earth which, through the body, prove the spirit's ministrants, Excellently all,—did He lack power or was the will in fault
 When He let blue heaven be shrouded o'er by vapours of the vault, Gay earth drop her garlands shrivelled at the first infecting breath
 Of the serpent pains which herald, swarming in, the dragon death?
 What, no way but this that man may learn and lay to heart how rife Life were with delights would only death allow their taste to life?
 Must the rose sigh 'Pluck—I perish!'— must the eve weep 'Gaze—I fade!'—
 —Every sweet warn 'Ware my bitter!'— every shine bid 'Wait my shade?'
 Can we love but on condition, that the thing we love must die?
 Needs there groan a world in anguish just to teach us sympathy—Multitudinously wretched that we,
 wretched too, may guess
 What a preferable state were universal happiness?
 Hardly do I so conceive the outcome of that power which went To the making of the worm there in yon clod its tenement,
 Any more than I distinguish aught of that which, wise and good,
 Framed the leaf, its plain of pasture, dropped the dew, its finless food.
 Nay, were fancy fact, were earth and all it holds illusion mere,
 Only a machine for teaching love and hate and hope and fear
 To myself, the sole existence, single truth mid falsehood,—well!
 If the harsh throes of the prelude die not off into the swell
 Of that perfect piece they sting me to become a-strain for,—if Roughness of the long rock-clamber lead not to the last of cliff,
 First of level country where is sward my pilgrim-foot can prize,— Plainlier! if this life's conception new life fail to realize,—

LA SAISIAZ

Though earth burst and proved a bubble glassing hues of hell, one huge Reflex of the devil's doings—God's work by no subterfuge—
 (So death's kindly touch informed me as it broke the glamour, gave Soul and body both release from life's long nightmare in the grave)
 Still,—with no more Nature, no more
 Man as riddle to be read, Only my own joys and sorrows now to reckon real instead,— I must say—or choke in silence—'How-soever came my fate, Sorrow did and joy did nowise,—life well weighed,—preponderate.'
 By necessity ordained thus? I shall bear as best I can;
 By a cause all-good, all-wise, all-potent?
 No, as I am man!
 Such were God: and was it goodness that the good within my range
 Or had evil in admixture or grew evil's self by change?
 Wisdom—that becoming wise meant making slow and sure advance From a knowledge proved in error to acknowledged ignorance?
 Power? 'tis just the main assumption reason most revolts at! power Unavailing for bestowment on its creature
 of an hour,
 Man, of so much proper action rightly aimed and reaching aim,
 So much passion,—no defect there, no excess, but still the same,— As what constitutes existence, pure perfection bright as brief
 For yon worm, man's fellow-creature, on yon happier world—its leaf!
 No, as I am man, I mourn the poverty
 I must impute:
 Goodness, wisdom, power, all bounded,
 each a human attribute!

But, O world outspread beneath me! only for myself I speak, Nowise dare to play the spokesman for my brothers strong and weak, Full and empty, wise and foolish, good and bad, in every age, Every clime, I turn my eyes from, as in one or other stage
 Of a torture writhe they, Job-like couched on dung and crazed with blains
 —Wherefore? whereto? ask the whirlwind what the dread voice thence explains!
 I shall 'vindicate no way of God's to man,' nor stand apart,
 'Laugh, be candid!' while I watch it traversing the human heart.
 Traversed heart must tell its story un-commented on: no less

Mine results in 'Only grant a second life,
 I acquiesce
 In this present life as failure, count misfortune's worst assaults Triumph, not defeat, assured that loss so much the more exalts Gain about to be. For at what moment did I so advance Near to knowledge as when frustrate of escape from ignorance?
 Did not beauty prove most precious when its opposite obtained Rule, and truth seem more than ever potent because falsehood reigned?
 While for love—Oh how but, losing love, does whoso loves succeed
 By the death-pang to the birth-throe—learning what is love indeed?
 Only grant my soul may carry high through death her cup unspilled, Brimming though it be with knowledge, life's loss drop by drop distilled,
 I shall boast it mine—the balsam, bless each kindly wrench that wrung
 From life's tree its inmost virtue, tapped the root whence pleasure sprung, Barked the bole, and broke the bough, and bruised the berry, left all grace Ashes in death's stern alembic, loosed elixir in its place!

Witness, Dear and True, how little I was
 'ware of—not your worth —That I knew, my heart assures me—but of what a shade on earth Would the passage from my presence of the tall white figure throw O'er the ways we walked together! Somewhat narrow, somewhat slow Used to seem the ways, the walking;
 narrow ways are well to tread
 When there's moss beneath the footstep, honeysuckle overhead:
 Walking slow to beating bosom surest solace soonest gives,
 Liberates the brain o'erloaded—best of all restoratives.
 Nay, do I forget the open vast where soon or late converged
 Ways though winding?—world-wide heaven-high sea where music slept or surged
 As the angel had ascendant, and Beethoven's Titan mace Smote the immense to storm Mozart would by a finger's lifting chase?
 Yes, I knew—but not with knowledge such as thrills me while I view Yonder precinct which henceforward holds and hides the Dear and True.
 Grant me (once again) assurance we shall each meet each some day, Walk—but with how bold a footstep! on a way—but what a way!

—Worst were best, defeat were triumph, utter loss were utmost gain.
Can it be, and must, and will it?

Silence! Out of fact's domain,
Just surmise prepared to mutter hope,
and also fear—dispute Fact's inexorable ruling 'Outside fact, surmise be mute!'
Well!

Ay, well and best, if fact's self I may force the answer from!
'Tis surmise I stop the mouth of. Not above in yonder dome
All a rapture with its rose-glow,—not around, where pile and peak Strainingly await the sun's fall,—not beneath, where crickets creak, Birds assemble for their bed-time, soft the tree-top swell subsides,— No, nor yet within my deepest sentient self the knowledge hides.
Aspiration, reminiscence, plausibilities of
trust
—Now the ready 'Man were wronged else,' now the rash 'and God unjust'— None of these I need. Take thou, my soul, thy solitary stand, Umpire to the champions Fancy, Reason, as on either hand
Amicable war they wage and play the foe in thy behoof!
Fancy thrust and Reason parry! Thine the prize who stand aloof.

FANCY

I concede the thing refused: henceforth no certainty more plain Than this mere surmise that after body dies soul lives again.
Two, the only facts acknowledged late,
are now increased to three—
God is, and the soul is, and, as certain,
after death shall be.
Put this third to use in life, the time for using fact!

REASON

I do:
Find it promises advantage, coupled with the other two.
Life to come will be improvement on the life that's now; destroy Body's thwartings, there's no longer screen betwixt soul and soul's joy.
Why should we expect new hindrance, novel tether? In this first Life, I see the good of evil, why our world began at worst:
Since time means amelioration, tardily enough displayed,
Yet a mainly onward moving, never wholly retrograde.

We know more though we know little, we grow stronger though still weak, Partly see though all too purblind, stammer though we cannot speak.
There is no such grudge in God as scared the ancient Greek, no fresh Substitute of trap for dragnet, once a breakage in the mesh.
Dragons were, and serpents are, and blindworms will be: ne'er emerged Any new-created python for man's plague since earth was purged.
Failing proof, then, of invented trouble to replace the old,
O'er this life the next presents advantage much and manifold:
Which advantage—in the absence of a fourth and farther fact Now conceivably surmised, of harm to follow from the act—
I pronounce for man's obtaining at this moment. Why delay?
Is he happy? happiness will change: anticipate the day!
Is he sad? there's ready refuge: of all sadness death's prompt cure!
Is he both, in mingled measure? cease a burthen to endure!
Pains with sorry compensations, pleasures
stinted in the dole,
Power that sinks and pettiness that soars,
all halved and nothing whole,
Idle hopes that lure man onward, forced back by as idle fears—
What a load he stumbles under through his glad sad seventy years,
When a touch sets right the turmoil, lifts his spirit where, flesh-freed, Knowledge shall be rightly named so, all that seems be truth indeed!
Grant his forces no accession, nay, no faculty's increase,
Only let what now exists continue, let him prove in peace
Power whereof the interrupted unper-fected play enticed
Man through darkness, which to lighten any spark of hope sufficed,— What shall then deter his dying out of darkness into light?
Death itself perchance, brief pain that's pang, condensed and infinite?
But at worst, he needs must brave it one day, while, at best, he laughs—Drops a drop within his chalice, sleep not death his science quaffs!
Any moment claims more courage when,
by crossing cold and gloom, Manfully man quits discomfort, makes for the provided room
Where the old friends want their fellow, where the new acquaintance wait, Probably for talk assembled, possibly to sup in state!

LA SAISIAZ

I affirm and re-affirm it therefore: only make as plain
As that man now lives, that, after dying, man will live again,—
Make as plain the absence, also, of a law to contravene
Voluntary passage from this life to that by change of scene,—
And I bid him—at suspicion of first cloud
athwart his sky,
Flower's departure, frost's arrival—never hesitate, but die!

FANCY

Then I double my concession: grant, along with new life sure,
This same law found lacking now: ordain that, whether rich or poor Present life is judged in aught man counts advantage—be it hope,
Be it fear that brightens, blackens most or least his horoscope,—
He, by absolute compulsion such as made him live at all,
Go on living to the fated end of life what-e'er befall.
What though, as on earth he darkling grovels, man descry the sphere,
Next life's—call it, heaven of freedom,
close above and crystal-clear?
He shall find—say, hell to punish who in aught curtails the term, Fain would act the butterfly before he has played out the worm.
God, soul, earth, heaven, hell,—five facts now: what is to desiderate?

REASON

Nothing! Henceforth man's existence bows to the monition 'Wait!
Take the joys and bear the sorrows—neither with extreme concern!
Living here means nescience simply: 'tis next life that helps to learn.
Shut those eyes, next life will open,—stop those ears, next life will teach Hearing's office,—close those lips, next life will give the power of speech!
Or, if action more amuse thee than the passive attitude,
Bravely bustle through thy being, busy thee for ill or good, Reap this life's success or failure! Soon shall things be unperplexed
And the right and wrong, now tangled, lie unravell'd in the next.'

FANCY

Not so fast! Still more concession! not alone do I declare Life must needs be borne,—I also will that man become aware Life has worth incalculable, every moment that he spends

So much gain or loss for that next life which on this life depends.
Good, done here, be there rewarded,— evil, worked here, there amerced!
Six facts now, and all established, plain to man the last as first.

REASON

There was good and evil, then, defined to man by this decree?
Was—for at its promulgation both 'alike have ceased to be.
Prior to this last announcement 'Certainly as God exists,
As He made man's soul, as soul is quench-less by the deathly mists, Yet is, all the same, forbidden premature escape from time
To eternity's provided purer air and brighter clime,—
Just so certainly depends it on the use to which man turns
Earth, the good or evil done there, whether after death he earns Life eternal,—heaven, the phrase be, or eternal death,—say, hell.
As his deeds, so proves his portion, doing ill or doing well!
—Prior to this last announcement, earth was man's probation-place:
Liberty of doing evil gave his doing good a grace;
Once lay down the law, with Nature's simple 'Such effects succeed Causes such, and heaven or hell depends upon man's earthly deed
Just as surely as depends the straight or else the crooked line
On his making point meet point or with or else without incline,— Thenceforth neither good nor evil does man, doing what he must.
Lay but down that law as stringent 'Wouldst thou live again, be just!'
As this other 'Wouldst thou live now, regularly draw thy breath!
For, suspend the operation, straight law's breach results in death—'
And (provided always, man, addressed this mode, be sound and sane) Prompt and absolute obedience, never doubt, will law obtain!
Tell not me 'Look round us! nothing each side but acknowledged law,
Now styled God's—now Nature's edict!'
Where's the obedience without flaw Paid to either? What's the adage rife in man's mouth? Why, 'The best I both see and praise, the worst I follow' —which, despite professed Seeing, praising, all the same he follows, since he disbelieves
In the heart of him that edict which for truth his head receives.

There's evading and persuading and much making law amends
 Somehow, there's the nice distinction
 'twixt fast foes and faulty friends,
 —Any consequence except inevitable
 death when 'Die,
 Whoso breaks our law!' they publish,
 God and Nature equally.
 Law that's kept or broken—subject to man's will and pleasure! Whence?
 How comes law to bear eluding? Not because of impotence:
 Certain laws exist already which to hear
 means to obey;
 Therefore not without a purpose these man must, while those man may Keep and, for the keeping, haply gain approval and reward.
 Break through this last superstructure, all is empty air—no sward Firm like my first fact to stand on 'God there is, and soul there is,'
 And soul's earthly life-allotment: wherein, by hypothesis,
 Soul is bound to pass probation, prove its powers, and exercise Sense and thought on fact, and then, from fact educing fit surmise,
 Ask itself, and of itself have solely answer,
 'Does the scope
 Earth affords of fact to judge by warrant future fear or hope?'

Thus have we come back full circle:
 fancy's footsteps one by one Go their round conducting reason to the point where they begun,
 Left where we were left so lately, Dear and True! When, half a week Since, we walked and talked and thus I told you, how suffused a cheek
 You had turned me had I sudden brought the blush into the smile
 By some word like 'Idly argued! you know better all the while!'
 Now, from me—Oh not a blush but, how much more, a joyous glow, Laugh triumphant, would it strike did your 'Yes, better I do know' Break, my warrant for assurance! which assurance may not be If, supplanting hope, assurance needs must change this life to me.
 So, I hope—no more than hope, but hope—no less than hope, because I can fathom, by no plumb-line sunk in life's apparent laws,
 How I may in any instance fix where change should meetly fall Nor involve, by one revisal, abrogation of them all:
 —Which again involves as utter change
 in life thus law-released,

Whence the good of goodness vanished when the ill of evil ceased.
 Whereas, life and laws apparent reinstated,—all we know,
 All we know not,—o'er our heaven again
 cloud closes, until, lo—
 Hope the arrowy, just as constant, comes to pierce its gloom, compelled By a power and by a purpose which, if no one else beheld,
 I behold in life, so—hope!

Sad summing-up of all to say!
Athanasius contra mundum, why should he hope more than they?
 So are men made notwithstanding, such magnetic virtue darts
 From each head their fancy haloes to their unresisting hearts!

Here I stand, methinks a stone's throw from yon village I this morn Traversed for the sake of looking one last look at its forlorn Tenement's ignoble fortune: through a crevice, plain its floor Piled with provender for cattle, while a dung-heap blocked the door.
 In that squalid Bossex, under that obscene red roof, arose,
 Like a fiery flying serpent from its egg, a soul—Rousseau's.
 Turn thence! Is it Diodati joins the glimmer of the lake?
 There I plucked a leaf, one week since,— ivy, plucked for Byron's sake.
 Famed unfortunates! And yet, because of that phosphoric fame
 Swathing blackness' self with brightness till putridity looked flame,
 All the world was witched: and wherefore? what could lie beneath, allure Heart of man to let corruption serve man's head as cynosure?
 Was the magic in the dictum 'All that's good is gone and past;
 Bad and worse still grows the present, and the worst of all comes last:
 Which believe—for I believe it?' So preached one his gospel-news;
 While melodious moaned the other
 'Dying day with dolphin-hues!
 Storm, for loveliness and darkness like a woman's eye! Ye mounts Where I climb to 'scape my fellow, and thou sea wherein he counts Not one inch of vile dominion! What were your especial worth Failed ye to enforce the maxim "Of all objects found on earth
 Man is meanest, much too honoured when compared with—what by odds Beats him—any dog: so, let him go ahowling to his gods!"

LA SAISIAZ

Which believe—for I believe it!—such the comfort man received Sadly since perforce he must: for why?
the famous bard believed!

Fame! Then, give me fame, a moment!
As I gather at a glance Human glory after glory vivifying yon expanse,
Let me grasp them all together, hold on high and brandish well Beacon-like above the rapt world ready, whether heaven or hell
Send the dazzling summons earthward, to submit itself the same,
Take on trust the hope or else despair flashed full on face by—Fame!
Thanks, thou pine-tree of Makistos, wide thy giant torch I wave!
Know ye whence I plucked the pillar, late with sky for architrave?
This the trunk, the central solid Knowledge, kindled core, began Tugging earth-deeps, trying heaven-heights, rooted yonder at Lausanne.
This which flits and spits, the aspic,— sparkles in and out the boughs
Now, and now condensed, the python, coiling round and round allows Scarce the bole its due effulgence, dulled by flake on flake of Wit—Laughter so beweels Learning,—what but Ferney nourished it?
Nay, nor fear—since very resin feeds the flame—that I dispense With yon Bossex terebinth-tree's all-explosive Eloquence:
No, be sure! nor, any more than thy re-splendancy, Jean-Jacques, Dare I want thine, Diodati! What though monkeys and macaques Gibber 'Byron'? Byron's ivy rears a branch beyond the crew, Green for ever, no deciduous trash macaques and monkeys chew!
As Rousseau, then, eloquent, as Byron prime in poet's power,— Detonations, fulgurations, smiles—the rainbow, tears—the shower,— Lo, I lift the coruscating marvel—Fame!
and, famed, declare

—Learned for the nonce as Gibbon, witty as wit's self Voltaire . . .
O the sorriest of conclusions to whatever man of sense
Mid the millions stands the unit, takes no flare for evidence!
Yet the millions have their portion, live their calm or troublous day, Find significance in fireworks: so, by help of mine, they may Confidently lay to heart and lock in head their life long—this:
'He there with the brand flamboyant,
broad o'er night's forlorn abyss, Crowned by prose and verse; and wielding, with Wit's bauble, Learning's
rod . . .
Well? Why, he at least believed in Soul, was very sure of God.'

So the poor smile played, that evening:
pallid smile long since extinct
Here in London's mid-November! Not so loosely thoughts were linked, Six weeks since as I, descending in the sunset from Salève, Found the chain, I seemed to forge there, flawless till it reached your grave,—
Not so filmy was the texture, but I bore it in my breast
Safe thus far. And since I found a something in me would not rest Till I, link by link, unravelled any tangle of the chain,
—Here it lies, for much or little! I have lived all o'er again
That last pregnant hour: I saved it, just as I could save a root Disinterred for re-interment when the time best helps to shoot.
Life is stocked with germs of torpid life:
but may I never wake Those of mine whose resurrection could not be without earthquake!
Rest all such, unraised forever! Be this, sad yet sweet, the sole Memory evoked from slumber! Least part this: then what the whole?

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

1878

I
SUCH a starved bank of moss
Till that May-morn,
Blue ran the flash across:
Violets were born!

II
Sky—what a scowl of cloud
Till, near and far,
Ray on ray split the shroud:
Splendid, a star!

III
World—how it walled about Life with disgrace
Till God's own smile came out:
That was thy face!

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC.

I
'FAME!' Yes, I said it and you read it. First, Praise the good log-fire! Winter howls
without.
Crowd closer, let us! Ha, the secret nursed Inside yon hollow, crusted roundabout With copper where the clamp was,—how the burst
Vindicates flame the stealthy feeder!
Spout
Thy splendidest—a minute and no more?
So soon again all sobered as before?

II
Nay, for I need to see your face! One stroke
Adroitly dealt, and lo, the pomp revealed!
Fire in his pandemonium, heart of oak Palatial, where he wrought the works concealed Beneath the solid-seeming roof I broke.
As redly up and out and off they reeled
Like disconcerted imps, those thousand sparks
From fire's slow tunnelling of vaults and arcs!

III
Up, out, and off, see! Were you never used,—
You now, in childish days or rather nights,—
As I was, to watch sparks fly? not amused
By that old nurse-taught game which gave the sprites
Each one his title and career,—confused
Belief 'twas all long over with the flights From earth to heaven of hero, sage and
bard,
And bade them once more strive for ame's award?

IV
New long bright life! and happy chance
'befell—
That I know—when some prematurely
lost
Child of disaster bore away the bell From some too-pampered son of fortune, crossed
Never before my chimney broke the spell!
Octogenarian Keats gave up the ghost, While—never mind Who was it cumbered
earth—
Sank stifled, span-long brightness, in the birth.

V
Well, try a variation of the game!
Our log is old ship-timber, broken bulk.
There's sea-brine spirits up the brimstone
flame,
That crimson-curly spiral proves the hulk
Was saturate with—ask the chloride's
name
From somebody who knows! I shall not sulk
If yonder greenish tonguelet licked from brass
Its life, I thought was fed on copperas.

VI
Anyhow, there they flutter! What may be The style and prowess of that purple
one?
Who is the hero other eyes shall see Than yours and mine? That yellow, deep to dun—
Conjecture how the sage glows, whom not
we
But those unborn are to get warmth by!
Son
O' the coal,—as Job and Hebrew name a spark,—
What bard, in thy red soaring, scares the dark?

VII
Oh and the lesser lights, the dearer still
That they elude a vulgar eye, give ours
The glimpse repaying astronomic skill
Which searched sky deeper, passed those patent powers Constellate proudly,—swords, scrolls, harps, that fill
The vulgar eye to surfeit,—found best flowers
Hid deepest in the dark,—named un-plucked grace
Of soul, ungathered beauty, form or face!

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

VIII

Up with thee, mouldering ash men never
 knew,
 But I know! flash thou forth, and figure
 bold,
 Calm and columnar as yon flame I view!
 Oh and I bid thee,—to whom fortune doled
 Scantly all other gifts out—bicker blue,
 Beauty for all to see, zinc's uncontrolled Flake-brilliance! Not my fault if these were shown,
 Grandeur and beauty both, to me alone.

IX

No! as the first was boy's play, this proves mere Stripling's amusement: manhood's sport be grave!
 Choose rather sparkles quenched in mid
 career,
 Their boldness and their brightness could not save (In some old night of time on some lone drear
 Sea-coast, monopolized by crag or cave)
 —Save from ignoble exit into smoke, Silence, oblivion, all death-damps that choke!

X

Launched by our ship-wood, float we, once adrift
 In fancy to that land-strip waters wash,
 We both know well! Where uncouth tribes made shift
 Long since to just keep life in, billows
 dash
 Nigh over folk who shudder at each lift
 Of the old tyrant tempest's whirlwind-lash
 Though they have built the serviceable
 town
 Tempests but tease now, billows drench, not drown.

XI

Croisic, the spit of sandy rock which juts Spitefully northward, bears nor tree nor shrub
 To tempt the ocean, show what Guérande
 shuts Behind her, past wild Batz whose Saxons grub
 The ground for crystals grown where ocean gluts
 Their promontory's breadth with salt:
 all stub
 Of rock and stretch of sand, the land's last
 strife
 To rescue a poor remnant for dear life.

XII

And what life! Here was, from the world to choose,
 The Druids' chosen chief of homes:
 they reared

—Only their women,—mid the slush and ooze
 Of yon low islet,—to their sun, revered In strange stone guise,—a temple. May-dawn dews
 Saw the old structure levelled; when there peered
 May's earliest eve-star, high and wide once
 more
 Up towered the new pile perfect as before:

XIII

Seeing that priestesses—and all were
 such—
 Unbuilt and then rebuilt it every May,
 Each alike helping—well, if not too much!
 For, mid their eagerness to outstrip day
 And get work done, if any loosed her clutch
 And let a single stone drop, straight a prey
 Herself fell, torn to pieces, limb from limb,
 By sisters in full chorus glad and grim.

XIV

And still so much remains of that grey cult,
 That even now, of nights, do women steal
 To the sole Menhir standing, and insult
 The antagonistic church-spire by appeal
 To power discrowned in vain, since each adult Believes the gruesome thing she clasps may heal
 Whatever plague no priestly help can cure:
 Kiss but the cold stone, the event is sure!

XV

Nay more: on May-morns, that primeval
 rite
 Of temple-building, with its punishment
 For rash precipitation, lingers, spite Of all remonstrance; vainly are they
 shent,
 Those girls who form a ring and, dressed in white,
 Dance round it, till some sister's strength be spent:
 Touch but the Menhir, straight the rest turn roughs
 From gentles, fall on her with fisticuffs.

XVI

Oh and, for their part, boys from door to door
 Sing unintelligible words to tunes
 As obsolete: 'scraps of Druidic lore,' Sigh scholars, as each pale man impor-
 tunes
 Vainly the mumbling to speak plain once
 more.
 Enough of this old worship, rounds and runes!
 They serve my purpose, which is but to show
 Croisic to-day and Croisic long ago.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XVII

What have we sailed to see, then, wafted
there
By fancy from the log that ends its days
Of much adventure 'neath skies foul or
fair,
On waters rough or smooth, in this good blaze
We two crouch round so closely, bidding
care
Keep outside with the snow-storm?
Something says
'Fit time for story-telling!' I begin—
Why not at Croisic, port we first put in?

XVIII

Anywhere serves: for point me out the
place
Wherever man has made himself a home,
And there I find the story of our race
In little, just at Croisic as at Rome.
What matters the degree? the kind I trace.
Druids their temple, Christians have their dome:
So with mankind; and Croisic, I'll engage,
With Rome yields sort for sort, in age for age.

XIX

No doubt, men vastly differ: and we need
Some strange exceptional benevolence
Of nature's sunshine to develop seed
So well, in the less-favoured clime, that
thence
We may discern how shrub means tree
indeed
Though dwarfed till scarcely shrub in evidence.
Man in the ice-house or the hot-house
ranks
With beasts or gods: stove-forced, give warmth the thanks!

XX

While, is there any ice-checked? Such shall learn
I am thankworthy, who propose to slake
His thirst for tasting how it feels to turn Cedar from hyssop-on-the-wall. I wake
No memories of what is harsh and stern
In ancient Croisic-nature, much less rake
The ashes of her last warmth till out leaps Live Hervé Riel, the single spark she keeps.

XXI

Take these two, see, each outbreak,—spirit and spirit
Of fire from our brave billet's either edge
Which—call maternal Croisic ocean-girt!
These two shall thoroughly redeem my pledge.

One flames fierce gules, its feebler rival—vert,
Heralds would tell you: heroes, I allege,
They both were: soldiers, sailors, statesmen, priests,
Lawyers, physicians—guess what gods or beasts!

XXII

None of them all, but—poets, if you
please!
'What, even there, endowed with knack of rhyme,
Did two among the aborigines
Of that rough region pass the ungracious
time
Suiting, to rumble-tumble of the sea's,
The songs forbidden a serener clime?
Or had they universal audience—that's
To say, the folk of Croisic, ay and Batz?'

XXIII

Open your ears! Each poet in his day
Had such a mighty moment of success
As pinnaced him straight, in full display,
For the whole world to worship—nothing less!
Was not the whole polite world Paris,
pray?
And did not Paris, for one moment—
yes,
Worship these poet-flames, our red and green,
One at a time, a century between?

XXIV

And yet you never heard their names!
Assist,
Clio, Historic Muse, while I record Great deeds! Let fact, not fancy, break the mist
And bid each sun emerge, in turn play
lord
Of day, one moment! Hear the annalist Tell a strange story, true to the least
word!
At Croisic, sixteen hundred years and ten Since Christ, forth flamed yon liquid ruby,
then.

XXV

Know him henceforth as René Gentilhomme
—Appropriate appellation! noble birth And knightly blazon, the device where-
from
Was 'Better do than say'! In Croisic's
dearth
Why prison his career while Christendom Lay open to reward acknowledged
worth?
He therefore left it at the proper age
And got to be the Prince of Condé's page.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XXVI

Which Prince of Condé, whom men called
 'The Duke,'
 —Failing the king, his cousin, of an heir, (As one might hold would hap, without rebuke,
 Since Anne of Austria, all the world was
 'ware,
 Twenty-three years long sterile, scarce could look
 For issue)—failing Louis of so rare
 A godsend, it was natural the Prince Should hear men call him 'Next King' too, nor wince.

XXVII

Now, as this reasonable hope, by growth
 Of years, nay, tens of years, looked plump almost
 To bursting,—would the brothers, childless both,
 Louis and Gaston, give but up the ghost—
 Condé, called 'Duke' and 'Next King,' nothing loth
 Awaited his appointment to the post,
 And wiled away the time, as best he might,
 Till Providence should settle things aright.

XXVIII

So, at a certain pleasure-house, withdrawn
 From cities where a whisper breeds of ef-
 fence,
 He sat him down to watch the streak of
 dawn
 Testify to first stir of Providence;
 And, since dull country life makes courtiers yawn,
 There wanted not a poet to dispense Song's remedy for spleen-fits all and some,
 Which poet was Page René Gentilhomme.

XXIX

A poet born and bred, his very sire
 A poet also, author of a piece Printed and published, 'Ladies—their attire':

Therefore the son, just born at his decease,
 Was bound to keep alive the sacred fire,
 And kept it, yielding moderate increase Of songs and sonnets, madrigals, and
 much Rhyming thought poetry and praised as such.

XXX

Rubbish unutterable (bear in mind!)
 Rubbish not wholly without value,
 though,
 Being to compliment the Duke designed
 And bring the complimenter credit so,— Pleasure with profit happily combined.
 Thus René Gentilhomme rhymed, rhymed till—lo,
 This happened, as he sat in an alcove
 Elaborating rhyme for 'love'—not 'dove.'

XXXI

He was alone: silence and solitude Befit the votary of the Muse. Around, Nature—not our new picturesque and
 rude,
 But trim tree-cinctured stately garden-
 ground—
 Breathed polish and politeness. Allimbued
 With these, he sat absorbed in one pro-
 found
 Excogitation 'Were it best to hint Or boldly boast "She loves me,—Araminte"?'

XXXII

When suddenly flashed lightning, searing
 sight
 Almost, so close to eyes; then, quick on flash,
 Followed the thunder, splitting earth downright
 Where René sat a-rhyming: with huge crash
 Of marble into atoms infinite—Marble which, stately, dared the world to dash
 The stone-thing proud, high-pillared, from its place:
 One flash, and dust was all that lay at base.

XXXIII

So, when the horrible confusion loosed
 Its wrappage round his senses, and, with
 breath,
 Seeing and hearing by degrees induced Conviction what he felt was life, not
 death—
 His fluttered faculties came back to roost
 One after one, as fowls do: ay, beneath,
 About his very feet there, lay in dust Earthly presumption paid by heaven's disgust.

XXXIV

For, what might be the thunder-smitten
 thing
 But, pillared high and proud, in marble
 guise,
 A ducal crown—which meant 'Now
 Duke: Next, King'?
 Since such the Prince was, not in his own eyes Alone, but all the world's. Pebble from sling
 Prostrates a giant; so can pulverize Marble pretension—how much more,
 make moul
 A peacock-prince his plume—God's thunderbolt.

XXXV

That was enough for René, that first fact Thus flashed into him. Up he looked:
 all blue

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

And bright the sky above; earth firm, compact Beneath his footing, lay apparent too;
 Opposite stood the pillar: nothing lacked There, but the Duke's crown: see, its fragments strew
 The earth,—about his feet lie atoms fine
 Where he sat nursing late his fourteenth line!

XXXVI

So, for the moment, all the universe Being abolished, all 'twixt God and
 him,— Earth's praise or blame, its blessing or its
 curse,
 Of one and the same value,—to the brim Flooded with truth for better or for
 worse,—
 He pounces on the writing-paper, prim,
 Keeping its place on table: not a dint
 Nor speck had damaged 'Ode to Araminte.'

XXXVII

And over the neat crowquill calligraph
 His pen goes blotting, blurring, as an ox
 Tramples a flower-bed in a garden,—laugh
 You may!—so does not he, whose quick heart knocks
 Audibly at his breast: an epitaph
 On earth's break-up, amid the falling
 rocks,
 He might be penning in a wild dismay,
 Caught with his work half-done on Judgment Day.

XXXVIII

And what is it so terribly he pens,
 Ruining 'Cupid, Venus, wile and smile, Hearts, darts,' and all his day's divinior
mens
 Judged necessary to a perfect style?
 Little reck's René, with a breast to cleanse,
 Of Rhadamanthine law that reigned
 erewhile:
 Brimful of truth, truth's outburst will convince
 (Style or no style) who bears truth's brunt
 —the Prince.

XXXIX

'Condé, called "Duke," be called just
 "Duke," not more
 To life's end! "Next King" thou forsooth wilt be?
 Ay, when this bauble, as it decked before
 Thy pillar, shall again, for France to see, Take its proud station there! Let France adore
 No longer an illusive mock-sun—thee—
 But keep her homage for Sol's self, about
 To rise and put pretenders to the rout!

XL

'What? France so God-abandoned that her root
 Regal, though many a Spring it gave no
 sign,
 Lacks power to make the bole, now branchless, shoot Greenly as ever? Nature, though benign,
 Thwarts ever the ambitious and astute.
 In store for such is punishment condign:
 Sure as thy Duke's crown to the earth was hurled,
 So sure, next year, a Dauphin glads the world!'

XLI

Which penned—some forty lines to this effect—
 Our René folds his paper, marches brave
 Back to the mansion, luminous, erect,
 Triumphant, an emancipated slave.
 There stands the Prince. 'How now? My Duke's crown wrecked?
 What may this mean?' The answer
 René gave
 Was—handing him the verses, with the
 due
 Incline of body: 'Sir, God's word to you!'

XLII

The Prince read, paled, was silent; all
 around,
 The courtier-company, to whom he
 passed
 The paper, read, in equal silence bound.
 René grew also by degrees aghast
 At his own fit of courage—palely found
 Way of retreat from that pale presence:
 classed
 Once more among the cony-kind. 'Oh,
 son,
 It is a feeble folk!' saith Solomon.

XLIII

Vainly he apprehended evil: since,
 When, at the year's end, even as foretold, Forth came the Dauphin who discrowned
 the Prince
 Of that long-craved mere visionary
 gold,
 'Twas no fit time for envy to evince
 Malice, besure! The timidest grew bold:
 Of all that courtier-company not one
 But left the semblance for the actual sun.

XLIV

And all sorts and conditions that stood by
 At René's burning moment, bright
 escape
 Of soul, bore witness to the prophecy.
 Which witness took the customary
 shape

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Of verse; a score of poets in full cry Hailed the inspired one. Nantes and Tours agape,
Soon Paris caught the infection; gaining
strength,
How could it fail to reach the Court at length?

XLV

'O poet!' smiled King Louis, 'and besides,
O prophet! Sure, by miracle announced,
My babe will prove a prodigy. Who chides Henceforth the unchilded monarch shall be trounced

For irreligion: since the fool derides Plain miracle by which this prophet pounced

Exactly on the moment I should lift Like Simeon, in my arms, a babe, "God's gift!"

XLVI

'So call the boy! and call this bard and seer
By a new title! him I raise to rank
Of "Royal Poet": poet without peer!

Whose fellows only have themselves to thank

If humbly they must follow in the rear My René. He's the master: they must clank

Their chains of song, confessed his slaves;
for why?

They poetize, while he can prophesy!'

XLVII

So said, so done; our René rose august,
'The Royal Poet'; straightway put in type

His poem-prophecy, and (fair and just Procedure) added,—now that time was ripe

For proving friends did well his word to
trust,—

Those attestations, tuned to lyre or
pipe,

Which friends broke out with when he dared foretell

The Dauphin's birth: friends trusted, and did well.

XLVIII

Moreover he got painted by Du Pré, Engraved by Daret also, and prefixed
The portrait to his book: a crown of bay Circled his brows, with rose and myrtle
mixed;

And Latin verses, lovely in their way, Described him as 'the biforked hill betwixt:

Since he hath scaled Parnassus at one jump,
Joining the Delphic quill and Getic trump.'

XLIX

Whereof came . . . What, it lasts, our spirt, thus long
—The red fire? That's the reason must excuse

My letting flicker René's prophet-song
No longer; for its pertinacious hues
Must fade before its fellow joins the throng
Of sparks departed up the chimney, dues
To dark oblivion. At the word, it winks, Rallies; relapses, dwindles, deathward sinks!

L

So does our poet. All this burst of fame,
Fury of favour, Royal Poetship, Prophetship, book, verse, picture—thereof came —Nothing! That's why I would not let oustrip

Red his green rival flamelet: just the same Ending in smoke waits both! In vain we rip

The past, no further faintest trace remains
Of René to reward our pious pains.

LI

Somebody saw a portrait framed and glazed.

At Croisic, 'Who may be this glorified Mortal unheard-of hitherto?' amazed

That person asked the owner by his side,
Who proved as ignorant. The question raised

Provoked inquiry; key by key was tried
On Croisic's portrait-puzzle, till back flew
The wards at one key's touch, which key was—Who?

LII

The other famous poet! Wait thy turn,
Thou green, our red's competitor!

Enough
Just now to note 'twas he that itched to
learn

(A hundred years ago) how fate could puff

Heaven-high (a hundred years before) then spurn

To suds so big a bubble in some huff:
Since green too found red's portrait,— having heard

Hitherto of red's rare self not one word.

LIII

And he with zeal addressed him to the task
Of hunting out, by all and any means,
—Who might the brilliant bard be, born to bask

Butterfly-like in shine which kings and queens

And baby-dauphins shed? Much need to ask!

Is fame so fickle that what perks and preens

The eyed wing, one imperial minute, dips
Next sudden moment into blind eclipse?

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

LIV

After a vast expenditure of pains, Our second poet found the prize he
sought:
Urged in his search by something that restrains
From undue triumph famed ones who have fought,
Or simply, poetizing, taxed their brains:
Something that tells such—dear is triumph bought
If it means only basking in the midst
Of fame's brief sunshine, as thou, René, didst.

LIV

For, what did searching find at last but
this?
Quoth somebody 'I somehow somewhere seem
To think I heard one old De Chevaye is Or was possessed of René's works!'— which gleam
Of light from out the dark proved not amiss
To track, by correspondence on the theme;
And soon the twilight broadened into day,
For thus to question answered De Che-vaye.

LVI

'True it is, I did once possess the works
You want account of—works—to call them so,— Comprised in one small book: the volume lurks
(Some fifty leaves in duodecimo)
'Neath certain ashes which my soul it irks
Still to remember, because long ago
That and my other rare shelf-occupants Perished by burning of my house at Nantes.

LVII

'Yet of that book one strange particular Still stays in mind with me'—and there-
upon
Followed the story. 'Few the poems are;
The book was two-thirds filled up with this one,
And sundry witnesses from near and far
That here at least was prophesying done
By prophet, so as to preclude all doubt,
Before the thing he prophesied about.'

LVIII

That's all he knew, and all the poet learned,
And all that you and I are like to hear
Of René; since not only book is burned
But memory extinguished,—nay, I fear,
Portrait is gone too: nowhere I discerned
A trace of it at Croisic. 'Must a tear Needs fall for that?' you smile. 'How fortune fares
With such a mediocrity, who cares?'

LIX

Well, I care—intimately care to have Experience how a human creature felt
In after-life, who bore the burden grave
Of certainly believing God had dealt For once directly with him: did not rave
—A maniac, did not find his reason lost
—Ah! idiot, but went on, in peace or strife,
The world's way, lived an ordinary life.

LX

How many problems that one fact would solve!
An ordinary soul, no more, no less,
About whose life earth's common sights revolve,
On whom is brought to bear, by thunder-
stress,
This fact—God tasks him, and will not absolve Task's negligent performer! Can you
guess
How such a soul,—the task performed to
point,—
Goes back to life nor finds things out of joint?

LXI

Does he stand stock-like henceforth? or proceed
Dizzily, yet with course straightforward
still,
Down-trampling vulgar hindrance?—as the reed
Is crushed beneath its tramp when that blind will Hatched in some old-world beast's brain bids it speed
Where the sun wants brute-presence to fulfil
Life's purpose in a new far zone, ere ice
Enwomb the pasture-tract its fortalice.

LXII

I think no such direct plain truth consists With actual sense and thought and what they take
To be the solid walls of life: mere mists—
How such would, at that truth's first piercing, break
Into the nullity they are!—slight lists Wherein the puppet-champions wage,
for sake
Of some mock-mistress, mimic war: laid
low
At trumpet-blast, there's shown the world, one foe!

LXIII

No, we must play the pageant out, observe
The tourney-regulations, and regard Success—to meet the blunted spear nor swerve,
Failure—to break no bones yet fall on sward;

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Must prove we have—not courage? well then,—nerve!
And, at the day's end, boast the crown's award—
Be warranted as promising to wield
Weapons, no sham, in a true battle-field.

LXIV

Meantime, our simulated thunderclaps
Which tell us counterfeited truths—these same
Are—sound, when music storms the soul,
perhaps?
—Sight, beauty, every dart of every aim That touches just, then seems, by strange relapse,
To fall effectless from the soul it came
As if to fix its own, but simply smote
And startled to vague beauty more remote?

LXV

So do we gain enough—yet not too much—Acquaintance with that outer element Wherein there's operation (call it such!)
Quite of another kind than we the pent
On earth are proper to receive. Our hutch Lights up at the least chink: let roof be rent—
How inmates huddle, blinded at first spasm,
Cognizant of the sun's self through the chasm!

LXVI

Therefore, who knows if this our René's
quick Subsidence from as sudden noise and glare
Into oblivion was impolitic?
No doubt his soul became at once aware
That, after prophecy, the rhyming-trick
Is poor employment: human praises
scare
Rather than soothe ears all a-tingle yet
With tones few hear and live, but none forget.

LXVII

There's our first famous poet. Step thou
forth,
Second consummate songster! See, the
tongue
Of fire that typifies thee, owns thy worth
In yellow, purple mixed its green among,
No pure and simple resin from the North,
But composite with virtues that belong To Southern culture! Love not more than hate
Helped to a blaze . . . But I anticipate.

LXVIII

Prepare to witness a combustion rich
And riotously splendid, far beyond Poor René's lambent little streamer which Only played candle to a Court grown fond

By baby-birth: this soared to such a pitch, Alternately such colours doffed and donned,
That when I say it dazzled Paris—please Know that it brought Voltaire upon his knees!

LXIX

Who did it, was a dapper gentleman, Paul Desforges Maillard, Croisickese
by birth,
Whose birth that century ended which began
By similar bestowment on our earth
Of the aforesaid René. Cease to scan
The ways of Providence! See Croisic's
dearth—
Not Paris in its plenitude—suffice
To furnish France with her best poet twice

LXX

Till he was thirty years of age, the vein Poetic yielded rhyme by drops and
spirits:
In verses of society had lain
His talent chiefly; but the Muse asserts Privilege most by treating with disdain Epics the bard mouths out, or odes he blurts
Spasmodically forth. Have people time And patience nowadays for thought in rhyme?

LXXI

So, his achievements were the quatrain's inch
Of homage, or at most the sonnet's ell
Of admiration: welded lines with clinch
Of ending word and word, to every belle In Croisic's bounds; these, brisk as any finch,
He twittered till his fame had reached as
well
Guérande as Batz; but there fame stopped, for—curse
On fortune—outside lay the universe!

LXXII

That's Paris. Well,—why not break bounds, and send
Song onward till it echo at the gates Of Paris whither all ambitions tend,
And end too, seeing that success there sates
The soul which hungers most for fame?
Why spend
A minute in deciding, while, by Fate's
Decree, there happens to be just the prize
Proposed there, suiting souls that poetize?

LXXIII

A prize indeed, the Academy's own self Proposes to what bard shall best indite
A piece describing how, through shoal and shelf,
The Art of Navigation, steered aright,

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Has, in our last king's reign,—the lucky elf,—

Reached, one may say, Perfection's haven quite,
And there cast anchor. At a glance one sees
The subject's crowd of capabilities!

LXXIV

Neptune and Amphitrité! Thetis, who Is either Tethys or as good—both tag!
Triton can shove along a vessel too:
It's Virgil! Then the winds that blow or lag,—

De Maille, Vendôme, Vermandois! Toulouse blew

Longest, we reckon: he must puff the flag
To fullest outflare; while our lacking nymph
Be Anne of Austria, Regent o'er the lymph!

LXXV

Promised, performed! Since irritabilis gens
Holds of the feverish impotence that strives

To stay an itch by prompt resource to pen's
Scratching itself on paper; placid lives,
Leisurely works mark the divinior mens:
Bees brood above the honey in their hives;

Gnats are the busy bustlers. Splash and scrawl,— Completed lay thy piece, swift penman Paul!

LXXVI

To Paris with the product! This despatched,
One had to wait the Forty's slow and sure

Verdict, as best one might. Our penman scratched Away perforce the itch that knows no cure

But daily paper-friction: more than matched

His first feat by a second—tribute pure
And heartfelt to the Forty when their voice

Should peal with one accord 'Be Paul our choice!'

LXXVII

Scratch, scratch went much laudation of that sane

And sound Tribunal, delegates august
Of Phœbus and the Muses' sacred train—

Whom every poetaster tries to thrust
From where, high-throned, they dominate the Seine:

Fruitless endeavour,—fail it shall and must!

Whereof in witness have not one and all
The Forty voices pealed 'Our choice be Paul'?

LXXVIII

Thus Paul discounted his applause. Alack
For human expectation! Scarcely ink
Was dry when, lo, the perfect piece came back

Rejected, shamed! Some other poet's clink

'Thetis and Tethys' had seduced the pack
Of pedants to declare perfection's pink
A singularly poor production. 'Whew!
The Forty are stark fools, I always knew.'

LXXIX

First fury over (for Paul's race—to-wit,
Brain-vibrios—wriggle clear of protoplasm

Into minute life that's one fury-fit),
'These fools shall find a bard's enthusiasm

Comports with what should counter-balance it—

Some knowledge of the world! No doubt, orgasm

Effects the birth of verse which, born, demands

Prosaic ministration, swaddling-bands!

LXXX

'Verse must be cared for at this early stage, Handled, nay dandled even. I should play

Their game indeed if, till it grew of age,
I meekly let these dotards from away
My bantling from the rightful heritage

Of smiles and kisses! Let the public say

If it be worthy praises or rebukes,
My poem, from these Forty old perukes!'

LXXXI

So, by a friend, who boasts himself in grace
With no less than the Chevalier La Roque,—

Eminent in those days for pride of place,
Seeing he had it in his power to block

The way or smooth the road to all the race
Of literators trudging up to knock

At Fame's exalted temple-door—for why?
He edited the Paris 'Mercury':—

LXXXII

By this friend's help the Chevalier receives Paul's poem, prefaced by the due appeal

To Cæsar from the Jews. As duly heaves
A sigh the Chevalier, about to deal

With case so customary—turns the leaves,
Finds nothing there to borrow, beg or steal—

Then brightens up the critic's brow deep-lined.

'The thing may be so cleverly declined!'

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

LXXXIII

Down to desk, out with paper, up with quill,
Dip and indite! 'Sir, gratitude immense
For this true draught from the Pierian rill!
Our Academic clodpoles must be dense Indeed to stand unirrigated still.
No less, we critics dare not give offence
To grandees like the Forty: while we mock,
We grin and bear. So, here's your piece!
La Roque.'

LXXXIV

There now!' cries Paul: 'the fellow can't avoid Confessing that my piece deserves the palm;
And yet he dares not grant me space enjoyed
By every scribbler he permits embalm
His crambo in the Journal's corner!
Cloyed
With stuff like theirs, no wonder if a quail
Be caused by verse like mine: though that's no cause
For his defrauding me of just applause.'

LXXXV

Aha, he fears the Forty, this poltroon?
First let him fear me! Change smooth speech to rough!
I'll speak my mind out, show the fellow soon
Who is the foe to dread: insist enough
On my own merits till, as clear as noon,
He sees I am no man to take rebuff
As patiently as scribblers may and must!
Quick to the onslaught, out sword, cut and thrust!

LXXXVI

And thereupon a fierce epistle flings
Its challenge in the critic's face. Alack!
Our bard mistakes his man! The gauntlet rings
On brazen visor proof against attack.
Prompt from his editorial throne up springs
The insulted magnate, and his mace falls, thwack,
On Paul's devoted brainpan,—quite away
From common courtesies of fencing-play!

LXXXVII

Sir, will you have the truth? This piece of yours
Is simply execrable past belief.
I shrink from saying so; but, since nought cures Conceit but truth, truth's at your service! Brief, Just so long as 'The Mercury' endures,
So long are you excluded by its Chief

From corner, nay, from cranny! Play the cock
O' the roost, henceforth, at Croisic!' wrote La Roque.

LXXXVIII

Paul, yellowed, whitened, as his wrath from red Waxed incandescent. Now, this man of rhyme
Was merely foolish, faulty in the head
Not heart of him: conceit's a venial crime.
'Oh by no means malicious!' cousins said:
Fussily feeble,—harmless all the time,
Piddling at so-called satire—well-advised
He held in most awe whom he satirized.

LXXXIX

Accordingly his kith and kin—removed
From emulation of the poet's gift
By power and will—these rather liked,
'nay, loved
The man who gave his family a lift
Out of the Croisic level; 'disapproved Satire so trenchant.' Thus our poet sniffed Home-ince, though too churlish to unlock
'The Mercury's' box of ointment was La Roque.

XC

But when Paul's visage grew from red to white,
And from his lips a sort of mumbling fell
Of who was to be kicked,—'And serve him right!'
A gay voice interposed—'did kicking well Answer the purpose! Only—if I might Suggest as much—a far more potent spell
Lies in another kind of treatment. Oh,
Women are ready at resource, you know!

XCI

'Talent should minister to genius! Good:
The proper and superior smile returns.
Hear me with patience! Have you understood
The only method whereby genius earns Fit guerdon nowadays? In knightly mood
You entered lists with visor up; one learns Too late that, had you mounted Roland's crest,
'Room!' they had roared—La Roque with all the rest!

XCII

'Why did you first of all transmit your piece
To those same priggish Forty unprepared

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Whether to rank you with the swans or geese

By friendly intervention? If they dared Count you a cackler,—wonders never cease!

I think it still more wondrous that you
bared

Your brow (my earlier image) as if praise
Were gained by simple fighting nowadays!

XCIII

'Your next step showed a touch of the true
means

Whereby desert is crowned: not force but wile

Came to the rescue. "Get behind the scenes!"

Your friend advised: he writes, sets forth your style

And title, to such purpose intervenes
That you get velvet-compliment three-pile;

And, though "The Mercury" said "nay," nor stock

Nor stone did his refusal prove La Roque.

XCIV

'Why must you needs revert to the high
hand,

Imperative procedure—what you call
"Taking on merit your exclusive stand"?

Stand, with a vengeance! Soon you went to wall,

You and your merit! Only fools command
When folk are free to disobey them, Paul!

You've learnt your lesson, found out
what's o'clock,

By this uncivil answer of La Roque.

XCv

'Now let me counsel! Lay this piece on shelf

—Masterpiece though it be! From out your desk

Hand me some lighter sample, verse the elf Cupid inspired you with, no god grotesque

Presiding o'er the Navy! I myself Hand-write what's legible yet picturesque;

I'll copy fair and femininely frock
Your poem masculine that courts La

Roque!

XCVI

'Deïdamia he—Achilles thou!
Ha, ha, these ancient stories come so apt!

My sex, my youth, my rank I next avow
In a neat prayer for kind perusal.

Sapped
I see the walls which stand so stoutly now!

I see the toils about the game entrapped

By honest cunning! Chains of lady'ssmock,
Not thorn and thistle, tether fast La Roque!

XCvII

Now, who might be the speaker sweet and arch

That laughed above Paul's shoulder as it heaved

With the indignant heart?—bade steal a march

And not continue charging? Who conceived

This plan which set our Paul, like pea you parch

On fire-shovel, skipping, of a load relieved,

From arm-chair moodiness to escritoire
Sacred to Phœbus and the tuneful choir?

XCvIII

Who but Paul's sister! named of course like him

'Desforges'; but, mark you, in those days a queer

Custom obtained,—who knows whence grew the whim?—

That people could not read their title
clear

To reverence till their own true names, made dim

By daily mouthing, pleased to disappear, Replaced by brand-new bright ones:

Arouet,
For instance, grew Voltaire; Desforges—

Malcraï.

XCIX

'Demoiselle Malcraï de la Vigne'—because

The family possessed at Brederac
A vineyard,—few grapes, many hips-and-haws,—

Still a nice Breton name. As breast and
back

Of this vivacious beauty gleamed through gauze,

So did her sprightly nature nowise lack Lustre when draped, the fashionable way,

In 'Malcraï de la Vigne'—more short,

C

Out from Paul's escritoire behold escape
The hoarded treasure! verse falls thick and fast,

Sonnets and songs of every size and shape.
The lady ponders on her prize; at last

Selects one which—Oh angel and yet ape!—

Her malice thinks is probably surpassed
In badness by no fellow of the flock,

Copies it fair, and 'Now for my La
Roque!'

CI

So, to him goes, with the neat manuscript,
The soft petitionary letter. 'Grant
A fledgling novice that with wing unclipt
She soar her little circuit, habitant
Of an old manor; buried in which crypt, How can the youthful châtelaine but
pant
For disemprisonment by one ad hoc
Appointed "Mercury's" Editor, La
Roque?'

CII

'Twas an epistle that might move the Turk!
More certainly it moved our middle-aged
Pen-driver drudging at his weary work,
Raked the old ashes up and disengaged
The sparks of gallantry which always lurk
Somehow in literary breasts, assuaged
In no degree by compliments on style;
Are Forty wagging beards worth one girl's smile?

CIII

In trips the lady's poem, takes its place
Of honour in the gratified Gazette, With due acknowledgment of power and
grace;
Prognostication, too, that higher yet
The Breton Muse will soar: fresh youth, high race,
Beauty and wealth have amicably met That Demoiselle Malcrais may fill the chair
Left vacant by the loss of Deshoulières.

CIV

'There!' cried the lively lady. 'Who was
right—
You in the dumps, or I the merry maid
Who know a trick or two can baffle spite Tenfold the force of this old fool's?
Afraid
Of Editor La Roque? But come! next flight
Shall outsoar—Deshoulières alone?
My blade,
Sappho herself shall you confess outstrip!
Quick, Paul, another dose of manuscript!'

CV

And so, once well a-foot, advanced the
game:
More and more verses, corresponding
gush
On gush of praise, till everywhere acclaim
Rose to the pitch of uproar. 'Sappho?
Tush!
Sure "Malcrais on her Parrot" puts to
shame
Deshoulières' pastoral, clay not worth a rush

Beside this find of treasure, gold in crock, Unearthed in Brittany,—nay, ask La Roque!'

CVI

Such was the Paris tribute. 'Yes,' you sneer,
'Ninnies stock Noodledom, but folk more sage Resist contagious folly, never fear!'
Do they? Permit me to detach one page From the huge Album which from far and
near
Poetic praises blackened in a rage
Of rapture! and that page shall be—who stares Confounded now, I ask you?—just Vol-taire's!

CVII

Ay, sharpest shrewdest steel that ever stabbed
To death Imposture through the amour-joints!
How did it happen that gross Humbug grabbed
Thy weapons, gouged thine eyes out?
Fate appoints
That pride shall have a fall, or I had blabbed
Hardly that Humbug, whom thy soul
aroints,
Could thus cross-buttock thee caught unaware,
And dismalest of tumbles proved—Vol-taire's!

CVIII

See his epistle extant yet, wherewith
'Henri' in verse and 'Charles' in prose he sent
To do her suit and service! Here's the pith Of half a dozen stanzas—stones which
went
To build that simulated monolith—
Sham love in due degree with homage blent
As sham—which in the vast of volumes scares
The traveller still: 'That stucco-heap—Voltaire's?'

CIX

'Oh thou, whose clarion-voice has over-flown
The wilds to startle Paris that's one ear!
Thou who such strange capacity hast
shown
For joining all that's grand with all that's dear,
Knowledge with power to please—Deshoulières grown Learned as Dacier in thy person! mere Weak fruits of idle hours, these crabs of
mine
I dare lay at thy feet, O Muse divine!

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CX

'Charles was my taskwork only; Henri trod
My hero erst; and now, my heroine—
she Shall be thyself! True—is it true, great
God?
Certainly love henceforward must not
be!
Yet all the crowd of Fine Arts fail—how odd!—
Tried turn by turn, to fill a void in me!
There's no replacing love with these, alas!
Yet all I can I do to prove no ass.

CXI

'I labour to amuse my freedom; but Should any sweet young creature slavery preach,
And—borrowing thy vivacious charm, the slut!—
Make me, in thy engaging words, a
speech,
Soon should I see myself in prison shut
With all imaginable pleasure.' Reach
The washhand-basin for admirers!
There's
A stomach-moving tribute—and Vol-taire's!

CXII

Suppose it a fantastic billet-doux,
Adulatory flourish, not worth frown!
What say you to the Fathers of Trévoux?
These in their Dictionary have her down Under the heading 'Author': 'Malcrais,
too,
Is "Author" of much verse that claims renown.'
While Jean-Baptiste Rousseau . . . but why
proceed?
Enough of this—something too much,
indeed!

CXIII

At last La Roque, unwilling to be left Behindhand in the rivalry, broke bounds
Of figurative passion; hilt and heft, Plunged his huge downright love through what surrounds
The literary female bosom; reft Away its veil of coy reserve with 'Zounds!
I love thee, Breton Beauty! All's no use!
Body and soul I love,—the big word's loose!

CXIV

He's greatest now and to de-structi-on Nearest. Attend the solemn word I quote,
O Paul! There's no pause at per-fec-ti-on.
Thus knolls thy knell the Doctor's bronzed throat!

Greatness a period hath, no sta-ti-on!

Better and truer verse none ever wrote (Despite the antique outstretched a-ti-on)
Than thou, revered and magisterial Donne!

CXV

Flat on his face, La Roque, and,—pressed to heart
His dexter hand,—Voltaire with bended
knee!
Paul sat and sucked-in triumph; just apart Leaned over him his sister. 'Well!'
smirks he,
And 'Well?' she answers, smiling—woman's art
To let a man's own mouth, not hers, decree
What shall be next move which decides the
game:
Success? She said so. Failure? His the blame.

CXVI

'Well!' this time forth affirmatively comes With smack of lip, and long-drawn sigh through teeth
Close clenched o'er satisfaction, as the gums
Were tickled by a sweetmeat teased beneath
Palate by lubricating tongue: 'Well!
crumbs
Of comfort these, undoubtedly! no
death
Likely from famine at Fame's feast! 'tis
clear
I may put claim in for my pittance, Dear!

CXVII

'La Roque, Voltaire, my lovers! Then
disguise
Has served its turn, grows idle; let it drop!
I shall to Paris, flaunt there in men's eyes
My proper manly garb and mount a-top
The pedestal that waits me, take the prize Awarded Hercules. He threw a sop
To Cerberus who let him pass, you know, Then, following, licked his heels: exactly
so!

CXVIII

'I like the prospect—their astonishment,
Confusion: wounded vanity, no doubt,
Mixed motives; how I see the brows quick
bent!
"What, sir, yourself, none other,
brought about
This change of estimation? Phœbus sent His shafts as from Diana?" Critic pout Turns courtier smile: "Lo, him we took for her!
Pleasant mistake! You bear no malice,
sir!"

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CXIX

'Eh, my Diana?' But Diana kept
Smilingly silent with fixed needle-sharp
Much-meaning eyes that seemed to intercept

Paul's very thoughts ere they had time to warp
From earnest into sport the words they leapt
To life with—changed as when maltreated harp
Renders in tinkle what some player-prig Means for a grave tune though it proves a jig.

CXX

'What, Paul, and are my pains thus thrown
away,
My lessons end in loss?' at length fall
slow
The pitying syllables, her lips allay
The satire of by keeping in full flow, Above their coral reef, bright smiles at
play:
'Can it be, Paul thus fails to rightly
know
And altogether estimate applause
As just so many asinine hee-haws?

CXXI

'I thought to show you' . . . 'Show me,' Paul in-broke,
'My poetry is rubbish, and the world
That rings with my renown a sorry joke!
What fairer test of worth than that,
form furred,
I entered the arena? Yet you croak
Just as if Phœbé and not Phœbus hurled The dart and struck the Python! What, he crawls
Humbly in dust before your feet, not Paul's?

CXXII

'Nay, 'tis no laughing matter though absurd
If there's an end of honesty on earth!
La Roque sends letters, lying every word!
Voltaire makes verse, and of himself makes mirth
To the remotest age! Rousseau's the third Who, driven to despair amid such
dearth
Of people that want praising, finds no one
More fit to praise than Paul the simpleton!

CXXIII

'Somebody says—if a man writes at all
It is to show the writer's kith and kin
He was unjustly thought a natural;
And truly, sister, I have yet to win
Your favourable word, it seems, for Paul Whose poetry you count not worth a pin

Though well enough esteemed by these Voltaires,
Rousseaus and suchlike: let them quack, who cares?'

CXXIV

'—To 'Paris with you, Paul! Not one word's waste
Further: my scrupulosity was vain!
Go triumph! Be my foolish fears effaced From memory's record! Go, to come
again
With glory crowned,—by sister re-embraced,
Cured of that strange delusion of her
brain
Which led her to suspect that Paris floats
On male limbs mostly when in petticoats!'

CXXV

So laughed her last word, with the little touch
'Of malice proper to the outraged pride
Of any artist in a work too much Shorn of its merits. 'By all means be tried
The opposite procedure! Cast your crutch Away, no longer crippled, nor divide
The credit of your march to the World's Fair
With sister Cherry-cheeks who helped you
there!'

CXXVI

Crippled, forsooth! what courser spright-lier pranced
Paris-ward than did Paul? Nay, dreams lent wings:
He flew, or seemed to fly, by dreams entranced.
Dreams? wide-awake realities: no
things
Dreamed merely were the missives that advanced
The claim of Malcrais to consort with kings
Crowned by Apollo—not to say with queens
Cinctured by Venus for Idalian scenes.

CXXVII

Soon he arrives, forthwith is found before
The outer gate of glory. Bold tic-toc Announces there's a giant at the door.
'Ay, sir, here dwells the Chevalier La
Roque.'
'Lackey! Malcrais,—mind, no word less nor more!— Desires his presence. I've unearthed the brock:
Now, to transfix him!' There stands Paul erect,
Inched out his uttermost, for more effect.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CXXVIII

A bustling entrance: 'Idol of my flame!
Can it be that my heart attains at last
Its longing? that you stand, the very same As in my visions? . . . Ha! hey, how?'
aghast
Stops short the rapture. 'Oh, my boy's to
blame!
You merely are the messenger! Too fast
My fancy rushed to a conclusion. Pooh!
Well, sir, the lady's substitute is—who?'

CXXIX

Then Paul's smirk grows inordinate.
'Shake hands!
Friendship not love awaits you, master
mine,
Though nor Malcrais nor any mistress
stands
To meet your ardour! So, you don't divine
Who wrote the verses wherewith ring the land's Whole length and breadth? Just he whereof no line
Had ever leave to blot your Journal—eh?
Paul Desforges Maillard—otherwise Malcrais!'

CXXX

And there the two stood, stare confronting
smirk,
Awhile uncertain which should yield the pas.
In vain the Chevalier beat brain for quirk
To help in this conjuncture; at length
'Bah!
Boh! Since I've made myself a fool, why shirk
The punishment of folly? Ha, ha, ha, Let me return your handshake!' Comic sock
For tragic buskin prompt thus changed La Roque.

CXXXI

'I'm nobody—a wren-like journalist;
You've flown at higher game and winged your bird,
The golden eagle! That's the grand
'acquist!
Voltaire's sly Muse, the tiger-cat, has purred
Prettily round your feet; but if she missed
Priority of stroking, soon were stirred
The dormant spit-fire. To Voltaire! away, Paul Desforges Maillard, otherwise Mal-
crais!'

CXXXII

Whereupon, arm in arm, and head in air,
The two begin their journey. Need I say,
La Roque had felt the talon of Voltaire,
Had a long-standing little debt to pay,

And pounced, you may depend, on such a rare
Occasion for its due discharge? So, gay
And grenadier-like, marching to assault,
They reach the enemy's abode, there halt.

CXXXIII

'I'll be announcer!' quoth La Roque: 'I
know,
Better than you, perhaps, my Breton
bard,
How to procure an audience! He's not
slow
To smell a rat, this scamp Voltaire!
Discard
The petticoats too soon,—you'll never show
Your haut-de-chausses and all they've made or marred
In your true person. Here's his servant.
Pray,
Will the great man see Demoiselle Malcrais?'

CXXXIV

Now, the great man was also, no whit less,
The man of self-respect,—more great man he!
And bowed to social usage, dressed the dress,
And decorated to the fit degree
His person; 'twas enough to bear the stress
Of battle in the field, without, when free
From outside foes, inviting friends' attack By—sword in hand? No,—ill-made coat on back!

CXXXV

And, since the announcement of his visitor
Surprised him at his toilet,—never glass
Had such solicitation! 'Black, now—or Brown be the killing wig to wear? Alas, Where's the rouge gone, this cheek were better for
A tender touch of? Melted to a mass,
All my pomatum! There's at all events,
A devil—for he's got among my scents!'

CXXXVI

So, 'barbered ten times o'er,' as Antony Paced to his Cleopatra, did at last Voltaire proceed to the fair presence: high
In colour, proud in port, as if a blast
Of trumpet bade the world 'Take note!
draws nigh
To Beauty, Power! Behold the Icono-clast,
The Poet, the Philosopher, the Rod
Of iron for imposture! Ah my God!'

CXXXVII

For there stands smirking Paul, and—what lights fierce
The situation as with sulphur flash—

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

There grinning stands La Roque! No carte-and-tierce
Observes the grinning fencer, but, full dash
From breast to shoulderblade, the thrusts
transpierce
That armour against which so idly clash
The swords of priests and pedants! Victors there,
Two smirk and grin who have befooled—
Voltaire!

CXXXVIII

A moment's horror; then quick turn-
about
On high-heeled shoe,—flurry of ruffles, flounce
Of wig-ties and of coat-tails,—and so out Of door banged wrathfully behind, goes —bounce—
Voltaire in tragic exit! vows, no doubt, Vengeance upon the couple. Did he trounce
Either, in point of fact? His anger's flash Subsided if a culprit craved his cash.

CXXXIX

As for La Roque, he having laughed his
laugh
To heart's content,—the joke defunct
at once,
Dead in the birth, you see,—its epitaph Was sober earnest. 'Well, sir, for the
nonce,
You've gained the laurel; never hope to graff
A second sprig of triumph there! Ensconce
Yourself again at Croisic: let it be Enough you mastered both Voltaire and
—me!

CXL

'Don't linger here in Paris to parade
Your victory, and have the very boys Point at you! "There's the little mouse which made
Believe those two big lions that its noise, Nibbling away behind the hedge, conveyed Intelligence that—portent which destroys
All courage in the lion's heart, with horn That's fable—there lay couched the unicorn!"

CXLI

'Beware us, now we've found who fooled us! Quick To cover! "In proportion to men's fright,
Expect their fright's revenge!" quoth politic Old Macchiavelli. As for me,—all's
right:

I'm but a journalist. But no pin's prick
The tooth leaves when Voltaire is roused to bite!
So, keep your counsel, I advise! Adieu!
Good journey! Ha, ha, ha, Malcraiz was
—you!

CXLII

'—Yes, I'm Malcraiz, and somebody be-
side,
You snickering monkey!' thus winds up the tale
Our hero, safe at home, to that black-eyed Cherry-cheeked sister, as she soothes the pale
Mortified poet. 'Let their worst be tried,
I'm their match henceforth—very man and male!
Don't talk to me of knocking-under! man
And male must end what petticoats began!

CXLIII

'How woman-like it is to apprehend
The world will eat its words! why, words transfixed
To stone, they stare at you in print,—at
end,
Each writer's style and title! Choose betwixt
Fool and knave for his name, who should intend
To perpetrate a baseness so unmixed
With prospect of advantage! What is writ Is writ: they've praised me, there's an end of it.

CXLIV

'No, Dear, allow me! I shall print these
same
Pieces, with no omitted line, as Paul's.
Malcraiz no longer, let me see folk blame
What they—praised simply?—placed on pedestals,
Each piece a statue in the House of Fame!
Fast will they stand there, though their presence galls
The envious crew: such show their teeth,
perhaps,
And snarl, but never bite! I know the chaps!'

CXLV

Oh Paul, oh piteously deluded! Pace
Thy sad sterility of Croisic flats, Watch, from their southern edge, the foamy race
Of high-tide as it leaves the drowning mats
Of yellow-berried web-growth from their
place,
The rock-ridge, when, rolling as far as Batz,
One broadside crashes on it, and the crags,
That needle under, stream with weedy
rags!

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CXLVI

Or, if thou wilt, at inland Bergerac,
Rude heritage but recognized domain,
Do as two here are doing: make hearth crack

With logs until thy chimney roar again Jolly with fire-glow! Let its angle lack No grace of Cherry-checks thy sister,
fain
To do a sister's office and laugh smooth Thy corrugated brow—that scowls forsooth!

CXLVII

Wherefore? Who does not know how these La Roques, Voltaires, can say and unsay, praise and
blame,
Prove black white, white black, play at paradox
And, when they seem to lose it, win the
game?

Care not thou what this badger, and that fox,
His fellow in rascality, call 'fame!'
Fiddlepin's end! Thou hadst it,—quack, quack, quack!
Have quietude from geese at Bergerac!

CXLVIII

Quietude! For, be very sure of this!
A twelvemonth hence, and men shall know or care
As much for what to-day they clap or hiss
As for the fashion of the wigs they wear, Then wonder at. There's fame which, bale or bliss,—
Got by no gracious word of great Voltaire

Or not-so-great La Roque,—is taken back
By neither, any more than Bergerac!

CXLIX

Too true! or rather, true as ought to be!
No more of Paul the man, Malcraais the
maid,
Thenceforth for ever! One or two, I see,
Stuck by their poet: who the longest stayed
Was Jean-Baptiste Rousseau, and even he Seemingly saddened as perforce he paid
A rhyming tribute 'After death, survive—
He hoped he should; and died while yet alive!'

CL

No, he hoped nothing of the kind, or held His peace and died in silent good old
age.
Him it was, curiosity impelled To seek if there were extant still some page
Of his great predecessor, rat who belled
The cat once, and would never deign engage

In after-combat with mere mice,—saved
from
More sonnetteering,—René Gentilhomme.

CLI

Paul's story furnished forth that famous
play
Of Piron's 'Métromanie': there you'll
find He's Francaleu, while Demoiselle Mal-craais
Is Demoiselle No-end-of-names-behind!
As for Voltaire, he's Damis. Good and gay
The plot and dialogue, and all's designed
To spite Voltaire: at 'Something' such the
laugh
Of simply 'Nothing!' (see his epitaph).

CLII

But truth, truth, that's the gold! and all the good
I find in fancy is, it serves to set Gold's inmost glint free, gold which comes up rude
And rayless from the mine. All fume and fret
Of artistry beyond this point pursued
Brings out another sort of burnish: yet
Always the ingot has its very own Value, a sparkle struck from truth alone.

CLIII

Now, take this sparkle and the other spirt
Of fitful flame,—twin births of our grey brand
That's sinking fast to ashes! I assert,
As sparkles want but fuel to expand
Into a conflagration no mere squirt Will quench too quickly, so might Croisic strand,
Had fortune pleased posterity to chowse,
Boast of her brace of beacons luminous.

CLIV

Did earlier Agamemmons lack their bard?
But later bards lacked Agamemnon too!
How often frustrate they of fame's award
Just because Fortune, as she listed, blew
Some slight bark's sails to belling, mauled and marred
And forced to put about the First-rate!
True,
Such tacks but for a time: still—small-craft ride
At anchor, rot while Beddoes breasts the tide!

CLV

Dear, shall I tell you? There's a simple test
Would serve, when people take on them to weigh

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

The worth of poets, 'Who was better, best,
This, that, the other bard?' (bards none
gainsay
As good, observe! no matter for the rest)
'What quality preponderating may Turn the scale as it trembles?' End the strife
By asking 'Which one led a happy life?'

CLVI

If one did, over his antagonist
That yelled or shrieked or sobbed or wept or wailed
Or simply had the dumps,—dispute who
list,—
I count him victor. Where his fellow failed,
Mastered by his own means of might,— acquist
Of necessary sorrows,—he prevailed,
A strong since joyful man who stood distinct Above slave-sorrows to his chariot linked.

CLVII

Was not his lot to feel more? What meant
'feel'
Unless to suffer! Not, to see more?
Sight—
What helped it but to watch the drunken reel
Of vice and folly round him, left and
right,
One dance of rogues and idiots! Not, to deal
More with things lovely? What provoked the spite
Of filth incarnate, like the poet's need
Of other nutriment than strife and greed!

CLVIII

Who knows most, doubts most; entertaining hope,
Means recognizing fear; the keener
sense
Of all comprised within our actual scope Recoils from aught beyond earth's dim and dense.
Who, grown familiar with the sky, will
grope
Henceforward among groundlings?
That's offence
Just as indubitably: stars abound O'erhead, but then—what flowers make glad the ground!

CLIX

So, force is sorrow, and each sorrow,
force:
What then? since Swiftness gives the charioteer
The palm, his hope be in the vivid horse Whose neck God clothed with thunder, not the steer

Sluggish and safe! Yoke Hatred, Crime, Remorse,
Despair: but ever mid the whirling fear,
Let, through the tumult, break the poet's
face
Radiant, assured his wild slaves win the race!

CLX

Therefore I say . . . no, shall not say, but
think,
And save my breath for better purpose.
White
From grey our log has burned to: just one blink
That quivers, loth to leave it, as a sprite
The outworn body. Ere your eyelids' wink Punish who scaled so deep into the night
Your mouth up, for two poets dead so
long,— Here pleads a live pretender: right your wrong!

I

What a pretty tale you told me
Once upon a time
—Said you found it somewhere (scold
me!)
Was it prose or was it rhyme,
Greek or Latin? Greek, you said,
While your shoulder propped my head.

II

Anyhow there's no forgetting
This much if no more,
That a poet (pray, no petting!)
Yes, a bard, sir, famed of yore,
Went where suchlike used to go,
Singing for a prize, you know.

III

Well, he had to sing, nor merely Sing but play the lyre;
Playing was important clearly
Quite as singing: I desire,
Sir, you keep the fact in mind
For a purpose that's behind.

IV

There stood he, while deep attention
Held the judges round,
—Judges able, I should mention,
To detect the slightest sound
Sung or played amiss: such ears
Had old judges, it appears!

V

None the less he sang out boldly,
Played in time and tune,
Till the judges, weighing coldly
Each note's worth, seemed, late or soon,
Sure to smile 'In vain one tries Picking faults out: take the prize!'

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

VI

When, a mischief! Were they seven Strings the lyre possessed?
 Oh, and afterwards eleven,
 Thank you! Well, sir,—who had guessed
 Such ill luck in store?—it happed
 One of those same seven strings snapped.

VII

All was lost, then! No! a cricket
 (What 'cicada'? Pooh!)
 —Some mad thing that left its thicket
 For mere love of music—flew
 With its little heart on fire,
 Lighted on the crippled lyre.

VIII

So that when (ah joy!) our singer
 For his truant string
 Feels with disconcerted finger,
 What does cricket else but fling
 Fiery heart forth, sound the note
 Wanted by the throbbing throat?

IX

Ay and, ever to the ending,
 Cricket chirps at need,
 Executes the hand's intending,
 Promptly, perfectly,—indeed
 Saves the singer from defeat
 With her chirrup low and sweet.

Till, at ending, all the judges
 Cry with one assent
 'Take the prize—a prize who grudges
 Such a voice and instrument?
 Why, we took your lyre for harp,
 So it shrilled us forth F sharp!'

XI

Did the conqueror spurn the creature,
 Once its service done?
 That's no such uncommon feature
 In the case when Music's son Finds his Lotte's power too spent For aiding soul-development.

XII

No! This other, on returning
 Homeward, prize in hand,
 Satisfied his bosom's yearning:
 (Sir, I hope you understand!)
 —Said 'Some record there must be
 Of this cricket's help to me!'

XIII

So, he made himself a statue:
 Marble stood, life-size;
 On the lyre, he pointed at you,
 Perched his partner in the prize;
 Never more apart you found
 Her, he throned, from him, she crowned.

XIV

That's the tale: its application?
 Somebody I know
 Hopes one day for reputation
 Through his poetry that's—Oh,
 All so learned and so wise
 And deserving of a prize!

XV

If he gains one, will some ticket,
 When his statue's built,
 Tell the gazer "'Twas a cricket
 Helped my crippled lyre, whose lilt
 Sweet and low, when strength usurped
 Softness' place i' the scale, she chirped?

XVI

'For as victory was nighest,
 While I sang and played,—
 With my lyre at lowest, highest,
 Right alike,—one string that made
 "Love" sound soft was snapt in twain,
 Never to be heard again,—

XVII

'Had not a kind cricket fluttered,
 Perched upon the place
 Vacant left, and duly uttered
 "Love, Love, Love," where'er the bass
 Asked the treble to atone
 For its somewhat sombre drone.'

XVIII

But you don't know music! Wherefore
 Keep on casting pearls
 To a—poet? All I care for
 Is—to tell him that a girl's
 'Love' comes aptly in when gruff Grows his singing. (There, enough!)

DRAMATIC IDYLS

FIRST SERIES

1879

MARTIN RELPH

*My grandfather says he remembers he saw,
when a youngster long ago,
On a bright May day, a strange old man, with a beard as white as snow,
Stand on the hill outside our town like a monument of woe,
And, striking his bare bald head the while,
sob out the reason—so!*

If I last as long as Methuselah I shall never forgive myself:

But—God forgive me, that I pray, unhappy Martin Relph,
As coward, coward I call him—him, yes, him! Away from me!

Get you behind the man I am now, you man that I used to be!

What can have sewed my mouth up, set me a-stare, all eyes, no tongue?

People have urged 'You visit a scare too hard on a lad so young!

You were taken aback, poor boy,' they urge, 'no time to regain your wits:
Besides it had maybe cost you life.' Ay, there is the cap which fits!

So, cap me, the coward,—thus! No fear!
A cuff on the brow does good:

The feel of it hinders a worm inside which bores at the brain for food.

See now, there certainly seems excuse: for a moment, I trust, dear friends,
The fault was but folly, no fault of mine,
or if mine, I have made amends!

For, every day that is first of May, on the hill-top, ~~here~~ stand I, Martin Relph, and I strike my brow, and publish the reason why,

When there gathers a crowd to mock the fool. No fool, friends, since the bite
Of a worm inside is worse to bear: pray
God I have baulked him quite!

I'll tell you. Certainly much excuse! It came of the way they cooped Us peasantry up in a ring just here, close huddling because tight-hooped
By the red-coats round us villagers all:
they meant we should see the sight
And take the example,—see, not speak, for speech was the Captain's right.

'You clowns on the slope, beware!' cried he: 'This woman about to die Gives by her fate fair warning to such acquaintance as play the spy.

Henceforth who meddle with matters of state above them perhaps will learn That peasants should stick to their plough-tail, leave to the King the King's concern.

'Here's a quarrel that sets the land on fire,
between King George and his foes:
What call has a man of your kind—much less, a woman—to interpose?

Yet you needs must be meddling, folk like you, not foes—so much the worse!
The many and loyal should keep themselves unmixed with the few perverse.

'Is the counsel hard to follow? I gave it you plainly a month ago,
And where was the good? The rebels have learned just all that they need to know.

Not a month since in we quietly marched:
a week, and they had the news,
From a list complete of our rank and file to a note of our caps and shoes.

'All about all we did and all we were doing and like to do!
Only, I catch a letter by luck, and capture who wrote it, too.

Some of you men look black enough, but the milk-white face demure Betokens the finger foul with ink: 'tis a woman who writes, be sure!

'Is it "Dearie, how much I miss your mouth!"—good natural stuff, she pens?

Some sprinkle of that, for a blind, of course: with talk about cocks and hens,

How "robin has built on the apple-tree, and our creeper which came to grief
Through the frost, we feared, is twining afresh round casement in famous leaf."

'But all for a blind! She soon glides frank into "Horrid the place is grown With Officers here and Privates there, no nook we may call our own:
And Farmer Giles has a tribe to house, and lodging will be to seek
For the second Company sure to come ('tis whispered) on Monday week."

'And so to the end of the chapter! There!
The murder, you see, was out:
Easy to guess how the change of mind in the rebels was brought about!

Safe in the trap would they now lie snug,
had treachery made no sign;
But treachery meets a just reward, no matter if fools malign!

'That traitors had played us false, was proved—sent news which fell so pat:
And the murder was out—this letter of love, the sender of this sent that!
'Tis an ugly job, though, all the same—a hateful, to have to deal With a case of the kind, when a woman's in fault: we soldiers need nerves of steel!

'So, I gave her a chance, despatched post-haste a message to Vincent Parkes Whom she wrote to; easy to find he was,
since one of the King's own clerks, Ay, kept by the King's own gold in the town close by where the rebels camp:
A sort of a lawyer, just the man to betray our sort—the scamp!

"If her writing is simple and honest and only the lover-like stuff it looks,
And if you yourself are a loyalist, nor down in the rebels' books, Come quick," said I, "and in person prove you are each of you clear of crime, Or martial law must take its course: this day next week's the time!"

'Next week is now: does he come? Not he! Clean gone, our clerk, in a trice!
He has left his sweetheart here in the lurch: no need of a warning twice!
His own neck free, but his partner's fast in the noose still, here she stands To pay for her fault. 'Tis an ugly job: but soldiers obey commands.

'And hearken wherefore I make a speech!
Should any acquaintance share
The folly that led to the fault that is now to be punished, let fools beware!
Look black, if you please, but keep hands white: and, above all else, keep
wives—
Or sweethearts or what they may be—from ink! Not a word now, on your lives!

Black? but the Pit's own pitch was white to the Captain's face—the brute
With the bloated cheeks and the bulgy nose and the bloodshot eyes to suit!
He was muddled with wine, they say:
more like, he was out of his wits with
fear;
He had but a handful of men, that's true,
—a riot might cost him dear.

And all that time stood Rosamund Page, with pinioned arms and face Bandaged about, on the turf marked out for the party's firing-place.

I hope she was wholly with God: I hope
'twas His angel stretched a hand To steady her so, like the shape of stone you see in our church-aisle stand.

I hope there was no vain fancy pierced the bandage to vex her eyes,
No face within which she missed without,
no questions and no replies—
'Why did you leave me to die?'—'Because
... ' Oh, fiends, too soon you grin
At merely a moment of hell, like that—such heaven as hell ended in!

Let mine end too! He gave the word, up went the guns in a line.
Those heaped on the hill were blind as dumb,—for, of all eyes, only mine Looked over the heads of the foremost rank. Some fell on their knees in prayer,
Some sank to the earth, but all shut eyes,
with a sole exception there.

That was myself, who had stolen up last,
had sidled behind the group:
I am highest of all on the hill-top, there stand fixed while the others stoop!
From head to foot in a serpent's twine am
I tightened: / touch ground?
No more than a gibbet's rigid corpse which the fetters rust around!

Can I speak, can I breathe, can I burst—aught else but see, see, only see?
And see I do—for there comes in sight—a man, it sure must be!—
Who staggeringly, stumblingly rises, falls, rises, at random flings his weight On and on, anyhow onward—a man that's mad he arrives too late!

Else why does he wave a something white high-flourished above his head?
Why does not he call, cry,—curse the fool!—why throw up his arms instead?
O take this fist in your own face, fool!
Why does not yourself shout 'Stay!
Here's a man comes rushing, might and main, with something he's mad to do
say'?

And a minute, only a moment, to have hell-fire boil up in your brain,
And ere you can judge things right, choose heaven,—time's over, repentance vain!
They level: a volley, a smoke and the clearing of smoke: I see no more Of the man smoke hid, nor his frantic arms, nor the something white he bore.

But stretched on the field, some half-mile off, is an object. Surely dumb, Deaf, blind were we struck, that nobody heard, not one of us saw him come!

MARTIN RELPH

Has he fainted through fright? One may well believe! What is it he holds so fast?

Turn him over, examine the face! Hey-day! What, Vincent Parkes at last?

Dead! dead as she, by the self-same shot: one bullet has ended both,

Her in the body and him in the soul. They laugh at our plighted troth.

'Till death us do part'? Till death us do join past parting—that sounds like Betrothal indeed! O Vincent Parkes, what need has my fist to strike?

I helped you: thus were you dead and wed: one bound, and your soul reached hers!

There is clench in your hand the thing, signed, sealed, the paper which plain avers

She is innocent, innocent, plain as print, with the King's Arms broad engraved:

No one can hear, but if anyone high on the hill can see, she's saved!

And torn his garb and bloody his lips with heart-break—plain it grew

How the week's delay had been brought about: each guess at the end proved true.

It was hard to get at the folk in power: such waste of time! and then

Such pleading and praying, with, all the while, his lamb in the lions' den!

And at length when he wrung their pardon out, no end to the stupid forms—

The licence and leave: I make no doubt—what wonder if passion warms

The pulse in a man if you play with his heart?—he was something hasty in speech;

Anyhow, none would quicken the work: he had to beseech, beseech!

And the thing once signed, sealed, safe in his grasp,—what followed but fresh delays?

For the floods were out, he was forced to take such a roundabout of ways!

And 'twas 'Halt there!' at every turn of the road, since he had to cross the thick

Of the red-coats: what did they care for him and his 'Quick, for God's sake, quick!'

Horse? but he had one: had it how long? till the first knave smirked 'You brag

Yourself a friend of the King's? then lend to a King's friend here your nag!'

Money to buy another? Why, piece by piece they plundered him still,

With their 'Wait you must,—no help: if aught can help you, a guinea will!'

And a borough there was—I forget the name—whose Mayor must have the bench

Of Justices ranged to clear a doubt: for 'Vincent,' thinks he, sounds French!

It well may have driven him daft, God knows! all man can certainly know

Is—rushing and falling and rising, at last he arrived in a horror—so!

When a word, cry, gasp, would have rescued both! Ay bite me! The worm begins

At his work once more. Had cowardice proved—that only—my sin of sins!

Friends, look you here! Suppose . . . suppose . . . But mad I am, needs must be!

Judas the Damned would never have dared such a sin as I dream! For, see!

Suppose I had sneakingly loved her myself, my wretched self, and dreamed

In the heart of me 'She were better dead than happy and his!'

A light from hell as I spied the pair in a perfectest embrace,

He the saviour and she the saved,—bliss born of the very murder-place!

No! Say I was scared, friends! Call me fool and coward, but nothing worse!

Jeer at the fool and gibe at the coward! 'Twas ever the coward's curse

That fear breeds fancies in such: such take their shadow for substance still,

—A fiend at their back. I liked poor Parkes,—loved Vincent, if you will!

And her—why, I said 'Good morrow' to her, 'Good even,' and nothing more:

The neighbourly way! She was just to me as fifty had been before.

So, coward it is and coward shall be! There's a friend, now! Thanks!

A drink
Of water I wanted: and now I can walk, get home by myself, I think.

PHEIDIPPIDES

Χυλπετε, νικουμεν.

FIRST I salute this soil of the blessed, river and rock!

Gods of my birthplace, dæmons and heroes, honour to all!

Then I name thee, claim thee for our patron, co-equal in praise

—Ay, with Zeus the Defender, with Her of the ægis and spear!

Also, ye of the bow and the buskin, praised be your peer,

Now, henceforth and forever,—O latest to whom I upraise

Hand and heart and voice! For Athens, leave pasture and flock!
Present to help, potent to save, Pan—patron I call!

Archons of Athens, topped by the tettix, see, I return!
See, 'tis myself here standing alive, no spectre that speaks!
Crowned with the myrtle, did you command me, Athens and you,
'Run, Pheidippides, run and race, reach Sparta for aid!
Persia has come, we are here, where is She?' Your command I obeyed, Ran and raced: like stubble, some field which a fire runs through,
Was the space between city and city: two days, two nights did I burn Over the hills, under the dales, down pits and up peaks.

Into their midst I broke: breath served but for 'Persia has come!
Persia bids Athens proffer slaves'-tribute,
water and earth;
Razed to the ground is Eretria—but Athens, shall Athens sink, Drop into dust and die—the flower of Hellas utterly die,
Die, with the wide world spitting at Sparta, the stupid, the stander-by?
Answer me quick, what help, what hand do you stretch o'er destruction's brink?
How,—when? No care for my limbs!— there's lightning in all and some—Fresh and fit your message to bear, once lips give it birth!

O my Athens—Sparta love thee? Did Sparta respond?
Every face of her leered in a furrow of envy, mistrust, Malice,—each eye of her gave me its glitter of gratified hate!
Graveiy they turned to take counsel, to cast for excuses. I stood Quivering,—the limbs of me fretting as fire frets, an inch from dry wood:
'Persia has come, Athens asks aid, and still they debate?
Thunder, thou Zeus! Athené, are Spartans a quarry beyond Swing of thy spear? Phoibos and Artemis, clang them "Ye must!"'

No bolt launched from Olumpus! Lo, their answer at last!
'Has Persia come,—does Athens ask aid,
—may Sparta befriend?
Nowise precipitate judgment—too weighty the issue at stake!

Count we no time lost time which lags through respect to the Gods!
Ponder that precept of old, "No warfare, whatever the odds
In your favour, so long as the moon, halforbed, is unable to take Full-circle her state in the sky!" Already she rounds to it fast:
Athens must wait, patient as we—who judgment suspend.'

Athens,—except for that sparkle,—thy name, I had mouldered to ash!
That sent a blaze through my blood; off,
off and away was I back,
—Not one word to waste, one look to lose on the false and the vile!
Yet 'O Gods of my land! I cried, as each hillock and plain,
Wood and stream, I knew, I named,
rushing past them again,
'Have ye kept faith, proved mindful of honours we paid you erewhile?
Vain was the filleted victim, the fulsome libation! Too rash Love in its choice, paid you so largely service so slack!

'Oak and olive and bay,—I bid you cease to enwreath Brows made bold by your leaf! Fade at the Persian's foot,
You that, our patrons were pledged,
should never adorn a slave!
Rather I hail thee, Parnes,—trust to thy wild waste tract!
Treeless, herbless, lifeless mountain!
What matter if slacked
My speed may hardly be, for homage to crag and to cave
No deity deigns to drape with verdure?— at least I can breathe, Fear in thee no fraud from the blind, no lie from the mute!'

Such my cry as, rapid, I ran over Parnes' ridge;
Gully and gap I clambered and cleared till, sudden, a bar Jutted, a stoppage of stone against me, blocking the way.
Right! for I minded the hollow to traverse, the fissure across:
'Where I could enter, there I depart by!
Night in the fosse?
Athens to aid? Though the dive were through Erebos, thus I obey—
Out of the day dive, into the day as bravely arise! No bridge Better!—when—ha! what was it I came on, of wonders that are?

There, in the cool of a cleft, sat he—majestical Pan!
Ivy drooped wanton, kissed his head, moss cushioned his hoof:

PHEIDIPPIDES

All the great God was good in the eyes grave-kindly—the curl

Carved on the bearded cheek, amused at a mortal's awe,

As, under the human trunk, the goat-thighs grand I saw.

'Halt, Pheidippides!'—halt I did, my brain of a whirl!

'Hither to me! Why pale in my presence?' he gracious began:

'How is it,—Athens, only in Hellas, holds me aloof?

'Athens, she only, rears me no fane, makes me no feast!

Wherefore? Than I what godship to Athens more helpful of old?

Ay, and still, and forever her friend! Test Pan, trust me!

Go, bid Athens take heart, laugh Persia to scorn, have faith

In the temples and tombs! Go, say to Athens, "The Goat-God saith:

When Persia—so much as strews not the soil—is cast in the sea,

Then praise Pan who fought in the ranks with your most and least,

Goat-thigh to greaved-thigh, made one cause with the free and the bold!"

'Say Pan saith: "Let this, foreshowing the place, be the pledge!"

(Gay, the liberal hand held out this herbage I bear

—Fennel—I grasped it a-tremble with dew—whatever it bode)

'While, as for thee . . . ' But enough! He was gone. If I ran hitherto—

Be sure that, the rest of my journey, I ran no longer, but flew.

Parnes to Athens—earth no more, the air was my road:

Here am I back. Praise Pan, we stand no more on the razor's edge!

Pan for Athens, Pan for me! I too have a guerdon rare!

Then spoke Miltiades. 'And thee, best runner of Greece,

Whose limbs did duty indeed,—what gift is promised thyself?

Tell it us straightway,—Athens the mother demands of her son!"

Rosily blushed the youth: he paused: but, lifting at length

His eyes from the ground, it seemed as he gathered the rest of his strength

Into the utterance—"Pan spoke thus:
"For what thou hast done

Count on a worthy reward! Henceforth be allowed thee release

From the racer's toil, no vulgar reward in praise or in self!"

'I am bold to believe, Pan means reward
the most to my mind!

Fight I shall, with our foremost, wherever this fennel may grow,—

Pound—Pan helping us—Persia to dust, and, under the deep,

Whelm her away for ever; and then,—no
Athens to save,—

Marry a certain maid, I know keeps faith to the brave,—

Hie to my house and home: and, when my children shall creep

Close to my knees,—recount how the God was awful yet kind,

Promised their sire reward to the full—rewarding him—so!"

Unforeseeing one! Yes, he fought on the Marathon day:

So, when Persia was dust, all cried 'To Akropolis!

Run, Pheidippides, one race more! the meed is thy due!

"Athens is saved, thank Pan," go shout!'—
He flung down his shield,

Ran like fire once more: and the space
'twixt the Fennel-field

And Athens was stubble again, a field
which a fire runs through,

Till in he broke: 'Rejoice, we conquer!'—
Like wine through clay,

Joy in his blood bursting his heart, he died—the bliss!

So, to this day, when friend meets friend, the word of salute

Is still 'Rejoice!'—his word which brought rejoicing indeed.

So is Pheidippides happy for ever,—the noble strong man

Who could race like a God, bear the face of a God, whom a God loved so well;

He saw the land saved he had helped to save, and was suffered to tell

Such tidings, yet never decline, but,
gloriously as he began,

So to end gloriously—once to shout,
thereafter be mute:

'Athens is saved!'—Pheidippides dies in the shout for his meed.

HALBERT AND HOB

HERE is a thing that happened. Like wild beasts whelped, for den,

In a wild part of North England, there lived once two wild men

Inhabiting one homestead, neither a hovel nor hut,

Time out of mind their birthright: father and son, these—but—

Such a son, such a father! Most wildness by degrees

Softens away: yet, last of their line, the wildest and worse were these.

Criminals, then? Why, no: they did not murder and rob;
But, give them a word, they returned a blow—old Halbert as young Hob:
Harsh and fierce of word, rough and savage of deed,
Hated or feared the more—who knows?—the genuine wild-beast breed.

Thus were they found by the few sparse folk of the country-side;
But how fared each with other? E'en beasts couch, hide by hide,
In a growling, grugged agreement: so, father and son aye curled
The closelier up in their den because the last of their kind in the world.

Still, beast irks beast on occasion. One Christmas night of snow, Came father and son to words—such words! more cruel because the blow
To crown each word was wanting, while taunt matched gibe, and curse Competed with oath in wager, like pastime in hell,—nay, worse:
For pastime turned to earnest, as up there sprang at last
The son at the throat of the father, seized him and held him fast.

'Out of this house you go!'—(there followed a hideous oath)—
'This oven where now we bake, too hot to hold us both!
If there's snow outside, there's coolness: out with you, bide a spell
In the drift and save the sexton the charge of a parish shell!'

Now, the old trunk was tough, was solid as stump of oak Untouched at the core by a thousand years: much less had its seventy broke
One whipcord nerve in the muscly mass from neck to shoulder-blade
Of the mountainous man, whereon his child's rash hand like a feather weighed.

Nevertheless at once did the mammoth shut his eyes,
Drop chin to breast, drop hands to sides, stand stiffened—arms and thighs
All of a piece—struck mute, much as a sentry stands, Patient to take the enemy's fire: his captain so commands.

Whereat the son's wrath flew to fury at such sheer scorn
Of his puny strength by the giant eld thus acting the babe new-born:
And 'Neither will this turn serve!' yelled he. 'Out with you! Trundle, log!
If you cannot tramp and trudge like a man, try all-fours like a dog!'

Still the old man stood mute. So, log-wise,—down to floor Pulled from his fireside place, dragged on from hearth to door,— Was he pushed, a very log, staircase along, until
A certain turn in the steps was reached, a yard from the house-door-sill.

Then the father opened eyes—each spark of their rage extinct,— Temples, late black, dead-blanch'd,—right-hand with left-hand linked,—
He faced his son submissive; when slow the accents came,
They were strangely mild though his son's rash hand on his neck lay all the same.

'Hob, on just such a night of a Christmas long ago,
For such a cause, with such a gesture, did I drag—so—
My father down thus far: but, softening here, I heard A voice in my heart, and stopped: you wait for an outer word.

'For your own sake, not mine, soften you too! Untrod Leave this last step we reach, nor brave the finger of God!
I dared not pass its lifting: I did well. I nor blame Nor praise you. I stopped here: and, Hob, do you the same!'

Straightway the son relaxed his hold of the father's throat.
They mounted, side by side, to the room again: no note Took either of each, no sign made each to either: last
As first, in absolute silence, their Christmas-night they passed.

At dawn, the father sate on, dead, in the self-same place,
With an outburst blackening still the old bad fighting-face;
But the son crouched all a-tremble like any lamb new-yeaned.

When he went to the burial, someone's staff he borrowed—tottered and leaned.
But his lips were loose, not locked,—kept muttering, mumbling. 'There!
At his cursing and swearing!' the youngsters cried: but the elders thought 'In prayer.'
A boy threw stones: he picked them up and stored them in his vest.

HALBERT AND HOB

So tottered, muttered, mumbled he, till he died, perhaps found rest.
 'Is there a reason in nature for these hard hearts?' O Lear,
 That a reason out of nature must turn them soft, seems clear!

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

'THEY tell me, your carpenters,' quoth I to my friend the Russ,
 'Make a simple hatchet serve as a tool-box serves with us.
 Arm but each man with his axe, 'tis a hammer and saw and plane
 And chisel, and—what know I else? We should imitate in vain
 The mastery wherewithal, by a flourish of just the adze,
 He cleaves, clamps, dovetails in,—no need of our nails and brads,—
 The manageable pine: 'tis said he could shave himself
 With the axe,—so all adroit, now a giant and now an elf, Does he work and play at once!'
 Quoth my friend the Russ to me,
 'Ay, that and more beside on occasion! It scarce may be
 You never heard tell a tale told children, time out of mind,
 By father and mother and nurse, for a moral that's behind,
 Which children quickly seize. If the incident happened at all,
 We place it in Peter's time when hearts were great not small, Germanized, Frenchified. I wager 'tis old to you
 As the story of Adam and Eve, and possibly quite as true.'

In the deep of our land, 'tis said, a village from out the woods Emerged on the great main-road 'twixt two great solitudes.
 Through forestry right and left, black verst and verst of pine,
 From village to village runs the road's long wide bare line.
 Clearance and clearance break the else-unconquered growth
 Of pine and all that breeds and broods there, leaving loth
 Man's inch of masterdom,—spot of life, spirit of fire,—
 To star the dark and dread, lest right and rule expire
 Throughout the monstrous wild, a-hungry to resume
 Its ancient sway, suck back the world into its womb:

Defrauded by man's craft which clove from North to South
 This highway broad and straight e'en from the Neva's mouth
 To Moscow's gates of gold. So, spot of life and spirit
 Of fire aforesaid, burn, each village death-begirt
 By wall and wall of pine—unprobed undreamed abyss.
 Early one winter morn, in such a village as this,
 Snow-whitened everywhere except the middle road
 Ice-roughed by track of sledge, there worked by his abode
 Ivàn Ivànovitch, the carpenter, employed On a huge shipmast trunk; his axe now trimmed and toyed
 With branch and twig, and now some chop athwart the bole
 Changed bole to billets, bared at once the sap and soul.
 About him, watched the work his neighbours sheepskin-clad;
 Each bearded mouth puffed steam, each grey eye twinkled glad To see the sturdy arm which, never stopping play, Proved strong man's blood still boils, freeze winter as he may.
 Sudden, a burst of bells. Out of the road, on edge Of the hamlet—horse's hoofs galloping.
 'How, a sledge?
 What's here?' cried all as—in, up to the open space,
 Workyard and market-ground, folk's common meeting-place,— Stumbled on, till he fell, in one last bound for life,
 A horse: and, at his heels, a sledge held —
 'Dmitri's wife!
 Back without Dmitri too! and children — where are they?
 Only a frozen corpse!'

They drew it forth: then—'Nay, Not dead, though like to die! Gone hence a month ago:
 Home again, this rough jaunt—alone through night and snow—
 What can the cause be? Hark—Droug, old horse, how he groans:
 His day's done! Chafe away, keep chafing, for she moans:
 She's coming to! Give here: see, mother-kin, your friends!
 Cheer up, all safe at home! Warm inside makes amends
 For outside cold,—sup quick! Don't look as we were bears!
 What is it startles you? What strange adventure stares

Up at us in your face? You know friends —which is which?
I'm Vassili, he's Sergei, Ivàn Ivànovitch
...

At the word, the woman's eyes, slow-wandering till they neared
The blue eyes o'er the bush of honey-coloured beard,
Took in full light and sense and—torn to rags, some dream
Which hid the naked truth—O loud and long the scream
She gave, as if all power of voice within her throat
Poured itself wild away to waste in one dread note!
Then followed gasps and sobs, and then the steady flow
Of kindly tears: the brain was saved, a man might know.
Down fell her face upon the good friend's propping knee;
His broad hands smoothed her head, as fain to brush it free
From fancies, swarms that stung like bees unhived. He soothed—
'Loukèria, Louscha!'—still he, fondling, smoothed and smoothed.
At last her lips formed speech.

'Ivàn, dear—you indeed!
You, just the same dear you! While I...
O intercede,
Sweet Mother, with thy Son Almighty—let his might Bring yesterday once more, undo all done last night!
But this time yesterday, Ivàn, I sat like you,
A child on either knee, and, dearer than the two,
A babe inside my arms, close to my heart
—that's lost
In morsels o'er the snow! Father, Son,
Holy Ghost,
Cannot you bring again my blessed yester-
day?'

When no more tears would flow, she told her tale: this way.

'Maybe, a month ago,—was it not?— news came here,
They wanted, deeper down, good workmen fit to rear
A church and roof it in. "We'll go," my husband said:
"None understands like me to melt and mould their lead."
So, friends here helped us off—Ivàn, dear, you the first!
How gay we jingled forth, all five—(my heart will burst)—
While Dmitri shook the reins, urged Droug upon his track!

'Well, soon the month ran out, we just were coming back,
When yesterday—behold, the village was on fire!
Fire ran from house to house. What help,
as, nigh and nigher,
The flames came furious? "Haste," cried
Dmitri, "men must do
The little good man may: to sledge and in
with you,
You and our three! We check the fire by laying flat
Each building in its path,—I needs must stay for that,—
But you... no time for talk! Wrap round you every rug,
Cover the couple close,—you'll have the babe to hug.
No care to guide old Droug, he knows his way, by guess,
Once start him on the road: but chirrup, none the less!
The snow lies glib as glass and hard as steel, and soon
You'll have rise, fine and full, a marvel of a moon.
Hold straight up, all the same, this lighted twist of pitch!
Once home and with our friend Ivàn Ivànovitch,
All's safe: I have my pay in pouch, all's right with me,
So I but find as safe you and our precious
three!
Off, Droug!"—because the flames had reached us, and the men Shouted "But lend a hand, Dmitri—as good as ten!"

'So, in we bundled—I, and those God gave me once;
Old Droug, that's stiff at first, seemed youthful for the nonce:
He understood the case, galloping straight ahead.
Out came the moon: my twist soon dwindled, feebly red
In that unnatural day—yes, daylight, bred
between Moon-light and snow-light, lamped those grotto-depths which screen Such devils from God's eye. Ah, pines, how straight you grow Nor bend one pitying branch, true breed of brutal snow!
Some undergrowth had served to keep the devils blind
While we escaped outside their border!

'Was that—wind?
Anyhow, Droug starts, stops, back go his ears, he snuffs,
Snorts,—never such a snort! then plunges, knows the sough's

IVAN IVANOVITCH

Only the wind: yet, no—our breath goes up too straight!
Still the low sound,—less low, loud, louder, at a rate
There's no mistaking more! Shall I lean out—look—learn
The truth whatever it be? Pad, pad! At last, I turn—

'Tis the regular pad of the wolves in pursuit of the life in the sledge!
An army they are: close-packed they press like the thrust of a wedge:
They increase as they hunt: for I see, through the pine-trunks ranged each
side,
Slip forth new fiend and fiend, make wider and still more wide
The four-footed steady advance. The foremost—none may pass:
They are elders and lead the line, eye and eye—green-glowing brass!
But a long way distant still. Droug, save us! He does his best:
Yet they gain on us, gain, till they reach,
—one reaches . . . How utter the
rest?

O that Satan-faced first of the band! How he lolls out the length of his tongue,
How he laughs and lets gleam his white teeth! He is on me, his paws pry
among
The wraps and the rugs! O my pair, my twin-pigeons, lie still and seem dead!
Stepàn, he shall never have you for a meal,
—here's your mother instead!
No, he will not be counselled—must cry, poor Stiòpka, so foolish! though first
Of my boy-brood, he was not the best:
nay, neighbours have called him the
worst:

He was puny, an undersized slip,—a darling to me, all the same!
But little there was to be praised in the boy, and a plenty to blame.

I loved him with heart and soul, yes—but,
deal him a blow for a fault,
He would sulk for whole days. "Foolish boy! lie still or the villain will vault, Will snatch you from over my head!" No use! he cries, screams,—who can hold

Fast a boy in a frenzy of fear! It follows—
as I foretold!
The Satan-face snatched and snapped: I tugged, I tore—and then

His brother too needs must shriek! If one must go, 'tis men

The Tsar needs, so we hear, not ailing boys! Perhaps

My hands relaxed their grasp, got tangled in the wraps:

God, he was gone! I looked: there tumbled the cursed crew,

Each fighting for a share: too busy to pursue!

That's so far gain at least: Droug, gallop
another verst,

Or two, or three—God sends we beat them, arrive the first!

A mother who boasts two boys was ever accounted rich:

Some have not a boy: some have, but lose him,—God knows which Is worse: how pitiful to see your weakling

pine

And pale and pass away! Strong brats, this pair of mine!

'O misery! for while I settle to what near seems

Content, I am 'ware again of the tramp, and again there gleams—

Point and point—the line, eyes, levelled green brassy fire!

So soon is resumed your chase? Will nothing appease, nought tire

The furies? And yet I think—I am certain the race is slack,

And the numbers are nothing like. Not a quarter of the pack!

Feasters and those full-fed are staying behind . . . Ah why?

We'll sorrow for that too soon! Now,— gallop, reach home, and cìe,

Nor ever again leave house, to trust our life in the trap

For life—we call a sledge! Teriòscha, in my lap!

Yes, I'll lie down upon you, tight-tie you with the strings

Here—of my heart! No fear, this time, your mother flings . . .

Flings? I flung? Never! but think!—a woman, after all

Contending with a wolf! Save you I must and shall,

Terentii!

'How now? What, you still head
the race,

Your eyes and tongue and teeth crave fresh food, Satan-face?

There and there! Plain I struck green fire out! Flash again?

All a poor fist can do to damage eyes proves vain!

My fist—why not crunch that? He is wanton for . . . O God,

Why give this wolf his taste? Common wolves scrape and prod

The earth till out they scratch some corpse —mere putrid flesh!

Why must this glutton leave the faded, choose the fresh?

Terentii—God, feel!—his neck keeps fast thy bag

Of holy things, saints' bones, this Satanface will drag

Forth, and devour along with him, our Pope declared
The relics were to save from danger!

‘Spurned, not spared!
’Twas through my arms, crossed arms,
he—nuzzling now with snout,
Now ripping, tooth and claw—plucked,
pulled Terentii out,
A prize indeed! I saw—how could I else but see?—
My precious one—I bit to hold back—pulled from me!
Up came the others, fell to dancing—did the imps!—
Skipped as they scampered round. There’s one is grey, and limps:
Who knows but old bad Märpha,—she always owed me spite
And envied me my births,—skulks out of doors at night
And turns into a wolf, and joins the sister-
hood,
And laps the youthful life, then slinks from out the wood,
Squats down at door by dawn, spins there demure as erst
—No strength, old crone,—not she!—to crawl forth half a verst!

‘Well, I escaped with one: ’twixt one and none there lies
The space ’twixt heaven and hell. And see, a rose-light dyes
The endmost snow: ’tis dawn, ’tis day, ’tis safe at home!
We have outwitted you! Ay, monsters, snarl and foam,
Fight each the other fiend, disputing for a share,— Forgetful, in your greed, our finest off we
bear,
Tough Droug and I,—my babe, my boy that shall be man,
My man that shall be more, do all a hunter
can
To trace and follow and find and catch and crucify Wolves, wolfkins, all your crew! A thousand deaths shall die
The whimperingest cub that ever squeezed the teat!
“Take that!” we’ll stab you with,—“the tenderness we met
When, wretches, you danced round—not this, thank God—not this!
Hellhounds, we baulk you!”

‘But—Ah, God above!—Bliss, bliss—Not the band, no! And yet—yes, for Droug knows him! One—
This only of them all has said “She saves a son!”

His fellows disbelieve such luck: but he believes,
He lets them pick the bones, laugh at him
in their sleeves:
He’s off and after us,—one speck, one spot, one ball
Grows bigger, bound on bound,—one wolf as good as all!
Oh but I know the trick! Have at the snaky tongue!
That’s the right way with wolves! Go, tell your mates I wrung
The panting morsel out, left you to howl your worst!
Now for it—now! Ah me! I know him—thrice-accurst
Satan-face,—him to the end my foe!

‘All fight’s in vain:
This time the green brass points pierce to my very brain.
I fall—fall as I ought—quite on the babe
I guard:
I overspread with flesh the whole of him.
Too hard
To die this way, torn piecemeal? Move hence? Not I—one inch!
Gnaw through me, through and through:
flat thus I lie nor flinch!
O God, the feel of the fang furrowing my shoulder!—see
It grinds—it grates the bone. O Kirill under me,
Could I do more? Besides he knew wolf’s way to win:
I clung, closed round like wax: yet in he wedged and in,
Past my neck, past my breasts, my heart, until . . . how feels
The onion-bulb your knife parts, pushing through its peels,
Till out you scoop its clove wherein lie stalk and leaf
And bloom and seed unborn?

‘That slew me: yes, in brief,
I died then, dead I lay doubtlessly till Droug stopped
Here, I suppose. I come to life, I find me
propped
Thus—how or when or why,—I know not.
Tell me, friends,
All was a dream: laugh quick and say the nightmare ends!
Soon I shall find my house: ’tis over there:
in proof,
Save for that chimney heaped with snow,
you’d see the roof
Which holds my three—my two—my one —not one?

‘Life’s mixed
With misery, yet we live—must live. The Satan fixed

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

His face on mine so fast, I took its print as pitch Takes what it cools beneath. Ivàn Ivànovitch,
'Tis you unhardened me, you thaw, disperse
the thing!
Only keep looking kind, the horror will not cling.
Your face smooths fast away each print of Satan. Tears
—What good they do! Life's sweet, and all its after-years,
Ivàn Ivànovitch, I owe you! Yours am I!
May God reward you, dear!

Down she sank. Solemnly Ivàn rose, raised his axe,—for fitly, as she knelt,
Her head lay: well-apart, each side, her arms hung,—dealt Lightning-swift thunder-strong one blow
—no need of more!
Headless she knelt on still; that pine was sound at core (Neighbours were used to say)—cast-iron-kernelled—which Taxed for a second stroke Ivàn Ivànovitch.

The man was scant of words as strokes.
'It had to be:
I could no other: God it was bade "Act
for me!"'
Then stooping, peering round—what is it now he lacks?
A proper strip of bark wherewith to wipe his axe.
Which done, he turns, goes in, closes the door behind.
The others mute remain, watching the blood-snake wind
Into a hiding-place among the splinterheaps.

At length, still mute, all move: one lifts,— from where it steeps Redder each ruddy rag of pine,—the head:
two more
Take up the dripping body: then, mute still as before,
Move in a sort of march, march on till marching ends
Opposite to the church; where halting,— who suspends,
By its long hair, the thing, deposits in its
place
The piteous head: once more the body shows no trace
Of harm done: there lies whole the Louscha, maid and wife
And mother, loved until this latest of her
life.
Then all sit on the bank of snow which bounds a space
Kept free before the porch for judgment:
just the place!

Presently all the souls, man, woman, child, which make
The village up, are found assembling for the sake
Of what is to be done. The very Jews are
there:
A Gipsy-troop, though bound with horses for the Fair, Squats with the rest. Each heart with its conception seethes
And simmers, but no tongue speaks: one may say,—none breathes.

Anon from out the church totters the Pope
—the priest—
Hardly alive, so old, a hundred years at least.
With him, the Commune's head, a hoary senior too,
Stàrosta, that's his style,—like Equity
Judge with you,— Natural Jurisconsult: then, fenced about with furs, Pomeschik,—Lord of the Land, who wields—and none demurs—
A power of life and death. They stoop, survey the corpse.

Then, straightened on his staff, the Stàrosta—the thorp's Sagaciousest old man—hears what you just have heard,
From Droug's first inrush, all, up to Ivàn's last word
'God bade me act for him: I dared not disobey!'

Silence—the Pomeschik broke with 'A wild wrong way
Of righting wrong—if wrong there were,
such wrath to rouse!
Why was not law observed? What article allows Whoso may please to play the judge, and,
judgment dealt,
Play executioner, as promptly as we pelt
To death, without appeal, the vermin whose sole fault
Has been—it dared to leave the darkness of its vault, Intrude upon our day! Too sudden and too rash!
What was this woman's crime? Suppose the church should crash Down where I stand, your lord: bound are my serfs to dare
Their utmost that I 'scape: yet, if the crashing scare
My children,—as you are,—if sons fly, one
and all,
Leave father to his fate,—poor cowards though I call
The runaways, I pause before I claim their
life

Because they prized it more than mine. I would each wife Died for her husband's sake, each son to save his sire:

'Tis glory, I applaud—scarce duty, I require.

Ivan Ivanovitch has done a deed that's named

Murder by law and me: who doubts, may speak unblamed!

All turned to the old Pope. 'Ay, children,
I am old—

How old, myself have got to know no longer. Rolled

Quite round, my orb of life, from infancy to age,

Seems passing back again to youth. A certain stage

At least I reach, or dream I reach, where I discern

Truer truths, laws behold more lawlike than we learn

When first we set our foot to tread the course I trod

With man to guide my steps: who leads me now is God.

"Your young men shall see visions:" and in my youth I saw

And paid obedience to man's visionary
law:

"Your old men shall dream dreams:" and,
in my age, a hand

Conducts me through the cloud round law to where I stand

Firm on its base,—know cause, who, before, knew effect.

'The world lies under me: and nowhere I detect

So great a gift as this—God's own—of human life.

"Shall the dead praise thee?" No! "The whole live world is rife,

God, with thy glory," rather! Life then,
God's best of gifts,

For what shall man exchange? For life—when so he shifts

The weight and turns the scale, lets life for life restore

God's balance, sacrifice the less to gain the
more,

Substitute—for low life, another's or his
own—

Life large and liker God's who gave it:
thus alone

May life extinguish life that life may trulier
be!

How low this law descends on earth, is not
for me

To trace: complexed becomes the simple, intricate

The plain, when I pursue law's winding.
'Tis the straight

Outflow of law I know and name: to law, the fount

Fresh from God's footstool, friends, follow while I remount.

'A mother bears a child: perfection is complete

So far in such a birth. Enabled to repeat
The miracle of life,—herself was born so

just
A type of womankind, that God sees fit to
trust

Her with the holy task of giving life in turn.

Crowned by this crowning pride,—how say you, should she spurn

Regality—discrowned, unchilded, by her
choice

Of barrenness exchanged for fruit which made rejoice

Creation, though life's self were lost in giving birth

To life more fresh and fit to glorify God's
earth?

How say you, should the hand God trusted with life's torch

Kindled to light the world—aware of sparks that scorch,

Let fall the same? Forsooth, her flesh a fire-flake stings:

The mother drops the child! Among what monstrous things

Shall she be classed? Because of motherhood, each male

Yields to his partner place, sinks proudly in the scale:

His strength owned weakness, wit—folly,
and courage—fear,

Beside the female proved male's mistress
—only here.

The fox-dam, hunger-pined, will slay the felon sire

Who dares assault her whelp: the beaver, stretched on fire,

Will die without a groan: no pang avails to wrest

Her young from where they hide—her sanctuary breast.

What's here then? Answer me, thou dead one, as, I trow,

Standing at God's own bar, he bids thee answer now!

Thrice crowned wast thou—each crown of pride, a child—thy charge!

Where are they? Lost? Enough: no need that thou enlarge

On how or why the loss: life left to utter
"lost"

Condemns itself beyond appeal. The soldier's post

Guards from the foe's attack the camp he sentinels:

That he no traitor proved, this and this only tells—

IVAN IVANOVITCH

Over the corpse of him trod foe to foe's
success.

Yet—one by one thy crowns torn from thee—thou no less

To scare the world, shame God,—livedst!
I hold He saw

The unexampled sin, ordained the novel
law,

Whereof first instrument was first intelligence

Found loyal here. I hold that, failing human sense,

The very earth had oped, sky fallen, to efface

Humanity's new wrong, motherhood's first disgrace.

Earth oped not, neither fell the sky, for prompt was found

A man and man enough, head-sober and heart-sound,

Ready to hear God's voice, resolute to obey.

Ivan Ivanovitch, I hold, has done, this day,
No otherwise than did, in ages long ago,
Moses when he made known the purport of that flow

Of fire athwart the law's twain-tables! I proclaim

Ivan Ivanovitch God's servant!

At which name

Uprose that creepy whisper from out the crowd, is wont

To swell and surge and sink when fellow-men confront

A punishment that falls on fellow flesh and blood,

Appallingly beheld—shudderingly understood,

No less, to be the right, the just, the merciful.

'God's servant!' hissed the crowd.

When that Amen grew dull

And died away and left acquittal plain adjudged,

'Amen!' last sighed the lord. 'There's none shall say I grudged

Escape from punishment in such a novel
case.

Deferring to old age and holy life,—be
grace

Granted! say I. No less, scruples might shake a sense

Firmer than I boast mine. Law's law, and evidence

Of breach therein lies plain,—blood-red-bright,—all may see!

Yet all absolve the deed: absolved the deed
must be!

'And next—as mercy rules the hour—
methinks 'twere well

You signify forthwith its sentence, and dispel

The doubts and fears, I judge, which busy now the head

Law puts a halter round—a halo—you,
instead!

Ivan Ivanovitch—what think you he expects

Will follow from his feat? Go, tell him—law protects

Murder, for once: no need he longer keep
behind

The Sacred Pictures—where skulks Innocence enshrined,

Or I missay! Go, some! You others, haste and hide

The dismal object there: get done, what-e'er betide!

So, while the youngers raised the corpse,
the elders trooped

Silently to the house: where halting, someone stooped,

Listened beside the door; all there was silent too.

Then they held counsel; then pushed door and, passing through,

Stood in the murderer's presence.
Ivan Ivanovitch

Knelt, building on the floor that Kremlin rare and rich

He deftly cut and carved on lazy winter
nights.

Some five young faces watched, breathlessly, as, to rights,

Piece upon piece, he reared the fabric nigh
complete.

Stëscha, Ivan's old mother, sat spinning by the heat

Of the oven where his wife Kàtia stood baking bread.

Ivan's self, as he turned his honey-coloured head,

Was just in act to drop, 'twixt fir-cones,— each a dome,—

The scooped-out yellow gourd presumably the home

Of Kolokol the Big: the bell, therein to hitch,

—An acorn-cup—was ready: Ivan Ivànovitch

Turned with it in his mouth.

They told him he was free

As air to walk abroad. 'How otherwise?' asked he.

TRAY

SING me a hero! Quench my thirst
Of soul, ye bards!

Quoth Bard the first:

'Sir Olaf, the good knight, did don

His helm and eke his habergeon . . .'

Sir Olaf and his bard—!

'That sin-scathed brow' (quoth Bard the second)

'That eye wide ope as though Fate beckoned

My hero to some steep, beneath
Which precipice smiled tempting death...'
You too without your host have reckoned!

'A beggar-child' (let's hear this third!)
'Sat on a quay's edge: like a bird
Sang to herself at careless play,
And fell into the stream. "Dismay!
Help, you the standers-by!" None stirred.

'Bystanders reason, think of wives
And children ere they risk their lives.
Over the balustrade has bounced
A mere instinctive dog, and pounced Plumb on the prize. "How well he dives!

"Up he comes with the child, see, tight
In mouth, alive too, clutched from quite A depth of ten feet—twelve, I bet!
Good dog! What, off again? There's yet Another child to save? All right!

"How strange we saw no other fall!
It's instinct in the animal.
Good dog! But he's a long while under:
If he got drowned I should not wonder—Strong current, that against the wall!

"Here he comes, holds in mouth this time —What may the thing be? Well, that's prime!
Now, did you ever? Reason reigns
In man alone, since all Tray's pains Have fished—the child's doll from the slime!"

'And so, amid the laughter gay, Trotted my hero off,—old Tray,—
Till somebody, prerogated
With reason, reasoned: "Why he dived,
His brain would show us, I should say.

"John, go and catch—or, if needs be,
Purchase—that animal for me!
By vivisection, at expense
Of half-an-hour and eighteenpence,
How brain secretes dog's soul, we'll see!"

NED BRATTS

'Twas Bedford Special Assize, one daft Midsummer's Day:
A broiling blasting June,—was never its like, men say.
Corn stood sheaf-ripe already, and trees looked yellow as that;
Ponds drained dust-dry, the cattle lay foaming around each flat.

Inside town, dogs went mad, and folk kept bibbing beer

While the parsons prayed for rain. 'Twas horrible, yes—but queer:

Queer—for the sun laughed gay, yet nobody moved a hand

To work one stroke at his trade: as given to understand

That all was come to a stop, work and such worldly ways,

And the world's old self about to end in a merry blaze.

Midsummer's Day moreover was the first of Bedford Fair,

With Bedford Town's tag-rag and bobtail a-bowing there.

But the Court House, Quality crammed:
through doors ope, windows wide,
High on the Bench you saw sit Lordships side by side.

There frowned Chief Justice Jukes, fumed learned Brother Small,

And fretted their fellow Judge: like threshers, one and all,

Of a reek with laying down the law in a furnace. Why?

Because their lungs breathed flame—the regular crowd forbye—

From gentry pouring in—quite a nosegay, to be sure!

How else could they pass the time, six mortal hours endure

Till night should extinguish day, when matters might haply mend?

Meanwhile no bad resource was—watching begin and end

Some trial for life and death, in a brisk five minutes' space,

And betting which knave would 'scape, which hang, from his sort of face.

So, their Lordships toiled and moiled, and a deal of work was done

(I warrant) to justify the mirth of the crazy
sun

As this and t'other lout, struck dumb at the sudden show

Of red robes and white wigs, boggled nor answered 'Boh!'

When asked why he, Tom Styles, should not—because Jack Nokes

Had stolen the horse—be hanged: for Judges must have their jokes,

And louts must make allowance—let's say, for some blue fly

Which punctured a dewy scalp where the frizzles stuck awry—

Else Tom had fleeced scot-free, so nearly over and done

Was the main of the job. Full-measure, the gentles enjoyed their fun,

As a twenty-five were tried, rank puritans caught at prayer

NED BRATTS

In a cow-house and laid by the heels,— have at 'em, devil may care!—
And ten were prescribed the whip, and ten a brand on the cheek,
And five a slit of the nose—just leaving enough to tweak.

Well, things at jolly high-tide, amusement steeped in fire,
While noon smote fierce the roof's red tiles to heart's desire,
The Court a-simmer with smoke, one ferment of oozy flesh,
One spirituous humming musk mounting until its mesh Entoiled all heads in a fluster, and Serjeant Postlethwayte
—Dashing the wig oblique as he mopped his oily pate—
Cried 'Silence, or I grow grease! No loophole lets in air?
Jurymen,—Guilty, Death! Gainsay me if you dare!'
—Things at this pitch, I say,—what hubbub without the doors?
What laughs, shrieks, hoots and yells,
what rudest of uproars?

Bounce through the barrier throng a bulk comes rolling vast!
Thumps, kicks,—no manner of use!— spite of them rolls at last
Into the midst a ball which, bursting, brings to view
Publican Black Ned Bratts and Tabby his big wife too:
Both in a muck-sweat, both . . . were never such eyes uplift
At the sight of yawning hell, such nostrils
—snouts that sniffed
Sulphur, such mouths a-gape ready to swallow flame!
Horrid, hideous, frank fiend-faces! yet,
all the same,
Mixed with a certain . . . eh? how shall I dare style—mirth
The desperate grin of the guess that, could they break from earth, Heaven was above, and hell might rage in impotence
Below the saved, the saved!

'Confound you! (no offence!)
Out of our way,—push, wife! Yonder their Worship be!'
Ned Bratts has reached the bar, and 'Hey, my Lords,' roars he,
'A Jury of life and death, Judges the prime of the land,
Constables, javelineers,—all met, if I understand,
To decide so knotty a point as whether
'twas Jack or Joan

Robbed the henroost, pinched the pig, hit the King's Arms with a stone, Dropped the baby down the well, left the tithesman in the lurch,
Or, three whole Sundays running, not once attended church!
What a pother—do these deserve the parish-stocks or whip,
More or less brow to brand, much or little nose to snip,—
When, in our Public, plain stand we—that's we stand here,
I and my Tab, brass-bold, brick-built of beef and beer,
—Do not we, slut? Step forth and show your beauty, jade!
Wife of my bosom—that's the word now!
What a trade
We drove! None said us nay: nobody loved his life
So little as wag a tongue against us,—did they, wife?
Yet they knew us all the while, in their hearts, for what we are —Worst couple, rogue and quean, un-hanged—search near and far!
Eh, Tab? The pedlar, now—o'er his nog-gin—who warned a mate
To cut and run, nor risk his pack where its loss of weight
Was the least to dread,—aha, how we two laughed a-good
As, stealing round the midden, he came on where I stood
With billet poised and raised,—you, ready with the rope,— Ah, but that's past, that's sin repented of,
we hope!
Men knew us for that same, yet safe and sound stood we!
The lily-livered knaves knew too (I've balked a d—)
Our keeping the "Pied Bull" was just a mere pretence:
Too slow the pounds make food, drink, lodging, from out the pence!
There's not a stoppage to travel has chanced, this ten long year, No break into hall or grange, no lifting of nag or steer,
Not a single roguery, from the clipping of a purse
To the cutting of a throat, but paid us toll.
Od's curse!
When Gipsy Smouch made bold to cheat us of our due,
—Eh, Tab? the Squire's strong-box we helped the rascal to—
I think he pulled a face, next Sessions' swinging-time!
He danced the jig that needs no floor,— and, here's the prime,
'Twas Scroggs that houghed the mare!
Ay, those were busy days!

'Well, there we flourished brave, like scripture-trees called bays, Faring high, drinking hard, in money up to head
—Not to say, boots and shoes, when . . .
Zounds, I nearly said—
Lord, to unlearn one's language! How shall we labour, wife?
Have you, fast hold, the Book? Grasp, grip it, for your life!
See, sirs, here's life, salvation! Here's—hold but out my breath—
When did I speak so long without once swearing? 'Sdeath,
No, nor unhelped by ale since man and boy! And yet
All yesterday I had to keep my whistle wet
While reading Tab this Book: book? don't say "book"—they're plays, Songs, ballads and the like: here's no such strawy blaze,
But sky wide ope, sun, moon, and seven stars out full-flare!
Tab, help and tell! I'm hoarse. A mug or—no, a prayer!
Dip for one out of the Book! Who wrote it in the Jail
—He plied his pen unhelped by beer, sirs, I'll be bail!

'I've got my second wind. In trundles she—that's Tab.
"Why, Gammer, what's come now, that—bobbing like a crab
On Yule-tide bowl—your head's a-work and both your eyes Break loose? Afeard, you fool? As if the dead can rise!
Say—Bagman Dick was found last May with fuddling-cap Stuffed in his mouth: to choke's a natural mishap!"
"Gaffer, be—blessed," cries she, "and Bagman Dick as well!
I, you, and he are damned: this Public is our hell:
We live in fire: live coals don't feel!—once quenched, they learn—Cinders do, to what dust they moulder while they burn!"

"If you don't speak straight out," says I—belike I swore—
"A knobstick, well you know the taste of, shall, once more, Teach you to talk, my maid!" She ups with such a face, Heart sunk inside me. "Well, pad on, my prate-apace!"

"I've been about those laces we need for . . . never mind!

If henceforth they tie hands, 'tis mine they'll have to bind.
You know who makes them best—the Tinker in our cage,
Pulled-up for gospelling, twelve years ago: no age
To try another trade,—yet, so he scorned to take Money he did not earn, he taught himself the make
Of laces, tagged and tough—Dick Bagman found them so!
Good customers were we! Well, last week, you must know
His girl,—the blind young chit, who hawks about his wares,—
She takes it in her head to come no more—such airs
These hussies have! Yet, since we need a stoutish lace,—
'I'll to the jail-bird father, abuse her to his face!' So, first I filled a jug to give me heart, and then,
Primed to the proper pitch, I posted to their den—Patmore—they style their prison! I tip the turnkey, catch
My heart up, fix my face, and fearless lift the latch—
Both arms a-kimbo, in bounce with a good round oath Ready for rapping out: no 'Lawks' nor 'By my troth!'

"There sat my man, the father. He looked up: what one feels When heart that leapt to mouth drops down again to heels!
He raised his hand . . . Hast seen, when drinking out the night,
And in, the day, earth grow another something quite Under the sun's first stare? I stood a very stone.

"'Woman!' (a fiery tear he put in every tone),
'How should my child frequent your house where lust is sport,
Violence—trade? Too true! I trust no vague report.
Her angel's hand, which stops the sight of sin, leaves clear
The other gate of sense, lets outrage through the ear.
What has she heard!—which, heard shall never be again.
Better lack food than feast, a Dives in the—wain
Or reign or train—of Charles!' (His language was not ours:
'Tis my belief, God spoke: no tinker has such powers.)

NED BRATTS

'Bread, only bread they bring—my laces:
if we broke
Your lump of leavened sin, the loaf's first crumb would choke!'

"Down on my marrow-bones! Then all at once rose he:
His brown hair burst a-spread, his eyes were suns to see:
Up went his hands: 'Through flesh, I reach, I read thy soul!
So may some stricken tree look blasted,
bough and bole,
Champed by the fire-tooth, charred without, and yet, thrice-bound With deriment about, within may life be
found,
A prised power to branch and blossom
as before,
Could but the gardener cleave the cloister,
reach the core,
Loosen the vital sap: yet where shall help be found?
Who says "How save it?"—nor "Why cumbers it the ground?"
Woman, that tree art thou! All sloughed about with scurf,
Thy stag-horns fright the sky, thy snake-roots sting the turf!
Drunkness, wantonness, theft, murder
gnash and gnarl
Thine outward, case thy soul with coating like the marle
Satan stamps flat upon each head beneath his hoof!
And how deliver such? The strong men keep aloof,
Lover and friend stand far, the mocking ones pass by,
Tophet gapes wide for prey: lost soul,
despair and die!
What then? "Look unto me and be ye saved!" saith God:
"I strike the rock, outtreats the life-stream at my rod!
Be your sins scarlet, wool shall they seem like,—although
As crimson red, yet turn white as the driven
snow!"

"There, there, there! All I seem to somehow understand
Is—that, if I reached home, 'twas through the guiding hand
Of his blind girl which led and led me through the streets
And out of town and up to door again.
What greets
First thing my eye, as limbs recover from their swoon?
A book—this Book she gave at parting.
'Father's boon—
The Book he wrote: it reads as if he spoke
himself;

He cannot preach in bonds, so,—take it down from shelf
When you want counsel,—think you hear his very voice!'

"Wicked dear Husband, first despair and then rejoice!
Dear wicked Husband, waste no tick of moment more,
Be saved like me, bald trunk! There's greenness yet at core, Sap under slough! Read, read!"

'Let me take breath, my lords!
I'd like to know, are these—hers, mine, or Bunyan's words?
I'm 'wildered—scarce with drink,—nowise with drink alone!
You'll say, with heat: but heat's no stuff to split a stone
Like this black boulder—this flint heart of mine: the Book—
That dealt the crashing blow! Sirs, here's the fist that shook His beard till Wrestler Jem howled like a just-lugged bear!
You had brained me with a feather: at once I grew aware Christian was meant for me. A burden at your back,
Good Master Christmas? Nay,—yours was that Joseph's sack,
—Or whose it was,—which held the cup,
—compared with mine!
Robbery loads my loins, perjury cracks
my chine,
Adultery . . . nay, Tab, you pitched me as I flung!
One word, I'll up with fist . . . No, sweet spouse, hold your tongue!

'I'm hasting to the end. The Book, sir—take and read!
You have my history in a nutshell,—ay,
indeed!
It must off, my burden! See,—slack straps and into pit,
Roll, reach the bottom, rest, rot there—a plague on it!
For a mountain's sure to fall and bury Bedford Town,
"Destruction"—that's the name, and fire shall burn it down!
O'scape the wrath in time! Time's now, if not too late.
How can I pilgrimage up to the wicket-
gate?
Next comes Despond the slough: not that I fear to pull
Through mud, and dry my clothes at brave
House Beautiful—
But it's late in the day, I reckon: had I left years ago
Town, wife, and children dear . . . Well, Christmas did, you know!—

Soon I had met in the valley and tried my cudgel's strength
 On the enemy horned and winged, astraddle across its length!
 Have at his horns, thwack—thwack: they snap, see! Hoof and hoof—
 Bang, break the fetlock-bones! For love's sake, keep aloof Angels! I'm man and match,—this cudgel for my flail,—
 To thresh him, hoofs and horns, bat's wing and serpent's tail!
 A chance gone by! But then, what else does Hopeful ding
 Into the deafest ear except—hope, hope's the thing?
 Too late i' the day for me to thrud the windings: but There's still a way to win the race by death's short cut!
 Did Master Faithful need climb the Delightful Mounts?
 No, straight to Vanity Fair,—a fair, by all accounts,
 Such as is held outside,—lords, ladies, grand and gay,—
 Says he in the face of them, just what you hear me say.
 And the Judges brought him in guilty, and brought him out
 To die in the market-place—St. Peter's Green's about
 The same thing: there they flogged, flayed, buffeted, lanced with knives, Pricked him with swords,—I'll swear, he'd full a cat's nine lives,— So to his end at last came Faithful,—ha, ha, he!
 Who holds the highest card? for there stands hid, you see,
 Behind the rabble-rout, a chariot, pair and all:
 He's in, he's off, he's up, through clouds, at trumpet-call,
 Carried the nearest way to Heaven-gate! Odds my life—
 Has nobody a sword to spare? not even a knife?
 Then hang me, draw and quarter! Tab—do the same by her!
 O Master Worldly-Wiseman . . . that's Master Interpreter,
 Take the will, not the deed! Our gibbet's handy close:
 Forestall Last Judgment-Day! Be kindly, not morose!
 There wants no earthly judge-and-jurying: here we stand—
 Sentence our guilty selves: so, hang us out of hand!
 Make haste for pity's sake! A single moment's loss Means—Satan's lord once more: his whisper shoots across All singing in my heart, all praying in my brain,
 "It comes of heat and beer!"—hark how he guffaws plain!
 "To-morrow you'll wake bright, and, in a safe skin, hug
 Your sound selves, Tab and you, over a foaming jug!
 You've had such qualms before, time out of mind!" He's right!
 Did not we kick and cuff and curse away, that night
 When home we blindly reeled, and left poor humpback Joe
 I' the lurch to pay for what . . . somebody did, you know!
 Both of us maundered then "Lame humpback,—never more
 Will he come limping, drain his tankard at our door!
 He'll swing, while—somebody . . ." Says Tab, "No, for I'll peach!"
 "I'm for you, Tab," cries I, "there's rope enough for each!"
 So blubbered we, and bussed, and went to bed upon
 The grace of Tab's good thought: by morning, all was gone!
 We laughed—"What's life to him, a cripple of no account?"
 Oh, waves increase around—I feel them mount and mount!
 Hang us! To-morrow brings Tom Bearward with his bears:
 One new black-muzzled brute beats Sackerson, he swears:
 (Sackerson, for my money!) And, baiting o'er, the Brawl
 They lead on Turner's Patch,—lads, lasses, up tails all,— I'm i' the thick o' the throng! That means the Iron Cage, —Means the Lost Man inside! Where's hope for such as wage War against light? Light's left, light's here, I hold light still,
 So does Tab—make but haste to hang us both! You will?'
 I promise, when he stopped you might have heard a mouse
 Squeak, such a death-like hush sealed up the old Mote House.
 But when the mass of man sank meek upon his knees,
 While Tab, alongside, wheezed a hoarse 'Do hang us, please!'
 Why, then the waters rose, no eye but ran with tears,
 Hearts heaved, heads thumped, until, paying all past arrears
 Of pity and sorrow, at last a regular scream outbroke
 Of triumph, joy and praise.

NED BRATTS

My Lord Chief Justice spoke,
First mopping brow and cheek, where still,
for one that budged,
Another bead broke fresh: 'What Judge, that ever judged
Since first the world began, judged such a case as this?
Why, Master Bratts, long since, folk smelt you out, I wis!
I had my doubts, i' faith, each time you played the fox
Convicting geese of crime in yonder witness-box—
Yea, much did I misdoubt, the thief that stole her eggs
Was hardly goosey's self at Reynard's game, i' feggs!
Yet thus much was to praise—you spoke to point, direct—Swore you heard, saw the theft: no jury could suspect—
Dared to suspect,—I'll say,—a spot in white so clear:
Goosey was throttled, true: but thereof godly fear
Came of example set, much as our laws
intend;
And, though a fox confessed, you proved the Judge's friend.
What if I had my doubts? Suppose I gave them breath,
Brought you to bar: what work to do, ere "Guilty, Death,"—
Had paid our pains! What heaps of witnesses to drag
From holes and corners, paid from out the County's bag!
Trial three dog-days long! Amicus Curie
—that's
Your title, no dispute—truth-telling Master Bratts!
Thank you, too, Mistress Tab! Why doubt one word you say?
Hanging you both deserve, hanged both shall be this day!

The tinker needs must be a proper man.
I've heard
He lies in Jail long since: if Quality's good
word
Warrants me letting loose,—some householder, I mean—Freeholder, better still,—I don't say but
—between Now and next Sessions . . . Well! Consider of his case,
I promise to, at least: we owe him so much
grace.
Not that—no, God forbid!—I lean to think, as you,
The grace that such repent is any jail-bird's
due:
I rather see the fruit of twelve years' pious reign—
Astræa Redux, Charles restored his rights
again!
—Of which, another time! I somehow feel a peace Stealing across the world. May deeds like this increase! .
So, Master Sheriff, stay that sentence I pronounced
On those two dozen odd: deserving to be trounced Soundly, and yet . . . well, well, at all events despatch
This pair of—shall I say, sinner-saints?— ere we catch
Their jail-distemper too. Stop tears, or I'll indite
All weeping Bedfordshire for turning Bun-yanite!

So, forms were galloped through. If Justice, on the spur,
Proved somewhat expeditious, would Quality demur?
And happily hanged were they,—why lengthen out my tale?—
Where Bunyan's Statue stands facing where stood his Jail.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

SECOND SERIES

1880 .

'You are sick, that's sure'—they say:
'Sick of what?'—they disagree.
'Tis the brain'—thinks Doctor A;
'Tis the heart'—holds Doctor B;
'The liver—my life I'd lay!'
'The lungs!' 'The lights!'

Ah me!

So ignorant of man's whole
Of bodily organs plain to see—
So sage and certain, frank and free,
About what's under lock and key—Man's soul!

ECHELOS

HERE is a story shall stir you! Stand up, Greeks dead and gone,
Who breasted, beat Barbarians, stemmed Persia rolling on,
Did the deed and saved the world, for the day was Marathon!

No man but did his manliest, kept rank and fought away
In his tribe and file: up, back, out, down
—was the spear-arm play:
Like a wind-whipt branchy wood, all spear-arms a-swing that day!

But one man kept no rank and his sole arm
plied no spear,
As a flashing came and went, and a form
i' the van, the rear, Brightened the battle up, for he blazed now there, now here.

Nor helmed nor shielded, he! but, a goatskin all his wear,
Like a tiller of the soil, with a clown's limbs broad and bare,
Went he ploughing on and on: he pushed with a ploughman's share.

Did the weak mid-line give way, as tunnies on whom the shark Precipitates his bulk? Did the right-wing halt when, stark
On his heap of slain lay stretched Kallimachos Polemarch?

Did the steady phalanx falter? To the rescue, at the need,
The clown was ploughing Persia, clearing
Greek earth of weed,
As he routed through the Sakian and rooted up the Mede.

But the deed done, battle won,—nowhere to be descried

On the meadow, by the stream, at the marsh,—look far and wide
From the foot of the mountain, no, to the last blood-plashed seaside,—

Not anywhere on view blazed the large limbs thonged and brown, Shearing and clearing still with the share before which—down

To the dust went Persia's pomp, as he ploughed for Greece, that clown!

How spake the Oracle? 'Care for no name at all!

Say but just this: "We praise one helpful whom we call

The Holder of the Ploughshare." The great deed ne'er grows small.'

Not the great name! Sing—woe for the great name Miltiades

And its end at Paros isle! Woe for Themistokles

—Satrap in Sardis court! Name not the clown like these!

CLIVE

I AND Clive were friends—and why not?
Friends! I think you laugh, my lad.

Clive it was gave England India, while your father gives—egad,

England nothing but the graceless boy who lures him on to speak—

'Well, Sir, you and Clive were comrades—' with a tongue thrust in your cheek!

Very true: in my eyes, your eyes, all the world's eyes, Clive was man,

I was, am and ever shall be—mouse, nay, mouse of all its clan

Sorriest sample, if you take the kitchen's estimate for fame;

While the man Clive—he fought Plassy, spoiled the clever foreign game,
Conquered and annexed and Englished!

Never mind! As o'er my punch (You away) I sit of evenings,—silence, save for biscuit-crunch,

Black, unbroken,—thought grows busy,
thrills each pathway of old years,

Notes this forthright, that meander, till the long-past life appears

Like an outspread map of country plodded through, each mile and rood,

Once, and well remembered still: I'm startled in my solitude

CLIVE

Ever and anon by—what's the sudden mocking light that breaks
On me as I slap the table till no rummerglass but shakes

While I ask—aloud, I do believe, God help me!—Was it thus?

Can it be that so I faltered, stopped when just one step for us—

(Us,—you were not born, I grant, but surely some day born would be)

'—One bold step had gained a province' (figurative talk, you see)

'Got no end of wealth and honour,—yet I stood stock still no less?'

—'For I was not Clive,' you comment:
but it needs no Clive to guess

Wealth were handy, honour ticklish, did no writing on the wall

Warn me 'Trespasser, 'ware man-traps!'—
Him who braves that notice—call

Hero! none of such heroics suit myself who read plain words,

Doff my hat, and leap no barrier. Scripture says the land's the Lord's:

Louts then—what avail the thousand, noisy in a smock-frocked ring,

All-agog to have me trespass, clear the fence, be Clive their king?

Higher warrant must you show me ere I set one foot before

T'other in that dark direction, though I stand for evermore

Poor as Job and meek as Moses. Evermore? No! By-and-by Job grows rich and Moses valiant, Clive turns out less wise than I.

Don't object 'Why call him friend, then?'
Power is power, my boy, and still

Marks a man,—God's gift magnific, exercised for good or ill.

You've your boot now on my hearth-rug,
tread what was a tiger's skin:

Rarely such a royal monster as I lodged the bullet in!

True, he murdered half a village, so his own death came to pass;

Still, for size and beauty, cunning, courage
—ah, the brute he was!

Why, that Clive,—that youth, that greenhorn, that quill-driving clerk, in fine,—

He sustained a siege in Arcot. . . . But the world knows! Pass the wine.

Where did I break off at? How bring Clive in? Oh, you mentioned 'fear'!

Just so: and, said I, that minds me of a story you shall hear.

We were friends then, Clive and I: so, when the clouds, about the orb

Late supreme, encroaching slowly, surely, threatened to absorb

Ray by ray its noontide brilliance,— friendship might, with steadier eye

Drawing near, bear what had burned else, now no blaze—all majesty.

Too much bee's-wing floats my figure?
Well, suppose a castle's new:

None presume to climb its ramparts, none find foothold sure for shoe

'Twixt those squares and squares of granite plating the impervious pile

As his scale-mail's warty iron cuirasses a crocodile.

Reels that castle thunder-smitten, storm-dismantled? From without

Scrambling up by crack and crevice, every cockney prates about

Towers—the heap he kicks now! turrets
—just the measure of his cane!

Will that do? Observe moreover—(same similitude again)—

Such a castle seldom crumbles by sheer stress of cannonade:

'Tis when foes are foiled and fighting's finished that vile rains invade,

Grass o'ergrows, o'ergrows till nightbirds congregating find no holes

Fit to build in like the topmost sockets made for banner-poles.

So Clive crumbled slow in London—crashed at last.

A week before,
Dining with him,—after trying churchyard-chat of days of yore,—

Both of us stopped, tired as tombstones, head-piece, foot-piece, when they lean

Each to other, drowsed in fog-smoke, o'er a confined Past between.

As I saw his head sink heavy, guessed the soul's extinguishment

By the glazing eyeball, noticed how the furtive fingers went

Where a drug-box skulked behind the honest liquor,—'One more throw

Try for Clive!' thought I: 'Let's venture some good rattling question!' So—

'Come, Clive, tell us'—out I blurted—
'what to tell in turn, yours hence,

When my boy—suppose I have one—asks me on what evidence

I maintain my friend of Plassy proved a warrior every whit

Worth your Alexanders, Cæsars, Marl-boroughs and—what said Pitt?—

Frederick the Fierce himself! Clive told me once—I want to say—

'Which feat out of all those famous doings bore the bell away

—In his own calm estimation, mark you, not the mob's rough guess—

Which stood foremost as evincing what Clive called courageousness!

Come! what moment of the minute, what speck-centre in the wide Circle of the action saw your mortal fairly deified?

(Let alone that filthy sleep-stuff, swallow bold this wholesome Port!)

If a friend has leave to question,—when were you most brave, in short?’

Up he arched his brows o’ the instant—formidably Clive again.

‘When was I most brave? I’d answer, were the instance half as plain

As another instance that’s a brain-lodged crystal—curse it!—here

Freezing when my memory touches—ugh!—the time I felt most fear.

Ugh! I cannot say for certain if I showed fear—anyhow,

Fear I felt, and, very likely, shuddered, since I shiver now.’

‘Fear!’ smiled I. ‘Well, that’s the rarer: that’s a specimen to seek,

Ticket up in one’s museum, Mind-Freaks, Lord Clive’s Fear, Unique!’

Down his brows dropped. On the table painfully he pored as though

Tracing, in the stains and streaks there, thoughts encrusted long ago.

When he spoke ’twas like a lawyer reading word by word some will,

Some blind jungle of a statement,—beating on and on until

Out there leaps fierce life to fight with.

‘This fell in my factor-days. Desk-drudge, slaving at St. David’s, one must game, or drink, or craze.

I chose gaming; and,—because your high-flown gamblers hardly take

Umbrage at a factor’s elbow if the factor pays his stake,—

I was winked at in a circle where the company was choice,

Captain This and Major That, men high of colour, loud of voice,

Yet indulgent, condescending to the modest juvenile

Who not merely risked but lost his hard-earned guineas with a smile.

‘Down I sat to cards, one evening,—had for my antagonist

Somebody whose name’s a secret—you’ll know why—so, if you list,

Call him Cock o’ the Walk, my scarlet son of Mars from head to heel!

Play commenced: and, whether Cocky fancied that a clerk must feel

Quite sufficient honour came of bending over one green baize,

I the scribe with him the warrior,—guessed no penman dared to raise

Shadow of objection should the honour stay but playing end

More or less abruptly,—whether disinclined he grew to spend

Practice strictly scientific on a booby born to stare

At—not ask of—lace-and-ruffles if the hand they hide plays fair,—

Anyhow, I marked a movement when he bade me “Cut!”

‘I rose.

“Such the new manoeuvre, Captain? I’m a novice: knowledge grows.

What, you force a card, you cheat, Sir?”

‘Never did a thunder-clap

Cause emotion, startle Thyrsis locked with Chloe in his lap,

As my word and gesture (down I flung my cards to join the pack)

Fired the man of arms, whose visage, simply red before, turned black.

‘When he found his voice, he stammered

“That expression once again!”

“Well, you forced a card and cheated!”

“Possibly a factor’s brain,

Busied with his all-important balance of accounts, may deem Weighing words superfluous trouble: cheat to clerks ears may seem

Just the joke for friends to venture: but we are not friends, you see!

When a gentleman is joked with,—if he’s good at repartee,

He rejoins, as do I—Sirrah, on your knees, withdraw in full!

Beg my pardon, or be sure a kindly bullet through your skull

Lets in light and teaches manners to what brain it finds! Choose quick—

Have your life snuffed out or, kneeling, pray me trim yon candle-wick!”

“Well, you cheated!”

‘Then outbroke a howl from all the friends around.

To his feet sprang each in fury, fists were clenched and teeth were ground.

“End it! no time like the present! Captain, yours were our disgrace!

No delay, begin and finish! Stand back, leave the pair a space!

Let civilians be instructed: henceforth simply ply the pen,

Fly the sword! This clerk’s no swordsman? Suit him with a pistol, then!

Even odds! A dozen paces ’twixt the most and least expert

Make a dwarf a giant’s equal: nay, the dwarf, if he’s alert,

Likelier hits the broader target!”

CLIVE

'Up we stood accordingly. As they handed me the weapon, such was my soul's thirst to try Then and there conclusions with this bully, tread on and stamp out Every spark of his existence, that,—crept close to, curled about By that toying tempting teasing fool-finger's middle joint,— Don't you guess?—the trigger yielded. Gone my chance! and at the point Of such prime success moreover: scarce an inch above his head Went my ball to hit the wainscot. He was living, I was dead.

'Up he marched in flaming triumph— 'twas his right, mind!—up, within Just an arm's length. "Now, my clerkling," chuckled Cocky with a grin As the levelled piece quite touched me, "Now, Sir Counting-House, repeat That expression which I told you proved bad manners! Did I cheat?"

"Cheat you did, you knew you cheated, and, this moment, know as well. As for me, my homely breeding bids you—fire and go to Hell!"

'Twice the muzzle touched my forehead. Heavy barrel, flurried wrist, Either spoils a steady lifting. Thrice: then, "Laugh at Hell who list, I can't! God's no fable either. Did this boy's eye wink once? No! There's no standing him and Hell and God all three against me,—so, I did cheat!"

'And down he threw the pistol, out rushed—by the door Possibly, but, as for knowledge if by chimney, roof or floor, He effected disappearance—I'll engage no glance was sent That way by a single starrer, such a blank astonishment Swallowed up their senses: as for speaking—mute they stood as mice.

'Mute not long, though! Such reaction, such a hubbub in a trice! "Rogue and rascal! Who'd have thought it? What's to be expected next, When His Majesty's Commission serves a sharper as pretext For . . . But where's the need of wasting time now? Nought requires delay: Punishment the Service cries for: let disgrace be wined away Publicly, in good broad daylight! Resignation? No, indeed Drum and fife must play the Rogue's March, rank and file be free to speed Tardy marching on the rogue's part by appliance in the rear —Kicks administered shall right this wronged civilian,—never fear, Mister Clive, for—though a clerk—you bore yourself—suppose we say— Just as would beseem a soldier!"

"Gentlemen, attention—pray! First, one word!"

"I passed each speaker severally in review. When I had precise their number, names and styles, and fully knew Over whom my supervision thenceforth must extend,—why, then—

"Some five minutes since, my life lay—as you all saw, gentlemen— At the mercy of your friend there. Not a single voice was raised In arrest of judgment, not one tongue— before my powder blazed— Ventured 'Can it be the youngster blundered, really seemed to mark Some irregular proceeding? We conjecture in the dark, Guess at random,—still, for sake of fair play—what if for a freak, In a fit of absence,—such things have been!—if our friend proved weak —What's the phrase?—corrected fortune! Look into the case, at least!' Who dared interpose between the altar's victim and the priest? Yet he spared me! You eleven! Whosoever, all or each, To the disadvantage of the man who spared me, utters speech —To his face, behind his back,—that speaker has to do with me: Me who promise, if positions change and mine the chance should be, Not to imitate your friend and waive advantage!"

'Twenty-five Years ago this matter happened: and 'tis certain,' added Clive, 'Never, to my knowledge, did Sir Cocky have a single breath Breathed against him; lips were closed throughout his life, or since his death, For if he be dead or living I can tell no more than you. All I know is—Cocky had one chance more; how he used it,—grew Out of such unlucky habits, or relapsed, and back again Brought the late-ejected devil with a score more in his train,— That's for you to judge. Reprieval I procured, at any rate. Ugh—the memory of that minute's fear makes gooseflesh rise! Why prate Longer? You've my story, there's your instance: fear I did, you see!

'Well'—I hardly kept from laughing—
'if I see it, thanks must be Wholly to your Lordship's candour. Not that—in a common case—
When a bully caught at cheating thrusts a pistol in one's face,
I should underrate, believe me, such a trial to the nerve!

'Tis no joke, at one-and-twenty, for a youth to stand nor swerve.
Fear I naturally look for—unless, of all men alive,

I am forced to make exception when I come to Robert Clive.
Since at Arcot, Plassy, elsewhere, he and death—the whole world knows—
Came to somewhat closer quarters.'

Quarters? Had we come to blows, Clive and I, you had not wondered—up he sprang so, out he rapped Such a round of oaths—no matter! I'll endeavour to adapt

To our modern usage words he—well,
'twas friendly licence—flung

At me like so many fire-balls, fast as he could wag his tongue.

'You—a soldier? You—at Plassy? Yours
the faculty to nick Instantaneously occasion when your foe,
if lightning-quick,
—At his mercy, at his malice,—has you,
through some stupid inch Undeferred in your bulwark? Thus laid open,—not to flinch

—That needs courage, you'll concede me.
Then, look here! Suppose the man, Checking his advance, his weapon still extended, not a span

Distant from my temple,—curse him!— quietly had bade me "There!
Keep your life, calumniator!—worthless life I freely spare:

Mine you freely would have taken—murdered me and my good fame Both at once—and all the better! Go, and thank your own bad aim

Which permits me to forgive you! What if, with such words as these,
He had cast away his weapon? How should I have borne me, please?

Nay, I'll spare you pains and tell you.
This, and only this, remained—
Pick his weapon up and use it on myself.
I so had gained

Sleep the earlier, leaving England probably to pay on still Rent and taxes for half India, tenant at the Frenchman's will.'

'Such the turn,' said I, 'the matter takes with you? Then I abate

—No, by not one jot nor tittle,—of your act my estimate.

Fear—I wish I could detect there: courage fronts me, plain enough—

Call it desperation, madness—never mind!
for here's in rough

Why, had mine been such a trial, fear had overcome disgrace.

True, disgrace were hard to bear: but such a rush against God's face

—None of that for me, Lord Plassy, since
I go to church at times,

Say the creed my mother taught me!
Many years in foreign climes

Rub some marks away—not all, though!
We poor sinners reach life's brink,

Overlook what rolls beneath it, recklessly enough, but think

There's advantage in what's left us—ground to stand on, time to call

"Lord, have mercy!" ere we topple over
—do not leap, that's all!

Oh, he made no answer,—re-absorbed into his cloud. I caught

Something like 'Yes—courage: only fools will call it fear.'

If aught
Comfort you, my great unhappy hero
Clive, in that I heard,

Next week, how your own hand dealt you doom, and uttered just the word

'Fearfully courageous!'—this, be sure, and nothing else I groaned.

I'm no Clive, nor parson either: Clive's worst deed—we'll hope condoned.

MULÉYKEH

If a stranger passed the tent of Hóseyn, he cried 'A churl's!'

Or haply 'God help the man who has neither salt nor bread!'

—'Nay,' would a friend exclaim, 'he needs nor pity nor scorn

More than who spends small thought on the shore-sand, picking pearls,

—Holds but in light esteem the seed-sort, bears instead

On his breast a moon-like prize, some orb which of night makes morn.

'What if no flocks and herds enrich the son of Sinán?

They went when his tribe was mulct, ten thousand camels the due,

Blood-value paid perforce for a murder done of old.

"God gave them, let them go! But never since time began,

Muléykeh, peerless mare, owned master
the match of you,

And you are my prize, my Pearl: I laugh at men's land and gold!"

MULÉYKEH

'So in the pride of his soul laughs Hóseyn
—and right, I say.

Do the ten steeds run a race of glory? Out-stripping all,

Ever Muléykeh stands first steed at the victor's staff.

Who started, the owner's hope, gets shamed and named, that day.

"Silence," or, last but one, is "The Cuffed," as we use to call

Whom the paddock's lord thrusts forth.
Right, Hóseyn, I say, to laugh!

'Boasts he Muléykeh the Pearl?' the stranger replies: 'Be sure

On him I waste nor scorn nor pity, but lavish both

On Duhl the son of Sheybán, who withers away in heart

For envy of Hóseyn's luck. Such sickness admits no cure.

A certain poet has sung, and sealed the same with an oath,

"For the vulgar—flocks and herds! The Pearl is a prize apart."

Lo, Duhl the son of Sheybán comes riding to Hóseyn's tent,

And he casts his saddle down, and enters and 'Peace!' bids he.

'You are poor, I know the cause: my plenty shall mend the wrong.

'Tis said of your Pearl—the price of a hundred camels spent

In her purchase were scarce ill paid: such prudence is far from me

Who proffer a thousand. Speak! Long parley may last too long.'

Said Hóseyn 'You feed young beasts a many, of famous breed,

Slit-eared, unblemished, fat, true offspring of Múzenem:

There stumbles no weak-eyed she in the line as it climbs the hill.

But I love Muléykeh's face: her forefront whitens indeed

Like a yellowish wave's cream-crest. Your camels—go gaze on them!

Her fetlock is foam-splashed too. Myself am the richer still.'

A year goes by: lo, back to the tent again rides Duhl.

'You are open-hearted, ay—moist-handed,
a very prince.

Why should I speak of sale? Be the mare your simple gift!

My son is pined to death for her beauty:
my wife prompts "Fool,

Beg for his sake the Pearl! Be God the rewarder, since

God pays debts seven for one: who squanders on Him shows thrift."

Said Hóseyn 'God gives each man one life, like a lamp, then gives

That lamp due measure of oil: lamp lighted—hold high, wave wide

Its comfort for others to share! once quench it, what help is left?

The oil of your lamp is your son: I shine while Muléykeh lives.

Would I beg your son to cheer my dark if Muléykeh died?

It is life against life: what good avails to the life-bereft?

Another year, and—hist! What craft is it Duhl designs?

He alights not at the door of the tent as he did last time,

But, creeping behind, he gropes his stealthy way by the trench

Half-round till he finds the flap in the folding, for night combines

With the robber—and such is he: Duhl, covetous up to crime,

Must wring from Hóseyn's grasp the Pearl, by whatever the wrench.

'He was hunger-bitten, I heard: I tempted with half my store,

And a gibe was all my thanks. Is he generous like Spring dew?

Account the fault to me who chattered with such an one!

He has killed, to feast chance comers, the creature he rode: nay, more—

For a couple of singing-girls his robe has he torn in two:

I will beg! Yet I nowise gained by the tale of my wife and son.

'I swear by the Holy House, my head will
I never wash

Till I filch his Pearl away. Fair dealing I tried, then guile,

And now I resort to force. He said we must live or die:

Let him die, then,—let me live! Be bold—but not too rash!

I have found me a peeping-place: breast, bury your breathing while

I explore for myself! Now, breathe! He deceived me not, the spy!

'As he said—there lies in peace Hóseyn—how happy! Beside

Stands tethered the Pearl: thrice winds her headstall about his wrist:

'Tis therefore he sleeps so sound—the moon through the roof reveals.

And, loose on his left, stands too that other, known far and wide,

Buhéyseh, her sister born: fleet is she yet ever missed

The winning tail's fire-flash a-stream past the thunderous heels.

'No less she stands saddled and bridled, this second, in case some thief Should enter and seize and fly with the first, as I mean to do.
 What then? The Pearl is the Pearl: once mount her we both escape.'
 Through the skirt-fold in glides Duhl,— so a serpent disturbs no leaf
 In a bush as he parts the twigs entwining a nest: clean through,
 He is noiselessly at his work: as he planned, he performs the rape.

He has set the tent-door wide, has buckled the girth, has clipped
 The headstall away from the wrist he leaves thrice bound as before, He springs on the Pearl, is launched on the desert like bolt from bow.
 Up starts our plundered man: from his breast though the heart be ripped, Yet his mind has the mastery: behold, in a minute more,
 He is out and off and away on Buhéyseh, whose worth we know!

And Hóseyn—his blood turns flame, he has learned long since to ride,
 And Buhéyseh does her part,—they gain
 —they are gaining fast
 On the fugitive pair, and Duhl has Ed-
 Dárraj to cross and quit,
 And to reach the ridge El-Sabán,—no safety till that be spied!
 And Buhéyseh is, bound by bound, but a horse-length off at last,
 For the Pearl has missed the tap of the heel,
 the touch of the bit.

She shortens her stride, she chafes at her rider the strange and queer:
 Buhéyseh is mad with hope—beat sister she shall and must Though Duhl, of the hand and heel so clumsy, she has to thank.
 She is near now, nose by tail—they are neck by croup—joy! fear!
 What folly makes Hóseyn shout 'Dog
 Duhl, Damned son of the Dust, Touch the right ear and press with your foot my Pearl's left flank!'

And Duhl was wise at the word, and Muléykeh as prompt perceived Who was urging redoubled pace, and to hear him was to obey,
 And a leap indeed gave she, and vanished for evermore.
 And Hóseyn looked one long last look as who, all bereaved,
 Looks, fain to follow the dead so far as the living may:
 Then he turned Buhéyseh's neck slow homeward, weeping sore.

And, lo, in the sunrise, still sat Hóseyn upon the ground
 Weeping: and neighbours came, the tribesmen of Bénu-Asád
 In the vale of green Er-Rass, and they questioned him of his grief;
 And he told from first to last how, serpent-like, Duhl had wound
 His way to the nest, and how Duhl rode like an ape, so bad!
 And how Buhéyseh did wonders, yet Pearl remained with the thief.

And they jeered him, one and all: 'Poor
 Hóseyn is crazed past hope!
 How else had he wrought himself his ruin,
 in fortune's spite?
 To have simply held the tongue were a task for a boy or girl,
 And here were Muléykeh again, the eyed like an antelope,
 The child of his heart by day, the wife of his breast by night!'
 'And the beaten in speed!' wept Hóseyn:
 'You never have loved my Pearl.'

PIETRO OF ABANO

Petrus Aponensis—there was a magician!
 When that strange adventure happened,
 which I mean to tell my hearers, Nearly had he tried all trades—beside
 physician,
 Architect, astronomer, astrologer,—or
 worse:
 How else, as the old books warrant, was he able,
 All at once, through all the world, to prove the promptest of appearers
 Where was prince to cure, tower to build as high as Babel,
 Star to name or sky-sign read,—yet pouch, for pains, a curse?

—Curse: for when a vagrant,—foot-sore,
 travel-tattered,
 Now a young man, now an old man, Turk or Arab, Jew or Gipsy,— Proffered folk in passing—O for pay, what mattered?—
 'I'll be doctor, I'll play builder, star I'll name—sign read!
 Soon as prince was cured, tower built, and fate predicted,
 'Who may you be?' came the question;
 when he answered, 'Petrus ipse,'
 'Just as we divined!' cried folk—'A wretch convicted
 Long ago of dealing with the devil—you
 indeed!'

So, they cursed him roundly, all his labour's payment,
 Motioned him—the convalescent prince would—to vacate the presence:

PIETRO OF ABANO

Babylonians plucked his beard and tore his raiment,
Drove him from that tower he built: while,
had he peered at stars,
Town howled 'Stone the quack who styles our Dog-star—Sirius!'
Country yelled 'Aroint the churl who prophesies we take no pleasure Under vine and fig-tree, since the year's delirious,
Bears no crop of any kind,—all through the planet Mars!'

Straightway would the whilom youngster grow a grisard,
Or, as case might hap, the hoary eld drop off and show a stripling.
Town and country groaned—indebted to a wizard!
'Curse—nay, kick and cuff him—fit re-quital of his pains!
Gratitude in word or deed were wasted truly!
Rather make the Church amends by crying out on, cramping, crippling
One who, on pretence of serving man, serves duly
Man's arch foe: not ours, be sure, but Satan's—his the gains!'

Peter grinned and bore it, such disgraceful usage:
Somehow, cuffs and kicks and curses seem ordained his like to suffer: Prophet's pay with Christians, now as in the Jew's age,
Still is—stoning: so, he meekly took his wage and went,
—Safe again was found ensconced in those old quarters,
Padua's blackest blindest by-street,—none the worse, nay, somewhat tougher:
'Calculating,' quoth he, 'soon I join the martyrs,
Since, who magnify my lore on burning me are bent.'¹

Therefore, on a certain evening, to his alley
Peter slunk, all bruised and broken, sore in body, sick in spirit,
Just escaped from Cairo where he launched a galley
Needing neither sails nor oars nor help of wind or tide,

¹ 'Studiando le mie cifre col compasso,
Rilevo che sarò presto sotterra,
Perchè del mio saper si fa gran chiasso,
E gl'ignoranti m'hanno mosso guerra.'

Said to have been found in a well at Abano in the last century. They were extemporaneously Englished thus: not as Father Prout chose to prefer them:—

Studying my ciphers with the compass,
I reckon—I soon shall be below-ground;
Because of my lore folk make great rumpus,
And war on myself makes each dull rogue round.—R. B.

—Needing but the fume of fire to set a-flying Wheels like mad which whirled you quick —North, South, where'er you pleased require it,—
That is—would have done so had not priests come prying, Broke his engine up and bastinadoed him
beside.

As he reached his lodging, stopped there unmolested, (Neighbours feared him, urchins fled him, few were bold enough to follow)
While his fumbling fingers tried the lock and tested
Once again the queer key's virtue, oped the sullen door,— Someone plucked his sleeve, cried 'Master, pray your pardon!
Grant a word to me who patient wait you in your archway's hollow!
Hard on you men's hearts are: be not your heart hard on Me who kiss your garment's hem, O Lord of magic lore!

'Mage—say I, who no less, scorning tittle-tattle,
To the vulgar give no credence when they prate of Peter's magic,
Deem his art brews tempest, hurts the crops and cattle,
Hinders fowls from laying eggs and worms
from spinning silk, Rides upon a he-goat, mounts at need a broomstick:
While the price he pays for this (so turns to comic what was tragic)
Is—he may not drink—dreads like the Day of Doom's tick—
One poor drop of sustenance ordained mere men—that's milk!

'Tell such tales to Padua! Think me no such dullard!
Not from these benighted parts did I derive my breath and being!
I am from a land whose cloudless skies are coloured Livelier, suns orb largelier, airs seem incense,—while, on earth—
What, instead of grass, our fingers and our thumbs cull,
Proves true moly! sounds and sights there help the body's hearing, seeing,
Till the soul grows godlike: brief,—you front no numbscull
Shaming by ineptitude the Greece that gave him birth!

'Mark within my eye its iris mysticlettered—
That's my name! and note my ear—its swan-shaped cavity, my emblem!

Mine's the swan-like nature born to fly unfettered
Over land and sea in search of knowledge
—food for song.
Art denied the vulgar! Geese grow fat on barley,
Swans require ethereal provend, undesir-ous to resemble 'em—
Soar to seek Apollo,—favoured with a parley
Such as, Master, you grant me—who will not hold you long.

'Leave to learn to sing—for that your swan petitions:
Master, who possess the secret, say not nay to such a suitor!
All I ask is—bless mine, purest of ambitions!
Grant me leave to make my kind wise, free,
and happy! How?
Just by making me—as you are mine—
their model!
Geese have goose-thoughts: make a swan their teacher first, then co-adjutor,— Let him introduce swan-notions to each noddle,— Geese will soon grow swans, and men become what I am now!

'That's the only magic—had but fools discernment,
Could they probe and pass into the solid through the soft and seeming!
Teach me such true magic—now and no adjournment!
Teach your art of making fools subserve
the man of mind!
Magic is the power we men of mind should
practise,
Draw fools to become our drudges, docile henceforth, never dreaming—
While they do our hests for fancied gain—the fact is What they toil and toil to get proves falsehood: truth's behind!

'See now! you conceive some fabric—say,
a mansion
Meet for monarch's pride and pleasure:
this is truth—a thought has fired you,
Made you fain to give some cramped concept expansion,
Put your faculty to proof, fulfil your nature's task.
First you fascinate the monarch's self: he fancies
He it was devised the scheme you execute as he inspired you:
He in turn sets slaving insignificances Toiling, moiling till your structure stands there—all you ask!

'Soon the monarch's known for what he was—a ninny:
Soon the rabble-rout leave labour, take their work-day wage and vanish:
Soon the late puffed bladder, pricked, shows lank and skinny—
"Who was its inflator?" ask we, "whose the giant lungs?"
Petri en pulmones! What though men prove ingrates?
Let them—so they stop at crucifixion—
buffet, ban and banish!
Peter's power's apparent: human praise
—its din grates
Harsh as blame on ear unused to aught save angels' tongues.

'Ay, there have been always, since our world existed,
Mages who possessed the secret—needed but to stand still, fix eye On the foolish mortal: straight was he enlisted Soldier, scholar, servant, slave—no matter for the style!
Only through illusion; ever what seemed profit—
Love or lucre—justified obedience to the Ipse dixi:
Work done—palace reared from pavement up to soffit—
Was it strange if builders smelt out cheating all the while?

'Let them pelt and pound, bruise, bray
you in a mortar!
What's the odds to you who seek reward of quite another nature?
You've enrolled your name where sages of your sort are,
—Michael of Constantinople, Hans of Halberstadt!
Nay and were you nameless, still you've your conviction
You it was and only you—what signifies the nomenclature?—
Ruled the world in fact, though how you ruled be fiction
Fit for fools: true wisdom's magic you—if e'er man—had't!

'But perhaps you ask me "Since each ignoramus
While he profits by such magic persecutes
the benefactor,
What should I expect but—once I render famous
You as Michael, Hans and Peter—just one ingrate more?
If the vulgar prove thus, whatsoe'er the pelf be,
Pouched through my beneficence—and doom me dungeoned, chained, or racked, or

PIETRO OF ABANO

Fairly burned outright—how grateful will yourself be
When, his secret gained, you match your —master just before?"

'That's where I await you! Please, revert a little!
What do folk report about you if not this —which, though chimeric,
Still, as figurative, suits you to a tittle—
That,—although the elements obey your nod and wink,
Fades or flowers the herb you chance to smile or sigh at,
While your frown bids earth quake palled by obscuration atmospheric,— Brief, although through nature nought resists your fiat,
There's yet one poor substance mocks you—milk you may not drink!

'Figurative language! Take my explanation!
Fame with fear, and hate with homage,
these your art procures in plenty.
All's but daily dry bread: what makes moist the ration?
Love, the milk that sweetens man his meal—alas, you lack:
I am he who, since he fears you not, can
love you.
Love is born of heart not mind, *de corde
natus haud de mente*;
Touch my heart and love's yours, sure as shines above you
Sun by day and star by night though earth should go to wrack!

'Stage by stage you lift me—kiss by kiss I hallow
Whose but your dear hand my helper, punctual as at each new impulse
I approach my aim? Shell chipped, the eaglet callow
Needs a parent's pinion-push to quit the eyrie's edge:
But once fairly launched forth, denizen of ether,
While each effort sunward bids the blood more freely through each limb pulse, Sure the parent feels, as gay they soar together,
Fully are all pains repaid when love redeems its pledge!

Then did Peter's tristful visage lighten somewhat,
Vent a watery smile as though inveterate mistrust were thawing.
'Well, who knows?' he slow broke silence.
'Mortals—come what Come there may—are still the dupes of hope there's luck in store.

Many scholars seek me, promise mounts and marvels:

Here stand I to witness how they step
'twixt me and clapperclawing!
Dry bread,—that I've gained me: truly I should starve else:
But of milk, no drop was mine! Well, shuffle cards once more!

At the word of promise thus implied, our stranger—
What can he but cast his arms, in rapture of embrace, round Peter?
'Hold! I choke!' the mage grunts. 'Shall I in the manger
Any longer play the dog? Approach, my calf, and feed!
Bene . . . won't you wait for grace?' But sudden incense
Wool-white, serpent-solid, curled up—perfume growing sweet and sweeter Till it reached the young man's nose and seemed to win sense Soul and all from out his brain through nostril: yes, indeed!

Presently the young man rubbed his eyes.
'Where am I?
Too much bother over books! Some reverie has proved amusing.
What did Peter prate of? 'Faith, my brow is clammy!
How my head throbs, how my heart thumps! Can it be I swooned?
Oh, I spoke my speech out—cribbed from Plato's tractate,
Dosed him with "the Fair and Good," swore—Dog of Egypt—I was choos-
ing
Plato's way to serve men! What's the hour? Exact eight!
Home now, and to-morrow never mind how Plato mooned!

'Peter has the secret! Fair and Good are products
(So he said) of Foul and Evil: one must bring to pass the other.
Just as poisons grow drugs, steal through sundry odd ducts
Doctors name, and ultimately issue safe and changed.
You'd abolish poisons, treat disease with dainties
Such as suit the sound and sane? With all such kickshaws vain you potter!
Arsenic's the stuff puts force into the faint
eyes,
Opium sets the brain to rights—by cark and care deranged.

'What, he's safe within door?—would escape—no question—Thanks, since thanks and more I owe, and mean to pay in time befitting.

What most presses now is—after night's digestion,
 Peter, of thy precepts!—promptest practice of the same.
 Let me see! The wise man, first of all, scorns riches:
 But to scorn them must obtain them: none believes in his permitting
 Gold to lie ungathered: who picks up, then pitches
 Gold away—philosophizes: none disputes his claim.

'So with worldly honours: 'tis by abdicating, Incontestably he proves he could have kept the crown discarded.
 Sulla cuts a figure, leaving off dictating: Simpletons laud private life? "The grapes are sour," laugh we.
 So, again—but why continue? All's tumultuous Here: my head's a-whirl with knowledge! Speedily shall be rewarded
 He who taught me! Greeks prove ingrates? So insult you us?
 When your teaching bears its first-fruits, Peter—wait and see!'

As the word, the deed proved; ere a brief year's passage,
 Fop—that fool he made the jokes on—now he made the jokes for, gratis:
 Hunks—that hoarder, long left lonely in his crass age—
 Found now one appreciative deferential friend:
 Powder-paint-and-patch, Hag Jezebel—recovered,
 Strange to say, the power to please, got courtship till she cried Jam satis!
 Fop be-flattered, Hunks be-friended, Hag be-lovered—
 Nobody o'erlooked, save God—he soon attained his end.

As he lounged at ease one morning in his villa, (Hag's the dowry) estimated (Hunks' bequest) his coin in coffer, Mused on how a fool's good word (Fop's word) could fill a Social circle with his praise, promote him man of mark,—
 All at once—'An old friend fain would see your Highness!'
 There stood Peter, skeleton and scarecrow, plain writ Phi-lo-so-pher
 In the woe-worn face—for yellowness and dryness, Parchment—with a pair of eyes—one hope their feeble spark.

'Did I counsel rightly? Have you, in accordance, Prospered greatly, dear my pupil? Sure, at just the stage I find you,
 When your hand may draw me forth from the mad war-dance
 Savages are leading round your master—'down, not dead.
 Padua wants to burn me: baulk them, let me linger
 Life out—rueful though its remnant—hid in some safe hole behind you!
 Prostrate here I lie: quick, help with but a finger
 Lest I house in safety's self—a tombstone o'er my head!

'Lodging, bite and sup, with—now and then—a copper
 —Alms for any poorer still, if such there be,—is all my asking.
 Take me for your bedesman,—nay, if you think proper,
 Menial merely,—such my perfect passion for repose!
 Yes, from out your plenty Peter craves a pittance
 —Leave to thaw his frozen hands before the fire whereat you're basking!
 Double though your debt were, grant this boon—remittance
 He proclaims of obligation: 'tis himself that owes!'

'Venerated Master—can it be, such treatment
 Learning meets with, magic fails to guard you from, by all appearance?
 Strange! for, as you entered,—what the famous feat meant,
 I was full of,—why you reared that fabric, Padua's boast.
 Nowise for man's pride, man's pleasure, did you slyly
 Raise it, but man's seat of rule whereby the world should soon have clearance (Happy world) from such a rout as now so vilely Handles you—and hampers me, for which I grieve the most.

'Since if it got wind you now were my familiar,
 How could I protect you—nay, defend myself against the rabble?
 Wait until the mob, now masters, willy-nilly are Servants as they should be: then has gratitude full play!
 Surely this experience shows how unfitting
 'Tis that minds like mine should rot in ease and plenty. Geese may gabble,

PIETRO OF ABANO

Gorge, and keep the ground: but swans are soon for quitting Earthly fare—as fain would I, your swan, if taught the way.

‘Teach me, then, to rule men, have them at my pleasure!

Solely for their good, of course,—impart
a secret worth rewarding,
Since the proper life’s-prize! Tantalus’s treasure

Aught beside proves, vanishes and leaves no trace at all.

Wait awhile, nor press for payment prematurely!

Over-haste defrauds you. Thanks! since,
—even while I speak,—discarding

Sloth and vain delights, I learn how—swiftly, surely,—

Magic sways the sceptre, wears the crown and wields the ball!

‘Gone again—what, is he? ‘Faith, he’s soon disposed of!

Peter’s precepts work already, put within my lump their leaven!

Ay, we needs must don glove would we pluck the rose—doff

Silken garment would we climb the tree and take its fruit.

Why sharp thorn, rough rind? To keep unviolated

Either prize! We garland us, we mount from earth to feast in heaven,

Just because exist what once we estimated Hindrances which, better taught, as helps we now compute.

‘Foolishly I turned disgusted from my fellows!

Pits of ignorance—to fill, and heaps of prejudice—to level—

Multitudes in motley, whites and blacks and yellows—

What a hopeless task it seemed to discipline the host!

Now I see my error. Vices act like virtues —Not alone because they guard—sharp thorns—the rose we first dishevel, Not because they scrape, scratch—rough rind—through the dirt-shoes Bare feet cling to bole with, while the half-moon’d boot we boast.

‘No, my aim is nobler, more disinterested!
Man shall keep what seemed to thwart him, since it proves his true assistance, Leads to ascertaining which head is the best head,

Would he crown his body, rule its members—lawless else.

Ignorant the horse stares, by deficient vision

Takes a man to be a monster, lets him mount, then, twice the distance

Horse could trot unriden, gallops—dream Elysian!—

Dreaming that his dwarfish guide’s a giant,—jockeys tell’s.’

Brief, so worked the spell, he promptly had a riddance:

Heart and brain no longer felt the pricks which passed for conscience-scruples:

Free henceforth his feet,—Per Bacco, how they did dance

Merrily through lets and checks that stopped the way before!

Politics the prize now,—such adroit adviser,

Opportune suggester, with the tact that triples and quadruples

Merit in each measure,—never did the Kaiser

Boast a subject such a statesman, friend, and something more!

As he, up and down, one noonday, paced his closet

—Council o’er, each spark (his hint) blown flame, by colleagues’ breath applauded,

Strokes of statecraft hailed with ‘Salomo si nösset!’

(His the nostrum)—every throw for luck come double-six,—

As he, pacing, hugged himself in satisfaction,

Thump—the door went. ‘What, the Kaiser? By none else were I defrauded

Thus of well-earned solace. Since ‘tis fate’s exaction,—

Enter, Liege my Lord! Ha, Peter, you here? Teneor vix!’

‘Ah, Sir, none the less, contain you, nor wax irate!

You so lofty, I so lowly,—vast the space which yawns between us!

Still, methinks, you—more than ever—at a high rate

Needs must prize poor Peter’s secret since it lifts you thus.

Grant me now the boon whereat before you boggled!

Ten long years your march has moved—one triumph—(though e’s short)— hacténus,

While I down and down disastrously have joggled

Till I pitch against Death’s door, the true
Nec Ultra Plus.

‘Years ago—some ten ‘tis—since I sought for shelter,

Craved in your whole house a closet, out of all your means a comfort.

Now you soar above these: as is gold to spelter

So is power—you urged with reason—paramount to wealth.

Power you boast in plenty: let it grant me refuge!

Houseroom now is out of question: find for me some stronghold—some fort—

Privacy wherein, immured, shall this blind deaf huge

Monster of a mob let stay the soul I'd save by stealth!

'Ay, for all too much with magic have I tampered!

—Lost the world, and gained, I fear, a certain place I'm to describe loth!

Still, if prayer and fasting tame the pride long pampered,

Mercy may be mine: amendment never comes too late.

How can I amend beset by cursers, kickers?

Pluck this brand from out the burning!
Once away, I take my Bible-oath,

Never more—so long as life's weak lamp-flame flickers—

No, not once I'll tease you, but in silence bear my fate!

'Gently, good' my Genius, Oracle unerring!

Strange now! can you guess on what—as in you peeped—it was I pondered?

You and I are both of one mind in preferring

Power to wealth, but—here's the point—what sort of power, I ask?

Ruling men is vulgar, easy and ignoble:
Rid yourself of conscience, quick you have at beck and call the fond herd.

But who wields the crozier, down may fling the crow-bill:

That's the power I covet now; soul's sway o'er souls—my task!

“Well but,” you object, “you have it, who by glamour

Dress up lies to look like truths, mask folly in the garb of reason:

Your soul acts on theirs, sure, when the people clamour,

Hold their peace, now fight now fondle,— earwigged through the brains.”

Possibly! but still the operation's mundane,

Grosser than a taste demands which—craving manna—kecks at peason—

Power o'er men by wants material: why should one deign

Rule by sordid hopes and fears—a grunt for all one's pains?

'No, if men must praise me, let them praise
to purpose!

Would we move the world, not earth but heaven must be our fulcrum—pou-sto!

Thus I seek to move it: Master, why inter-
pose—

Baulk my climbing close on what's the ladder's topmost round?

Statecraft 'tis I step from: when by priestcraft hoisted

Up to where my foot may touch the highest rung which fate allows toe,

Then indeed ask favour! On you shall be foisted

No excuse: I'll pay my debt, each penny of the pound!

'Ho, my knaves without there! Lead this worthy downstairs!

No farewell, good Paul—nay, Peter—what's your name remembered

rightly?
Come, he's humble: out another would have flogged—airs

Suitors often give themselves when our sort bow them forth.

Did I touch his rags? He surely kept his distance:

Yet, there somehow passed to me from him—where'er the virtue might lie—Something that inspires my soul—Oh, by assistance Doubtlessly of Peter!—still, he's worth just what he's worth!

“'Tis my own soul soars now: soaring—how? By crawling!

I'll to Rome, before Rome's feet the temporal-supreme lay prostrate!

“Hands” (I'll say) “proficient once in pulling, hauling

This and that way men as I was minded —feet now clasp!”

Ay, the Kaiser's self has wrung them in his fervour!

Now—they only sue to slave for Rome, nor at one doit the cost rate.

Rome's adopted child—no bone, no muscle, nerve or

Sinew of me but I'll strain, though out my life I gasp!

As he stood one evening proudly—(he had traversed

Rome on horseback—peerless pageant!— claimed the Lateran as new Pope)—

Thinking 'All's attained now! Pontiff!
Who could have erst

Dreamed of my advance so far when, some ten years ago,

I embraced devotion, grew from priest to bishop,

Gained the Purple, bribed the Conclave, got the Two-thirds, saw my coop ope,

Came out—what Rome hails me! O were there a wish-shop,

Not one wish more would I purchase—lord of all below!

PIETRO OF ABANO

'Ha!—who dares intrude now—puts aside the arras?

What, old Peter, here again, at such a time, in such a presence?

Satan sends this plague back merely to embarrass

Me who enter on my office—little needing you!

'Faith, I'm touched myself by age, but you look Tithon!

Were it vain to seek of you the sole prize left—rejuvenescence?

Well, since flesh is grass which Time must lay his scythe on,

Say your say and so depart and make no more ado!

Peter faltered—coughing first by way of prologue—

'Holiness, your help comes late: a death at ninety little matters.

Padua, build poor Peter's pyre now, on log roll log,

Burn away—I've lived my day! Yet here's the sting in death—

I've an author's pride: I want my Book's survival:

See, I've hid it in my breast to warm me mid the rags and tatters!

Save it—tell next age your Master had no rival!

Scholar's debt discharged in full, be "Thanks" my latest breath!

'Faugh, the frowzy bundle—scribblings harum-scarum

Scattered o'er a dozen sheepskins! What's the name of this farrago?

Ha—"Conciliator Differentiarum"—

Man and book may burn together, cause the world no loss!

Stop—what else? A tractate—eh, "De Speciebus Ceremonialis Ma-gi-æ?" I dream sure!

Hence, away, go, Wizard,—quick avoid me! Vain you clasp my knee, buss

Hand that bears the Fisher's ring or foot that boasts the Cross!

'Help! The old magician clings like an octopus!

Ah, you rise now—fuming, fretting, frowning, if I read your features!

Frown, who cares? We're Pope—once Pope, you can't unpope us!

Good—you muster up a smile: that's better! Still so brisk?

All at once grown youthful? But the case is plain! Ass—

Here I dally with the fiend, yet know the Word—compels all creatures

Earthly, heavenly, hellish. Apagē, Sathanas! Dicam verbum Salomonis—

When—whisk!—

What was changed? The stranger gave his eyes a rubbing:

There smiled Peter's face turned back a moment at him o'er the shoulder,

As the black door shut, bang! 'So he 'scapes a drubbing!'

(Quoth a boy who, unespied, had stopped to hear the talk.)

'That's the way to thank these wizards when they bid men

Benedicite! What ails you? You, a man, and yet no bolder?

Foreign Sir, you look but foolish!' 'Idmen, idmen!'

Groaned the Greek. 'O Peter, cheese at last I know from chalk!'

Peter lived his life out, menaced yet no martyr,

Knew himself the mighty man he was—such knowledge all his guerdon,

Left the world a big book—people but in part err

When they style a true Scientiæ Com-pen-di-um:

'Admirationem incutit' they sourly Smile, as fast they shut the folio which myself was somehow spurred on

Once to ope: but love—life's milk which daily, hourly,

Blockheads lap—O Peter, still thy taste of love's to come!

Greek, was your ambition likewise doomed to failure?

True, I find no record you wore purple, walked with axe and fasces,

Played some antipope's part: still, friend, don't turn tail, you're

Certain, with but these two gifts, to gain earth's prize in time!

Cleverness uncurbed by conscience—if you ransacked

Peter's book you'd find no potent spell like these to rule the masses;

Nor should want example, had I not to transact

Other business. Go your ways, you'll thrive! So ends my rhyme.

When these parts Tiberius,—not yet Cæsar,—travelled,

Passing Padua, he consulted Padua's Oracle of Geryon

(God three-headed, thrice wise) just to get unravelled

Certain tangles of his future. 'Fling at Abano

Golden dice,' it answered: 'dropt within the fount there,

Note what sum the pips present!' And still we see each die, the very one,

Turn up, through the crystal,—read the whole account there
Where 'tis told by Suetonius,—each its highest throw.

Scarce the sportive fancy-dice I fling show
'Venus:—
Still—for love of that dear land which I so oft in dreams revisit—
I have—oh, not sung! but lilted (as—between us—Grows my lazy custom) this its legend.
What the lilt?

DOCTOR —

A RABBI told me: On the day allowed Satan for carping at God's rule, he came,
Fresh from our earth, to brave the angel-crowd.

'What is the fault now?' 'This I find to blame:
Many and various are the tongues below,
Yet all agree in one speech, all proclaim
"Hell has no might to match what earth can show:
Death is the strongest-born of Hell, and yet Stronger than Death is a Bad Wife, we know."

'Is it a wonder if I fume and fret—Robbed of my rights, since Death am I,
' and mine
The style of Strongest? Men pay Nature's debt

'Because they must at my demand; decline
To pay it henceforth surely men will please,
Provided husbands with bad wives combine

'To baffle Death. Judge between me and these!'

'Thyself shalt judge. Descend to earth in shape
Of mortal, marry, drain from froth to lees

'The bitter draught, then see if thou escape
Concluding, with men sorrowful and sage,
A Bad Wife's strength Death's self in vain would ape!'

How Satan entered on his pilgrimage,
Conformed himself to earthly ordinance,
Wived and played husband well from youth to age

Intrepidly—I leave untold, advance
Through many a married year until I reach
A day when—of his father's countenance

The very image, like him too in speech
As well as thought and deed,—the union's fruit

Attained maturity. 'I needs must teach

'My son a trade: but trade, such son to suit, Needs seeking after. He a man of war?
Too cowardly! A lawyer wins repute—

'Having to toil and moil, though—both which are Beyond this sluggard. There's Divinity:
No, that's my own bread-winner—that be far

'From my poor offspring! Physic? Ha, we'll try
If this be practicable. Where's my wit?
Asleep?—since, now I come to think . . .
Ay, ay!

'Hither, my son! Exactly have I hit
On a profession for thee. Medicus— Behold, thou art appointed! Yea, I spit

'Upon thine eyes, bestow a virtue thus
That henceforth not this human form I wear

Shalt thou perceive alone, but—one of us

'By privilege—thy fleshly sight shall bear
Me in my spirit-person as I walk
The world and take my prey appointed there.

'Doctor once dubbed—what ignorance shall baulk Thy march triumphant? Diagnose the gout
As cholic, and prescribe it cheese for chalk—

'No matter! All's one: cure shall come about
And win thee wealth—fees paid with such a roar
Of thanks and praise alike from lord and lout

'As never stunned man's ears on earth before.

"How may this be?" Why, that's my sceptic! Soon Truth will corrupt thee, soon thou doubt'st no more!

DOCTOR —

'Why is it I bestow on thee the boon
Of recognizing me the while I go Invisibly among men, morning, noon

'And night, from house to house, and—quick or slow—
Take my appointed prey? They summon
thee
For help, suppose: obey the summons!
so!

'Enter, look round! Where's Death?
Know—I am he,
Satan who work all evil: I who bring Pain to the patient in whate'er degree.

'I, then, am there: first glance thine eye shall fling
Will find me—whether distant or at hand,
As I am free to do my spiriting.

'At such mere first glance thou shalt understand
Wherefore I reach no higher up the room Than door or window, when my form is scanned.

'How'er friends' faces please to gather
gloom,
Bent o'er the sick,—how'er himself de-sponds,—
In such case Death is not the sufferer's doom.

'Contrariwise, do friends rejoice my bonds
Are broken, does the captive in his turn Crow "Life shall conquer"? Nip these foolish fronds

'Of hope a-sprout, if haply thou discern Me at the head—my victim's head, be
sure!
Forth now! This taught thee, little else to learn!'

And forth he went. Folk heard him ask demure
'How do you style this ailment? (There he peeps,
My father, through the arras!) Sirs, the cure

'Is plain as A. B. C.! Experience steeps
Blossoms of pennyroyal half an hour In sherris. Sumat!—Lo, how sound he sleeps—

'The subject you presumed was past the
power
Of Galen to relieve! Or else 'How's
this?
Why call for help so tardily? Clouds lour 'Portentously indeed, Sirs! (Nought's
amiss;
He's at the bed-foot merely.) Still, the storm
May pass averted—not by quacks, I wis

'Like you, my masters! You, forsooth, perform
A miracle? Stand, sciolists, aside!
Blood, ne'er so cold, at ignorance grows
warm!'

Which boasting by result was justified, Big as might words be: whether drugged or left Drugless, the patient always lived, not died.

Great the heir's gratitude, so nigh bereft
Of all he prized in this world: sweet the
smile
Of disconcerted rivals: 'Cure?—say, theft
'From Nature in despite of Art—so style This off-hand kill-or-cure work! You did
much,
I had done more: folk cannot wait awhile!'

But did the case change? was it—'Scarcely
such
The symptoms as to warrant our recourse To your skill, Doctor! Yet since just a touch

'Of pulse, a taste of breath, has all the force
With you of long investigation claimed By others,—tracks an ailment to its source

'Intuitively,—may we ask unblamed
What from this pimple you prognosti-
cate?'

'Death!' was the answer, as he saw and
named

The coucher by the sick man's head. 'Too
late
You send for my assistance. I am bold
Only by Nature's leave, and bow to Fate!

'Besides, you have my rivals: lavish gold!
How comfortably quick shall life depart Cosseted by attentions manifold!

'One day, one hour ago, perchance my art Had done some service. Since you have yourselves
Chosen—before the horse—to put the cart,

'Why, Sirs, the sooner that the sexton delves
Your patient's grave, the better! How you stare
—Shallow, for all the deep books on your shelves!

'Fare you well, fumlbers!' Do I need
declare
What name and fame, what riches recompensed
The Doctor's practice? Never anywhere
Such an adept as daily evidenced Each new vaticination! Oh, not he Like dolts who dallied with their scruples fenced

With subterfuge, nor gave out frank and free Something decisive! If he said 'I save The patient,' saved he was: if 'Death will
 be

'His portion,' you might count him dead.
 Thus brave,
 Behold our worthy, sans competitor
 Throughout the country, on the architrave

Of Glory's temple golden-lettered for Machaon redivivus! So, it fell
 That, of a sudden, when the Emperor

Was smit by sore disease, I need not tell
 If any other Doctor's aid was sought
 To come and forthwith make the sick Prince well.

'He will reward thee as a monarch ought.
 Not much imports the malady; but then,
 He clings to life and cries like one distraught

'For thee—who, from a simple citizen, Mayst look to rise in rank,—nay, haply
 wear
 A medal with his portrait,—always when

'Recovery is quite accomplished. There!
 Pass to the presence!' Hardly has he crossed
 The chamber's threshold when he halts,
 aware

Of who stands sentry by the head. All's lost.

'Sire, nought avails my art: you near the
 goal,
 And end the race by giving up the ghost.'

'How?' cried the monarch: 'Names upon your roll
 Of half my subjects rescued by your skill—
 Old and young, rich and poor—crowd cheek by jowl

'And yet no room for mine? Be saved I
 will!

Why else am I earth's foremost potentate?
 Add me to these and take as fee your fill

'Of gold—that point admits of no debate Between us: save me, as you can and
 must,—

Gold, till your gown's pouch cracks beneath the weight!

This touched the Doctor. 'Truly a home-thrust,

Parent, you will not parry! Have I dared Entreat that you forego the meal of dust

'—Man that is snake's meat—when I saw prepared

Your daily portion? Never! Just this once, Go from his head, then,—let his life be spared!'

Whisper met whisper in the gruff response
 'Fool, I must have my prey: no inch I budge
 From where thou see'st me thus myself ensconce.'

'Ah,' moaned the sufferer, 'by thy look I
 judge

Wealth fails to tempt thee: what if honours
 prove

More efficacious? Nought to him I grudge

'Who saves me. Only keep my head above
 The cloud that's creeping round it—I'll divide

My empire with thee! No? What's left but—love?

'Does love allure thee? Well then, take as bride

My only daughter, fair beyond belief!
 Save me—to-morrow shall the knot be tied!'

'Father, you hear him! Respite ne'er so brief

Is all I beg: go now and come again Next day, for aught I care: respect the grief

'Mine will be if thy first-born sues in vain!'
 'Fool, I must have my prey!' was all he got

In answer. But a fancy crossed his brain.

'I have it! Sire, methinks a meteor shot Just now across the heavens and neutralized

Jove's salutary influence: 'neath the blot

'Plumb are you placed now: well that I surmised

The cause of failure! Knaves, reverse the bed!

'Stay!' groaned the monarch, 'I shall be capsized—

'Jolt—jolt—my heels uplift where late my
 head

Was lying—sure I'm turned right round at
 last!

What do you say now, Doctor?' Nought
 he said:

For why? With one brisk leap the Antic
 passed

From couch-foot back to pillow,—as before,

Lord of the situation. Long agast

The Doctor gazed, then 'Yet one trial
 more

Is left me' inwardly he uttered. 'Shame
 Upon thy flinty heart! Do I implore

'This trifling favour in the idle name
 Of mercy to the moribund? I plead
 The cause of all thou dost affect: my aim

DOCTOR —

'Befits my author! Why would I succeed?
Simply that by success I may promote The growth of thy pet virtues—pride and greed.

'But keep thy favours!—curse thee! I devote

Henceforth my service to the other side.
No time to lose: the rattle's in his throat.

'So,—not to leave one last resource untried,—

Run to my house with all haste, somebody!

Bring me that knobstick thence, so often
plied

'With profit by the astrologer—shall I Disdain its help, the mystic Jacob's-Staff?
Sire, do but have the courage not to die

'Till this arrive! Let none of you dare
laugh!

Though rugged its exterior, I have seen That implement work wonders, send the chaff

'Quick and thick flying from the wheat—
I mean,

By metaphor, a human sheaf it thrashed Flail-like. Go fetch it! Or—a word between

'Just you and me, friend!—go bid, unabashed,

My mother, whom you'll find there, bring the stick

Herself—herself, mind!' Out the lackey dashed

Zealous upon the errand. Craft and trick Are meat and drink to Satan: and he grinned

—How else?—at an excuse so politic

For failure: scarce would Jacob's-Staff rescind

Fate's firm decree! And ever as he neared
The agonizing one, his breath like wind

Froze to the marrow, while his eye-flash seared

Sense in the brain up: closelier and more
close

Pressing his prey, when at the door appeared

—Who but his Wife the Bad? Whereof one dose,

One grain, one mite of the medicament, Sufficed him. Up he sprang. One word, too gross

To soil my lips with,—and through ceiling
went

Somehow the Husband. 'That a storm's
dispersed

We know for certain by the sulphury scent!

'Hail to the Doctor! Who but one so versed

In all Dame Nature's secrets had prescribed

The staff thus opportunely? Style him
first

'And foremost of physicians!' 'I've imbibed

Elixir surely,' smiled the prince,—'have gained

New lease of life. Dear Doctor, how you bribed

'Death to forego me, boots not: you've obtained

My daughter and her dowry. Death, I've
heard,

Was still on earth the strongest power that reigned,

'Except a Bad Wife!' Whereunto demurred

Nowise the Doctor, so refused the fee
—No dowry, no bad wife!

'You think absurd
This tale?'—the Rabbi added: 'True, our Talmud

Boasts sundry such: yet—have our elders erred

In thinking there's some water there, not all mud?'

I tell it, as the Rabbi told it me.

PAN AND LUNA

Si credere dignum est.—Georgic. iii. 390.

O WORTHY of belief I hold it was,
Virgil, your legend in those strange three lines!

No question, that adventure came to pass
One black night in Arcadia: yes, the pines, Mountains and valleys mingling made one
mass

Of black with void black heaven: the earth's confines,

The sky's embrace, — below, above,
around,

All hardened into black without a bound.

Fill up a swart stone chalice to the brim
With fresh-squeezed yet fast-thickening poppy-juice:

See how the sluggish jelly, late a-swim, Turns marble to the touch of who would
loose

The solid smooth, grown jet from rim to
rim,

By turning round the bowl! So night can fuse

Earth with her all-comprising sky. No
less,

Light, the least spark, shows air and emptiness.

And thus it proved when—diving into space,

Strip of all vapour, from each web of mist
Utterly film-free—entered on her race

The naked Moon, full-orbed antagonist
Of night and dark, night's dowry: peak to base,

Upstart mountains, and each valley,
kissed

To sudden life, lay silver-bright: in air Flew she revealed, Maid-Moon with limbs all bare.

Still as she fled, each depth—where refuge seemed—

Opening a lone pale chamber, left distinct Those limbs: mid still-retreating blue, she teemed

Herself with whiteness,—virginal, uncinet
By any halo save what finely gleamed

To outline not disguise her: heaven was linked

In one accord with earth to quaff the joy,
Drain beauty to the dregs without alloy.

Whereof she grew aware. What help?
When, lo,

A succourable cloud with sleep lay dense:
Some pine-tree-top had caught it sailing
slow,

And tethered for a prize: in evidence Captive lay fleece on fleece of piled-up
snow

Drowsily patient: flake-heaped how or
whence,

The structure of that succourable cloud, What matter? Shamed she plunged into its shroud.

Orbed—so the woman-figure poets call Because of rounds on rounds—that appleshaped

Head which its hair binds close into a ball
Each side the curving ears—that pure undraned

Pout of the sister paps—that . . . Once for
all,

Say—her consummate circle thus escaped
With its innumerable circlets, sank absorbed,

Safe in the cloud—O naked Moon fullorbed!

But what means this? The downy swathes
combine,

Conglobe, the smothery coy-caressing
stuff

Curdles about her! Vain each twist and twine

Those lithe limbs try, encroached on by a fluff

Fitting as close as fits the dented spine
Its flexile ivory outside-flesh: enough!

The plumy drifts contract, condense, constringe,

Till she is swallowed by the feathery
springe.

As when a pearl slips lost in the thin foam Churned on a sea-shore, and, o'er-frothed, conceits

Herself safe-housed in Amphitrite's
dome,—

If, through the bladdery wave-worked yeast, she meets

What most she loathes and leaps from,— elf from gnome

No gladlier,—finds that safest of retreats Bubble about a treacherous hand wide ope

To grasp her—(divers who pick pearls so grope)—

So lay this Maid-Moon clasped around and caught

By rough red Pan, the god of all that tract:
He it was schemed the snare thus subtly
wrought

With simulated earth-breath, — wooltufts packed

Into a billowy wrappage. Sheep far-
sought

For spotless shearings yield such: take the
fact

As learned Virgil gives it,—how the breed
Whitens itself for ever: yes, indeed!

If one forefather ram, though pure as chalk

From tinge on fleece, should still display a tongue

Black 'neath the beast's moist palate, prompt men baulk

The propagating plague: he gets no young:
They rather slay him,—sell his hide to caulk

Ships with, first steeped in pitch,—nor hands are wrung

In sorrow for his fate: protected thus,
The purity we love is gained for us.

So did Girl-moon, by just her attribute Of unmatched modesty betrayed, lie trapped,

Bruised to the breast of Pan, half-god half-
brute,

Raked by his bristly boar-sword while he lapped

—Never say, kissed her! that were to pollute

Love's language—which moreover proves unapt

To tell how she recoiled—as who finds thorns

Where she sought flowers—when, feeling, she touched—horns!

PAN AND LUNA

Then—does the legend say?—first moon-eclipse Happened, first swooning-fit which puzzled sore
The early sages? Is that why she dips
Into the dark, a minute and no more,
Only so long as serves her while she rips
The cloud's womb through and, faultless
as before,
Pursues her way? No lesson for a maid Left she, a maid herself thus trapped, betrayed?

Ha, Virgil? Tell the rest, you! 'To the deep
Of his domain the wildwood, Pan forth-
with Called her, and so she followed'—in her
sleep,
Surely?—'by no means spurning him.'
The myth
Explain who may! Let all else go, I keep —As of a ruin just a monolith—

Thus much, one verse of five words, each a boon:
Arcadia, night, a cloud, Pan, and the moon.

'TOUCH him ne'er so lightly, into song he
broke:
Soil so quick-receptive,—not one feather-seed,
Not one flower-dust fell but straight its fall awoke
Vitalizing virtue: song would song succeed Sudden as spontaneous—prove a poet-
soul!'

Indeed?
Rock's the song-soil rather, surface hard and bare:
Sun and dew their mildness, storm and frost their rage
Vainly both expend,—few flowers awaken
there:
Quiet in its cleft broods—what the after age Knows and names a pine, a nation's heritage.

JOCOSERIA

1883

WANTING is—what?
Summer redundant,
Blueness abundant,
—Where is the blot?

Beamy the world, yet a blank all the same,
—Framework which waits for a picture to
frame:

What of the leafage, what of the flower?
Roses embowering with nought they embower!

Come then, complete incompleteness, O corner,

Pant through the blueness, perfect the summer!

Breathe but one breath
Rose-beauty above,
And all that was death
Grows life, grows love,
Grows love!

DONALD

'WILL you hear my story also,
—Huge Sport, brave adventure in plenty?'

The boys were a band from Oxford,
The oldest of whom was twenty.

The bothy we held carouse in
Was bright with fire and candle;
Tale followed tale like a merry-go-round
Whereof Sport turned the handle.

In our eyes and noses—turf-smoke:
In our ears a tune from the trivet,
Whence 'Boiling, boiling,' the kettle sang,
'And ready for fresh Glenlivet.'

So, feat capped feat, with a vengeance:
Truths, though,—the lads were loyal:
'Grouse, five score brace to the bag!
Deer, ten hours' stalk of the Royal!'

Of boasting, not one bit, boys!
Only there seemed to settle Somehow above your curly heads,
—Plain through the singing kettle,

Palpable through the cloud,
As each new-puffed Havanna
Rewarded the teller's well-told tale,
This vaunt 'To Sport—Hosanna!

'Hunt, fish, shoot,
Would a man fulfil life's duty!
Not to the bodily frame alone
Does Sport give strength and beauty.

'But character gains in—courage?
Ay, Sir, and much beside it!
You don't sport, more's the pity:
You soon would find, if you tried it,

'Good sportsman means good fellow,
Sound-hearted he, to the centre;
Your mealy-mouthed mild milksofs
—There's where the rot can enter!

'There's where the dirt will breed,
The shabbiness Sport would banish!
Oh no, Sir, no! In your honoured case
All such objections vanish.

'Tis known how hard you studied:
A Double-First—what, the jigger!
Give me but half your Latin and Greek,
I'll never again touch trigger!

'Still, tastes are tastes, allow me!
Allow, too, where there's keenness
For Sport, there's little likelihood Of a man's displaying meanness!'

So, put on my mettle, I interposed.
'Will you hear my story?' quoth I.

'Never mind how long since it happened,
I sat, as we sit, in a bothy;

'With as merry a band of mates, too,
Undergrads all on a level:
(One's a Bishop, one's gone to the Bench,
And one's gone—well, to the Devil.)

'When, lo, a scratching and tapping!
In hobbled a ghastly visitor.
Listen to just what he told us himself
—No need of our playing inquisitor!'

Do you happen to know in Ross-shire Mount . . . Ben . . . but the name scarce matters:

Of the naked fact I am sure enough,
Though I clothe it in rags and tatters.

You may recognise Ben by description;
Behind him—a moor's immenseness:
Up goes the middle mount of a range,
Fringed with its firs in denseness.

Rimming the edge, its fir-fringe, mind!
For an edge there is, though narrow;
From end to end of the range, a stripe
Of path runs straight as an arrow.

And the mountaineer who takes that path
Saves himself miles of journey
He has to plod if he crosses the moor
Through heather, peat and burnie.

But a mountaineer he needs must be,
For, look you, right in the middle Projects bluff Ben—with an end in icht—
Why planted there, is a riddle:

Since all Ben's brothers little and big Keep rank, set shoulder to shoulder,
And only this burliest out must bulge
Till it seems—to the beholder

From down in the gully,—as if Ben's
breast

To a sudden spike diminished,
Would signify to the boldest foot
'All further passage finished!'

Yet the mountaineer who sidles on
And on to the very bending,
Discovers, if heart and brain be proof,
No necessary ending.

Foot up, foot down, to the turn abrupt Having trod, he, there arriving, Finds—what he took for a point was
breadth,
A mercy of Nature's contriving.

So, he rounds what, when 'tis reached,
proves straight,
From one side gains the other:
The wee path widens—resume the march,
And he foils you, Ben my brother!

But Donald—(that name, I hope, will
do)—
I wrong him if I call 'foiling'
The tramp of the callant, whistling the
while
As blithe as our kettle's boiling.

He had dared the danger from boyhood
up,
And now,—when perchance was waiting
A lass at the brig below,—'twixt mount
And moor would he stand debating?

Moreover this Donald was twenty-five,
A glory of bone and muscle:
Did a fiend dispute the right of way,
Donald would try a tussle.

Lightsomely marched he out of the broad
On to the narrow and narrow;
A step more, rounding the angular rock,
Reached the front straight as an arrow.

He stepped it, safe on the ledge he stood,
When—whom found he full-facing?
What fellow in courage and wariness too,
Had scouted ignoble pacing,

And left low safety to timid mates,
And made for the dread dear danger,
And gained the height where—who could
guess
He would meet with a rival ranger?

'Twas a gold-red stag that stood and stared,
Gigantic and magnific,
By the wonder—ay, and the peril—struck
Intelligent and pacific:

For a red deer is no fallow deer
Grown cowardly through park-feeding;
He batters you like a thunderbolt
If you brave his haunts unheeding.

I doubt he could hardly perform volte-face
Had valour advised discretion:
You may walk on a rope, but to turn on a rope
No Blondin makes profession.

DONALD

Yet Donald must turn, would pride permit,
Though pride ill brooks retiring:

Each eyed each—mute man, motionless beast—
Less fearing than admiring.

These are the moments when quite fiew sense,

To meet some need as novel,
Springs up in the brain: it inspired resource:

—‘Nor advance nor retreat but—grovel!’

And slowly, surely, never a whit
Relaxing the steady tension
Of eye-stare which binds man to beast,—
By an inch and inch declension,

Sank Donald sidewise down and down:
Till flat, breast upwards, lying At his six-foot length, no corpse more still,
—‘If he cross me! The trick’s worth trying.’

Minutes were an eternity;
But a new sense was created
In the stag’s brain too; he resolves! Slow,
sure,
With eye-stare unabated,

Feelingly he extends a foot
Which tastes the way ere it touches
Earth’s solid and just escapes man’s soft,
Nor hold of the same unclutches

Till its fellow foot, light as a feather whisk,
Lands itself no less finely:
So a mother removes a fly from the face
Of her babe asleep supinely.

And now ’tis the haunch and hind foot’s turn
—That’s hard: can the beast quite raise it?

Yes, traversing half the prostrate length,
His hoof-tip does not graze it.

Just one more lift! But Donald, you see,
Was sportsman first, man after:
A fancy lightened his caution through,
—He well-nigh broke into laughter.

‘It were nothing short of a miracle!
Unrivalled, unexampled—
All sporting feats with this feat matched
Were down and dead and trampled!’

The last of the legs as tenderly Follows the rest: or never
Or now is the time! His knife in reach,
And his right-hand loose—how clever!

For this can stab up the stomach’s soft,
While the left-hand grasps the pastern.
A rise on the elbow, and—now’s the time
Or never: this turn’s the last turn!

I shall dare to place myself by God Who scanned—for He does—each feature
Of the face thrown up in appeal to Him
By the agonizing creature.

Nay, I hear plain words: ‘Thy gift brings this!’

Up he sprang, back he staggered,
Over he fell, and with him our friend
—At following game no laggard.

Yet he was not dead when they picked next day

From the gully’s depth the wreck of him;

His fall had been stayed by the stag beneath
Who cushioned and saved the neck of him.

But the rest of his body—why, doctors said,
Whatever could break was broken;
Legs, arms, ribs, all of him looked like a toast

In a tumbler of port-wine soaked.

‘That your life is left you, thank the stag!’
Said they when—the slow cure ended—
They opened the hospital door, and thence —Strapped, spliced, main fractures mended,

And minor damage left wisely alone,—
Like an old shoe clouted and cobbled,
Out—what went in a Goliath well-nigh,—
Some half of a David hobbled.

‘You must ask an alms from house to house:

Sell the stag’s head for a bracket,
With its grand twelve times—I’d buy it myself—
And use the skin for a jacket!’

He was wiser, made both head and hide
His win-penny: hands and knees on,
Would manage to crawl—poor crab—by the roads
In the misty stalking-season.

And if he discovered a bothy like this,
Why, harvest was sure: folk listened.
He told his tale to the lovers of Sport:
Lips twitched, cheeks glowed, eyes glistened.

And when he had come to the close, and spread

His spoils for the gazers’ wonder,
With ‘Gentlemen, here’s the skull of the stag
I was over, thank God, not under!’—

The company broke out in applause;
‘By Jingo, a lucky cripple!’

Have a munch of grouse and a hunk of bread,
And a tug, besides, at our tippie!

And 'There's my pay for your pluck!' cried This,
 'And mine for your jolly story!' Cried That, while T'other—but he was drunk—Hiccapped 'A trump, a Tory!' I hope I gave twice as much as the rest;
 For, as Homer would say, 'within grate Though teeth kept tongue, 'my whole soul growled
 'Rightly rewarded,—Ingrate!'

SOLOMON AND BALKIS

SOLOMON King of the Jews and the Queen of Sheba Balkis Talk on the ivory throne, and we well may conjecture their talk is Solely of things sublime: why else has she sought Mount Zion, Climbed the six golden steps, and sat betwixt lion and lion?

She proves him with hard questions: before she has reached the middle
 He smiling supplies the end, straight solves them riddle by riddle;
 Until, dead-beaten at last, there is left no spirit in her,
 And thus would she close the game whereof she was first beginner:

'O wisest thou of the wise, world's marvel and well-nigh monster,
 One crabbed question more to construe or vulgo conster!
 Who are those, of all mankind, a monarch of perfect wisdom
 Should open to, when they knock at spheteron do—that's his dome?'

The King makes tart reply: 'Whom else but the wise his equals Should he welcome with heart and voice?—since, king though he be, such weak walls
 Of circumstance—power and pomp—divide souls each from other
 That whoso proves kingly in craft I needs must acknowledge my brother.

'Come poet, come painter, come sculptor, come builder—whate'er his condition,
 Is he prime in his art? We are peers! My insight has pierced the partition
 And hails—for the poem, the picture, the statue, the building—my fellow!
 Gold's gold though dim in the dust: court-polish soon turns it yellow.

'But tell me in turn, O thou to thy weakling sex superior,
 That for knowledge has travelled so far yet seemest no whit the wearier,—

Who are those, of all mankind, a queen like thyself, consummate
 In wisdom, should call to her side with an affable "Up hither, come, mate!"'

'The Good are my mates—how else? 'Why doubt it?' the Queen upbided:
 'Sure even above the Wise,—or in travel my eyes have idled,—
 I see the Good stand plain: be they rich, poor, shrewd or simple,
 If Good they only are. . . . Permit me to drop my wimple!'

And in that bashful jerk of her body, she—peace, thou scoffer!—
 Jostled the King's right-hand stretched courteously help to proffer,
 And so disclosed a portent: all unaware the Prince eyed
 The Ring which bore the Name—turned outside now from inside!

The truth-compelling Name!—and at once 'I greet the Wise—Oh,
 Certainly welcome such to my court—with this proviso:
 The building must be my temple, my person stand forth the statue,
 The picture my portrait prove, and the poem my praise—you cat, you!'

But Solomon nonplussed? Nay! 'Be truthful in turn!' so bade he:
 'See the Name, obey its hest!' And at once subjoins the lady —'Provided the Good are the young, men strong and tall and proper,
 Such servants I straightway enlist,—which means . . . ' but the blushes stop her.

'Ah, Soul,' the Monarch sighed, 'that wouldst soar yet ever crawlest, How comes it thou canst discern the greatest yet choose the smallest,
 Unless because heaven is far, where wings find fit expansion,
 While creeping on all-fours suits, suffices the earthly mansion?

'Aspire to the Best! But which? There are Bests and Bests so many,
 With a habitat each for each, earth's Best as much Best as any!
 On Lebanon roots the cedar—soil lofty, yet stony and sandy—While hyssop, of worth in its way, on the wall grows low but handy.

'Above may the Soul spread wing, spurn body and sense beneath her;
 Below she must condescend to plodding unbuoyed by aether.

SOLOMON AND BALKIS

In heaven I yearn for knowledge, account
all else inanity;
On earth I confess an itch for the praise of fools—that's Vanity.

'It is nought, it will go, it can never presume above to trouble me;
But here,—why, it toys and tickles and teases, how'er I redouble me In a doggedest of endeavours to play the indifferent. Therefore,
Suppose we resume discourse? Thou hast travelled thus far; but wherefore?

'Solely for Solomon's sake, to see whom earth styles Sagest?'
Through her blushes laughed the Queen.
'For the sake of a Sage? The gay jest!
On high, be communion with Mind—
there, Body concerns not Balkis:
Down here,—do I make too bold? Sage Solomon,—one fool's small kiss!'

CRISTINA AND MONALDESCHI

Ah, but how each loved each, Marquis!
Here's the gallery they trod
Both together, he her god,
She his idol,—lend your rod,
Chamberlain!—ay, there they are—'Quis Separabit?'—plain those two Touching words come into view,
Apposite for me and you:

Since they witness to incessant Love like ours: King Francis, he—Diane the adored one, she—Prototypes of you and me.
Everywhere is carved her Crescent
With his Salamander-sign—
Flame-fed creature: flame benign
To itself or, if malign,

Only to the meddling curious,
—So, be warned, Sir! Where's my
head?
How it wanders! What I said
Merely meant—the creature, fed
Thus on flame, was scarce injurious
Save to fools who woke its ire,
Thinking fit to play with fire,
'Tis the Crescent you admire?

Then, be Diane! I'll be Francis.
Crescents change,—true!—wax and wane,
Woman-like: male hearts retain
Heat nor, once warm, cool again.
So, we figure—such our chance is—
I as man and you as . . . What?
Take offence? My Love forgot
He plays woman, I do not?

I—the woman? See my habit,
Ask my people! Anyhow,
Be we what we may, one vow
Binds us, male or female. Now,— Stand, Sir! Read! 'Quis separabit?'
Half a mile of pictured way
Past these palace-walls to-day
Traversed, this I came to say.

You must needs begin to love me;
First I hated, then, at best,
—Have it so!—I acquiesced;
Pure compassion did the rest.
From below thus raised above me,
Would you, step by step, descend,
Pity me, become my friend,
Like me, like less, loathe at end?

That's the ladder's round you rose by!
That—my own foot kicked away,
Having raised you: let it stay,
Serve you for retreating? Nay.
Close to me you climbed: as close by,
Keep your station, though the peak Reached proves somewhat bare and bleak!
Woman's strong if man is weak.

Keep here, loving me forever!
Love's lock, gesture, speech, I claim;
Act love, lie love, all the same—
Play as earnest were our game!
Lonely I stood long: 'twas clever
When you climbed, before men's eyes,
Spurned the earth and scaled the skies,
Gained my peak and grasped your prize.

Here you stood, then, to men's wonder;
Here you tire of standing? Kneel!
Cure what giddiness you feel,
This way! Do your senses reel?
Not unlikely! What rolls under?
Yawning death in yon abyss
Where the waters whirl and hiss
Round more frightful peaks than this.

Should my buffet dash you thither . . .
But be sage! No watery grave
Needs await you: seeming brave
Kneel on safe, dear timid slave!
You surmised, when you climbed hither,
Just as easy were retreat
Should you tire, conceive unmeet
Longer patience at my feet?

Me as standing, you as stooping,—
Who arranged for each the pose?
Lest men think us friends turned foes,
Keep the attitude you chose!
Men are used to this same grouping—
I and you like statues seen.
You and I, no third between,
Kneel and stand! That makes the scene.

CRISTINA AND MONALDESCHI

MARY WOLLSTONECRAFT AND FUSELI

Mar it—and one buffet . . . Pardon!
Needless warmth—wise words in waste!
'Twas prostration that replaced
Kneeling, then? A proof of taste.
Crouch, not kneel, while I mount guard on Prostrate love—become no wail,
No estray to waves that chafe
Disappointed—love's so safe!

Waves that chafe? The idlest fancy!
Peaks that scare? I think we know Walls enclose our sculpture: so Grouped, we pose in Fontainebleau.
Up now! Wherefore hesitancy?
Arm in arm and cheek by cheek,
Laugh with me at waves and peak!
Silent still? Why, pictures speak.

See, where Juno strikes Ixion, Primate speaks plainly! Pooh—
Rather, Florentine Le Roux!
I've lost head for who is who—
So it swims and wanders! Fie on What still proves the female! Here, By the staircase!—for we near
That dark 'Gallery of the Deer.'

Look me in the eyes once! Steady!
Are you faithful now as erst
On that eve when we two first Vowed at Avon, blessed and cursed Faith and falsehood? Pale already?
Forward! Must my hand compel Entrance—this way? Exit—well, Somehow, somewhere. Who can tell?

What if to the self-same place in Rustic Avon, at the door
Of the village church once more,
Where a tombstone paves the floor
By that holy-water basin
You appealed to—"As, below,
This stone hides its corpse, e'en so I your secrets hide"? What ho!

Friends, my four! You, Priest, confess
him!
I have judged the culprit there:
Execute my sentence! Care
For no mail such cowards wear!
Done, Priest? Then, absolve and bless
him!
Now—you three, stab thick and fast,
Deep and deeper! Dead at last?
Thanks, friends—Father, thanks!
Aghast?

What one word of his confession
Would you tell me, though I lured
With that royal crown abjured
Just because its bars immured
Love too much? Love burst compression, Fled free, finally confessed
All its secrets to that breast
Whence . . . let Avon tell the rest!

Oh but is it not hard, Dear?
Mine are the nerves to quake at a mouse:
If a spider drops I shrink with fear:
I should die outright in a haunted house;
While for you—did the danger dared bring
help—

From a lion's den I could steal his whelp,
With a serpent round me, stand stock-still,
Go sleep in a churchyard,—so would will Give me the power to dare and do
Valiantly—just for you!

Much amiss in the head, Dear,
I toil at a language, tax my brain
Attempting to draw—the scratches here!
I play, play, practise and all in vain:
But for you—if my triumph brought you
pride,

I would grapple with Greek Plays till I
died,
Paint a portrait of you—who can tell?
Work my fingers off for your 'Pretty well':
Language and painting and music too,
Easily done—for you!

Strong and fierce in the heart, Dear,
With—more than a will—what seems a power
To pounce on my prey, love outbroke here
In flame devouring and to devour.
Such love has laboured its best and worst
To win me a lover; yet, last as first,
I have not quickened his pulse one beat,
Fixed a moment's fancy, bitter or sweet:
Yet the strong fierce heart's love's labour's
due,
Utterly lost, was—you!

ADAM, LILITH, AND EVE

ONE day it thundered and lightened,
Two women, fairly frightened, Sank to their knees, transformed, trans-
fixed,
At the feet of the man who sat betwixt;
And 'Mercy!' cried each—if I tell the
truth
Of a passage in my youth!

Said This: 'Do you mind the morning
I met your love with scorning?
As the worst of the venom left my lips,
I thought "If, despite this lie, he strips
The mask from my soul with a kiss—I crawl
His slave,—soul, body and all!"'

Said That: 'We stood to be married;
The priest, or someone, tarried;
"If Paradise-door prove locked?" smiled
you;
I thought, as I nodded, smiling too,
"Did one, that's away, arrive—nor late Nor soon should unlock Hell's gate!"'

ADAM, LILITH, AND EVE

It ceased to lighten and thunder.
Up started both in wonder,
Looked round and saw that the sky was
clear,
Then laughed 'Confess you believed us,
Dear!'
'I saw through the joke!' the man replied
They re-seated themselves beside.

IXION

HIGH in the dome, suspended, of Hell, sad triumph, behold us!
Here the revenge of a God, there the amends of a Man.
Whirling forever in torment, flesh once mortal, immortal
Made—for a purpose of hate—able to die and revive,
Pays to the uttermost pang, then, newly for payment replenished, Doles out—old yet young—agonies ever afresh;
Whence the result above me: torment is bridged by a rainbow,— Tears, sweat, blood,—each spasm, ghastly once, glorified now.
Wrung, by the rush of the wheel ordained my place of reposing, Off in a sparklike spray,—flesh become vapour thro' pain,— Flies the bestowment of Zeus, soul's vaunted bodily vesture,
Made that his feats observed gain the approval of Man,— Flesh that he fashioned with sense of the earth and the sky and the ocean.
Framed should pierce to the star, fitted to pore on the plant,—
All, for a purpose of hate, re-framed, refashioned, re-fitted Till, consummate at length,—lo, the employment of sense!
Pain's mere minister now to the soul, once pledged to her pleasure—
Soul, if untrammelled by flesh, unappre-hensive of pain!
Body, professed soul's slave, which serving beguiled and betrayed her,
Made things false seem true, cheated thro' eye and thro' ear, Lured thus heart and brain to believe in the lying reported,— Spurn but the traitorous slave, utter-most atom, away,
What should obstruct soul's rush on the real, the only apparent?
Say I have erred,—how else? Was I Ixion or Zeus?
Foiled by my senses I dreamed; I doubtless awaken in wonder:
This proves shine, that—shade? Good was the evil that seemed?

Shall I, with sight thus gained, by torture be taught I was blind once?
Sisuphos, teaches thy stone—Tantalos, teaches thy thirst
Aught which unaided sense, purged pure, less plainly demonstrates?
No, for the past was dream: now that the dreamers awake, Sisuphos scouts low fraud, and to Tantalos treason is folly.
Ask of myself, whose form melts on the murderous wheel,
What is the sin which throe and throe prove sin to the sinner!
Say the false charge was true,—thus do
I expiate, say,
Arrogant thought, word, deed,—mere man who conceived me godlike, Sat beside Zeus, my friend—knelt before Heré, my love!
What were the need but of pitying power to touch and disperse it,
* Film-work—eye's and ear's—all the distraction of sense?
How should the soul not see, not hear,— perceive and as plainly Render, in thought, word, deed, back again truth—not a li:
'Ay, but the pain is to punish thee!' Zeus,
once more, for a pastime, Play the familiar, the frank! Speak and have speech in return!
I was of Thessaly king, there ruled and a people obeyed me:
Mine to establish the law, theirs to obey
it or die:
Wherefore? Because of the good to the people, because of the honour Thence accruing to me, king, the king's law was supreme.
What of the weakling, the ignorant criminal? Not who, excuseless, Breaking my law braved death, knowing his deed and its due—Nay, but the feeble and foolish, the poor transgressor, of purpose
No whit more than a tree, born to erect-ness of bole,
Palm or plane or pine, we laud if lofty,
columnar—
Loathe if athwart, askew,—leave to the axe and the flame!
Where is the vision may penetrate earth and beholding acknowledge Just one pebble at root ruined the straightness of stem?
Whose fine vigilance follows the sapling,
accounts for the failure,
—Here blew wind, so it bent: there the snow lodged, so it broke?
Also the tooth of the beast, bird's bill, mere bite of the insect Gnawed, gnarled, warped their worst:
passive it lay to offence.

King—I was man, no more: what I recognized faulty I punished, Laying it prone: be sure, more than a man had I proved,
 Watch and ward o'er the sapling at birth-time had saved it, nor simply Owned the distortion's excuse,—hindered it wholly: nay, more—
 Even a man, as I sat in my place to do judgment, and pallid Criminals passing to doom shuddered away at my foot,
 Could I have probed thro' the face to the heart, read plain a repentance,
 Crime confessed fools' play, virtue ascribed to the wise,
 Had I not stayed the consignment to doom, not dealt the renewed ones
 Life to retrace the past, light to retrieve the misdeed?
 Thus had I done, and thus to have done much more it behoves thee,
 Zeus who madest man—flawless or faulty, thy work!
 What if the charge were true, as thou moutheest,—Ixion the cherished Minion of Zeus grew vain, vied with the godships and fell, Forfeit thro' arrogance? Stranger! I clothed, with the grace of our human,
 Inhumanity—gods, natures I likened to ours.
 Man among men I had borne me till gods forsooth must regard me
 —Nay, must approve, applaud, claim as a comrade at last,
 Summoned to enter their circle, I sat—their equal, how other?
 Love should be absolute love, faith in its fulness or nought.
 'I am thy friend, be mine!' smiled Zeus: 'If Heré attract thee,' Blushed the imperial check, 'then—as thy heart may suggest!
 Faith in me sprang to the faith, my love hailed love as its fellow,
 'Zeus, we are friends—how fast! Heré, my heart for thy heart!'
 Then broke smile into fury of frown, and the thunder of 'Hence, fool!'
 Then thro' the kiss laughed scorn 'Limbs or a cloud was to clasp?'
 Then from Olympus to Erebus, then from the rapture to torment, Then from the fellow of gods—misery's mate, to the man!
 —Man henceforth and forever, who lent from the glow of his nature Warmth to the cold, with light coloured the black and the blank.
 So did a man conceive of your passion, you passion-protesters!
 So did he trust, so love—being the truth of your lie!

You to aspire to be Man! Man made you who vainly would ape him:
 You are the hollowness, he—filling you, falsifies void.
 Even as—witness the emblem, Hell's sad triumph suspended,
 Born of my tears, sweat, blood—bursting to vapour above—
 Arching my torment, an iris ghostlike startles the darkness, Cold white—jewelry quenched—justifies, glorifies pain.
 Strive, mankind, though strife endure through endless obstruction,
 Stage after stage, each rise marred by as certain a fall!
 Baffled forever—yet never so baffled but, e'en in the baffling,
 When Man's strength proves weak, checked in the body or soul—
 Whatsoever the medium, flesh or essence, —Ixion's Made for a purpose of hate,—clothing the entity Thou, —Medium whence that entity strives for the Not-Thou beyond it, Fire elemental, free, frame unencumbered, the All,—
 Never so baffled but—when, on the verge of an alien existence, Heartened to press, by pangs burst to the infinite Pure,
 Nothing is reached but the ancient weakness still that arrests strength, Circumambient still, still the poor human array,
 Pride and revenge and hate and cruelty—all it has burst through,
 Thought to escape,—fresh formed, found in the fashion it fled,— Never so baffled but—when Man pays the price of endeavour, Thunderstruck, downthrust, Tartaros—doomed to the wheel,—
 Then, ay, then, from the tears and sweat and blood of his torment, E'en from the triumph of Hell, up let him look and rejoice!
 What is the influence, high o'er Hell, that turns to a rapture
 Pain—and despair's murky mists blends in a rainbow of hope?
 What is beyond the obstruction, stage by stage tho' it baffle?
 Back must I fall, confess 'Ever the weakness I fled?'
 No, for beyond, far, far is a Purity all-unobstructed!
 Zeus was Zeus—not Man: wrecked by his weakness, I whirl.
 Out of the wreck I rise—past Zeus to the Potency o'er him!
 I—to have hailed him my friend! I—to have clasped her—my love!

IXION

Pallid birth of my pain,—where light, where light is, aspiring Thither I rise, whilst thou—Zeus, keep the godship and sink!

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

'THIS now, this other story makes amends
And justifies our Mishna,' quoth the Jew Aforesaid. 'Tell it, learnedest of friends!'

A certain morn broke beautiful and blue O'er Schiphaz city, bringing joy and mirth, —So had ye deemed; while the reverse was true,

Since one small house there gave a sorrow
birth
In such black sort that, to each faithful eye, Midnight, not morning settled on the
earth.

How else, when it grew certain thou wouldst die
Our much-enlightened master, Israel's
prop,
Eximious Jochanan Ben Sabbathai?

Old, yea but, undiminished of a drop,
The vital essence pulsed through heart and
brain;

Time left unsickled yet the plenteous crop
On poll and chin and cheek, whereof a skein Handmaids might weave—hairs silk-soft,
silver-white,
Such as the wool-plant's; none the less in
vain

Had Physic striven her best against the spite
Of fell disease; the Rabbi must succumb;
And, round the couch whereon in piteous
plight

He lay a-dying, scholars,—awe-struck,
dumb

Throughout the night-watch,—roused themselves and spoke

One to the other: 'Ere death's touch be-numb

'His active sense,—while yet 'neath
Reason's yoke

Obedient toils his tongue,—befits we claim
The fruit of long experience, bid this oak

'Shed us an acorn which may, all the same,
Grow to a temple-pillar,—dear that day!—
When Israel's scattered seed finds place and name

'Among the envious nations. Lamp us,
pray,

Thou the Enlightener! Partest hence in
peace?

Hailst without regret—much less, dis-
may—

'The hour of thine approximate release From fleshly bondage soul hath found obstruct?

Calmly envisagest the sure increase

'Of knowledge? Eden's tree must hold unplucked

Some apple, sure, has never tried thy tooth, Juicy with sapience thou hast sought, not sucked?

'Say, does age acquiesce in vanished
youth?

Still towers thy purity above—as erst—
Our pleasant follies? Be thy last word—
truth!'

The Rabbi groaned; then, grimly, 'Last as first

The truth speak I—in boyhood who began Striving to live an angel, and, amerced

'For such presumption, die now hardly
man.

What have I proved of life? To live, in-
deed,

That much I learned: but here lies Jochanan

'More luckless than stood David when, to speed

His fighting with the Philistine, they brought

Saul's harness forth: whereat, "Alack, I
need

"Armour to arm me, but have never fought

With sword and spear, nor tried to manage shield,

Proving arms' use, as well-trained warrior ought.

"Only a sling and pebbles can I wield!"
So he: while I, contrariwise, "No trick

Of weapon helpful on the battle-field

"Comes unfamiliar to my theoretic:
But, bid me put in practice what I know,
Give me a sword—it stings like Moses'
stick,

"A serpent I let drop apace." E'en so,
I,—able to comport me at each stage
Of human life as never here below

'Man played his part,—since mine the heritage

Of wisdom carried to that perfect pitch, Ye rightly praise,—I, therefore, who, thus
sage,

'Could sure act man triumphantly, enrich Life's annals with example how I played Lover, Bard, Soldier, Statist,—(all of which

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

'Parts in presentment failing, cries invade
The world's ear—"Ah, the Past, the pearl-gift thrown
To hogs, time's opportunity we made

"So light of, only recognized when flown!
Had we been wise!"—in fine, I—wise
enough,—
What profit brings me wisdom never shown

'Just when its showing would from each
rebuff
Shelter weak virtue, threaten back to
bounds
Encroaching vice, tread smooth each track too rough

'For youth's unsteady footstep, climb the rounds
Of life's long ladder, one by slippery one, Yet make no stumble? Me hard fate con-
founds

'With that same crowd of wailers I outrun
By promising to teach another cry
Of more hilarious mood than theirs, the
sun

'I look my last at is insulted by.
What cry,—ye ask? Give ear on every
side!
Witness yon Lover! "How entrapped am I!

"Methought, because a virgin's rose-lip vied
With ripe Khubbezleh's, needs must beauty mate
With meekness and discretion in a bride:

"Bride she became to me who wail—too
late—Unwise I loved!" That's one cry. "Mind's my gift:
I might have loaded me with lore, full
weight

"Pressed down and running over at each
rift
O' the brain-bag where the famished clung and fed.
I filled it with what rubbish!—would not sift

"The wheat from chaff, sound grain from musty—shed
Poison abroad as oft as nutriment—
And sighing say but as my fellows said,

"Unwise I learned!" That's two. "In dwarf's-play spent
Was giant's prowess: warrior all unversed In war's right waging, I struck brand, was lent

"For steel's fit service, on mere stone—and cursed Alike the shocked limb and the shivered
steel,
Seeing too late the blade's true use which erst

"How was I blind to! My cry swells the peal—
Unwise I fought!" That's three. But wherefore waste
Breath on the wailings longer? Why reveal 'A root of bitterness whereof the taste
Is noisome to Humanity at large?
First we get Power, but Power absurdly placed

'In Folly's keeping, who resigns her charge
To Wisdom when all Power grows nothing
worth:
Bones marrowless are mocked with helm and targe

'When, like your Master's, soon below the
earth
With worms shall warfare only be. Fare
well,
Children! I die a failure since my birth!'

'Not so!' arose a protest as, pell-mell, They pattered from his chamber to the
street,
Bent on a last resource. Our Targums tell That such resource there is. Put case, there
meet
The Nine Points of Perfection—rarest
chance—
Within some saintly teacher whom the flect

Years, in their blind implacable advance, O'ertake before fit teaching born of these Have magnified his scholars' countenance,—

If haply folk compassionating please
To render up—according to his store,
Each one—a portion of the life he sees

Hardly worth saving when 'tis set before Earth's benefit should the Saint, Hakka-dosh,
Favoured thereby, attain to full fourscore—

If such contribute (Scoffer, spare thy 'Bosh!')

A year, a month, a day, an hour—to eke
Life out,—in him away the gift shall wash

That much of ill-spent time recorded,
streak
The twilight of the so-assisted sage
With a new sunrise: truth, though strange to speak!

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

Quick to the doorway, then, where youth and age,
All Israel, thronging, waited for the last News of the loved one. 'Tis the final
stage:

'Art's utmost done, the Rabbi's feet tread
fast
The way of all flesh!' So announced that apt
Olive-branch Tsaddik: 'Yet, O Brethren,
cast

'No eye to earthward! Look where heaven has clapped
Morning's extinguisher—yon ray-shot robe
Of sun-threads—on the constellation mapped

'And mentioned by our Elders,—yea, from Job
Down to Satam,—as figuring forth—
what?
Perpend a mystery! Ye call it Dob—

“‘The Bear’’: I trow, a wiser name than that Were Aisch—“The Bier’’: a corpse those four stars hold,
Which—are not those Three Daughters weeping at,

'Banoth? I judge so: list while I unfold
The reason. As in twice twelve hours this Bier
Goes and returns, about the East-cone
rolled,

'So may a setting luminary here
Be rescued from extinction, rolled anew
Upon its track of labour, strong and clear,

'About the Pole—that Salem, every Jew Helps to build up when thus he saves some Saint

Ordained its architect. Ye grasp the clue

'To all ye seek? The Rabbi's lamp-flame faint Sinks: would ye raise it? Lend then life from yours,
Spare each his oil-drop! Do I need acquaint

'The Chosen how self-sacrifice ensures Ten-fold requital?—urge ye emulate
The fame of those Old Just Ones death procures

'Such praise for, that 'tis now men's sole debate
Which of the Ten who volunteered at Rome
To die for glory to our Race, was great 'Beyond his fellows? Was it thou—the comb

Of iron carded, flesh from bone, away, While thy lips sputtered thro' their bloody foam

'Without a stoppage (O brave Akiba!) “Hear, Israel, our Lord God is One”? Or
thou, Jischab?—who smiledst, burning, since there lay,

'Burning along with thee, our Law! I trow,
Such martyrdom might tax flesh to afford:
While that for which I make petition now,

'To what amounts it? Youngster, wilt thou hoard
Each minute of long years thou look'st to spend
In dalliance with thy spouse? Hast thou so soared,

'Singer of songs, all out of sight of friend
And teacher, warbling like a woodland
bird,
There's left no Selah, 'twixt two psalms, to lend

'Our late-so-tuneful quirist? Thou, averred
The fighter born to plant our lion-flag
Once more on Zion's mount,—doth, all-unheard,

'My pleading fail to move thee? Toss some rag
Shall staunch our wound, some minute never missed
From swordsman's lustihood like thine!
Wilt lag

'In liberal bestowment, show close fist
When open palm we look for,—thou, wide-known
For statecraft? whom, 'tis said, an if thou
list,

'The Shah himself would seat beside his
throne,
So valued were advice from thee' . . . But
here
He stopped short: such a hubbub! Not
alone

From those addressed, but, far as well as
near,
The crowd broke into clamour: 'Mine, mine, mine—
Lop from my life the excrescence, never
fear!

'At me thou lookedst, markedst me!
Assign
To me that privilege of granting life—Mine, mine!' Then he: 'Be patient! I
combine

'The needful portions only, wage no strife
With Nature's law nor seek to lengthen
out
The Rabbi's day unduly. 'Tis the knife

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

'I stop,—would cut its thread too short.
About

As much as helps life last the proper term,
The appointed Fourscore,—that I crave and scout

'A too-prolonged existence. Let the worm Change at fit season to the butterfly!
And here a story strikes me, to confirm 'This judgment. Of our worthies, none ranks high

As Perida who kept the famous school: None rivalled him in patience: none! For
why?

'In lecturing it was his constant rule, Whatever he expounded, to repeat
—Ay, and keep on repeating, lest some fool

'Should fail to understand him fully—(feat Unparalleled, Uzzean!)—do ye mark?— Five hundred times! So might he entrance beat

'For knowledge into howsoever dark And dense the brain-pan. Yet it happened, at close
Of one especial lecture, not one spark

'Of light was found to have illumed the
rows
Of pupils round their pedagogue. "What,
still Impenetrable to me? Then—here goes!"

'And for a second time he sets the rill
Of knowledge running, and five hundred
times
More re-repeats the matter—and gains nil.

'Out broke a voice from heaven: "Thy patience climbs
Even thus high. Choose! Wilt thou, rather, quick
Ascend to bliss—or, since thy zeal sublimes

"Such drudgery, will thy back still bear its crick,
Bent o'er thy class,—thy voice drone spite of drouth,—
Five hundred years more at thy desk wilt stick?"

"To heaven with me!" was in the good man's mouth,
When all his scholars,—cruel-kind were
they!— Stopped utterance, from East, West, North and South,

'Rending the welkin with their shout of
"Nay—
No heaven as yet for our instructor! Grant Five hundred years on earth for Perida!"

'And so long did he keep instructing!
Want

Our Master no such misery! I but take Three months of life marital. Ministrant

'Be thou of so much, Poet! Bold I make, Swordsman, with thy frank offer!—and conclude,
Statist, with thine! One year,—ye will not shake

'My purpose to accept no more. So rude?
The very boys and girls, forsooth, must
press
And proffer their addition? Thanks! The mood

'Is laudable, but I reject, no less,
One month, week, day of life more. Leave my gown,
Ye overbold ones! Your life's gift, you
guess,

'Were good as any? Rudesby, get thee
down!
Set my feet free, or fear my staff! Farewell, Seniors and saviours, sharers of renown

'With Jochanan henceforward!' Straightway fell
Sleep on the sufferer; who awoke in health,
Hale everyway, so potent was the spell.

O the rare Spring-time! Who is he by stealth
Approaches Jochanan?—embowered that sits
Under his vine and figtree mid the wealth
Of garden-sights and sounds, since inter-
mits
Never the turtle's coo, nor stays nor stints
The rose her smell. In homage that befits

The musing Master, Tsaddik, see, imprints
A kiss on the extended foot, low bends Forehead to earth, then, all-obsequious, hints

'What if it should be time? A period
ends—
That of the Lover's gift—his quarter-year
Of lustihood: 'tis just thou make amends,

'Return that loan with usury: so, here
Come I, of thy Disciples delegate, Claiming our lesson from thee. Make appear

'Thy profit from experience! Plainly state How men should Love!' Thus he: and to him thus
The Rabbi: 'Love, ye call it?—rather,
Hate!

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

'What wouldst thou? Is it needful I discuss Wherefore new sweet wine, poured in bottles caked
With old strong wine's deposit, offers us

'Spoilt liquor we recoil from, thirst-unslaked?
Like earth-smoke from a crevice, out there wound Languors and yearnings: not a sense but ached

'Weighed on by fancied form and feature,
sound
Of silver word and sight of sunny smile:
No beckoning of a flower-branch, no pro-founding

'Purple of noon-oppression, no light wile O' the West wind, but transformed itself till—brief—
Before me stood the phantasy ye style

'Youth's love, the joy that shall not come to grief,
Born to endure, eternal, unimpaired
By custom the accloyer, time the thief.

'Had Age's hard cold knowledge only spared
That ignorance of Youth! But now the
dream,
Fresh as from Paradise, alighting fared

'As fares the pigeon, finding what may seem
Her nest's safe hollow holds a snake inside Coiled to enclasp her. See, Eve stands supreme

'In youth and beauty! Take her for thy bride!
What Youth deemed crystal, Age finds out was dew
Morn set a-sparkle, but which noon quick dried

'While Youth bent gazing at its red and blue Supposed perennial,—never dreamed the
sun
Which kindled the display would quench it too.

'Graces of shape and colour—everyone
With its appointed period of decay When ripe to purpose! "Still, these dead and done,

"Survives the woman-nature—the soft sway
Of undefinable omnipotence
O'er our strong male-stuff, we of Adam's
clay."

'Ay, if my physics taught not why and
whence
The attraction! Am I like the simple steer Who, from his pasture lured inside the fence

'Where yoke and goad wait him, holds that mere Kindliness prompts extension of the hand Hollowed for barley, which drew near and
near

'His nose—in proof that, of the horned
band,
The farmer best affected him? Beside,
Steer, since his calfhood, got to understand

'Farmers a many in the world so wide
Were ready with a handful just as choice
Or choicer—maize and cummin, treats untried.

'Shall I wed wife, and all my days rejoice
I gained the peacock? 'Las me, round I
look,
And lo—"With me thou wouldst have blamed no voice

"Like hers that daily deafens like a rook:
I am the phoenix!"—"I, the lark, the dove,
—The owl," for aught knows he who blindly took

'Peacock for partner, while the vale, the
grove,
The plain held bird-mates in abundance.
There!
Youth, try fresh capture! Age has found out Love

'Long ago. War seems better worth man's
care.
But leave me! Disappointment finds a balm
Haply in slumber.' 'This first step o' the stair

'To knowledge fails me, but the victor's palm
Lies on the next to tempt him overleap
A stumbling-block. Experienced, gather calm,

'Thou excellence of Judah, cured by sleep
Which ushers in the Warrior, to replace The Lover! At due season I shall reap

'Fruit of my planting!' So, with lengthened face,
Departed Tsaddik: and three moons more waxed
And waned, and not until the Summer-
space

Waned likewise, any second visit taxed
The Rabbi's patience. But at three months' end,
Behold, supine beneath a rock, relaxed

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

The sage lay musing till the noon should spend
Its ardour. Up comes Tsaddik, who but
he,
With 'Master, may I warn thee, nor offend,

'That time comes round again? We look
to see Sprout from the old branch—not the youngling twig—
But fruit of sycamine: deliver me,

'To share among my fellows, some plump
fig,
Juicy as seedy! That same man of war,
Who, with a scantling of his store, made big

'Thy starveling nature, caused thee, safe from scar,
To share his gains by long acquaintance-
ship
With bump and bruise and all the knocks that are

'Of battle dowry,—he bids loose thy lip, Explain the good of battle! Since thou know'st,
Let us know likewise! Fast the moments slip,

'More need that we improve them!—
'Ay, we boast,

We warriors in our youth, that with the sword
Man goes the swiftest to the uttermost—

'Takes the straight way thro' lands yet unexplored

To absolute Right and Good,—may so obtain God's glory and man's weal too long ignored,

'Too late attained by preachments all in
vain—

The passive process. Knots get tangled
worse

By toying with: does cut cord close again?

'Moreover there is blessing in the curse Peace-praisers call war. What so sure evolves

All the capacities of soul, proves nurse

'Of that self-sacrifice in men which solves
The riddle—Wherein differs Man from beast?

Foxes boast cleverness and courage wolves:

'Nowhere but in mankind is found the
least

Touch of an impulse "To our fellows—
good

I' the highest!—not diminished but increased

"By the condition plainly understood —Such good shall be attained at price of hurt
I' the highest to ourselves!" Fine sparks, that brood

'Confusedly in Man, 'tis war bids spurt Forth into flame: as fares the meteor-
mass,

Whereof no particle but holds inert

'Some seed of light and heat, however crass

The enclosure, yet avails not to discharge
Its radiant birth before there come to pass

'Some push external,—strong to set at large

Those dormant fire-seeds, whirl them in a trice

Through heaven and light up earth from marge to marge:

'Since force by motion makes—what erst was ice—

Crash into fervency and so expire,
Because some Djinn has hit on a device

'For proving the full prettiness of fire!
Ay, thus we prattle—youth: but old—

why, first, Where's that same Right and Good—(the wise inquire)—

'So absolute, it warrants the outburst
Of blood, tears, all war's woeful consequence,

That comes of the fine flaring? Which plague cursed

'The more your benefited Man—offence, Or what suppressed the offender? Say it
did—

Show us the evil cured by violence,

'Submission cures not also! Lift the lid
From the maturing crucible, we find Its slow sure coaxing-out of virtue hid

'In that same meteor-mass, hath uncom-
bined

Those particles and, yielding for result Gold, not mere flame, by so much leaves
behind

'The heroic product. E'en the simple cult
Of Edom's children wisely bids them turn Cheek to the smiter with "Sic Jesus vult."

'Say there's a tyrant by whose death we earn

Freedom, and justify a war to wage:
Good!—were we only able to discern

'Exactly how to reach and catch and cage
Him only and no innocent beside!

Whereas the folk whereon war wreaks its rage

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

'—How shared they his ill-doing? Far and wide
The victims of our warfare strew the plain, Ten thousand dead, whereof not one but
died

'In faith that vassals owed their suzerain Life: therefore each paid tribute,—hoped
soul,—
To that same Right and Good ourselves are fain

'To call exclusively our end. From bole (Since ye accept in me a sycamine)
Pluck, eat, digest a fable—yea, the sole

'Fig I afford you! "Dost thou dwarf my vine?"

(So did a certain husbandman address The tree which faced his field,) "Receive condign

"Punishment, prompt removal by the
stress

Of axe I forthwith lay unto thy root!"
Long did he hack and hew, the root no less

'As long defied him, for its tough strings
shoot

As deep down as the boughs above aspire:
All that he did was—shake to the tree's
foot

'Leafage and fruitage, things we most require

For shadow and refreshment: which good
deed

Thoroughly done, behold the axe-haft tires
'His hand, and he desisting leaves unfreed

The vine he hacked and hewed for. Comes a frost,

One natural night's work, and there's little
need

'Of hacking, hewing: lo, the tree's a ghost!
Perished it starves, black death from topmost bough

To farthest-reaching fibre! Shall I boast

'My rough work,—warfare,—helped more? Loving, now—

That, by comparison, seems wiser, since
The loving fool was able to avow

'He could effect his purpose, just evince Love's willingness,—once 'ware of what she lacked,

His loved one,—to go work for that, nor
wince

'At self-expenditure: he neither hacked
Nor hewed, but when the lady of his field Required defence because the sun attacked,

'He, failing to obtain a fitter shield,
Would interpose his body, and so blaze, Blest in the burning. Ah, were mine to wield

'The intellectual weapon—poet-lays,—
How preferably had I sung one song Which . . . but my sadness sinks me: go your ways!

'I sleep out disappointment.' 'Come along,

Never lose heart! There's still as much
again

Of our bestowment left to right the wrong

'Done by its earlier moiety—explain Wherefore, who may! The Poet's mood comes next.

Was he not wishful the poetic vein

'Should pulse within him? Jochanan, thou reck'st

Little of what a generous flood shall soon Float thy clogged spirit free and unper-
plexed

'Above dry dubitation! Song's the boon Shall make amends for my untoward mistake

That Joshua-like thou couldst bid sun and
moon—

'Fighter and Lover,—which for most men
make

All they descry in heaven,—stand both stock-still

And lend assistance. Poet shalt thou wake!

Autumn brings Tsaddik. 'Ay, there speeds
the rill

Loaded with leaves: a scowling sky, be-
side:

The wind makes olive-trees up yonder hill

'Whiten and shudder—symptoms far and
wide

Of gleaning-time's approach; and glean good store

May I presume to trust we shall, thou tried

'And ripe experimenter! Three months
more

Have ministered to growth of Song: that graft

Into thy sterile stock has found at core

'Moisture, I warrant, hitherto unquaffed
By boughs, however florid, wanting sap Of prose-experience which provides the draught

'Which song-sprouts, wanting, wither:
vain we tap

A youngling stem all green and immature:
Experience must secrete the stuff, our hap

'Will be to quench Man's thirst with, glad
and sure

That fancy wells up through corrective
fact:

Missing which test of truth, though flowers allure

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

- 'The goodman's eye with promise, soon
the pact
Is broken, and 'tis flowers,—mere words,
—he finds
When things,—that's fruit,—he looked for. Well, once cracked
- 'The nut, how glad my tooth the kernel grinds!
Song may henceforth boast substance!
Therefore, hail
Proser and poet, perfect in both kinds!
- 'Thou from whose eye hath dropped the envious scale
Which hides the truth of things and substitutes
Deceptive show, unaided optics fail
- 'To transpirece,—hast entrusted to the lute's
Soft but sure guardianship some unre-vealed
Secret shall lift mankind above the brutes
'As only knowledge can?' 'A fount unsealed'
(Sighed Jochanan) 'should seek the heaven in leaps
To die in dew-gems—not find death, con-gealed
- 'By contact with the cavern's nether deeps, Earth's secretest foundation where, en-swathed
In dark and fear, primæval mystery
sleeps—
- 'Petrific fount wherein my fancies bathed And straight turned ice. My dreams of good and fair
In soaring upwards had dissolved, unscathed
- 'By any influence of the kindly air, Singing, as each took flight, The Future—
that's
Our destination, mists turn rainbows
there,
- 'Which sink to fog, confounded in the flats O' the Present! Day's the song-time for the lark,
Night for her music boasts but owls and bats.
- 'And what's the Past but night—the deep and dark Ice-spring I speak of, corpse-thick with its drowned
Dead fancies which no sooner touched the mark
- 'They aimed at—fact—than all at once they found Their film-wings freeze, henceforth unfit to reach
And roll in æther, revel—robed and crowned
- 'As truths, confirmed by falsehood all
and each—
Sovereign and absolute and ultimate!
Up with them, skyward, Youth, ere Age impeach
- 'Thy least of promises to re-instate
Adam in Eden! Sing on, ever sing, Chirp till thou burst!—the fool cicada's
fate,
- 'Who holds that after Summer next comes
Spring,
Than Summer's self sun-warmed, spice-scented more.
Fighting was better! There, no fancy-fling
- 'Pitches you past the point was reached of yore
By Sampsons, Abners, Joabs, Judases,
The mighty men of valour who, before
- 'Our little day, did wonders none profess
To doubt were fable and not fact, so trust
By fancy-flights to emulate much less.
- 'Were I a Statesman, now! Why, that were just
To pinnacle my soul, mankind above,
A-top the universe: no vulgar lust
- 'To gratify—fame, greed, at this remove Looked down upon so far—or overlooked
So largely, rather—that mine eye should rove
- 'World-wide and rummage earth, the many-nooked,
Yet find no unit of the human flock Caught straying but straight comes back hooked and crooked
- 'By the strong shepherd who, from out his stock
Of aids proceeds to treat each ailing fleece,
Here stimulate to growth, curtail and dock
- 'There, baldness or excrescence,—that,
with grease,
This, with up-grubbing of the bristly patch Born of the tick-bite. How supreme a
peace
- 'Steals o'er the Statist,—while, in wit, a match
For shrewd Ahithophel, in wisdom . . . well, His name escapes me—somebody, at
watch
- 'And ward, the fellow of Ahithophel In guidance of the Chosen!'—at which
word
Eyes closed and fast asleep the Rabbi fell.
- 'Cold weather!' shivered Tsaddik. 'Yet the hoard
Of the sagacious ant shows garnerer' grain,
Ever abundant most when fields afford'

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

'Least pasture, and alike disgrace the plain
Tall tree and lowly shrub. 'Tis so with us Mortals: our age stores wealth ye seek in
vain

'While busy youth culls just what we discuss
At leisure in the last days: and the last Truly are these for Jochanan, whom thus 'I make one more appeal to! Thine
amassed

Experience, now or never, let escape
Some portion of! For I perceive aghast

'The end approaches, while they jeer and jape,

These sons of Shimei: "Justify your boast!
What have ye gained from Death by twelve months' rape?"

'Statesman, what cure hast thou for—least and most—

Popular grievances? What nostrum, say,
Will make the Rich and Poor, expertly dosed,

'Forget disparity, bid each go gay
That, with his bauble,—with his burden,
this?

Propose an alkahest shall melt away

'Men's lacquer, show by prompt analysis Which is the metal, which the make-
believe,
So that no longer brass shall find, gold miss

'Coinage and currency? Make haste, retrieve

The precious moments, Master!' Whereunto

There snarls an 'Ever laughing in thy
sleeve,

'Pert Tsaddik? Youth indeed sees plain a clue

To guide man where life's wood is intricate:

How shall he fail to thrid its thickest
through

'When every oak-trunk takes the eye?
Elate

He goes from bole to brushwood, plunging finds—

Smothered in briars—that the small's the great!

'All men are men: I would all minds were minds!

Whereas 'tis just the many's mindless mass
That most needs helping: labourers and hinds

'We legislate for—not the cultured class Which law-makes for itself nor needs the whip

And bridle,—proper help for mule and ass,

'Did the brutes know! In vain our statesmanship

Strives at contenting the rough multitude:
Still the ox cries "'Tis me thou shouldst equip

"'With equine trappings!" or, in humbler
mood,

"Cribful of corn for me! and, as for
work—

Adequate rumination o'er my food!"

'Better remain a Poet! Needs it irk
Such an one if light, kindled in his sphere, Fail to transuse the Mizraim cold and murk

'Round about Goshen? Though light disappear,

Shut inside,—temporary ignorance
Got outside of, lo, light emerging clear

'Shows each astonished starrer the expanse
Of heaven made bright with knowledge!

That's the way,
The only way—I see it at a glance—

'To legislate for earth! As poet. . . Stay!
What is . . . I would that . . . were it . . .

I had been . . .
O sudden change, as if my arid clay

'Burst into bloom! . . . 'A change indeed, I ween,

And change the last!' sighed Tsaddik as he kissed

The closing eyelids. 'Just as those serene

'Princes of Night apprised me! Our
acquist

Of life is spent, since corners only four Hath Aisch, and each in turn was made desist

'In passage round the Pole (O Mishna's
lore—

Little it profits here!) by strenuous tug Of friends who eked out thus to full fourscore

'The Rabbi's years. I see each shoulder shrug!

What have we gained? Away the Bier may roll!

To-morrow, when the Master's grave is dug,

'In with his body I may pitch the scroll
I hoped to glorify with, text and gloss,

My Science of Man's Life: one blank's the whole!

'Love, war, song, statesmanship—no gain,
all loss,

The stars' bestowment! We on our return To-morrow merely find—not gold but dross,

'The body not the soul. Come, friends, we learn
At least thus much by our experiment—
That—that . . . well, find what, whom it may concern!'

But next day through the city rumours
went
Of a new persecution; so, they fled All Israel, each man,—this time,—from his tent,

Tsaddik among the foremost. When, the dread
Subsiding, Israel ventured back again
Some three months after, to the cave they sped

Where lay the Sage,—a reverential train!
Tsaddik first enters. 'What is this I view?
The Rabbi still alive? No stars remain

'Of Aisch to stop within their courses.
True,

I mind me, certain gamesome boys must urge
Their offerings on me: can it be—one threw

'Life at him and it stuck? There needs the scourge

To teach that urchin manners! Prithee, grant

Forgiveness if we pretermitt thy dirge

'Just to explain no friend was ministrant, This time, of life to thee! Some jackanapes,

I gather, has presumed to foist his scant

'Scurvy unripe existence—wilding grapes Grass-green and sorrel-sour—on that grand wine,

Mighty as mellow, which, so fancy shapes

'May fitly image forth this life of thine Fed on the last low fattening lees—condensed

Elixir, no milk-mildness of the vine!

'Rightly with Tsaddik wert thou now incensed

Had he been witting of the mischief
wrought

When, for elixir, verjuice he dispensed!'

And slowly woke,—like Shushan's flower besought

By over-curious handling to unloose
The curtained secrecy wherein she thought

Her captive bee, mid store of sweets to
choose,

Would loll, in gold pavilioned lie unteased, Sucking on, sated never,—whose, O whose Might seem that countenance, uplift, all eased

Of old distraction and bewilderment, Absurdly happy? 'How ye have appeased

'The strife within me, bred this whole content,

This utter acquiescence in my past, Present and future life,—by whom was
lent

'The power to work this miracle at last,— Exceeds my guess. Though—ignorance confirmed
By knowledge sounds like paradox, I cast

'Vainly about to tell you—fitlier termed—
Of calm struck by encountering opposites, Each nullifying either! Henceforth wormed

'From out my heart is every snake that bites

The dove that else would brood there:
doubt, which kills

With hiss of "What if sorrows end delights?"

'Fear which stings ease with "Work the Master wills!"

Experience which coils round and strangles
quick

Each hope with "Ask the Past if hoping skills

"To work accomplishment, or proves a trick

Wiling thee to endeavour! Strive, fool,
stop

Nowise, so live, so die—that's law! why kick

"Against the pricks?" All out-wormed!
Slumber, drop

Thy films once more and veil the bliss
within!

Experience strangle hope? Hope waves a-top

'Her wings triumphant! Come what will,
I win,

Whoever loses! Every dream's assured
Of soberest fulfilment. Where's a sin

'Except in doubting that the light, which lured

The unwary into darkness, meant no
wrong

Had I but marched on bold, nor paused immured

'By mists I should have pressed thro', passed along

My way henceforth rejoicing? Not the boy's

Passionate impulse he conceits so strong,

'Which, at first touch, truth, bubble-like,
destroys,—

Not the man's slow conviction "Vanity
Of vanities—alike my griefs and joys!"

JOCHANAN HAKKADOSH

'Ice!—thawed (look up) each bird, each insect by—(Look round) by all the plants that break in bloom, (Look down) by every dead friend's memory

'That smiles "Am I the dust within my tomb?"

Not either, but both these—amalgam rare—

Mix in a product, not from Nature's womb,

'But stuff which He the Operant—who shall dare

Describe His operation?—strikes alive
And thaumaturgic. I nor know nor care

'How from this tohu-bohu—hopes which dive,

And fears which soar—faith, ruined through and through

By doubt, and doubt, faith treads to dust—revive

'In some surprising sort,—as see, they do!—

Not merely foes no longer but fast friends.
What does it mean unless—O strange and new 'Discovery!—this life proves a wine-press—blends

Evil and good, both fruits of Paradise,
Into a novel drink which—who intends

'To quaff, must bear a brain for ecstasies
Attempred, not this all-inadequate Organ which, quivering within me, dies

'—Nay, lives!—what, how,—too soon, or else too late—

I was—I am . . . ' ('He babbleth!' Tsaddik mused)

'O Thou Almighty who canst re-instate

'Truths in their primal clarity, confused
By man's perception, which is man's and made

To suit his service,—how, once disabused

'Of reason which sees light half shine half shade,

Because of flesh, the medium that adjusts Purity to his visuals, both an aid

'And hindrance,—how to eyes earth's air encrusts,

When purged and perfect to receive truth's beam

Pouring itself on the new sense it trusts

'With all its plenitude of power,—how seen

The intricacies now, of shade and shine, Oppugnant natures—Right and Wrong, we deem

'Irreconcilable? O eyes of mine,
Freed now of imperfection, ye avail
To see the whole sight, nor may uncombine

'Henceforth what, erst divided, caused you quail—

So huge the chasm between the false and true,

The dream and the reality! All hail,

'Day of my soul's deliverance—day the new,

The never-ending! What though every shape

Whereon I wreaked my yearning to pursue

'Even to success each semblance of escape
From my own bounded self to some all-fair

All-wise external fancy, proved a rape

'Like that old giant's, feigned of fools—on air,

Not solid flesh? How otherwise? To love—

That lesson was to learn not here—but there—

'On earth, not here! 'Tis there we learn,—there prove

Our parts upon the stuff we needs must spoil,

Striving at mastery, there bend above

'The spoiled clay potsherds, many a year of toil

Attests the potter tried his hand upon,
Till sudden he arose, wiped free from soil

'His hand, cried "So much for attempt—anon

Performance! Taught to mould the living vase,

What matter the cracked pitchers dead and gone?"

'Could I impart and could thy mind embrace

The secret, Tsaddik! 'Secret none to me!'

Quoth Tsaddik, as the glory on the face

Of Jochanan was quenched. 'The truth I see

Of what that excellence of Judah wrote, Doughty Halaphta. This a case must be

'Wherein, though the last breath have passed the throat,

So that "The man is dead" we may pronounce,

Yet is the Ruach—(thus do we denote

'The imparted Spirit)—in no haste to bounce

From its entrusted Body,—some three days

Lingers ere it relinquish to the pounce

'Of hawk-clawed Death his victim. Further says Halaphta, "Instances have been, and yet Again may be, when saints, whose earthly
ways

"Tend to perfection, very nearly get To heaven while still on earth: and, as a fine
Interval shows where waters pure have met

"Waves brackish, in a mixture, sweet with brine,
That's neither sea nor river but a taste
Of both—so meet the earthly and divine "And each is either." Thus I hold him graced—
Dying on earth, half inside and half out, Wholly in heaven, who knows? My mind
embraced

'Thy secret, Jochanan, how dare I doubt?
Follow thy Ruach, let earth, all it can, Keep of the leavings!' Thus was brought about

The sepulture of Rabbi Jochanan:
Thou hast him,—sinner-saint, live-dead, boy-man,—
Schiphaz, on Bendimir, in Farzistan!

NOTE.—This story can have no better authority than that of the treatise, existing dispersedly in fragments of Rabbinical writing, משך של רבים בדים, from which I might have helped myself more liberally. Thus, instead of the simple reference to "Moses' stick",—but what if I make amends by attempting three illustrations, when some thirty might be composed on the same subject, equally justifying that pithy proverb לא משה עד משה קם כמשה.

I

Moses the Meek was thirty cubits high,
The staff he strode with—thirty cubits long:
And when he leapt, so muscular and strong
Was Moses that his leaping neared the sky
By thirty cubits more. we learn thereby
He reached full ninety cubits—am I wrong?—
When, in a fight slurred o'er by sacred song,
With staff outstretched he took a leap to try
The just dimensions of the giant Og.
And yet he barely touched—this marvel lacked Posterity to crown earth's catalogue
Of marvels—barely touched—to be exact—
The giant's ankle-bone, remained a frog
That fain would match an ox in stature: fact!

II

And this same fact has met with unbelief!
How saith a certain traveller? 'Young, I chanced
To come upon an object—if thou canst,
Guess me its name and nature! 'Twas, in brief, White, hard, round, hollow, of such length, in
chief,
—And this is what especially enhanced
My wonder—that it seemed, as I advanced,

Never to end. Bind up within thy sheaf
Of marvels, this—Posterity! I walked
From end to end,—four hours walked I, who go
A goodly pace,—and found—I have not balked Thine expectation, Stranger? Ay or No?
'Twas but Og's thigh-bone, all the while, I stalked Alongside of: respect to Moses, though!

III

Og's thigh-bone—if ye deem its measure strange,
Myself can witness to much length of shank
Even in birds. Upon a water's bank
Once halting, I was minded to exchange
Noon heat for cool. Quoth I 'On many a grange I have seen storks perch—legs both long and lank:
Yon stork's must touch the bottom of this tank,
Since on its top doth wet no plume derange
Of the smooth breast. I'll bathe there!' 'Do not
so!'
Warned me a voice from heaven. 'A man let drop
His axe into that shallow rivulet—
As thou accountest—seventy years ago:
It fell and fell and still without a stop Keeps falling, nor has reached the bottom yet.'

NEVER THE TIME AND THE PLACE

NEVER the time and the place
And the loved one all together!
This path—how soft to pace!
This May—what magic weather!
Where is the loved one's face?
In a dream that loved one's face meets
mine,
But the house is narrow, the place is bleak
Where, outside, rain and wind combine
With a furtive ear, if I strive to speak,
With a hostile eye at my flushing cheek,
With a malice that marks each word, each
sign!
O enemy sly and serpentine,
Uncoil thee from the waking man!
Do I hold the Past
Thus firm and fast
Yet doubt if the Future hold I can?
This path so soft to pace shall lead
Thro' the magic of May to herself indeed!
Or narrow if needs the house must be,
Outside are the storms and strangers:
we—
Oh, close, safe, warm sleep I and she,
—I and she!

PAMBO

SUPPOSE that we part (work done, comes
play)
With a grave tale told in crambo
—As our hearty sires were wont to say—Whereof the hero is Pambo?
Do you happen to know who Pambo was?
Nor I—but this much have heard of
him:
He entered one day a college-class,
And asked—was it so absurd of him?—

PAMBO

'May Pambo learn wisdom ere practise it?
In wisdom I fain would ground me:
Since wisdom is centred in Holy Writ,
Some psalm to the purpose expound
me!'

'That psalm,' the Professor smiled, 'shall be Untroubled by doubt which dirtieth
Pellucid streams when an ass like thee Would drink there—the Nine-andthirtieth.

'Verse first: *I said I will look to my ways
That I with my tongue offend not.*

How now? Why stare? Art struck in amaze?

Stop, stay! The smooth line hath an end knot!

'He's gone!—disgusted my text should prove

Too easy to need explaining?

Had he waited, the blockhead might find
I move

To matter that pays remaining!'

Long years went by, when—'Ha, who's
this?

Do I come on the restive scholar
I had driven to Wisdom's goal, I wis,
But that he slipped the collar?

'What? Arms crossed, brow bent, thought-immersed?

A student indeed! Why scruple

To own that the lesson proposed him first Scarce suited so apt a pupil?

'Come back! From the beggarly elements
To a more recondite issue
We pass till we reach, at all events,
Some point that may puzzle . . . Why
"pish" you?'

From the ground looked piteous up the
head:

'Daily and nightly, Master,
Your pupil plods thro' that text you read,
Yet gets on never the faster.

'At the self-same stand,—now old, then
young!

*I will look to my ways—were doing
As easy as saying!—that I with my tongue Offend not—and 'scape pooh-poohing*

'From sage and simple, doctor and dunce?
Ah, nowise! Still doubts so muddy The stream I would drink at once,—but
once!

That—thus I resume my study!'

Brother, brother, I share the blame,
Arcades sumus ambo!

Darkling, I keep my sunrise-aim,
Lack not the critic's flambeau,
And look to my ways, yet, much the
same,

Offend with my tongue—like Pambo!

'His genius was jocular, but, when disposed, he could be very serious.'—Article 'Shakespear', JEREMY COLLIER'S Historical &c. Dictionary, 2nd edition, 1701.

you will say they are Persian: but let them be changed.'—King Lear, act iii. sc. 6.

PROLOGUE

PRAY, Reader, have you eaten ortolans Ever in Italy?

Recall how cooks there cook them: for my plan's

To—Lyre with Spit ally.

They pluck the birds,—some dozen luscious lumps,

Or more or fewer,—

Then roast them, heads by heads and rumps by rumps,

Stuck on a skewer.

But first,—and here's the point I fain would press,—

Don't think I'm tattling!—

They interpose, to curb its lusciousness,

—What, 'twixt each fatling?

First comes plain bread, crisp, brown, a toasted square:

Then, a strong sage-leaf:

(So we find books with flowers dried here and there

Lest leaf engage leaf.)

First, food—then, piquancy—and last of
all

Follows the thirdling:

Through wholesome hard, sharp soft,
your tooth must bite

Ere reach the birding.

Now, were there only crust to crunch, you'd wince

Unpalatable!

Sage-leaf is bitter-pungent—so's a quince:
Eat each who's able!

But through all three bite boldly—lo, the gust!

Flavour—no fixture—

Flies, permeating flesh and leaf and crust
In fine admixture.

So with your meal, my poem: masticate
Sense, sight and song there!

PROLOGUE

Digest these, and I praise your peptics'
state,

Nothing found wrong there.
Whence springs my illustration who can tell?

—The more surprising
That here eggs, milk, cheese, fruit suffice so well

For gormandizing.
A fancy-freak by contrast born of thee,
Delightful Gressoney!

Who laughest 'Take what is, trust what may be!'

That's Life's true lesson,—ch?

MAISON DELAPIERRE,

September 12, '83.

THE EAGLE

DERVISH—(though yet un-dervished, call him so

No less beforehand: while he drudged our
way,

Other his worldly name was: when he wrote

Those verses we Persians praise him for, —True fairy-work—Ferishtah grew his style—

Dervish Ferishtah walked the woods one
eve,

And noted on a bough a raven's nest
Whereof each youngling gaped with callow beak

Widened by want; for why? beneath the
tree

Dead lay the mother-bird. 'A piteous
chance!

'How shall they 'scape destruction?' sighed the sage

—Or sage about to be, though simple still.
Responsive to which doubt, sudden there swooped

An eagle downward, and behold he bore (Great-hearted) in his talons flesh where-
with

He stayed their craving, then resought the sky.

'Ah, foolish, faithless me!' the observer smiled,

'Who toil and moil to eke out life, when lo
Providence cares for every hungry mouth!'

To profit by which lesson, home went he,
And certain days sat musing,—neither meat

Nor drink would purchase by his handi-
work.

Then,—for his head swam and his limbs grew faint,—

Sleep overtook the unwise one, whom in
dream

God thus admonished: 'Hast thou marked my deed?

Which part assigned by providence dost
judge

Was meant for man's example? Should he play

The helpless weakling, or the helpful
strength

That captures prey and saves the perish-
ing?

Sluggard, arise: work, eat, then feed who lack!'

Waking, 'I have arisen, work I will, Eat, and so following. Which lacks food

the more,
Body or soul in me? I starve in soul:

So may mankind: and since men congregate

In towns, not woods,—to Ispahan forthwith!'

*Round us the wild creatures, overhead the
trees,*

Underfoot the moss-tracks,—life and love with these!

*I to wear a fawn-skin, thou to dress in flowers:
All the long lone Summer-day, that greenwood life of ours!*

*Rich-pavilioned, rather,—still the world
without,—*

Inside—gold-roofed silk-walled silence round about!

*Queen it thou on purple,—I, at watch and
ward*

Couched beneath the columns, gaze, thy slave, love's guard!

*So, for us no world? Let throngs press thee
to me!*

*Up and down amid men, heart by heart fare
we!*

Welcome squalid vesture, harsh voice, hateful face!

God is soul, souls I and thou: with souls should souls have place.

THE MELON-SELLER

GOING his rounds one day in Ispahan,— Half-way on Dervishhood, not wholly
there,—

Ferishtah, as he crossed a certain bridge,
Came startled on a well-remembered face.

'Can it be? What, turned melon-seller—
thou?

Clad in such sordid garb, thy seat yon step Where dogs brush by thee and express contempt?

Methinks, thy head-gear is some scooped-out gourd!

Nay, sunk to slicing up, for readier sale,
One fruit whereof the whole scarce feeds a swine?

Wast thou the Shah's Prime Minister, men
saw

Ride on his right-hand while a trumpet blew
And Persia hailed the Favourite? Yea, twelve years
Are past, I judge, since that transcendancy,
And thou didst peculate and art abased;
No less, twelve years since, thou didst hold in hand
Persia, couldst halve and quarter, mince its pulp
As pleased thee, and distribute—melon-
like—
Portions to whoso played the parasite,
Or suck—thyself—each juicy morsel.
How Enormous thy abjection,—hell from
heaven,
Made tenfold hell by contrast! Whisper
me!
Dost thou curse God for granting twelve years' bliss
Only to prove this day's the direr lot?'
Whereon the beggar raised a brow, once
more
Luminous and imperial, from the rags.
'Fool, does thy folly think my foolishness Dwells rather on the fact that God appoints
A day of woe to the unworthy one,
Than that the unworthy one, by God's award,
Tasted joy twelve years long? Or buy a slice,
Or go to school!'

To school Ferishtah went;
And, schooling ended, passed from Ispahan
To Nishapur, that Elburz looks above —Where they dig turquoise: there kept school himself,
The melon-seller's speech, his stock in trade.
Some say a certain Jew adduced the word Out of their book, it sounds so much the
same,
אֶת-הַטּוֹב נִיבַל מֵאֵת הָאֱלֹהִים
:ואת-הָרַע לֹא נִקְבַּל In Persian phrase,
'Shall we receive good at the hand of God And evil not receive?' But great wits jump.

*Wish no word unspoken, want no look away!
What if words were but mistake, and looks —too sudden, say!
Be unjust for once, Love! Bear it—well I
may!*

*Do me justice always? Bid my heart—their shrine—
Render back its store of gifts, old looks and words of thine
—Oh, so all unjust—the less deserved, the more divine?*

SHAH ABBAS

ANYHOW, once full Dervish, youngsters
came
To gather up his own words, 'neath a rock
Or else a palm, by pleasant Nishapur.
Said someone, as Ferishtah paused abrupt,
Reading a certain passage from the roll
Wherein is treated of Lord Ali's life:
'Master, explain this incongruity!
When I dared question "It is beautiful,
But is it true?"—thy answer was "In truth Lives beauty." I persisting—"Beauty—
yes,
In thy mind and in my mind, every mind
That apprehends: but outside—so to
speak—
Did beauty live in deed as well as word,
Was this life lived, was this death died—not dreamed?'
"Many attested it for fact" saidst thou.
"Many!" but mark, Sir! Half as long ago
As such things were,—supposing that they were,— Reigned great Shah Abbas: he too lived and died
—How say they? Why, so strong of arm, of foot
So swift, he stayed a lion in his leap
On a stag's haunch,—with one hand grasped the stag,
With one struck down the lion: yet, no
less,
Himself, that same day, feasting after
sport,
Perceived a spider drop into his wine,
Let fall the flagon, died of simple fear.
So all say,—so dost thou say?'

'Wherefore not?'
Ferishtah smiled: 'though strange, the story stands
Clear-chronicled: none tells it otherwise:
The fact's eye-witness bore the cup, be-
side.'
'And dost thou credit one cup-bearer's
tale,
False, very like, and futile certainly,
Yet hesitate to trust what many tongues
Combine to testify was beautiful
In deed as well as word? No fool's report
Of lion, stag and spider, but immense With meaning for mankind,—thy race,— thyself?'

Whereto the Dervish: 'First amend, my
son,
Thy faulty nomenclature, call belief
Belief indeed, nor grace with such a name
The easy acquiescence of mankind
In matters nowise worth dispute, since life Lasts merely the allotted moment. Lo—
That lion-stag-and-spider tale leaves fixed
The fact for us that somewhen Abbas
reigned,

Died, somehow slain,—a useful registry,— Which therefore we—"believe"? Stand forward, thou,

My Yakub, son of Yusuf, son of Zal!
I advertise thee that our liege, the Shah
Happily regnant, hath become assured,
By opportune discovery, that thy sires,
Son by the father upwards, track their line
To—whom but that same bearer of the
cup

Whose inadvertency was chargeable
With what therefrom ensued, disgust and
death

To Abbas Shah, the over-nice of soul?
Whence he appoints thee,—such his clemency,—

Not death, thy due, but just a double tax
To pay, on thy particular bed of reeds Which flower into the brush that makes a broom

Fit to sweep ceilings clear of vermin. Sure,
Thou dost believe the story nor dispute That punishment should signalize its
truth?

Down therefore with some twelve dinars!

Why start,
—The stag's way with the lion hard on haunch?

"Believe the story?"—how thy words throng fast!—

"Who saw this, heard this, said this, wrote down this,

That and the other circumstance to prove
So great a prodigy surprised the world?
Needs must thou prove me fable can be
fact

Or ere thou coax one piece from out my pouch!"

'There we agree, Sir: neither of us knows,
Neither accepts that tale on evidence
Worthy to warrant the large word—belief.
Now I get near thee! Why didst pause abrupt,

Disabled by emotion at a tale Might match—be frank!—for credibility
The figment of the spider and the cup?
—To wit, thy roll's concerning Ali's life, Unverified—thine own word! Little
boots

Our sympathy with fiction! When I read
The annals and consider of Tahmasp
And that sweet sun-surpassing star his
love,

I weep like a cut vine-twig, though aware Zurah's sad fate is fiction, since the snake
He saw devour her,—how could such exist, Having nine heads? No snake boasts more than three!

I weep, then laugh—both actions right
alike.

But thou, Ferishtah, sapiency confessed,
When at the Day of Judgment God shall
ask

"Didst thou believe?"—what wilt thou plead? Thy tears?

(Nay, they fell fast and stain the parchment
still)

What if thy tears meant love? Love lacking ground

—Belief,—avails thee as it would avail
My own pretence to favour since, forsooth,
I loved the lady—I, who needs must laugh
To hear a snake boasts nine heads: they have three!

'Thanks for the well-timed help that's born, behold,
Out of thy words, my son,—belief and
love!

Hast heard of Ishak son of Absal? Ay,
The very same we heard of, ten years since,
Slain in the wars: he comes back safe and
sound,—

Though twenty soldiers saw him die at Yezdt,—

Just as a single mule-and-baggage boy Declared 'twas like he some day would,— for why?

The twenty soldiers lied, he saw him stout, Cured of all wounds at once by smear of salve,

A Mubid's manufacture: such the tale.
Now, when his pair of sons were thus apprised

Effect was twofold on them. "Hail!"
crowd This:

"Dearer the news than dayspring after
night!

The cure-reporting youngster warrants me
Our father shall make glad our eyes once
more,

For whom, had outpoured life of mine sufficed

To bring him back, free broached were every vein!"

"Avaunt, delusive tale-concocter, news Cruel as meteor simulating dawn!"

Whimpered the other: "Who believes this boy

Must disbelieve his twenty seniors: no, Return our father shall not! Might my
death

Purchase his life, how promptly would the dole

Be paid as due!" Well, ten years pass,— aha,

Ishak is marching homeward,—doubts,
not he,

Are dead and done with! So, our townsfolk straight

Must take on them to counsel. "Go thou
gay,

Welcome thy father, thou of ready faith!
Hide thee, contrariwise, thou faithless one,

Expect paternal frowning, blame and blows!"

So do our townsfolk counsel: dost demur?"

SHAH ABBAS

'Ferishtah like those simpletons—at loss
In what is plain as pikestaff? Pish! Suppose

The trustful son had sighed "So much the worse!

Returning means—retaking heritage Enjoyed these ten years, who should, say me nay?"

How should such trust reward him?
Trustlessness

—O' the other hand—were what procured most praise

To him who judged return impossible,
Yet hated heritage procured thereby.

A fool were Ishak if he failed to prize Mere head's work less than heart's work:
no fool he!

'Is God less wise? Resume the roll!'
They did.

You groped your way across my room i' the dear dark dead of night;

At each fresh step a stumble was: but, once your lamp alight,

Easy and plain you walked again: so soon all wrong grew right!

What lay on floor to trip your foot? Each object, late awry,

Looked fitly placed, nor proved offence to footing free—for why?

The lamp showed all, discordant late, grown simple symmetry.

Be love your light and trust your guide, with these explore my heart!

No obstacle to trip you then, strike hands and souls apart!

Since rooms and hearts are furnished so,— light shows you,—needs love start?

THE FAMILY

A CERTAIN neighbour lying sick to death, Ferishtah grieved beneath a palm-tree,
whence

He rose at peace: whereat objected one
'Gudarz our friend gasps in extremity.

Sure, thou art ignorant how close at hand Death presses, or the cloud, which fouled so late

Thy face, had deepened down not lightened off.'

'I judge there will be respite, for I prayed.'

'Sir, let me understand, of charity!
Yestereve, what was thine admonishment?

"All-wise, all-good, all-mighty—God is
such!"

How then should man, the all-unworthy,
dare

Propose to set aside a thing ordained?

To pray means—substitute man's will for God's:

Two best wills cannot be: by consequence,
What is man bound to but—assent, say I?
Rather to rapture of thanksgiving; since That which seems worst to man to God is
best,

So, because God ordains it, best to man.
Yet man—the foolish, weak and wicked —prays!

Urges "My best were better, didst Thou
know"!'!

'List to a tale. A worthy householder
Of Shiraz had three sons, beside a spouse

Whom, cutting gourds, a serpent bit,
whereon

The offended limb swelled black from foot to fork.

The husband called in aid a leech renowned World-wide, confessed the lord of surgery,
And bade him dictate—who forthwith declared

"Sole remedy is amputation." Straight The husband sighed "Thou knowest: be it so!"

His three sons heard their mother sentenced:
"Pause!"

Outbroke the elder: "Be precipitate Nowise, I pray thee! Take some gentler
way,

Thou sage of much resource! I will not
doubt

But science still may save foot, leg and thigh!"

The next in age snapped petulant: "Too rash!

No reason for this maiming! What, Sir Leech,

Our parent limps henceforward while we leap?

Shame on thee! Save the limb thou must and shalt!"

"Shame on yourselves, ye bold ones!"
followed up

The brisk third brother, youngest, pertest
too:

"The leech knows all things, we are ignorant;

What he proposes, gratefully accept!
For me, had I some unguent bound to heal

Hurts in a twinkling, hardly would I dare Essay its virtue and so cross the sage'

By cure his skill pronounces folly. Quick!
No waiting longer! There the patient lies;

Out then with implements and operate!"

'Ah, the young devil!'

'Why, his reason chimed Right with the Hakim's.'

'Hakim's, ay—but chit's?

How? what the skilled eye saw and judged of weight

To overbear a heavy consequence,
That—shall a sciolist affect to see?

THE FAMILY

All he saw—that is, all such oaf should see,
Was just the mother's suffering.

'In my tale,
Be God the Hakim: in the husband's case,
Call ready acquiescence—aptitude
Angelic, understanding swift and sure:
Call the first son—a wise humanity,
Slow to conceive but duteous to adopt:
See in the second son—humanity, Wrong-headed yet right-hearted, rash but
kind.

Last comes the cackler of the brood, our chit

Who, aping wisdom all beyond his years,
Thinks to discard humanity itself:
Fares like the beast which should affect to fly

Because a bird with wings may spurn the
ground,

So, missing heaven and losing earth—drops how

But hell-ward? No, be man and nothing
more—

Man who, as man conceiving, hopes and
fears,

And craves and deprecates, and loves, and loathes,

And bids God help him, till death touch his eyes

And show God granted most, denying all.'

Man I am and man would be, Love—merest man and nothing more.

Bid me seem no other! Eagles boast of pinions—let them soar!

I may put forth angel's plumage, once unmanned, but not before.

Now on earth, to stand suffices,—nay, if kneeling serves, to kneel:

Here you front me, here I find the all of heaven that earth can feel:

Sense looks straight,—not over, under,— perfect sees beyond appeal.

Good you are and wise, full circle: what to me were more outside?

Wiser wisdom, better goodness? Ah, such want the angel's wide

Sense to take and hold and keep them! Mine at least has never tried.

THE SUN

'AND what might that bold man's announcement be'—

Ferishtah questioned—'which so moved thine ire

That thou didst curse, nay, cuff and kick
—in short,

Confute the announcer? Wipe those drops
away

Which start afresh upon thy face at mere Mention of such enormity: now, speak!

'He scrupled not to say—(thou warrant-
est,

O patient Sir, that I unblamed repeat Abominable words which blister tongue?)

God once assumed on earth a human
shape:

(Lo, I have spitten!) Dared I ask the grace,
Fain would I hear, of thy subtility,
From out what hole in man's corrupted
heart

Creeps such a maggot: fancies verminous
Breed in the clots there, but a monster born
Of pride and folly like this pest—thyself
Only canst trace to egg-shell it hath chipped.'

The sun rode high. 'During our ignorance'—

Began Ferishtah—'folk esteemed as God
Yon orb: for argument, suppose him so,—

Be it the symbol, not the symbolized,
I and thou safer take upon our lips.

Accordingly, yon orb that we adore
—What is he? Author of all light and life:

Such one must needs be somewhere: this is he.

Like what? If I may trust my human eyes,
A ball composed of spirit-fire, whence springs

—What, from this ball, my arms could circle round?

All I enjoy on earth. By consequence, Inspiring me with—what? Why, love and
praise.

I eat a palatable fig—there's love
In little: who first planted what I pluck,

Obtains my little praise, too: more of both Keeps due proportion with more cause for
each:

So, more and ever more, till most of all Completes experience, and the orb, descended

Ultimate giver of all good, perforce
Gathers unto himself all love, all praise,

Is worshipped—which means loved and praised at height.

Back to the first good: 'twas the gardener gave

Occasion to my palate's pleasure: grace, Plain on his part, demanded thanks on
mine.

Go up above this giver,—step by step, Gain a conception of what—(how and
why,

Matters not now)—occasioned him to
give,

Appointed him the gardener of the
ground,—

I mount by just progression slow and sure To some prime giver—here assumed yon
orb—

Who takes my worship. Whom have I in
mind,

Thus worshipping, unless a man, my like

THE SUN

Howe'er above me? Man, I say—how
 else,
 I being man who worship? Here's my
 hand
 Lifts first a mustard-seed, then weight on weight
 Greater and ever greater, till at last,
 It lifts a melon, I suppose, then stops—Hand-strength expended wholly: so, my
 love
 First lauds the gardener for the fig his gift, Then, looking higher, loves and lauds still
 more,
 Who hires the ground, who owns the ground, Sheikh, Shah,
 On and away, away and ever on,
 Till, at the last, it loves and lauds the orb
 Ultimate cause of all to laud and love.
 Where is the break, the change of quality In hand's power, soul's impulsion? Gift was grace,
 The greatest as the smallest. Had I stopped Anywhere in the scale, stayed love and
 praise
 As so far only fit to follow gift, Saying "I thanked the gardener for his fig,
 But now that, lo, the Shah has filled my purse
 With tomans which avail to purchase me
 A fig-tree forest, shall I pay the same With love and praise, the gardener's proper fee?"
 Justly would whoso bears a brain object
 "Giving is giving, gift claims gift's return,
 Do thou thine own part, therefore: let the Shah
 Ask more from who has more to pay."
 Perchance
 He gave me from his treasure less by much Than the soil's servant: let that be! My
 part
 Is plain—to meet and match the gift and gift
 With love and love, with praise and praise, till both
 Cry "All of us is thine, we can no more!"
 So shall I do man's utmost—man to man:
 For as our liege the Shah's sublime estate Merely enhaloes, leaves him man the
 same,
 So must I count that orb I call a fire (Keep to the language of our ignorance)
 Something that's fire and more beside.
 Mere fire
 —Is it a force which, giving, knows it gives,
 And wherefore, so may look for love and
 praise
 From me, fire's like so far, however less
 In all beside? Prime cause this fire shall be, Uncaused, all-causing: hence begin the
 gifts,
 Thither must go my love and praise—to
 what?
 Fire? Symbol fitly serves the symbolized

Herein,—that this same object of my
 thanks,
 While to my mind nowise conceivable
 Except as mind no less than fire, refutes Next moment mind's conception: fire is
 fire—
 While what I needs must thank, must needs include
 Purpose with power,—humanity like mine,
 Imagined, for the dear necessity,
 One moment in an object which the next Confesses unimaginable. Power!
 —What need of will, then? nought opposes power:
 Why, purpose? any change must be for
 worse:
 And what occasion for beneficence
 When all that is, so is and so must be?
 Best being best now, change were for the
 worse.
 Accordingly discard these qualities
 Proper to imperfection, take for type Mere fire, eject the man, retain the orb,—
 The perfect and, so, inconceivable,— And what remains to love and praise? A stone
 Fair-coloured proves a solace to my eye, Rolled by my tongue brings moisture curing drouth,
 And struck by steel emits a useful spark:
 Shall I return it thanks, the insentient
 thing?
 No,—man once, man for ever—man in
 soul
 As man in body: just as this can use
 Its proper senses only, see and hear,
 Taste, like or loathe according to its law
 And not another creature's,—even so Man's soul is moved by what, if it in turn Must move, is kindred soul: receiving
 good
 —Man's way—must make man's due acknowledgment,
 No other, even while he reasons out Plainly enough that, were the man unmanned,
 Made angel of, angelic every way,
 The love and praise that rightly seek and
 find
 Their man-like object now,—instructed
 more,
 Would go forth idly, air to emptiness.
 Our human flower, sun-ripened, proffers scent
 Though reason prove the sun lacks nose to feed
 On what himself made grateful: flower and man,
 Let each assume that scent and love alike
 Being once born, must needs have use!
 Man's part
 Is plain—to send love forth,—astray, perhaps:
 No matter, he has done his part.'

‘Wherefrom
What is to follow—if I take thy sense—
But that the sun—the inconceivable Confessed by man—comprises, all the
same,
Man’s every-day conception of himself—
No less remaining unconceived!’

‘Agreed!’

‘Yet thou, insisting on the right of man
To feel as man, not otherwise,—man,
bound
By man’s conditions neither less nor more,
Obliged to estimate as fair or foul,
Right, wrong, good, evil, what man’s faculty Adjudges such,—how canst thou,—plainly
bound
To take man’s truth for truth and only
truth,—
Dare to accept, in just one case, as truth Falshood confessed? Flesh simulating
fire—
Our fellow-man whom we his fellows
know
For dust—instinct with fire unknowable!
Where’s thy man-needed truth—its proof, may print
Of faintest passage on the tablets traced
By man, termed knowledge? ‘Tis conceded thee,
We lack such fancied union—fire with
flesh:
But even so, to lack is not to gain
Our lack’s supplance: where’s the trace of such Recorded?’

‘What if such a tracing were?
If some strange story stood,—whate’er its
worth,—
That the immensely yearned-for, once be-
fell,
—The sun was flesh once?—(keep the figure!)’

‘How?

An union inconceivable was fact?’

‘Son, if the stranger have convinced himself
Fancy is fact—the sun, besides a fire, Holds earthly substance somehow fire pervades
And yet consumes not,—earth, he understands,
With essence he remains a stranger to,— Fittier thou saidst “I stand appalled before Conception unattainable by me Who need it most”—than this—“What?
boast he holds
Conviction where I see conviction’s need,

Alas,—and nothing else? then what remains
But that I straightway curse, cuff, kick the
fool!’”

*Fire is in the flint: true, once a spark escapes, Fire forgets the kinship, soars till fancy shapes
Some befitting cradle where the babe had
birth—
Wholly heaven’s the product, unallied to
earth.
Splendours recognized as perfect in the star!—
In our flint their home was, housed as now they are.*

MIHRAB SHAH

QUOTH an inquirer, ‘Praise the Merciful!
My thumb which yesterday a scorpion nipped—
(It swelled and blackened)—lo, is sound
again!
By application of a virtuous root
The burning has abated: that is well:
But now methinks I have a mind to ask,—
Since this discomfort came of culling herbs Nor meaning harm,—why needs a scorpion be?
Yea, there began, from when my thumb
last throbbled,
Advance in question-framing, till I asked Wherefore should any evil hap to man—
From ache of flesh to agony of soul—
Since God’s All-mercy mates All-potency?
Nay, why permits He evil to Himself—Man’s sin, accounted such? Suppose a
world
Purged of all pain, with fit inhabitant—Man pure of evil in thought, word and
deed—
Were it not well? Then, wherefore otherwise?
Too good result? But He is wholly good!
Hard to effect? Ay, were He impotent!
Teach me, Ferishtah!’

Said the Dervish: ‘Friend,
My chance, escaped to-day, was worse than thine:
I, as I woke this morning, raised my head,
Which never tumbled but stuck fast on
neck.
Was not I glad and thankful!’

‘How could head Tumble from neck, unchopped—inform me first!
Unless we take Firdausi’s tale for truth,
Who ever heard the like?’

‘The like might hap
By natural law: I let my staff fall thus—

MIHRAB SHAH

It goes to ground, I know not why. Suppose,
Whene'er my hold was loosed, it skyward sprang
As certainly, and all experience proved
That, just as staves when unsupported sink,
So, unconfined, they soar?'

'Let such be law—
Why, a new chapter of sad accidents
Were added to humanity's mischance,
No doubt at all, and as a man's false step
Now lays him prone on earth, contrariwise,
Removal from his shoulder of a weight
Might start him upwards to perdition. Ay!
But, since such law exists in just thy brain,
I shall not hesitate to doff my cap
For fear my head take flight.'

'Nor feel relief
Finding it firm on shoulder. Tell me, now!
What were the bond 'twixt man and man,
dost judge,
Pain once abolished? Come, be true! Our Shah—
How stands he in thy favour? Why that shrug?
Is not he lord and ruler?'

'Easily!
His mother bore him, first of those four wives
Provided by his father, such his luck:
Since when his business simply was to breathe
And take each day's new bounty. There he stands—
Where else had I stood, were his birth-star
mine?
No, to respect men's power, I needs must
see Men's bare hands seek, find, grasp and wield the sword
Nobody else can brandish! Bless his
heart,
'Tis said, he scarcely counts his fingers
right!'

'Well, then—his princely doles! from every feast
Off go the feasted with the dish they ate
And cup they drank from,—nay, a change besides
Of garments' . . .

'Sir, put case, for service done,— Or best, for love's sake,—such and such a slave
Sold his allowance of sour lentil soup
To therewith purchase me a pipe-stick,— nay,
If he, by but one hour, cut short his sleep
To clout my shoe,—that were a sacrifice!'

'All praise his gracious bearing.'

'All praise mine—
Or would praise did they never make approach
Except on all-fours, crawling till I bade
"Now that with eyelids thou hast touched the earth,
Come close and have no fear, poor nothingness!"
What wonder that the lady-rose I woo
And palisade about from every wind, Holds herself handsomely? The wilding,
now,
Ruffled outside at pleasure of the blast,
That still lifts up with something of a smile
Its poor attempt at bloom' . . .

'A blameless life,
Where wrong might revel with impunity—
Remember that!'

'The falcon on his fist—Reclaimed and trained and belled and beautified
Till she believes herself the Simorgh's
match—
She only deigns destroy the antelope, Stoops at no carrion-crow: thou marvel-lest?'

'So be it, then! He wakes no love in thee
For any one of divers attributes Commonly deemed lovable. All the
same,
I would he were not wasting, slow but sure,
With that internal ulcer' . . .

'Say'st thou so?
How should I guess? Alack, poor soul!
But stay—
Sure in the reach of art some remedy
Must lie to hand: or if it lurk,—that leech
Of fame in Tebriz, why not seek his aid?
Couldst not thou, Dervish, counsel in the case?'

'My counsel might be,—what imports a pang
The more or less, which puts an end to one Odious in spite of every attribute Commonly deemed lovable?'

'Attributes?
Faugh!—nay, Ferishtah,—'tis an ulcer,
think!
Attributes, quotha? Here's poor flesh and
blood,
Like thine and mine and every man's, a prey
To hell-fire! Hast thou lost thy wits for
once?'

'Friend, here they are to find and profit by!
Put pain from out the world, what room were left

For thanks to God, for love to Man? Why thanks,—

Except for some escape, whate'er the style,
From pain that might be, name it as thou mayst?

Why love,—when all thy kind, save me, suppose,

Thy father, and thy son, and...well, thy dog,
To eke the decent number out—we few
Who happen—like a handful of chance stars

From the unnumbered host—to shine o'erhead

And lend thee light,—our twinkle all thy store,—

We only take thy love! Mankind, for-sooth?

Who sympathizes with their general joy Foolish as undeserved? But pain—see God's

Wisdom at work!—man's heart is made to judge

Pain deserved nowhere by the common flesh

Our birthright,—bad and good deserve alike

No pain, to human apprehension! Lust, Greed, cruelty, injustice, crave (we hold) Due punishment from somebody, no doubt:

But ulcer in the midriff! that brings flesh Triumphant from the bar whereto arraigned

Soul quakes with reason. In the eye of God Pain may have purpose and be justified: Man's sense avails to only see, in pain, A hateful chance no man but would avert Or, failing, needs must pity. Thanks to God

And love to man,—from man take these away,

And what is man worth? Therefore, Mihrab Shah,

Tax me my bread and salt twice over, claim Laila my daughter for thy sport,—go on! Slay my son's self, maintain thy poetry Beats mine,—thou meritest a dozen deaths!

But—ulcer in the stomach,—ah, poor soul, Try a fig-plaster: may it ease thy pangs!

So, the head aches and the limbs are faint!

Flesh is a burthen—even to you!

Can I force a smile with a fancy quaint?

Why are my ailments none or few?

In the soul of me sits sluggishness:

Body so strong and will so weak!

The slave stands fit for the labour—yes,

But the master's mandate is still to seek.

You, now—what if the outside clay

Helped, not hindered the inside flame?

My dim to-morrow—your plain to-day,

Yours the achievement, mine the aim?

So were it rightly, so shall it be!

*Only, while earth we pace together
For the purpose apportioned you and me,
Closer we tread for a common tether.*

*You shall sigh 'Wait for his sluggish soul!
Shame he should lag, not lamed as I!'*

May not I smile 'Ungained her goal: Body may reach her—by-and-by?'

A CAMEL-DRIVER

'How of his fate, the Pilgrims' soldier-guide

Condemned' (Ferishtah questioned), 'for he slew

The merchant whom he convoyed with his bales

—A special treachery?'

'Sir, the proofs were plain: Justice was satisfied: between two boards The rogue was sawn asunder, rightly served.'

'With all wise men's approval—mine at least.'

'Himself, indeed, confessed as much. "I die

Justly" (groaned he) "through over-greediness

Which tempted me to rob: but grieve the most

That he who quickened sin at slumber,—ay,

Prompted and pestered me till thought grew deed,—

The same is fled to Syria and is safe, Laughing at me thus left to pay for both.

My comfort is that God reserves for him Hell's hottest" . . .'

'Idle words.'

'Enlighten me!

Wherefore so idle? Punishment by man Has thy assent,—the word is on thy lips.

By parity of reason, punishment By God should likelier win thy thanks and praise.'

'Man acts as man must: God, as God be-seems.

A camel-driver, when his beast will bite, Thumps her athwart the muzzle: why?'

'How else

Instruct the creature—mouths should munch, not bite?'

'True, he is man, knows but man's trick to teach.

Suppose some plain word, told her first of all,

Had hindered any biting?'

A CAMEL-DRIVER

'Find him such,
And fit the beast with understanding first!
No understanding animals like Rakhsh Nowadays, Master! Till they breed on
earth,
For teaching—blows must serve.'

'Who deals the blow—
What if by some rare method,—magic,
say,—
He saw into the biter's very soul,
And knew the fault was so repented of It could not happen twice?'

'That's something: still,
I hear, methinks, the driver say "No less Take thy fault's due! Those long-necked sisters, see,
Lean all a-stretch to know if biting meets Punishment or enjoys impunity.
For their sakes—thwack!"'

'The journey home at end,
The solitary beast safe-stabled now,
In comes the driver to avenge a wrong
Suffered from six months since,—apparently
With patience, nay, approval: when the jaws

Met i' the small of the arm, "Ha, Ladykin, Still at thy frolics, girl of gold?" laughed
he:
"Eat flesh? Rye-grass content thee rather
with,
Whereof accept a bundle!" Now,—what
change!
Laughter by no means! Now 'tis "Fiend, thy frisk
Was fit to find thee provender, didst judge?
Behold this red-hot twy-prong, thus I stick
To hiss i' the soft of thee!"'

'Behold? behold
A crazy noddle, rather! Sure the brute Might wellnigh have plain speech coaxed out of tongue,
And grow as voluble as Rakhsh himself At such mad outrage. "Could I take thy
mind,
Guess thy desire? If biting was offence Wherefore the rye-grass bundle, why each
day's Patting and petting, but to intimate My playfulness had pleased thee? Thou endowed
With reason, truly!"'

'Reason aims to raise
Some makeshift scaffold-vantage midway,
whence
Man dares, for life's brief moment, peer
below:
But ape omniscience? Nay! The ladder
lent
To climb by, step and step, until we reach

The little foothold-rise allowed mankind
To mount on and thence guess the sun's survey—

Shall this avail to show us world-wide
truth
Stretched for the sun's descreying? Reason bids

"Teach, Man, thy beast his duty first of all Or last of all, with blows if blows must
be,—

How else accomplish teaching?" Reason adds

"Before man's First, and after man's poor
Last,
God operated and will operate."

—Process of which man merely knows this
much,—

That nowise it resembles man's at all,
Teaching or punishing.'

'It follows, then,
That any malefactor I would smite With God's allowance, God himself will spare Presumably. No scape-grace? Then, rejoice
Thou snatch-grace safe in Syria!'

'Friend, such view
Is but man's wonderful and wide mistake.
Man lumps his kind i' the mass: God singles thence

Unit by unit. Thou and God exist—
So think!—for certain: think the mass—mankind—

Disparts, disperses, leaves thyself alone!
Ask thy lone soul what laws are plain to
thee,—

Thee and no other,—stand or fall by them!
That is the part for thee: regard all else
For what it may be—Time's illusion. This
Be sure of—ignorance that sins, is safe.
No punishment like knowledge! Instance,
now!

My father's choicest treasure was a book
Wherein he, day by day and year by year,
Recorded gains of wisdom for my sake
When I should grow to manhood. While a
child,

Coming upon the casket where it lay
Unguarded,—what did I but toss the thing
Into a fire to make more flame therewith, Meaning no harm? So acts man three-years old!

I grieve now at my loss by witlessness,
But guilt was none to punish. Man mature—

Each word of his I lightly held, each look
I turned from—wish that wished in vain —nay, will

That willed and yet went all to waste—'tis
these

Rankle like fire. Forgiveness? rather grant

A CAMEL-DRIVER

Forgetfulness! The past is past and lost.
However near I stand in his regard,
So much the nearer had I stood by steps Offered the feet which rashly spurned their help.

That I call Hell; why further punishment?

*When I vexed you and you chid me,
And I owned my fault and turned
My cheek the way you bid me,
And confessed the blow well earned,—*

*My comfort all the while was —Fault was faulty—near, not quite!
Do you wonder why the smile was?
O'erpunished wrong grew right.*

*But faults you ne'er suspected,
Nay, praised, no faults at all,—
Those would you had detected—
Crushed eggs whence snakes could crawl!*

TWO CAMELS

QUOTH one: 'Sir, solve a scruple! No true sage

I hear of, but instructs his scholar thus:
"Wouldst thou be wise? Then mortify thyself!

Baulk of its craving every bestial sense!
Say 'If I relish melons—so do swine!
Horse, ass and mule consume their pro-vender

Nor leave a pea-pod: fasting feeds the
soul."

Thus they admonish: while thyself, I note,
Eatest thy ration with an appetite,
Nor fallest foul of whoso licks his lips
And sighs—"Well-saffroned was that barley soup!"

Can wisdom co-exist with—gorge-and-swill,

I say not,—simply sensual preference
For this or that fantastic meat and drink?
Moreover, wind blows sharper than its
wont

This morning, and thou hast already donned

Thy sheepskin over-garment: sure the sage

Is busied with conceits that soar above
A petty change of season and its chance
Of causing ordinary flesh to sneeze?
I always thought, Sir' . . .

'Son,' Ferishtah said,
'Truth ought to seem as never thought
before.

How if I give it birth in parable?

A neighbour owns two camels, beasts of price

And promise, destined each to go, next
week,

Swiftly and surely with his merchandise
From Nishapur to Sebzevar, no truce

To tramp, but travel, spite of sands and drouth,

In days so many, lest they miss the Fair.
Each falls to meditation o'er his crib
Piled high with provender before the start.
Quoth this: "My soul is set on winning

praise
From goodman lord and master,—hump to hoof,

I dedicate me to his service. How?
Grass, purslane, lupines and I know not
what,

Crammed in my manger? Ha, I see—I
see!

No, master, spare thy money! I shall trudge

The distance and yet cost thee not a doit Beyond my supper on this mouldy bran."

"Be magnified, O master, for the meal
So opportunely liberal!" quoth that.

"What use of strength in me but to surmount

Sands and simooms, and bend beneath thy bales

No knee until I reach the glad bazaar?

Thus I do justice to thy fare: no sprig
Of toothsome chervil must I leave unchewed!

Too bitterly should I reproach myself
Did I sink down in sight of Sebzevar, Remembering how the merest mouthful
more

Had heartened me to manage yet a mile!"
And so it proved: the too-abstemious
brute

Midway broke down, his pack rejoiced
the thieves,

His carcass fed the vultures: not so he
The wisely thankful, who, good market-
drudge,

Let down his lading in the market-place,
No damage to a single pack. Which beast, Think ye, had praise and patting and a brand

Of good-and-faithful-servant fixed on flank?

So, with thy squeamish scruple. What imports

Fasting or feasting? Do thy day's work, dare

Refuse no help thereto, since help refused Is hindrance sought and found. Win but the race—

Who shall object "He tossed three wine cups off,

And, just at starting, Lilith kissed his lips"?

'More soberly,—consider this, my Son.
Put case I never have myself enjoyed,
Known by experience what enjoyment
means,

How shall I—share enjoyment?—no,
indeed!—

TWO CAMELS

Supply it to my fellows,—ignorant,
As so I should be of the thing they crave,
How it affects them, works for good or ill.
Style my enjoyment self-indulgence—
sin—

Why should I labour to infect my kind
With sin's occasion, bid them too enjoy,
Who else might neither catch nor give
again

Joy's plague, but live in righteous misery?
Just as I cannot, till myself convinced,
Impart conviction, so, to deal forth joy
Adroitly, needs must I know joy myself.
Renounce joy for my fellows' sake?

That's joy
Beyond joy; but renounced for mine, not theirs?

Why, the physician called to help the sick, Cries "Let me, first of all, discard my health!"

No, Son: the richness hearted in such joy
Is in the knowing what are gifts we give,
Not in a vain endeavour not to know!
Therefore, desire joy and thank God for it!
The Adversary said,—a Jew reports,—

התם רא איוב אלהים
In Persian phrase, "Does Job fear God for nought?"

Job's creatureship is not abjured, thou
fool!

He nowise isolates himself and plays
The independent equal, owns no more Than himself gave himself, so why thank
God?

A proper speech were this מאלהים
"Equals we are, Job, labour for thyself, Nor bid me help thee: bear, as best flesh
may,

Pains I inflict not nor avail to cure:
Beg of me nothing thou thyself mayst win
By work, or waive with magnanimity, Since we are peers acknowledged,— scarcely peers,

Had I implanted any want of thine
Only my power could meet and gratify."
No: rather hear, at man's indifference—
"Wherefore did I contrive for thee that ear Hungry for music, and direct thine eye
To where I hold a seven-stringed instrument,
Unless I meant thee to beseech me play?"

Once I saw a chemist take a pinch of powder —Simple dust it seemed—and half-unstop
a phial:

—Out dropped harmless dew. "Mixed nothings make"—quoth he—

"Something!" So they did: a thunderclap, but louder—

Lightning-flash, but fiercer—put spectators'
nerves to trial:

Sure enough, we learned what was, imagined what might be.

Had I no experience how a lip's mere tremble, Look's half hesitation, cheek's just change of colour,

These effect a heartquake,—how should I conceive

What heaven there may be? Let it but resemble

Earth myself have known! No bliss that's finer, fuller,

Only—bliss that lasts, they say, and fain would I believe.

CHERRIES

'WHAT, I disturb thee at thy morning-meal:

Cherries so ripe already? Eat apace!
I recollect thy lesson yesterday.

Yet—thanks, Sir, for thy leave to interrupt' . . .

'Friend, I have finished my repast, thank
God!'

'There now, thy thanks for breaking fast on fruit!—

Thanks being praise, or tantamount thereto.

Prithee consider, have not things degree, Lofty and low? Are things not great and small,

Thence claiming praise and wonder more or less?

Shall we confuse them, with thy warrant
too,

Whose doctrine otherwise begins and ends
With just this precept "Never faith enough
In man as weakness, God as potency"? .
When I would pay soul's tribute to that
same,

Why not look up in wonder, bid the stars
Attest my praise of the All-mighty One?
What are man's puny members and as
mean

Requirements weighed with Star-King Mushtari?

There is the marvel!'

'Not to man—that's me.

List to what happened late, in fact or
dream.

A certain stranger, bound from far away,
Still the Shah's subject, found himself
before

Ispahan palace-gate. As duty bade,
He enters in the courts, will, if he may,
See so much glory as befits a slave
Who only comes, of mind to testify
How great and good is shown our lord the Shah.

In he walks, round he casts his eye about,
Looks up and down, admires to heart's
content,

Ascends the gallery, tries door and door, None says his reverence nay: peeps in at
each,

Wonders at all the unimagined use, Gold here and jewels there,—so vast, that hall—

So perfect yon pavilion!—lamps above
Bidding look up from luxuries below,— Evermore wonder topping wonder,—
last—

Sudden he comes upon a cosy nook,
A nest-like little chamber, with his name,
His own, yea, his and no mistake at all,
Plain o'er the entry: what, and he descries Just those arrangements inside,—oh, the
care!—

Suited to soul and body both,—so snug
The cushion—nay, the pipe-stand furnished so!

Whereat he cries aloud,—what think'st thou, Friend?

“That these my slippers should be just my
choice,

Even to the colour that I most affect,
Is nothing: ah, that lamp, the central sun,
What must it light within its minaret
I scarce dare guess the good of! Who lives
there?

That let me wonder at,—no slipper-toys
Meant for the foot, forsooth, which kicks them—thus!”

“Never enough faith in omnipotence,— Never too much, by parity, of faith In impuissance, man's—which turns to
strength

When once acknowledged weakness every
way.

How? Hear the teaching of another tale.

“Two men once owed the Shah a mighty
sum,

Beggars they both were: this one crossed his arms

And bowed his head,—“whereof,”— sighed he,—“each hair

Proved it a jewel, how the host's amount
Were idly strewn for payment at thy feet!”

“Lord, here they lie, my havings poor and scant!

All of the berries on my currant-bush,
What roots of garlic have escaped the mice,

And some five pippins from the seedling
tree,—

Would they were half-a-dozen! anyhow;
Accept my all, poor beggar that I am!”

“Received in full of all demands!” smiled
back

The apportioner of every lot of ground
From inch to acre. Littleless of love

Befits the littleless of loving thing.
What if he boasted “Seeing I am great,

Great must my corresponding tribute be?”
Mushtari,—well, suppose him seven times seven

The sun's superior, proved so by some
sage:

Am I that sage? To me his twinkle blue
Is all I know of him and thank him for,
And therefore I have put the same in verse—

“Like yon blue twinkle, twink's thine eye, my Love!”

“Neither shalt thou be troubled overmuch
Because thy offering,—littleness itself,—
Is lessened by admixture sad and strange
Of mere man's-motives,—praise with fear, and love

With looking after that same love's reward.
Alas, Friend, what was free from this alloy,—

Some smatch thereof,—in best and purest
love

Proffered thy earthly father? Dust thou art, Dust shalt be to the end. Thy father took The dust, and kindly called the handful—
gold,

Nor cared to count what sparkled here and
there,

Sagely unanalytic. Thank, praise, love (Sum up thus) for the lowest favours first,
The commonest of comforts! aught beside Very omnipotence had overlooked

Such needs, arranging for thy little life.
Nor waste thy power of love in wonder-
ment

At what thou wiselier lettest shine unsoiled
By breath of word. That this last cherry
soothes

A roughness of my palate, that I know:
His Maker knows why Mushtari was
made.’

Verse-making was least of my virtues: I viewed with despair

Wealth that never yet was but might be—all that verse-making were

If the life would but lengthen to wish, let the mind be laid bare.

So I said ‘To do little is bad, to do nothing is worse’—

And made verse.

Love-making,—how simple a matter! No depths to explore,

No heights in a life to ascend! No disheartening Before,

No affrighting Hereafter,—love now will be love evermore.

*So I felt ‘To keep silence were folly:’—all language above,
I made love.*

PLOT-CULTURE

‘Ay, but, Ferishtah,’—a disciple smirked,—

‘That verse of thine “How twink's thine eye, my Love,

PLOT-CULTURE

Blue as yon star-beam!" much arrides
myself

Who haply may obtain a kiss therewith
This eve from Laila where the palms abound—

My youth, my warrant—so the palms be
close!

Suppose when thou art earnest in 'dis-
course

Concerning high and holy things,—abrupt I out with—"Laila's lip, how honey-
sweet!"—

What say'st thou, were it scandalous or
no?

I feel thy shoe sent flying at my mouth
For daring—prodigy of impudence—

Publish what, secret, were permissible.
Well,—one slide further in the imagined slough,— Knee-deep therein, (respect thy reverence!)

Suppose me well aware thy very self Stooped prying through the palm-screen, while I dared

Solace me with caressings all the same?
Unutterable, nay—unthinkable,

Undreamable a deed of shame! Alack, How will it fare shouldst thou impress on

me
That certainly an Eye is over all
And each, to mark the minute's deed,

word, thought,
As worthy of reward or punishment?

Shall I permit my sense an Eye-viewed
shame,

Broad daylight perpetration,—so to
speak,—

I had not dared to breathe within the Ear,
With black night's help about me? Yet I

stand
A man, no monster, made of flesh not
cloud:

Why made so, if my making prove offence
To Maker's eye and ear?

'Thou wouldst not stand Distinctly Man,'—Ferishtah made reply,
'Not the mere creature,—did no limit-line

Round thee about, apportion thee thy
place

Clean-cut from out and off the illimitable,—

Minuteness severed from immensity.
All of thee for the Maker,—for thyself,

Workings inside the circle that evolve Thine all,—the product of thy cultured plot.

So much of grain the ground's lord bids thee yield

Bring sacks to granary in Autumn! spare
Daily intelligence of this manure,

That compost, how they tend to feed the soil:

There thou art master sole and absolute —Only, remember doomsday! Twitt'st thou me

Because I turn away my outraged nose
Shouldst thou obtrude thereon a shovelful

Of fertilizing kisses? Since thy sire Wills and obtains thy marriage with the

maid,
Enough! Be reticent, I counsel thee, Nor venture to acquaint him, point by

point,
What he procures thee. Is he so obtuse?
Keep thy instruction to thyself! My ass—

Only from him expect acknowledgment
The while he champs my gift, a thistle-bunch,

How much he loves the largess: of his love
I only tolerate so much as tells

By wrinkling nose and inarticulate grunt,
The meal, that heartens him to do my

work,
Tickles his palate as I meant it should.'

*Not with my Soul, Love!—bid no Soul like
mine*

Lap thee around nor leave the poor Sense room!

Soul,—travel-worn, toil-weary,—would confine

Along with Soul, Soul's gains from glow and gloom,

Captures from soarings high and divings deep.

*Spoil-laden Soul, how should such memories
sleep?*

Take Sense, too—let me love entire and whole—

Not with my Soul!

Eyes shall meet eyes and find no eyes between,

Lips feed on lips, no other lips to fear!

*No past, no future—so thine arms but screen
The present from surprise! not there, 'tis*

here—

Not then, 'tis now:—back, memories that intrude!

*Make, Love, the universe our solitude,
And, over all the rest, oblivion roll—*

Sense quenching. Soul!

A PILLAR AT SEBZEVAR

'KNOWLEDGE deposed, then!'—groaned whom that most grieved

As foolishlest of all the company.
'What, knowledge, man's distinctive attribute,

He doffs that crown to emulate an ass
Because the unknowing long-ears loves at least Husked lupines, and belike the feeder's

self

—Whose purpose in the dole what ass divines?

A PILLAR AT SEBZEVAR

'Friend,' quoth Ferishtah, 'all I seem to know Is—I know nothing save that love I can Boundlessly, endlessly. My curls were crowned
In youth with knowledge,—off, alas, crown slipped Next moment, pushed by better knowledge still Which nowise proved more constant: gain, to-day,
Was toppling loss to-morrow, lay at last —Knowledge, the golden?—lacquered ignorance!
As gain—mistrust it! Not as means to gain:
Lacquer we learn by: cast in fining-pot,
We learn,—when what seemed ore assayed proves dross,— Surelier true gold's worth, guess how purity
I' the lode were precious could one light on ore
Clarified up to test of crucible.
The prize is in the process: knowledge means Ever-renewed assurance by defeat
That victory is somehow still to reach,
But love is victory, the prize itself:
Love—trust to! Be rewarded for the trust
In trust's mere act. In love success is sure, Attainment—no delusion, whatsoe'er
The prize be: apprehended as a prize,
A prize it is. Thy child as surely grasps
An orange as he fails to grasp the sun Assumed his capture. What if soon he finds
The foolish fruit unworthy grasping? Joy
In shape and colour,—that was joy as true—
Worthy in its degree of love—as grasp Of sun were, which had singed his hand beside.
What if he said the orange held no juice
Since it was not that sun he hoped to suck?
This constitutes the curse that spoils our life
And sets man maundering of his misery.
That there's no meanest atom he obtains
Of what he counts for knowledge but he cries "Hold here,—I have the whole thing,— know, this time, Nor need search farther!" Whereas, strew his path
With pleasures, and he scorns them while he stoops:
"This fitly call'st thou pleasure, pick up
this
And praise it, truly? I reserve my thanks For something more substantial." Fool not thus
In practising with life and its delights!
Enjoy the present gift, nor wait to know

The unknowable. Enough to say "I feel Love's sure effect, and, being loved, must
love
The love its cause behind,—I can and do!" Nor turn to try thy brain-power on the
fact,
(Apart from as it strikes thee, here and
now—
Its how and why, i' the future and elsewhere)
Except to—yet once more, and ever again,
Confirm thee in thy utter ignorance:
Assured that, whatsoe'er the quality Of love's cause, save that love was caused
thereby,
This—nigh upon revealment as it seemed
A minute since—defies thy longing looks, Withdrawn into the unknowable once
more.
Wholly distrust thy knowledge, then, and
trust
As wholly love allied to ignorance!
There lies thy truth and safety. Love is
praise,
And praise is love! Refine the same, contrive
An intellectual tribute—ignorance
Appreciating ere approbative
Of knowledge that is infinite? With us
The small, who use the knowledge of our
kind Greater than we, more wisely ignorance
Restricts its apprehension, sees and knows No more than brain accepts in faith of
sight,
Takes first what comes first, only sure so
far.
By Sebzevar a certain pillar stands
So aptly that its gnomon tells the hour;
What if the townsmen said "Before we thank
Who placed it, for his serviceable craft,
And go to dinner since its shade tells noon,
Needs must we have the craftsman's purpose clear
On half a hundred more recondite points
Than a mere summons to a vulgar meal!"
Better they say "How opportune the help!
Be loved and praised, thou kindly-hearted
sage Whom Hudhud taught,—the gracious spirit-bird,—
How to construct the pillar, teach the
time!"
So let us say—not "Since we know, we
love,"
But rather "Since we love, we know
enough."
Perhaps the pillar by a spell controlled Mushtari in his courses? Added grace
Surely I count it that the sage devised,
Beside celestial service, ministry
To all the land, by one sharp shade at noon

A PILLAR AT SEBZEVAR

Falling as folk foresee. Once more then,
Friend—

(What ever in those careless ears of thine Withal I needs must round thee)—knowledge doubt

Even wherein it seems demonstrable!
Love,—in the claim for love, that's gratitude

For apprehended pleasure, nowise doubt!
Pay its due tribute,—sure that pleasure is,
While knowledge may be, at the most.

See, now!

Eating my breakfast, I thanked God.—
"For love

Shown in the cherries' flavour? Consecrate

So petty an example?" There's the fault!
We circumscribe omnipotence. Search
sand

To unearth water: if first handful scooped Yields thee a draught, what need of digging down

Full fifty fathoms deep to find a spring Whereof the pulse might deluge half the land?

Drain the sufficient drop, and praise what checks

The drouth that glues thy tongue,—what more would help

A brimful cistern? Ask the cistern's boon When thou wouldst solace camels: in thy
case,

Relish the drop and love the loveable!"

'And what may be unloveable?

'Why, hate!

If out of sand comes sand and nought but
sand,

Affect not to be quaffing at mirage, Nor nickname pain as pleasure. That,
belike,

Constitutes just the trial of thy wit
And worthiness to gain promotion,—
hence,

Proves the true purpose of thine actual
life.

Thy soul's environment of things per-
ceived,

Things visible and things invisible,
Fact, fancy—all was purposed to evolve
This and this only—was thy wit of worth

To recognize the drop's use, love the same,
And loyally declare against mirage
Though all the world asseverated dust

Was good to drink? Say, "what made moist my lip,

That I acknowledged moisture:" thou art
saved!

'For why? The creature and creator stand Rightly related so. Consider well!

Were knowledge all thy faculty, then God Must be ignored: love gains him by first leap.

Frankly accept the creatureship: ask good
To love for: press bold to the tether's end Allotted to this life's intelligence!

"So we offend?" Will it offend thyself
If,—impotence praying potency,—

Thy child beseech that thou command the
sun

Rise bright to-morrow—thou, he thinks supreme

In power and goodness, why shouldst thou refuse?

Afterward, when the child matures, per-
chance

The fault were greater if, with wit full-
grown,

The stripling dared to ask for a dinar,
Than that the boy cried "Pluck Sitara

down
And give her me to play with!" 'Tis for
him

To have no bounds to his belief in thee:
For thee it also is to let her shine

Lustrous and lonely, so best serving him!"

Ask not one least word of praise!

Words declare your eyes are bright?

What then meant that summer day's Silence spent in one long gaze?

Was my silence wrong or right?

Words of praise were all to seek!

Face of you and form of you,

Did they find the praise so weak

When my lips just touched your cheek—

Touch which let my soul come through?

A BEAN-STRIPE: ALSO, APPLE- EATING

'LOOK, I strew beans' . . .

(Ferishtah, we premise,

Strove this way with a scholar's cavilment Who put the peevish question: 'Sir, be frank!

A good thing or a bad thing—Life is
which?

Shine and shade, happiness and misery Battle it out there: which force beats, I

ask?
If I pick beans from out a bushelful—

This one, this other,—then demand of thee What colour names each justly in the main,—

"Black" I expect, and "White" ensues

reply:
No hesitation for what speck, spot, splash

Of either colour's opposite, intrudes
To modify thy judgment. Well, for beans

Substitute days,—show, ranged in order,
Life—

Then, tell me its true colour! Time is short, Life's days compose a span,—as brief be
speech!

A BEAN-STRIPE : ALSO, APPLE-EATING

Black I pronounce for, like the Indian
 Sage,—
 Black—present, past and future, interspersed
 With blanks, no doubt, which simple folk style Good
 Because not Evil: no, indeed? Forsooth
 Black's shade on White is White too!
 What's the worst
 Of Evil but that, past, it overshades
 The else-exempted present?—memory, We call the plague! "Nay, but our memory fades
 And leaves the past unsullied!" Does it
 so?
 Why, straight the purpose of such breathing-space,
 Such respite from past ill, grows plain
 enough!
 What follows on remembrance of the past?
 Fear of the future! Life, from birth to
 death,
 Means—either looking back on harm
 escaped,
 Or looking forward to that harm's return
 With tenfold power of harming. Black, not White,
 Never the whole consummate quietude Life should be, troubled by no fear!—nor
 hope—
 I'll say, since lamplight dies in noontide,
 hope
 Loses itself in certainty. Such lot Man's might have been: I leave the consequence
 To bolder critics of the Primal Cause;
 Such am not I: but, man—as man I speak:
 Black is the bean-throw: evil is the Life!')

'Look, I strew beans'—resumed Ferish-tah—'beans
 Blackish and whitish; what they figure
 forth
 Shall be man's sum of moments, bad and
 good,
 That make up Life,—each moment when he feels
 Pleasure or pain, his poorest fact of sense, Consciousness-anyhow: there's stand the
 first;
 Whence next advance shall be from points to line,
 Singulars to a series, parts to whole,
 And moments to the Life. How look they
 now,
 Viewed in the large, those little joys and griefs
 Ranged duly all a-row at last, like beans —These which I strew? This bean was white, this—black,
 Set by itself,—but see if, good and bad
 Each following either in companionship, Black have not grown less black and white less white,

Till blackish seems but dun, and whitish
 —grey,
 And the whole line turns—well, or black to thee
 Or white belike to me—no matter which:
 The main result is—both are modified According to our eye's scope, power of range
 Before and after. Black dost call this bean?
 What, with a whiteness in its wake, which
 —see—
 Suffuses half its neighbour?—and, in turn,
 Lowers its pearliness late absolute,
 Frowned upon by the jet which follows
 hard—Else wholly white my bean were. Choose a joy!
 Bettered it was by sorrow gone before,
 And sobered somewhat by the shadowy
 sense
 Of sorrow which came after or might
 come.
 Joy, sorrow,—by precedence, subse-
 quence—
 Either on each, make fusion, mix in Life That's both and neither wholly: grey or dun?
 Dun thou decidest? grey prevails, say I: Wherefore? Because my view is wide
 enough,
 Reaches from first to last nor winks at all:
 Motion achieves it: stop short—fast we stick,—
 Probably at the bean that's blackest.

'Since—

Son, trust me,—this I know and only this—
 I am in motion, and all things beside That circle round my passage through their midst,— Motionless, these are, as regarding me:
 —Which means, myself I solely recognize.
 They too may recognize themselves, not
 me,
 For aught I know or care: but plain they serve
 This, if no other purpose—stuff to try
 And test my power upon of raying light
 And lending hue to all things as I go Moonlike through vapour. Mark the flying orb!
 Think'st thou the halo, painted still afresh
 At each new cloud-fleece pierced and passaged through,
 This was and is and will be evermore Coloured in permanence? The glory
 swims
 Girdling the glory-giver, swallowed
 straight
 By night's abysmal gloom, unglorified Behind as erst before the advancer:
 gloom?
 Faced by the onward-faring, see, succeeds

A BEAN-STRIPE: ALSO, APPLE-EATING

From the abandoned heaven a next surprise,
 And where's the gloom now?—silver-smitten straight,
 One glow and variegation! So with me,
 Who move and make,—myself,—the black, the white,
 The good, the bad, of life's environment.
 Stand still! black stays black: start again! there's white Asserts supremacy: the motion's all
 That colours me my moment: seen as joy?
 I have escaped from sorrow, or that was Or might have been: as sorrow?—thence shall be Escape as certain: white preceded black,
 Black shall give way to white as duly,—so,
 Deepest in black means white most imminent.
 Stand still,—have no before, no after!—life
 Proves death, existence grows impossible
 To man like me. "What else is blessed sleep
 But death, then?" Why, a rapture of release From toil,—that's sleep's approach: as certainly,
 The end of sleep means, toil is triumphed o'er:
 These round the blank unconsciousness between Brightness and brightness, either pushed to blaze
 Just through that blank's interposition.
 Hence
 The use of things external: man—that's I—Practise thereon my power of casting light,
 And calling substance,—when the light I cast Breaks into colour,—by its proper name
 —A truth and yet a falsity: black, white,
 Names each bean taken from what lay so close
 And threw such tint: pain might mean pain indeed Seen in the passage past it,—pleasure prove
 No mere delusion while I paused to look,— Though what an idle fancy was that fear
 Which overhung and hindered pleasure's hue!
 While how, again, pain's shade enhanced the shine
 Of pleasure, else no pleasure! Such effects Came of such causes. Passage at an end,—
 Past, present, future pains and pleasures fused
 So that one glance may gather blacks and whites
 Into a life-time,—like my bean-streak there,

Why, white they whirl into, not black—for me!

'Ay, but for me? The indubitable blacks, Immeasurable miseries, here, there And everywhere i' the world—world out-side thine

Paled off so opportunely,—body's plague, Torment of soul,—where's found thy fellowship

With wide humanity all round about Reeling beneath its burden? What's despair?

Behold that man, that woman, child—nay, brute!

Will any speck of white unblacken life Splashed, splotched, dyed hell-deep now from end to end

For him or her or it—who knows? Not I!'

'Nor I, Son! "It" shall stand for bird, beast, fish,

Reptile, and insect even: take the last! There's the palm-aphis, minute miracle As wondrous every whit as thou or I: Well, and his world's the palm-frond, there he's born,

Lives, breeds and dies in that circumference,

An inch of green for cradle, pasture-ground,

Purlieu and grave: the palm's use, ask of him!

"To furnish these," replies his wit: ask thine—

Who see the heaven above, the earth below,

Creation everywhere,—these, each and all Claim certain recognition from the tree

For special service rendered branch and bole,

Top-tuft and tap-root:—for thyself, thus seen,

Palms furnish dates to eat, and leaves to shade,

—Maybe, thatch huts with,—have another use

Than strikes the aphis. So with me, my Son!

I know my own appointed patch i' the world,

What pleasures me or pains there: all out-side—

How he, she, it, and even thou, Son, live, Are pleased or pained, is past conjecture, once

I pry beneath the semblance,—all that's fit, To practise with,—reach where the fact may lie

Fathom-deep lower. There's the first and last

Of my philosophy. Blacks blur thy white? Not mine! The aphis feeds, nor finds his leaf

A BEAN-STRIPE : ALSO, APPLE-EATING

Untenable because a lance-thrust, nay, Lightning strikes sere a moss-patch close
beside,

Where certain other aphids live and love.
Restriction to his single inch of white,
That's law for him, the aphid: but for me,
The man, the larger-souled, beside my stretch

Of blacks and whites, I see a world of woe
All round about me: one such burst of
black

Intolerable o'er the life I count White in the main, and, yea—white's faintest trace

Were clean abolished once and evermore.
Thus fare my fellows, swallowed up in
gloom

So far as I discern: how far is that?
God's care be God's! 'Tis mine—to boast no joy

Unsobered by such sorrows of my kind
As sully with their shade my life that shines.

'Reflected possibilities of pain, Forsooth, just chasten pleasure! Pain it-
self,—

Fact and not fancy, does not this affect
The general colour?'

'Here and there a touch Taught me, betimes, the artifice of
things—

That all about, external to myself,
Was meant to be suspected,—not revealed Demonstrably a cheat,—but half seen
through,

Lest white should rule unchecked along the line:

Therefore white may not triumph. All the
same,

Of absolute and irretrievable
And all-subduing black,—black's soul of
black

Beyond white's power to disintensify,—
Of that I saw no sample: such may wreck
My life and ruin my philosophy

To-morrow, doubtless: hence the constant shade

Cast on life's shine,—the tremor that intrudes

When firmest seems my faith in white.
Dost ask

"Who is Ferishtah, hitherto exempt From black experience? Why, if God be just,

Were sundry fellow-mortals singled out
To undergo experience for his sake, Just that the gift of pain, bestowed on
them,

In him might temper to the due degree Joy's else-excessive largess?" Why, indeed!

Back are we brought thus to the starting-point—

Man's impotency, God's omnipotence,
These stop my answer. Aphis that I am,
How leave my inch-allotment, pass at will
Into my fellow's liberty of range,

Enter into his sense of black and white,
As either, seen by me from outside, seems Predominatingly the colour? Life, Lived by my fellow, shall I pass into And myself live there? No—no more than pass

From Persia, where in sun since birth I
bask

Daily, to some ungracious land afar, Told of by travellers, where the might of
snow

Smothers up day, and fluids lose themselves

Frozen to marble. How I bear the sun,
Beat though he may unduly, that I know:
How blood once curdled ever creeps again,
Baffles conjecture: yet since people live Somehow, resist a clime would conquer
me,

Somehow provided for their sake must
dawn

Compensative resource. "No sun, no grapes,—

Then, no subsistence!"—were it wisely
said?

Or this well-reasoned—"Do I dare feel warmth

And please my palate here with Persia's
vine,

Though, over-mounts,—to trust the traveller,—

Snow, feather-thick, is falling while I feast?
What if the cruel winter force his way
Here also?" Son, the wise reply were this:

When cold from over-mounts spikes
through and through

Blood, bone and marrow of Ferishtah,—
then,

Time to look out for shelter—time, at
least,

To wring the hands and cry "No shelter serves!"

Shelter, of some sort, no experienced chill Warrants that I despair to find.'

'No less,
Doctors have differed here; thou say'st thy
say;

Another man's experience masters thine,
Flat controverted by the sourly-Sage,
The Indian witness who, with faculty Fine as Ferishtah's, found no white at all Chequer the world's predominating black,
No good out evil from supremacy,
So that Life's best was that it led to death.
How of his testimony?'

'Son, suppose
My camel told me: "Threescore days and ten

A BEAN-STRIFE : ALSO, APPLE-EATING

I traversed hill and dale, yet never found Food to stop hunger, drink to stay my drouth;

Yet, here I stand alive, which take in proof
That to survive was found impossible!"
"Nay, rather take thou, non-surviving beast"

(Reply were prompt), "on flank 'this thwack of staff"

Nowise affecting flesh that's dead and dry!
Thou wincest? Take correction twice,
amend

Next time thy nomenclature! Call white
—white!"

The sourly-Sage, for whom life's best was
death,

Lived out his seventy years, looked hale,
laughed loud,

Liked—above all—his dinner,—lied, in short,'

'Lied is a rough phrase: say he fell from
truth

In climbing towards it!—sure less faulty so
Than had he sat him down and stayed content

With thy safe orthodoxy, "White, all
white,

White everywhere for certain I should see
Did I but understand how white is black,
As clearer sense than mine would."

Clearer sense,—

Whose may that be? Mere human eyes I
boast,

And such distinguish colours in the main,
However any tongue, that's human too, Please to report the matter. Dost thou
blame

A soul that strives but to see plain, speak
true,

Truth at all hazards? Oh, this false for real,

This emptiness which feigns solidity,— Ever some grey that's white, and dun that's black,—

When shall we rest upon the thing itself
Not on its semblance?—Soul—too weak,
forsooth,

To cope with fact—wants fiction everywhere!

Mine tires of falsehood: truth at any cost!'

'Take one and try conclusions—this, suppose!

God is all-good, all-wise, all-powerful:
truth?

Take it and rest there. What is man? Not
God:

None of these absolutes therefore,—yet
himself,

A creature with a creature's qualities.
Make them agree, these two conceptions!

Each

Abolishes the other. Is man weak,

Foolish and bad? He must be Ahri-man, Co-equal with an Ormuzd, Bad with
Good,

Or else a thing made at the Prime Sole Will,
Doing a maker's pleasure—with results

Which—call, the wide world over, "what must be"—

But, from man's point of view, and only
point

Possible to his powers, call—evidence Of goodness, wisdom, strength? we mock ourselves

In all that's best of us,—man's blind but
sure

Craving for these in very deed not word, Reality and not illusion. Well,—

Since these nowhere exist—nor there where cause

Must have effect, nor here where craving
means

Craving unfulfilled by fit consequence
And full supply, aye sought for, never
found—

These—what are they but man's own rule of right?

A scheme of goodness recognized by man;
Although by man unrealizable,—

Not God's with whom to will were to perform:

Nowise performed here, therefore never willed.

What follows but that God, who could the
best,

Has willed the worst,—while man, with power to match

Will with performance, were deservedly Hailed the supreme—provided . . . here's the touch

That breaks the bubble . . . this concept of man's

Were man's own work, his birth of heart and brain,

His native grace, no alien gift at all.
The bubble breaks here. Will of man create?

No more than this my hand which strewed
the beans

Produced them also from its finger-tips.
Back goes creation to its source, source
prime

And ultimate, the single and the sole.'

'How reconcile discordancy,—unite Notion and notion—God that only can

Yet does not,—man that would indeed
But just as surely cannot,—both in one?

What help occurs to thy intelligence?'

'Ah, the beans,—or,—example better
yet,—

A carpet-web I saw once leave the loom
And lie at gorgeous length in Ispahan!

The weaver plied his work with lengths of silk

A BEAN-STRIPE : ALSO, APPLE-EATING

Dyed each to match some jewel as it might,
And wove them, this by that. "How comes it, friend,"—

(Quoth I)—"that while, apart, this fiery hue,

That watery dimness, either shocks the
eye,

So blinding bright, or else offends again
By dulness,—yet the two, set each by each,
Somehow produce a colour born of both,
A medium profitable to the sight?"

"Such medium is the end whereat I
aim,"—

Answered my craftsman: "there's no single tinct

Would satisfy the eye's desire to taste
The secret of the diamond: join extremes,
Results a serviceable medium-ghost,

The diamond's simulation." Even so I needs must blend the quality of man

With quality of God, and so assist Mere human sight to understand my Life,

What is, what should be,—understand thereby

Wherefore I hate the first and love the
last,—

Understand why things so present themselves

To me, placed here to prove I understand.
Thus, from beginning runs the chain to

end,
And binds me plain enough. By conse-
quence,

I bade thee tolerate,—not kick and cuff
The man who held that natures did in fact

Blend so, since so thyself must have them
blend

In fancy, if it take a flight so far.'

'A power, confessed past knowledge, nay, past thought,

—Thus thought thus known!'

'To know of, think about—
Is all man's sum of faculty effects

When exercised on earth's least atom,
Son!

What was, what is, what may such atom
be?

No answer! Still, what seems it to man's sense?

An atom with some certain properties Known about, thought of as occasion needs,

—Man's—but occasions of the universe?

Unthinkable, unknowable to man.
Yet, since to think and know fire through and through Exceeds man, is the warmth of fire unknown,

Its uses—are they so unthinkable?
Pass from such obvious power to powers

unseen,

Undreamed of save in their sure consequence:

Take that, we spoke of late, which draws to ground

The staff my hand lets fall: it draws, at least—

Thus much man thinks and knows, if nothing more.'

'Ay, but man puts no mind into such
power!

He neither thanks it, when an apple drops, Nor prays it spare his pate while underneath.

Does he thank Summer though it plumped the rind?

Why thank the other force—whate'er its
name—

Which gave him teeth to bite and tongue to taste

And throat to let the pulp pass? Force and
force,

No end of forces! Have they mind like
man?'

'Suppose thou visit our lord Shalim-Shah, Bringing thy tribute as appointed. "Here Come I to pay my due!" Whereat one
slave

Obsequious spreads a carpet for thy foot,
His fellow offers sweetmeats, while a third

Prepares a pipe: what thanks or praise have they?

Such as befit prompt service. Gratitude Goes past them to the Shah whose gracious nod

Set all the sweet civility at work;
But for his ordinance, I much suspect,

My scholar had been left to cool his heels Uncarpeted, or warm them—likelier still—

With bastinado for intrusion. Slaves Needs must obey their master: "force and
force,

No end of forces," act as bids some force Supreme o'er all and each: where find that
one?

How recognize him? Simply as thou didst
The Shah—by reasoning "Since I feel a debt,

Behoves me pay the same to one aware
I have my duty, he his privilege."

Didst thou expect the slave who charged thy pipe

Would serve as well to take thy tribute-bag
And save thee further trouble?'

'Be it so!
The sense within me that I owe a debt Assures me—somewhere must be somebody

Ready to take his due. All comes to this—Where due is, there acceptance follows:
find

A BEAN-STRIPE: ALSO, APPLE-EATING

Him who accepts the due! and why look far?

Behold thy kindred compass thee about!
Ere thou wast born and after thou shalt die,

Heroic man stands forth as Shahan-Shah.
Rustem and Gew, Gudarz and all the rest,
How come they short of lordship that's to seek?

Dead worthies! but men live undoubtedly Gifted as Sindokht, sage Sulayman's match,

Valiant like Kawah: ay, and while earth lasts

Such heroes shall abound there—all for thee

Who profitest by all the present, past,
And future operation of thy race.

Why, then, o'erburdened with a debt of thanks,

Look wistful for some hand from out the clouds

To take it, when, all round, a multitude
Would ease thee in a trice?'

'Such tendered thanks

Would tumble back to who craved riddance, Son!

—Who but my sorry self? See! stars are out—

Stars which, unconscious of thy gaze beneath,

Go glorying, and glorify thee too —Those Seven Thrones, Zurah's beauty, weird Parwin!

Whether shall love and praise to stars be paid

Or—say—some Mubid who, for good to thee

Blind at thy birth, by magic all his own
Opened thine eyes, and gave the sightless sight,

Let the stars' glory enter? Say his charm Worked while thyself lay sleeping: as he went Thou wakedst: "What a novel sense have I!

Whom shall I love and praise?" "The stars, each orb

Thou standest rapt beneath," proposes one:

"Do not they live their life, and please themselves,

And so please thee? What more is requisite?"

Make thou this answer: "If indeed no mage

Opened my eyes and worked a miracle,
Then let the stars thank me who apprehend

That such an one is white, such other blue!
But for my apprehension both were blank.

Cannot I close my eyes and bid my brain Make whites and blues, conceive without stars' help,

New qualities of colour? were my sight
Lost or misleading, would yon red—I judge

A ruby's benefaction—stand for aught
But green from vulgar glass? Myself appraise

Lustre and lustre; should I overlook
Fomalhaut and declare some fen-fire king,
Who shall correct me, lend me eyes he trusts

No more than I trust mine? My mage for me!

I never saw him: if he never was,
I am the arbitrator!" No, my Son!

Let us sink down to thy similitude:
I eat my apple, relish what is ripe—

The sunny side, admire its rarity
Since half the tribe is wrinkled, and the rest

Hide commonly a maggot in the core,—
And down Zerdusht goes with due smack of lips:

But—thank an apple? He who made my mouth

To masticate, my palate to approve,
My maw to further the concoction—Him

I thank,—but for whose work, the orchard's wealth

Might prove so many gall-nuts—stocks or stones

For aught that I should think, or know, or care.'

'Why from the world,' Ferishtah smiled,
'should thanks

Go to this work of mine? If worthy praise, Praised let it be and welcome: as verse ranks.

Soratemy verse: if good therein outweighs Aught faulty judged, judge justly! Justice

says:

Be just to fact, or blaming or approving:
But—generous? No, nor loving!

'Loving! what claim to love has work of mine?

Concede my life were emptied of its gains
To furnish forth and fill work's strict confine,

Who works so for the world's sake—he complains

With cause when hate, not love, rewards his pains.

I looked beyond the world for truth and beauty:

Sought, found and did my duty.'

EPILOGUE

OUI, Love—no, Love! All the noise below,
Love,

Groanings all and moanings—none of Life I lose!

All of Life's a cry just of weariness and woe, Love—

'Hear at least, thou happy one!' How can I, Love, but choose?

EPILOGUE

Only, when I do hear, sudden circle round
 me
 —Much as when the moon's might frees a space from cloud—Iridescent splendours: gloom—would else
 confound me—
 Barrièred off and banished far—bright-edged the blackest shroud!

Thronging through the cloud-rift, whose are they, the faces Faint revealed yet sure divined, the famous ones of old?
 'What'—they smile—'our names, our deeds so soon erases
 Time upon his tablet where Life's glory lies enrolled?

'Was it for mere fool's-play, make-believe and mummung,
 So we battled it like men, not boylike sulked or whined?
 Each of us heard clang God's "Come!"
 and each was coming:
 Soldiers all, to forward-face, not sneaks to lag behind!

'How of the field's fortune? That concerned our Leader!
 Led, we struck our stroke nor cared for doings left and right:
 Each as on his sole head, failer or suc-
 ceeder,
 Lay the blame or lit the praise: no care for cowards: fight!

Then the cloud-rift broadens, spanning earth that's under,
 Wide our world displays its worth,
 man's strife and strife's success:
 All the good and beauty, wonder crowning
 wonder,
 Till my heart and soul applaud perfection, nothing less.

Only, at heart's utmost joy and triumph, terror
 Sudden turns the blood to ice: a chill wind disencharms
 All the late enchantment! What if all be error—
 If the halo irised round my head were,
 Love, thine arms?

ASOLANDO

FANCIES AND FACTS

1889

TO MRS. ARTHUR BRONSON

To whom but you, dear Friend, should I dedicate verses—some few written, all of them supervised, in the comfort of your presence, and with yet another experience of the gracious hospitality now bestowed on me since so many a year,—adding a charm even to my residences at Venice, and leaving me little regret for the surprise and delight at my visits to Asolo in bygone days?

I unite, you will see, the disconnected poems by a title-name popularly ascribed to the inventiveness of the ancient secretary of Queen Cornaro whose palace-tower still overlooks us: Asolare—'to disport in the open air, amuse oneself at random.' The objection that such a word nowhere occurs in the works of the Cardinal is hardly important—Bembo was too thorough a purist to conserve in print a term which in talk he might possibly toy with: but the word is more likely derived from a Spanish source. I use it for love of the place, and in requital of your pleasant assurance that an early poem of mine first attracted you thither—where and elsewhere, at La Mura as Cà Alvisi, may all happiness attend you!

Gratefully and affectionately yours,

R. B.

ASOLO: October 15, 1889.

PROLOGUE

'THE Poet's age is sad, for why?
 In youth, the natural world could show
 No common object but his eye
 At once involved with alien glow—
 His own soul's iris-bow.

'And now a flower is just a flower:
 Man, bird, beast are but beast, bird,
 man—
 Simply themselves, uninct by dower
 Of dyes which, when life's day began,
 Round each in glory ran.'

Friend, did you need an optic glass, Which were your choice? A lens to drape
 In ruby, emerald, chrysopras,
 Each object—or reveal its shape
 Clear outlined, past escape,

The naked very thing?—so clear
 That, when you had the chance to gaze,
 You found its inmost self appear
 Through outer seeming—truth ablaze,
 Not falsehood's fancy-haze?

PROLOGUE

How many a year, my Asolo,
Since—one step just from sea to land—
I found you, loved yet feared you so—
For natural objects seemed to stand Palpably fire-clothed! No—

No mastery of mine o'er these!
Terror with beauty, like the Bush Burning but unconsumed. Bend knees, Drop eyes to earthward! Language?
Tush!
Silence 'tis awe decrees.

And now? The lambent flame is—where?
Lost from the naked world: earth,
sky,
Hill, vale, tree, flower,—Italia's rare
O'er-running beauty crowds the eye—
But flame? The Bush is bare.

Hill, vale, tree, flower—they stand distinct,
Nature to know and name. What then?
A Voice spoke thence which straight unlinked
Fancy from fact: see, all's in ken:
Has once my eyelid winked?

No, for the purged ear apprehends
Earth's import, not the eye late dazed:
The Voice said 'Call my works thy friends!
At Nature dost thou shrink amazed?
God is it who transcends.'
ASOLO: Sept. 6, 1889.

ROSNY

WOE, he went galloping into the war,
Clara, Clara!
Let us two dream: shall he 'scape with a scar?
Scarcely disfigurement, rather a grace Making for manhood which nowise we
mar:
See, while I kiss it, the flush on his face—
Rosny, Rosny!

Light does he laugh: 'With your love in my soul'—
(Clara, Clara!)
'How could I other than—sound, safe and
whole—
Cleave who opposed me asunder, yet
stand Scatheless beside you, as, touching love's
goal,
Who won the race kneels, craves reward at your hand—
Rosny, Rosny?'

Ay, but if certain who envied should see!
Clara, Clara,
Certain who simper: 'The hero for me
Hardly of life were so chary as miss

Death—death and fame—that's love's guerdon when She Boasts, proud bereaved one, her choice fell on this
Rosny, Rosny!'

So,—go on dreaming,—he lies mid a heap
(Clara, Clara,)
Of the slain by his hand: what is death but a sleep?
Dead, with my portrait displayed on his
breast:
Love wrought his undoing: 'No prudence could keep
The love-maddened wretch from his fate.' That is best, Rosny, Rosny!

DUBIETY

I WILL be happy if but for once:
Only help me, Autumn weather,
Me and my cares to screen, ensconce
In luxury's sofa-lap of leather!
Sleep? Nay, comfort—with just a cloud Suffusing day too clear and bright:
Eve's essence, the single drop allowed
To sully, like milk, Noon's water-white.
Let gauziness shade, not shroud,—adjust,
Dim and not deaden,—somehow sheathe
Aught sharp in the rough world's busy thrust,
If it reach me through dreaming's vapour-wreath.

Be life so, all things ever the same!
For, what has disarmed the world?
Outside,
Quiet and peace: inside, nor blame
Nor want, nor wish whate'er betide.
What is it like that has happened before?
A dream? No dream, more real by
much.
A vision? But fanciful days of yore Brought many: mere musing seems not
such.

Perhaps but a memory, after all!
—Of what came once when a woman
leant
To feel for my brow where her kiss might
fall.
Truth ever, truth only the excellent!

OUT of your whole life give but a moment!
All of your life that has gone before,
All to come after it,—so you ignore,
So you make perfect the present,—condense,
In a rapture of rage, for perfection's endowment,
Thought and feeling and soul and sense—

Merged in a moment which gives me at last
 You around me for once, you beneath me, above me—
 Me—sure that despite of time future, time
 past,—
 This tick of our life-time's one moment you love me!
 How long such suspension may linger?
 Ah, Sweet—
 The moment eternal—just that and no
 more—
 When ecstasy's utmost we clutch at the core
 While cheeks burn, arms open, eyes shut and lips meet!

HUMILITY

WHAT girl but, having gathered flowers,
 Stript the beds and spoilt the bowers,
 From the lapful light she carries Drops a careless bud?—nor tarries
 To regain the waif and stray:
 'Store enough for home'—she'll say.
 So say I too: give your lover
 Heaps of loving—under, over,
 Whelm him—make the one the wealthy!
 Am I all so poor who—stealthy
 Work it was!—picked up what fell:
 Not the worst bud—who can tell?

POETICS

'So say the foolish!' Say the foolish so,
 Love?
 'Flower she is, my rose'—or else 'My very swan is she'—
 Or perhaps 'Yon maid-moon, blessing earth below, Love,
 That art thou!'—to them, belike: no such vain words from me.
 'Hush, rose, blush! no balm like breath,'
 I chide it:
 'Bend thy neck its best, swan,—hers the whiter curve!'
 Be the moon the moon: my Love I place beside it:
 What is she? Her human self,—no lower word will serve.

SUMMUM BONUM

ALL the breath and the bloom of the year in the bag of one bee:
 All the wonder and wealth of the mine in the heart of one gem:
 In the core of one pearl all the shade and the shine of the sea:
 Breath and bloom, shade and shine,— wonder, wealth, and—how far above
 them—
 Truth, that's brighter than gem,
 Trust, that's purer than pearl,— Brightest truth, purest trust in the universe—all were for me
 In the kiss of one girl.

A PEARL, A GIRL

A SIMPLE ring with a single stone
 To the vulgar eye no stone of price:
 Whisper the right word, that alone—
 Forth starts a sprite, like fire from ice,
 And lo, you are lord (says an Eastern scroll)
 Of heaven and earth, lord whole and sole
 Through the power in a pearl.
 A woman ('tis I this time that say)
 With little the world counts worthy
 praise
 Utter the true word—out and away
 Escapes her soul: I am wrapt in blaze,
 Creation's lord, of heaven and earth
 Lord whole and sole—by a minute's
 birth—
 Through the love in a girl!

SPECULATIVE

OTHERS may need new life in Heaven—
 Man, Nature, Art—made new, assume!
 Man with new mind old sense to leaven,
 Nature—new light to clear old gloom,
 Art that breaks bounds, gets soaring-
 room.
 I shall pray: 'Fugitive as precious—Minutes which passed,—return, remain!
 Let earth's old life once more enmesh us,
 You with old pleasure, me—old pain,
 So we but meet nor part again!'

WHITE WITCHCRAFT

If you and I could change to beasts, what beast should either be?
 Shall you and I play Jove for once? Turn fox then, I decree!
 Shy wild sweet stealer of the grapes! Now do your worst on me!
 And thus you think to spite your friend—turned loathsome? What, a toad?
 So, all men shrink and shun me! Dear men, pursue your road!
 Leave but my crevice in the stone, a reptile's fit abode!

Now say your worst, Canidia! 'He's loathsome, I allow:
 There may or may not lurk a pearl beneath his puckered brow:
 But see his eyes that follow mine—love lasts there anyhow.'

BAD DREAMS. I

LAST night I saw you in my sleep:
 And how your charm of face was
 changed!
 I asked 'Some love, some faith you keep?'
 You answered 'Faith gone, love estranged.'

BAD DREAMS. I

Whereat I woke—a twofold bliss:
Waking was one, but next there came
This other: 'Though I felt, for this,
My heart break, I loved on the same.'

BAD DREAMS. II

You in the flesh and here—
Your very self! Now, wait!
One word! May I hope or fear?
Must I speak in love or hate?
Stay while I ruminate!

The fact and each circumstance
Dare you disown? Not you!
That vast dome, that huge dance,
And the gloom which overgrew
A—possibly festive crew!

For why should men dance at all—
Why women—a crowd of both—
Unless they are gay? Strange ball—
Hands and feet plighting troth,
Yet partners enforced and loth!

Of who danced there, no shape
Did I recognize: thwart, perverse,
Each grasped each, past escape
In a whirl or weary or worse:
Man's sneer met woman's curse,

While he and she toiled as if
Their guardian set galley-slaves
To supple chained limbs grown stiff:
Unmanacled trulls and knaves—
The lash for who misbehaves!

And a gloom was, all the while,
Deeper and deeper yet
O'ergrowing the rank and file
Of that army of haters—set
To mimic love's fever-fret.

By the wall-side close I crept,
Avoiding the livid maze,
And, safely so far, outstepped
On a chamber—a chapel, says
My memory or betrays—

Closet-like, kept aloof
From unseemly witnessing
What sport made floor and roof
Of the Devil's palace ring
While his Damned amused their king.

Ay, for a low lamp burned,
And a silence lay about
What I, in the midst, discerned
Though dimly till, past doubt,
'Twas a sort of throne stood out—

High seat with steps, at least:
And the topmost step was filled
By—whom? What vested priest?
A stranger to me,—his guild,
His cult, unreconciled

To my knowledge how guild and cult
Are clothed in this world of ours:
I pondered, but no result
Came to—unless that Giaours
So worship the Lower Powers.

When suddenly who entered?
Who knelt—did you guess I saw?
Who—raising that face where centred Allegiance to love and law
So lately—off-casting awe,

Down-treading reserve, away
Thrusting respect . . . but mine
Stands firm—firm still shall stay!
Ask Satan! for I decline
To tell—what I saw, in fine!

Yet here in the flesh you come—
Your same self, form and face,—
In the eyes, mirth still at home!
On the lips, that commonplace
Perfection of honest grace!

Yet your errand is—needs must be
To palliate—well, explain,
Expurgate in some degree
Your soul of its ugly stain.
Oh, you—the good in grain—

How was it your white took tinge?
'A mere dream'—never object!
Sleep leaves a door on hinge Whence soul, ere our flesh suspect,
Is off and away: detect

Her vagaries when loose, who can!
Be she pranksome, be she prude,
Disguise with the day began:
With the night—ah, what ensued
From draughts of a drink hell-brewed?

Then She: 'What a queer wild dream!
And perhaps the best fun is—Myself had its fellow—I seem Scarce awake from yet. 'Twas this—Shall I tell you? First, a kiss!

'For the fault was just your own,—
'Tis myself expect apology:
You warned me to let alone (Since our studies were mere philology)
That ticklish (you said) Anthology.

'So, I dreamed that I passed exam
Till a question posed me sore:
"Who translated this epigram
By—an author we best ignore?"
And I answered "Hannah More"!'

BAD DREAMS. III

This was my dream: I saw a Forest Old as the earth, no track nor trace
Of unmade man. Thou, Soul, explorest—Though in a trembling rapture—space

BAD DREAMS. III

Immeasurable! Shrubs, turned trees,
Trees that touch heaven, support its frieze
Studded with sun and moon and star:
While—oh, the enormous growths that bar

Mine eye from penetrating past
Their tangled twine where lurks—nay,
lives

Royally lone, some brute-type cast
I' the rough, time cancels, man forgives.

On, Soul! I saw a lucid City

Of architectural device

Every way perfect. Pause for pity,

Lightning! nor leave a cicatrice
On those bright marbles, dome and spire,
Structures palatial,—streets which mire
Dares not defile, paved all too fine
For human footstep's smirch, not thine—
Proud solitary traverser,

My Soul, of silent lengths of way—

With what ecstatic dread, aver,
Lest life start sanctioned by thy stay!

Ah, but the last sight was the hideous!

A City, yes,—a Forest, true,—

But each devouring each. Perfidious

Snake-plants had strangled what I knew

Was a pavilion once: each oak

Held on his horns some spoil he broke

By surreptitiously beneath

Uphrusting: pavements, as with teeth,
Gripped huge weed widening crack and split

In squares and circles stone-work erst.

Oh, Nature—good! Oh, Art—no whit

Less worthy! Both in one—accurst!

BAD DREAMS. IV

It happened thus: my slab, though new,

Was getting weather-stained,—beside,

Herbage, balm, peppermint o'ergrew

Letter and letter: till you tried

Somewhat, the Name was scarce descried.

That strong stern man my lover came:

—Was he my lover? Call him, pray,

My life's cold critic bent on blame

Of all poor I could do or say

To make me worth his love one day—

One far day when, by diligent

And dutiful amending faults,

Foibles, all weaknesses which went

To challenge and excuse assaults
Of culture wronged by taste that halts—

Discrepancies should mar no plan

Symmetric of the qualities

Claiming respect from—say—a man

That's strong and stern. 'Once more he pries

Into me with those critic eyes!'

No question! so—'Conclude, condemn

Each failure my poor self avows!

Leave to its fate all you condemn!

There's Solomon's selected spouse:

Earth needs must hold such maids—choose them!'

Why, he was weeping! Surely gone

Sternness and strength: with eyes to
ground

And voice a broken monotone—

'Only be as you were! Abound

In foibles, faults,—laugh, robed and crowned

'As Folly's veriest queen,—care I

One feather-fluff? Look pity, Love,

On prostrate me—your foot shall try

This forehead's use—mount thence
above,

And reach what Heaven you dignify!'

Now, what could bring such change
about?

The thought perplexed: till, following

His gaze upon the ground,—why, out

Came all the secret! So, a thing

Thus simple has deposed my king!

For, spite of weeds that strove to spoil

Plain reading on the lettered slab,

My name was clear enough—no soil

Effaced the date when one chance stab

Of scorn . . . if only ghosts might blab!

INAPPREHENSIVENESS

We two stood simply friend-like side by
side,

Viewing a twilight country far and wide,
Till she at length broke silence. 'How it towers

Yonder, the ruin o'er this vale of ours!

The West's faint flare behind it so relieves

Its rugged outline—sight perhaps de-
ceives,

Or I could almost fancy that I see

A branch wave plain—belike some wind-sown tree

Chance-rooted where a missing turret was.

What would I give for the perspective glass

At home, to make out if 'tis really so!

Has Ruskin noticed here at Asolo

That certain weed-growths on the ravaged
wall

Seem' . . . something that I could not say
at all,

My thought being rather—as absorbed she sent

Look onward after look from eyes distent
With longing to reach Heaven's gate left

ajar—

'Oh, fancies that might be, oh, facts that
are!

INAPPREHENSIVENESS

What of a wilding? By you stands, and may
So stand unnoticed till the Judgment Day,
One who, if once aware that your regard Claimed what his heart holds,—woke, as from its sward

The flower, the dormant passion, so to
speak—

Then what a rush of life would startling
wreak

Revenge on your inapprehensive stare
While, from the ruin and the West's faint
flare,

You let your eyes meet mine, touch what you term

Quietude—that's an universe in germ—
The dormant passion needing but a look
To burst into immense life!

Which noticed how the wall-growths wave' said she

'Was not by Ruskin.'

I said 'Vernon Lee?'

WHICH?

So, the three Court-ladies began

Their trial of who judged best

In esteeming the love of a man:

Who preferred with most reason was thereby confessed

Boy-Cupid's exemplary catcher and cager;
An Abbé crossed legs to decide on the wager.

First the Duchesse: 'Mine for me—

Who were it but God's for Him,

And the King's for—who but he?

Both faithful and loyal, one grace more shall brim

His cup with perfection: a lady's true lover,

He holds—save his God and his king—none above her.'

'I require'—outspoke the Marquise—

'Pure thoughts, ay, but also fine
deeds:

Play the paladin must he, to please

My whim, and—to prove my knight's service exceeds

Your saint's and your loyalist's praying and kneeling—

Show wounds, each wide mouth to my mercy appealing.'

Then the Comtesse: 'My choice be a wretch,

Mere losel in body and soul,

Thrice accurs! What care I, so he stretch

Arms to me his sole saviour, love's ultimate goal,

Out of earth and men's noise—names of
"infidel," "traitor,"

Cast up at him? Crown me, crown's adjudicator!'

And the Abbé uncrossed his legs,

Took snuff, a reflective pinch,

Broke silence: 'The question begs

Much pondering ere I pronounce. Shall I flinch?

The love which to one and one only has reference

Seems terribly like what perhaps gains God's preference.'

THE CARDINAL AND THE DOG

CRESCENZIO, the Pope's Legate at the High

Council, Trent,

— Year Fifteen hundred twenty-two,
March Twenty-five—intent

On writing letters to the Pope till late into the night,

Rose, weary, to refresh himself, and saw a monstrous sight:

(I give mine Author's very words: he penned, I re-indite.)

A black Dog of vast bigness, eyes flaming, ears that hung

Down to the very ground almost, into the chamber sprung

And made directly for him, and laid himself right under

The table where Crescenzo wrote—who called in fear and wonder

His servants in the ante-room, commanded everyone

To look for and find out the beast: but, looking, they found none.

The Cardinal fell melancholy, then sick,
soon after died:

And at Verona, as he lay on his death-bed,
he cried

Aloud to drive away the Dog that leapt on his bed-side.

Heaven keep us Protestants from harm:
the rest . . . no ill betide!

THE POPE AND THE NET

WHAT, he on whom our voices unanimously ran,

Made Pope at our last Conclave? Full low his life began:

His father earned the daily bread as just a fisherman.

So much the more his boy minds book, gives proof of mother-wit,

Becomes first Deacon, and the Priest, then Bishop: see him sit

No less than Cardinal ere long, while no one cries 'Unfit!'

THE POPE AND THE NET

But someone smirks, some other smiles, jogs elbow and nods head:
Each winks at each: 'I-faith, a rise!
Saint Peter's net, instead
Of sword and keys, is come in vogue!
You think he blushes red?

Not he, of humble holy heart! 'Unworthy me!' he sighs:
'From fisher's drudge to Church's prince
—it is indeed a rise:
So, here's my way to keep the fact for ever in my eyes!

And straightway in his palace-hall, where commonly is set
Some coat-of-arms, some portraiture ancestral, 'lo, we met His mean estate's remainder in his fisher-father's net!

Which step conciliates all and some, stops cavil in a trice:
'The humble holy heart that holds of newborn pride no spice!
He's just the saint to choose for Pope!'
Each adds 'Tis my advice.'

So, Pope he was: and when we flocked—its sacred slipper on—To kiss his foot, we lifted eyes, alack the thing was gone—
That guarantee of lowliness,—eclipsed that star which shone!

Each eyed his fellow, one and all kept silence. I cried 'Pish!
I'll make me spokesman for the rest, express the common wish.
Why, Father, is the net removed?' 'Son, it hath caught the fish.'

THE BEAN-FEAST

HE was the man—Pope Sixtus, that Fifth,
that swineherd's son:
He knew the right thing, did it, and thanked God when 'twas done:
But of all he had to thank for, my fancy somehow leans
To thinking, what most moved him was a certain meal on beans.

For one day, as his wont was, in just enough disguise
As he went exploring wickedness,—to see with his own eyes
If law had due observance in the city's entrail dark
As well as where, i' the open, crime stood an obvious mark,—

He chanced, in a blind alley, on a tumbledown once house
Now hovel, vilest structure in Rome the ruinous:

And, as his tact impelled him, Sixtus adventured bold,
To learn how lowliest subjects bore hunger, toil, and cold.

There sat they at high-supper—man and wife, lad and lass,
Poor as you please but cleanly all and carefree: pain that was —Forgotten, pain as sure to be let bide aloof its time,— Mightily munched the brave ones—what mattered gloom or grime?

Said Sixtus 'Feast, my children! who works hard needs eat well.
I'm just a supervisor, would hear what you can tell.

Do any wrongs want righting? The Father tries his best,
But, since he's only mortal, sends such as I to test

The truth of all that's told him—how folk like you may fare:
Come!—only don't stop eating—when mouth has words to spare—

'You'—smiled he—'play the spokesman, bell-wether of the flock!
Are times good, masters gentle? Your grievances unlock!

How of your work and wages?—pleasures, if such may be—Pains, as such are for certain.' Thus smiling questioned he.

But somehow, spite of smiling, awe stole upon the group—
An inexpressible surmise: why should a priest thus stoop—Pry into what concerned folk? Each visage fell. Aware,
Cries Sixtus interposing: 'Nay, children, have no care!

'Fear nothing! Who employs me requires the plain truth. Pelf Beguiles who should inform me: so, I inform myself.

See!' And he threw his hood back, let the close vesture ope, Showed face, and where on tippet the cross lay: 'twas the Pope.

Imagine the joyful wonder! 'How shall the like of us—
Poor souls—requite such blessing of our rude bean-feast?' 'Thus—Thus amply!' laughed Pope Sixtus. 'I early rise, sleep late:
Who works may eat: they tempt me, your beans there: spare a plate!'

Down sat he on the door-step: 'twas they this time said grace:
He ate up the last mouthful, wiped lips,
and then, with face

THE BEAN-FEAST

Turned heavenward, broke forth thankful: 'Not now, that earth obeys Thy word in mine, that through me the peoples know Thy ways—
But that Thy care extendeth to Nature's homely wants,
And, while man's mind is strengthened,
Thy goodness nowise scants Man's body of its comfort,—that I whom kings and queens
Crouch to, pick crumbs from off my table, relish beans!
The thunders I but seem to launch, there plain Thy hand all see:
That I have appetite, digest, and thrive—that boon's for me.'

MUCKLE-MOUTH MEG

FROWNED the Laird on the Lord: 'So, red-handed I catch thee?
Death-doomed by our Law of the Border!
We've a gallows outside and a chiel to dispatch thee:
Who trespass—hangs: all's in order.'
He met frown with smile, did the young English gallant:
Then the Laird's dame: 'Nay, Husband,
I beg!
He's comely: be merciful! Grace for the callant
—If he marries our Muckle-mouth
Meg!'

'No mile-wide-mouthed monster of yours
do I marry:
Grant rather the gallows!' laughed he.
'Foul fare kith and kin of you—why do you tarry?'
'To tame your fierce temper!' quoth
she.

'Shove him quick in the Hole, shut him fast for a week:
Cold, darkness and hunger work wonders:
Who lion-like roars now, mouse-fashion
will squeak,
And "it rains" soon succeed to "it thunders."'

A week did he bide in the cold and the dar-—Not hunger: for duly at morning
In flitted a lass, and a voice like a lark Chirped 'Muckle-mouth Meg still ye're scorning?

'Go hang, but here's parritch to hearten ye first!

'Did Meg's muckle-mouth boast within some Such music as yours, mine should match
it or burst:
No frog-jaws! So tell folk, my Winsome!'

Soon week came to end, and, from Hole's door set wide,
Out he marched, and there waited the lassie:
'Yon gallows, or Muckle-mouth Meg for a bride!
Consider! Sky's blue and turf's grassy:
'Life's sweet: shall I say ye wed Mucklemouth Meg?'
'Not I' quoth the stout heart: 'too eerie
The mouth that can swallow a bubblyjock's egg:
Shall I let it munch mine? Never,
Dearie!'

'Not Muckle-mouth Meg? Wow, the obstinate man!
Perhaps he would rather wed me!'
'Ay, would he—with just for a dowry your
can!'
'I'm Muckle-mouth Meg' chirruped
she.

'Then so—so—so—so—' as he kissed her
apace—
'Will I widen thee out till thou turnest From Margaret Minnikin-mou', by God's
grace,
To Muckle-mouth Meg in good earnest!'

ARCADES AMBO

A. You blame me that I ran away?
Why, Sir, the enemy advanced:
Balls flew about, and—who can say
But one, if I stood firm, had glanced
In my direction? Cowardice?
I only know we don't live twice,
Therefore—shun death, is my advice.

B. Shun death at all risks? Well, at some!
True, I myself, Sir, though I scold
The cowardly, by no means come Under reproof as overbold
—I, who would have no end of brutes
Cut up alive to guess what suits
My case and saves my toe from shoots.

THE LADY AND THE PAINTER

She. Yet womanhood you reverence,
So you profess!
He. With heart and soul.
She. Of which fact this is evidence!
To help Art-study,—for some dole
Of certain wretched shillings,—you Induce a woman—virgin too—
To strip and stand stark-naked?
True.

He. She. Nor feel you so degrade her?
He. What

THE LADY AND THE PAINTER

—(Excuse the interruption)—clings
She. Half-savage-like around your hat?
 Ah, do they please you? Wild-bird-wings

Next season,—Paris-prints assert,—
 We must go feathered to the skirt:
 My modiste keeps on the alert.

Owls, hawks, jays—swallows most
 approve . . .

He. Dare I speak plainly?

She. Oh, I trust!

He. Then, Lady Blanche, it less would move

In heart and soul of me disgust
 Did you strip off those spoils you
 wear,

And stand—for thanks, not shillings
 —bare,

To help Art like my Model there.

She well knew what absolved her—
 praise

In me for God's surpassing good,
 Who granted to my reverent gaze
 A type of purest womanhood.

You—clothed with murder of His
 best

Of harmless beings—stand the test!
 What is it you know?

She. That you jest!

PONTE DELL' ANGELO, VENICE

STOP rowing! This one of our bye-canals
 O'er a certain bridge you have to cross
 That's named 'Of the Angel': listen why!
 The name 'Of the Devil' too much appals
 Venetian acquaintance, so—his the loss,
 While the gain goes . . . look on high!

An angel visibly guards yon house:
 Above each scutcheon—a pair—stands he,
 Enfolds them with droop of either wing:
 The family's fortune were perilous Did he thence depart—you will soon agree,

If I hitch into verse the thing.

For, once on a time, this house belonged
 To a lawyer of note, with law and to spare,
 But also with overmuch lust of gain:
 In the matter of law you were nowise wronged,

But alas for the lucre! He picked you bare
 To the bone. Did folk complain?

'I exact' growled he 'work's rightful due:
 'Tis folk seek me, not I seek them.

Advice at its price! They succeed or fail,
 Get law in each case—and a lesson too:
 Keep clear of the Courts—is advice ad
rem:

They'll remember, I'll be bail!

So, he pocketed fee without a qualm.
 What reason for squeamishness? Labour
 done,

To play he betook him with lightened
 heart,

Ate, drank and made merry with song or psalm,

Since the yoke of the Church is an easy
 one—

Fits neck nor causes smart.

Brief: never was such an extortionate
 Rascal—the word has escaped my teeth
 And yet—(all's down in a book no ass Indited, believe me!)—this reprobate
 Was punctual at prayer-time: gold lurked
 beneath

Alloy of the rankest brass.

For, play the extortioner as he might,
 Fleece folk each day and all day long,
 There was this redeeming circumstance:
 He never lay down to sleep at night
 But he put up a prayer first, brief yet
 strong,

'Our Lady avert mischance!'

Now it happened at close of a fructuous
 week,

'I must ask' quoth he 'some Saint to dine:
 I want that widow well out of my ears

With her ailing and wailing. Who bade her seek

Redress at my hands? "She was wronged!" Folk whine

If to Law wrong right appears.

'Matteo da Bascio—he's my man!
 No less than Chief of the Capucins:
 His presence will surely suffumigate
 My house—fools think lies under a ban
 If somebody loses what somebody wins,
 Hark, there he knocks at the grate!

'Come in, thou blessed of Mother Church!
 I go and prepare—to bid, that is,

My trusty and diligent servitor
 Get all things in readiness. Vain the search

Through Venice for one to compare with
 this

My model of ministrants: for—

'For—once again, nay, three times over,
 My helpmate's an ape! so intelligent,

I train him to drudge at household work:
 He toils and he moils, I live in clover:

Oh, you shall see! There's a goodly scent—

From his cooking, or I'm a Turk!

'Scarce need to descend and supervise:
 I'll do it, however: wait here awhile!'

So, down to the kitchen gaily scuttles
 Our host, nor notes the alarmed surmise

Of the holy man. 'O depth of guile!
 He blindly guzzles and guttles,

PONTE DELL' ANGELO, VENICE

'While—who is it dresses the food and pours
The liquor? Some fiend—I make no
doubt—

In likeness of—which of the loathly
brutes?

An ape! Where hides he? No bull that gores,

No bear that hugs—'tis the mock and flout
Of an ape, fiend's face that suits.

'So—out with thee, creature, wherever thou hidest!

I charge thee, by virtue of . . . right do I
judge!

There skulks he perdue, crouching under the bed.

Well done! What, forsooth, in beast's shape thou confidest?

I know and would name thee but that I begrudge

Breath spent on such carrion. Instead—

'I adjure thee by—' 'Stay!' laughed the portent that rose

From floor up to ceiling: 'No need to adjure!

See Satan in person, late ape by command Of Him thou adjurest in vain. A saint's nose

Scents brimstone though incense be burned for a lure.

Yet, hence! for I'm safe, understand!

'Tis my charge to convey to fit punishment's place

This lawyer, my liegeman, for cruelty
wrought

On his clients, the widow and orphan, poor souls

He has plagued by exactions which proved law's disgrace,

Made equity void and to nothingness
brought

God's pity. Fiends, on with fresh coals!'

'Stay!' nowise confounded, withstands Hell its match:

'How comes it, were truth in this story of
thine,

God's punishment suffered a minute's delay?

Weeks, months have elapsed since thou squattedst at watch

For a spring on thy victim: what caused thee decline

Advantage till challenged to-day?'

'That challenge I meet with contempt,' quothe the fiend.

'Thus much I acknowledge: the man's armed in mail:

I wait till a joint's loose, then quick ply my claws.

Thy friend's one good custom—he knows not—has screened

His flesh hitherto from what else would assail:

At "Save me, Madonna!" I pause.

'That prayer did the losel but once preter-mit,

My pounce were upon him. I keep me attent:

He's in safety but till he's caught napping.
Enough!

'Ay, enough!' smiles the saint—'for the biter is bit,

The spy caught in somnolence. Vanish!
I'm sent

To smooth up what fiends do in rough.'

'I vanish? Through wall or through roof?' the ripost

Grinned gaily. 'My orders were—"Leave not unharmed

The abode of this lawyer! Do damage to prove

'Twas for something thou quittedst the land of the lost—

To add to their number this unit!"
Though charmed

From descent there, on earth that's above

'I may haply amerce him.' 'So do, and begone,

I command thee! For, look! Though there's doorway behind

And window before thee, go straight through the wall,

Leave a breach in the brickwork, a gap in the stone

For who passes to stare at!' 'Spare speech!
I'm resigned:

Here goes!' roared the goblin, as all—

Wide bat-wings, spread arms and legs, tail out a-stream,

Crash obstacles went, right and left, as he soared

Or else sank, was clean gone through the hole anyhow.

The Saint returned thanks; then a satisfied
gleam

On the bald polished pate showed that triumph was scored.

'To dinner with appetite now!'

Down he trips. 'In good time!' smirks
the host. 'Didst thou scent

Rich savour of roast meat? Where hides he, my ape?

Look alive, be alert! He's away to wash plates.

Sit down, Saint! What's here? Dost examine a rent

In the napkin thou twistest and twirlest?
Agape . . .

Ha, blood is it drips nor abates

PONTE DELL' ANGELO, VENICE

'From thy wringing a cloth, late was laved—dered fair?

What means such a marvel?' 'Just this does it mean:

I convince and convict thee of sin!' answers straight

The Saint, wringing on, wringing ever—
 O rare!—

Blood—blood from a napery snow not more clean.

'A miracle shows thee thy state!

'See—blood thy extortions have wrung from the flesh

Of thy clients who, sheep-like, arrived to be shorn

And left thee—or fleeced to the quick or so flayed

That, behold, their blood gurgles and grumbles afresh

To accuse thee! Ay, down on thy knees, get up sworn

To restore! Restitution once made,

'Sin no more! Dost thou promise? Absolved, then, arise!

Upstairs follow me! Art amazed at yon breach?

Who battered and shattered and scattered,
 escape

From thy purlieus obtaining? That Father of Lies

Thou wast wont to extol for his feats, all
 and each

The Devil's disguised as thine ape!

Be sure that our lawyer was torn by remorse,

Shed tears in a flood, vowed and swore so
 to alter

His ways that how else could our Saint but declare

He was cleansed of past sin? 'For sin future—fare worse

Thou undoubtedly wilt,' warned the Saint,
 'shouldst thou falter

One whit!' 'Oh, for that have no care!

'I am firm in my purposed amendment.
 But, prithee,

Must ever affront and affright me yon gap?
 Who made it for exit may find it of use

For entrance as easy. If, down in his smithy

He forges me fetters—when heated, may-
 hap,

He'll up with an armful! Broke loose—

'How bar him out henceforth?' 'Judiciously urged!'

Was the good man's reply. 'How to baulk him is plain.

There's nothing the Devil objects to so
 much,

So speedily flies from, as one of those purged

Of his presence, the angels who erst formed his train—

His, their emperor. Choose one of such!

'Get fashioned his likeness and set him on high

At back of the breach thus adroitly filled up;
 Display him as guard of two scutcheons,

thy arms:
 I warrant no devil attempts to get by

And disturb thee so guarded. Eat, drink, dine and sup

In thy rectitude, safe from alarms!'

So said and so done. See, the angel has
 place

Where the Devil had passage! All's down in a book.

Gainsay me? Consult it! Still faithless?
 Trust me?

Trust Father Boverio who gave me the
 case

In his Annals—gets of it, by hook or by crook,

Two confirmative witnesses: three

Are surely enough to establish an act.

And thereby we learn—would we ascertain truth—

To trust wise tradition which took, at the
 time,

Note that served till slow history ventured on fact,

Though folk have their fling at tradition
 forsooth!

Row, boys, fore and aft, rhyme and chime!

BEATRICE SIGNORINI

THIS strange thing happened to a painter
 once:

Viterbo boasts the man among her sons
 Of note, I seem to think: his ready tool

Picked up its precepts in Cortona's school—

That's Pietro Berretini, whom they call Cortona, these Italians: greatish-small,

Our painter was his pupil, by repute
 His match if not his master absolute,

Though whether he spoiled fresco more
 or less,

And what's its fortune, scarce repays your guess.

Still, for one circumstance, I save his name
 —Francesco Romanelli: do the same!

He went to Rome and painted: there he knew

A wonder of a woman painting too—
 For she, at least, was no Cortona's drudge:

Witness that ardent fancy-shape—I judge
 A semblance of her soul—she called 'Desire'

With starry front for guide, where sits the fire

She left to brighten Buonarroti's house.
 If you see Florence, pay that piece your vows,
 Though blockhead Baldinucci's mind, imbued
 With monkish morals, bade folk 'Drape the nude
 And stop the scandal!' quoth the record prim
 I borrow this of: hang his book and him!
 At Rome, then, where these fated ones met first,
 The blossom of his life had hardly burst While hers was blooming at full beauty's
 stand:
 No less Francesco—when half-ripe he scanned
 Consummate Artemisia—grew one want
 To have her his and make her ministrant
 With every gift of body and of soul To him. In vain. Her sphery self was
 whole—
 Might only touch his orb at Art's sole
 point.
 Suppose he could persuade her to enjoin
 Her life—past, present, future—all in his
 At Art's sole point by some explosive
 kiss
 Of love through lips, would love's success
 defeat
 Artistry's haunting curse—the Incomplete?
 Artists no doubt they both were,—what
 beside
 Was she? who, long had felt heart, soul spread wide
 Her life out, knowing much and loving
 well,
 On either side Art's narrow space where
 fell Reflection from his own speck: but the germ
 Of individual genius—what we term
 The very self, the God-gift whence had grown Heart's life and soul's life,—how make that his own?
 Vainly his Art, reflected, smiled in small
 On Art's one facet of her ampler ball;
 The rest, touch-free, took in, gave back heaven, earth,
 All where he was not. Hope, well-nigh ere birth
 Came to Desire, died off all-unfulfilled.
 'What though in Art I stand the ablerskilled,'
 (So he conceited: mediocrity Turns on itself the self-transforming eye)
 'If only Art were suing, mine would plead
 To purpose: man—by nature I exceed Woman the bounded: but how much be-
 side
 She boasts, would sue in turn and be denied!

Love her? My own wife loves me in a sort That suits us both: she takes the world's report
 Of what my work is worth, and, for the
 rest,
 Concedes that, while his consort keeps her nest,
 The eagle soars a licensed vagrant, lives
 A wide free life which she at least forgives—
 Good Beatrice Signorini! Well
 And wisely did I choose her. But the spell
 To subjugate this Artemisia—where?
 She passionless?—she resolute to care
 Nowise beyond the plain sufficiency Of fact that she is she and I am I —Acknowledged arbitrator for us both
 In her life as in mine which she were loth
 Even to learn the laws of? No, and no Twenty times over! Ay, it must be so:
 I for myself, alas!

Whereon, instead Of the checked lover's-utterance—why, he
 said
 —Leaning above her easel: 'Flesh is red' (Or some such just remark)—'by no means
 white
 As Guido's practice teaches: you are
 right.'
 Then came the better impulse: 'What if
 pride
 Were wisely trampled on, whate'er betide?
 If I grow hers, not mine—join lives, confuse
 Bodies and spirits, gain not her but lose Myself to Artemisia? That were love!
 Of two souls—one must bend, one rule
 above:
 If I crouch under proudly, lord turned
 slave,
 Were it not worthier both than if she gave Herself—in treason to herself—to me?'

And, all the while, he felt it could not be.
 Such love were true love: love that way
 who can!
 Someone that's born half woman not whole man:
 For man, prescribed man better or man
 worse,
 Why, whether microcosm or universe,
 What law prevails alike through great and
 small,
 The world and man—world's miniature we call?
 Male is the master. 'That way'—smiled and sighed
 Our true male estimator—'puts her pride
 My wife in making me the outlet whence
 She learns all Heaven allows: 'tis my pre-
 tence
 To paint: her lord should do what else but paint?
 Do I break brushes, cloister me turned saint?

Then, best of all suits sanctity her spouse
Who acts for Heaven, allows and disallows At pleasure, past appeal, the right, the
wrong

In all things. That's my wife's way. But this strong

Confident Artemisia—an adept
In Art does she conceit herself? "Except In just this instance," tell her, "no one draws

More rigidly observant of the laws
Of right design: 'yet here,—permit me
hint,—

If the acromion had a deeper dint, That shoulder were perfection." What surprise

—Nay scorn, shoots black fire from those startied eyes!

She to be lessoned in design forsooth!
I'm doomed and done for, since I spoke
the truth.

Make my own work the subject of dispute—

Fails it of just perfection absolute Somewhere? Those motors, flexors,— don't I know

Ser Santi, styled "Tirititototo
The pencil-prig," might blame them? Yet my wife—

Were he and his nicknamer brought to life,
Tito and Titian, to pronounce again—
Ask her who knows more—I or the great
Twain

Our colourist and draughtsman!

'I help her,
Not she helps me; and neither shall demur Because my portion is——' he chose to
think—

'Quite other than a woman's: I may drink
At many waters, must repose by none—
Rather arise and fare forth, having done
Duty to one new excellence the more,
Ablent thereby, though impotent before
So much was gained of knowledge. Best depart

From this last lady I have learned by
heart!'

Thus he concluded of himself—resigned
To play the man and master: 'Man boasts
mind:

Woman, man's sport calls mistress, to the
same Does body's suit and service. Would she claim

—My placid Beatrice-wife—pretence
Even to blame her lord if, going hence,
He wistfully regards one whom—did fate Concede—he might accept queen, abdi-
cate

Kingship because of?—one of no meek sort

But masterful as he: man's match in short?

Oh, there's no secret I were best conceal!
Bicé shall know; and should a stray tear
steal

From out the blue eye, stain the rose cheek
—bah!

A smile, a word's gay reassurance—ah,
With kissing interspersed,—shall make
• amends,

Turn pain to pleasure.'

'What, in truth so ends

Abruptly, do you say, our intercourse?'

Next day, asked Artemisia: 'I'll divorce Husband and wife no longer. Go your
ways,

Leave Rome! Viterbo owns no equal, says
The bye-word, for fair women: you, no
doubt,

May boast a paragon all specks without,
Using the painter's privilege to choose Among what's rarest. Will your wife refuse

Acceptance from—no rival—of a gift?
You paint the human figure I make shift Humbly to reproduce: but, in my hours

Of idlesse, what I fain would paint is—flowers.

Look now!

She twitched aside a veiling cloth.
'Here is my keepsake—frame and picture
both:

Forsee, the frame is all of flowers festooned About an empty space,—left thus, to wound

No natural susceptibility:

How can I guess? 'Tis you must fill, not I,
The central space with—her whom you like best!

That is your business, mine has been the
rest.

But judge!'

How judge them? Each of us, in flowers,

Chooses his love, allies it with past hours,
Old meetings, vanished forms and faces:
no—

Here let each favourite unmolested blow
For one heart's homage, no tongue's banal
praise,

Whether the rose appealingly bade 'Gaze
Your fill on me, sultana who dethrone
The gaudy tulip!' or 'twas 'Me alone

Rather do homage to, who lily am,
No unabashed rose!' 'Do I vainly cram
My cup with sweets, your jonquil?' 'Why

forget
Vernal endearments with the violet?'

So they contested yet concerted, all
As one, to circle round about, enthrall
Yet, self-forgetting, push to prominence
The midmost wonder, gained no matter
whence.

There's a tale extant, in a book I conned
Long years ago, which treats of things beyond

BEATRICE SIGNORINI

The common, antique times and countries queer
And customs strange to match. 'Tis said, last year,'

(Recounts my author,) 'that the King had
mind

To view his kingdom—guessed at from behind

A palace-window hitherto. Announced
No sooner was such purpose than 'twas pounced

Upon by all the ladies of the land—
Loyal but light of life: they formed a band
Of loveliest ones but lithest also, since Proudly they all combined to bear their prince.

Backs joined to breasts,—arms, legs,— nay, ankles, wrists,

Hands, feet, I know not by what turns and twists,

So interwoven lay that you believed
'Twas one sole beast of burden which received

The monarch on its back, of breadth not scant

Since fifty girls made one white elephant.
So with the fifty flowers which shapes and hues

Blent, as I tell, and made one fast yet
loose

Mixture of beauties, composite, distinct
No less in each combining flower that linked

With flower to form a fit environment
For—whom might be the painter's heart's intent

Thus, in the midst enhaloed, to enshrine?

'This glory-guarded middle space—is
mine?

For me to fill?'

'For you, my Friend! We part, Never perchance to meet again. Your
Art—

What if I mean it—so to speak—shall wed
My own, be witness of the life we led

When sometimes it has seemed our souls near found

Each one the other as its mate—unbound
Had yours been haply from the better choice

—Beautiful Biccé: 'tis the common voice,
The crowning verdict. Make whom you like best

Queen of the central space, and manifest
Your predilection for what flower beyond All flowers find favour with you. I am fond

Of—say—yon rose's rich predominance, While you—what wonder?—more affect the glance

The gentler violet from its leafy screen Ventures: so—choose your flower and paint your queen!'

Oh but the man was ready, head as hand,
Instructed and adroit. 'Just as you stand, Stay and be made—would Nature but relent—

By Art immortal!'

Every implement
In tempting reach—a palette primed, each squeeze

Of oil-paint in its proper patch—with
these,

Brushes, a veritable sheaf to grasp!
He worked as he had never dared.

'Unclasp
My Art from yours who can!'

—he cried
at length,

As down he threw the pencil—'Grace from Strength

Dissociate, from your flowery fringe detach

My face of whom it frames,—the feat will match

With that of Time should Time from me extract

Your memory, Artemisia!'

And in fact,—
What with the pricking impulse, sudden
glow

Of soul—head, hand co-operated so That face was worthy of its frame, 'tis
said—

Perfect, suppose!

They parted. Soon instead
Of Rome was home,—of Artemisia—well,
The placid-perfect wife. And it befell

That after the first incontestably Blessedest of all blisses. (—wherefore try Your patience with embracings and the
rest

Due from Calypso's all-unwilling guest
To his Penelope?)—there somehow came
The coolness which as duly follows flame.

So, one day, 'What if we inspect the gifts
My Art has gained us?'

Now the wife uplifts
A casket-lid, now tries a medal's chain

Round her own lithe neck, fits a ring in
vain

—Too loose on the fine finger,—vows and swears

The jewel with two pendent pearls like pears

Betters a lady's bosom—witness else!
And so forth, while Ulysses smiles.

'Such spells
Subdue such natures—sex must worship toys

—Trinkets and trash: yet, ah, quite other
joys

Must stir from sleep the passionate abyss
Of—such an one as her I know—not this

My gentle consort with the milk for blood!
Why, did it chance that in a careless mood
(In those old days, gone—never to return—When we talked—she to teach and I to learn)

I dropped a word, a hint which might imply Consorts exist—how quick flashed fire from eye,
Brow blackened; lip was pinched by furious lip!
I needed no reminder of my slip:
One warning taught me wisdom. Whereas
here . . .
Aha, a sportive fancy! Eh, what fear
Of harm to follow? Just a whim indulged!

'My Beatrice, there's an undivulged Surprise in store for you: the moment's fit
For letting loose a secret: out with it!
Tributes to worth, you rightly estimate These gifts of Prince and Bishop, Church and State:

Yet, may I tell you? Tastes so disagree!
There's one gift, preciouslest of all to me,
I doubt if you would value as well worth
The obvious sparkling gauds that men un-
earth

For toy-cult mainly of you womankind:
Such make you marvel, I concede: while blind

The sex proves to the greater marvel here
I veil to baulk its envy. Be sincere!
Say, should you search creation far and
wide,
Was ever face like this?'

He drew aside
The veil, displayed the flower-framed portrait kept
For private delectation.

No adept
In florist's lore more accurately named
And praised or, as appropriately, blamed
Specimen after specimen of skull,
Than Bicé. 'Rightly placed the daffodil—
Scarcely so right the blue germander. Grey Good mouse-ear! Hardly your auricula
Is powdered white enough. It seems to me
Scarlet not crimson, that anemone:
But there's amends in the pink saxifrage.
O darling dear ones, let me disengage
You innocents from what your harmles-
ness

Clasps lovingly! Out thou from their caress;
Serpent!'

Whereat forth-flashing from her coils
On coils of hair, the spilla in its toils
Of yellow wealth, the dagger-plaything
kept

To pin its plaits together, life-like leapt
And—woe to all inside the coronall Stab followed stab,—cut, slash, she ruined
all

The masterpiece. Alack for eyes and
mouth
And dimples and endearment—North and South,

East, West, the tatters in a fury flew:
There yawned the circlet. What remained
to do?

She flung the weapon, and, with folded
arms
And mien defiant of such low alarms
As death and doom beyond death, Bicé
stood

Passively statuesque, in quietude
Awaiting judgment.

And out judgment burst
With frank unloading of love's laughter,
first

Freed from its unsuspected source. Some throe

Must needs unlock love's prison-bars, let flow

The joyance.

'Then you ever were, still are,
And henceforth shall be—no occulted star
But my resplendent Eicé, sun-revealed, Full-rondure! Woman-glory uncon-
cealed,

So front me, find and claim and take your
own—

My soul and body yours and yours alone,
As you are mine, mine wholly! Heart's love, take—

Use your possession—stab or stay at will Here—hating, saving—woman with the skill

To make man beast or god!'

And so it proved:
For, as be seemed new godship, thus he
loved,

Past power to change, until his dying-
day,—

Good fellow! And I fain would hope—some say

Indeed for certain—that our painter's toils
At fresco-splashing, finer stroke in oils,
Were not so mediocre after all;
Perhaps the work appears unduly small
From having loomed too large in old esteem,

Patronized by late Papacy. I seem Myself to have cast eyes on certain work
In sundry galleries, no judge needs shirk
From moderately praising. He designed Correctly, nor in colour lagged behind
His age: but both in Florence and in Rome
The elder race so make themselves at home
That scarce we give a glance to ceilingfuls
Of such like as Francesco. Still, one culls
From out the heaped laudations of the time
The pretty incident I put in rhyme.

FLUTE-MUSIC, WITH AN ACCOMPANIMENT

He. Ah, the bird-like fluting
Through the ash-tops yonder—Bullfinch-bubbings, soft sounds suiting

FLUTE-MUSIC, WITH AN ACCOMPANIMENT

What sweet thoughts, I wonder?
 Fine-pearled notes that surely Gather, dewdrop-fashion,
 Deep-down in some heart which purely Secrets globuled passion—
 Passion insuppressible—
 Such is piped, for certain;
 Love, no doubt, nay, love excessive
 'Tis, your ash-tops curtain.

Would your ash-tops open
 We might spy the player—
 Seek and find some sense which no
 pen

Yet from singer, sayer,
 Ever has extracted:
 Never, to my knowledge,
 Yet has pedantry enacted
 That, in Cupid's College,
 Just this variation
 Of the old old yearning
 Should by plain speech have salvation,

Yield new men new learning.
 'Love!' but what love, nicely
 New from old departed,
 Would the player teach precisely?
 First of all, he started
 In my brain Assurance—
 Trust—entire Contentment—
 Passion proved by much endurance;
 Then came—not resentment,
 No, but simply Sorrow:
 What was seen had vanished:
 Yesterday so blue! To-morrow
 Blank, all sunshine banished.

Hark! 'Tis Hope resurges, Struggling through obstruc-
 tion—

Forces a poor smile which verges
 On Joy's introduction.
 Now, perhaps, mere Musing:
 'Holds earth such a wonder?
 Fairy-mortal, soul-sense-fusing
 Past thought's power to sunder!'
 What? calm Acquiescence?
 'Daisied turf gives room to Trefoil, plucked once in her presence—
 Growing by her tomb too!'

She. All's your fancy-spinning!
 Here's the fact: a neighbour
 Never-ending, still beginning,
 Recreates his labour:
 Deep o'er desk he drudges,
 Adds, divides, subtracts and Multiplies, until he judges
 Noonday-hour's exact sand
 Shows the hourglass emptied:
 Then comes lawful leisure,
 Minutes rare from toil exempted,
 Fit to spend in pleasure.

Out then with—what treatise?
Youth's Complete Instructor
How to play the Flute. Quid petis?
 Follow Youth's conductor
 On and on, through Easy,
 Up to Harder, Hardest
Flute-piece, till thou, flautist wheezy,
 Possibly discarded
 Tootlings hoarse and husky,
 Mayst expend with courage Breath—on tunes once bright now dusky—
 Meant to cool thy porridge.

That's an air of Tulou's
 He maltreats persistent,
 Till as lief I'd hear some Zulu's Bone-piped bag, breath-distinct,
 Madden native dances.
 I'm the man's familiar:
 Unexpectedness enhances
 What your ear's auxiliary
 —Fancy—finds suggestive.
 Listen! That's legato
 Rightly played, his fingers restive Touch as if staccato.

He. Ah, you trick-betrayer!
 Telling tales, unwise one?
 So the secret of the player
 Was—he could surprise one
 Well-nigh into trusting
 Here was a musician
 Skilled consummately, yet lusting
 Through no vile ambition
 After making captive
 All the world,—rewarded
 Amply by one stranger's rapture,
 Common praise discarded.

So, without assistance
 Such as music rightly Needs and claims,—defying distance,
 Overleaping lightly
 Obstacles which hinder,—
 He, for my approval,
 All the same and all the kinder
 Made mine what might move all
 Earth to kneel adoring:
 Took—while he piped Gounod's
 Bit of passionate imploring—
 Me for Juliet: who knows?

No! as you explain things,
 All's mere repetition,
 Practise-pother: of all vain things
 Why waste pooh or pish on Toilsome effort—never Ending, still beginning—
 After what should pay endeavour —Right-performance? winning

FLUTE-MUSIC, WITH AN ACCOMPANIMENT

Weariness from you who,
Ready to admire some Owl's fresh hooting—Tu-whit, tu-
who—
Find stale thrush-songs tiresome.

She. Songs, Spring thought perfection,
Summer criticizes:
What in May escaped detection,
August, past surprises,
Notes, and names each blunder.
You, the just-initiate, Praise to heart's content (what wonder?)
Tootings I hear vitate
Romeo's serenading—
I who, times full twenty,
Turned to ice—no ash-tops aiding—
At his caldamente.

So, 'twas distance altered
Sharps to flats? The missing
Bar when syncopation faltered (You thought—paused for kissing!)
Ash-tops too felonious Intercepted? Rather Say—they well-nigh made cuphonious
Discord, helped to gather Phrase, by phrase, turn patches
Into simulated
Unity which botching matches,— Scraps reintegrated.

He. Sweet, are you suggestive
Of an old suspicion
Which has always found me restive
To its admonition
When it ventured whisper
'Fool, the strifes and struggles
Of your trembler—blusher—lisper
Were so many juggles,
Tricks tried—oh, so often!—
Which once more do duty,
Find again a heart to soften,
Soul to snare with beauty.'

Birth-blush of the briar-rose,
Mist-bloom of the hedge-sloe,
Someone gains the prize: admire rose Would he, when noon's wedge—
slow—

Sure, has pushed, expanded
Rathe pink to raw redness?
Would he covet sloe when sanded
By road-dust to deadness?
So—restore their value!
Ply a water-sprinkle!
Then guess sloe is fingered, shall
you?
Find in a rose a wrinkle?

Here what played Aquarius?
Distance—ash-tops aiding,
Reconciled scraps else contrarious,
Brightened stuff fast fading.
Distance—call your shyness:
Was the fair one peevish?
Coyness softened out of slyness.
Was she cunning, thievish,
All-but-proved impostor?
Bear but one day's exile,
Ugly traits were wholly lost or Screened by fancies flexible—

Ash-tops these, you take me?
Fancies' interference
Changed . . .
But since I sleep, don't wake me!
What if all's appearance?
Is not outside seeming
Real as substance inside?
Both are facts, so leave me dreaming:
If who loses wins I'd Ever lose,—conjecture,
From one phrase trilled deftly,
All the piece. So, end your lecture,
Let who lied be left lie!

'IMPERANTE AUGUSTO NATUS EST—'

WHAT it was struck the terror into me?
This, Publius: closer! while we wait our
turn I'll tell you. Water's warm (they ring inside)
At the eighth hour, till when no use to bathe.

Here in the vestibule where now we sit,
One scarce stood yesterday, the throng was such
Of loyal gapers, folk all eye and ear
While Lucius Varius Rufus¹ in their midst Read out that long-planned late-completed piece,
His Panegyric on the Emperor.
'Nobody like him' little Flaccus² laughed
'At leading forth an Epos with due pomp!
Only, when godlike Cæsar swells the
theme,
How should mere mortals hope to praise
aright?
Tell me, thou offshoot of Etruscan kings!'
Whereat Mæcenas smiling sighed assent.

I paid my quadrans,³ left the Thermæ's roar
Of rapture as the poet asked 'What place Among the godships Jove, for Cæsar's
sake,
Would bid its actual occupant vacate
In favour of the new divinity?'

² Roman coin of small value.

³ Horace.

'IMPERANTE AUGUSTO NATUS EST—'

And got the expected answer 'Yield thine
own!'— Jove thus dethroned, I somehow wanted
air,
And found myself a-pacing street and
street,
Letting the sunset, rosy over Rome,
Clear my head dizzy with the hubbub—
say
As if thought's dance therein had kicked up dust
By trampling on all else: the world lay prone,
As—poet-propped, in brave hexameters—
Their subject triumphed up from man to
God.
Caius Octavius Cæsar the August—
Where was escape from his prepotency?
I judge I may have passed—how many piles
Of structure dropt like doles from his free
hand
To Rome on every side? Why, right and
left,
For temples you've the Thundering
Jupiter,
Avenging Mars, Apollo Palatine:
How count Piazza, Forum—there's a third
All but completed. You've the Theatre Named of Marcellus—all his work, such
work!—
One thought still ending, dominating all—
With warrant Varius sang 'Be Cæsar
God!'
By what a hold arrests he Fortune's
wheel,
Obtaining and retaining heaven and earth
Through Fortune, if you like, but favour
—no!
For the great deeds flashed by me, fast and
thick
As stars which storm the sky on autumn
nights—
Those conquests! but peace crowned them,—so, of peace!
Count up his titles only—these, in few—
Ten years Triumvir, Consul thirteen times, Emperor, nay—the glory topping all—Hailed Father of his Country, last and best
Of titles, by himself accepted so:
And why not? See but feats achieved in
Rome—
Not to say, Italy—he planted there
Some thirty colonies—but Rome itself
All new-built, 'marble now, brick once,' he boasts:
This Portico, that Circus. Would you sail?
He has drained Tiber for you: would you walk?
He straightened out the long Flaminian
Way.
Poor? Profit by his score of donatives!

Rich—that is, mirthful? Half-a-hundred games
Challenge your choice! There's Rome—for you and me
Only? The centre of the world besides!
For, look the wide world over, where ends
Rome?
To sunrise? There's Euphrates—all between!
To sunset? Ocean and immensity:
North,—stare till Danube stops you:
South, see Nile,
The Desert and the earth-upholding
Mount.
Well may the poet-people each with each
Vic in his praise, our company of swans,
Virgil and Horace, singers—in their way—Nearly as good as Varius, though less
famed:
Well may they cry, 'No mortal, plainly
God!'
Thus to myself myself said, while I walked:
Or would have said, could thought attain to speech,
Clean baffled by enormity of bliss
The while I strove to scale its heights and
sound
Its depths—this masterdom o'er all the
world
Of one who was but born,—like you, like
me,
Like all the world he owns,—of flesh and
blood.
But he—how grasp, how gauge his own conceit
Of bliss to me near inconceivable?
Or—since such flight too much makes reel
the brain—
Let's sink—and so take refuge, as it were,
From life's excessive altitude—to life's Breathable wayside shelter at its base!
If looms thus large this Cæsar to myself —Of senatorial rank and somebody—How must he strike the vulgar nameless
crowd,
Innumerable swarm that's nobody at all?
Why,—for an instance,—much as yon gold shape
Crowned, sceptred, on the temple opposite—
Fulgurant Jupiter—must daze the sense Of—say, yon outcast begging from its
step!
What, anti-Cæsar, monarch in the mud,
As he is pinnacled above thy pate?
Ay, beg away! thy lot contrasts full well
With his whose bounty yields thee this support—
Our Holy and Inviolable One,
Cæsar, whose bounty built the fane above!
Dost read my thought? Thy garb, alack, displays
Sore usage truly in each rent and stain—

‘IMPERANTE AUGUSTO NATUS EST—’

Faugh! Wash though in Suburra! 'Ware
the dogs
Who may not so disdain a meal on thee!
What, stretchest forth a palm to catch my alms?
Aha, why yes: I must appear—who
knows?—
I, in my toga, to thy rags and thee—Quæstor—nay, Ædile, Censor—Pol! perhaps
The very City-Prætor's noble self!
As to me Cæsar, so to thee am I?
Good: nor in vain shall prove thy quest, poor rogue!
Hither—hold palm out—take this quarter-as!

And who did take it? As he raised his
head,
(My gesture was a trifle—well, abrupt),
Back fell the broad flap of the peasant's-hat,
The homespun cloak that muffled half his
cheek
Dropped somewhat, and I had a glimpse —just one!
One was enough. Whose—whose might be the face?
That unkempt careless hair—brown, yellowish—
Those sparkling eyes beneath their eyebrows' ridge
(Each meets each, and the hawk-nose rules between)
—That was enough, no glimpse was needed more!

And terrifyingly into my mind
Came that quick-hushed report was whispered us,
‘They do say, once a year in sordid garb
He plays the mendicant, sits all day long,
Asking and taking alms of who may pass,
And so averting, if submission help, Fate's envy, the dread chance and change of things

When Fortune—for a word, a look, a
nought—
Turns spiteful and—the petted lioness—Strikes with her sudden paw, and prone falls each

Who patted late her neck superiorly,
Or trifled with those claw-tips velvetsheathed.’

‘He's God!’ shouts Lucius Varius Rufus:
‘Man

And worms'—meat any moment!’ mutters
low

Some Power, admonishing the mortal-
born.

Ay, do you mind? There's meaning in the fact

That who so conquers, triumphs, enters
Rome,

Climbing the Capitolian, soaring thus To glory's summit,—Publius, do you
mark—

Ever the same attendant who, behind, Above the Conqueror's head supports the crown

All-too-demonstrative for human wear, —One hand's employment—all the while reserves

Its fellow, backward flung, to point how,
close

Appended from the car, beneath the foot
Of the up-borne exulting Conqueror, Frown—half-described—the instruments of shame,

The malefactor's due. Crown, now—
Cross, when?

Who stands secure? Are even Gods so
safe?

Jupiter that just now is dominant—
Are not there ancient dismal tales how
once

A predecessor reigned ere Saturn came,
And who can say if Jupiter be last?
Was it for nothing the grey Sibyl wrote ‘Cæsar Augustus regnant, shall be born
In blind Judæa’—one to master him,
Him and the universe? An old-wife's tale?

Bath-drudge! Here, slave! No cheating!
Our turn next.

No loitering, or be sure you taste the lash!
Two strigils, two oil-drippers, each a sponge!

DEVELOPMENT

My Father was a scholar and knew Greek.
When I was five years old, I asked him
once

‘What do you read about?’

‘The siege of Troy.’
‘What is a siege and what is Troy?’

Whereat
He piled up chairs and tables for a town,
Set me a-top for Priam, called our cat —Helen, enticed away from home (he

said)

By wicked Paris, who couched somewhere
close

Under the footstool, being cowardly,
But whom—since she was worth the pains, poor puss—

Towzer and Tray,—our dogs, the Atreidai,
—sought

By taking Troy to get possession of —Always when great Achilles ceased to sulk,

(My pony in the stable)—forth would prance

And put to flight Hector—our page-boy's
self.

This taught me who was who and what was what:

DEVELOPMENT

So far I rightly understood the case
At five years old: a huge delight it proved
And still proves—thanks to that instructor
sage

My Father, who knew better than turn
straight

Learning's full flare on weak-eyed ignorance,

Or, worse yet, leave weak eyes to grow sand-blind,

Content with darkness and vacuity.

It happened, two or three years afterward,
That—I and playmates playing at Troy's

Siege—

My Father came upon our make-believe.
'How would you like to read yourself the tale

Properly told, of which I gave you first Merely such notion as a boy could bear?

Pope, now, would give you the precise
account

Of what, some day, by dint of scholarship, You'll hear—who knows?—from Homer's very mouth.

Learn Greek by all means, read the "Blind
Old Man,

Sweetest of Singers"—tuphlos which means "blind,"

Hedistos which means "sweetest." Time
enough!

Try, anyhow, to master him some day;
Until when, take what serves for substitute,

Read Pope, by all means!

So I ran through Pope,
Enjoyed the tale—what history so true?

Also attacked my Primer, duly drugged, Grew fitter thus for what was promised

next—

The very thing itself, the actual words,
When I could turn—say, Buttmann to account.

Time passed, I ripened somewhat: one fine
day,

'Quite ready for the Iliad, nothing less?
There's Heine, where the big books block

the shelf:

Don't skip a word, thumb well the Lexicon!

I thumbed well and skipped nowise till I learned

Who was who, what was what, from Homer's tongue,

And there an end of learning. Had you asked

The all-accomplished scholar, twelve years
old,

'Who was it wrote the Iliad?'—what a
laugh!

'Why, Homer, all the world knows: of
his life

Doubtless some facts exist: it's every-
where:

We have not settled, though, his place of birth:

He begged, for certain, and was blind be-
side:

Seven cities claimed him—Scio, with best
right,

Thinks Byron. What he wrote? Those Hymns we have.

Then there's the "Battle of the Frogs and Mice,"

That's all—unless they dig "Margites" up (I'd like that) nothing more remains to
know.'

Thus did youth spend a comfortable time; Until—'What's this the Germans say is

fact

That Wolf found out first? It's unpleasant
work

Their chop and change, unsettling one's belief:

All the same, while we live, we learn, that's
sure.'

So, I bent brow o'er Prolegomena.

And, after Wolf, a dozen of his like Proved there was never any Troy at all,

Neither Besiegers nor Besieged,—nay,
worse,—

No actual Homer, no authentic text,
No warrant for the fiction I, as fact,

Had treasured in my heart and soul so
long—

Ay, mark you! and as fact held still, still
hold,

Spite of new knowledge, in my heart of hearts

And soul of souls, fact's essence freed and fixed

From accidental fancy's guardian sheath.
Assuredly thenceforward—thank my

stars!—

However it got there, deprive who could—Wring from the shrine my precious tenantry,

Helen, Ulysses, Hector and his Spouse, Achilles and his Friend?—though Wolf—ah, Wolf!

Why must he needs come doubting, spoil
a dream?

But then 'No dream's worth waking'— Browning says:

And here's the reason why I tell thus
much.

I, now mature man, you anticipate,
May blame my Father justifiably

For letting me dream out my nonage thus,
And only by such slow and sure degrees

Permitting me to sift the grain from chaff, Get truth and falsehood known and named as such.

Why did he ever let me dream at all,
Not bid me taste the story in its strength?

Suppose my childhood was scarce qualified

DEVELOPMENT

To rightly understand mythology, Silence at least was in his power to keep:
I might have—somehow—correspond-
ingly—

Well, who knows by what method, gained my gains,
Been taught, by forthrights not meander-
ings,

My aim should be to loathe, like Peleus'
son,

A lie as Hell's Gate, love my wedded wife,
Like Hector, and so on with all the rest.
Could not I have excogitated this Without believing such men really were?

That is—he might have put into my hand
The 'Ethics'? In translation, if you please,
Exact, no pretty lying that improves,
To suit the modern taste: no more, no
less—

The 'Ethics': 'tis a treatise I find hard
To read aright now that my hair is grey,
And I can manage the original.

At five years old—how ill had fared its leaves!

Now, growing double o'er the Stagirite,
'At least I soil no page with bread and milk, Nor crumple, dogsear and deface—boys'
way.

REPHAN¹

How I lived, ere my human life began
In this world of yours,—like you, made
man,—

When my home was the Star of my God
Rephan?

Come then around me, close about,
World-weary earth-born ones! Darkest
doubt
Or deepest despondency keeps you out?

Nowise! Before a word I speak, Let my circle embrace your worn, your
weak,
Brow-furrowed old age, youth's hollow
cheek—

Diseased in the body, sick in soul, Pinched poverty, satiate wealth,—your
whole

Array of despairs! Have I read the roll?

All here? Attend, perpend! O Star
Of my God Rephan, what wonders are In thy brilliance fugitive, faint and far!

Far from me, native to thy realm,
Who shared its perfections which o'erwhelm

Mind to conceive. Let drift the helm,

Let drive the sail, dare unconfined
Embark for the vastitude, O Mind,
Of an absolute bliss! Leave earth behind!

Here, by extremes, at a mean you guess:
There, all's at most—not more, not less:
Nowhere deficiency nor excess.

No want—whatever should be, is now:
No growth—that's change, and change comes—how

To royalty born with crown on brow?

Nothing begins—so needs to end:
Where fell it short at first? Extend
Only the same, no change can mend!

I use your language: mine—no word
Of its wealth would help who spoke, who
heard,

To a gleam of intelligence. None preferred,

None felt distaste when better and worse
Were uncontrastable: bless or curse
What—in that uniform universe?

Can your world's phrase, your sense of
things

Forth-figure the Star of my God? No
springs,

No winters throughout its space. Time brings

No hope, no fear: as to-day, shall be
To-morrow: advance or retreat need we
At our stand-still through eternity?

All happy: needs must we so have been,
Since who could be otherwise? All serene:
What dark was to banish, what light to screen?

Earth's rose is a bud that's checked or grows

As beams may encourage or blasts oppose:
Our lives leapt forth, each a full-orbed
rose—

Each rose sole rose in a sphere that spread
Above and below and around—rose-red:
No fellowship, each for itself instead.

One better than I—would prove I lacked Somewhat: one worse were a jarring fact Disturbing my faultlessly exact.

How did it come to pass there lurked
Somehow a seed of change that worked Obscure in my heart till perfection irked?—

Till out of its peace at length grew strife—Hopes, fears, loves, hates,—obscurely
rife,—

My life grown a-tremble to turn your life?

¹ Suggested by a very early recollection of a prose story by the noble woman and imaginative writer, Jane Taylor, of Norwich [actually Ongar.]—R. B.

REPHAN

Was it Thou, above all lights that are,
Prime Potency, did Thy hand unbar
The prison-gate of Rephan my Star?

In me did such potency wake a pulse Could trouble tranquility that lulls
Not lashes inertion till throes convulse

Soul's quietude into discontent?
As when the completed rose bursts, rent
By ardors till forth from its orb are sent

New petals that mar—unmake the disc—
Spoil rondure: what in it ran brave risk, Changed apathy's calm to strife, bright,
brisk,

Pushed simple to compound, sprang and spread
Till, fresh-formed, facetted, floretted,
The flower that slept woke a star instead?

No mimic of Star Rephan! How long
I stagnated there where weak and strong,
The wise and the foolish, right and wrong,

Are merged alike in a neutral Best,
Can I tell? No more than at whose behest
The passion arose in my passive breast,

And I yearned for no sameness but difference
In thing and thing, that should shock my
sense
With a want of worth in them all, and
thence

Startle me up, by an Infinite Discovered above and below me—height
And depth alike to attract my flight,

Repel my descent: by hate taught love.
Oh, gain were indeed to see above
Supremacy ever—to move, remove,

Not reach—aspire yet never attain
To the object aimed at! Scarce in vain,—
As each stage I left nor touched again.

To suffer, did pangs bring the loved one
bliss,
Wring knowledge from ignorance,—just
for this—

To add one drop to a love-abys!

Enough: for you doubt, you hope, O men,
You fear, you agonize, die: what then?
Is an end to your life's work out of ken?

Have you no assurance that, earth at end, Wrong will prove right? Who made shall mend
In the higher sphere to which yearnings
tend?

Why should I speak? You divine the test.
When the trouble grew in my pregnant
breast

A voice said 'So wouldst thou strive, not
rest?

'Burn and not smoulder, win by worth,
Not rest content with a wealth that's dearth?

Thou art past Rephan, thy place be Earth!'

REVERIE

I KNOW there shall dawn a day
—Is it here on homely earth?
Is it yonder, worlds away,
Where the strange and new have birth,
That Power comes full in play?

Is it here, with grass about,
Under befriending trees,
When shy buds venture out,
And the air by mild degrees
Puts winter's death past doubt?

Is it up amid whirl and roar
Of the elemental flame
Which star-flecks heaven's dark floor,
That, new yet still the same,
Full in play comes Power once more?

Somewhere, below, above,
Shall a day dawn—this I know—
When Power, which vainly strove
My weakness to o'erthrow, Shall triumph. I breathe, I move,

I truly am, at last!
For a veil is rent between Me and the truth which passed
Fitful, half-guessed, half-seen,
Grasped at—not gained, held fast.

I for my race and me
Shall apprehend life's law:
In the legend of man shall see Writ large what small I saw
In my life's tale: both agree.

As the record from youth to age
Of my own, the single soul—
So the world's wide book: one page
Deciphered explains the whole
Of our common heritage.

How but from near to far
Should knowledge proceed, increase?
Try the clod ere test the star!
Bring our inside strife to peace
Ere we wage, on the outside, war!

So, my annals thus begin:
With body, to life awoke
Soul, the immortal twin
Of body which bore soul's yoke
Since mortal and not akin.

By means of the flesh, grown fit,
Mind, in surview of things,
Now soared, anon alit
To treasure its gatherings
From the ranged expanse—to-wit,

Nature,—earth's, heaven's wide show
Which taught all hope, all fear:
Acquainted with joy and woe,
I could say 'Thus much is clear,
Doubt annulled thus much: I know.

'All is effect of cause;
As it would, has willed and done
Power: and my mind's applause
Goes, passing laws each one,
To Omnipotence, lord of laws.'

Head praises; but heart refrains
From loving's acknowledgment.
Whole losses outweigh half-gains:
Earth's good is with evil blent:
Good struggles but evil reigns.

Yet since Earth's good proved good—Incontrovertibly
Worth loving—I understood
How evil—did mind decry
Power's object to end pursued—

Were haply as cloud across Good's orb, no orb itself:
Mere mind—were it found at loss
Did it play the tricky elf
And from life's gold purge the dross?

Power is known infinite:
Good struggles to be—at best
Seems—scanned by the human sight,
Tried by the senses' test—
Good palpably: but with right

Therefore to mind's award
Of loving, as power claims praise?
Power—which finds nought too hard,
Fulfilling itself all ways
Unchecked, unchanged: while barred,

Baffled, what good began
Ends evil on every side.
To Power submissive man
Breathes 'E'en as Thou art, abide!'
While to good 'Late-found, long-sought,

'Would Power to a plenitude
But liberate, but enlarge Good's strait confine,—renewed
Were ever the heart's discharge
Of loving!' Else doubts intrude.

For you dominate, stars all!
For a sense informs you—brute,
Bird, worm, fly, great and small,
Each with your attribute
Or low or majestic!

Thou earth that embosomest
Offspring of land and sea—
How thy hills first sank to rest,
How thy vales bred herb and tree
Which dizen thy mother-breast—

Do I ask? 'Be ignorant
Ever!' the answer clangs:
Whereas if I plead world's want,
Soul's sorrows and body's pangs,
Play the human applicant,—

Is a remedy far to seek?
I question and find response:
I—all men, strong or weak,
Conceive and declare at once
For each want its cure. 'Power, speak!

'Stop change, avert decay,
Fix life fast, banish death,
Eclipse from the star bid stay,
Abridge of no moment's breath
One creature! Hence, Night, hail, Day!

What need to confess again
No problem this to solve
By impotence? Power, once plain Proved Power,—let on Power devolve Good's right to co-equal reign!

Past mind's conception—Power!
Do I seek how star, earth, beast,
Bird, worm, fly, gained their dower
For life's use, most and least?
Back from the search I cower.

Do I seek what heals all harm,
Nay, hinders the harm at first,
Saves earth? Speak, Power, the charm!
Keep the life there unmercured
By chance, change, death's alarm!

As promptly as mind conceives,
Let Power in its turn declare
Some law which wrong retrieves,
Abolishes everywhere
What thwarts, what irks, what grieves!

Never to be! and yet
How easy it seems—to sense
Like man's—if somehow met Power with its match—immense
Love, limitless, unbeset

By hindrance on every side!
Conjectured, nowise known,
Such may be: could man confide Such would match—were Love but
shown Stript of the veils that hide—

Power's self now manifest!
So reads my record: thine,
O world, how runs it? Guessed
Were the purport of that prime line,
Prophetic of all the rest!

REVERIE

'In a beginning God
Made heaven and earth.' Forth flashed Knowledge: from star to clod
Man knew things: doubt abashed
Closed its long period.

Knowledge obtained Power praise.
Had Good been manifest,
Broke out in cloudless blaze,
Unchequered as unrepressed,
In all things Good at best—

Then praise—all praise, no blame—
Had hailed the perfection. No!
As Power's display, the same
Be Good's—praise forth shall flow Unisonous in acclaim!

Even as the world its life,
So have I lived my own—
Power seen with Love at strife,
That sure, this dimly shown,
—Good rare and evil rife.

Whereof the effect be—faith
That, some far day, were found Ripeness in things now rather,
Wrong righted, each chain unbound,
Renewal born out of scathe.

Why faith—but to lift the load,
To leaven the lump, where lies Mind prostrate through knowledge owed
To the loveless Power it tries To withstand, how vain! In flowed

Ever resistless fact:
No more than the passive clay
Disputes the potter's act,
Could the whelmed mind disobey
Knowledge the cataract.

But, perfect in every part,
Has the potter's moulded shape,
Leap of man's quickened heart,
Throe of his thought's escape,
Stings of his soul which dart
Through the barrier of flesh, till keen
She climbs from the calm and clear,
Through turbidity all between,
From the known to the unknown here, Heaven's 'Shall be,' from Earth's 'Has been'?

Then life is—to wake not sleep,
Rise and not rest, but press
From earth's level where blindly creep
Things perfected, more or less,
To the heaven's height, far and steep,

Where, amid what strifes and storms
May wait the adventurous quest,
Power is Love—transports, transforms
Who aspired from worst to best, Sought the soul's world, spurned the worms'.

I have faith such end shall be:
From the first, Power was—I knew.
Life has made clear to me
That, strive but for closer view,
Love were as plain to see.

When see? When there dawns a day,
If not on the homely earth,
Then yonder, worlds away,
Where the strange and new have birth,
And Power comes full in play.

EPILOGUE

At the midnight in the silence of the sleep-
time,
When you set your fancies free,
Will they pass to where—by death, fools think, imprisoned—
Low he lies who once so loved you, whom you loved so,
—Pity me?

Oh to love so, be so loved, yet so mistaken!
What had I on earth to do With the slothful, with the mawkish, the unmanly?
Like the aimless, helpless, hopeless, did I drivel
—Being—who?

One who never turned his back but marched breast forward,
Never doubted clouds would break, Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph, Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight
better,
Sleep to wake.

No, at noonday in the bustle of man's work-time
Greet the unseen with a cheer!
Bid him forward, breast and back as either
should be,
'Strive and thrive!' cry 'Speed,—fight on,
fare ever
There as here!'

INDEX TO FIRST LINES

SHORTER POEMS AND SONGS

A CERTAIN neighbour lying sick to death	646	First I salute this soil of the blessed, river and rock!	586
A king lived long ago	180	Flower—I never fancied, jewel—I profess you!	533
A Rabbi told me: On the day allowed	617	Fortù, Fortù, my beloved one	327
A simple ring with a single stone	667	Frowned the Laird on the Lord: 'So, red-handed I catch thee?'	672
Ah, but how each loved each, Marquis!	626	GIVE her but a least excuse to love me	176
Ah, did you once see Shelley plain	245	Going his rounds one day in Ispahan	643
Ah, Love, but a day	467	Good to forgive	554
Ah, the bird-like fluting	679	Grand rough old Martin Luther	334
All I believed is true!	321	Grow old along with me!	481
All I can say is—I saw it!	533	Gr-r-r—there go, my heart's abhorrence!	212
All June I bound the rose in sheaves	239	HAD I but plenty of money, money enough and to spare	219
All service ranks the same with God	167	Hamelin Town's in Brunswick	337
All's over, then: does truth sound bitter	215	Heap cassia, sandal-buds and stripes	46
All that I know	232	He was the man—Pope Sixtus, that Fifth, that swineherd's son	671
All the breath and the bloom of the year in the bag of one bee:	667	'Heigho!' yawned one day King Francis	323
Among these latter busts we count by scores	355	Here is a story shall stir you! Stand up, Greeks dead and gone	603
And so you found that poor room dull	535	Here is a thing that happened. Like wild beasts whelped, for den	588
'And what might that bold man's announcement be'	647	Here's my case. Of old I used to love him. Here's the garden she walked across	532
Anyhow, once full Dervish, youngsters came As I ride, as I ride	644	Here's to Nelson's memory!	210
As I ride, as I ride	209	Here was I with my arm and heart	477
Ask not one least word of praise	658	High in the dome, suspended, of Hell, sad triumph, behold us!	628
'As like as a Hand to another Hand!'	471	Hist, but a word, fair and soft	246
At the midnight in the silence of the sleep-time	688	How I lived, ere my human life began	685
'Ay, but, Ferishtah,'—a disciple smiled	655	How of his fate, the Pilgrims' soldier-guide. How very hard it is to be	651
BEAUTIFUL Evelyn Hope is dead	216	How well I know what I mean to do	232
Boot, saddle, to horse, and away	207	I AM a goddess of the ambrosial courts	421
But do not let us quarrel any more	432	I am a painter who cannot paint!	175
But give them me, the mouth, the eyes, the brow!	497	I am indeed the personage you know	538
CHRIST God who savest man, save most	318	I am poor brother Lippo, by your leave	427
Cleon the poet (from the sprinkled isles	448	I and Clive were friends—and why not? Friends! I think you laugh, my lad	603
Could I but live again	531	I could have painted pictures like that youth's I dream of a red-rose tree	242
Crescenzio, the Pope's Legate at the High Council, Trent	670	I hear a voice, perchance I heard	27
DARED and Done: at last I stand upon the summit	554	I know a Mount, the gracious Sun perceives I know there shall dawn a day	452
Dear and great Angel, wouldst thou only leave	244	I leaned on the turf	469
Dear, had the world in its caprice	240	I—"Next Poet?" No, my hearties	528
Dervish—(though yet un-dervished, call him so	643	I only knew one poet in my life	419
ESCAPE me?	241	I said—Then, dearest, since 'tis so	335
'FAME!' Yes, I said it and you read it	565	I send my heart up to thee, all my heart	330
Fear death?—to feel the fog in my throat	496
Fee, faw, fum! bubble and squeak!	353
Fire is in the flint: true, once a spark escapes	649

If one could have that little head of hers . . .	498	On the first of the Feast of Feasts . . .	519
If you and I could change to beasts, what beast should either be? . . .	667	On the sea and at the Hogue, sixteen hundred ninety-two . . .	531
Is all our fire of shipwreck wood . . .	467	One day it thundered and lightened . . .	627
It happened thus! my slab, though new . . .	669	Only the prism's obstruction shows aright . . .	496
It is a lie—their Priests, their Pope . . .	213	Others may need new life in Heaven . . .	667
It once might have been, once only . . .	497	Out of the little chapel I burst . . .	396
It was roses, roses, all the way . . .	317	Out of your whole life give but a moment! . . .	666
JUNE was not over . . .	239	Overhead the tree-tops meet . . .	184
Just for a handful of silver he left us . . .	208	Over the ball of it . . .	531
KARSHISH, the picker-up of learning's crumbs . . .	422	Over the sea our galleys went . . .	49
Kentish Sir Byng stood for his King . . .	207	PETRUS Aponensis—there was a magician! . . .	609
King Charles, and who'll do him right now? . . .	207	Plague take all your pedants, say I! . . .	211
'Knowledge deposed;' then!—groaned whom that most grieved . . .	656	Pray, Reader, have you eaten ortolans . . .	642
LAST night I saw you in my sleep . . .	667	QUERY: was ever a quainter . . .	522
Let them fight it out, friend! things have gone too far . . .	243	Quoth an inquirer, 'Praise the Merciful! . . .	649
Let's contend no more, Love . . .	216	Quoth one: 'Sir, solve a scruple! No true sage . . .	653
Let us begin and carry up this corpse . . .	350	ROOM after room . . .	241
'Look, I strew beans' . . .	658	Round the cape of a sudden came the sea . . .	215
MAN I am and man would be, Love—merest man and nothing more . . .	647	Round us the wild creatures, overhead the trees . . .	643
May I print, Shelley, how it came to pass . . .	543	SAID Abner, 'At last thou art come! Ere I tell, ere thou speak . . .	226
Morning, evening, noon and night . . .	320	Savage I was sitting in my house, late . . .	521
Moses the Meek was thirty cubits high . . .	641	See, as the prettiest graves will do in time . . .	215
My Father was a scholar and knew Greek . . .	683	Shall I sonnet sing you about myself? . . .	529
My first thought was, he lied in every word . . .	359	She should never have looked at me . . .	214
My grandfather says he remembers he saw, when a youngster long ago . . .	584	Sing me a hero! Quench my thirst . . .	596
My heart sank with our Claret-flask . . .	210	So far as our story approaches the end . . .	335
My love, 'this is the bitterest, that thou . . .	235	So, friend, your shop was all your house! . . .	530
NAY but you, who do not love her . . .	215	So, I shall see her in three days . . .	241
Never any more . . .	242	'So say the foolish!' Say the foolish so, Love? . . .	667
Never the time and the place . . .	641	So, the head aches and the limbs are faint . . .	651
Nobly, nobly Cape Saint Vincent to the North-west died away . . .	226	So, the three Court-ladies began . . .	670
'No, boy, we must not'—so began . . .	546	So, the year's done with! . . .	215
No, for I'll save it! Seven years since . . .	518	Solomon King of the Jews and the Queen of Sheba Balkis . . .	625
No more wine? then we'll push back chairs and, talk . . .	437	Some people hang portraits up . . .	498
No protesting, dearest . . .	536	Stand still, true poet that you are! . . .	245
Not with my Soul, Love!—bid no Soul like mine . . .	656	Still ailing, Wind? Wilt be appeased or no? . . .	469
Now, don't, sir! Don't expose me! Just this once! . . .	499	Still you stand, still you listen, still you smile! . . .	534
Now that I, tying thy glass mask tightly . . .	212	Stop, let me have the truth of that! . . .	475
O THE old wall here! How I could pass . . .	522	Stop playing, poet! May a brother speak? . . .	419
O worthy of belief I hold it was . . .	620	Stop rowing! This one of our bye-canals . . .	673
Of the million or two, more or less . . .	321	Such a starved bank of moss . . .	565
Oh but is it not hard, Dear? . . .	627	Suppose that we part (work done, comes play) . . .	641
